General Haig, at present in England, drew much attention to these people, and spent a couple of years on their behalf as an honorary missionary at Dummigadiam some time back. He translated two Gospels into their language in the Roman character. The Telugu character being unquestionably more practicable, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Cain have been recently turning General Haig's work into the Telugu character. From creditable sources we ascertained that the Telugu language is spoken twenty miles further into Bastor than fifteen years ago. On the east and north the Halba and Hindustani are slowly creeping over Koi ground. The only hope for the escape of the Koi language from oblivion is in the reduction of it to writing in the Telugu character, and the instruction of the people in it.

We have never seen such listeners in India. Men, women, and children flocked to hear us everywhere. No caste; no priesthood; no cast-iron religious system or ritual; the way to the very hearts of the people seemed fully open to us. We could think of them as nothing else but sheep bereaved of their shepherd. Could we have spent six consecutive months among them many of them may have been converted. How our hearts burned for these dear people, so simple and open-hearted and kind, receiving us as the very angels of God.

The Rajah of Bastor died last year, and the heir is but six years of age. For fifteen years the State will be under the care or administration of the British Government. Native rule has crushed this people down to deepest poverty. With the advent of British rule a great spirit of expectation has arisen in the hearts of the people of Bastor.

Now is the day of the Lord for giving this people the Gospel. There is as yet no mission in the State, with an area of thirteen thousand square miles, and 325,000 population. It is a splendid country, bound to develop under the enterprise of British rule. The climate of the plateau is most delightful. I hold official permission to open six mission stations in the Bounds of Bastor. The proper plant of six missions in Bastor, and two in the Godavery, will be about £10,000, and eight married men and eight single ladies are needed for the work. One for each station must be a doctor. There is but one hospital and three schools in the State. What a work. Who will say, "Here am I" for this pioneer work, and who will help to send them? Prayer is earnestly solicited for Bastor and the Koi people.

C. B. Ward, Methodist Missionary.
Yallandu, Nizam's Dominions, India.

Rev. John McNeill in Scotland.

In the prosecution of his mission, Rev. John McNeill is now visiting the towns and rural districts of Galloway, accompanied by Mr. J. H. Burke. On Sabbath, May 29, and the two following days they were in Stranraer, where they held in all six services. The opening meeting was held in the old Town Hall on the morning of Sabbath, under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association. In the afternoon and evening two meetings were held in the parish church,—the largest in the town, seating over 1300,—which on both occasions was packed to the door. Mr. McNeill made a profound impression on the audiences, many declaring they had never before heard the Gospel put in so clear and striking a way.

On Monday evening the church was again crammed. Mr. McNeill's subject was "Christ healing the man with the withered hand." On Tuesday Mr. McNeill held a special service for the benefit of the country people in the surrounding district, many of whom came from distances as far off as eighteen miles. In the evening the church was again densely packed in every available space, many getting no farther in than the entrance lobby and stairs, while crowds were turned away. At all the meetings Mr. Burke led the singing, and was assisted by an excellent choir. His solo singing is very impressive and greatly appreciated.

At the close of all the evening meetings several hundreds remained for prayer, and scores of individual requests were made for definite prayer on behalf of themselves and relatives. These after-meetings were very solemn, and a marked feature of the services. They showed the deep and profound impressions made upon the large audiences. The whole of Stranraer and surrounding district have indeed been stirred and moved in a way and to an extent never before experienced in the memory of any one.

Looking back upon it, it seems as if a mighty wave of blessing had passed over the town and district during those three memorable days, sweeping all opposition before it, and graciously refreshing and gladdening the hearts of God's people.

Messrs. McNeill and Burke proceeded to Newton Stewart on Wednesday for three days' services there, which were all largely attended, and resulted in much blessing. On Saturday they went to Wigtown, the centre of another large rural district, where they were to remain for three days.

A largely attended meeting for praise and thanksgiving was held in the old Town Hall, Stranraer, on the evening of Wednesday, presided over by several of the ministers of the town, at which many testified to the blessing they had received from these special services.

SANTA CLAUS HOME.—This little home, at 34, South-grove, Highgate, for convalescent children in need of real nursing and care, has sent out its first report. Since June last, when the Home was really opened, twenty-six children have been admitted, varying in age from fourteen years to fifteen months. Of these, three had to be sent back into hospitals, being very seriously ill, and one died. Our Home differs from ordinary Convalescent Homes in many ways: first, that we take in cases that need real nursing; secondly, that we admit children who we know will require months of rest and treatment before they can be well. Touching details are given of various cases and an earnest plea made for liberal help, which should be sent to the secretaries, Misses Charles, Stormont, Hampstead-lane, Highgate.

EGYPT.—The latest reports of the Bible Society's work in Egypt are both encouraging and significant.—"In Egypt the existence of peace, order, and religious freedom has given full facility for carrying on Bible work. Ignorance, superstition, and ungodliness are everywhere. But the labourer is permitted to do his utmost to combat these evils and his endeavours have not been in vain. Much has been accomplished by few hands in the placing of the Holy Scriptures among the people of every degree and creed. The total number of copies placed out in every part of the Eastern field, which includes Syria and Palestine and Arabia, as well as Egypt, during the year 1891 was 22,629, a larger number by 1918 copies than were issued in 1890, and 3426 copies more than the issues of 1889."

On Epsom Racecourse.

Amongst the multitudes who in the reckless and heedless pursuit of pleasure and excitement have thronged Epsom heath during the past week a noble band of fearless witnesses have been, to use their own words, "holding aloft the banner of the Cross," flinching not from sneers and jeers, and even more tangible missles employed against them. This is the fourth year that Mr. Josiah Nix has led a party to Epsom; though it will be borne in mind that thirty years before the late Mr. Gawin Kirkham had a band of open-air preachers on the Derby course.

This year Mr. Nix's party has numbered fifty-six—sturdy Christians drawn from all parts of the land, who went down prepared to endure hardship, if need be, for the Gospel's sake. A tent was put up, which served first as a prayer, dining, and sleeping-room—though some had to sleep out in vans—and next as an inquiry and conference room, where any pricked to the heart sought further counsel. Going down on Tuesday morning, the party remained till Friday afternoon, returning in time for a welcome meeting held in Princes' Hall in the evening, when various members gave some account of what the Lord had done by them. Dr. Gale presided, and Revs. Mark Guy Pearse and Darlow Sarjeant took part, but the interest of the occasion was naturally in the Epsom band.

Mr. Marsden came first, and thanked God for the best time they had ever had at Epsom, for the biggest band, and for men of the right stamp. It should be noted at the very outset that, though they had been to the Downs, they had not seen the races; as they held their services between each race (as well as morning and evening), retiring to their tent when the bell rang for clearing the course.

A brawny Yorkshireman, Captain Perfect, came next, telling of his joy in the service, and of the stirring events of the Epsom campaign. Next came the redoubtable leader, Mr. Josiah Nix, who thanked God for the privilege of leading a band of witnesses to the masses on Epsom course. Religion, he said, seems so easy and sweet in Prince's Hall, but on Epsom Downs it is quite a different thing, when all look on it as a disagreeable intruder. There they were on the enemy's ground, and the old adversary was inclined to resent it.

Tuesday, said Mr. Nix, is the great day for the racing and betting men. They did not go to Epsom to hide in a corner, so between each race they gathered right in front of the Grand Stand, and round them crowds of every stamp and class, who for the most part listened fairly well. The evening meetings were very encouraging. Six or seven at a time were kneeling at the penitent form seeking pardon for sin. One gentleman came to William Sampson, the Cornish evangelist, saying he had listened with deep interest; that he had at one time a mission of his own; that his father had been a prominent minister. He was surprised and pleased to find such a testimony borne on the racecourse.

Wednesday brought the swells, the highest in the land, royalty, the nobility, and, indeed, the cream of society. For these special cards were prepared, with scripture texts, which were usually politely received, and through which, in past years, there was definite blessing.

A bright young Welshman followed with an animated account of the work. One point we must note. He deplored specially (as all must) the presence of some "wearing the regimentals of the King of heaven," that is, clergymen. One such said to the speaker, "Do you call yourself a Christian?" "I do, sir." "Well, I am a Christian and a preacher of the Gospel. I come here to enjoy myself, and see the horses; but you—you come here to make Christianity ridiculous, and cast pearls before swine." "I am sorry," was the apt and crushing reply, "to find a preacher of the Gospel among the swine."

Mr. Rowley, the father of the party in appearance, but youthful and vigorous in tone and spirit, and several others briefly spoke of the work among bookmakers especially.

ANOTHER BAND OF WITNESSES.

Mr. Charles Cook writes that a band of some 50 members of the Open-Air Mission and L.C.M. held services on the racecourse during the Derby week. The jubilee male choir rendered good service in attracting audiences. The testimony of the police, as given to Miss Alexander, is: "The place is not the same as it was some years ago, and we attribute it greatly to your help and influence." The Gospel is listened to respectfully, and the books are taken willingly.

Until some few years ago not more than five or six brethren, including Mr. Kirkham, were wont to go on the course to preach; the other members of the Open-Air Mission occupied points on the different roads leading to the course, and gave away suitable literature; but a few years ago the London City Mission co-operated with the Open-Air Mission, and sent down a goodly band of helpers, who sang and preached the Gospel most acceptably, and this has continued up to this year, the united band numbering about fifty brethren.

Over 120,000 suitable booklets and tracts were distributed during the week by the friends, whilst the services have been most encouraging. All the week long a prayer-meeting was held daily at Miss Alexander's Mission Hall, open-air meetings were held nightly in the town, the gipsies were regularly visited in their tents and vans, and every effort made to proclaim Jesus as the only Saviour, to all who attend Epsom races.

JEWISH GUESTS AT MILDMAY.

The annual summer treats in connection with the Mildmay Mission to the Jews took place on June 1 and 2. They coincided with the first and second days of the Jewish feast of Pentecost, or Feast of Weeks. On June 1 the Mildmay Mission commemorates the beginning of its work in 1876, and since that day thousands of Jews and Jewesses and their children have been brought under the sound of the Gospel.

On Wednesday about three hundred adults, and on Thursday about one hundred children, eagerly joined in these afternoon excursions "to the country," and they were greatly delighted with the "strong air" of the Mildmay Conference grounds. Colonel Morton gave a hearty welcome to all. Rev. J. Adler read Psalm ii., and urged his brethren to compare the "Blessed are all they that put their trust in Him," with "Cursed be the man that trusteth in man" (Jer. xvii. 5). Mr. J. E. Mathieson spoke warmly on Messiah as the sacrifice for sin, and showed that we Gentiles believe in the Jewish Messiah on the ground of the Old Testament, and on the evidence of Jewish witnesses in the New Testament. Mr. Wilkinson related his experience of Christ's ever-constant faithfulness, and pressed on his hearers the necessity of trusting in the atoning blood of the Lord Jesus.

On Thursday afternoon the children themselves gave proofs of the instruction which their kind teachers give them in New Testament truth. Dr. Dixon, returned from a missionary tour round the world, Mr. Dressler, returned from Jaffa, Mr. Samuel Wilkinson, and other friends, took part in these happy gatherings.

ARTILLERY-LANE MISSION.

This Mission is doing a quiet work among the inmates of the common lodging-houses in the neighbourhood of Spitalfields. Fourteen of these are regularly visited every Sunday evening, when the Gospel is preached to numbers of the most depraved men and women, varying from four hundred to nine hundred, according to the time of year.

The mothers' meetings are greatly valued by the poor women in this district. Meetings have also been held for Jews, who abound in the locality. The meetings for the Jews are discontinued for the present, but it is hoped shortly to resume them. During the winter months a free breakfast is given to the destitute, after which Gospel addresses are given, interspersed with singing.

Various meetings are held in the mission room during the week for mothers, children, Bible readings, sewing classes, and Gospel work, besides rescue work. On Sunday evening there is a meeting for children, and afterwards for adults, besides lodging-house visitation and open-air preaching.

GROVE MISSION, SOUTHWARK. — The completion of fifty-four years work in South London has just been celebrated. The report showed increase in all departments. The Sunday-school is flourishing and has a splendid staff who are doing a blessed work. The tract distributors visit five hundred houses every Sunday. The Band of Hope has 150 members. The open-air mission has been a great help in gathering strangers.

AMERICAN NOTES.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Memorialists are busy securing appeals against the Sunday opening of the forthcoming World's Fair at Chicago. The whisky-saloon power in this country, with its gigantic strength, is making every effort to the contrary. If the committee succumbs to the vicious classes, thousands of Christians will refuse to patronise the exhibition. It would be well if British exhibitors await the decision, and if Sabbath desecration is determined upon to refuse participation in the Fair. There are organisations which care little for religious sentiment, that are brought to terms by fear of financial loss. If the exhibition is opened on Sunday, in the face of appeals from all our Christian churches, this nation can no more, in even a remote sense, be considered Christian.

Our Western cities are badly demoralised by the importation of the Continental Sabbath. Saloons, gambling dens, theatres, and even commercial houses are doing a thriving business, while our churches are woefully empty. The opening of the exhibition on that day would not only utterly demoralise Chicago, but would establish a precedent for future licence until our peaceful New England Sabbath would cease to exist.

At the present writing a report has reached me that Dr. Charles Cullis, of Boston, is nearing his end. His physicians hold out no hope of recovery. This dear man is known throughout Christendom for his large-hearted philanthropy and profound spirituality. His "Consumptives' Home" is a monument to his loving, gentle, sympathetic heart. Dr. Cullis has lived for those who suffer; his ministry has been toward the poor and needy. For some years he has been partially invalided.

The Sixteenth Annual Conference for Bible Study will (D.V.) be held at the usual place, Niagara-on-the-Lake, Canada, from July 7 to 13. To many scattered workers in this and other lands this Conference has proved a stimulus for labour, a ministry of strength for battle, and a source of refreshment for pilgrimage. The substratum of all teaching at this Conference is the plenary inspiration of the Bible. The testimony given is always pronouncedly emphatic and non-compromising. Brethren from abroad are ever welcome.

There will possibly be organised this summer an anti-higher-criticism league, which will enrol men of all evangelical churches who will protest unqualifiedly against the destructive criticism which now wages war against the Bible. The extremes of the radicals are having a healthy re-action in spurring the timid to take their stand against the assaults of the unsparing critics. Thereby shall good come to the whole Church.

Negro-lynching is on the increase throughout the Southern States. While many of the criminals, whose brutality has caused the death of several little girls, and the nervous invalidism of many more, deserve a summary execution, yet this method of wholesale lynching is utterly inexcusable. So far, it has not checked crime; on the contrary, it has provoked and encouraged lawlessness. It will be understood that the white Christian population are in no wise responsible for the evil deeds of white desperadoes. But we expect to hear their voice raised in public protest against lynch law, even as we have heard them deplore in private the midnight assassin's bloody work. Most of the criminal negroes have been hanged, while some have been burned and others disjointed. Such barbarous practices will never produce law-abiding citizens.

Working Men's Mission.

The fifteenth anniversary of the Working Men's Mission, Collingwood-street, New Cut, was held last week, presided over by Mr. T. A. Denny. Mr. J. Ashton gave a résumé of the year's work from which it appeared that the Mission was commenced fifteen years ago. The soup kitchen had supplied one hundred and twenty thousand meals, the income from this source being ten pounds less than the expenditure. The financial statement showed a balance in hand of fifty-four pounds only to meet bills due to the amount of eighty-six pounds. Mr. F. A. Bevan said he also had been impressed with the improved appearance of the audience to what he had seen in former years; he hoped the Mission would still seek the outsiders that they might be brought into the mission hall. Messrs. R. K. Causton, M.P., J. B. Meredith, and John Kirk also supported the work.

For the Young.

NEEDLE AND THIMBLE.

BY REV. JOHN MITCHELL, EDINBURGH.

"I go through a deal of work," said the needle to the thimble one fine summer afternoon, as they were lying side by side on the table.

"Yes; but not until I push you through it," replied the thimble in a rather scornful manner.

"In that respect I am no worse than many people I see around me, for they would spend their days in idleness were they not compelled to work."

"You are right," answered the thimble; "but tell me, how can the like of you see?"

"I have got an eye, although it is a very small one; but I make good use of it for all that."

"Well," said the thimble, "I wish all children would make a good use of their eyes, so that they might see to learn their lessons and to do good. By the way, what was that the master said the other night when he called the household together and opened a big book and read words like these: 'Turn away mine eyes from beholding vanity.' I suppose they are the words of some one who was afraid that his eyes might look on worthless objects or on that which is sinful. I have noticed the boys reading 'penny dreadfuls,' they call them, and I am sure their eyes are put to bad use when they read the like of these."

"You are quite a philosopher, Mr. Thimble, and you astonish me."

"A what, did you say? A phil——what does philosopher mean? It is something bad, I fancy—a fool is it?"

"Oh, no, I was complimenting you, saying something kind to you; for you ought to know that a philosopher is one who loves wisdom and who seeks it."

"You are a very polished gentleman, Needle,—I beg your pardon, Mr. Needle, I mean—and I was just thinking how nice it would be if the children in the house and in the streets would be less rough and more polished in their manners."

"Yes, Mr. Thimble, some young folks nowadays have very little polish, and they do not improve at public schools. When they are rough with me I prick them, and so they learn to be more careful."

"Rough children are better to be taught, even suppose they do suffer for a time. Better that than remain always careless. How is it that needles get lost when they are so wise, if I may take you as a specimen?"

"Well, we do not lose ourselves; it is people who lose us. We have no soul, and not even the sense of dogs and cats. But children who have souls, and who are wiser than we are, get lost in sin, and choose to wander away from their loving Creator, and sometimes they are never found; for they love their sin so much that they will not be saved by their Redeemer. We needles, as I said, have no souls, and are of little value, and when we are done with this world there is no more of us. But children have souls that will live long after their bodies have passed away, and so they ought to live well and to trust themselves to One who is able to save them and to keep them."

"Thank you, Mr. Needle. Farewell."

CHILDREN'S SERVICES, TYNEMOUTH.

We have had much joy in welcoming Mr. Josiah Spiers amongst us at Tynemouth, where he recently conducted a fortnight's mission to children and young people. The meetings were well attended and followed by manifest blessing, both in the decided conversion of a number of the children, and a real refreshment to those who assisted in the good work. They were held in the St. Oswin's Hall, which was kindly placed at the disposal of the committee by the Congregationalists.

Conversing with the children at the after meetings was very refreshing and helpful, as many of them then decided for the Lord Jesus, their home testimony manifesting a real change of heart. A number have since joined the Scripture Union.

Before Mr. Spiers left us, a permanent committee was formed to continue the work by fortnightly meetings, the first of which was held on the 2nd, when about 120 children and young people were addressed by local friends.

E. W. De Rusett.

Warden House, Tynemouth.

"HE KNOWETH THE WAY THAT I TAKE."

Wearied with daily work and sad at heart,
I thought of life and of the solemn part
Which everyone must play while here on earth;
And then I wondered what my life was worth,
And longed to live in a far wider sphere
Of influence;—to see before me clear
A plan of what my life was meant to be,
That I might follow it, and clearer see
Each step before me as I went along.

Thus thinking, I arose, and looking out
Beheld a stately house, whose pointed roof
And graceful curves and lines were ample proof
That some great master-hand had sketched the plan,
And in the work had guided every man.
And, as I gazed, I heard a gentle voice
Saying—"My child, look on it and rejoice
That thou, too, hast a plan prepared for thee,
But one which mortal eyes can never see;
For know that when this goodly house was raised,
No other eyes except the Master's gazed
Upon its wondrous plan, and every one
Did as the Master bade, laying one stone
Upon another, till, with glad surprise,
They saw at last before their eager eyes
This noble pile.

Thou, too, my child, must leave
The future in thy Father's hands, nor grieve
Because the way is hid before thine eyes.
Canst thou not trust a Guide so true and wise?"
The voice ceased, but the thought remained with me;
And now I am contented just to see
One step before me: just to do the task
Which He may give me, caring not to ask
How long the road is, or how steep the way,
Knowing that He will guide me day by day.

Crieff. Ella Millar.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. Edwin Arrowsmith, at Broadwas-on-Teme (Worcestershire), June 10-12; Mr. Henry Hutchinson, Bishop Stortford, June 8; Langton, Tunbridge Wells, June 9; Bridlington, June 13-14; Lincoln, 16-17; Mr. Jas. S. Tyler, Christ Church Hall, Lancaster-road, Enfield, June 12-17: Mr. T. Lewes Sayer, Forest Hill, June 9-11; St. Andrew's Hall, Upper Norwood, June 12-24; Mr. A. G Dodderidge at Leeds and neighbourhood, for Scripture Union Meetings, to June 10; St. Leonards and Hastings, June 13 to 17; Anerley, June 25. Guildford Convention, July 2 and 3.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sun., June 12, 2 Timothy iv. 9-22; Mon., June 13, Luke i. 1-17; Tues., June 14. i. 18-33; Wed., June 15, i. 46-56; Thurs., June 16, i. 57-66; Fri., June 17, i. 67-80; Sat., June 18, ii. 1-17.

Drift Children.

The last Drift Children's meeting for the season was held in Blackthorn-street Chapel, Bow-common, E., on Wednesday evening last week, under the presidency of Mr. J. F. Shorey, who addressed the children on Psalm cxli. 3, urging them to pray God to keep their lips from lying, swearing, and drinking. The pastor (Rev. T. J. Hazzard) addressed the parents, relating some of the incidents mentioned by Mr. Moody at Stratford on the previous day. Mr. Boyer, the superintendent of this branch of the Ragged School Union, conducted the singing and reciting, which showed great pains on the part of the children, and a decided advance on former years. The general improvement both in the behaviour and appearance of these poor children as compared with three years ago, when we began this work, was very marked.

Just now we are suffering greatly from the strenuous efforts of the Romanists, who by bribes and promises are doing their utmost to get these poor children into their school, where they are taught to bow down to the Virgin and do homage to priests and sisters. Will Christian friends pray specially about this matter, for it rests heavily upon our hearts?

H.

MR. NEWTON JONES (S.S.U. evangelist) has been busily engaged in the provinces during the past six months, labouring amongst young and senior scholars with cheering results. On revisiting some places, many who at the first visit decided for Christ are now active workers and church members. The council of the Sunday-School Union have agreed to send Mr. Jones, during the months of June and July, into several of our most deserted villages. On July 29 he will hope to take up his quarters in the Sand Cathedral at Redcar.

THE CITY Y.M.C.A. ROOMS.

Two months ago we gave an account of new premises opened by the City Y.M.C.A. at the corner of Cornhill and Gracechurch-street, and thus occupying a most central position. Since then these rooms have been in regular use, but were not formally opened till Wednesday week, when a meeting of the friends and members was specially called for this purpose.

Mr. Hugh Matheson, who presided, expressed his thankfulness in seeing the Y.M.C.A. in the City entering upon premises more fitting and commodious than those used in Whittington-avenue. The City Y.M.C.A. had a great field before it, and he was sure that the work would greatly extend in these new rooms.

Mr. Fry, as one of the earliest supporters of the Association, rejoiced in the change which had, indeed, become a necessity. He trusted hundreds more of the young City clerks would now discover the value of the Y.M.C.A.—Mr. H. W. Maynard followed, with some account of the financial position, showing that about £100 was still wanted to meet the cost of removal, fitting up, and furnishing. After a few hearty words from Mr. T. A. Denny,

Rev. G. F. Pentecost, D.D., who had come, he remarked, expecting a large gathering of the leading Christian business men of London, said his thoughts in connection with the Y.M.C.A. turned to the great debt which Christian business men in the City owe to the young men they employ. Every man who has prospered, having passed the period and dangers and trials of youth, owes a tremendous debt to young men who have not reached the point of safety. He remembered the time when he, as a young man, entered a great city with only a few shillings in his pocket, and with a feeling of strangeness. He did not know what the result would be, and he owed it to two or three kind Christians who took him by the hand that he emerged from that desolate feeling of strangeness and took heart of hope. Speaking of young men leaving their homes and coming to London among strangers, he said their very loneliness tempted them to go into company. Then there was the danger of being led into temptation and sin. The function of the Y.M.C.A. is to hold out a hand of kindly help to these young men. He would confess he was rather disappointed at not seeing some four hundred or five hundred Christian merchants and business men of the City assembled to wish the Association God-speed. He believed the greatest interest of business men was Christianity, and the Christian merchant's first interest was to see that everything Christian was well maintained. He suggested that this plea might be made by the secretary. In former times the merchant lived in rooms attached to his business premises, and his young men lived in the house and had their meals with him. But although times and circumstances had changed in this respect, the responsibility on merchants and employers had increased. If they did their duty to God and their young men, there would be no want of funds to fit up those rooms. In America they beat England both in the matter of Sunday-schools and Young Men's Christian Associations. He hoped the day would soon come when some large central building like the Mansion House would be provided for them. They wanted some sort of Christian Exchange in this great city, where young men would find what they wanted, and be helped upward and onward. The speaker concluded with a few words on the call which comes from the foreign field, and India especially, to the Christian young men of England.

Messrs. Head and Seagram also spoke briefly.

THE HOLIDAYS.—Miss C. F. Ryffel, Directress of the Bienvenue Home for Foreign Governesses, 8, Colville Houses, Talbot-road, London, W., writes to say that she is ready to receive applications from families requiring foreign governesses for the holidays.

SOUTHWARK AND LAMBETH MISSION.—Mr. W. Benson has commenced his seventeenth season of open-air preaching in connection with Christ Church, the meetings being held nightly in front of the Church. He writes to say this summer he is greatly cheered, not only by the large crowd gathered, but by tokens of gracious influences attending the word spoken. He often has the pleasure of taking the Temperance pledge at these meetings, and sometimes dealing with anxious souls in the porch of the church. Last Sunday Rev. Dr. Newman Hall gave an outdoor address after a sermon to young men in the church. The help of members is requested, also at the Sunday-morning station at Belvedere-road.

Messrs. Moody and Sankey.

THE WORK AT STRATFORD.

We have to record that the visit of these brethren to Stratford has been the occasion of mighty blessing, and we anticipate the wave will flow on. Mr. Moody expressed himself as greatly pleased with the hall and the work that is going on inside and outside its walls. But he had one regret—that there yet remained a debt of £530 on the building, and a charge of £270 by the local authorities for making the roads on either side: in all £800. He expressed the belief that if only the Lord's stewards knew of the sort of work being done, this deficiency would at once be wiped out.

On the Sabbath the large hall, seating nineteen hundred, and all the smaller halls and rooms are full of active service for Christ, no less than ten meetings inside and four outside in the day, including young men's Bible-class numbering over two hundred, as well as two services in the Welsh language. Every day the doors are open, and some work for Christ is going on. Our Mizpah Band, numbering four hundred working men, has a male choir and an Evangelistic Band going all over London after the day's work, to sing and testify for Christ without any payment other than the bare railway fares. Seven or eight open-air meetings are held every week. The mothers' meeting numbers some two hundred, and the women's Mizpah Band the same number. As treasurer, I must say it would be a great joy to see this work free of the incubus of debt, and if the Lord lays it upon the hearts of his servants to be sharers with us in this labour of love, we will praise Him who allows us to be co-workers with Him in such blessed work.

C. Boardman, Hon. Treasurer.

Stratford, E.

FOLLOWING UP AT WANDSWORTH.

The interest awakened during our brethren's visit to Wandsworth was such as to determine the friends to carry on the meetings for a week at Down Lodge Hall after they had left. Accordingly it was arranged that Mr. W. R. Lane, who had been addressing the overflow meetings, should remain. His preaching met with much acceptance, and night by night there were some who confessed Christ.

Speaking on Monday night of the crowd which "thronged" our Lord and those who "touched" Him, the speaker said that perhaps there might be some in the meeting who last evening "touched" Him for the time with the hand of faith. Immediately a young fellow stood up to say, "Yes, I did"; then another rose, and another. The meetings increased both in attendance and interest, and quite a number of names have been taken in the inquiry-room.

AT THE DOCKS.

On Wednesday evening, last week, the evangelists had arranged to hold two services at Lady Ashburton's Mission Halls: at Manor Way, North Woolwich, and the Custom House, Victoria Docks. Their visit was eagerly looked forward to, and at both places large throngs gathered to hear them, many being disappointed of gaining admission.

The Hall at Manor Way, which is a branch of the work at the Custom House, is only seated to accommodate 300, but on this occasion the seats were re-arranged so as to accommodate a considerable number more, in addition to which there was a large congregation outside the building, listening to the evangelists through the open doors and windows. Mr. Sankey was only able to sing two solos, as he had to proceed to the other meeting at the Custom House. Mr. Moody gave a very earnest and telling gospel address. At the close the workers had some interesting cases of inquirers, and several, we believe, were gathered into the Good Shepherd's fold.

At the Custom House, meantime, a much larger audience had gathered, and were patiently awaiting the arrival of the evangelists. The intervening time had been filled up by the hearty singing of hymns from "Songs and Solos," with a number of short, earnest prayers, and an address by Mr. E. W. Matthews, Secretary of the British and Foreign Sailors' Society, with which the Mission is affiliated. Mr. Sankey first sang, "Throw out the life-line!" There were a good many sailors in the audience who readily understood the significance of the song, and lustily joined in the chorus. Mr. Sankey then sang "The Ninety and Nine," and offered prayer. He specially prayed that some of the men present might have manly courage to come out for Christ, not fearing the taunts and sneers of their mates, but standing up boldly for the Master. By the time he had finished singing "Then shall my heart keep singing," Mr. Moody had arrived, and at once commenced his exhortation, which was listened to with the deepest attention. Towards the close he urgently pleaded for immediate decision. He closed the meeting praying that some of sin's captives there might be set free, and that the fetters that bound them might be broken.

It was late when the gathering broke up, but still a number went into the inquiry rooms, and before leaving several testified both by their joyful words and happy faces that they had entered on the new and better life. The visit of the evangelists to the region of the Docks, brief though it was, will not readily be forgotten.

MR. MOODY AT HULL.

We began a united prayer-meeting, at noon, each day, so soon as intimation was received of Mr. Moody's intention to come to Hull. The spontaneousness, definiteness, and "grip" of the prayers presented from day to day told very plainly of the promptings of the Holy Spirit, and afforded foretaste and pledge of larger blessing. In this meeting, as in all the meetings of the Mission proper, the spirit of unity has prevailed. Men of the Church of England, Methodists, Baptists, Congregationalists, and Presbyterians have been of "one accord," The "thirsty" in all the churches have been crying that God would "pour water" on them; and indeed, He has "refreshed his inheritance when it was weary." The experience of refreshment in the case of his people has issued as always in awakening among the careless, for there have been "floods upon the dry ground."

Mr. Moody had no Sabbath last week! The day that he usually gives to rest—Saturday—he was good enough, in view of the encouraging character of the meetings on Thursday and Friday, to give to work, and the results amply justified his determination. Large audiences gathered both afternoon and evening, notwithstanding all the attractions of Whitsuntide excursions, and the enquiry meeting on Saturday night was singularly fruitful in intimations of decision for Christ.

Yesterday (Whit-Sunday) Mr. Moody's programme was a very full one—meeting for Christians at nine, for non-churchgoers at eleven, for women at three, for men at 7.45. The first meeting, that for Christians, took the thoughts of all present back to Pentecost, or perhaps, one should rather say, brought all present under the very Power that made Pentecost what it was. The circus, where all the meetings are being held—was full, and when it is mentioned that it is seated for 3500 it will be recognised that at such an early hour and during a holiday season such a gathering was phenomenal.

At the 11 o'clock meeting, for non-churchgoers, the circus was again full. In the afternoon, when the women had their opportunity, they used it well, for the place was packed, and a spirit of very deep tenderness and contrition prevailed.

In the evening, when the men assembled, the circus seemed to be floored, and walled, and almost ceiled with men, so enormous and overpowering was the audience. But more overpowering than the audience was the power of the Spirit that dominated all while the Gospel was preached. It was easy for Mr. Moody at the close of his sermon to get, with remarkable rapidity, but with as remarkable reverence, intimations of decision for Christ on the part of so many that those interested happily lost count. But many went in to the inquiry-room afterwards—not in every case, however, to inquire, but to confess Christ, or simply to receive from the workers something of the Word of God that might be for the confirmation of their faith. Some of those spoken to were strangers who had come in to Hull for Whitsuntide, little knowing that they were to meet the Lord here, and to go back to their homes new creatures in Him.

This day (Whit-Monday) is Mr. Moody's last day with us. He has kindly said that he will take an extra meeting this morning at the other side of the town; but in the afternoon and evening he speaks again at the circus. We anticipate that the last day will be the best day, and that new confirmation will be given to the words: "The hour now is when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God, and they that hear shall live."

J. G. T.

Hull, June 6.

MR. AND MRS. LETHABY ON MOAB.

These noble pioneers, whose heroic work in the land of Moab has been from time to time mentioned in our pages, gave at the Central Noon Prayer-Meeting, on Tuesday week, an account of the Lord's work amongst the Moabites, or rather the Bedouin tribes who inhabit the region beyond the valley of the Arnon or Wady Mojib.

Mr. Lethaby described the land on the south side of the Jordan, and the ancient Kir of Moab, now known as Kerak. In the first centuries of the Christian era the messengers of the Cross found their way to Moab, and from that time till now there have been Oriental Christians there; but since these early days no missionary has ever penetrated the country until, in the leading of God, and after valuable training in Jaffa and Jerusalem, Mr. and Mrs. Lethaby were led, in spite of warnings from many who knew the fanatical character of the people and the danger involved, to go to Kerak. There they were well received by the ruling sheikh, and granted permission to stay and teach. If any still asked why they had gone to such a place, the answer was, Because our Lord said, "Go, preach to every creature," and these descendants of Ishmael had not the Gospel; therefore they had gone, relying on Him who promised, "Lo, I am with you."

After telling how Moab had been laid on their hearts, how the way had been opened, how frowning obstacles had been removed, Mr. Lethaby went on to speak of the privilege of declaring the Gospel to those whose idea of God—Moslems though they be—is rather that of a grinding-wheel of fate than of any personal God. While Mr. and Mrs. Lethaby, Miss Arnold, and more lately, Mr. and Mrs. Forder, have been able to help the sick and suffering, and thus minister the Gospel to the adults, the work is largely amongst the children. Many of these have been taught to read and write, learning also by heart portions of the Scripture, and singing heartily Gospel hymns. The hope of the future is in these young people, who have learned much Scriptural truth and know God's plan of salvation. Gospels, New Testaments, and Bibles have been scattered in the houses and tents of the people; while the message of mercy, the tidings of truth, were also being carried home by the children of the schools.

But after all the matter that weighed most heavily on our brother's heart was "the region beyond." What, he asked, about Central Arabia? What is being done for it? Nothing at all. True, at one corner in the far south, there is a mission; but nothing in the way of evangelization is going on throughout the Arabian peninsula. In all probability there is no land on the earth, of equal extent and population, so utterly unevangelised, and he trusted and believed that Moab would prove the back door into Arabia. Many young men might there find a great and thirsty land waiting for the water of life.

Mrs. Lethaby followed, telling some little of the trials and hardships of the journeyings and of the need of the women; making also a touching and loving reference to the death of Mrs. Forder, reported in our last issue.

PARIAH CHILDREN IN SOUTH INDIA.

We have received a copy of the annual report of the Tamil Mission Ragged Schools, of which Mr. Gnanamutthu Joseph Israel is superintendent. The schools are carried on for the benefit of the Pariah children of South India, and are similar in character to the ragged schools in our country. The scholars number about 800, and are taught by a staff of thirty-two native teachers. The total cost is under £350 annually. Mr. Israel is now in England, studying the methods of evangelistic work, with the view of erecting in the city of Madras a central building, which will serve the purpose of a mission hall for the parents of the poor children. The teachers are all earnest Christians, and the material for conducting the services is therefore ready to hand. The building proposed will cost £1000, for which Mr. Israel makes an appeal in his report. Readers concerned about Indian missions should send two stamps for a copy of the report to Mr. Israel, 3, Prescot-place, Halifax. We notice that the Mission is spoken of most approvingly by Sir C. A. Turner, ex-Chief Justice of Madras; by Rev. C. H. Peely, Government chaplain; and by Mr. W. C. Bailey, secretary to the Mission to Lepers in India; all of whom are acquainted with the work carried on.

MR. ALFRED HENRY BAYNES,

GENERAL SECRETARY, BAPTIST MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

As many qualities of head and heart are needed for the making of a secretary of a great missionary society as for the making of a successful statesman. Those who have an intimate acquaintance with the subject of our present sketch say that he reaches as nearly to the ideal standard of secretaryship as one can look for in this imperfect state of being. The Baptist Missionary Society is making a praiseworthy effort to signalise its centenary of service by a large forward movement. In the prosecution of this endeavour it is fortunate that the Society has a man at the helm of its affairs whose heart is big enough to sympathise with it, and whose head is competent to plan and carry it through.

Alfred Henry Baynes is a native of Wellington, in Somerset, where he was born in 1838. On both sides of his parentage he inherited mental capacity and high Christian character. We read of his mother that "she combined quickness of intelligence, shrewdness, sound commonsense and great prudence, with invariable sweetness of disposition, retiring modesty, and the most devout and prayerful spirit ...She always looked on the bright side of things, and had a sunny, trustful, and thankful spirit."

If Mr. Baynes was happy in having such a mother, he was no less fortunate on the paternal side. His father, Rev. Joseph Baynes, was for forty years pastor of the Baptist Church, Wellington. He was a man of a truly catholic spirit, and was "on terms of fraternal intercourse with ministers of all denominations." Withal he gave himself greatly to prayer; while, according to the highest testimony, he was "great and successful as a preacher." Coming of such a godly and goodly stock, it was only according to the fitness of things that the son, like other of his brothers, should rise to a position of eminence and honourable service in the Christian Church.

His youthful leanings were towards the profession of medicine, and he entered on the needful course of study. His health gave way, however, and he betook himself for a time to the field of business enterprise. He found a post in the firm of Peto, Brassey and Co.; and it was while acting as private secretary to the late Sir Morton Peto that he was introduced to the service of the Baptist Missionary Society. He undertook for a time to look after the finances of the Society. His ability and powers of application soon gained him a footing in the ranks of the Society's officials, and in 1879 he entered upon the general secretariat, a post which has from the first been held by men of acknowledged weight and worth, the list including the familiar names of Andrew Fuller, and Drs. Ryland, Angus, Trestrail, and Underhill.

Mr. Baynes has amply justified the choice. Not only by his judicious handling of the affairs of the home office, but by his visits to the foreign field, he has done much to strengthen and consolidate the foreign missionary work of the Baptist communion, and to encourage the workers. Two years after acceding to full office he paid a well-remembered visit to the Baptist mission stations in India and Ceylon. That visit carried cheer to many a brother and sister bearing the burden and heat of the day, and was fraught with good results in different directions. Mr. Baynes, on his return, received the heartiest thanks of the Committee for his zealous devotion to the interests of the cause of missions. The Indian missionaries were no less warm in expressing their appreciation of the presence and sympathetic speech of their Secretary.

(From a photograph by Messrs. Debenham and Gould, Bournemouth.)

Two years ago Mr. Baynes made a second tour in the East, which has been equally fruitful of good. His reports covered a wide field, and his suggestions were of a distinctly go-ahead order.

From an authoritative account we may extract the following reference to further services to Baptist missions:—"In connection with the mission Mr. Baynes has repeatedly visited Italy, which, perhaps, may be regarded as the most important part of the European field occupied by the Society. He has also visited Belgium, and conducted negotiations in connection with the Congo Mission with the King of the Belgians. This Congo Mission, which has engrossed so much of the attention of the churches at home, has had the keenest and warmest sympathy of the Secretary, and owes its present success and promising condition, in the first place, certainly, under God, to the zeal and self-sacrifice of the devoted missionaries who have given themselves to it, but, secondly, to the incessant thought, care, and earnest advocacy of Mr. Baynes.

"In December, 1884, Mr. Baynes visited Berlin in connection with the sittings of the West African and Congo Conference, which met in that city. He was also charged to conduct negotiations relating to the annexation by Germany of the Cameroons and Bimbia on the west coast of Africa, and the interests and property of the Mission at various stations in these districts. These negotiations were conducted with the German Chancellor and the authorities of the German Foreign Office, and were brought to as satisfactory a conclusion as was possible under the circumstances. The regrettable action of the British Government, in ceding to the Germans the important stretch of seaboard, from the settlement of Victoria to the right bank of the Rio-del-Rey river, and the whole of the interior, including the Cameroon mountain, created for the Society a situation of considerable difficulty, in consequence of which it was necessary for Mr. Baynes, acting on behalf of the Committee, to make repeated communications to, and to have more than one interview with, Earl Granville, Her Majesty's Foreign Secretary. All that was possible to be done, in the circumstances of the surprise which was sprung upon the Society, was done."

Mr. Baynes is a very acceptable platform speaker, and makes ample use of his gifts in this direction for the furtherance of the cause of Christ at home and abroad. But the greatest and not the least important part of a secretary's work is done behind the scenes. The processes not lying within the public purview, their multifarious and delicate character is not always recognised when the results appear. Constant correspondence with a large and scattered body of missionaries, in positions of varying difficulty and varying need; the cultivation and preservation of friendly relations with the home churches, and the keeping up of a practical interest among them in the great work of foreign evangelisation; the guidance of those who nominally direct affairs, and the reconciliation of conflicting views; the careful and wise conduct of finances—these, as well as the public advocacy of mission operations, require the fullest exercise of gifts and qualities that go to make up that statesmanship of which we have already spoken. In all these respects Mr. Baynes has acquitted himself in a manner that shows how largely he has inherited those admirable qualities cited in an earlier part of this sketch as having belonged to his parents.

The Centenary of the Society, now in course of celebration, must have involved Mr. Baynes in much anxiety and hard labour. One outcome of the success (for which we are all praying) of the well-devised and practical schemes connected with the Centenary, will, we trust, be to encourage him yet more successfully to advance the work of evangelisation in lands which are now overshadowed by clouds of hoary superstition and dense darkness. In the recently published "Centenary Volume of the Baptist Missionary Society," Rev. Samuel Vincent writes regarding India: "Mr. Baynes has suggested in our last report what concentration is required in our stations, and what reinforcements are needed by our staff...If he can carry out his plans, we shall probably see all our Indian missions transformed before the twentieth century begins. Already God has greatly blessed what we do, but we do far too little. May God enlarge our hearts that we may enlarge the scale of missionary gifts and labours; till in conjunction with other sections of the Church federated through the world for this end, our efforts may be more commensurate with the greatness of this Indian continent and its variety of races, whose faiths are changing in a dawn that shines from Christ."

THE SPIRIT OF TRUE PRAYER.

The Merchants' Lecture delivered last week by Rev. A. Rowland, LL.B., was founded on the words of our Lord when He bid the disciples beware of adopting the ideas of the Pharisees with regard to prayer, and added, "When thou prayest enter into thy closet, and pray unto thy Father, who seeth in secret." In the course of his address Mr. Rowland said that if in our almsgiving we were to avoid the sin of hypocrisy, it was most necessary when we addressed our Father in heaven that we should regard the spirit in which our prayers are addressed, rather than the attitude or place in which those prayers are offered. It was not that Christ objected either to the way in which the men of his day prayed, or the system in which their devotions were carried out. He rather noted the utter lack of spirituality of their aspirations. "To be seen of men" seemed their chief aim, and standing at the corner of the street, or in some other prominent place, they made their long orations; in being seen of men they had their reward. The danger of the English mind lay not so much in the display of our religion, but in attempts to hide it. Unreality might mar the devotions of men who would scorn any outward display The true spirit of prayer sought its opportunity of rising to the Father in sincerity and truth, and was a matter between the soul and God alone. However secretly alms were given, the recipient at least must know something about it. Prayer, however, was entirely different. Secrecy was its very foundation, and the spirit might even in the midst of a busy life look up to God in sincerity and truth. Thus we might be led to realise the words Longfellow penned for his brother's ordination when he wrote: "And evermore beside him on the way, the unseen Christ shall move." It is this idea of the nearness of the Unseen, at all times ready to listen to the sincere breathings of the heart, which, in a great measure, constitutes the spirit of true prayer.

Mrs. Baeyertz in Dublin.

A week's Mission by this lady evangelist, in connection with the "Young Women's Christian Association," has been concluded. Two meetings were held daily in the Christian Union Buildings, at which Bible Readings and Gospel Addresses were given. The meetings throughout were largely attended. Inquiry meetings were held at the close of each Gospel Address. The Bible Readings were particularly clear. Many have received blessing.

Mrs. Baeyertz has consented to stay another week.

THE RAGGED SCHOOL UNION.—Last Thursday over fourteen hundred little members of the Drift Children's Branch of the Union were entertained at the Great Assembly Hall, Mile-end. When the doors opened a crowd was waiting for admission, amongst them being many parents or friends of the little ones invited. A choir of ladies and gentlemen sang nursery rhymes and popular songs. A series of tableaux were much enjoyed; but, best of all, dolls, balls, picture-books, &c., were distributed, as well as buns and oranges. Those who benefited were unmistakably drawn from the most neglected and destitute of our street arabs, while many amongst them were crippled or otherwise deformed.

[5021

The Evangelistic Mission.

BANK HOLIDAY AT KILBURN HALL.

On Monday afternoon and evening, as usual on the Bank Holidays, meetings were held at Kilburn Hall in the afternoon and evening. These occasions give opportunity for friends in church who seldom meet to strengthen one another's hands in God.

Mr. C. R. Hurditch spoke of his work in the many halls in and round London, and pleaded for means to build another in the rapidly-increasing locality of Brondesbury, the ground for which has been already bought; as well as for current expenses. His work has been tried and proved, the unadulterated Gospel is preached, and God blesses it; and we trust that as the older friends are dying off, new ones will come forward to our faithful brother's support.

The chief interest of these meetings was centred in the accounts given of work in Russia by Dr. Baedeker, in China by Mr. Gulston, and in Africa by Dr. Harry Guinness.

Mr. R. C. Morgan spoke of the Spirit as having been once for all poured out, every believer baptized by the Spirit into the one body, and made to drink into that one Spirit, in order that, drinking freely, yea, abundantly, he may be filled with the Spirit. There may be accuracy of doctrine but little zeal or power, and on the other hand less intelligence and yet greater faithfulness and more result.

Mr. H. Varley spoke forcibly of the important place given to the truth in the second and third epistles of John, and instanced 1 Thess. i. as an inspired summary of doctrine not later than A.D. 54, in reply to the assertion that there was no specific creed before the second century.

Dr. Baedeker had lately returned from Russia, where he had seen Christians shut up in prison cells, like John in Patmos, for the word of God and the testimony of Jesus. If they knew little they lived what they knew. One thrilling case was that of a father taken from his family, and sent to the borders of Siberia for four years. By the time he had learnt the language he was allowed to go home; but when he got back he was required to sign a paper that he would have nothing more to do with the propaganda. He refused, and was sent back to Siberia; but now he knew the language he was able to teach the truth of Jesus, and fifty had been turned to righteousness. There is no persecution that is not the seed of a large harvest. When Dr. Baedeker told the oppressed Christians that their brothers and sisters in England were praying for them they thanked God with tears for the love of those unknown members of the same body.

Mr. Gulston spoke of the province of Hunan, and of Chou Han concerning whom Dr. Griffith John wrote to us at length some weeks ago. The men of Hunan are called men of iron, as contrasted with the men of water in the neighbouring province. Chou Han has declared himself ready to lay down his head to clear the country of "foreign devils," and there are thousands ready to do the same. Are we ready to lay down our heads to preach the Gospel to them? Chou Han has published most violent tracts and obscene pictures, evidently the work of men who have studied our Gospel literature. But the speaker had heard that orders have gone forth that he is to be arrested, and the tracts and plant burnt up. This surely is an answer to prayer. Like Dr. Griffith John, he looked to God for the conversion of this energetic man, that he might, like the Apostle of the Gentiles, preach the faith which now he labours to destroy.

Mr. W. E. Lane, having offered prayer, urged upon all the true missionary spirit which at home or abroad would make itself felt in the winning of souls to Christ.

Dr. Harry Guinness, referring to the anniversary meeting of the Secular Society at Newcastle-on-Tyne last Sunday, said he did not believe there were a dozen honest sceptics in the East of London, which he attributed to the work of the various missions, and of the Christian Evidence Society. He dwelt upon the short prophecy of Haggai as the missionary message for us to-day. God stirred up Haggai to tell the people to build his house, the foundations of which had been laid seventeen years before. He is urging us to build his temple of living stones, of which the foundation was laid nineteen centuries ago. Speaking of Africa, his cousin, Mrs. McKittrick, had called him to a girl of twelve or fourteen who was dying of dysentery, bleeding to death. She had gone out into the dark alone to die, and bending over her with a flickering candle, he felt how sad a picture she was of Africa itself, whose people by thousands every day are dying in the dark, alone. But the light is breaking. One of the most remarkable things in modern missions is the progress of the Gospel in Africa. God is moving in Africa, God is moving in the world. He says to us, "Go out quickly, for surely I come quickly." There is absolutely no obstacle. Looking at everything, if the path were not clearly marked out for him to give himself to the Training Institute, he would rather work his seven years in Africa and die where he had laid his loved companions to rest till Jesus comes than live in greater ease at home for thirty years. "Whatsoever He saith unto you DO IT."

WORK IN CILICIA.

A meeting was recently held in Exeter Hall, under the presidency of Lord Kinnaird, to bid farewell to Mr. Krikor Behesnilian, who is about to proceed to Tarsus in Cilicia, after completing his studies in theology at New College, Hampstead. Dr. Brown, Secretary of the Turkish Missions Aid Society, explained that there are a number of native evangelists working independently of the American missionaries who occupy the field in Asia Minor, but enjoying cordial recognition from them. Of these Mr. Behesnilian is one. Lord Kinnaird strongly approved of a man preaching from his own doorstep as calculated to do more good than the sending of missionaries to places and peoples with which they are imperfectly acquainted. Rev. Dr. Kennedy and Principal Vaughan Pryce, M.A., also spoke, the latter of the work done by the young missionary in the College, and the former of the necessity of fixing the interest in the work by the formation of a committee.

Mr. Behesnilian gave a lucid account of the work done and the work which remained to be done, and spoke at length of Tarsus past and present. He has written a little book entitled, "No Mean City,"* in which he deals with the history of Tarsus and the conditions which obtain there now. There is something of the true missionary spirit about this modest countryman of St. Paul, who supported himself by gardening when studying at the American Missionary College of Aintab, and who, by dint of strong resolution, and in spite of many obstacles, came to this country, and obtained in it a sound theological training; having fitted himself for the task, he now returns to his labours.

* Lang Neil and Co. 6d.

SUNSET ON THE HILLS.

A growing glory marks the day's calm close,
We gaze with transport on the beauteous scene,
As silken clouds, all fringed with golden sheen,
Are slowly drawn around the sun's repose.
Above the hills the curtained radiance glows;
O'er all the west spread tints supremely fair,
As though the gates of pearl might open there,
And heaven's veiled glories to our eyes disclose.
Such be the sunset of our life's brief day,
Calm in the confidence of hope Divine;
The joy of heaven, like yonder parting ray,
Vouchsafed upon our happy souls to shine.
May watchers see how beautiful and blest
The saint's glad entrance into endless rest.

Belfast. W. Maxwell.

THE "MAY" MEETINGS.

THE LONDON CITY MISSION.

For some years this Society has been in the habit of holding an evening meeting in support of its operations and in addition to the usual morning meeting held early in May. This supplementary meeting took place on Wednesday week in Exeter Hall.

Mr. George Hanbury, who presided, recalled the origin of the London City Mission, and dwelt on its influence in bringing about a spirit of Christian unity and co-operation in service. As to the work of the Mission, it was quiet and unpretentious, but very real and fruitful. He believed in the house-to-house system. The door would sometimes be shut in the missionary's face; but, all the same, tact, perseverance, and patience would win the way; and thus thousands who otherwise would never have heard the Gospel tidings had heard and heeded to their own benefit and the benefit of society.

Rev. W. H. Langhorne supported the claims of the L.C.M. because of its absolute necessity in such a vast city. However devoted the clergy and ministers of all denominations might be, the sin-breeding force in this great metropolis would be too great for them to cope with but for the aid of the City missionaries. He knew that there were great and increasing difficulties in Christian work. Everywhere men were breaking down, overwhelmed with the burden of their work, and when they remembered that the population of this City increased at the rate of 80,000 every year, he thought they would see that it behoved all God's people to be up and doing, so that the standard-bearers of God's elect should not fall in the battle. But there was another ground upon which he would base his appeal for the Society, viz., its simplicity. It had no costly machinery; it spent no money on bricks and mortar; its operations were simplicity itself. It found the living agent, put the Book into his hand, and then bade him go forth and speak to the people of the Gospel of Christ. And he was sure that their work was being greatly blessed, and that they were exerting a wonderful influence over the masses of the population. They supplied the missing link between the upper and the lower classes. There could be no doubt that the working men were able to restrain themselves because of the Christian influence brought to bear upon them by the agents of the London City Mission. He believed that in numbers of cases evil had been prevented in that way. The City Mission was working quietly and unobtrusively, but it was doing great things for God, for Christ, and for his Church. The third reason why he was anxious to commend the London City Mission to their support was on account of its catholicity. It was one of those few Societies which his experience told him were becoming less and less, where all Christians could meet together on common ground as disciples of the same Lord, and work for the same Master. It was to his mind a splendid thing to think of, that they had five hundred men who were going about London not concerned about this church or that chapel, but were working for the eternal welfare of the souls whom they were trying to lead to Jesus. Their mission was an apostolic one, and apostolically were they carrying it out. His experience of City missionaries was that they were determined not to know anything among men save Jesus Christ and Him crucified.

Mr. H. Perry, missionary to bakers, gave a very interesting account of his work. In London within the twelve-mile radius of Charing-cross, there were about 15,000 journeyman bakers, between 6000 and 7000 master bakers, between 3000 and 4000 boys and youths, and several hundreds of shopwomen employed in the baking trade. His district was in the West of London, and he worked amongst all the classes he had mentioned. He had about 250 shops assigned to his visitation. He found the people wonderfully responsive to his efforts, although at times he met with opposition. But a London City missionary never knew when he was beaten, and some of the hardest cases he had had to deal with often turned out to be the most successful. He knew of infidels, drunkards, and profligates who had owned to being converted to God through the visitation of the missionary.

Rev. Dr. Leach said he believed the London City Mission was solving the problem which was troubling all branches of the Christian Church at the present time. There was a desire for closer unity among Christians, and that Society enabled them to realise their aspirations. It was impossible to overrate the importance of the work the missionaries were doing in all parts of this great metropolis, and he felt that if London were as black as it had been painted then they ought to have not only 500 but 5,000 City missionaries working within the twelve-mile area. He had been a student of politics. He had examined many proposals—even those of Henry George—for the improvement of the people, and he had come to the conclusion that all of them, without the Gospel of Jesus Christ as a foundation, were absolutely futile.

Mr. W. E. Fuller, missionary to tram and omnibus men, said he had known the Society for sixteen years, and it had in no way diminished in its power under God in presenting the Gospel to the lapsed masses. With regard to his work amongst tram and omnibus men, he found that Sunday travelling was a great hindrance. He was often told by them that the Christians caused them to work harder than they should have to do on the Sabbath-day, and he knew the charge to be true. He was able to visit them in the stables as well as upon the omnibuses and cars, and he found them ready to listen to the Gospel and to receive the tracts he distributed. He held meetings for them at midnight, when their work was done, and he had known many who would stay till two in the morning listening to the Word of God.

SUPPRESSION OF THE OPIUM TRADE.

The annual meeting of the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade was held on Wednesday week in Exeter Hall, Sir Joseph W. Pease, Bart., M.P., presiding.

The Secretary presented an outline of the report, from which it appeared that the past year had been marked by striking contrasts in the agitation against the opium trade. Numerous and influential meetings had been held throughout the United Kingdom, but, on the other hand, the defenders of the trade, alarmed by last year's vote in the House of Commons, had been endeavouring to confuse the plain issue of national morality in the question, whether the British Government of India should be allowed to continue trafficing in "this pernicious drug." The vote by which, on April 10, 1891, the House of Commons condemned the opium trade as "morally indefensible" had already produced some results, and the grounds for encouragement predominated.

The Chairman said that what he had to say might be summed up in the words, "Thank God and take courage." Those who could look back fourteen or fifteen years in the history of the movement would remember how few were the Society's allies, either in or out of the House of Commons; but, comparing with that the present strength by which the movement was backed, they found, indeed, good reason to take courage. A notable time in the history of the struggle was when, some ten years ago, the churches began to take up the cause and give it their support. Then came the great victory of April, 1891, in the House of Commons. On that occasion the late Mr. W. H. Smith promised that in future Her Majesty's Government would strive to contract the areas of poppy culture in India, and he (the speaker) was glad to say that on asking Mr. Curzon, the present Under Secretary for India, at a later period, what steps had been taken to give effect to that undertaking, he was informed that those areas had been contracted, and that the shipments from Calcutta for the Chinese trade had been reduced by the very substantial quantity of three thousand chests. This was satisfactory, but if Governments were to be kept up to "the mark," people must look after them. In regard to the suppression of the opium traffic, particular attention was being paid to India, and, happily, it was bearing abundant fruit. In India at the present time an opium den might not be a place where opium was sold. That was a small step, perhaps, but it was still a step in the right direction. A more important step was the striking out of the minimum clause from the Bombay licences—a clause which compelled the licensee to sell at least a stated amount of opium, under penalty of an "ad valorem" fine. The defenders of the traffic had striven to defend it from the producers' point of view; but that ground failed them, for it transpired that cotton crops and other crops could be produced very much more profitably. Now, the friends of the anti-opium movement were practically handed over to the doctors; and seeing the large number of medical men they now numbered amongst their active supporters, and the five thousand doctors who recently signed their memorial, he thought they would have no difficulty in overcoming the medical aspect of the opposition.

Canon Wilberforce, in the course of a most able and telling address, spoke hopefully of the future of the movement. He said he was reminded of the calm, smooth, oily-looking sheet of water about a mile above Niagara Falls. It looked quiet, and not particularly strong; but when once anything floated on to that point, it never could go back, but was carried on with irresistible force till precipitated over the falls. So, he hoped and believed, it would be with this great anti-opium movement.

Miss Geraldine Guinness, in an address glowing with the intensity of her sense of China's wrongs, told of wasted lives and blighted homes; showed how the opium craze, fostered by us, was devastating China; and pathetically described scenes she had witnessed in cases of opium-suicide.

AGED CHRISTIAN BLIND.

The twelfth annual meeting of the Homes for Aged Christian Blind was held on Thursday in Jubilee Hall, Hanley-road, Hornsey-rise, N., Mr. John Cory presiding.

The founder and superintendent of the Homes, Rev. H. Bright, read a report showing that steady progress had been made in every department of the work. The Sunday and weekday classes, &c., had been steadily carried on. During the year twelve inmates were received, five left, and seven had died. The homes are now full, the present number of inmates being eighty. The income amounted to £2066 12s. 8d., and the expenses to £2413 19s. 11d.

The Chairman, in the course of his address, said that much had been done to alleviate the sad loss of sight by seeking in many ways to brighten the lives of those so afflicted. The census of 1881 showed that there were eighty-eight hundred blind persons in Great Britain alone over sixty-five years of age, the majority being friendless and helpless; hence the vast importance of institutions like the pre-ent. The work was quite of an undenominational character. A special effort was now being made in the present year of the founder's jubilee to free the branch home from debt, which was now reduced to the sum of £250. He considered the Christian character of the work was by far the most important part of it.

Rev. Charles Brown said he had the greatest possible confidence in the work of the homes. It was their duty as citizens of a great empire to do their utmost to help the weak and suffering, and he was glad that everything was not left to the administration of the poor-law.

Messrs. Joseph Benson and Titchfield and Dr. Gale spoke to a resolution expressing the satisfaction felt that the effort now being made in connection with the founder's jubilee to free the branch home from debt has so nearly been crowned with success, and pledging the meeting to use its influence to raise the remaining balance of £255 during the present year, and thus enable the founders and committee to devote undivided energy to make the general maintenance fund equal to the demand of eighty aged blind sufferers, for whom there is ample accommodation.

THE BELLEVILLE MISSION.

The anniversary of Miss de Broen's Mission Belleville, Paris, was held on the afternoon of Tuesday week in Exeter (Lower) Hall. Very interesting was the account given of the work in Paris. The Mission has many sides, and includes Gospel meetings, a medical mission, day, night, and Sunday schools, sewing classes, German meeting, prayer meetings, Girls' Training Home, visiting the poor and sick, temperance meetings, lending library, and many other things. Last year no fewer than twenty-eight thousand people were attended to at the hospital alone. The work is approved of by all good people in Paris, Catholic as well as Protestant. The beginning of this manifold work was a visit paid by Miss Broen to the old cemetery. Going one day in 1870, soon after the siege of Paris, to Père la Chaise with some friends, she found that only the night before five hundred Communists had been shot there. They, indeed, were buried, but the place was full of women and children in the first agony of their grief. Miss Broen's heart was greatly moved, and she resolved to stay in Paris, and see what she could do for these poor people. She offered them sewing at a fair remuneration, and in a short time had around her a knot of women, to whom she spoke the Gospel story. Gradually the scheme developed itself, and after five years the medical mission was started. In this good work Miss Broen has had help from Miss Ker and other ladies, who devote their lives to the amelioration of the conditions, physical and moral, of the poor of the French capital.

Colonel Wroughton, who presided, said he had lately visited Paris, and had seen Miss de Broen's work, and could speak highly of it. He commended it to their support.

Rev. W. Linklater described the religious condition of the people. He said Paris was the fountain head of sin, frivolity, and infidelity; France had a claim upon England, and Paris for Christ meant France for Christ.

Mr. R. C. Morgan very warmly supported the claims of this Mission, of which he had seen a good deal when in Paris. He knew that a very real work is doing, and that among a class singularly hard to reach, and by many regarded as well-nigh hopeless.

Miss Ker, a co-worker with Miss de Broen for nineteen years, gave a long account of the work and instances of good done. She also read a number of letters proving the estimation in which Miss de Broen's work was held by all classes, including the Roman Catholic priests. The work, she said, ought to be supported by England. From three thousaud to four thousand came to the Home every year, and thirteen hundred Bibles had been bought during the year. A large number also had been distributed free.

Miss de Broen made an urgent appeal for help. At the present time they were in great straits for want of money.

Lord Kinnaird said he should like, before they separated, to see if a plan could be devised to raise a thanksgiving fund to help on the work.

LONDON FEMALE GUARDIAN SOCIETY.

The friends and supporters of this admirable philanthropic society listened on June 2 to the report of the eighty-fifth year's work. And this was an interesting record, as Lord Kinnaird, the Chairman of the meeting, remarked. Eight and a-half decades of labour have brought about a vast change in public opinion; social sins have been faced, discussed, combated, counteracted, and largely overcome, and the working committee of this Guardian Society show by their report that they have kept open minds in regard to their own system of dealing with the victims of moral lapses, though, after judicious revision of their rules, no material departure from the sterling and sound original principles of the Society has been deemed necessary. Long experience has developed a system of internal discipline which is midway between leniency and rigour, and the young women who pass through the Homes not only appreciate the treatment mentally, but show the benefit of it afterwards in their self-governed lives. During the year last ended thirty-six young women were placed in service, fifteen were restored to friends, twenty-six withdrew at their own request, eight were sent to hospitals for ill-health, four were transferred to more suitable Homes, and only nine were unrepenting failures. The Committee clearly ascribe the advantageous position of the Institution at the present moment to the fact that the founders raised the superstructure on the only safe, immutable foundation, the pure Word of God, in accordance with the letter and spirit of which its proceedings have been conducted. They also feel that the mission of the Society is not only to win the wandering and wayward from the paths of sin and sorrow, but to furnish the results of their experience for the guidance of others.

In commercial matters the Committee prove themselves business men, for the two houses, with management expenses, medical charges, office outlay, taxes, &c., only shows a total of £33 4s. 8d. per head; and from this total the inmates themselves, notwithstanding the weak health of many of them, have by their own labour earned an average of £11 11s. 1d., thus reducing the cost per inmate to be met by outside charity to £21 13s. 7d. The splendid laundry is kept in first-rate condition, and sympathisers are invited to send their laundry-work to the Matron, at 191, High-street, Stoke Newington, N

Mr. Marshall Lang, Chairman of the Society, explained that a cardinal feature of this institution was to give the inmates as long a residence as possible, so that the religious influences should have full effect. He also pointed with great pleasure to the fact that of all the thousands of women who had been in the Homes, as many as sixty per cent. were known to have turned out well in after life—a percentage which compared well with any other institution or philanthropic effort. Another feature of this society which had proved efficacious was the constant industry which the inmates were encouraged and required to practise. Unfortunately it had to be reported that during last year the only remaining investment had to be sold out, and, notwithstanding every economy and effort, the year closed with a considerable deficit.

ANTI-VIVISECTION SOCIETY.

The sixteenth annual meeting of this Society was held on Thursday in the banqueting-room of St. James's Hall. In the unavoidable absence of Professor Lawson Tait, who had been announced to preside, the chair was taken by Mr. Wm. Tebb.

The annual report, presented by the Secretary, expressed the confidence of the committee that the work done during the year, in face of enormous opposition and difficulties, went far to prove that by its consistent action the Society has materially advanced the prospects of the ultimate accomplishment of its aims—the prohibition of vivisection. It was an undoubted fact that the general public had during the past year regarded the Society's operations in a more impartial spirit than in former years, and accorded to it a more generous hearing. Reference was also made to the approaching General Election, and an intention expressed on the part of the committee of actively pressing its views upon candidates.

The Chairman, in the course of his address, said it was argued on behalf of vivisection that it was used for the advancement of the art of cure; but when they asked for proofs of this progress they were not forthcoming. He instanced the great increase which had been reported in cases of cancer, leprosy, and other diseases as proofs in a contrary direction, and said that knowing what he did of the atrocious sufferings inflicted upon defenceless animals, he for one would refuse to accept amelioration of pains by this means.

Bishop Barry moved: "That this meeting holds the practice of vivisection to be unwarrantable upon religious, moral, and humane grounds." He could find no justification whatever for the claim that, in order to avoid suffering for themselves, if, indeed, such were the result, they had a right to inflict excruciating agonies upon these creatures of God. Nothing was so ruthless as the ruthlessness which was practised in the name of science, and although it was claimed that it was done for a good purpose, he would say that it was impossible to do evil in order that good might come.

Addresses followed by Dr. R. H. Jude, Messrs. Candy, Q.C., T. G. Vaudrey, A. Wall, S. Harris, L. Reed, and others.

MISS MASON'S HOUSE OF REST.

The annual meeting of Miss Mason's House of Rest for Christian Workers was held on Friday afternoon. Mr. John Cory, of Cardiff, presided, and there was a goodly attendance of friends and sympathisers. After singing and prayer, the Chairman spoke in very warm and appreciative terms of the work. He emphasized the fact that in this age of hurry, rest is an essential element in everyone's life; in none more than in the lives of Christian workers. He was rejoiced to know that the Master of the Vineyard had put it into Miss Mason's heart to provide such an Institution to rest tired workers.

Miss Mason presented her report for the year. The record was one of progress; the admissions showed an increase of fifty-eight, and the contributions to current expenses an increase of £230 over last year, but this included a legacy of £210. The total admissions had been 801; in the London house, 232; and at Eastbourne, 569. There is accommodation at Eastbourne for forty-eight people, and at St. John's Wood for thirty-six. There is an urgent need for increased and regular subscriptions to the fund for current expenses.

The Help to Workers Fund has given to four regular pensioners ten shillings per month each, and occasional help was given to twenty-three other workers in times of great emergency and need. The freehold premises are now entirely free from debt. The plans for the Aged Workers' Home are ready. The lowest estimate for building is £2177, and this will ensure a good-sized, substantial house, containing seventeen rooms. Towards this amount there are £400 in hand, but as Miss Mason does not intend to go into debt she cannot begin the work until another £1,500 is guaranteed.

Following the report came an address from Rev. J. Temple-Robson, missionary from South-East Africa. It was very pleasant to hear his striking testimony to the physical and spiritual benefit he had derived from a sojourn in the House of Rest, on his return from the mission-field, and his heartily-expressed gratitude for the sympathy, help, and encouragement he had received.

Rev. F. B. Meyer, after a few words of warm sympathy and appreciation, gave a practical turn to the meeting, and suggested that all energies on that occasion should be devoted to raising the £1500 needed for the Aged Workers' Home. He pleaded with all to make a special effort, and by so doing to glorify God, to give a tribute of love to Miss Mason, and to help the old people waiting and praying for their home.

Mr. T. A. Denny strengthened this appeal by a few cordial words; after which "canaries" were circulated, and a collection made. Mr. Cory and Mr. Denny each promised £100, and the collection amounted to £68 17s.

Rev. A. C. Downes followed with a few words, and Mr. W. H. Seagram suggested that those who were unable to subscribe large sums, should undertake to collect the sum of five pounds among their friends. This suggestion was emphasized later by Rev. Mr. Bartlett, who pointed out that by so doing the needed amount would be very easily raised.

THE CHRISTIAN COMMUNITY.

This ancient mission society, founded over two hundred years ago, held last week, in Exeter Hall, its anniversary, when the report read by Mr. J. Atkinson, the secretary, showed that twenty-three workhouses and infirmaries, with a total of twelve thousand to fifteen thousand inmates, were regularly visited by a band of about 150 workers, including a number of lady workers, who did excellent work among the female inmates. In the infirmaries the sick and the dying were visited. The casuals had also been visited and dealt with in their own wards. Tracts, periodicals, and other literature had been distributed, and a new departure was made last year to supply the casuals with small libraries for their use. The lodging-house visitation had been continued during the past year, and this work had been deeply interesting, the men joining heartily in the services. During the same period twenty open-air stations were occupied, besides casual services held in other places. The Community had eight mission-halls, all in localities densely populated by the poorest classes, those halls being centres from which good influences radiated to the people around. The work at some of these halls was then noticed, and interesting statistics of the operations for the year ending April 30 were presented:—450 voluntary workers of both sexes gave their spare time gratis to the work; fifteen thousand workhouse inmates were visited every week in twenty-three workhouses, infirmaries, and casual wards; 1250 lodging-house inmates visited every week in Spitalfields, Canning-town, Poplar, Borough and Hastings; eight mission-halls entirely supported.

Mr. F. A. Bevan, who presided, maintained that the special features of the day showed that the work of the society was needed now as much as ever. In spite of all the new organisations, they were afraid there were still hundreds and thousands of people who lived without God, without Christ, and without hope in the world; living, many of them, in sadness and sorrow; living, most of them, without any regard to the future. It this were so, if there were still large numbers to be evangelised, then it was the duty of every Christian man and woman to take part in evangelistic work. It was a matter of great sorrow that so few, comparatively, of the working-men were to be found in their churches; but if they would not go to places of worship, it was quite clear that the Christian worker must go to them.

Mr. C. W. Radcliffe Cooke, M.P., ventured to think that sometimes they were too apt to regard the interests of the heathen in other countries to the neglect of those at their own doors; but he believed that such agencies as the Christian Community, in helping the poor at home, were stimulating Christian work all over the world. It was an unobtrusive society, and was doing its work in a quiet way.

Dr. H. Sinclair Paterson said that every Christian man and Christian woman ought to be a worker; for a standing ministry would, he be lieved, become a standing curse if Christian people thought that they were excused from seeking to save souls. He thought that all Evangelical ministers were thankful for the work of the Christian Community.

Addresses followed by Revs. A. Styleman Herring, C. James and H. Bone, and Mr. T. Broad.

MISSION WORK IN THE ARMY.

The annual meeting of the Army Scripture Readers' and Soldiers' Friend Society took place in Princes' Hall, Piccadilly, on the afternoon of June 3, under exceptionally auspicious circumstances. The ground floor, gallery, and platform of the spacious structure were thronged, and the result was a conspicuous success.

The chair was occupied by H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught. The yearly report and balance-sheet were read by the secretary, Mr. W. A. Blake. His Royal Highness expressed warm sympathy with the aims of the Society, and having witnessed the useful service performed by Scripture readers to the Army in India, Egypt, and at home, he could, as a general officer, honestly and cordially commend the Association to increased support. In token of approval the Royal chairman contributed twenty pounds.

After eloquent addresses from the Chaplain-General and Canon Wilberforce, the report was adopted. Mrs. Evered Poole spoke on the need of the soldier from a womanly standpoint.

STRANGER'S REST, RATCLIFF.

The usual monthly meeting for Christian workers was held at the Stranger's Rest, Ratcliff Highway, on Friday evening last. The meeting was presided over by Mr. Richard Cory, of Cardiff, who pressed upon the workers the need of greater earnestness in God's work.

The secretary, Mr. Isaacs, in giving an account of the work, said it was deplorable to see the state of the Highway, especially on Bank Holidays, when special meetings were held to counteract some of these evils. He appealed for additional helpers, especially for work among the Italians. The open-air work is being much blessed, proving that the grand old Gospel is still the power of God unto salvation. Good tidings had been received, too, of the work in Zanzibar, both among the sailors and the native women.

Mr. Henry Varley gave an earnest address, based on Romans v. 9-11.

Mr. Gulston, lately returned from China, a former worker at the Rest, gave testimony of the blessing of God on the truth preached in that land.

THE CHICAGO BIBLE INSTITUTE.

The blessing of the Lord has been upon this work from its beginning. The success of the plan, which was at first regarded by many as an experiment, has been fully demonstrated, both by the increasing number of students and by the demand for them wherever they have become known. Never since the opening of the Institute have there been so many students as this year. By February the buildings were full to overflowing with energetic, determined young people, having a strong desire to save souls and willing to do hard work, often leading to a great deal of self-sacrifice for the sake of the advantages enjoyed here.

Thirty-five cottage meetings are now being held in the homes of the poor every week, and multitudes of these homes are visited by the ladies. Poor women often come with their children to the mothers' meetings who could not come to church on Sunday. Missions are conducted, and many missions and small churches are supplied with speakers, and as the men develop they go out into the neighbouring States to hold evangelistic services. Their ability is soon tested in this way, and we have many letters from pastors showing deep appreciation of their methods and spirit. The churches of the city and suburbs are waking up to the value of the work, and sending for our ladies to visit for them, and also to discuss the work before missionary and Christian Endeavour Societies.

Our men and women are in foreign mission fields on every continent; in home, Sunday-school, and city missions, and almost every form of Christian work now known; yet the Institute is less than two and a-half years old.

Caroline Eloise Waite. Cor. Sec.

Chicago.

NOTES FROM NORTH CHINA.

Writing from Ping Yang-fu, Shanshi, on March 16, Mr. T. H. King says:—

The work in this district is very encouraging. We have about a hundred members in good standing and a good number of inquirers, many of whom, we have every reason to hope, are truly converted. There seems to be quite a little revival in a district about four miles from here, the outcome of the consistent life and faithful testimony of one of our women Christians. It was going on all unknown to us, and came to light through one of our ladies visiting the village. Since then there appears to be quite a number of inquirers. I went over yesterday to see them, and found that they had fitted up a room during the last few days. Without any suggestion from us they had fitted up a little room as a chapel. It is in the house of a very energetic little man, who built his house and also made a cart without any help from anyone, so that we hope he will distinguish himself also as a Christian.

In other places the work is equally encouraging. Although, unfortunately, it might be said with truth of some stations that with the absence of the foreigners the work would die out, yet I don't think so of this station. The natives feel the work concerns them and, with the exception of one evangelist, all is done without any pay of any kind.

The drought here is causing much distress; rain now can hardly avert a famine. It is a very trying position seeing and hearing of so much distress without being able to relieve it.

KASHMIR MEDICAL MISSION.

We continue to receive most satisfactory accounts of the work of the Kashmir Medical Mission. The value of such a work cannot be over-estimated. Ever since its commencement it has been steadily progressing. Last year the Maxwell Tower and the State Leper Asylum were completed, and the operation-room fitted up. We hear that no fewer than 1823 patients were cured by treatment in the hospital, and only four died.

A very important step has been taken in connection with this Mission during the past year, being the establishment of a branch at Eastbourne, which very materially lightens the financial burden. Dr. Downes is the hon. secretary and treasurer, and he has a strong committee working with him. This branch has already forwarded to Kashmir twenty new iron bedsteads of the newest and best pattern, and £55 in donations and subscriptions.

Through this Mission alone we are thankful to know that ten thousand at least have during 1891 heard the message of God's love, in the gift of a Saviour, in all its fulness and freeness.

CAMBRIDGE NOTES.

The University sermon was preached by Rev. W. Sanday, D.D., Ireland Professor of Exegesis of Holy Scripture in the University of Oxford.

At the Alexandra Hall Rev. J. E. Rogers, M.A., gave an address on Sunday evening, and dealt with the subject of Sennacherib's defeat by pestilence.

On Sunday, May 29, Mr. Moule gave the second of his Bible-readings; the subject was "Baptism." Speaking from Gal. iii. 26, 27, he said faith must come first, then baptism. Baptism is like the sealing of a parchment conveying an estate. It seals the promises into the hand of faith.

A meeting was lately held in the Martyn Hall in aid of the Universities' Mission to Central Africa. Rev. H. Edwards from Magila spoke, and told of schools being opened, some six hundred children were under instruction at Magila alone. He did not think they must look for results yet, but they would be seen in after years. The medicine men were their great enemies, and child murder was frequent.

The open-air services this term have, under their new management, been a continued success. Two services were organised for adults, and one for children. Corpus, Pembroke, and other colleges have combined for the adults, while St. John's, Christ's and Queen's took the children. The numbers have been good. The children's service has increased each Sunday, and an evident impression has been made by the power of the Holy Ghost.

A meeting was held on Monday, 30th ult., in the Combination-room of Corpus College, under the auspices of the Spanish and Portugese Church Aid Society, when Rev. A. J. Shepherd gave an account of his recent visit to the reformed congregations of Spain and Portugal. He said he would like to corroborate the testimony of the Archbishop of Dublin, Lord Plunket. "Roman Catholicism is dark and black as we have it in England and Ireland, but in Spain and Portugal it is a darkness that might almost be felt."

At Madrid a piece of land has been bought, and a church, school, theological college, and a house for the pastor were being erected.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES.

Seaford.—Under favourable auspices a branch of the Y.M.C.A. has been formed here.

France.—Since 1889, Y.M.C.A. work has made great advance in France, and thirty new associations have been formed.

Saffron Walden.—It has been decided to build a "home" for the members of the Y.M.C.A., and a site has been secured in High-street.

Wakefield.—The Association has acquired the property it occupies, and the whole building has been refurnished by the kindness of various friends.

Exeter Hall.—The Young Men's Review regards the recent anniversary as "surpassing in enthusiasm and power" any previous meeting in the history of the Y.M.C.A.

Ipswich.—The committee has purchased a valuable property in the main street, and a gymnasium will be erected at the back. The leading men of the town are heartily supporting the project.

Walthamstow.—The committee has secured a fine old family mansion in the High-street, which has fourteen rooms, and at the rear a very large garden. A Ladies' Auxiliary is furnishing the rooms.

Rochester. — During the year about twenty members of the Y.M.C.A. have united themselves with the Christian church. The Association has just attained its first birthday and the membership is returned at 313.

Auckland, N.Z.—The Monthly Record reports a spirit of enquiry and much blessing in connection with the evangelistic services. As to the work of the past year, it is stated to have been fairly encouraging, while a debt of £250 has been cleared off.

Exeter.—The Committee has recently purchased King's Lodge College (which stands in the centre of the city), at a cost of £2300, and a further sum of £1200 is being spent on alterations, which will fit it for the work of the Association.

Manchester.—The Y.M.C.A. Beehive reports good work in the Bible classes, Gospel Temperance branch, and evangelistic meetings. Three parties of young men have already this year sailed for Canada, under the auspices of this Association. A legacy of £1000 has been left by Mrs. Rogers to the Manchester Association.

Meltham.—At the first annual meeting of this Association, lately held in the Oddfellows' Hall, Mr. E. H. Carlile (chairman) said that twelve months ago they commenced in fear and trembling; they could, however, look back with a feeling of gratitude that some useful work had been done. One hundred and thirty members were reported.

British Y.M.C.A. Conference.—The arrangements for this conference, which is to be held in Edinburgh from June 28 to July 1 next, are well forward, and appearances point to a successful gathering. About 450 delegates are expected to attend, and these will come from all parts of Great Britain and Ireland, numbering amongst them all the prominent Y.M.C.A. leaders throughout the country.

Winnipeg (Man.).—The Record gives a striking summary of the work since January 1, and adds: "The statement of work for the first four months of the year gives a little idea of what is being done, but figures are only figures, and they cannot convey a very intelligent idea of results in Christian work. Still, they have their place, and form an interesting record. The personal testimonies to the value of the Association work, speak for themselves, and carry weight which figures alone do not."

The Y.M.C.A. National Council held a Conference in Birkenhead on Friday. In the morning a meeting of the secretarial appointment board was held, Mr. George Williams in the chair, when proposals for the development of the work in the Midland district were considered. After luncheon, Mr. Mills, Secretary of the Council, stated that in 1882 they had 292 centres, and now they had close upon eight hundred. They had eighty thousand members, and their property approximated to four hundred thousand pounds.

Prompt and Practical.—Young Men's Meetings have just been organised at Port Arthur and Fort William. At the meeting for organisation held at Fort William, the Secretary gave a talk on "service," urging that service be "prompt" and "intelligent." Two of those present volunteered to meet the train from the West next day and look out for some young men whom the Secretary at Winnipeg had reported would arrive at that time. The four men were met, recommended to a boarding-house, and welcomed into Christian society. This was both prompt and practical service.

NOTES ON DAILY READINGS.

SUNDAY, JUNE 12.—EXODUS IV.

He who is able to make a serpent with a rod uses worms to thresh mountains and broken reeds as pillars in his temple. He is well able to make us instruments for great and mighty miracles. And though we be leprous by nature, He can make us whole and healthy. But alas! like Moses, we are so prone to quote our want of natural gift. As if it mattered to God whether He used a gifted or an ungifted man! He who made the mouth can remake it into anything He will, and it is not for us, but for Him, to consider whether He should remodel it any further for his use. If we can but claim all that is ours by the gift of God, stepping forth on his naked assurance, we shall escape that paralysing association with the Aarons of our life which are necessitated by our inability to claim from God all that grace which He has stored up for our returning needs. We get second-hand through Aaron all we might have had at first hand from God. Those who do most for God in the great world often find it hardest to be perfectly consistent at home. There is some Zipporah. We must be prepared to pass through death there if we would win and wield spiritual power over others. He who led Moses on the one hand led Aaron on the other. He can arrange necessary interviews, as with the duplicate visions of Saul and Ananias, of Peter and Cornelius.

MONDAY, JUNE 13.— EXODUS V.

When first the soul catches sight of deliverance, it is filled with joy, as were the children of Israel at the close of the previous chapter. But its next experience is as often as not a severe disappointment. The tyrant that has so long held it in thrall is not prepared to surrender his prey without a struggle, and doubles the tale of bricks. As the demoniac child comes within reach of Jesus, the devil throws him down and tears him. Shortly after the young disciple has accepted the Lord as a complete Saviour, he is called to pass through the fiery ordeal of a furnace of temptation, heated tenfold. The river of baptism and its opened heaven is followed by the temptation in the wilderness conducted by the devil. But the wrath of men and devils fails to stay for a moment the execution of the Divine plan; the only thing which affects that is the long suffering which desires that none should perish in his longing to enrich his suffering people. We never get so low in the dust of self-abasement as when we find ourselves discredited in the eyes of those whom we have proposed to help. Perhaps it is needful that others should lose all hope in aught from us, as Israel did in regard to Moses. God will not give his glory to another, and it must be shown that even Moses, apart from God, is powerless. But it is through this that we wax most mighty. We fall into the ground and die, that we may not abide alone, but bear much fruit. And it is in that bitter hour that God says to us, Ye shall see what I will do.

TUESDAY, JUNE 14.—EXODUS VI.

Jehovah is God's redemptive title. He always comes in this guise when He puts his hand to the redemption of his people. He will ever be mindful of his covenant, and when once the word has gone out of his mouth, the difficulties that obstruct his course are as pebbles in the pathway of the strong man. Nor does his fidelity to his covenant hinge on the character of those who are included in its guarantees. They may not be worthy, but He will make them so. We may not believe, but He abideth faithful. Let us not look at ourselves, but at the multiplied I wills by which He announces his programme; and let us notice that He who pledges himself to rid us of the burdens of Egypt is equally sure to reveal to us his name, and to make Himself known to us as our God, while at the same time He takes us to be his people. Our deliverance, our personal relationship to himself, and our heritage, are all included in that covenant promise, which is ordered in all things and sure. To us these lists of names are comparatively uninteresting. But they are the inventories of God's jewels. They show how much value God sets on each of his own. Not a fragment of redeemed star-dust escapes his notice! Not a bird falls to the ground without his notice! Not a child that has been born into his family is unrecorded in the family register, which is known as the Lamb's Book of Life.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 15.—EXODUS VII.

It is an awful thing when the human will comes into collision with the Divine. If it will not bend it must break. For once Pharaoh, the child of an imperial race, had met his superior, and had to learn that it were better for a potsherd to strive with potsherds than for a mortal to enter the lists with his Maker. At the same time God is not unreasonable. He sets Himself to show us who He is, who demands our homage. And one of the prime objects of the plagues was to establish the superiority and supremacy of the God of the Hebrews, so that Pharaoh might be led to acquiesce in them, and to obey his behests. To a certain extent Satan may by his messengers mimic the Divine working, but Aaron's rod swallows up their rods. Who can stand when He appeareth? The Nile was one of their chief deities, and seemed all necessary, but our dearest idols must be smitten to bring us to God. Ah, my soul, drink only of one river, which can never fail thee; which can never be changed into death; which always runs with transparent, pellucid beauty, because its source is in the throne of God, and its waters make glad the city of God, as they break in musical murmur around its walls.

THURSDAY, JUNE 16.—EXODUS VIII.

Certain of the special Egyptian deities were definitely charged to defend the people from frogs and flies. It was a startling awakening to discover that they were powerless against the word of the Most High. Surely there must have begun to dawn on them the consciousness of the greatness of God, and yet man will often shut his eyes against the light, and harden his heart against the truth. How sadly, also, men can abuse the alleviations which God gives them, as a respite and as an opportunity of repentance. They treat his mercy as an excuse for going deeper and deeper into their rebellious ways. The Egyptian priests were specially careful to keep their bodies free from lice. It is so much easier to keep the flesh clean than the soul. And there is a consciousness of deep satisfaction in finding thus a shred of covering with which to conceal the gross evils of the inner life. It was therefore a crowning horror when the highest religious functionaries were covered with lice. Would that we were as keen against sin as they about the vermin that haunted their flesh. It is sweet to know that our God puts a division between Egypt and his people. Within the precincts of those limits hurt and death cannot intrude. God hides his own in the secret place of his pavilion, while dreaded evils pass them by.

FRIDAY, JUNE 17.—EXODUS IX.

The whole creation groans and travails from the effects of human sin, so that flocks and herds perish. These groans are simultaneous with those of the saints and of the Spirit. But wherever the redeemed of the Lord are, there comes at once an amelioration in the condition of the lower creation which will be consummated in the millennium, that manifestation of the sons of God for which creation waits. How terribly does sin affect the body! These boils breaking out on the flesh remind us of the inevitable brand with which sin marks its slaves. Mighty thunderings and hail do God's bidding, and attest the terribleness of his wrath against stubborn souls. But the freedom of the land of Goshen is a delightful emblem of the security of the believer. They are hidden under the wing of God, and sheltered in the hollow of his hand. They have no need to fear the arrow by day or the pestilence by night. They tread on the lion and adder, and trample the young lion and dragon under foot. They see from their hiding place the march of evil around the charmed circle in which they hide; but it comes not nigh them, only with their eyes do they behold the reward of the wicked.

SATURDAY, JUNE 18.—EXODUS X.

Locusts and darkness that might be felt. These are the recorded events of this chapter, and they nearly brought the proud tyrant to his knees, though their effect had to be perfected by the last and most terrible plague of all. They seem to be a parable of what befalls many a human life. It is devastated by locust cares that eat up every green thing, or overcast by the dark brooding shadows, which fling their gloom over what might have made life blessed and beautiful. As long as our will refuses to humble itself before God, and remains obdurate and stiff-necked, so long do our multiplied sorrows remain. Directly, however, there is any sign of humiliation and contrition, the wind of God bears the cares away, and there is not one of them left, and there ariseth light in the darkness. How significant is the statement that the Israelites had light in their dwellings! Thus is it with the heart that stays itself on God. Gross darkness may cover the earth, but the glory of the Lord shines there. And when the exodus of the bodies of saints takes place at the sounding of the archangel's trumpet, not one shall be left behind that was included in that ransom price which the Redeemer paid on Calvary.

International S. S. Lessons.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON, JUNE 19.

REVIEW OF THE QUARTER'S LESSONS.

GOLDEN TEXT: Nah. i. 7.

Out of the eleven lessons during this quarter, seven are from the Psalms, and the remaining four from Daniel. Elicit by questioning, what Psalms?

1. What was the Golden Text of the first? What metaphors does that Psalm use for describing the godly and the ungodly? Press the inquiry, Are we like the fruitful tree, or the worthless chaff?

2. In the second Psalm the theme is the bitterness and yet the uselessness of human opposition, and the certain triumph of the Kingdom of God. The Golden Text describes who are the loyal subjects of the King. Are we of the number?

3. Psalm xix. reveals to us the glory of God as seen first in his works, then in his word. There is no contradiction, but perfect harmony between nature and revelation. Natural objects, if rightly studied, will appear as parables of spiritual things. What is the Golden Text? And what wonderful things does the Word of God accomplish?

4. Psalm xxiii. ought to be known by heart. Would it not be well to repeat it in alternate verses from the desk and the school? It is simple enough to minister help to the child, and sublime enough to sustain and comfort the most advanced saint.

5. Who wrote Psalm li.? What is its theme? What may we learn from the fact that such a man as David should have so fallen into sin as to need such forgiveness? Have we ever offered the prayer of the Golden Text?

6. What evidence does Psalm lxxxiv. contain of David's delight in God's house? Learn from his example that the true worshipper goes up to the sanctuary not to be seen of men, but to appear before God; that he puts himself to any inconvenience rather than lose this privilege; that he goes there because his heart is there already; and that when there God is more fully revealed to Him.

7. Psalm ciii. is another favourite which every scholar should know by heart. Repeat the Golden Text. What reason does the Psalm give for praising God?

8. The remaining four lessons deal with the experiences of Daniel and his friends in Babylon. By what king were they taken captive? Who was the king of Judah at the time? How old was Daniel (about) when he met his first trial? Why would it have been wrong to eat of the king's meat, and drink of his wine? In what way did God honour them for doing right?

9. Recall Nebuchadnezzar's vision, and show how the Golden Text was proved true when Daniel revealed to the king both the dream itself, and the interpretation. Can you name the four kingdoms which were thus foretold?

10. Why was it especially sinful for Nebuchadnezzar to set up the golden image? Give the names of the three men who refused to worship it. Repeat the Golden Text, and show how it was fulfilled.

11. What king made the decree forbidding prayer to any save himself? See how the king in this chapter appears as a helpless slave, and Daniel as a free man.

These lessons from Daniel illustrate the certain overthrow of God's enemies, and the deliverance of his faithful followers. We are dealing with the same God. Are we for Him or against Him?

WOMEN AND SCEPTICISM.—One of the Bible Society's colporteurs, located in Southern France, writes that he is impressed by the fact that "religious scepticism seems in progress among women, who, up to this time, retained at least a certain respect for religion. It is not only indifference but sometimes aversion. They see no difference between true Christianity and the teaching they have received from their Church, and, rejecting that, they grow sceptical about everything."

REDBANK MEDICAL MISSION.—Dr. Meacham, in his annual report, says that the number of patients was 1797, of whom 643 were males and 1154 females. A great majority have been cases of diseases in connection with the respiratory organs. There have not been many cases of influenza, though there have been many who have visited the Dispensary who became very weak in consequence of this disease. The mission service and all the other philanthropic and mission work have been carried on as usual. Dr. Meacham has great hope and every confidence that this Medical Mission will do even more and better work in the future than in the past.

Letters to the Editor.

THE ACCUSER CAST OUT.

Dear Sir,—I think your readers are now in a very fair position to form a right judgment upon this important question, by studying and weighing the interesting correspondence that has taken place in reference to the articles of "M." on the subject. And I only intervene to call attention to one or two aspects of the subject that I do not remember to have seen presented.

There is a great principle to which we may appeal for guidance. It is this: In no sphere of the universe is it conceivable that Christ, the champion of the saints, and Satan, his great antagonist, can remain in power together.

For which reason, when Christ took upon Him human nature, Satanic possession of the body ceased at his command.

Again, when Christ returns to reign on earth Satan is immediately cast out, shut up, and sealed into the bottomless pit.

And yet again, when Christ was about to be "highly exalted and given the name that is above every name," in heaven at God's right hand, He foresaw "Satan as lightning fall" from thence.

Now coming to the question before us, the sphere of God's family—the Church, the redeemed, in which the risen Christ is the acknowledged Head, the Lord Supreme of his people—this great principle still holds good. Therefore it is that in none of the passages of the New Testament which refer to the sins of the saints, or the intercession of the Saviour, is the presence or accusation of Diabolus ever suggested. I refer to three of them.

In Romans viii. we have the intercession of Christ, but the immediate context assures us that it is not on account of any accusations laid against the saints that it is in exercise.

In 1 John i., an epistle in which Satan's character and action are terribly set forth, there is no hint of his being an accuser; but as conscience moved by the Spirit of God exposes sin, communion is disturbed or broken till confession on our side and advocacy on the Lord's, prevail to restore it.

In 1 Cor. iii. and 2 Cor. v. we have the judgment seat (βημα) of Christ, and as the environment or scene described is forensic (the court, the judge, the offender, the award), the omission of allusion to any charge, indictment or accusation by Satan, cannot be overlooked, nor its significance denied.

The fact is (as others have so well explained in this discussion) that the Cross and Resurrection have by anticipation put an end to all charges against God's elect, and that into the circle of his house, his family, his sanctuary, He admits no hostile accuser of his children.

If I may add a suggestion as to that marvellous and mysterious chapter Rev. xii., it is that the woman in travail who brings forth a son, the ruler of the nations, is interpreted by Micah iv. 9: "Now, why dost thou cry aloud? is there no King in thee? is thy Counsellor perished? that pangs have taken hold of thee as of a woman in travail. Be in pain, and labour to bring forth, O daughter of Zion, like a woman in travail...Arise and thresh, O daughter of Zion...thou shalt beat in pieces many peoples...they shall smite the Judge of Israel with a rod upon the cheek; but thou, Bethlehem Ephratah, which art little among the thousands of Judah, out of thee shall One come forth unto ME that is to be Ruler in Israel, whose goings forth are from of old, from everlasting."

If this is read in parallel columns with Rev. xii., I apprehend all will agree with Dr. Alford that "the man-child is the Lord Jesus Christ, and none other." (The italics are his.) The historical event is thus strangely introduced in a vision of futurity for the obvious purpose of connecting the future sufferings of the remnant as to their cause and source with the sufferings and death of their Redeemer, by whose blood (verse 11) they shall be ultimately more than conquerors.—Yours faithfully,

George F. Trench.

THE FREE CHURCH ASSEMBLY.

Sir,—The treatment which the minority in this year's General Assembly of the Free Church of Scotland, who desire to maintain sound doctrine, received, was ungenerous in the extreme. In fact, it was shameful and unchristian. It is sincerely to be hoped that the Assembly, and especially the leading actors, will regret the display of angry passion into which they were led. "It was a display which would have been discreditable in any assemblage, and was worse in a conclave of divines and representative elders engaged in one of the most solemn functions which could call men together." The feelings of uncharitableness and personal dislike which were exhibited were most painful.

That a representative meeting of Christian men should turn the Assembly into a bear-garden and behave as the majority did, when Mr. Macaskill endeavoured to explain the grave errors in doctrine which he considers are being so industriously disseminated by so many of the professors of the Church, is sad indeed.

If there was an excuse for any party being exasperated, surely it was the minority. The mere mention of the names of any of the Professors whose views are causing serious anxiety to so many in the Church, was received with howls of delight from the students' gallery, echoed by loud applause from members of the House, and many in the audience. Looking up at the young men who were yelling and applauding in the students' gallery, one could scarcely refrain from thinking: If these are the future ministers of our beloved Church, God help us!

But sadder even than the sight of these unthinking youths exulting in their supposed triumph over the faithful few, was the sight of so many members of Assembly, at such a solemn time laughing and applauding, scoffing and sneering at the men who dared to do their duty, and hounding on the Assembly to silence and to censure them, with a malignity, and a studied desire to insult and to humble them, which was painful in the extreme.

Mr. Macaskill has certainly on some occasions rather taxed the patience of the Assembly, but "he was entitled to a respectful hearing on an occasion of such vast importance to the Church." No doubt he was indiscreet in founding one of his allegations upon a statement in a newspaper report which was disclaimed. But that report had not been contradicted, even although the attention of the Professor had been called to it. There seems to be a lamentable want of candour on the part of some of the Professors whose views are questioned; and, to say the least of it, it is most unfortunate that they specially should have so frequently to repudiate reports of statements ascribed to them by newspapers. Surely the newspapers are not always wrong; and why is it that these professors should so constantly practise ambiguity instead of frankly saying where they are and what they hold? It is little wonder that so many of the most godly people in the Church are deeply grieved and hurt when they find such a constant tendency on the part of the Church to honour most the very men who are causing the most anxiety.

Mr. Macaskill and his party have been most unjustly accused of stirring up strife and discord; but surely the blame lies with those who, by their erroneous teaching, make it necessary to defend the faith.

We are told that so many of our ministers owe their positions, &c., to those who are in authority, that their mouths are shut, and they dare not speak freely. This may be so with some; but, thank God! there are faithful men, not a few, still in the Free Church, and long may they remain in it to counteract the moderatism and looseness which so largely prevail. All honour to the faithful few who, in the face of censure and opposition, are valiant for the truth, and stand for the defence of God's Word. May they be able to preserve our dear Church from going further on the downward path upon which she has entered!

A Free Church Elder.

OBITUARY.

REV. A. W. POTTS, CREWE.

The Congregationalists of Crewe have lost one of their oldest ministers by the death of Rev. A. W. Potts. For nearly twenty years he laboured in the populous Cheshire town, and was widely known as the promoter in Great Britain of the Young People's Societies of Christian Endeavour.

MRS. W. H. PARR.

Birmingham Methodists have just lost a noble and loving worker in the devoted wife of Rev. W. H. Parr of Belmont Row. At the funeral service a very touching address was delivered by Rev. G. H. Shafto, who spoke of the Christian character of the departed sister, her kindly and gentle disposition, and how she interested herself in everything to promote the welfare of the cause of Christ.

REV. C. J. GOODHART.

We record with regret the death of Rev. Charles J. Goodhart, one of the oldest and most honoured of Evangelical clergymen. He died at Wetterden, Stowmarket, of which he had been rector for nearly twenty-five years, on Saturday week in his eighty-ninth year. Mr. Goodhart, notwithstanding his great age, (says The Record) took the keenest interest in all matters relating to the progress of the Kingdom of God. In a private letter to a friend, written in January last, he said, with reference to the approaching Islington Clerical Meeting, that he hoped men would speak out strongly and firmly. "In times like these," he went on to say, "the faithful ones should fearlessly put their foot down on error and on all equivocal statements."

MISS HINTON, CLIFTON.

We regret to hear of the death of this lady, as to whose service one writes: God has graciously blessed his Church from time to time with specially gifted believers of the same type as the "beloved Persis, who laboured much in the Lord," and Phœbe, "who was a succourer of many," whose useful but unobtrusive lives exert a far more widely extended influence than the loving labourers suppose. Such was one who, on the 25th ult., was called hence to receive the recompense of her reward. Miss Hinton, of Clifton, Bristol, the founder of the A.F.D. Society for the relief of distressed clergymen, had for thirty-three years carried on, with indefatigable energy, her labour of love. Working beyond the limits of her strength, she had for many years been a confirmed invalid; but notwithstanding pain and suffering she accomplished an amount of work which few in perfect health could have effected. Sustained by the brightest Christian faith, she has been a wonderful example of what may be done in the Master's service by an earnest, loving Christian.

The Book World.

Four of Annie Swan's tales—The Better Part, The Strait Gate, Mark Desborough's Vow, and Grandmother's Child—have been reissued in beautifully printed shilling volumes by Messrs. Partridge and Co. Miss Swan's stories combine, in a very uncommon degree, real human interest with purity of tone and evangelical teaching. They are deservedly popular.

John Remington, Martyr, by Pansy (2s. 6d., C. H. Kelly) is a powerfully-written story, setting forth the deep degradation that comes to those who traffic in strong drink and those who become its slaves; and also the peril that sometimes marks the path of the Temperance reformer. In this land, where liberty does not so frequently degenerate into licence as in America, there is not the same personal risk attached to the advocacy of unpopular reforms; but in most respects the evil fruits of the traffic are the same everywhere. This tale will help to create a sound and healthy opinion wherever it is read.

A second edition of the late Mrs. Barbour's deeply interesting memoir of her mother, Mrs. Stewart Sandeman, published with a prefatory note by Mrs. Simpson, will be welcomed by many. Glimpses are afforded us in these cleverly-written pages of admirable phases in Scottish life and character, and of religious movements that have left an indelible mark on the annals of the century. The record of the mother's life embraces, of course, chapters on the lives of some of her gifted children, and the book will, on that account, be doubly valued by all who know what service the Barbour family have rendered to Scotland, and other lands besides. (3s. 6d. Nisbet and Co.)

The Off Chance. By Deane Hilton. 1s. "Great Thoughts" Office. Mr. Hilton's last story was a graphic presentation of the evils of the drink; this, as the title indicates, is directed against the somewhat less prevalent but equally deadly vice of gambling. It is a tale of clerk life in London, and illustrates powerfully and naturally the insidious temptations that surround our youth in great cities. The development of the betting mania is traced from small beginnings to dire endings; and the literary execution of the narrative is so skilful as to command the attention of young readers. We hope Mr. Hilton's earnest plea will be heeded by many who would not listen to counsels or warnings couched in more didactic language.

A volume of Revival Sermons and Addresses by the late Rev. James Caughey (R. D. Dickinson) forms a very fitting memorial of this powerful and successful evangelist. Intensity of feeling and strength of conviction, that find expression in red-hot speech, are the chief characteristics of these rousing and searching utterances. Evangelists and preachers of the smooth-tongued, kid-glove order would do well to scan and ponder these living chapters, and gather from them some of the holy fire that glows on every page. Mr. Caughey was a preacher of holy living, as well as of salvation by sovereign grace, but he was careful not to go beyond plain Scriptural teaching on the question of sanctification in the flesh.

Scottish Ministerial Miniatures. By Dean Cromarty. (3s. 6d. Hodder and Stoughton.) These literary vignettes of some sixty odd Scotch professors and pulpiteers, more or less well known, originally appeared in The British Weekly; they are well worth preservation in this collected form. The sketches are, in most cases, very brief, and of necessity partial, but they exhibit remarkable analytical skill and insight into character. A wide sympathy and homely appreciation are happily intermingled with critical candour; while the thought and literary expression are so virile and "masculine" that one has difficulty in realising that the author is a lady. The subjects for portraiture are selected from nearly all sections of the Scottish Church, and the whole forms an album of far more than national interest.

Mr. Josiah Spiers (13a, Warwick-lane, E.C.) has disposed of the first edition of his attractive little volume of "True Stories" (except five hundred handsomely bound presentation copies), and has issued a second edition of ten thousand copies. He will send copies, post or carriage free, anywhere in the United Kingdom at the following rates: 1 copy, 1s.; 6 copies, 5s.; 12 copies, 9s. 3d.; 50 copies, 34s. 6d.; 100 copies, £3 5s.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

John F. Shaw and Co.: Crux Christi. By Rev. John Bennett, D.D.

From Digby, Long, and Co.: A New Creed (Human and Humane).—St. John (a poem). By Mary Beale.

Passmore and Alabaster: The Finished Course. An address by Rev. A. Ernest Foster, of Christ Church, Richmond, on the day of Mr. Spurgeon's funeral. (4d.)

SPURGEON MEMORIAL WEEK.—It has been arranged to observe the week beginning June 19th (that being Mr. Spurgeon's birthday) as a memorial of the departed pastor. On the Lord's Day special sermons will be preached; Monday will be the College Conference Day of Prayer, with special prayer-meetings; while on Tuesday Pastor J. A. Spurgeon and Dr. Pierson will be in the vestry from ten a.m. to one p.m. and from five p.m. to nine p.m. to receive thankofferings towards the Memorial Fund. On Wednesday the Annual Festival at the Orphanage will be held; Mr. Burdett-Coutts, M.P., presiding at 2.30, and Mr. A. M'Arthur, M.P., at 6.30.

Temperance Notes.

The Prison Gate Mission of the C.E.T.S. is doing a good work.

The Church of England Temperance Society has arranged for the appointment of Mr. W. Lang, as Police-court Missionary for the county of Herts.

The Stoke Newington Branch of the British Women's Temperance Association has lately started a branch for working women, and already fifty members are enrolled.

For six weeks Mr. S. Glasgow, of the Irish Temperance League, has been holding meetings in Cork and the neighbourhood, and as the result a large number of persons have signed the temperance pledge.

Sir Wilfrid Lawson, in recalling the hard names that have been, and still are, hurled at Temperance Reformers, remarks in his usual happy style, that "fanatics are earnest men in a minority, and a faddist is one who knows something more than the rest of people."

The Pall Mall Gazette has recently called attention to the increase of insanity among women, and remarks: "The forms of insanity which are now most rapidly increasing amongst women are those which have hitherto been more especially predominant in men—namely, alcoholic insanity and general paralysis."

John B. Wanbuno, hereditary Chief of the Delaware Indians, a life-long abstainer and temperance advocate, passed away on May 2, in his seventy-seventh year. He ever warned the Indians to beware of fire-water—the Indian's curse—and is said to be the only Indian who never yielded to the temptation to break his pledge whilst visiting England.

Lady Henry Somerset, in view of the nearing election, has issued an urgent letter to temperance workers to take steps to secure the election to the new Parliament of members fully pledged to support temperance legislation; and as a means towards this end, calls on local societies to organise everywhere united open-air demonstrations on Saturday, June 18, with, if possible, sermons on the following Sunday on the subject.

"So long as alcohol is permitted to run an unchecked course amongst us, so long will the nation be beset with crime and vice of every description, with preventible diseases and increased pauperism. 'The sight of means to do ill deeds makes ill deeds done,' says a prominent character in one of Shakespeare's plays; and everybody will admit that these words apply, with telling effect, to an article in such common use as alcohol."—Dr. Kate Mitchell.

In connection with the Band of Hope examination in Dr. Richardson's Temperance Lesson Book, instituted by the Irish Methodist Temperance Committee, 136 children (or twice as many as before) competed. this year, seventy-four receiving prizes and thirty-eight honourable mention. The sum of £21 15s. was divided among the prize-winners, and it is believed that an amount of sound temperance knowledge has thus been acquired by the competitors, which will be sure to bring forth good fruit in years to come.

It may be, says The Western Christian Advocate, that prohibition will prevail at the Chicago World's Fair without the action of the directors of the Exposition. The attorney of the board, with a brother lawyer, after carefully examining the Hyde Park Code, has concluded that, under the present enactments, no intoxicants can be sold on the Midway Plaisance. It is likely that the Hyde Park law will help the directors to a righteous decision on the liquor question.

M. Morel, a distinguished French writer, gives the history of four generations of a family. First generation.—The father was an habitual drunkard, and was killed in a public-house brawl. Second generation.—The son inherited his father's habits, which gave rise to attacks of mania, terminating in paralysis and death. Third generation.—The grandson was strictly sober, but was full of hypochondriacal and imaginary fears, &c., and had homicidal tendencies. Fourth generation.—The fourth in descent had very limited intelligence, and had an attack of madness when sixteen years old, terminating in stupidity, nearly amounting to idiocy. The persistence of the taint appears in the fact that not even a generation of absolute sobriety will avert the fatal issue.

DEEPENING OF SPIRITUAL LIFE.—Bible readings will be given from June 17 until the end of August, in a tent on the upper lawn at Rev. Dr. Brewster's, Villa Flora, Upperton-road, Eastbourne. All Christians are invited to attend every Friday at 3.30 p.m. The speakers will be Revs. Darlow Sarjeant, W. Haslam, J. J. Luce, C. G. Moore, J. B. Figgis, &c.

A MISSIONARY FAREWELL.—An interesting meeting was held the other day in the Wesleyan Mission House to take leave and commend to God Miss Adams, a medical missionary who has now sailed for Ceylon, being appointed to work at Uva. Rev. John Brown told of his own work in Ceylon, and of the great need for medical women. Mr. Duffill wished more ladies could be sent to Calcutta, where they would be most useful in training native zenana workers. These latter could be maintained at a cost of £9 per year, and under European superintendence would be very efficient.

Personalia.

Sir M. Monier-Williams is, we regret to hear, somewhat seriously ill at Ventnor.

Mr. Eugene Stock has reached Melbourne safely, and having received a warm welcome has commenced work.

Rev. A. B. Grosart, D.D., has just been enabled to resume his work at St. George's, Blackburn, after an illness of some seven weeks.

Rev. Hugh Price Hughes is by many regarded as the coming president of the Wesléyan Conference. It is hoped he may be elected next year.

Mr. William Forbes is, we are glad to hear, recovering from his illness, and hopes to be able to preach on Sunday at the New Hall, Tottenham.

Rev. E. Herber Evans, D.D., has been asked to take a longer holiday by his attached people, who feel that he stands in need of it after his recent and heavy labours.

Dr. Parker will conduct, on the 30th inst, his thousandth Thursday morning service in the City Temple. The service was begun in the Poultry Chapel in September, 1869.

Rev. E. A. Telfer has returned home from a tour round the world, and is now open to conduct services in this country. Letters to him may be addressed: 6, Cintra-park, Upper Norwood, S.E.

Mr. W. P. Lockhart, of Liverpool, was seized with sudden illness one day last week while walking along the street. He was unconscious for some time, and his condition is considered to be somewhat serious.

Rev. D. Burford Hooke has so far recovered strength as to be able to preach in Mount Pleasant Church, Hastings. He has not undertaken pulpit work for nearly three months, but hopes now to resume Sunday duty.

Rev. J. Gelson Gregson, of Bradford, has written to Dr. Booth, Secretary of the Baptist Union, withdrawing from the Baptist Union as a representative member, in consequence of its action in relation to Rev. C. F. Aked, of Liverpool.

The Bishop of Ripon addressed some remarkably plain and pointed words to a large and fashionable audience assembled in St. Margaret's, Westminster, on Sunday week, on the relation of mistress to maid and to servants generally. If the spirit, "Do ye unto others as ye would they should do unto you," were more generally acted upon, society would be marvellously transformed.

Evangelistic Notes.

Trowbridge.—The members of the Trowbridge Y.M.C.A. have formed an evangelistic mission band, the object of which is to visit the surrounding villages and conduct open-air meetings on week-day evenings.

Mr. F. W. Walter, of the Evangelisation Society, has concluded a month's very successful mission in the village of Burnham Overy Staithe, Norfolk. Great interest has been taken in the work, and many have professed spiritual decision.

Ireland.—During the past month a successful tent-mission has been held in Templemore-avenue, Belfast, by Mr. Inglis, Baptist evangelist; and a similar mission is being held at present at Togherdoo, co. Fermanagh, by Rev. James Kirkwood, Methodist Conference Evangelist.

Rev. Thomas Waugh has held a short, but interesting mission in Hastings, speaking in the Pier Pavilion and the Central Chapel. It is stated that many seemed convicted of sin, that one after-meeting was attended by a thousand people, and that there have been indications of much blessing.

Mr. J. H. Cooke, of the Evangelisation Society, is conducting a special mission at the village of Brenzeth, Romney Marsh, with encouraging results. The services on Sunday were particularly hearty and largely attended, although it is a rural parish. There is reason to believe that much spiritual good is being accomplished.

Bournemouth.—A correspondent writes: We have had a blessed spring here—such manifested power in conversion and in helping many to stand fast and come out bravely on the Lord's side; many lives so changed away in their own homes, giving glory to God and gladdening the hearts of God's instruments. It has been such an untold comfort, that in Captain Dawson's absence the work by God through Mr. G. Clarke has been maintained and signally blessed.

Hackney.—A ten days' mission, under the auspices of the Hackney Y.M.C.A., has just been held by Mr. Henry Thorne. The meetings were well attended, and much blessing received. Christians were quickened, backsliders reclaimed, and many sinners converted. Overflow meetings were held in the open-air in front of the Y.M.C.A. premises. On the last Sunday morning of the mission a breakfast meeting for young men was held, at which nearly two hundred were present. In the afternoon of the same day a P.S.A. for men was informally inaugurated.

Rev. Thomas Cook began his South African evangelistic work at Port Elizabeth, whence he goes to other towns. A local paper said the special services conducted by Mr. Cook on Sunday last were probably unique in the history of the town. The afternoon service was for men only, and it was a grand sight to witness the vast crowd of men that filled the hall in every part. Mr. Cook's address was most telling. His shafts went home. None could listen and fail to appreciate his motive. He said things that needed saying, and he said them well. At night the hall was densely crowded, and we fear that hundreds were turned away.

Deacon Abraham's Orphanages.

Esther, the devoted wife of Deacon Abraham, is visiting England to bring the needs of the Orphanage before English Christians. She hopes to arrive about June 10, and the friends of the Institution are asked to arrange meetings in many places for her to give an account of the work. It is desired to raise funds for the purchase of land, which would render the Institution self-supporting. The Orphanage is vested in trustees. Further particulars can be had from Henry Tasker, Brookside, Andover, Hants.

MILDMAY PARK CONFERENCE, 1892.

PROGRAMME OF PROCEEDINGS.

Tuesday, June 21.

Room No. 4, 7 a.m.—Early Prayer Meeting; Sir S. A. Blackwood. Large Hall, 11 a.m.—"The Ways of God in Judgment"; Sir S. A. Blackwood, Rev. Handley C. G. Moule, and Rev. J. B. Figgis. Large Hall, 3 p.m., Jewish Missions; Mr. T. A. Denny presiding, Rev. J. Wilkinson, Rev. D. Baron, and Mr. Paul Dressler. Large Hall, 4.30 p.m.—Prayer Meeting for Israel; Rev. John Wilkinson. Room No. 4, 3 p.m.—Bible Reading, "The Ways of God in Judgment"; Rev. H. E. Brooke. South Tent, 3 p.m.—Conference of Evangelists—Subject: "How to win Souls for God?" Mr. C. Russell Hurditch and others. Mulberry Tree, 3 p.m.—Workers' Meeting for brief accounts of Christian Work; Rev. E. N. Thwaites. Large Hall, 7 p.m.—"The Ways of God in Judgment"; Hon. and Rev. W. Talbot Rice and Rev. A. T. Pierson, D.D.

Wednesday, June 22.

Room No. 4, 7 a.m.—Early Prayer Meeting; Sir S. A. Blackwood. Large Hall, 11 a.m.—"The Ways of God in Providence"; Rev. George Wilson and Rev. H. Grattan Guinness. Large Hall, 3 p.m.—Missionary Meeting; Mr. J. E. Mathieson, Rev. G. F. Pentecost, D.D., Dr. Harry Guinness, and Rev. J. Hudson Taylor (if returned). Room No. 4, 3 p.m.—Bible Reading—"The Ways of God in Providence"; Rev. F. B. Meyer. South Tent, 3 p.m.—Workers' Meeting for brief reports of Christian Work; Mr. W. H. Seagram. Mulberry Tree, 3 p.m.—Evangelistic Addresses; Mr. E. J. Kennedy and others. Large Hall, 7 p.m.—"The Ways of God in Providence"; Rev. E. A. Stuart and Rev. H. Sinclair Paterson, M.D.

Thursday, June 23.

Room No. 4, 7 a.m.—Early Prayer Meeting; Sir S. A. Blackwood. Large Hall, 11 a.m.—"The Ways of God in Grace"; Rev. F. B. Meyer and Rev. Evan H. Hopkins. Large Hall, 3 p.m.—The Lord's Supper; Rev. George Wilson (of Edinburgh). Room No. 4, After United Communion—Parents' Prayer Meeting; Captain Chapman. South Tent, After United Communion—Bible Reading—"The Ways of God in Grace"; Rev. E. W. Bullinger, D.D., and Rev. W. R. Mowll. Mulberry Tree, After United Communion—Evangelistic Addresses—Mr. W. R. Lane and others. Large Hall, 7 p.m.—"The Ways of God in Grace"; Rev. Marcus Rainsford and Rev. James Stephens.

Notices.

Communications Received with Thanks.—C.S. M.B. J.A. E.P. G.J.I. J.E.M. J.F.P. F.W. J.W. J.P. M.A.B. H.A.P. T.G.Y. F.S.T. G.E.T. C.T. A.S. J.A. F.J.R. M.H. A.C.R. J.P.W. C.F.R. V. A.F. T.J.B. M. H.P. R.W. G.B. W.R.B. F.W. M.N.J. F.D. N.F.D. S.P. J.C.A. E.H.C. F.B. N.W. G.D. G.T.H. W.H. J.G. J.G.B. G.W. A.H. C.C. E.M.B. F.F. W.T. J.M. D.D.T. B.P. R.H. J.T. T.N. H.T. J.G.G. H.C. A.F. J.T.P. T.H. G.F.H. T.H.A. H.E.G. M.J. H.B. T.J.H. J.G.R. W.E.C. J.A. C.P.G. W.H.D. C.F.D. H.E.B. J.B. G.F.P. I.R. M.J.S. H.G. E.A.T. E.F. A.D.M. S.G.F. E.W.R. A.P. P.G.D.

Applicants for Tracts.—C. J. Cox, 65, Ramsey-road, Forest-gate, E. (for open-air mission work); Robert Urie, 21, West Clyde-street, Helensburgh, N.B.; Stephen Nixon, 15, Charles-street, Luce, near Wigan; J. McKinney, Missionary, Dromod, co. Leitrim; John Humphrey, Knawley Enniskillen, co. Fermanagh; Charles Scholes, 4, Spring-street, Stockton; F. Woolley, 147, Hurdsfield-road, Macclesfield; R. Corps, Overton, Hants; W. Harwood, 7, Brunswick-road, Brunswick-square, Camberwell, S.E.; Mr. B. F. Adams, Tryphena Hall, Bow-common, E. (for open-air meetings).

[As it is found that infidels and others send tracts to the persons whose names are inserted here, it is most desirable that all books and papers should be carefully read before being given away.]

The Union Hall Mission has three tents, and hopes to start Gospel work in poor and needy districts, but for this purpose funds are urgently needed. These should be sent to Mr. R. Bilke, Abergeldie, Greenhill-road, Harlesden, N.W.

HAY FEVER

POSITIVELY CURED AND PREVENTED BY THE

CARBOLIC SMOKE BALL

HAY FEVER is a disease from which many people suffer during the most pleasant season of the year, and one which renders their lives miserable.

HAY FEVER makes its presence known by incessant fits of sneezing, followed by a flow of hot transparent mucus from the nostrils, accompanied by a burning sensation and watering eyes. The soothing action of the Carbolic Smoke Ball upon the membrane allays all irritation, gradually arrests the hot flow from the nostrils and eyes, and stops the sneezing and burning sensation.

THE CARBOLIC SMOKE BALL will positively cure, and is the only remedy ever discovered which has permanently cured, HAY FEVER, a disease that has hitherto baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians, who have sought in vain to cure or prevent its annual return.

TESTIMONIALS.

The Rev. Dr. BULLOCK (Editor of The Fireside) writes:—"Those who are troubled with HAY FEVER will do well to try the Carbolic Smoke Ball. From practical testimony we can certify that it gives great relief."

Miss Ada S. BALLIN, Lecturer to the National Health Society, writes:—"The Carbolic Smoke Ball gives rapid relief in Asthma, and that other despair of the doctors, HAY FEVER, for which no cure has hitherto been discovered."

Major ROWLAND WEBSTER, Sutherland-avenue, W., writes:—"The Carbolic Smoke Ball gave me entire satisfaction last summer. I unintentionally got into a field where haymaking was going on, and I was not inconvenienced by it. I have not been able to do such a thing for the last twenty years without suffering frightfully."

TESTIMONIALS.

Rev. HENRY S. LUNN, M.D. (Editor of The Review of the Churches), writes from 5, Endsleigh Gardens, London, N.W., November 16, 1891:—"I have much pleasure in testifying to the value of your Carbolic Smoke Ball. It has been used in my household with the best results in cases of bad Catarrh."

Madame ADELINA PATTI writes from Craig-y-Nos Castle:—"Madame Patti has found the Carbolic Smoke Ball very beneficial indeed, and the only thing that would enable her to rest well at night when having a severe cold."

Rev. G. J. BRETT writes from The Manse, Tendring, Colchester, July, 1891:—"For eighteen months I have used the Carbolic Smoke Ball with very astonishing beneficial results. I value it very highly, and should feel uncomfortable without one kept by me."

THE CARBOLIC SMOKE BALL

Will also Cure the most severe forms of the following Ailments:

COUGHS Cured in 1 week.	CATARRH Cured in 1 to 3 months.	HOARSENESS Cured in 12 hours.	THROAT DEAFNESS Cured in 1 to 3 months.	CROUP Relieved in 5 minutes.	HAY FEVER Cured in every case.
COLD IN THE HEAD Cured in 12 hours.	ASTHMA Relieved in 10 minutes.	LOSS OF VOICE Fully restored.	SNORING Cured in 1 week.	WHOOPING COUGH Relieved the first application.	INFLUENZA Cured in 24 hours.
COLD ON THE CHEST Cured in 12 hours.	BRONCHITIS Cured in every case.	SORE THROAT Cured in 12 hours.	SORE EYES Cured in 2 weeks.	NEURALGIA Cured in 10 minutes.	HEADACHE Cured in 10 minutes.

As all the Ailments mentioned above arise from one cause, they can be cured by this remedy.

One CARBOLIC SMOKE BALL will last a family several months, making it the cheapest remedy in the world at the price—10s., post free.

The CARBOLIC SMOKE BALL can be refilled, when empty, at a cost of 5s., post free.

ADDRESS—

CARBOLIC SMOKE BALL CO.,

27, PRINCE'S STREET, HANOVER SQUARE, LONDON, W.

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

A new bishopric of Nyassaland is proposed.

The Southport Conference, held last week, proved stirring and interesting.

A fresh centre of Church Home Mission work is being opened up, under Rev. G. M. Stupell, in Old Ford.

A conference on "Personal Work at Home for Missions Abroad," is being held this week at the C.M.S. House.

The Archdeacon of Sheffield has devoted his visitation charges chiefly to the question of Church schools, and how these are to be maintained.

We hear that Dean Hole since he returned home from Italy to the Deanery, Rochester, has quite recovered his wonted health, and is once more actively engaged in his customary duties.

At St. Paul's Church, Bolton, on Sunday week, the anniversary collections reached the total of £269 3s. 1d., the largest sum raised in the history of the church. Of this amount the scholars at the afternoon service contributed the large sum of £152 6s. 10d. The special preacher was Canon McCormick, of Hull.

Two meetings in connection with the Universities Mission to Central Africa were held last week in Princes Hall and Holborn Town Hall. The Mission now numbers sixty-nine English members on its staff. There are eighty-four trained native teachers. The majority of the workers give their services to the mission without stipend.

A meeting of the Protestant Churchmen's Alliance was held at St. James's Lecture Hall, Holloway, on Tuesday week, when an instructive lecture on "The present state and outlook of Protestantism inside and outside the National Church," was given by Rev. H. J. R. Marston, who began by defining Protestantism to be "the re-assertion of New Testament Christianity in a form antagonistic to (a) Sacerdotal rule, and (b) beliefs merely traditional within the Church of Christ."

CONGREGATIONAL.

Good stirring missionary meetings have been held during the past week in Norwich.

At Farnworth, the P.S.A. meeting is attended by five hundred to six hundred working men.

At Buckland, the chapel has been enlarged, while new Sunday-school buildings have also been added.

Rev. J. Merchant, after thirty-one years' faithful and active service at Grays, is retiring from the pastorate.

The P.S.A. Movement has been inaugurated at Leamington with an attendance of 450, and much enthusiasm.

During the past season interesting religious meetings, addressed by ministers of various denominations, have been held in Bangor College.

Rev. Russell Thomas, of Lendal Church, York, where James Parsons began his remarkable ministry, has returned to his pulpit after a severe illness of several months' duration. He is a very earnest and evangelical minister, and his return to work is hailed by all the churches of the city.

It seems that the members of the young men's Bible-class in connection with Tolmers-square Church, Hampstead-road, devote the first twenty minutes of their Sunday afternoon meetings to the consideration of some social topic of interest. This has proved an attractive feature of the meetings, and does not interfere with the thoroughness of the Biblical study afterwards.

BAPTIST.

The Baptists in the Weald of Kent are erecting a chapel at Yalding as a memorial to the late Mr. Spurgeon.

As the outcome of Mrs. Squire's legacy (mentioned in our last), a new place of worship is to be erected for the church at Pinchbeck.

The Baptist Zenana Missionary Society has now in India twenty-two stations, fifty-four missionaries, 160 Bible women and native teachers, and sixty-four girls' schools.

An effort is now being made to provide a populous district of Norwich with a new chapel in place of the Sayer's-street Mission Hall, which was established some eight years ago by a number of elder Sunday scholars, and proved so successful that a separate church was recently formed.

The spring meeting of the Home Counties' Association was held at the Baptist Chapel, Ealing Dean, on Tuesday, Rev. J. E. Perrin presiding. Rev. C. Spurgeon read a paper on "The Ingathering of the Young," in which he dealt with the questions—At what age may a child be converted? At what age may a child join the Church? And are child converts genuine?

On Sunday week the fourteenth anniversary of the Leytonstone Baptist Sunday-school was held. On the Thursday a public meeting was held, presided over by Colonel Griffin, and addressed by Revs. F. A. Jones, G. T. Bailey, W. E. Anderton, Mr. G. A. Hutchison, and the pastor. The report showed that twenty scholars are church members, nine having joined during the year.

METHODIST.

The village missionary meetings are becoming quite a feature in many Yorkshire rural districts.

The Methodist New Connexion Conference is to be held next week at Ashton-under-Lyne.

There is danger, it is feared, of the Newcastle Central Hall Mission having to be closed for lack of funds.

Another mission centre is being opened in St. Peter's, one of the dearest and darkest districts of Leeds.

The Manchester Mission has formed what it calls a Central Hall brotherhood for mutual help and Christian fellowship.

Rev. D. J. Waller, D.D., has just been visiting his old friends in Longsight, great interest being awakened in his addresses.

The "Stockport Sunday-school" is described as one of the religious sights of the town. A school, with more than four hundred teachers, and in its two highest classes six hundred young men and women, is probably unique.

One of the most gratifying items in the report of Sunday-school work at Faversham is that from one hundred to seventy-five scholars have regularly attended the monthly prayer meeting and been found pleading with their teachers.

Preparation is being rapidly made for the Primitive Methodist Forward Movement in Bradford. Already the old premises in Manchester-road have been pulled down, and the erection of the new large central hall to seat at least a thousand will be immediately proceeded with.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. J. B. Hastings, of Newcastle, has received a call to Palmerston-place U.P. Church, Edinburgh.

A new church in Swansea was opened last week by Principal Oswald Dykes and Sir G. B. Bruce.

The 201st anniversary of the Presbyterian church at Tunley, Wrightington, has just been observed.

The South London Presbytery is holding at various churches conferences on home mission work with the view of awakening in each congregation fresh interest in this great work.

The London Presbyteries have made a united forward movement in Sunday open-air services for the people. North and south of the Thames ministers and laymen may be found on Sabbath afternoons in parks and squares and streets during the summer months preaching to the thronging crowds.

Mr. Robert Stark urges that open-air services are useful because (1) people come there who would not go elsewhere to hear the Gospel; (2) because they lead to opportunities for religious conversation; (3) because they often lead to attendance at church; (4) because to those engaged in them they often lead to other kinds of usefulness; and (5) because they frequently lead to salvation.

The last sermon preached by the late Dr. Donald Fraser has been issued in memorial form by the Presbyterian Publishing Office, Paternoster-square. The text was, 'Because of the savour of Thy good ointments Thy name is as ointment poured forth, therefore do the virgins love Thee' (Canticles i. 3). The heads of the discourse are—(1) The fragrance of a meek and lowly heart; (2) the charm of absolute purity; (3) the sweetness of love.

SALVATION ARMY.

In the Army shelters 514,159 destitute and homeless men were sheltered and fed during the year.

The Labour Bureau reports applicants for work (male and female), 14,853; sent to work (permanent and temporary), 6161.

An enthusiastic meeting was held in Exeter Hall last week to bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Booth, who sail for Canada on the 22nd inst., to take over the command of the Salvation Army there.

The returns for the "Elevators" or Workshops show—Destitute men admitted, 2601; sent to permanent situations outside, 530; sent to Farm Colony, 473, temporarily assisted—tided over periods of distress varying in length by lodging and feeding for work done, 1560; total passed through, 2563.

Rev. H. R. Haweis writes as to the Social Scheme:—"No institutions are perfect, and no reformers are infallible, but the great war cry of 'Something attempted, something done,' should surely not fall upon deaf ears in what calls itself a Christian community."

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

John Henry Douglas, writing to The Christian Worker from Newberg, says that during the last eighteen months Friends have erected and opened five new meeting-houses there, and must now build a yearly meeting-house. The College, too, has become too small for the students, and room must be found for increasing numbers. "We are in the midst of a great revival; at the present time many are turning to the Lord every day."

The same paper says, "The Friends' Church has sustained a serious loss in the death of Rebecca Collins, of New York, who had lived to celebrate her eighty-seventh birthday." She had rendered noble service to humanity in many fields of Christian enterprise and philanthropic effort, and was well remembered in England through her labours here many years ago.

Deep sympathy will be widely felt for the bereavement that has overtaken the family and friends of the late Miss Emily Sturge, of Bristol, whose accidental death through her falling from a horse on Friday, the 3rd inst., suddenly terminated a devoted and most useful life. Her removal will be felt to be a public calamity, and every movement for elevating the ignorant, the poor, the degraded, and helpless and for the uplifting of women and children will keenly feel the loss sustained. Sorrow rests on the friends of Bristol and the West.

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

The Reformed Presbyterian Church held its annual Synod in Londonderry for three days last week. Rev. R. Nevin, of Derry, was elected Moderator, and various encouraging reports were presented.

In addition to the 635 orphans previously on the roll of the Protestant Orphan Society for Down, Connor, and Dromore the committee at its meeting last week elected sixty-eight others.

The Belfast Sailors' Home is doing excellent work under the care of Mr. and Mrs. McKeown. Seventy-three shipwrecked sailors were received in the Home during the past year, and the number of boarders was 776 against 576 the previous year, a fact which shows that the Home is growing in popular favour with seafaring men.

The annual meeting of the Belfast Prison-gate Mission for Women was held in Belfast on Tuesday week. During the year there were eighty admissions to the Home, in which there are thirty women at present, and five women received outfits after two years of good conduct in the Home. Altogether the Mission is doing a good and most useful work.

The annual meetings of the Irish Congregational Union have been held in Dublin. A hopeful tone pervaded the proceedings and very encouraging reports were presented as to the state of the country churches. Rev. T. Eynon Davies represented the Congregational Union of Scotland, and Rev. Morley Wright that of England and Wales. The Union is to meet next year in Belfast.

FALLEN ASLEEP.

At the Town Hall, Manchester, on Friday week, Canon Lloyd, with tragic suddenness, having just concluded an address, he fell forward and expired; at Neath, Glamorgan, aged sixty-eight, Miss S. V. Contes, a faithful helper of many; at Esthwaite, Didsbury, on May 28, aged seventy-six, Mr. William Raby, for upwards of fifty years a Sunday-school and church-worker; at Denton, Lancashire, on May 30, Mrs. George Terry, a loving worker; at Southport, Mr. T. W. Stead, of the firm of Messrs. Stead, Taylor, and Stead (Liverpool), an active and prominent Christian worker; at Beccles, in his eighty-first year, Mr. W. H. Tacon, a generous giver and earnest worker; at Stansfield, aged nineteen, Miss E. Taylor, a devoted and useful worker in Sunday-school and Band of Hope; at Bournemouth, Mrs. Campbell, beloved wife of Rev. J. A. Campbell, formerly of South Lyncombe, Bath; at Haveringatte-Bower, Romford, on May 28, Rev. F. Tugwell, aged eighty; at Rathgar, Dublin, Rev. D. Bell, for thirty-one years rector of Inch, co. Down, aged ninety years.

Forthcoming Meetings.

[Communications respecting forthcoming meetings cannot be inserted unless received by Tuesday morning at the latest.]

The Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, or Wales, on due notice. Apply Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.; or, The Sec., Evangelisation Society, Scottish Branch, The Grove-street Institute, Glasgow.

The Irish Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

The Church Army will send evangelists (working-men) to any clergymen on due notice, for short or long missions. Hon. Sec., 128 and 130, Edgware-road, W.

The Metropolitan Tabernacle Evangelists' Association will send evangelists to any evangelical denomination within the London postal area. Hon. Sec., 5, Crown-villas, Kennington Oval, S.E.

The Country Towns Mission supplies qualified missionaries for work in the country. Apply to Secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C.

Mr. Henry Thorne's Evangelistic Missions.—Friends wishing to make arrangements for mission services may apply for particulars to the Secretary, Mr. James Pearce, Exeter Hall, Strand, London.

Y.M.C.A., 59 and 60, Cornhill, E.C.—Bible Readings by Mr. Charles Inglis, June 13 to 17, 1.15 to 2.15 p.m. Mr. Maxwell Wright on Mission Work in Brazil, June 20, 1.15 to 2.15 p.m.

Conference Hall, Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E.—Sun., June 12, 3 and 7 p.m., Mr. J. G. Watson. Tues., June 14, 7.30 p.m., a grand Temperance demonstration, addressed by Miss Helen Hood, of the W.C.T.U. of America.

Y.M.C.A., Exeter Hall, Strand.—Sun., 3.45 (men only), Mr. W. Donnelly Pink. 7, public. Meetings for men nightly at 8. Cheerful service, Sat., at 8. French Bible-class, Tues., at 8. Prayer meeting, Mon. to Fri., from 1 till 2 p.m. Annual Gymnastic Display, Wed., 15th, at 8. Chairman, Sir Wm. Hart-Dyke, M.P.

West London Central Mission.—St. James's Hall, Sun., Rev. Mark Guy Pearse, 11 a.m.; Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, 7 p.m.

Home of Industry, 29, Bethnal-green-road.—Monthly Meeting for Christian workers, Wed., June 15; tea at 6 o'clock, meeting at 7. Mr. C. Boardman will give an address on "How best to influence Young Men and win them for Christ." The little ones in training for Canada will be present.

Abbey Road Chapel, St. John's Wood.—Sun., Rev. H. E. Stone, at 11 and 6.30 p.m.

Edinburgh Castle, Limehouse, E.—Sun., June 12, Messrs. Pierson and Goldsworthy at 11, 3, and 7, and every night during that week.

Great Assembly Hall, Mile-end-road, E.—Sun., Mr. W. Nobbs, 11 a.m. and 6.30 p.m.

Regent's-park Chapel.—Rev. F. B. Meyer, B.A., Sun., 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Bible Readings for workers, Fri., 8 p.m.

Public Hall, West Norwood, S.E.—Pastor W. F. Gotch, on Sabbath next, at 11 and 6.45.

Evangelistic Mission.—Kilburn Hall, Kilburn-gate, N.W., Sun., 7 p.m., Captain Hawes. Malden Hall, Queen's-crescent, Haverstock-hill, N.W., Sun., 7 p.m., Mr. G. Assitur.

Marylebone Presbyterian Church, Upper George-street.—Rev. Dr. Pentecost, Sun., 11 and 7. Thurs., at 8 p.m.

St. George's Hall, Langham-place.—Mr. Herbert Francis, Sun. at 11 and 7, Burlington Hall, Wed., at 8 p.m.

Rev. F. C. Spurr will give addresses on the "Person and Work of the Holy Spirit," in Gipsy-road Chapel, Norwood, from Sun., June 12, to Wed., June 15, Sun., at 11 and 6.30, weekdays at 3.30 and 8.

Monthly Prayer Meeting for Ireland.—Fri., June 10, 4 p.m., I.C.M. Office, 11, Buckingham-street, Strand, conducted by Mr. E. Bannister.

Talbot Tabernacle.—Sun., June 12, Mr. Henry Varley.

Hyde Park.—Twentieth anniversary of the Park services, Sun., 12th, from 3 to 7; speakers include Dr. Pentecost, Messrs. H. Varley, R. C. Morgan, and Charles Cook.

Vestry Hall, Haverstock-hill.—Missionary Meeting in connection with the Zenana Bible and Medical Mission, Fri., June 17, 8.15 p.m.; Hon. Gertrude Kinnaird and Rev. G. F. Pentecost, D.D., will give addresses.

[Annual Meetings.]

Victoria Home, 77, Whitechapel-road, Thurs., June 9, at 5 p.m., Mr. T. A. Denny.

London Aged Christian Society, Exeter Hall, June 14, at 3 p.m., Mr. T. A. Denny.

Shipwrecked Mariners' Society, Well-street Sailors' Home, June 16, at 2 p.m., Hon. Francis Egerton.

Ragged Church and Chapel Union, 4, Trafalgar-square, June 16, at 7 p.m., Mr. J. Peters.

Islington Y.M.C.A.—Myddelton Hall, Upper-street, Tues. 14th, at 8 p.m., Mr. G. Williams.

[Coming Conventions.]

Bridge of Allan.—June 13-18. Sec.: Mr. W. D. Moffat, 16, Forth-street, Edinburgh.

Clapham.—June 15, 16, 17. Sec.: Rev. N. S. Taylor, Babbacombe, S. Devon.

Kingswood (Warwick).—June 14 to 16.

Rothesay, N.B.—June 18-21.

Mildmay-park.—June 21, 22, 23. Sec.: Col. Morton, The Conference Hall, Mildmay, N.

Guildford.—June 27 to July 2. Sec.: Col. Brown, Albuhera, Guildford.

Borgh Heath, Epsom.—July 6, 7.

Llandrindod (Radnorshire).—July 11 to 15.

Keswick.—July 25 to 30. Sec.: Mr. Postlethwaite, Eskin-place, Keswick.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—For a rich blessing on open-air Gospel meetings at Great Shelford, Cambridgeshire, and that souls may be converted to Christ there.—For a devoted Christian worker just passing away, that pain may be relieved and restfulness granted.—For special services at Chelston Mission-Hall, Torquay, by Mr. Opie Rowlay, on Sunday and at night by the Dean of Anchonry.—For special meetings being held by Mr. D. M. Cameron at Helensburg, Glasgow, and Bridge of Weir.

"Very good. Cannot be better. The very thing for circulation."—Rev. C. H. SPURGEON.

ght Pages Monthly,
One Halfpenny.

THE HERALD OF MERCY

An Illustrated Magazine for the People.

CONTAINS Narratives, Choice Extracts,
Anecdotes, Pages for the Young, &c., &c.

CONTENTS OF JUNE NUMBER.

he Blind Man's Gratitude.
he Promises of God.
By C. H. SPURGEON.
Messenger of God.
he "Ifs" of Life.
Heavenly Message.
hannah's Dream.
By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

POETRY:—
The Love of God.
Not Myself, but Himself.
By WILLIAM LUFF.
PAGE FOR THE YOUNG:—
The Child's Faith.
The Ragged Boy's Testimony.

With Full-Page Illustration and several smaller Engravings.

Twelve copies of THE HERALD OF MERCY for June will be sent post free for Sixpence.

"Profusely illustrated, and full of instructive and profitable reading for both old and young. The Gospel is presented in its most winning and attractive form."—Christian Age.

Eight copies of the "THE HERALD OF MERCY" will be sent post free to any Address direct from the Publishers for 12 months on receipt of Postal Order or Stamps for 4s.

London: MORGAN AND SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered through any Bookseller.

Strongly bound in Cloth, 757 Pages.

MORGAN & SCOTT'S UNABRIDGED

CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE 3/6

TO THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS.

PORTABLE EDITION.

The special feature of this Edition, in addition to its extreme cheapness, is the New Translation of Proper Names in the Old and New Testaments by a competent scholar. The new renderings of the proper names are NOT CONTAINED IN ANY OTHER EDITION OF CRUDEN. This portion of the book is therefore STRICTLY COPYRIGHT.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

COMPLETE EDITION IN ONE VOLUME.

FOXE'S BOOK OF MARTYRS.

A COMPLETE AND AUTHENTIC ACCOUNT OF THE LIVES, SUFFERINGS, AND TRIUMPHANT DEATHS OF EARLY CHRISTIAN AND PROTESTANT MARTYRS IN ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

By JOHN FOXE.

With Twelve Full-page Illustrations. Cloth boards, 10s. 6d. Bevelled boards, gilt edges, 12s. 6d.

"We are glad to see our old friend John Foxe in this new and handsome form. Of all the editions that we have seen, this of Messrs. Morgan and Scott's is decidedly the best. The additions of the Editor's, bringing the history down to recent date, help to show the unchanged nature of Romanism, and the need of watching its assiduous encroachments. The introductory essay on Popery is of a very vigorous and instructive character. The numerous engravings lend additional interest to the book, and its excellent 'get up' renders it an ornament worthy of any drawing-room."—Methodist Recorder.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

"THE WORLD'S PROVED REMEDY FOR ALL CHEST DISEASES."

COUGH, ASTHMA,

CHRONIC BRONCHITIS,

INFLUENZA.

Rev. F. E. HEAPE, of DERBY, in a recent letter, says:—"Your Medicine always puts my lungs right, and drove out the terrible INFLUENZA last May."

This Medicine has been prepared for 65 years.

CONGREVE'S BALSAMIC ELIXIR,

In Bottles 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., 11s., and 22s. may be had of all Chemists and Medicine Vendors.

TEA IN PERFECTION.

From the Tea Plant to the Tea Cup, in its native purity. Untampered with. Shipped direct by and sold direct to the public at strictly wholesale prices. From 1s. 4d. to 2s. 10d. per lb. All middle profits saved. Free delivery to all parts of Great Britain.

ELLIS DAVIES & CO.,

E. D. & CO.'S FAMOUS SELECTIONS

of the Pure Teas of India, China, and Ceylon, are known in every Town and Village of the United Kingdom, and are guaranteed to be of the highest quality; and all who appreciate a Cup of really Fine Tea, possessing pungency, briskness, and flavour, are invited to write for Samples (which are sent free), and Contrast with other Teas.

ELLIS DAVIES & CO., 44, LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER'S

Awarded Grand Diploma of Honour, Edinburgh, 1890
Two Prize Medals, Paris, 1889.

LINEN Collars. LADIES' 3-fold from 3/6 doz.
" GENT'S 4-fold 4/11 per doz.
Cuffs for Ladies or Gentlemen from 5/11 per dozen.

SAMPLES POST FREE.

COLLARS, CUFFS & SHIRTS,

Matchless Shirts. Best quality Long Cloth, with 4-fold Linen Fronts, 35s. 6d. per ½ doz. (to measure 2s. extra).

By appointments to the Queen and Empress Frederick of Germany. [c73

ROBINSON & CLEAVER, BELFAST.

PEPSONYMIN TONIC

THE GREAT CURE FOR

INDIGESTION

There is no known remedy to equal it in cases of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, &c.

Sufferers from Indigestion should read our Pamphlet, containing valuable advice by Dr. Andrew Wilson. Post Free on application. Pepsonymin Tonic will be forwarded Post Free by the Proprietors on receipt of 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., or 4s. 6d., or may be ordered through the local chemist.

FRANCIS SPITE & CO., LIMITED, GLASGOW.
The Trade supplied either direct or through the Wholesale Houses. c327

BUMSTED'S TABLE SALT.

Goddard's Plate Powder

Admitted to be the BEST and SAFEST Article for Cleaning Silver and Electro Plate.
In Boxes, 1s., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d.
SIX GOLD MEDALS

RUPTURE.

A NEW SPRINGLESS APPLIANCE

For the Immediate Relief and Cure of Rupture (Pat. Reg. No. 4,392), stands

UNEQUALLED for EASE, COMFORT, & DURABILITY.

For Testimonials and full particulars for Self-Measurement, &c., send stamped address to

A. LIVESLEY, Chemist, New Mills, via Stockport. [c120

THE DEAF HEAR

BY USING WALES' PATENT

SOUND DISCS

Which are the same to the ears as glasses are to the eyes. Positively Invisible. Worn months without removal. Book of particulars, 2stamps.—THE H. A. WALES CO., 62 & 63, New Bond St., London, W.

EPILEPTIC FITS.

Most remarkable cures continue to be effected by Mr. Osborne's Remedy for Epilepsy, which has won for itself golden opinions in all parts of the world. Full particulars (with testimonials) sent free on application to JAMES OSBORNE, Medical Pharmacy, Ashborne, Derbyshire. Reference permitted to Rev. J. Baker, M.A., Stockport.

"YOUR SPLENDID REMEDY SAVED MY LIFE."
(So writes a Patient recently.)

FOR THE TREATMENT OF

CONSUMPTION AND ALL CHEST DISEASES,

RESULTS OF INFLUENZA, &c.,

See the NEW EDITION, with APPENDIX, of

MR. GEORGE THOS. CONGREVE'S

Book "ON CONSUMPTION, &c.," which may be had, post free for ONE SHILLING, from the Author, Coombe Lodge, Peckham, London, S.E.

FORTIETH SERIES OF CASES.

CASE FOR THE WEEK.

BRONCHO-PHTHISIS and CONSUMPTION—A CRITICAL CASE—LETTER from an OLD PATIENT.

Mr. J. B., of BOROUGHBRIDGE (YORKS), writing me recently for advice for a friend, says:—"I shall be glad for you to publish my case, so that others suffering as I did may take encouragement, and apply to you for the same medicine that wrought such wonders upon me.

"I have reasons for wishing my name not to appear in print, but you can refer any one privately to me, and I shall be pleased to answer any inquiries.

"My illness first commenced with a dry, hard cough. I had the best advice attainable then, and obtained no relief. For six months this was most distressing, dry, and hard. Then it became more irritating, and never ceased all night, causing great expectoration of heavy matter, and continuous night sweats, which weakened me very much. So that with all the advantages of good nursing, and the most nourishing things, it was clear to all that I could not hold on much longer.

"It so happened that a former vicar of ours called to see us on his way home from Scotland. He was much concerned to see me in this state, and strongly advised me to apply to you. He was certain that your medicine would do me good. I wrote direct to you, and obtained them with your advice. In a fortnight the cough was much relieved, the expectoration lessened, the night sweats were not so heavy, and I could take a little sleep. In six weeks there was greater improvement, though I was still weak. The physician whom I consulted before I applied to you examined me shortly after this, and expressed great astonishment at the change in the condition of my lungs. I told him what I had been doing, and he said, 'Go on with it and you will not die of Consumption.'

"But having been so weak, it was some time before I was fairly well.* I continued your treatment long after the cough had left me. I felt the necessity of regularly taking the medicine. You will be pleased to hear that since my recovery I have enjoyed fairly good health, and have had no return of my old complaint."

I think he took my medicine for nearly twelve months.*

NOTE.—CONSULTATIONS FREE at Coombe Lodge, Peckham, on TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings only. No charge except the usual charge for three or six weeks' supply of medicine. All Patients should read the Book first.

WEAR THE HALF-GUINEA "PERFECTED"

ELECTRICAL BELT.

Cures Rheumatism, Lumbago, Indigestion, Spinal and Lung Weakness, Epilepsy, Debility, &c. Gives HEALTH, VIGOUR and VITALITY.

Most Comfortable for Ladies and Gentlemen.

The Rev. W. M. CAVE, Wesleyan Minister, late Chairman Devon and Cornwall District, writes:—"Your Electrical Appliances have proved a great success."

Write for Particulars and Testimonials. Tested 13 years.

PLAYER & RETALLACK, 264, Regent Street, London.

PAIN KILLER

The Great Family Medicine. Get a Bottle to-day of PERRY DAVIS'S PAIN KILLER. Acts directly on the seat of Pain. Externally it cures Scalds, Burns, Boils, Sprains, Bruises, Toothache, Headache, Stings and Bites of Insects, &c. Internally it cures Colds, Liver Complaints, Headache, Heartburn, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Sea Sickness, Cramp and Pain in Stomach, Colic, Diarrhœa, Cholera, &c. Sold by all Chemists at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. British Depot: 46, Holborn Viaduct, E.C. Avoid Imitations under misleading names.

PAIN KILLER

c101

"Cadbury's"

"The Typical Cocoa of English"
"Manufacture, Absolutely Pure."
The Analyst.

NO CHEMICALS USED
(As in the so-called Pure Foreign Cocoa).

GOLD MEDAL Health Exhibition, London; HIGHEST AWARD, Adelaide, 1887.

Retail in Tins, 1s. 6d., 2s. 6d., 5s., and 10s.

BENGER'S FOOD

For Infants, Children, and Invalids.

Of Chemists, &c., Everywhere.

FOR TOILET AND NURSERY.

Specially prepared for the delicate skin of Ladies and Children, and others sensitive to the weather, winter or summer. Redness, roughness, and chapping prevented.

Pears' soap

Prof. Sir ERASMUS WILSON, F.R.S.,
Late President of the Royal College of Surgeons, England.

"PEARS' SOAP is an article of the nicest and most careful manufacture, and one of the most refreshing and agreeable balms for the skin."

BIRD'S CUSTARD POWDER

Supplies a Daily Luxury. Dainties in Endless Variety. The Choicest Dishes and the Richest Custard. NO EGGS REQUIRED.

Printed by W. Speaight and Sons, Fetter Lane, E.C.; and Published by the Proprietors, Morgan and Scott, at 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.
Sole Advertisement Agents: John Haddon & Co.'s Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C.

The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

Weekly Record of Christian Life and Testimony; Evangelistic Effort, and Missionary Enterprise.

Portrait and Sketch of the Rev. George Cousins.

PRINCIPAL

...mmon-sense Criticism 8
... Glasgow Bible Institute 8
...mises Fulfilled in China. By C. H. Judd 9
...hts and Shadows of Mission Work.—
No. III. 10
TURDAY EVENING 11
...ter from Dr. J. G. Paton.....12
Review of Indian Missions 12
... Thin Edge in Tripoli 13
... Devil's Wages. By Charles Cook 13
... MOODY IN ENGLAND.....14
... the Young:
Daisies and Buttercups 15
...r-Air Work in Ireland 15

CONTENTS.

A Waif of the Streets 16
Shipwrecked Distress 16
Miss Taylor's School, Beyrout 18
Convention at Stoke Newington.....18
Victoria Homes for Working Men 18
DR. PENTECOST IN MARYLEBONE ...19
Rabbi Lichtenstein's Trials.....19
"Forty Years" (Poem) 19
Yorkshire Evangelical Union 19
LONDON'S DRIFT CHILDREN 20
University Notes 20
Army and Navy Chaplains 23
The Opium Question.....23
Among the Churches 26

...o. 1168.] THURSDAY, JUNE 16, 1892.

REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C. [ONE PENNY. POST FREE, 1½d.

Dr. and Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness

CORDIALLY INVITE YOU TO A MISSIONARY FAREWELL,

TO BE HELD AT

HARLEY HOUSE, BOW, E., on FRIDAY, JUNE 24th,

WHEN

MORE THAN THIRTY outgoing Brethren and Sisters will be commended to God prior to leaving for CHINA, INDIA, AFRICA, and other heathen lands.

SPEAKERS:

Rev. G. F. PENTECOST, D.D.
Rev. S. CHAPMAN (from Melbourne).
Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A.
Miss GERALDINE GUINNESS (from China).
Hon. and Rev. E. V. BLIGH, M.A.
T. A. DENNY, Esq.
Rev. ERIC LEWIS, B.A. (from Niger).
Rev. H. GRATTAN GUINNESS, D.D.
Dr. HARRY GUINNESS.
And Outgoing Missionaries.

TIMES OF MEETINGS.—Afternoon Meeting at 3 o'Clock, Tea and Conversazione at 5, Open-Air Students' Meeting at 6, and Evening Meeting at 7. Cards of Admission to be had on application.

HOW TO REACH HARLEY HOUSE.—Travel by trams from Aldgate, or by omnibuses from the Bank; by G.E. Railway from Liverpool Street to Coburn Road Station (five minutes distant from Harley House); from Fenchurch Street to Bow Road Station (two minutes distant); or by N.L. Railway from Broad Street to Bow Station (three minutes distant).

Institutions.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.

ANXIETY OF SOUL.—Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear, are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C. c343

GEORGE-YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., HIGH-STREET, WHITECHAPEL, E.

Received, with much thankfulness, from Captain Bruce, £1 and parcel of clothing; Anonymous, clothing, flowers; L. E. P., £1.

Rations of Food to Hungry Children. Infant Day Nursery. Week-day, Sunday, and Evening Schools. Classes for Rough Boys and Girls. Band of Hope. Children's Services. Industrial Classes. Shelter for children. Important Missionary Operations amongst Young Women and Elder Girls. Mission Work amongst Lads and Young Men. Mothers' Meetings. Evangelistic Services. Mission to Inebriate Women. Lodging House Meetings. Bible Classes. Temperance Meetings. Room-to-room Visitation. Training Home for Motherless Girls. Various Thrift Works, &c.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post-office Orders should be made payable at 63, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George Yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E. c1455

"DAY IN COUNTRY FUND,"
GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, HIGH-STREET, WHITECHAPEL, E.

Received, with many thanks, from F.L., £2 2s.; L., 2s. 6d.; C. L., 2s. 6d.

George Holland intends, when sufficient funds are in hand, to take 500 children (B.V.) for a day in the country and provide them with necessary food.—GEORGE HOLLAND, George Yard Ragged Schools, &c., High-street, Whitechapel, E.

THE BENEVOLENT OR
Strangers' Friend Society.

Treasurer—Mr. Ald. J. C. DIMSDALE.
Chairman—J. H. ANDERSON, Esq.

Founded a hundred and six years ago. GREATLY STRAITENED FROM WANT OF FUNDS. There are 233 Christian men and women unpaid visitors engaged in the Society's work of BEFRIENDING THE SICK POOR of London. Kindly remember it in testamentary arrangements.

Office, 52, Finsbury-pavement E.C. c677

TO THE FRIENDS OF ISRAEL!

THREE HUNDRED POOR JEWISH CHILDREN connected with our Band of Hope forfeit their annual holiday with their co-religionists because they attended our meetings. Naturally they expect us to make good that loss. Will some friends help us to give these poor children one happy day in the country? LONDON CITY MISSION TO THE JEWS, 119, Leman-street, E. Treasurer, GEORGE WADE, Esq., 30, Schubert-road, Putney, S.W.

D. OPPENHEIM, Missionary. c1438

ASHLEY MISSION, Bethnal-green, E.—Help is earnestly asked, to enable a large mothers' meeting, a factory girls' class, and Sunday-school to have a day in the country.—Miss BONTEIN, 22A, Devonshire-street, Portland-place, W. c1491

COSTERS' HALL, HOXTON, LONDON.—Mr. W. J. Orsman, L.C.C., Honorary Superintendent, greatly needs £100 for the following mission operations:—Costers' Donkey Show, Children's and Adults' Country Holiday Homes, Sick and Benevolent Fund, and Convalescent Cottage for Invalid Christian Women.—Address Milton House, Shacklewell-green, Hackney. c1477

RESCUE HOME for the better class of the Fallen, formerly 3, Cowley-place, has been re-opened 33, Lower Gardiner-street, Dublin. Applications for admission to be addressed to the Matron. c1498

Educational.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space.

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors.
DELTA, Ward's Library, 112, Kensington-pk.-rd., W.

HAPPY HOME SCHOOL.—A Clergyman's Daughter offers the above. Loving care. Good education. Every attention. Terms £2 monthly, or 20 guineas yearly. Healthy, open neighbourhood. —52, Fenwick-road, East Dulwich.

EDUCATION.—Llanberis, Ealing, W. Superior Home School for the daughters of gentlemen. Resident, foreign and visiting Masters. Pupils prepared for Oxford and Cambridge exams. and London Matric. Children whose parents are in India or abroad receive the particular care of the Principal. Special terms made for the daughters of officers' widows and ministers. Reference kindly allowed to Rev. Thain Davidson, D.D., Ealing. c171

CHERTSEY HOUSE, Redhill, Surrey.—Parents may find here a happy, healthy home for their daughters. Beautiful walks. Resident governesses. Visiting professors. Preparations for University exams. Inclusive charges. Clerical, Medical, Army references, with prospectus on application to Miss M. B. GERDS. c331

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, East Tytherton, Chippenham.—Christian training. Preparation for examinations. Moderate terms.
Principal, Miss HOLLIS. c164

HIGH-CLASS CHRISTIAN HOME SCHOOL. Languages and music specialities. The very young and delicate lovingly cared for. Entire charge taken of Indian and other pupils.—References, KÖNIGSHEIM, Gorringe-rd., Eastbourne. c106

SEASIDE KINDERGARTEN and Home School for Girls. Froebel House, Liverpool-terrace, Worthing. Thorough education and careful training. Principal, Miss Yerbury. c272

SCHOOL FOR GENTLEMEN'S DAUGHTERS, 6, Orchard-gardens, Teignmouth, Devon. Principal: Miss Rees, certificated, higher Cambridge. Efficient staff of masters and resident certificated English and foreign mistresses. Successful preparation for examinations. c465

THE BOYS' HOME,
Branches: Greenwich, Ramsgate, Toronto.
SOUTHWARK.

OPEN DAY AND NIGHT

To receive really destitute boys from 6 to 18 years of age without payment or recommendation beyond absolute need.

Urgent cases are considered at any time, but Mr. Fegan may be personally consulted about Orphan, Homeless, or Erring Boys at The Boys' Home, 95, Southwark-street, S.E., on Mondays from 10 till 2.

All communications should be addressed—
J. W. C. FEGAN,
The Boys' Home,
95, Southwark-street, London, S.E.

THE
Unsuccessful Candidates.

Contributions are earnestly solicited in aid of a special collection for the candidates who failed at the late Election of Pensioners on the Imperable Fund of the National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic. There were twenty-seven candidates, and only twelve pensions to bestow; fifteen poor sufferers were consequently disappointed, and to each of these the Ladies' Committee propose to send a gift of 30s., or £2, if sufficient money can be raised for the purpose. The smallest donations will be thankfully received.

ROSA PEARMAN, Vice-President.
LADIES' SAMARITAN SOCIETY
National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, Queen-square, Bloomsbury. c494

PRIVATE PATIENTS can be received at the Deaconesses' Institute and Hospital, Tottenham. Fees from two to five guineas per week. Applications to be made to the Director of the Institution.

TERMS FOR
ADVERTISEMENTS.
"The Christian."

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates: (PREPAID.)

Not exceeding—	s.	d.
30 Words	3	0
39 Words	3	9
48 Words	4	6

And 1d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Advertisements should arrive not later than Monday, addressed to JOHN HADDON & Co., Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C., and stating that they are for insertion in THE CHRISTIAN.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order (not by Stamps) or by Cheque, crossed "City Bank, Limited."

Replies to Advertisements will be received and forwarded for an additional charge of sixpence, to cover postage, by Messrs. JOHN HADDON & Co.

TERMS FOR SUBSCRIPTION
TO
"The Christian"

"THE CHRISTIAN" is published every Thursday (PRICE ONE PENNY), and may be ordered through any Bookseller or Newsvendor, or will be supplied direct by the Publishers, MORGAN and SCOTT, London, on the following Terms, post free, and including double numbers.

ENGLISH
SUBSCRIPTIONS.
for the year 1892.

	£	s.	d.
One Copy & Postage ½d.	0	6	7
Two Copies and Postage 1d.	0	13	2
Three Copies and Postage 1½d.	0	19	9
Four Copies and Postage 2d.	1	6	4

The Subscription for one copy to Foreign Countries, (except United States and Canada), is 8s. 9d. per annum. To the United States and Canada, 2¼ dollars.

ETONHURST, WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—Preparatory School for the Sons of Gentlemen. Competent masters attend daily.—Prospectus on application to LADY PRINCIPALS. c375

MALVERN HOUSE, Blockley, Worcestershire.—Principals, the Misses Judson, who will be pleased to send prospectus and references on application. As only a limited number of pupils are received, the care and comforts of a refined Christian home are combined with the discipline and stimulus of a school. Thorough education. Resident foreign governess. Pupils escorted to and from Paddington and Birmingham.

THE PRINCIPALS of a high-class school, well-established, and singularly successful, holding testimonials of the highest order from parents, evangelical clergy, ministers, and others, have been solicited to place the advantages of earnest Christian training, combined with all the advantages of high-school methods, within reach of parents of good social position, but limited resources, who are unable to meet the usual fees, which in such will be reduced to 30 and 40 guineas, and made inclusive.

Preparations for all examinations. The staff is composed of experienced, certificated (London University), Christian governesses, English and foreign, with visiting professors. Liberal diet. Spacious residence. Replete with every modern appliance to ensure health and comfort. Delicate girls and orphaned families receive exceptional care.—CREDO, care of Messrs. Haddon and Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C.

COLLEGIATE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, combining technical training, practical instruction in household management and cooking, with the highest educational advantages. Inclusive fee, twelve guineas a term, payable in advance.—PRINCIPAL, Strickland's Girls' College, Stowmarket, Suffolk. c448

CRESWELL HOUSE Young Ladies' School, Westgate-on-Sea, offers thorough education and earnest Christian training. Home comforts. Watchful care. Highest references. Terms moderate.—Principals: Mrs. JAMES PIKE and Miss BEITTEN, M.C.P. c495

WIESBADEN, Neuberg Villa, — The Misses Voigt, daughters of a clergyman, offer a happy home and every advantage of a high education to a limited number of young ladies. Two vacancies. Escort end of July and September. Reference: the Rev. W. Kendall, St. Thomas Vicarage, Stafford.—For prospectus apply to the PRINCIPALS. c501

EDUCATION IN BERLIN. — Dr. and Mrs. Grattan Guinness desire to recommend to parents seeking for their daughters the benefits of education abroad and those of a Christian home, the advantages offered by a German lady and her daughters. Frau Gruetz is willing to receive three or four young ladies into her home, where they would obtain motherly care and attention. Fraulein Gruetz, who holds a high-class Government certificate, is competent to instruct them in all the ordinary branches of education. Terms 35s. weekly. —Further particulars will be supplied by Fräulein GRUETZ, at 4, Verlangerte Schloss-str, Charlottenburg, Berlin, or Miss Fooks, Harley House, Bow, London, E.

SUPERIOR EDUCATIONAL HOME for Girls. Terms, inclusive, 20 guineas per ann. Preparatory class for boys. House and garden large. Near Highgate and Hadley Woods.—Mrs. DUNBAR, Chepstow House, New Southgate, London, N. c1547

SOUTH-WEST LONDON COLLEGE.
High-class School for Young Ladies.

CARLTON MANSIONS, CLAPHAM-RISE, LONDON, S.W.

Principal—Mrs. HALE, A.C.P., F.S.Sc., Lond.

Modern system of teaching. Visiting masters in regular attendance. Resident certificated governesses, with careful personal supervision and home comforts. Special advantages for music and languages. Good garden and tennis. Highly recommended for nineteen years by the late Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

Excellent testimonials also from parents of pupils, Rev. D. McEwan, D.D., Rev. W. Williams, and others. c188

BOURNEMOUTH.—A lady wishes to recommend a good school at which her daughter has been pupil for nine years. Special educational advantages. Every care given to delicate girls.—Mrs. C., at May's, 103, London-wall, London, E.C. c1459

DRESDEN.—Two German ladies receive a few young English ladies in their comfortable home. Excellent masters attending for music, painting, &c. Family life. Highest references in England. Moderate terms.—Frl. BECHER, 15, Walpurgisstrasse. c1503

SWITZERLAND.—Young students of French wishing to spend holidays agreeably and profitably, will find comfortable home. Charming scenery. Moderate terms, and good teaching if required.—Chez Professeur Ducommun, Gorgier, Neuchâtel. c1479

OXFORD COUNTY SCHOOL, Thame.—Established 1840. Efficient, home-like. Excellent table. Perfect sanitation. Fine premises and grounds (11 acres.) Tepid swimming bath, gymnasium. Exams. University, Locals, Chamber of Commerce, &c. Many distinctions. Reference: The Vicarage, Thame; The Manse, Thame; The Rectory, Aston; Sandford, Thame, &c. "Friends much pleased with care and attention received." Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

NEW COLLEGE, Cliftonville, Margate. Head Master: Rev. G. HUGH JONES, F.S.L. First grade modern school. Small classes. Individual attention. Form work arranged with due regard to health. Decided Christian training. Splendid premises, workshops, cricket field, tennis courts. Fees £45. No necessary extras. c143

STANLEY HOUSE,
CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

Thorough education, classical or commercial, with decided Christian training. Workshop and laboratory for technical instruction. Half the pupils entered for and passed some public exam. last Christmas. Separate premises for junior school.—Prospectus on application to PRINCIPAL. c159

TO GODLY PARENTS.—The undermentioned (who is in no way connected with the school) is desirous of recommending an old-established

YOUNG GENTLEMEN'S BOARDING SCHOOL,

where the constant aim of the Principal is to train those committed to his care in the fear of the Lord; and by the power of Gospel teaching maintain a Christian tone among the boys, combining this with a thorough and first-class Education.

The Premises are advantageously situated upon HIGH GROUND, NEAR and WITH VIEWS OF THE SEA, on the South Coast, a short run from London, and afford especial facilities for outdoor recreation.

Prospectus and Papers of Examinations passed and honours gained will be forwarded on application. Several of the Vice-Chancellors have appointed their Wards as Pupils to the School Terms moderate.

Dr. THORN, Paddington, London.

UNIVERSITY SCHOOL, HERNE BAY.—"Healthiest watering-place in kingdom."—Registrar-General. Resident minister, Rev. W. Freear. Principal, Mr. W. Freear (London University). Highest references. Special preparation for all exams.

MR. J. W. C. FEGAN desires to recommend to Christian parents a high-class School for Sons of Gentlemen, in the best part of Folkestone. A thoroughly good education, with real Christian influence, home comforts, and close individual attention to each boy. Highest references can be given.—Mr. J. W. C. FEGAN, The Boys' Home, 95, Southwark-street, S.E.

YOUR BOYS have Christian home and sound education with Mr. and Mrs. Dixon, Gordon Middle-class School, Kingston-on-Thames. Near Richmond and Bushey Parks. Entire charge taken for parents abroad. 18 to 25 guineas yearly. c338

GOVERNESSES' AND ARTISTS' INSTITUTE (founded by Miss Leigh).—Home on very moderate terms for Governesses and Art Students. Lady visitors received for short periods in summer months.—Apply 18, Rue de Milan, Paris. c1018

LITTLE BOYS ONLY.—Principal gentleman's school at SEASIDE, seeks some little boys for his resident certificated assistant under his supervision. Private house entirely detached from the main school buildings. Advantages of sea air, excellent situation, Christian family and influence, home life and comforts. Apply Mrs. BROWNE, 48, Upper Park-road, Haverstock-hill, London.

SOUTH EASTERN COLLEGE,
RAMSGATE.

Entrance scholarships. Seven scholarships ranging in value from £40, will be open to competition. Names of candidates should be sent not later than June 24th.—For particulars address The BURSAR. c

A LADY WISHES to place her two nieces (ages 17 and 15) as pupil governesses in a good school, where in return for their services they would receive finishing lessons. They are capable of teaching German (having been two years in North Germany), music, French, and English to junior pupils. The eldest has a certificate for the Junior Oxford, and also one for music. Would have no objection to their going abroad.—R., 138, Edgware-road, Hyde-park, W. c

BRUSSELS. — Christian Education. Home for Young Ladies. Rue Belliard 185. Beautiful villa. Large garden. Tennis court. Superior instruction. Comfortable family life. Small number. Twelve drawing-room pupils received. Prospectuses with highest references.—In Brussels refer to Rev. W. R. Stephens, Victoria Chapel; Principals, Mademoiselle T. Kropff, Fräulein Stursberg.

TEACHER desires holiday engagement for three weeks, commencing July 23. Would object to go as nursery governess or mother's help.—TEACHER, Y.W.C.A., Wellington-street, Woolwich, Kent. c1

ASSISTANT MASTERS AND GOVERNESSES desiring appointments after the summer vacation should apply immediately to the Scholastic Mutual Association, Limited, Burlington-chambers, New-street, Birmingham.—T. C. BOWMAN, Managing Director. c

YOUNG LADY (22) wishes in September re-engagement as governess in good family. Girls under 14. Good certificates, testimonials, experience. Disciplinarian. English, elementary French, music, singing, drawing.—A. M. S., care of Howard, Stationer, Bedford. c

FIRST-RATE GOVERNESS, native German and Italian, thorough French and English (Christian and very energetic), prevented by defective hearing from teaching a number, would undertake a single pupil in return for a comfortable home or small salary.—S. B. D., The Shrubbery, Shooters-hill, Kent. c

SCHOOL TRANSFER.—A lady, M.C., wishes to dispose immediately of her school, goodwill, furniture, and stock. Country town within 30 miles of London.—A. Z., care of Pearce, Booksellers, Luton, Beds. c

AS NURSERY GOVERNESS.—Re-engagement desired, by a lady, who will be disengaged the first week in July. French acquired abroad.—Address M., Mr. Waters, Stationer, High-street, Cranbrook. c

A LADY WISHES to place her daughter in a first-class school in Paris to acquire the language. Could teach German to reduce terms.—A. REID, Post-office, Waterloo, Liverpool. c

A YOUNG GERMAN LADY, who speaks French, desires a holiday engagement in Christian family for a few weeks from the end of July.—I. G., care of R. Cadbury, Esq., Moseley, Birmingham. c

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—Entrance scholarships, navy, &c. Delicate boys medically supervised. Experienced. First-class classic. Engineering if desired. References: clergy, masters, eminent physicians.—M A., M. B., Summerside, London-road, St. Leonards. c

Appointments, Situations, &c., Wanted.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Advertisements should be received by Messrs. JOHN HADDON & Co. not later than MONDAY.

CHRISTIAN MINISTER with small means, open to accept pastoral charge of Church unable wholly to support a pastor, or would engage in evangelistic work.—C480, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C. c

TO BARRISTERS, &c.—An Evangelical aged 28, seeks an appointment in chambers, or similar position of trust. Experienced. Excellent references.—Address LEX, Mr. Herbert Taylor, Heacham, Norfolk. c

WANTED BY MAN AND WIFE, no young, situation as Caretaker, Chapel-keeper, or place of trust. Highest reference. Christian abstainers. Butler; disengaged August 1.—104, Brompton-road, London, S.W. c

THE REV. W. DARLOW SARJEANT can strongly recommend a Christian man, with wife, for the position of Caretaker, Chapel-keeper, or Manager of temperance or coffee-bar.—Apply 38, Oseney-crescent, Camden-road, N.W. c

GROOM AND COACHMAN. — Thoroughly understands his duties. Ride and drive well. Christian and abstainer. Age 36. Married, one girl, 11 years.—W. FAIN, Stables, Trent-park, New Barnet. c

WANTED, BY ACTIVE, ENERGETIC MAN, a post as Scripture reader or Evangelist. Great experience. Thoroughly acquainted with all kinds of missionary work. Good visitor. Evangelical preacher.—GEO. SUSANS, Maybury, Woking. References permitted, Rev. H. Noel, Dr. Vere White, Woking. c

SECRETARY.—Christian gentleman, who has recently relinquished position as deputy-secretary to a well-known mission, desires similar appointment, or as secretary or superintendent of a mission, or philanthropic work; good organiser and acceptable preacher.—A. B., care of Messrs. Haddon and Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C.

AS UNDER BUTLER, aged 28. Height 6 feet. Two years' character. Apply Mr. MCDONALD, Employment Bureau, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

USEFUL COMPANION, Lady Help, sekeeper. Experienced, domesticated. Ab- Churchwoman. Nice engagement pre- o a high salary. Any distance no object. Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie Salisbury-square, E.C. c1557

LADY very highly recommends supe- ful person as Maid, Housekeeper, or position t. Thorough needlewoman, dressmaker. nced in sickness. Testimonials, J. E. B., champ-road, Lavender-hill, Clapham, S.W. c1497

AGEMENT REQUIRED, as com- to lady. Domesticated. Good needle- .—Miss M. PARSONS, Mount Ballan, near ow. c1422

FUL COMPANION, thoroughly icated. Active, cheerful, obliging. Good eeper, where servant is kept for rough Fair needlewoman. Christian abstainer. tely trustworthy. Undeniable references. 91, Bolsover-street, London, W. c1579

USEFUL COMPANION, by domesti- oung lady, for July and August. Musical, eedlewoman and abstainer. Country or preferred.—MAY, 52, Ferntower-road, ury, N. c1518

NURSE ATTENDANT to elderly or e lady or useful help, an active, cheerful an (56). District nursing. Some hospital g. Paralysed not objected to. Good refer- -H. FASTEN, 60, Harrogate-road, South y. c1594

DIES' NURSE.—Certificated, experi- nently recommended by West-end doctors ents. Disengaged July, August, and from October.—Z., 12, Brownswood-road, Fins- ark, N. c1535

NURSE to children out of arms an, abstainer). Willing to assist in light ork. Age 30. Not been out before.—M. ON, 179, Penydarran, Merthyr, S. Wales. c1523

TIFICATED MEDICAL AND SUR- NURSE, disengaged, would like charge of Excellent testimonials. Usual terms.— 135, Old Christchurch-road, Bournemouth c1537

COMMENDED as head matron. ghly competent to manage a home. Leaving sent post on account of the closing of the Apply to Mrs. TINDELL-LUCAS, Foxholes, , Herts. c1552

EXPERIENCED MATRON desires n in rescue home, or any place of trust. icated. Thorough needlewoman.—M., 67, r-street, Liverpool. c1543

Y STRONGLY RECOMMENDS a oman as Lady Housekeeper, Useful Com- or Charge of Motherless Girls. Well edu- ent French, musical. Experienced nurse s.—MAY, Friend's Library, Western-road, n. c508

SALARY.—Lady (middle-aged) as companion. Light duties. Very domesti- Useful in household. Highest references. 98, Elgin-avenue, Maida-vale, W. c1532

QUIRED, by a thoroughly domes- Lady (middle-aged), situation as House- Lady Help, or any Position of Trust, with Excellent references.—G. F., 14, Dart- park-hill, Kentish Town, N.W. c1529

COMPANION to an elderly lady.— agement required. Domesticated, good and needlewoman. Musical. Ten years' nce.—Address M., 14, Dartmouth-park-hill, Town, N.W. c1598

LADY'S MAID. Thorough dress- needlewoman, and packer. Willing and g. Tall and healthy. Christian and ab- Wages £28-30.—G. F., 80, Knaptroad, c1541

OUNG PERSON requires a situation charge of two or three children (not under f age). Good needlewoman, and musical. ER, Brook-street, Cannington, Bridgwater. c1577

NG PERSON (23), respectably con- seeks situation as attendant on invalid "Useful Help." Domesticated, fond of . Knowledge of dressmaking. £13 to £14, to duties required.—Apply, Mrs. HIP- Janse, Kibworth, Leicestershire. c1486

NG GERMAN LADY wishes re-en- as Nursery-Governess in Christian in school. Sews nicely. Small salary. B. A., Mrs. Durndell, 120, Talbot-road, ver, W. c1453

ISTIAN LADY, speaking French and would, in return for board and travelling act as companion and amanuensis to travelling during August and September. EATON, Plympton, Devon. c1524

ADY WISHES to recommend a nurse lady's first baby or two young children.— rs. B., Inglewood, Oaklands-road, Bromley, c1574

ADY is anxious to find a situation ng married woman, who is obliged to sup- family. Good nurse for a crippled lady. 44, Lansdowne-road, London-fields, N.E. c1411

CE AS KITCHENMAID wanted for a t 6, recommended by matron under whose e has been 13 months.—Miss PRETTY, raining Home, 19, Horsham-road, Dorking. c1572 ntments, Situations, &c., Vacant.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.

9d. for each Additional 9 Words.

EA AGENCY.—Any one wishing to our name can easily do so by selling friends and customers. terms will offer enable Agents to easy compare samples. United Tea Co., London, E.C. Name paper

PORTEURS. — Energetic men of wanted for the sale of pure at hotels, the seaside, and other places entertained from Christian Helpers, and others in partial

CLERK AND BOOKKEEPER wanted. Quick and correct. With retail and wholesale experience preferred. A good ledger-keeper, correspondent, &c. Must give good references, both as to character and ability.—Apply, by letter, stating age, salary required (to live out), and particulars of past engagements, to X980, care of Messrs. Dawson and Sons, Cannon-street, London. c1460

SECRETARY-VALET wanted for country. Good appearance. Single. Fairly educated. Not over 30. First-class references. Decided Christian.—Apply, in own handwriting, E.H., Haddon and Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C.

MAN AND WIFE wanted, to live in lodge. Man as under-gardener, wife to keep the gate. No children. Must be total abstainers.—Mrs. C. H. SPURGEON, Westwood, Beulah-hill, Upper Norwood. c515

COLPORTEUR wanted, to sell popular books. Liberal terms.—Enclose stamp for samples and catalogue, J. J. RAE, 127, Stockwell-street, Glasgow. c1470

WANTED AT MIDSUMMER, for professional house, man and wife as butler and housekeeper. No encumbrance. Age must not exceed 38.—State wages and all particulars to F., care of Messrs. Rowe and Sons, Belvoir-street, Leicester. c1567

A SCHOOLMISTRESS (experienced) wanted for the Certified Industrial School for Girls, 75, Windsor-street, Burmantofts, Leeds. Salary £40.—Apply, by letter, to the SECRETARY. c1492

A YOUNG SINGLE MAN wanted, who has served an apprenticeship at a good nursery, and understands forcing grapes, tomatoes, and cucumbers, and nursery work generally.—Apply to X. Y. Z., Inverara, Herne Bay. c1478

HOSPITAL FOR CHILDREN WITH HIP DISEASE, The Vine, Sevenoaks.—Probationer wanted immediately. Lady by birth and education. 10s. a week required for board. Will not lead to salaried appointment, but to permanent home. c1502

A RESPECTABLE YOUTH wanted. One having a knowledge of tea clearing preferred. Good handwriting indispensable. Apply by letter to P. LIDDELL and Co., 3, Great Tower-street, E.C. c1586

THE HELP OF A LADY wanted in Y.W.C.A. Institute as Mother of the household. Must have knowledge of housekeeping and be capable and bright. A very busy and happy life.—46, Wellington-road, Regent's-park, N.W. c1499

MOTHERLY CHRISTIAN WOMAN wanted, to take charge of small household. Near Croydon. Four children. Assistance given.—Address, in first instance, O., 16, Cravon-buildings, Wansbeck-road, Hackney Wick. c1530

BONNE D' ENFANT.—On demande une bonne d'enfant de la Suisse Romande pour une famielle Salutiste; ne sachant pas l'Anglais, mais consentant a venir en Angleterre pour prendre la seconde responsibilité de cinq enfants de un a neuf ans.—S'adresser, indiquant l'âge, les prétentions, &c., à X., 37, Ravensdale-road, Stamford-hill, London. c1548

MOTHER'S HELP wanted, French or English. Christian and Dissenter. One meeting with Open Brethren valued. To help with three little children and light household duties. 20. Salary £14. P., 15, Bruce-grove, Tottenham, N. c1491

ATTENDANT on invalid lady wanted, with some housework. Early riser. Good needlewoman. Read and write. Healthy.—Call between twelve and one, four and five, or write, 1, Belvidere-terrace, Tunbridge Wells. c1488

ATTENDANT required immediately by a lady partially paralysed. Middle-aged, strong, active, and obliging. Abstainer imperative. Personal interview essential. Satisfactory references required.—Apply, any morning between 10 and 1 o'clock, or between 5 and 8 p.m., at 8, Stapleton-hall-road, Crouch-hill, N. c1482

LADY WANTED, in country, for companion to invalid aged lady. Lifting required and some knowledge of nursing. Church of England. —Apply to Mrs. LOWE, 14, Chepstow-villas, Bayswater. c1479

NURSE OR MOTHER'S HELP wanted to take entire charge of one baby (year old) near Finchley, N. Must have good references and not object to little washing.—Mrs. YOUNG, 10, Ethelbert-road, Margate. c1571

A GOOD NURSE wanted, for the country, to take entire charge of one baby and attend to the clothes of three elder children.—Mrs. HEATON-SMITH, The One House, Macclesfield. c1554

NURSE.—An experienced Christian Nurse wanted, for one baby of 11 months. Must be a good needlewoman and fond of children. Age over 20. Wages according to capability.—Apply by letter, Mrs. W. LOWES, Clovelly, Durham-road, East Finchley. c1588

LAUNDRESS (working) wanted, in a home for training young women.—Apply, by letter, stating age, salary, experience, testimonials, to J. WALTER G. HILL, 24, Temple-row, Birmingham. c1517

A LAUNDRYMAID wanted for a family in the country.—M. T., The Bury, Pavenham, Bedford. c519

LAUNDRESS (thorough) wanted in home for Fallen Women. Capable of teaching inmates good laundry work. Having Christian influence that would be felt. Abstainer.—Mrs. G., 5, Lansdown-crescent, Bath. c1472

A YOUNG HOUSE-PARLOURMAID wanted for a small family. Must be well recommended. —Mrs. B., Elmbank, Lawrie Park-road, Sydenham. c1600

HOUSE-PARLOURMAID WANTED.—Housemaid kept. Must thoroughly understand her duties, and have a good personal character. No beer. Wages £18.—Mrs. AUSTIN, Lyonsdown House, New Barnet. c1590

ACTIVE AND OBLIGING PERSON wanted, as house parlourmaid. Quiet family of seven. Two servants kept. Wages £18. Over 21 preferred. Sunday evenings out.—Apply 47, Blessington-road, Lee, S.E. c1521

AN EARNEST CHRISTIAN HOUSE and PARLOUR MAID wanted. Strong and active.

AGENTS WANTED.—Ladies or gentlemen for the sale of the "Kandy King" Brand of pure Ceylon tea. Liberal commission. Work reduced to a minimum.—Address "THE KANDY KING" Ceylon Tea Company, 101, Leadenhall-street, London. c1557

A YOUNG LADY wanted as an apprentice to drapery. No premium.—J. COOK, General Draper, 13, Sutherland-terrace, Pimlico, S.W. c1597

ASSISTANT MATRON wanted for Girls' Preventive Home. Must be good needlewoman, healthy, active, willing to do anything required, and above all a decided Christian. State age, previous occupation, salary required, and testimonials, Mr. C. STUART THORPE, 79, Finsbury-pavement. c486

OFFICES FOR HOME HELP, 9, Upper Baker-street, N.W. Miss Hooper supplies Christian governesses, companions, housekeepers, maids of every description, nurse-companions, and maid attendants; also superior domestic servants.—Telegrams, "HELPFULNESS," London. c1550

CAN ANY LADY recommend reliable good cook for easy, quiet, country situation? Family. Two servants, four kitchenmaids. Christian and abstainer desired. Good wages. No washing.—Mrs. SMALL, Claydon, Winslow.

GOOD PLAIN COOK for a country vicarage in Surrey. Church of England. Abstainer. Early riser. A lady's recommendation valued.—Miss SUTCLIFFE, 14, Sunny Side, Southborough, Tunbridge Wells. c1598

GOOD PLAIN COOK or general wanted. Two only in family. Housemaid kept. Age 25 to 30. Personal character indispensable.—J. E., Ellerslie, 13, Jews-walk, Sydenham, S.E. c1462

GOOD PLAIN COOK AND HOUSE PARLOURMAID required in a small family. Must understand their duties. Good wages. Personal character indispensable.—Apply to Mrs. BOOKER, 10, Grange-road, Ealing. c1592

YOUNG SERVANTS.—Lady requires two respectable young girls for general and parlourmaid's work. Wages 8s. week each. Caps and aprons provided.—Write A. A., Willing's, 162, Piccadilly. c1461

WORKING LAUNDRYMAID wanted for institution in the Isle of Man. An active Christian woman to take charge. Total abstainer. Wages £25.—Address, stating age and experience, c1576, Haddon's Advertising Office, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C. c1576

HOUSEMAID WANTED, who thoroughly understands her duties.—Apply on Friday, between 10 and 12 o'clock, at 9, Lancaster-gate, W. c1504

COOK AND HOUSEMAID wanted. Good characters indispensable.—Apply Miss W., 130, Brixton hill, S.W. c1589

WANTED, FOR COUNTRY, good general, with thorough knowledge of cooking. Abstainer. Church of England preferred. Young housemaid kept.—Apply, by letter, stating wages required, references, &c., to MISTRESS, Beacon Lodge, Green St. Green, near Dartford, Kent. c1483

GENERAL SERVANT wanted for two ladies in flat near Victoria. Single-handed. Good plain cook. Abstainer. Nice appearance. Age between 30 and 45.—C1511, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C. c1511

A GOOD GENERAL SERVANT wanted, for two in family. Abstainer preferred. Good wages. Groom kept. Washing put out except small things. Must be good cook.—Mrs. APTHORP GORSE, Sidlesham, Chichester. c1555

SECOND HOUSEMAID wanted, to give assistance in the nursery. Must be experienced. Age about 20.—Apply to Mrs. S., 14, Montpelier-row, Blackheath. c1454

GENERAL SERVANT (experienced) wanted. Three in family. Abstainers.—Write first, Mrs. Osborn, 61, Gladsmuir-road, Whitehall-park, N. c1549

GENERAL SERVANT wanted. Age 18 to 21. Three in family and nurse kept. Plain cooking, some washing. Small house. Quiet family. Comfortable home.—Mrs. MARKS, 17, Gresley-road, Hornsey-lane, N. c1542

A SELECT AGENCY for Male and Female Servants is opened by Mr. FORDER at 105, Gloucester-road, South Kensington, S.W. Hours, 8 till 6. Numbers of all better-class servants are required daily to fill vacancies. Also Soho Bazaar, 77, Oxford-street, W.

WANTED, AT ONCE, good Cooks, House-Parlourmaids, Housemaids, Nurses, and good General Servants. Quiet situations. Good wages. This office can be well recommended as thoroughly reliable.—Miss MAULDEN (late missionary), 97, Harrow-rd., Paddington-gn. Stamp for reply. c1513

USEFUL MAID, at seaside. Duties include dusting drawing-room, and occasional assistance in dining-room. Age about 30. Wages, all included, £26.—Miss WHATELY, Mount Lodge, Redhill, Surrey. c1570

To Let, Apartments, &c.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.

9d. for each Additional 9 Words.

Displayed Advertisements according to space.

MIDLAND TEMPERANCE HOTEL, 76, Guilford-street, Russell-square, W.C.—A first-class Hotel for Visitors to London. Central and pleasantly situated. A thoroughly clean and quiet home, with every comfort and convenience. Highly patronised and recommended by the clergy and ladies and gentlemen. Bedrooms from 1s. 6d., breakfast or tea from 1s. 8d., service 9d. Full tariff, with testimonials, free on application to J. W. TURNER, Proprietor.

BEDFORD HOTEL, LONDON, 93, SOUTHAMPTON ROW, RUSSELL SQUARE. Quiet family Hotel; central. Bedrooms from 1s. 6d.; plain breakfasts or tea, 1s. 6d. Other charges equally moderate. Printed tariff on application to THOMAS HENRY WALDUCK, Proprietor.

W. TAVERNER, TEMPERANCE HOTEL, 41 and 43, Judd-street, Euston-road, London, W.C. Five minutes from Great Northern, Midland, and BRIGHTON.—Select Boarding House. Pleasant and healthy situation. Near West Pier and lawns. Rooms lofty and airy. Home comforts. Terms moderate. Special for permanency. —Moreland House, 116, Lansdowne-place, Hove.

BRIGHTON (West). — Comfortably-furnished sitting-room and bedroom, 17s. 6d. Extra bedrooms. Near sea. Highly recommended by a doctor's wife, and Mrs. Osborne Howe, of South Africa.—TRUTH, 27, Westbourne-terrace. c1512

BRIGHTON.—Board and residence for Christians. Restful, homelike. Ladies 21s., gentlemen, 25s., weekly; 3s. 6d., 4s. 6d. daily. Two friends 2s. 6d. each less. Omnibus from station, 2d.—C. W. NUNN, 152, Marine-parade. c1585

BRIGHTON.—Comfortable, well-furnished apartments near sea, sitting and bed room. Cheerful, pleasant rooms, 18s. Quiet home, permanent or otherwise; extra bedroom. No children.—Mrs. THOMPSON, 54, Westbourne-terrace, West Brighton. c1546

BRIGHTON.—Engedi House, Eastern-road. House of Rest for Christian workers and others. Terms 10s. 6d., 12s. 6d. and 15s. per week.—Stamped addressed envelope enclosed for reply, LADY SUPERINTENDENT. 2224

BRIGHTON.—To let, for three months, a small house, comfortably furnished, containing two sitting and four bed rooms, kitchen, &c. Five minutes' walk from Marine-parade. References exchanged.—3, Sudeley-street. c1544

BRIGHTON.—Furnished apartments, sitting and bed rooms. Pleasant view. Three minutes from sea and Royal Pavilion. £1 per week. Christian home.—Mrs. WITT, 3, St. James'-place, Brighton. c1506

BLACKHEATH.—Small private boarding-house in London's healthiest suburb. Close to station and heath. Good gardens. Every home comfort. Frequent trains to City and West-end. —TID, "Shrublands," 42, Lee-park, Blackheath. c1591

BETTWS-Y-COED, North Wales.—The Pont-y-Pair Temperance Hotel. Very comfortable. Moderate changes. Special week end terms.—Tariff on application to manageress. c518

BOURNEMOUTH.—Boscobel Hall, Boarding Establishment. Apartments en suite, Central. Overlooks gardens and pier approach. Magnificent land and sea views. Liberal table. Inclusive terms, 35s. to 45s.—WHYTE. "Can cordially recommend this most admirably conducted home."—Dr. Pierson, Metropolitan Tabernacle. c380

BOURNEMOUTH.—A lady offers board and residence in a delightful establishme t surrounded with lovely grounds. Near the sea and gardens. Moderate terms. Every comfort.—Priory Mansions, Bath-road. c483

BOURNEMOUTH.—Comfortable apartments on best part of East Cliff, in own grounds. Sea view. Near pier and gardens. Reduced terms till 15th July.—Mrs. MOON, The Neilgherries, Grove-road. c1090

BOURNEMOUTH. (Richmond Hall).—High-class boarding establishment, pleasantly situated in its own grounds on the West Cliff, and in close proximity to the sea and West station. Most desirable as a summer residence on account of its high and bracing situation. Tennis, billiards, and smoking-rooms. Terms moderate. Special arrangements for long residence.—Apply to the PROPRIETRESS. c1254.

EAST BOURNEMOUTH.—Castle Court, Boscombe Chine.—Select Boarding Establishment. Charming sea and land views. Well appointed. Five minutes from pier. Private apartments.—Mr. and Mrs. J. D. HAZARD. c513

BOURNEMOUTH, WEST.—"Aldbury," Alumhurst-road.—Furnished apartments. Only three minutes' walk from the sea. Southern aspect. Beautifully wooded among the pines and the chines.—THOMAS GURNEY, Ex-City Missionary. c1558

BOURNEMOUTH.—"Melbourne," Knyveton-road, East Cliff. Comfortable, refined home offered to limited number. House pleasantly situated among the pines and near the sea. South aspect. Terms moderate. c1473

BOURNEMOUTH.—Board and residence, 25s., with family of medical man. Cheerful, healthy position. Convenient for cliffs and pleasure grounds. Careful attention to invalid.—DOCTOR, Linden House, St. John's-wood-road. c1582

BROADSTAIRS.—Private boarding house Most pleasant and healthy. Near sea and rail, Good table. Well recommended. Terms for ladies from £1 1s.; gentlemen, £1 4s.—Miss SKINNER, Tudor-villas. c1146

BUXTON, DERBYSHIRE. — Brunswick Boarding House, Hardwick-square. A few minutes' walk from stations, baths, and gardens. Lovely mountain views. Established in 1883.—For prospectus apply to Miss PALMER. c948

CLAPHAM. — Board and residence,—A widow lady, residing in own house, will gladly welcome a loving believer, and can offer a lady superior comforts. Good bedroom, use three sittings. Gardens. Bath (hot and cold). Terms from one guinea per week.—Apply, first, G., 90, Broomwood-road, Wandsworth-common. c1558

CLAPHAM. — Well-furnished drawing-room and bedroom, 7, Tremadoc-road, close to common and station (from Victoria and Ludgate), and short walk from Electric Rail. Bath. Terms moderate. c1493

EASTBOURNE.—Home from home, two minutes from sea. Board and residence for business people and others, married couples, 45s. (or apartments).—Miss COLE, Ashford House, Bourne-street, Eastbourne. c1505

EASTBOURNE.—A few boarders received in a quiet private house. Terms moderate.—K. C. B., Bijou Library, Eastbourne. c1490

FOLKESTONE.—Comfortably furnished apartments. Well-appointed house, three minutes' from station. Splendid views of sea and land. Large garden, orchard. Coachhouse and stable if desired.—B., Kensington Lodge, Dover-rd. c1474

FOLKESTONE.—Best part, not far from the Leas. Christian total abstainers, not strong, will find home comforts at Haverstock Villa, Claremont-road. Those recovering from infectious complaints ineligible. Terms 35s. to 52s. 6d. inclusive weekly.—Miss WOODWARD, of British Nursing Association. c1395

HASTINGS.—Board and residence or apartments on very moderate terms, in healthiest

HASTINGS.—Superior home for permanency, with board, residence, 21s. weekly, or private sitting-room and bedroom, with attendance, 15s. 6d. Comfortable, clean. In healthiest part. Five minutes from sea.—F. M. O., 72, Braybrook-road. c1581

HASTINGS.—5, Holmesdale-gardens. Select board and residence, or apartments. Quiet, sheltered. Home comforts. Terms most moderate. Three minutes from sea. Highest references.—G. GOLDSTON, many years an elder at Metropolitan Tabernacle. c2?7

HARROGATE. — Beechwood. — Superior Boarding Establishment. Queen's-road and Cold Bath-road. Unsurpassed for position and home comforts. Within ten minutes of wells and baths. Stabling and carriages for hire.—Miss C. LORD. c165

HERNE BAY.—Comfortable apartments. Pleasantly situated. South aspect. Close to sea and cliffs. Bathroom, hot and cold.—Inverara, Victoria-park-road. c1525

ILFRACOMBE.—The Granville (Foster's Boarding House). Magnificent sea views, 120 feet above sea level. A delightful home on Christian and temperance principles. Faces full south. Forty bedrooms, baths, balconies. Special sanitary certificate.—FOSTER'S Bijou Guide to Ilfracombe, gratis.

ILKLEY-IN-WHARFEDALE. — To let, furnished, for six weeks from July 29, comfortable, airy, detached family house; large garden, good situation on hillside, close to moor; three reception rooms, eight bedrooms, five double, eight single beds. There is in Ilkley good tennis club and golf links. Fishing may be had by ticket in the Wharfe. —Apply Mrs. RICHARD ECROYD, Eastburn, Ilkley, Yorks. c1538

LAUSANNE, SWITZERLAND. — Apartments, well-furnished. Five rooms, kitchen, &c. Splendid view of lake of Geneva and Alps.—Apply Mrs. BRICE, Homestead, Wood-green, N.; or, Mr. KUNZ, Clos-du-Soir, Lausanne. c1361

LITTLEHAMPTON HOME OF REST FOR CHRISTIANS.—A magnificent building, fitted with all modern appliances. Facing sea. South aspect. In every respect arranged for the comfort of visitors. Terms 15s. per week.—For particulars, send stamped envelope, Rev. W. DARLOW SARJEANT, Oseney-crescent, Camden-road, N.W.

MARGATE. — Private boarding-house within three minutes of sea. Best part of Cliftonville. South aspect. Every comfort, with liberal table. Early dinner. Moderate terms.—PROPRIETRESS, 6, Magdala-villas. c1519

NORWAY.—Charming Temperance Pension for families, six hours from Bergen. Good fishing, boating, bathing, excursions.—View and tariff from Mr. C. HOOPER, Exeter Hall, London. c322

PARIS.—Pension de Famille. Change of address. Miss Galloway, 3, Rue St. Didier-avenue, Kléber, close to Bois and Champs Elysées. Comfortable refined home. Situation healthy and convenient. Lift, bathrooms. Sanitation perfect. Moderate terms. References exchanged.

PARIS.—Visitors to Paris can be accommodated with nice, comfortable home with an Anglo-French Christian family.—Apply to Madame DE LAUNAY, 69, Avenue de Segur. c437

PORTISHEAD.—Miss Gay wishes to recommend this home, having spent three weeks most pleasantly, and derived great benefit from the pure air. Every comfort, with delightful scenery.—Proprietress, Miss BLASLOCK, Bellevue. c1575

PLYMOUTH Y.W.C.A., 18, Lockyer-street. Seaside and holiday home for governesses, business employees, and Christian workers. Board and lodging, 12s. 6d. to £1 weekly. Permanent boarders from 10s. 6d.—Apply SUPERINTENDENT. c1533

ROTHESAY, SCOTLAND. — House of Rest and Hydropathic. A resort for Christians. Finely situated. Overlooking the sea. Terms, board, lodging, attendance (inclusive), 27s. 6d. to 35s. per week.—Prospectus from C. CAMPBELL, Proprietor. c220

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Boarding Establishment, Mellora House, 20 and 21, Carisbrooke-road. Conducted by the Widow of the late Rev. F. WAGSTAFF and Mrs. LOCKE. Good table. Home comforts. Terms moderate. Near sea, gardens, and rail. 134

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—To let, newly furnished, for one to three months, three reception, five bed rooms, bathroom. Garden back and front. Near rail and sea.—Apply NORMANSTON, Cloudesley-road. c1503

SOUTH KENSINGTON.—Short distance Rev. Webb-Peploe's ministry. Unfurnished apartments. Four rooms, bath (hot and cold), kitchen, and basement offices. First-class house. 50 guineas yearly.—Letters for appointment, ARCHITECT, 9, Clyde-street. c1522

SOUTHSEA.—Furnished apartments near the sea. Good neighbourhood. Two sitting-rooms, with two or three bedrooms, or less rooms if required. Terms moderate.—Miss PILCHER, Falfourd House, Elm-grove. c1580

SHEERNESS-ON-SEA.—Bed-sitting-room suitable for married couple. Christian people preferred. Terms very moderate.—Mrs. WORTH, 89, Alma-road, Sheerness. c1541

SALTBURN-BY-THE-SEA.—Yorkshire coast. Quiet home for a few Christians. Near trine baths. Bracing air, woodland walks. Terms for board and lodging, 25s. per week.—Mrs. HOLDERNESS, Station-square. c1476

TORQUAY.—Cheerful, comfortable home for holidays or permanency. Gambleville, St. Mary Church-road (Y.W.C.A.). Terms for board and lodging, 10s., 12s. 6d., 15s. per week, 2s., 3s., 4s. per night, according to room.—SECRETARY, Miss Jessie Coombs, Leigh Court, Torquay. c57

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—Home of Rest for Ladies, Fulbeck House, Lime-hill-road. Recommended by Miss Annie Macpherson. Terms from 25s.—Miss WOODFALL or Miss MARION BOGUE, 9, Mount Ephraim-road, Tunbridge Wells. c68

WORTHING.—Home of Rest for Ladies and Gentlemen, close to, but not facing sea. Every comfort. Liberal table. Terms £1 5s. to £2 2s.—LADY SUPERINTENDENT, Rutherford Lodge, Worthing. c1505

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—To be let, furnished, very near the sea, for six or eight weeks during the summer, a commodious and comfortably furnished house.—G., 10, Claremont-crescent. c1466

NERVOUS AFFECTIONS.

Private Establishment at the Seaside for Lady Patients suffering from Hysteria and Nervous Affections (not insane). The house is pleasantly situated in its own grounds, in a well-known health resort. Christian influence and home comforts. Massage, Baths, and Electrical treatment carried out under a Medical Specialist of many years' experience. Highest reference. Letters and Telegrams—Proprietor, CLEVEDON, SOMERSET. c381

WIMBLEDON COMMON.—A delightful suburb. To let, furnished, for two months, excellent detached house, near common. Bath and every convenience. Good garden. £4 4s. weekly.—S. S., St. Minver, Wimbledon, S.W. c1464

WESTON-SUPER MARE. — Home for invalids and the lonely. Board and residence, with the kind and loving care of a Christian lady. Delightfully pleasant, quiet and central.—WAYNFLETE, Victoria-quadrant. c1485

GREAT YARMOUTH.—Apartments at moderate terms, comfortable, close to Aquarium and Britannia Pier.—Mrs. CANN, Ferndale House, Princes-road. c1463

INTEMPERANCE and Nervous Debility.—A Private Home at the seaside (established in 1874), for ladies only, suffering from alcoholism, opium, morphia, chloral, or drugs; every care, judicious supervision, with home comforts and amusements. Highest references.—Address MEDICUS, care of Messrs. Tayler, 154, Fleet-street, London.

MISS HAYWARD, daughter of the late Rev. T. Hayward, of Rockford, offers board and residence to ladies and gentlemen in a quiet, pleasantly situated home near sea and cliffs. Terms upon application.—1, St. Vincent's-road, Southend, Essex. c1012

HAPPY SEASIDE HOME, with education. Girls and little boys. Terms 6s. weekly. Convalescent and invalid children 10s. weekly. Young ladies requiring rest from 12s. 6d. weekly.—SECRETARY, Albion-terrace, Ramsgate. c238

A LADY confidently recommends well-furnished apartments, with home comforts, good cooking, and attendance, at 120, Marina, St. Leonards-on-Sea. Quiet Christian. Ladies or gentlemen. Permanency preferred. c1476

COUNTRY HOUSE.—Lease for sale. Good opening for Christian workers. Three sitting-rooms, study, and usual domestic offices. Six bedrooms (one small), handsomely-fitted bath-room and lavatory, with hot and cold water. Stable, coach, cow and hen houses, harness-room and two piggeries. Nice garden, lawns, greenhouse, also paddock. Near station, post-office, church, and mission hall. Premium £200. Rent £65.—Apply, by letter, ROSE BANK, Longford, Sevenoaks.

HOUSE, 10 rooms, for sale, with or without furniture. Hot and cold bath with shower. Lease 57½ years. Near Conference Hall and station.—Apply, on premises, 44, Poet's-road, Canonbury. c15?5

SUPERIOR FEMALE SERVANTS and young ladies in business will find clean, comfortable lodgings, at 1, Sydney-street, Fulham-road, S.W. 3s. 6d., 4s. per week. 1s. per night. Free registry. c1563

A HAPPY HOME with young married people in a country house, pleasantly situated, is offered to a companionable young lady who would give a little assistance in the house. One who could pay a little towards her board preferred. Horse and trap kept.—Mrs. CLARKE, Park House, Eynsford, Kent. c1578

COMFORTABLE HOME for one or two gentlemen. Large front bedroom, two beds, use sitting-room. Breakfasts, teas, full board Sundays, 11s. 6d. each. Easy access City, West-end &c., 150, St. John's-road, Hornsey-rise, N. c1546

COMFORTABLE HOME offered two ladies or gentlemen in pleasant country vicarage. One hour's ride from Keswick and other lakes also near sea, railway station.—VICARAGE, Great Broughton, Cockermouth, Carlisle. c1468

HOME FOR CHRISTIAN LADIES.—Temporary or permanent. Very comfortable. Conveniently situated for train and omnibus.—For terms, address, enclosing stamp, Miss LANKESTER, St. Bernard, 41, Beresford-rd., Mildmay, London, N. c1528

COMFORTABLE HOME for governesses and other ladies. Close to West Brighton Station. Terms 15s. to £1 a week.—Apply to Miss BATCHELOR, 15, Goldstone-villas, West Brighton. c1516

MOST COMFORTABLE HOME OFFERED in Christian family. Convenient for City. No children. Piano. Lady or gentleman. Terms moderate.—ALPHA, 2, Warwick-terrace South, Upper Clapton. c1584

SUPERIOR CHRISTIAN HOME.—Bath, hot and cold. Partial board, full Sunday. 14s. weekly, inclusive. Five minutes' walk from Stoke Newington Station. Suit friends.—SPES BONA, Forburg-road, Upper Clapton. c1531

SEASIDE HOLIDAYS.—Superior and select boarding-house on sea-front. Fine views of English Channel. Good country. Nice walks. Christian society. One guinea weekly till August. —Address PRINCIPAL, Caswell, Lancing-on-Sea, Sussex.

A WIDOW LADY, living in large house in healthy village in Devonshire, would be glad to meet with a lady who would like to share it with her.—E. C., 1561, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C. c1561

INVALID BLIND LADY seeks temporary home (near London) with one or two Christian gentlewomen who could give her kind personal care and companionship. Reading aloud, &c. Quiet household and neighbourhood essential. Terms 35s. weekly.—DELTA, Lett's Library, Crouch-hill, N. c1514

A COMFORTABLE CHRISTIAN HOME for one or two elderly female invalids with small means. Would be kindly and well cared for. With good references.—E. M., 30, Parollis-road, St. John's-road, Highgate. c1515

TO LET, furnished, pleasant, airy sitting-room, large bedroom, with extra bedroom. Good neighbourhood. Near station and church. No children. Terms moderate. Mrs. MASLEN, 125, Alexandra-road, Wimbledon, S.W. c1568

LADY WISHES TO BOARD about two months, with family, where only two or three boarders are received. Terms moderate. Bracing seaside place.—M. K., 405, Mile-end-road, London. c1495

GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT.—Chronic Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Paralysis, Nervous Affections, &c., successfully treated. Special cases received into the establishment. Particulars free. Established 40 years.—RICHARDSON and WILKINSON, Volta House, Buxton, Derbyshire. c1569

A LADY recommends very comfortably furnished bed and sitting rooms, for single gentleman. Two minutes from Clapham-junction, tram, and omnibus. No children.—A. M., 4, Beauchamp-road, Clapham, S.W. c1495

COUNTRY APARTMENTS.—Beautifully situated; woodland walks and drives; bracing air; healthy neighbourhood. In the house of a Christian. Clean and comfortable.—M. A., Providence Cottage, Woodford-bridge, Essex. c15?9

Miscellaneous.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.

9d. for each Additional 9 Words.

Displayed Advertisements according to space.

ANXIOUS INQUIRERS.—A Christian will gladly correspond with any earnest seeker after Divine truth.—EVANGELIST, Clapham, S.W. 2 Cor. v. 20.

NOTICE. Lindsey and Son's Trusses, Elastic Stockings, and Belts.—Best house for all kinds of surgical bandages. A female attendant. Price list post free.—32, Ludgate-hill, and 40, Grace-church-street, London; and 8, Broad-street, Oxford. Established 1850.

SINGLE DAHLIAS, all colours, æsthetic and beautiful. Grand in beds and borders, indispensable for cutting. 6 strong plants 1s., free.—N. RAYNER, Avenue, Southampton.

LOVELY CLIMBERS for window, greenhouse, or outdoors; Lophospermum, deep rose; Thunbergia, buff, dark eye; Maurandya, purple; ditto, pure white. 4 for 1s., free.—RAYNER, as above.

THE CLIMBING MAIDEN HAIR (Adiumia cirrhosa), exquisite pale-green, finely-divided foliage, clusters of flesh-coloured, heath-like flowers, runs rapidly up stakes or trellis, in pot or open ground. 3 for 1s., free.—RAYNER, as above.

A BEAUTIFUL HARDY CLIMBER.—American Bellbind, grows 20 feet in a season, festoons balconies, &c., covered enormous rose-pink trumpet-shaped blossoms all summer. Two good plants, 1s., free.—RAYNER, as above (10th season). 1467

FOR SALE, An iron room, secondhand, suitable for Mission Hall. Size, thirty-six feet by twenty.—"Owner," 29, Beaconsfield-villas, Brighton. c1506

STRONG TANNED STRING GARDEN NETTING. For fruit, fennis, 1, 2, 3, 4 yards wide. 1d. square yard; 100, 8s.; 300, 21s. Excellent measure. Terms cash.—SCINCOX, 4, Clive-place, Penarth. c1465

AMERICAN ORGAN.—Magnificent genuine £56 organ, new. Very powerful. Six sets reeds, fifteen stops, grand organ couplers. Immediate cash, £17 10s. Approval. Maker's warranty. Illustration sent.—FAIREY, 96, Wynford-road, Islington, London. c1529

SHEFFIELD CUTLERY and electro-plate, for hotel and domestic use, wedding gifts, presentations, &c. Buy direct from the great centre of production. Large illustrated catalogue, post free.—J. G. GRAVES, Surrey House, Sheffield. c514

KNITTED SILK SHAWLS. — Orders wanted for the above. Finest quality price 1 guinea, size 45 inches square, exclusive of fringe. Second quality a little smaller, price 10s. 6d. (postage extra) to be had in the following colours:—White, Black, Cream, Gold, French Grey, Cardinal, Sky, Grenat.—ESTHER KERR, 14, Abbey-street, Paisley, N.B. c1387

FRESH BUTTER, in 2, 3, 4, 6, and 8lb. case, at 1s. 3d. per lb., postage free.—Apply to M. H., Ballintuber Dairy, Carrigtwohill, Co. Cork. c979

DAINTREE & CO., DYERS,

The LARGEST WORKS IN LONDON for Dyeing and Cleaning in every Branch. 95, Mount-street, Grosvenor-square, W.; 365, Southwark-park-road, S.E.; 44, Leicester-square, W.C. Carts Collect and Deliver to all parts.—PRICE LISTS BY POST. LONDON.

BAGSTER'S BIBLES.

FROM 3s. 6d.

SAMUEL BAGSTER & SONS LIMITED, 15, PATERNOSTER-ROW, LONDON.

PORTABLE HARMONIUMS from 7[illegible] Organs from 85s.—The late Mr. Gawin Kirkham, Secretary of the Open-Air Mission, wrote:—"I can speak from experience of the excellency of your instruments."—CHAS. YOUNG, 21, High-street, Kingsland, London.

AMERICAN ORGANS AND HARMONIUMS. 5-octave harmoniums, £3 17s. 6d. Organs from £5 5s. Karn and Smith organs at reduced prices. Warranted 5 years.—CHARLES L. YOUNG, 21, High-street, Kingsland.

ASTHMA. — Persons suffering from Asthma, difficulty of breathing, &c., are invited to try (free of charge) a Remedy for affording immediate relief.—C., Mr. G. A. Keyworth, Hastings. c1344

ELLISON'S

WHEN HOUSE CLEANING.

A few drops of "Carboline" should be put in the water. It destroys all insect pests, and at the same time prevents infectious diseases.

Sold by all Chemists 6d. and 1s. per bott Sample bottle post fr 8 or 14 stamps, from t sole maker.

HENRY ELLISON F.C.S., The Disinfectants' Chemic Works, CLECKHEATON. Special Agents Wante

CARBOLINE

A MARVELLOUS REMEDY.

SELLERS' EUPEPTIC LIVER PILLS.

A New Method of Curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Constipation, &c.

SELDOM FAILS IN THE WORST CASES.

In Boxes 1/1½ & 2/9, post free, from the Maker,

J. SELLERS,

57, FARRINGDON ROAD, LONDON,

And of all Chemists.

COUNT MATTEI'S REMEDIES

The Electro-Homœopathic Remedies discovered by Count Cæsar Mattei, of Bologna, Italy, extracted from non-poisonous plants, may be obtained of Mr. MARRIOTT, 2, Hillside, Crouch-hill, London, N., filling in replies to consultation form, which will be forwarded on application (with stamped envelope), a prescription can be sent, with the necessary Remedies, by post.

DR. LAHMANN'S COTTON-WOOL UNDERCLOTHING

PURE. NON-SHRINKABLE. NON-IRRITATING.

PATTERNS POST FREE FROM THE LAHMANN AGENCY, 15 FORE ST. E.C.

NERVOUS, FUNCTIONAL, MUSCULAR, Heart, Chest, Debility, Paralysis, Exhaustion, Overtaxed Energies or Brain, Defective Circulation, Cold Feet, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, &c., cured by BENNETT'S IMPROVED MAGNETO-ELECTRIC VESTS, BELTS, SPINE, LIMB VITALISERS, SOLES, &c., always imparting energy. Not known to fail. Frequent letters from sufferers prove their surpassing efficacy, economy. Batteries all Currents. Count Mattei's very effective Electro-Homœopathic Treatment. Information gratis.—BENNETT, Medical Electrician, Penley's-grove, York. c34

NEAVE'S FOOD.

BEST AND CHEAPEST

IN PATENT AIR-TIGHT TINS.

2½ PEACH & SON'S LACE CURTAINS

DIRECT FROM THE LOOMS CARRIAGE F

"POPULAR PARCEL" FOR 1892 (N

CARRIAGE PAID. LOT No. 259.

Containing 1 pair of elegant Drawing-room C tains, exquisite fine floral sprays, superb des 4 yds long and about two wide, taped edges; handsome Dining-room Curtains, rich design real lace, 3½ yds. long, 56 in. wide, taped edg pair Breakfast-room Curtains, 3 yds. long, wide, taped edges, fern border, gracefully toned centre; 1 pair of beautiful Bedroom tains, 3 yds. long and about 45 in. wide; 12 white washing Lace; 1 Lady's Handkerchief edging of lace; 2 Lace D'Oyleys; 6 yds. ma cent Point D'Alençon Lace; 1 of Peach's Pa teted Roller Blinds," with valance attached, away with every Popular Parcel.

THIS PARCEL IS REALLY A GIFT TO LADIES AT THE SUM OF 2

These Popular Parcels are known all over world for their marvellous value. The Cur are the latest patterns for 1892. May be ha Ecru if desired. Money returned if not appr 1892 Prize List of Lace Curtains, Black Silk F ings and Laces, &c., post free on applic P.O.O's and Cheques payable to S. PEACH & S Lister Gate, Nottingham. Established 1857.

Umbrellas Re-covered from 2s. each.
IF YOUR UMBRELLA WANTS RE-COVERING send it by Parcels Post (with Postal Order enclosed) to STRONG BROS., Umbrella Makers, Redhill, Surrey, who will re-cover it and return it as good as new by next post, carriage paid. Good strong twill, ladies' 2s., gents', 2s. 6d.; good alpaca, ladies', 3s., gents', 3s. 6d.; strong durable silk, ladies', 4s. 6d., gents, 5s. Patterns post free. Reference kindly permitted to Rev. F. Littie, Redhill.
A sample New Umbrella at wholesale price. List free.

IDEAL WOOL UNDERCLOTHING.—The CELEBRATED CASTLE DONINGTON QUALITY, highly recommended by the MEDICAL PROFESSION for Winter and Summer Wear, made of PUREST and SOFTEST NATURAL and WHITE Wools of ENGLISH MANUFACTURE, at REASONABLE PRICES. Every description of garment for Ladies, Gentlemen, and Children. A descriptive CATALOGUE and PATTERNS of WEBBINGS (free by post). Should be in the hands of every Lady and Gentleman who values HEALTH, freedom from CHILL, and PERFECT COMFORT.—HYGIENIC HOSIERY MILLS, CASTLE DONINGTON, VIA DERBY.

HILL'S PRINCES' RETREAT,
BUCKHURST HILL, EPPING FOREST.
A Beautiful Secluded Spot.
W. HILL can contract for School Treats at moderate rates. Shelter for 700. Plenty of Amusements. Trains every 15 minutes. Testimonials from Mr. Harrington, Mile End. c1243

TENTS of EVERY DESCRIPTION on sale or hire. Good secondhand marquees at low prices, to clear previous to removal to new premises.—J. H. BROWN, Railway Arches, Burdett-road, E. c441

LADIES OR GENTLEMEN wanted, to obtain orders from friends, &c., for choice Teas at moderate prices. Liberal payment. Strictest confidence. Little trouble.—S. J., Shelley's Advertising Offices, 38, Gracechurch-street, E.C. c1527

LAUNDRY GLAZING SECRET.—Cuffs, collars, and fronts like white china. Nothing used in the starch. No polishing irons. Particulars free.—LAUNDRY, 124, Liscard, Birkenhead. c1545

WANTED, TO PLACE the daughter of a poor gentlewoman suffering from hysteria in a mild form, requiring medical supervision; is clever at her needle and dressmaking. Will any Christian help?—Highest references.—C1544, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C. c1544

FANCY WORK.—DORINDA'S BOOK. Needlework for Ladies for Pleasure and Profit. Useful Needlework. Fancy Art Work. Knitting, Crochet, Articles for Bazaars and Presents. How profitably to dispose of Work. New List of Work Societies, and List of Annual Amateur Art Work Exhibitions. Price 2s. together.
RINGROSE, Malvern Link. [c1494

WASHING WANTED by experienced Christian laundress. Highly recommended. Every convenience. Splendid open drying ground. Plenty of water. No chemicals. Punctual delivery.—Mrs. BROWN, 15, Salisbury-villas, Seaford-road, Stamford-hill. c1432

Publications.

GOSPEL TRACTS at very cheap rates, suitable for broadcast distribution, advertising mission and other services, &c. Supplied at inclusive rates. Carriage paid. Specimen packets sent post free to any Christian worker.
PENMAN and Co., 83, Furnival-st., London E.C.

MRS. GRIMKE'S TEXT CARDS.—Send to Wellington House, Ilfiher Broughton, Manchester for New List. Cheapest English, 1s. 6d. 100; foreign per 100; or to.
E. KAUFMANN, 30, Paternoster-square.
OUR INHERITANCE: Thoughts on the Book of Revelation, 2s., from Mrs. Grimke, as above.

THE BRIXTON PULPIT.—Sermons by the Rev. Marcus Rainsford, Jun., M.A., will be published every Friday, price 1d. Yearly subscription, 6s., post free. Specimen copy free.—WALTER SCOTT and SONS, 512, Brixton-road, London. c1501

FOREIGN GOSPEL TRACTS (sixteen languages) offered to missionaries and other Christian workers by Evangelical Tract Society.—Write (enclosing freewill offering, if able) to Mr. ROBERTS, 26, Paternoster-row, London. c516

FOR THE DISSEMINATION OF SCRIPTURE TRUTH AMONG THE UNLEARNED.—Buy and distribute the two following Books, 1d. each, 1s. per dozen, post free:—"The Bible—how it was Compiled." (201th Thousand.) "The Bible—its seeming Difficulties."—HOLNESS, 14, Paternoster-row, and all Booksellers.

Second Edition. One Penny.
THE COMING CRISIS.
Is Mr. Gladstone the Foe of Protestantism and the Friend of Popery?
By A. WATCHMAN.
London: HOULSTON and SONS, Paternoster-sq. c1309

ONE HUNDRED ANSWERS TO INFIDEL OBJECTIONS. By W. R. BRADLAUGH. With complete indices of subjects and texts. Over five hundred difficult portions of Scripture referred to or harmonised, 1s.; or handsomely bound in cloth, gilt lettered, 2s.—JOHN SNOW and Co., 2, Ivy-lane, Paternoster-row, London, and all book sellers. c2 5

Just published, paper cover, price 6d.
GEMS OF SACRED TRUTH.
By H. M. L.
JAMES NISBET & Co., 21, Berners Street, W. c505

"DEVOTIONAL" SERIES of Booklets. By Rev. F. C. Spurr (mission preacher). Eight varieties. Thoroughly teach Scriptural Holiness. 6d. per dozen, 2s. 6d. per 100.
PENMAN & Co., Furnival-street, London, E.C.

THE CHEAPEST SHILLING BIBLE.
SEND FOR SAMPLE TO
TRINITARIAN BIBLE SOCIETY,
7, ST. PAUL'S CHURCHYARD, LONDON.
Ruby type, round corners, red and gold edges, six coloured maps, bound in leather, 1s. net; post free, 1s. 3d. c520

"GIVE THE CHILD A CHANCE!"
By G. E. MORGAN, M.A.
A Neat Illustrated four-page Card addressed to Parents who send their Children to the public-house to "Fetch the Beer."
A useful adjunct to Evangelistic and Temperance Work.
"Give the Child a Chance."
PRESS NOTICES:—
"Short and to the point."—Footsteps of Truth.
"Deserves a wide circulation."—The Rock.
"Nothing better could be found for the purpose."—The News.
"Should be scattered in thousands amongst the homes of English working people."—Christian Worker.
"An excellent booklet, which should be scattered broadcast throughout the land."—The Christian Church.
"Armed with this little weapon anybody can lead an attack on parents who send little folk for drink."—Cumbridgeshire Congregational Magazine.
"A kindly-worded remonstrance against the practice of turning children into drink-bearers. The idea is excellent and as the card is illustrated, it is very likely to be carefully noted by parents."—Alliance News.
"A most effective four-page card, which may certainly be described as meeting a long-felt want. . . The matter is admirably condensed, the card is attractive, and temperance workers would do well to secure a supply to put into the hands of children when observed going to the public-house."—Temperance Record.
2s. per 100 (2s. 3d. post free); 50 for 1s. (post free 1s. 2d.); 12s. 6d. per 1,000. May be Localised.
Or through any Bookseller.
London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C.

WORKS BY REV. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

THE LIFE AND LIGHT OF MEN. 5th Thousand.
EXPOSITIONS OF JOHN I.—XII. Cloth, 2s. 6d.
Presentation Edition: Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.
A Review from THE CONGREGATIONAL MAGAZINE:—
"These Expositions are delightful reading. To be at home with John is our earnest ambition, and we gratefully welcome any helps of mind and heart in this direction. Mr. Meyer in this work affords both light to the mind and stimulus to the heart. Whoever would understand the vital force and practical bearings of John's Gospel would do well to procure this series of studies."

"TRIED BY FIRE." 10th Thousand.
EXPOSITIONS OF THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PETER.
Cloth, 2s. 6d.
Presentation Edition: Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.
A Review from THE BRITISH WEEKLY:—
"The popularity of Mr. Meyer's Expositions is a good sign of the times. This, on the First Epistle of Peter, is one of the best, and is full of tender Christian wisdom. There are many unobtrusive signs of thought and culture throughout; but the chief charm of the book is its earnest simplicity."

Scripture Biographies.

ABRAHAM: 13th Thousand.
OR, THE OBEDIENCE OF FAITH.
With Nine Original Illustrations.
Cloth, 2s. 6d.
Presentation Edition: Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.
A Review from THE SUNDAY SCHOOL CHRONICLE:—
"Beautifully illustrated, and so tastefully bound as to be a most acceptable gift-book. But the contents are such that no Christian can rise from their perusal without feeling consciously strengthened of God, and inspired afresh for a godly life. Sunday school teachers may learn from it how to draw out the spiritual lessons of the Sacred Word."

JOSEPH: 8th Thousand.
BELOVED—HATED—EXALTED.
With Nine Original Illustrations.
Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.
Presentation Edition: Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.
A Review from THE PREACHERS' MAGAZINE:—
"The great charm of this very beautiful monograph is its clear setting forth of the way in which the life of Joseph mirrors, to use the author's own phrase, the life of Jesus. This idea is not at all unduly pressed, but it runs through the volume, and adds immensely to its homiletic and devotional value."

ISRAEL: 17th Thousand.
A PRINCE WITH GOD.
With Nine Original Illustrations.
Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.
Presentation Edition: Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges 3s. 6d.
A Review from THE SWORD AND TROWEL:—
"Exceedingly good. Not only spiritual, as everything from our brother Mr. MEYER would be, but also thoughtful, fresh, suggestive, and thoroughly practical. Oh, that hundreds of our younger men gave signs of such real godliness, such true devotion, and such clear knowledge of the Gospel as we see in the author!"

ELIJAH: 20th Thousand.
AND THE SECRET OF HIS POWER.
With Nine Original Illustrations.
Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.
Presentation Edition: Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.
A Review from CHRISTIAN PROGRESS:—
"Full of devout reflection, stimulating thought and most helpful instruction—all tending to lead up to a holier and more consecrated walk with God. This, in every sense of the word, is a helpful book; and we must cordially recommend it to all who desire to go forward and higher in their Christian life."

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C. And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

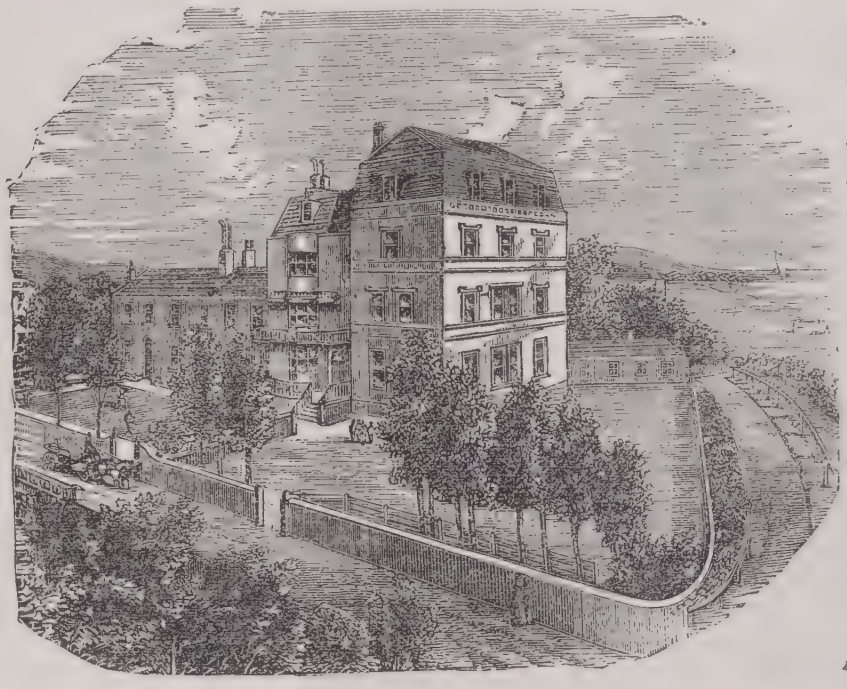
NEW PACKETS OF TRACTS.
19TH MILLION.
GOSPEL LEAVES. By CHEYNE BRADY.
Packet 6. 100 Illustrated 2pp. Tracts. 6d. per Packet.
"Mr. Brady is quite to our heart. He is direct as a dart, clear as a sunbeam, and brief as an angel's visit. Earnestness throbs in every line, and withal a power of keen thrusting too seldom possessed. He knows the sins and sorrows of the human heart, and the Saviour who can work their cure—and, in addition, can plainly point the burdened spirit to the peace-giving Christ."
—REV. C. H. SPURGEON.
ILLUSTRATED GOSPEL TRACTS. By Rev. P. B. POWER, M.A. Packet of 4pp., 6d. Packet of 8pp., 6d.
WHOLE AND SOLE. By Rev. P. B. POWER, M.A. 32pp. Booklet 1s. per dozen.
DRUMMOND'S TRACT DEPOT, STIRLING.
LONDON: S. W. PARTRIDGE and CO.

GUILDFORD CONVENTION,
JUNE 27 TO JULY 2.
Speakers:
Rev. A. E. BARNES-LAWRENCE,
Rev. J. B. FIGGIS,
Rev. J. J. LUCE, Rev. W. HASLAM,
Rev. EVAN H. HOPKINS,
Rev. F. B. MEYER, Rev. C. G. MOORE,
Mr. DUDLEY KIDD (Cape General Mission),
Convener: Rev. F. PAYNTER.
Honorary Secretary:
COLONEL BROWN, Albuhera, Guildford;
To whom application should be made for Convention Papers and Apartments during the Convention.

Guy's Tonic cures Indigestion.

If you suffer from any form of Indigestion, or its resultant evil, Nervousness, Guy's Tonic will heal the frailty of your stomach, and make every meal an hour of pleasure. By its aid you can enjoy the blessings which follow good digestion.

Every Chemist has it—good reports come to us from all sides, sent voluntarily by grateful friends who have proved its value.



When will you begin to let it help you?

Strongly bound in Cloth, 757 Pages.
MORGAN & SCOTT'S UNABRIDGED
CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE 3/6
TO THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS.
PORTABLE EDITION.
The special feature of this Edition, in addition to its extreme cheapness, is the New Translation of Proper Names in the Old and New Testaments by a competent scholar. The new renderings of the proper names are NOT CONTAINED IN ANY OTHER EDITION OF CRUDEN. This portion of the book is therefore STRICTLY COPYRIGHT.
London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

NORTH-EAST LONDON GOSPEL MISSIONS.

DROOPING TOILERS AND FAILING CHILDREN.

FAR away from the music of the brooklet and the waving willows—the star-spangled meadow and the breezy downs, with the blue waves yonder playing upon the beach, where nestling amongst the shady trees close by is our large well-favoured "Holiday Homes of Rest"—far away from these happy sights and sounds here in East London we are daily meeting with the wan face, already careworn in infancy, of the tender children, and the yet more weary mother trying to keep alive the smouldering embers of a precarious existence with a fast ebbing pulse and aching limbs, all too tired of the effort. Here they are found amidst surroundings most melancholy. Here indeed all is dark, the harp is broken and the poem of life unstrung.

But the very joy of joys is it to these weary ones to send their poor children away—and sometimes baby, mother and all—to listen to the music of the waves, and rest in the grassy mead. Could our readers watch them gather sunshine to make poetry for the days to come, and by the abundance of wholesome food and fresh air to lay up strength for what remains of the earthly journey, we should not plead in vain for our "Seaside Holiday Homes."

Nor is it other than a pleasure to tell how thoroughly the Christian Spirit is maintained and enjoyed, for we are assured there can be no true happiness without it. Many have told us they should never forget the lessons of faith and love they received at Lancing-on-Sea.

The sum of 5/- keeps a child a week, 10/- a mother and baby, £1 will keep two children at the seaside for a fortnight, £5 will do the same for ten. There is accommodation for 70 at a time.

Help is also kindly asked to give our 2000 Sunday and other scholars a day in the beautiful country, and provide them with necessary food.

Gladly saying that Mrs. F. A. BEVAN, 59, Princes Gate, South Kensington, S.W., has kindly promised to receive any contributions for the above, and would gladly give references from her personal knowledge of our work to any enquiring, or they may be sent to Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, Office of The Christian, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.; or to

WILLIAM CHORLEY (Director),
6, Clephane Rd., Canonbury, London, N.

F. A. BEVAN, Esq., Treasurer, 54, Lombard St., London, E.C.

Drafts should be crossed—BARCLAY, BEVAN, & CO., 54, Lombard Street, E.C., to whom contributions might be paid direct if preferred.
Hon. Auditors—Messrs. R. J. HILL, YELLACOTT, & Co., Chartered Accountants, 1, Finsbury Circus, E.C.

Special Appeal

FOR

DEPTFORD POOR BOYS.

For the past nine years we have been enabled to take a number of these poor boys, searched out of the poorest streets, for

A DAY IN THE COUNTRY

by Vans, and give them a GOOD DINNER and TEA. We hope this year, if funds permit, to send a FEW WEAKLY ONES for

A FORTNIGHT IN THE COUNTRY.

Contributions will be gladly received by Mr. H. A. PUNNETT, Cotton-road, Potter's Bar, Middlesex, or 73, Gosterwood-street, Deptford, S.E. c1475

HOME TEACHING SOCIETY FOR THE BLIND.

NEW CONTRIBUTIONS WILL BE THANKFULLY RECEIVED.
16 Blind Teachers and Guides itinerate with Moon's books daily in entire London.
60 Country Branches have been started by the Society.
Bankers: Barclay & Co., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.
Secretary: RALPH TAIT, 31, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C.

EAST LONDON HOSPITAL FOR CHILDREN,

GLAMIS ROAD, SHADWELL, E.

The ONLY HOSPITAL with a SPECIAL WARD FOR INFANTS ONLY.

Relies Entirely for its Support upon Christian and Public Benevolence.

OVER 281,400 PATIENTS HAVE BEEN TREATED.

The Board of Management feel confident that this APPEAL TO THE READERS OF "THE CHRISTIAN" will not be made in vain.

SAMUEL WHITFORD, Secretary.

The Christian.

☞ It is particularly requested that all letters relating business matters should be addressed to the firm, ssrs. Morgan & Scott, and not to individual members mmunications for The Christian should be addressed the Editor. Letters of a personal nature should in ry case be so marked.

All Advertisements for The Christian should be sent Messrs. John Haddon and Co., Central Advertising ices, Ecuverie House, Salisbury-square, London, E.C., companied by remittance. (For Terms, see Page 2.)

Notes and Comments.

NEXT week we purpose giving portrait and sketch of Dr. D. A. Moxey, of dinburgh.

Our readers will doubtless have noticed at the Mildmay Conference next week opens the Tuesday, and not on the Wednesday, in former years. The Communion service of course, on the afternoon of Thursday, e closing day.

Miss McLean, well known for her work in pan, and among the Japanese in the "Vil-ge" at South Kensington a few years ago, in etter to us with regard to the Zulu Exhibi-n at the Westminster Aquarium, says:—

Where is our much-vaunted civilization? Bull-hting, bear-baiting, and such-like shows are said be things of the barbarous past. Yet in this ertainment a party of newly-converted heathen ve been persuaded to exhibit the vicious and italising customs and dances of their savage state, l that actually with the sanction of a "Church nitary." We consent to their being spiritually l morally degraded if we do not speak out.

We regret that the printer's alteration of a ter from small to capital made an im-rtant change in the meaning of a phrase in Note on this subject last week. A "high urch dignitary" was inadvertently printed as High Church dignitary," giving to the ex-ession a complexion that was never in-nded.

None too early—for we have been far behind ntinental countries in the matter—the Home cretary has notified that, in his opinion, the ocesses carried on in the making of lucifer atches, except such as are made with red or norphous phosphorous, are injurious to alth, and, therefore, come within the pro-bitions of the Factory and Workshop Act. is action opens the door to the prevention practices which, for some time back, how-er profitable they may have been to manu-cturers and shareholders, have been very astrous to the workers.

The question of the alien pauper is rapidly suming an importance which by-and-by will im for it serious national consideration. ith so much keen poverty amongst our own pouring classes, it becomes doubtful how r we are wise or prudent in admitting year by ar an unchecked stream of pauperism to flow to these islands from foreign countries, and e matter will soon have to be looked at from other standpoint than that of sentiment. uring last month close on thirty-eight thou-nd foreigners of this class landed on these ores, with the idea of making a permanent ay, the total for the five months of this year ing 13,879, in addition to 58,938, who stated at they purposed going to America. What amount of competition this represents to r labouring poor it is not difficult to deter-ne.

Mr. Egmont Hake's book on "Suffering ndon" (3s. 6d. Scientific Press, 140, Strand) published at an opportune moment; for xt Sunday the attenders at London churches ll be invited to contribute to the funds of r metropolitan hospitals. If this most teresting volume could be read beforehand all church-goers, the totals of the collec-ns would, we think, be considerably in-creased. The knowledge of a single fact here stated ought of itself to quicken liberality—the fact that close on half a million of money is needed to meet the existing hospital expenditure of London, in addition to the "total reliable income."

Mr. Hake's review of suffering London is the outcome of independent examination, and is well worth the conscientious study of the Christian and the social economist. There are some points where every reader will not follow the author. For instance, while admitting that drink and other vices send many to the hospitals, he asserts that "poverty is by far the most potent of all causes of drunkenness and other vices." That seems to us a very debatable proposition. But whatever may be the ultimate sources of London's disease and suffering, these have to be relieved as far as possible, and on that ground our hospitals have a very heavy claim on the comfortable and well-to-do citizens of the metropolis.

One argument used by Mr. Hake may seem far-fetched and extreme, but nobody will deny the grim possibility of its validity:—

When in the daily papers we read that the intrigues and machinations of those conscienceless diplomates of the Eastern Empire, who still carry on their politics after the criminal manner of the Middle Ages, tend towards war, we should remember that the heat of the Eastern summer may generate from the neglected battlefields in Poland and Russia billions upon billions of bacteria destined to be wafted all over Europe and to reach our coast—and that our best self-defence, indeed our surest safeguard, against their ravages, is a liberal support of our hospitals.

There is an extremely interesting introduction by Walter Besant, giving a historical résumé of the rise and development of the hospital system in London. Altogether, this unpretentious but earnest book is one to be heartily commended.

A correspondence on "Preaching Conversion" is going forward in the columns of The Record. In last week's issue Rev. J. P. Sandlands, of Brigstock, wrote:—

How can a man who is not "justified" preach justification? How can a man who knows nothing of the Christian life preach sanctification? The thing is impossible...The great want of the age is Christian preachers. It is no use to expect that the Word of Life can be preached by those who are strangers to it. Living preachers preach the living Word. We must go a step further than this and say that we must have living writers to write about the living Word. And this is exactly what we do not seek! Who are the men that command our attention? Those who are eminent in piety and knowledge of spiritual truth? Alas! no, but those who are remarkable for their book lore.

Another correspondent, referring to the work in Lancaster of Rev. Robert Houseman, who early came under the influence of Charles Simeon, says:—

Mr. Houseman was noted for the number of converted persons in his congregation. One of the oldest members, being asked what was the secret of so many blessings on Mr. Houseman's ministry, said, "If you do not become converted you would not be able to continue; you must either be converted or leave." Few left; many were won to Christ. To this day the influence is felt.

There are some who will not see that the anti-opium movement is moral, philanthropic, and religious. Those who sympathise with the movement cannot be swayed by considerations of expediency or questions of revenue, which, however, are the very warp and woof of every defence of the demoralising traffic. The latest apology from India, which appeared in The Times on Tuesday last week, was by Mr. W. E. Hoare, Vice-Principal of the Wesleyan Mission College, Royapettah, Madras. The writer does not claim to be an authority on the subject, but seems to have concluded, after visiting a few "dens" in Madras, that his individual judgment, somewhat extravagantly expressed, should weigh against the calm condemnation, many times repeated, of missionaries and others who have seen the vice and its fruits in all the infected lands of the East!

On Monday last The Times seconded Mr. Hoare's defence in a long article. It says that missionaries as a class "are practically pledged before entering their profession to anti-opium views and theories." In our opinion, the Government officials who are engaged in regulating the traffic are not superior witnesses, seeing (to employ The Times language regarding missionaries) "their faculty for an impartial consideration is impaired from the outset." Our contemporary does not attempt to go to the heart of the subject—does not view it from the moral standpoint as the much-abused "agitators" view both the opium traffic in India and the drink traffic at home. With a cloud of witnesses to the effect that the drug is physically degrading and spiritually ruinous, we hold the traffic to be one which all Christian men should not only denounce, but do all in their power to suppress as an agent of evil among the millions of Asia for whom Christ died.

Rev. W. St. Clair Tisdall began in last week's Record a series of very instructive papers on the conversion of the Mohammedan world. Having shown the essentially Anti-Christian character of Islam, he asks:—

Can anything justify us as Christ's followers in neglecting, as we are now doing, to preach the Gospel to the Mohammedan world? And if we are still inclined to neglect the Moslems, are we not being driven by the progress of their faith, e.g., in Africa, and also by the fact that wherever it exists it places a bar in the way of our missionary efforts for the benefit of the heathen, to decide whether we shall strive for the conversion of Mohammedans or desist from preaching the Gospel wherever the Arabian slave trader (as in Africa) or the licentious Mohammedan (as in India) is likely to meet us in the field? As Englishmen, as Christians, it is morally impossible to adopt the latter alternative. There is, therefore, no course before us but to do our duty, and to gird ourselves for the task which our Master has imposed upon us—that of undertaking and accomplishing the spiritual conquest for Christ of the whole Mohammedan world.

The British East Africa Company has, we regret to learn, decided to abandon Uganda. Past history shows that effective work for God may be done in that part of the Dark Continent without Imperial protection; but, unfortunately, the various institutions which devoted missionaries have established are now threatened by men who are at once jealous of Gospel light and hostile to British influence. The actual circumstances are such as invest the Company's determination with a grave importance. In an instructive article on Monday last, The Times said:

Immediately after Mr. Stanley, fifteen years ago, wrote home pointing out what a splendid field for missionary enterprise was to be found in Uganda, the Church Missionary Society lost no time in sending out pioneers. After the Protestants had been at work for some time, the Roman Catholics invaded their field. From the first these French missionaries aimed at monopolising supreme power in Uganda, to the exclusion, not only of their Protestant rivals, but of British influence entirely. There is evidence enough that Cardinal Lavigerie and his friends did their utmost to attain this end, whether on behalf of France or on behalf of "the Church" does not matter.

It is also beyond doubt that the Roman Catholic priests are at the bottom of these troubles. Their letters are full of incriminating evidence, and their public conduct unscrupulous in the extreme. Mwanga, the "mighty Christian sovereign" of whom (R.C.) Bishop Hirth speaks with quite a paternal interest, is one whose character has been more correctly estimated by Major Casati. Though himself a Romanist, this well-known explorer describes the son and successor of Mtesa thus:—

A despotic monarch, cruel, and of vile habits, the enemy of all good, and hostile to foreigners, he did not hesitate to commit any enormity.

The murderer of Hannington, the ferocious persecutor of Christians, the Nero of Uganda, was pompously christened at the Catholic Mission, and, if not praised, was certainly protected and forgiven.

Another Jesuit on the spot has explained recent occurrences by saying that the opportunity was embraced of "spreading Catholicism and spurring on the religious zeal of the Catholic chiefs. I shall endeavour to instil new courage into the Catholic army."

It would therefore seem that there are in Uganda enemies of Britain as well as the Gospel. Should the Government deem it their duty to assert imperial power, we trust it will be in such a way as shall conduce to the speedy furtherance of mission work in the entire region.

Common-sense Criticism.

John Locke speaks of "roundabout common-sense." And in his recent Merchants' Lectures, now published in pamphlet form, Rev. Edward White appeals from the vandalism of modern criticism to the average common-sense of Christian people. There is great force in his statement of his case, which gains strength from the fact that it emanates from one who, during the course of a long life, has followed the course of modern Biblical criticism with keen interest, and has belonged to the school of the progressive parts of Scripture interpretation. After showing that it is the characteristic of the Bible that it consists so largely of interesting and inimitable biographies, all of which are viewed in the light of their relation to the one living God, Mr. White goes on to deal with the contentions of Dr. Cheyne and others.

Some of their conclusions may be thus summarised, and are, indeed, startling. That the lives of the patriarchs are the inventions of post-exilic writers, draping the shadowy traditions of the past into life-likeness; that David wrote but a few fragments of the Psalms, the Psalter being due to the age of the Macedonian kings and the Maccabees; that the latter half of Isaiah must be attributed to some anonymous and unknown prophet who lived after the return from Babylon, and who witnessed the return which he professes to predict; that the book of Daniel was the product of an unknown pretender to his name, living about two hundred years before the birth of our Lord.

Up to this time there has been a disposition to leave these questions to be decided by experts. The whole Christian world has ranged itself around the arena where doughty champions, heavily accoutred with the results of years of recondite research, engage in duel. David and Goliath have fought in the valley in full gaze of their respective parties, who have patiently awaited the issue. But Mr. White endeavours to carry the conflict to a wider arena, and to appeal to a more numerous constituency. He empanels all Christian people, and asserts that their literary and spiritual common-sense is competent to formulate and pronounce a verdict on these momentous questions, which have been too much reserved for the scholars and doctors. "There is a higher criticism than that which now is too boldly extolled as the most decisive; and this higher and common-sense faculty is possessed by multitudes who never read a line of Wellhausen's articles on the Old Testament, or knew a single word of the ancient languages."

These are some of the considerations addressed to Christian common-sense. If it is possible for the human mind to dress up the vague traditional figures of the past in such life-like dress that they appear like actual flesh and blood, how is it that there are not more such biographies produced? Why should those stories of human life stand by themselves amid the mass of human literature? Why should there not have been constant supplies of biographies like those of Genesis, of Psalms like those attributed to David, of Prophecies like those of Isaiah? If, indeed, the mind of man was competent, in those dreary days which followed the return from exile, to write fiction to read exactly like truth, surely it must have been possible for it to do so in the ages which have followed. And yet no one has been able to invent after this sort. Does not this go a long way to prove that the biographies of the Old Testament are not inventions, but, as we have always held, the transcription of facts?

"There is about them a truth of detail, a vividness of touch, an orderly perspective, a dramatic reality, an exactness of geographical reference, a variety of incident, a grand and archaic simplicity of style, an undertone of devout sympathy, yet an honest quietness of description, a total absence of flattery, or of rhetorical ornament; in a word, a combination of literary and spiritual qualities entirely beyond the reach of later fabulists, and which must have been derived from first-hand direct knowledge of facts, localities and persons."

There is a further line of argument on which the average Christian common-sense is able to formulate an opinion. Is it not simply extraordinary that there should have arisen a genius, or a school of geniuses, capable of producing some of the sublimest literature in the world, and yet remaining absolutely unknown? Take, for instance, those sublime outbursts of Isaiah. "There is nothing so tender, so sublime, so overwhelming, so transporting, so holy in its influences on the human soul, as the melodious bursts which fill the spacious pages of the second Isaiah (as the critics term him). And it is too large a demand on our faith to ask us to believe that so great a Prophet could live and die anonymously; or that survivors could find a name for him only in some preceding seer who had lived nearly two centuries before."

Wherever Isaiah's words are read they enkindle man's highest and holiest thoughts. Nay, when translated into the colder tongues of modern Europe, they still burn and glow. Milton in all the glory of his majestic prose and poetry cannot approach them. It is surely impossible to believe that the people of his time were unacquainted with his personality, and that they were content to class his writings with those of another who had lived a century and a-half before.

The common-sense of the average Christian Church may also be asked to pronounce on the question as to whether it is likely that the writings which have done most to perpetuate truth should have themselves been founded on fraud. We are told that most of David's history, notably his fight with Goliath, is visionary; that the Psalms did not emanate from his pen, though ascribed to him; that the priestly code of Leviticus had been only just written in Josiah's days when it was supposed to have been discovered; and though presented to the king as a long-buried treasure, was really only just compiled.

On their face, these speculations do not seem consistent with the evident sincerity and transparency with which the Scriptures meet the eye of the world. It is impossible to believe that David's experience did not furnish the occasions of the Psalms which bear his name; or that the earnest men who wrought with Ezra in the compilation of the Old Testament should have foisted their own work on the world under the names of men whose shoe-latchets they were not worthy to unloose. In our own time it is felony to place the silver hall-mark on electro-plated goods.

We say nothing here of the testimony of our Lord and the writers of the New Testament. This would open too wide a field. But we thank Mr. White for his fresh, careful, reverent, and interesting book, which ought to be largely distributed.

PORTSMOUTH RESCUE SOCIETY.—From the report just to hand we find that during the past year 142 young women have been dealt with in the Home, the vast majority of whom are now doing well. The midnight and other meetings were the means of awakening not a few to seek to escape from their sad life. The work might be greatly extended were the funds increased. There is at present a deficiency of £98. The hon. secretary is Commander B. H. Key, Downham, St. Edward's-road, Southsea.

THE GOSPEL TRUTH SOCIETY was formed at Stockton for the purpose of printing and posting on the boardings large blue and red Gospel texts and messages in order to reach the ironworkers, shipyard men, and others who never enter a place of worship, and who in such manner may be led to read and ponder the Word of God. The work is going on actively, and should help be forthcoming it is intended to extend the operations to the neighbouring towns and villages. The secretary is Mr. J. F. Pridham, Southfield-villas, Stockton-on-Tees.

THE GLASGOW BIBLE INSTITUTE.

It will be remembered that one of the closi acts of Mr. Moody in his recent visit to Glasg and the West of Scotland, was to propose t founding of a Training Institute for Christi workers, as an auxiliary to the ordinary past work of the churches. Since Mr. Moody l Scotland the project has made excellent pr gress in the hands of Mr. Campbell White, M J. Galloway, and Mr. J. S. Napier, who we appointed as a Committee of the Directorate the Glasgow United Evangelistic Association shape the arrangements. In their several mee ings the Committee conferred with Mr. Jol Anderson, of Ardrossan, whom Mr. Moody h recommended as the superintendent of the pr posed Institute. Mr. Anderson's hearty accep ance of the post is matter for sincere than fulness.

In a large undertaking of this kind, of cour ways and means are an important consideratio It is computed that the necessary building, wi the site, will cost £20,000; and the probab annual outlay is estimated to be close on £300 Mr. Campbell White, with his usual liberalit promises £10,000 towards the building fund, an £1000 annually towards expenses; while M Napier contributes £1000 to the building, an Mr. Galloway offers £100 yearly towards th maintenance of the institution. We cann doubt that these generous arrangements w stimulate the grace of giving in others, and th the Institute will be supplied with all the needf funds.

As to the useful part that such an Institu will play in the aggressive work of the churche we need scarcely do anything more than refer the interesting though brief account of t "Chicago Bible Institute" that appeared in o issue of last week. The following extract fro the printed proceedings of the Glasgow Com mittee gives a clear and succinct view of t proposesd scope of the new effort:—

"The work of the Institute will, in genera consist in training those attending it in th knowledge and use of the Bible, in addressi meetings, in aggressive evangelistic work, dealing with the various classes of beginner and in conducting the service of praise; th making the study and use of the Bible the chi work of the Institute. The institution is not be considered as in any way antagonistic to an existing theological colleges or institutions, b supplementary, and is to be worked in connectio and sympathy with the churches, the great en to be sought being the glory of God and t extension of his Kingdom on earth through t preaching of the Gospel."

The George Street Mission.

The report of this Lambeth Mission shows a qui earnest, useful work. It is stated that the "Gosp services have been very much appreciated by t people, as heretofore they are bright, cheerful mee ings with plenty of singing, just what the worki classes want. The attendance has been very e couraging. During the year thirty have profess Christ as their Saviour, some of them notab characters." The Gospel Temperance and oth services have proved fruitful; while the open-a work on the crowded Lambeth Walk has been mo encouraging.

The following is one of many similar cases:—F. had suffered much from the demon of drink, havi sold his home, even the bed and bedstead, and on o occasion took the works out of the clock and so them at the rag-shop, and brought him the price of pot of ale. He was induced to attend the Missio where he signed the pledge and soon after gave h heart to the Lord. He is no longer in rags, but dressed respectably and the testimony he bears the saving and keeping power of Christ is good listen to.

The various benevolent branches have been in f work during the trying winter, and have been t means of help and comfort to many destitute a suffering. Communications should be made to t Missionary, Mr. G. Goodman, 29, Prince's-squa S.E.

THE RHENISH MISSIONARY SOCIETY has h much blessing during the past year. Their missio aries have baptized 3543 converts from heathenis The stations in Cape Colony are now all self-suppo ing, and send contributions to the Society, th members amounting to 110,000. In Borneo a Sumatra two thousand have been baptized, and thousand are under instruction. The chiefs have great desire for salvation by Christ.

Richard Baxter Blanch

Louisen-strasse, 66. Elberfeld

Promises Fulfilled in China.

By CHARLES H. JUDD.

In the year 1866, a fellow-student in a Missionary Institute brought to me a little poem, the refrain of which I can never forget; it still rings in my ears,

"A million a month in China
Are dying without God."

It was too touching for me to hear the poem read to the end. Shortly afterwards I met with an extract from "China's Spiritual Needs and Claims," giving the population of each province in China, with the number of missionaries to each. When I read, "The Province of Ganhway 40,000,000, no missionary," I thought, Is it possible that Christians in England are aware that there is a province supposed to contain 40,000,000 of souls, and do not go to it? I went to my room, and kneeling down, cried, "Lord send me."

Not long afterwards, further light with regard to baptism necessitated a change from what was then my position, and I had no idea where I should find even a temporary home. I went to my room in some anxiety, and opening my Bible, the first words which met my eyes were "Consider the ravens." I felt that God had spoken, and his Word brought peace and rest. In three days I had to leave the place, but just then God opened a door for me, which has proved of great value to me for over the last twenty years.

At a farewell meeting held in Mare street, Hackney, in 1867, when five of us were leaving for China, a simple circumstance occurred which often proved a stay to our faith in after years. After several brethren had given us words of loving counsel, an elderly Christian brother stood up, and looking at us across the room, read aloud,

"MY GOD SHALL SUPPLY ALL YOUR NEED."

This he repeated several times, with such short expressions interspersed, as, "When you have no money in hand, my God shall supply all your need," "when no mails come in," "when you come into utmost perp'exity, my God shall supply all your need." In many instances of pressing need since that time has that dear old brother's face come vividly to mind, with his words still fresh: "My God shall supply all your need." And in proof thereof I now give a few instances of God's faithfulness to his loving promise.

After 112 days of unbroken sailing, save as our ship's rigging was sometimes carried away by storm, we set foot on shore at Shanghai in 1868. There we were soon met by the first Mrs. Hudson Taylor, in Chinese dress and native boat, and we started a seven days' journey inland. It was not long before her courageous and unselfish life impressed itself upon me, and a few years of closer acquaintance showed me what a woman of courage, faith, and gentleness God had raised up as the needful helper and stay of him who was to be leader of the China Inland Mission. Her bright cheerfulness greatly helped one to go right into Chinese life.

I remember our first Chinese meal, when she handed me a pair of chop-sticks and a basin of soup, with balls of something floating in it, saying with a smile, "Here, Mr. J., you will like some puppy dumplings"; and if I had any fastidious feelings about Chinese food, she soon dispersed them. I have known her to endure hardship on a rough journey, in order to help another sick one, when she was rather in a fit state to be nursed in bed. Her extraordinary courage in the Yangchow terrible riot, and other facts of her life, might well prove a stimulus to younger ones coming into the field, and I hope that some one may yet write them.

IN AN ENEMY'S LAND.

We remained a few months in Hangchow city. One morning, when only two single sisters, my wife and myself, were in the house with native servants, we were alarmed by the arrival of a party of about thirty or more rough-looking men and women, who demanded money. As I could speak but little Chinese, one of our single sisters interpreted for me. The servants were white with fear, and I learned that unless we gave them money the ruffians were likely to kill us. I looked up to God, while our sisters within prayed; and then taking a ringleader by the shoulder beckoned him to go out. They looked at each other amazed, and, as if taken by some strange fear, all went quietly away. I could only feel that God had put the fear of us upon them, as He has promised, for we were ourselves perfectly helpless.

After the terrible Yangchow riot had been settled, my wife and I were removed to that place, but never while there allowed to feel we were in any other than an enemy's land. Sometimes stones were thrown at us while out on the streets, sometimes at our bedroom windows. About two and a-half years after all appeared to have been so securely settled as to our right to retain possession of the house in Yangchow, a new trouble arose. Li Küin-men, our landlord, was a military officer in great favour with the Empress. He had been a chief of pirates, and afterwards a leader in the great rebellion, but bought over by large bribes to the Imperial service; and to his reckless character was added a most bitter hatred of foreigners. The house had been let to Mr. Taylor by the landlord's uncle, who was then in great need of money. When Li Küin-men (or General Li) returned from a distant part of the country, he determined to turn us out of the place. In this determination he was aided by Ching Ta shwai, who, it is said, had so recently led on the massacre of a number of Roman Catholics at Tien-tsin; but had escaped without punishment, as he also was one of the Empress's favourites.

IN IMMINENT DANGER.

When these two military leaders arrived at Yangchow, the whole city was in excitement, and people shouted in our gateway that Li was going to kill "the foreign devils." He had three private gunboats at the city gate, and threatened that if we did not clear out in fourteen days his uncle (the agent) would come and commit suicide in our yard, and he would come with his soldiers and take vengeance. Mr. Taylor (our director) was fifteen miles away, sick; my dear wife was assisting to nurse him there. A single lady, Miss Desgraz, was with her school in another part of our Yangchow premises. We knew not what to do, but our eyes were up to our God. To give up the place meant a loss of position in China which readers in England cannot estimate.

Other political affairs at the time greatly increased our difficulties (but not God's); the magistrate of the city sent for me, and asked what we intended to do. "To remain where we are," I said. "But," said he, "we cannot protect you; General Li is a far greater man than I am, and we dare not resist him," which I knew quite well. "But you are responsible for this city," I replied, still wishing him to feel his position, while I knew that God alone could help us. Day by day the excitement in the city increased, and our nerves were tried to the utmost, when to our great surprise a number of officials arrived one day, and told us that a private gentleman had agreed to purchase the house and let it to us, in order to save us from the threatened danger. That any Chinaman would buy the house to help a foreigner we could not believe, but there they were proposing to write a new deed, if we would only agree to their terms. Before settling this I needed to consult our director, who was fifteen miles away. But how could I leave a single European lady alone in this uproar, knowing the treachery of even the highest officials? I laid the difficulty before our sister, as to whether I should go or not, and cannot forget her noble reply: "Go, Mr. Judd; God, for his own honour, will never forsake a single woman here alone." I went, and was back in two days, but only to find the officials now changing their offered terms. Li sent to inquire if we had settled matters, if not

HE WAS COMING TO CLEAR US OUT.

Nothing now was settled, and as far as we could see his soldiers would enter our house the next day. We might have fled, but that would only have saved our lives and lost the station. We (Miss D. and myself) knelt down once more and cried to God, and I felt, for the first time, how happy God could make his children in the face of probable death. We had not long prayed, when a special messenger came with news that the terms of purchase and rental had been settled, and we were to remain safely. We praised God.

But how was this brought about? God indeed made "the wrath of man to praise Him." We afterwards found out that the Governor of Nanking owed a grudge against the Tao-tai (a district governor) of Chinkiang, a higher official than the magistrates of Yangchow, but lower than General Li, our landlord. Hence the Governor of Nanking told the Tao-tai of Chinkiang that he must see our matter settled, thinking he would certainly get into trouble thereby. Should the Tao-tai attempt to stop General Li, he would get killed. Should he, on the other hand, allow the foreigners to be killed, the Governor would lay the blame upon him, and he would lose either his office or his head. Hence the Tao-tai could only save himself and us by purchasing the premises at twice their real value, which we could not have done.

Soon afterwards Generals Li and Ching, who were made friends in order to turn us out, themselves quarrelled, and in a hand-to-hand struggle upset their boat, and Li's chief wife was drowned. Twenty years have gone by, in which time Li has been beheaded, and Ching has died in exile, while we live to praise Him who says, "Vengeance is mine, I will repay."

"THE PRAYER OF FAITH."

Some months previous to the above my dear wife had been seriously ill for some time, and became so low that one night I feared she might pass away before morning. We had no medical aid within reach, and only a few medicines in our possession, none of which were suitable to her state. As I sat by her bedside at midnight, with sad heart and weary mind and body, suddenly these words came to my mind, "They shall lay hands on the sick and they shall recover." I reasoned with myself that these words were only for apostles, or those who were far holier than I, but there they were still ringing in my mind, until I kneeled down and said, "Lord, I am not worthy, but thy Word says it," and laying my hands upon her, cried to God for his healing. She afterwards told me that she was conscious at once of the improvement that immediately commenced. In this time of need He did not fail to supply it; all the means we had at hand failed, but He fails not. We may fail in faith or life, but He never fails. Some time afterwards and we knew not when remittances might come or how much. And one of the conditions of our being accepted by the China Inland Mission was that we should ask none but God for money and not go into debt. We had a sister worker staying with us, and having only a few hundred cash (about three shillings) left we felt straitened. Had we been alone we could have lived more sparingly, but not so with a visitor. So we asked God, either to send us money at once or take away our visitor. None but God knew of our circumstances, yet very shortly a letter came requesting Miss —— to go at once to Chinkiang. We were then able to make our little stock last until our Father again supplied all our need.

OUR FUNDS WERE VERY LOW.

Soon after this we were removed to Chinkiang, inside the native city, about a mile from the European settlement. We had our boys' boarding-school of orphans and others, teachers, and Bible-women, and with our own family, over twenty persons, all dependent upon us. Our money was again reduced to a little over one dollar (about four shillings) not more than enough for the next day's food, when a poor man called to ask for a string of cash (about 3s. 6d.) which I had promised a month before to help him, on certain conditions, but I had forgotten until now. To give him nearly all we possessed was not easy; but these words came forcibly to mind: "He that sweareth to his own hurt and changeth not."

My dear wife got out the money for him, when our Bible-woman said, "What will you do if you have no money?" "Thank you," I replied, "we have money, but could not take yours if we had not"—for she offered to let us have six dollars. Still, however, she persisted in leaving a packet of six dollars on the table and went away. She was then called back and told that it was the first time we had ever told any one of our need; but, hoping to help her faith, we told her how opportunely her gift had come. "Now," said she, "I will tell you why I bring it. Last night I had a dream, and saw a man who told me to bring you money. I have brought you all I have." They were indeed, her all, which she had saved during a few months in order to buy a coffin for her aged mother, whom she expected soon to need it. But she felt that God had spoken to her, and she could trust Him.

(To be continued.)

A HEART'S YEARNING.

"Lord, all my desire is before Thee."—Ps. xxxviii. 9.

"He shall give thee the desires of thine heart."—Ps. xxxvii. 4.

Master, my heart is out of tune!
A poor discordant thing;
With chords that do not chime aright,
And notes that falsely ring;
With many a harsh and jarring tone,
And many a broken string.

Master, my will is out of joint,
A feeble, fluttering thing;
It cannot reach the azure heights
Of thy sweet will, my King;
But, striving, falleth evermore,
Like bird with broken wing.

Master, my life is out of touch
With Thee, the Risen One;
A streamlet severed from the sea,
It floweth sadly on,
No tide of Resurrection Life,
Flooding its waters lone.

Master, I kneel before thy feet,
With empty heart and hand;
Save for this fire of longing, Lord,
Which Thou hast lit and fanned,
I scarce have words to tell it Thee,
But Thou wilt understand.

To thine own golden key-note, Lord,
Tune Thou this heart of mine!
And shape my will's poor wavering flight,
Till it be one with thine,
And dwell within me till I reach
The Father's house divine.

Plymouth. Edith G. Cherry.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY.—The Bible Society's agent for Austria-Hungary says in a recent letter: "There is, happily, a great demand for the Scriptures at present;" and, after giving a striking illustration of the usefulness of the colporteur's work, adds: "We may be convinced of it, God's work is making progress, much more so than we know."

IN A NORFOLK HAMLET.—A little village in Norfolk affords a notable illustration of what can be done by devotion and organisation. There are about 630 inhabitants, mostly employed in the fields. Not a few of these are subscribers to the Bible Society—the largest donor giving 6d. a month, another 3d., others 2d., and the majority 1d. To secure her subscriptions the devoted lady secretary paid over six hundred calls. A recent Bible Society meeting was very enthusiastic, and the writer remarks: "There are hundreds of villages where working people would subscribe as willingly and generously if there were secretaries found equal to the task."

Lights and Shadows of Mission Work.

No. III.

In two former sketches I have dwelt rather on "The Shadows" than on "The Lights" of Mission-work. I will turn, in this, to the other side of the question.

When memory leads me back through the past, I generally have to tarry a while with three consecutive missions that followed each other with but very few days between. I received the warmest of welcomes from the friend who had arranged for the first. He had professed conversion under Mr. Moody's preaching, and appeared to all who knew him a most genuine and earnest Christian. He assisted me on the first night of the services, and spoke both fluently and persuasively to the unconverted souls before us. It is as if I could hear his "Do come to Jesus" now. A strange feeling of distrust took possession of my mind as he finished There had been no lack of evangelical truth, nor of earnestness in its delivery, yet there was a most painful lack of something that my own soul had been craving. "Is he converted?" I asked.

The next night gave answer to the question. At the "after-meeting" he fell on his knees, and in the presence of the numbers who had been gathered through his almost unaided efforts, he began to cry for mercy. We had a happy ending to that Mission.

The next began under most discouraging circumstances. The choir was formed of professionals. The church was very large, and the congregation small. The most popular missioner of the day was in an adjoining parish; and I heard of some ladies murmuring that their church, as usual, had been left behind, since the man who had come to them was nothing but a curate. The first night a young Ritualist was brought to the Lord, though I shall never forget the effect of her question when she asked if she must give up her "Little Jesus." That young lady had been grounded in Romish doctrine, and taught to use a crucifix, in connection with the church of a man who has more than once been admitted as a speaker to some of our popular "Conventions."

Other conversions followed, and on a certain night the dear old vicar experienced one of the most joyful surprises of his life. We had got the old-fashioned high pews, and from where he and I were standing not a single person could be seen; all, again, was silent as the grave. "I will just run down the church and see if any one is remaining," said he; and he began looking over the pew-doors, if, haply, any anxious soul had stopped behind for conversation and prayer. Before he had gone many steps, he came across his eldest son, a Cambridge graduate. Then he found another son, and then several of his most intimate friends. We were in church that night till the clock had struck eleven, talking and praying with those young folk.

But there was one case that brought no gladness to the soul. When I think of it, I think of poor Orpah. "Oh, Mr. L——" said a well-known lady of the congregation, "what shall I do if it goes out to this town that I, who have so long been a leader in all church work, have been deceiving myself?" The struggle was fearful, nor had it ended when I left. I heard that afterwards she had sought counsel of the popular missioner referred to, but in vain; and, though one clings to hope, I almost fear me that the dread of man prevailed against conviction, and left her to settle down again in what appeared to have been nothing but a refuge of lies.

A strange thing happened when I started for my next place. There were two parishes of the same name, and I went to the wrong one. I was forced to stop at an hotel all night, and found myself in company with a lot of "commercials." "How am I to get in a word for the Master?" was my inquiry of myself. I had not long to wait. One of them, a thorough sceptic, bore down upon me while I was planning, and before another five minutes had gone we were at it, as we used to say in South Northamptonshire, "hammer and tongs." I had been a sceptic myself, and, after breathing a prayer for the Lord's help, I asked him if he had ever done wrong in his life. Many a time. How had he determined the rightness or wrongness of an action? There was a man's natural instinct to tell him. What was nature? I knew that ere long he would make a fool of himself, and he did. A young Scotchman offered to be umpire, and the argument was kept up into the small hours of morning; but, thank God, I was enabled both to silence my opponent and to preach the truth to all our listeners.

On arriving at my destination, my heart sank within me. I was to meet a friend who was coming to help me, but circumstances led me to write off at once, trying to stop him. Unbelief had got full possession of me, and yet that mission was one of the most cheering I ever took. My friend came on, in spite of my letter. Two or three of those whose open opposition I had expected professed conversion, and just as we were singing the very last hymn of the very last service, the Lord let the light of truth into the soul of our hostess.

It is not very probable that she will ever see these lines. If she does, she will well remember that eventful night. Salvation, as the free gift of God, had appeared an absurdity, and earnestly, though in vain, had she striven to merit it. "I shall never be saved," said she, as we were walking together to one of the services. She thought and spoke differently afterwards. My friend gave out the hymn:—

I hear the Saviour say, My strength indeed is small.

She was playing the harmonium (and I fancy I can see her fingers gliding over those ivory keys as I write). Then came the chorus:—

Jesus paid it all; All to Him I owe.

The service and mission both came to a close: The church was left in darkness, and we were just gathering around the vicarage supper-table when she began to tell us all about what had happened. The hymn had done its work—she could see that Jesus had done it all; and many a time before our happy circle broke up for the night did we repeat those blessed words:—

Jesus did it ALL;
ALL to Him I owe;
Sin had left a crimson stain;
He washed me white as snow.

Evangelist.

REV. J. McNEILL IN SCOTLAND.

The Mission in Wigtown (says a correspondent) was the first of the kind ever held in the place, and, though brief in duration, it was very remarkable for the deep impression made both in the town and surrounding neighbourhood. On the Sunday morning Mr. McNeill preached in the Parish Church to a very large audience, the church being packed from end to end. In the afternoon he addressed an open-air meeting in the centre of the town, and preached again in the evening in the United Presbyterian Church to another crowded congregation.

On Monday and Tuesday evenings very large meetings were again held in the United Presbyterian Church. On Tuesday afternoon Mr. McNeill addressed a meeting in Whithorn, which was also largely attended. The sweet Gospel songs of Mr. Burke were much appreciated. Wigtown is generally considered to be a difficult place to arouse; the friends praise God for his goodness, and earnestly pray that the blessing thus begun may continue.

BLACKPOOL CONVALESCENT HOME.—Mrs. Reaney writes from Bromley, Kent, that her Home—"Cavendish House," South Shore, Blackpool—splendidly looked after by her widowed sister-in-law, Mrs. Robert Reaney, as lady superintendent, has been more or less busy all the winter, and adds further testimony to the fact that Blackpool is one of the most pleasant and healthy all-the-year-round resorts to be found on our English coast.

Saturday Evening.

The following letter was originally written ten years ago, and addressed to the then Home Secretary. The state of things which it reveals is as applicable to our great cities now as it was then, and the republication of the letter may help to strengthen the hands of Temperance reformers in view of the coming General Election :—

Dear Sir,—For many years I have been carefully watching the home-life of our working classes. I discovered years ago that the public-house door standing open early and late, Sundays and week-days, has much to do with the deplorable condition of their homes. That there are twelve thousand families in Holborn alone living in single rooms is not brought about by low wages nor by the difficulty of obtaining work. It is calculated that in five cases out of six it is because money which could provide the suitable home is expended at the public-house.

That there is a prospect of this fatal temptation being lessened by closing these houses on Sundays is to me, in common with all who wish well to their country, a matter of the deepest interest, but there is one aspect of this subject which has received less attention than its importance demands. May I ask you to give a few moments of your valuable time to listen to what I have to say, and lest it should appear at the first glance as if I were raising objections, I will at once say I am not about to ask for less than Sunday Closing, but for more.

The portion of the population whose habits will be most affected by the contemplated change will not be the steady, home-loving class; to a large extent it will be the reckless, the abandoned, the brutal, who will be compelled to find fresh ways of disposing of themselves and their time. Habits which have taken long years to root cannot be changed in a day. To grapple fairly with the subject before us we ought to make ourselves acquainted with what these masses of our population will have to turn from, and what they will have to turn to.

Unless we keep in view that it is principally what takes place on Saturday that causes the Sunday to be the day it now is, we shall fail rightly to understand our real position. I can best make myself understood by speaking of what actually takes place every week in the homes of many of our drunken poor. Let me say, to prevent mistakes, I now refer only to this low class, neither do I know from personal observation that such a condition as I am about to describe, exists anywhere but in London.

On receipt of wages on Saturday, many married men return to their homes (if we may apply such a term to the wretched room they occupy), and deposit some small portion of their money with their wives. The sum is nicely calculated as just enough, with what the wife may earn, or the district visitor leave, to keep off actual starvation. With the largest portion of his wages still in his pocket, the man sallies forth to join his companions; if the weather should be either wet or cold, they go usually at once to the public-house. By nine or ten o'clock a good deal of money is spent, but men still retain some consciousness of the value of money, and if they proffer a shilling when they owe ninepence they will wait for the change. The publican's phrase is, "By this time men have had as much as is good for them." After ten o'clock begins what is called "forced drinking." To those who have never seen a public-house at this time, it is difficult to convey any idea of the real scene. Spirit is chiefly in demand. Extra hands are sent into the bar, who stand with shirt sleeves rolled up above the elbow, drawing spirit from large casks and distributing it as fast as possible to the maddened or stupefied customers. Before twelve o'clock, most of the week's hard-earned wages are in the publican's till or on his floor (which is always carefully swept after twelve o'clock); a few shillings, perhaps, may be left in a pocket not quite so easily got at as the rest.

In a letter I have received from Mr. Weylland (Superintendent of the Public-house Missionaries), he says, speaking of Saturday night: "As the evening advances, immense bars, especially in low parts of London, become crowded, and thousands upon thousands of men and women become more or less intoxicated. The system of dividing bars into large and small compartments with screens which shield one group of drinkers from another, greatly facilitates hard drinking among women, and, as a result, the turn-out at twelve o'clock is a dreadful sight; probably anything so shocking and revolting cannot be matched in any part of the world."

It is not while all this is going on that these unfortunate victims of drink realise their intense misery. The excitement of association, the ribald song, the stupefying or maddening influence of the drink itself, all combine to extinguish for awhile any adequate sense of the true nature of their surroundings. This is left for Sunday morning, when they wake up to a full consciousness of their desperate condition. In former times the wife was usually the victim of her husband's cruelty; now, in innumerable cases, she is his partner in sin. In either case, be she his victim or associate, no creature on the face of the earth more demands our pity. Whilst mutual recrimination, threats, and blows are going on, the children huddle together and look on in mute terror; they do not cry—such children seldom shed tears; nature could never furnish a fountain to meet such demands. Sometimes they will make their escape, and wander about for hours in a condition of starvation. Often after the father has left the scene, children, almost in a state of insensibility from suffocation, are drawn out from under heaps of "night-straw" or dirty rubbish of some kind. There in their places of concealment they will, as long as they are able, listen to what is passing. The elder ones may in some way have earned a few pence in the course of the week; the father will find this out, and takes the money to expend at the public-house. To get rid of the father in any way, is the one absorbing desire; until his foot is heard going down the stairs no one can breathe freely.

I am not now speaking of what happens to a few hundreds only of our fellow-creatures. If all the miserable men and women who every Saturday night waste their substance in riotous living, and wake up to an agony of despair on Sunday morning, could be gathered together, they would be found to be equal to many large armies.

I now return to the question—How will Sunday Closing affect this large and dangerous class? Before the morning of that day dawns they have already parted with the money which would have enabled them to provide for themselves some kind of home where they could pass the day in some degree of peace and comfort; they have already received into their system something which blunts every sense of moral responsibility, and prepares them for deeds of violence. Compared to Saturday drinking, little money is expended on Sunday among these people, simply because there is little left to spend, but the shelter the publican offers takes them away from their terrified children and lessens the danger of our streets.

If anything could open our eyes to see what intoxicating drink has done for our people it must be such a statement as I have just made. There are positively tens of thousands of men living with us in this great London who cannot safely be trusted either in their own homes or in our streets. We have to face the fact that these fathers and citizens, who might be the strength and glory of their homes and the defence of their country, have to be dealt with as something dangerous, which must as far as possible be got rid of, or at least, be kept out of sight; and all this degradation is known to arise mostly from a cause which could be prevented.

To continue the present system of allowing this drunken crew to herd together in public-houses on a Sunday may answer the purpose for awhile of keeping them away from their homes and out of sight, but such a plan carries with it no healing power; on the contrary, the end of each week will find these brutalised men more brutal than they were at the beginning, and harder than ever to win over to the right side.

In Mr. Weylland's letter, from which I have already quoted, he writes:—"A few days ago I was speaking to a publican about our dreadful Saturday nights; he said: 'After ten o'clock it is only forced drinking in a large proportion of the houses. The system is wrong and disgraceful, but the remedy is a common-sense one. Close the public-houses at ten o'clock on Saturday night. This would benefit the public, though the "trade" would grumble, but in our hearts we publicans, with very few exceptions, would be glad.'"

The amount of money expended on Saturday night is something incredible. We speak of it as money, but it is the children's bread which is carried away in this stream. If we ask that the public-houses be closed only on Sunday then the lives of these little ones, as far as we can see, may be even more suffering than before. For what purpose these hours of destruction are allowed, it is impossible to say. Many among the working classes speak of them with horror; they know that Saturday night is the time of their weakness, and they would welcome a strong delivering hand. The majority of publicans are ashamed of their part in this wreck and ruin; they have lived in these scenes long enough to know the end is bitterness and death.

Our national danger must be ever increasing as long as all this is permitted to go on. Many workmen are aware that to earn their money in the week, they must be very sparing in the use of intoxicating drink; indeed, some of them entirely abstain from it throughout the working days. It is from six to twelve o'clock on Saturday night that the great mischief is done. It is these fatal hours which, beyond all other causes, have wrecked our home-life, and trained up in our midst a population which we have reason to fear may any day, under the influence of some strong outward excitement, so act, as to reveal to us what a mighty power for evil we have been fostering to our own destruction.

The wheels of our State chariot are driving heavily, not through the Red Sea, but through a sea red with the blood of the victims of drink. Pharaoh might have let the people go, and been blessed and honoured in so doing, but he delayed and delayed until he and his people were alike overthrown. If what I have said is true (and for the honour of the English nation let it, if possible, be contradicted), can we imagine anything more sinful in the sight of God than to withhold the remedy?

An Act of Parliament to close our public-houses on Saturday evening would make it possible to hope that that mighty stream of wealth which has been diverted from our homes may be sent back again, and without the slightest aid from charity men and women could then provide for themselves and their children the healthful and healing Sabbath rest which the toil of the week demands.—Believe me, faithfully yours,

Mary Bayly.

Streatham Common.

LONDON CHINESE MISSION. — Interesting meetings were lately held in York in connection with the above Mission. Mrs. Piercy addressed a select and appreciative company in the afternoon, in the room above the Savings Bank, stating the character, claims, and needs of the Mission. About 2500 Chinese come to London every year. They remain here only for a short time. The aim of the Mission is to befriend these men while in port, sow the seed of Gospel truth, preserve them from the deadly dangers to which they are exposed: in a word, to show them such Christian love that when they return to China they shall carry back a good report of this land.

Letter from Dr. J. G. Paton.

Dear Sir.—Let me cordially thank you, and all those who, through The Christian, have so kindly contributed to the "John G. Paton Mission Fund," enabling you to send me a further sum of £13 6s. to help in extending the teaching and blessings of the Gospel by our mission to the remaining cannibals on the New Hebrides South Sea Islands. With this end in view we are pleading and working incessantly. If we could only get support for four or five additional missionaries, by whom to occupy our remaining most important islands and centres from which to extend Christ's teaching to the heathen beyond and around, we believe our forty thousand to fifty thousand savages yet on the group would soon, by the Holy Spirit's power, be brought to serve God.

When through bank failures, great depression in all business, and thousands unemployed here, causing more want and suffering than we have ever seen in Australia, money is scarce for all purposes, especially for foreign missions, we feel the more encouraged and grateful for the help sent to us from Britain. Two days ago we were also led to praise God, and press on in his work entrusted to us, by a kind letter, enclosing a cheque for £40, from a Christian lady who, with her late husband, wrought and spent much in the cause of Jesus, especially in Launceston, Tasmania, and for China. Three other aged saints have also sent me £55 since my last acknowledgment. I can only thank all who have so helped us to extend our Master's work, and pray that in so spending and being spent for Him he may richly reward and bless them with ever-deepening joy in all the consolations of the Gospel!

Oh that more Christians of large means could be led to feel the duty and taste the real joy of using their money while they are living for Jesus, and see its fruits in his blessed service! What a pleasure it would be to them compared with keeping it locked up in banks, or adding house to house by it, till death forces them to leave it all to be expended by others after they are gone, and which often causes much loss and wrangling "A Scotch domestic servant girl" lately sent me, in addition to small sums sent before, the sum of £35, and in her letter with it says: "If Christians knew the joy of giving to Jesus while they live, and how sweet He makes life in the enjoyment of what remains, be it ever so little, what pleasure they would have in seeing his work so extended to the perishing heathen." There are, indeed, many of God's people who so live, and labour, and give for Jesus and his cause.

Some time ago I met a Scotchman who, as a merchant in New York, had made what he considered a competence for himself and family, but kept on his large business for Jesus, giving all its profits to the Lord's work yearly, as deserving claims came before him. I know a number of other Christian men and women who act upon the same principle. Oh that their numbers were increased a thousandfold, who, instead of spending God's money, which He has entrusted to them, on worldly pleasures, amusements, and entertainments for selfish gratification, would consecrate themselves and it to Jesus, and in his blessed service feast daily on the unending joys of his salvation!

The work of our New Hebrides Mission prospers wonderfully. On each of four islands, of the cannibals with whom we began there are who are trying to serve Christ, and bring others to do so. One of them, Errumanga, on which one good missionary died and five were murdered by the savages before, to any extent, they began to receive the Gospel, has now, by God's blessing on its teaching, 2555 converts, and may be called a Christian island. John Williams and Mr. Harris were first murdered when they landed o it and eaten by the savages. Next, the Rev. G. McGordon and his devoted wife were tomahawked by them, and over their grave the few young men and women they had brought to love Jesus vowed that Errumanga would be conquered by them for Jesus by the teaching of the Gospel. Again, when Rev. J. D. Gordon was tomahawked on it by the savages, over his grave the devoted band of young Christians renewed that vow, and have wrought earnestly to redeem it, till, under the guidance and help of their present missionary, blood-stained Errumanga is a trophy of redeeming love; with morning and evening worship daily in every family, praising God for the blessings of the Gospel. On the twenty islands we now occupy we have about thirteen thousand converts, who help us much in bringing others to Jesus for salvation.

OVER TWO THOUSAND CONVERTS

Within the last six years we have opened seven new stations, by the liberal help of God's people, by white missionaries among our remaining savages, and many by native teachers. A fortnight ago a medical missionary and his highly-accomplished young wife sailed from Sydney to be supported on the New Hebrides by the New Zealand Church; by them we hope to occupy another heathen island, and if we could only get four or five more and support them, our work would soon be completed in occupying the field for Christ in his work.

We are exceedingly grieved at the Queensland Government having reopened the "Kanaka Labour Traffic" between their colony and our South Sea Islands. Now they have about ten thousand Kanakas working chiefly on their sugar plantations at 4d. per day, or 2s. 6d. per week, and in such slavish work they die at the rate of 11½ for every white person per cent. per annum in the colony. Besides, three thousand are unaccounted for. After printing a protest against reopening the traffic, and a reply to a paper leader, their press was closed against my further exposing the evils and atrocities on the persons of men and women, while communications all round were published praising it and abusing me for opposing it, because of its shocking character in vice, kidnapping, and murders, on the islands and at sea chiefly. The traffic is a disgrace to Britain, Queensland, and humanity. Surely Britain, that has done so much to free slaves, should suppress it quickly and for ever in her own colonies of Queensland and Fiji, for God's curse must follow its cruel oppression and bloodshed, and all engaged in it, and trying to make rich by it. Entreating your help, and the help and prayers of all God's people to get Britain to suppress this labour traffic, which is rapidly destroying a most industrious race and depopulating our South Sea Islands, I remain, yours faithfully,

John G. Paton.

Coburg, Victoria, May 3.

An Early Missionary.

It is interesting (says a correspondent) to mention that 150 years before Carey started his missionary enterprise John Elliott left this country to begin his work of preaching the gospel to the Indians of North America. He was the first Protestant missionary that ever left this country to work among the heathen in foreign lands. His father was a man of good estate, and lived at Nazing, Essex, a village on the borders of Hertfordshire, and close to Hoddesdon, Herts. Nazing was the home of not a few of the Puritan fathers, many of whom left their native village 250 years ago, went to America, and became the founders of influential families there. John Elliott's father gave him a good university education, and had the means to start him well in life; but John Elliott forsook all, and at thirty years of age devoted himself to mission work among the heathen. He endured untold hardships in that desolate and trying region, but remained at his post till, at eighty-three years of age, he died. Probably he was the first to translate the English Bible into a heathen language.

THE WELCOME HOME.—A band of Christian sailors from Miss Child's Welcome Home in Ratcliff Highway had a grand opportunity of testifying and telling out the old, old Gospel on Blackheath, and at the High Pavement, Lewisham, as well as in Canonbury Hall, where numbers were gathered from among the holiday seekers. On the following day many of the same were present at the usual muster in the forecastle when Rev. David Baron, Mr. W. H. Seagram, and others gave addresses. The text for the month was given, "Be filled with the Spirit." At the second meeting three young sailors yielded themselves to the Lord

A REVIEW OF INDIAN MISSIONS.

In a lengthy report to the recent General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church of America, Bishop Thoburn, of India, says:—

God has blessed our faithful workers, and I am most thankful to be able to report four years of steady growth and uninterrupted prosperity. The little Malaysia Mission Conference has trebled its membership since it was erected into a separate mission in 1888; the Bengal Conference has doubled its membership twice over; the South Indian Conference has nearly doubled its membership; while the grand old North India Conference, the mother of all the growing Indian family of Conferences, has more than quadrupled the large membership with which she entered upon the quadrennium. We have now a Christian Community in India of not less than 50,000 souls, and a membership, including full members and probationers, of over 30,000. All through these past four years we have had inquirers coming to us in steadily increasing numbers, and the latest advices indicate no signs of waning interest. We now receive more converts in a month than we used to receive in a decade. When I return to my field I shall expect to greet 10,000 new converts—men and women who were worshipping idols four months ago—as confidently as I shall expect to find the mountains in their places or the stars keeping watch in the silent heavens. God is truly doing great things in our midst, and we call upon the whole Church to rejoice with us in the signal tokens for good which He is giving us.

Next to our Church membership and the winning of converts from heathenism, the most encouraging feature of our work is found in connection with our Sunday-schools. For more than twenty years we have given special attention to the Sunday-school, and have spared no pains to adapt it to the peculiar wants of the people; and now, when our converts are rapidly multiplying on every hand, we find this agency invaluable to us. It is probable that we have more Sunday-schools and more scholars enrolled than all the other churches and missions in the Empire combined. A few years ago the most of our scholars were Hindus and Mohammedans, but now one-third of the whole number are Christians, and probably at the end of another year the ratio will be one-half. No item in our recent table of statistics is more significant, and at the same time more encouraging, than the reported increase of 9679 Christian children and young people in our Sunday-schools. It cannot but happen when converts are coming to us in such large numbers that many of them will be found extremely immature; but we need not despair of the general community, so long as we find one-half of the whole number baptized during the past year reporting themselves promptly as pupils in our Sunday-schools.

VISITATION IN SHANGHAI.

Mrs. Dalziel, of Shanghai, China, writes:—"I evangelise among the women here with a native Bible-woman, and try to recommend women and children to go for further teaching to either of the mission churches which may be near them. My work is not an easy task. If you can fancy going day after day into filthy courts and cold, open, dirty houses, where disease of every kind is, and sitting in the midst of it, in real contact with heathenism, you will realise that there is nothing pleasant to the flesh about it. We are well received, not for the message we bring, but partly because I am a foreigner. The people are fond of singing, and I use it to gather the women and children, and to keep up their interest. I have faith that God will bless his word, and that our labour will not be in vain. My health is good, which is a great blessing. There is no sound of riots now; thank God for a time of peace to spread the Gospel. A good work is going on among missionaries and native Christians."

Funds are much needed, and will be gladly received by Mr. Wm. Russell, 172, Iverson-road, West Hampstead, N.W.

GLASGOW SEAMEN.—The eighth annual meeting of the Glasgow Seamen's Evangelistic Mission was held in their Bethel, 59, Morrison-street, on June 2, Pastor A. M. A. Graham in the chair. Stirring addresses were afterwards delivered by Rev. M. D. McGilvray, Rev. Jarvis Coats, Rev. D. M. Cameron, and others. The society has gone through a great amount of work during the year. Special evangelistic meetings have been held, and Temperance meetings have been well sustained. A number of seafaring men and others have been brought to Christ.

THE THIN EDGE IN TRIPOLI.

Like most Mohammedan countries, this dependency of Turkey is supposed to be wholly closed against the Gospel. Consequently, when the North Africa Mission felt the time had come for them to break ground here, it was represented to them that this would be an impossibility. Even when, a year or two ago, Messrs. Mitchell and Harding arrived as their representatives, they were informed by their Consul-General that their wisest plan would be to return the same day by the steamer which had brought them. This is not, however, the custom of Christian pioneers trusting in the arm that holds the world, so they remained, and Mr. Mitchell having returned to his work in Tunis, Mr. Harding has continued to labour here since, finding in Sir Francis Hay—the official who had once wished to see him gone—his best friend in the place, and in the new Consul-General, Mr. Moore, the work has as good a friend. Mr. Harding has since been joined by Mr. and Mrs. Venables, Dr. Smith, and Miss Watcham, a lady who is ere long to become Mrs. Harding. Thus there is quite a little band in connection with that mission already, but for the latter part of the time they have not been alone.

Mr. Hermann Harris, who hopes from this point to penetrate to the Soudan, has made this the temporary headquarters of his Central Soudan Mission, while he and four other earnest young men are acquainting themselves with the people and their language. It is an interesting fact that here, on the shores of the Mediterranean, is a settlement of negroes from the far interior, from Houssa, from Wadai, from Adamawa, and from many other hitherto practically inaccessible places. These afford invaluable opportunities, not only for special work, but also for studying their language, and for forming links with their distant homes. What openings may be found into the centre of this dark continent at this point God only knows, for though several Europeans have entered it this way, the Turkish Government at present strictly prohibits foreigners from going more than a few miles out of town. In any case, Tripoli forms a capital training-ground, whatever route may ultimately be adopted.

Tripoli is one of those countries in which medical missions are the most valuable. Had it not been for the previous experience Mr. Harding had in dispensary work, he would probably not have been there now. A striking proof of his standing in the place on this account, though he never set up as a "doctor" proper, was given by the Turkish Governor-General himself, in requesting his attendance on one of his wives, which he of course declined, as a qualified practitioner was in attendance already. Open aggressive work among Mohammedans is absolutely forbidden, but the opportunities for faithful dealing which are afforded by daily intercourse with the people cannot be prevented, and can hardly be over-estimated.

The results of all this labour are not to be looked for in golden crops, but in ground prepared, and good seed sown. The very presence among the natives of simple-living Christian men and women is a power in itself, and there is room for very many more such throughout North Africa. The difficulties which seem to be rising in Morocco, though there is probably much more barking than there is likely to be biting, naturally direct the attention of friends of this part of the Dark Continent further East—to this place, for instance, and to Egypt, in which the North Africa Mission is opening its first station this month. One of the most capable workers from Morocco, Mr. William Summers, has gone forward with his wife and some new recruits for this purpose. What is a great loss to the cause in the West will be as great a gain in the East, and no one could be better suited to organise a new work.

Whether the work in Morocco will be to any degree permanently affected by this new move on the part of the Moorish authorities depends very much upon the position assumed by the British representative on the spot, and as Sir Evan Smith has already shown himself a friend of missions, we may confidently look for the whole matter to blow over, as others have done, in the face of a determined stand.

Should avowed missionary work be totally prohibited, as it is here, there will still remain the same opening, and the need will be increased for self-supporting Christian settlers witnessing a good confession before the people; men and women who, with a visible means of subsistence, will not arouse the suspicion of the authorities, and who, under the protection afforded to traders and workers of every honest class, shall be perfectly secure from all molestation. The presence of such fellow-labourers not only strengthens the hands of regular missionaries by their fellowship, but it also secures for them a support among the people hardly otherwise to be obtained. The man who is most suspicious of the words of those he has been told are paid to propagate their belief, will listen with confidence to the testimony of the man of business as to the truth of the missionaries' message, and as to their reliability. Thus there is room for very many more to live for Christ, even in those lands of which the doors are supposed to be shut, but where, also, the Lord of the harvest has much work for us to do. Any one wishing to communicate with the workers in Tripoli should add "Barbary" or "North Africa" to the address, as there is another Tripoli in Syria.

J. E. Budgett Meakin.

The Devil's Wages.*

By CHARLES COOK.

TRIAL SCENE—IN COURT.

The old town of Chelmsford was all astir. The streets were thronged; the country folk had come in from many of the surrounding villages; for it was market day. Old-fashioned lumbering carts had discharged their contents in the market-place; and people were occupied, each with his own particular business, in buying or selling. And yet withal there was something about this particular day which caused it to differ from other occasions of the kind.

The mystery is solved as you wend your way in the direction of the Shire Hall; and when you learn that the Assizes are on, and that a trial for murder is about to take place, you no longer wonder what causes the stir. Let us step inside. As we enter the court the prisoner, standing at the bar with a firm voice pleads "Not guilty;" but after witness after witness has appeared for the prosecution we feel there is but little hope for the poor man who is being tried. The evidence is so clear, the proofs are so many, that all within the building conclude that the man must be condemned—and so it is!

Justice Hawkins sums up in a masterly, tender, and impartial way, and after a very short time of absence the jury bring in the verdict "GUILTY." The prisoner at once falls upon his knees and repeats the Lord's Prayer. Justice Hawkins, after assuming the black cap, sentences the man, Thomas Wheeler, to death, for the murder of Farmer Anstey, near St. Albans. It was a solemn sight; I confess I could not prevent tears coming to my eyes as I thought of the penalty this unhappy man had incurred.

Reader, "the wages of sin is death!"—not merely the death of the body, but the death of body and soul—that is, the eternal separation of body and soul from the presence of God, the one true Source and Power of life, with all that this separation involves. Why should you serve Satan, who is a murderer? Why work for one who pays such wages, when the Lord of Life and Glory is willing to set you free, and says, "Son, go work in MY vineyard"?

THE CONFESSION—IN THE CELL.

Stoutly as the prisoner denied his guilt on the day of the trial, and bravely though he endeavoured to brazen out his denial, yet when no offer of mercy was offered him, and he knew he must be hanged, he broke down, and with tears confessed his crime. The chaplain had lovingly and honestly told him of the danger of dying with unconfessed sin upon his conscience, and had exhorted him to "tell out his sins and his sorrow to the Lord, who would have mercy upon him." So in the end he confessed to having gone to the house of his victim, and said that, after obtaining some money from the housekeeper by threats, he had called out loudly, "Mr. Anstey! Mr. Anstey!" and when the farmer appeared at the window, he had shot him.

In his confession, which appeared in the daily papers, the remarkable expression occurs, "After leaving the house the devil told me to go back and kill Mr. Anstey, and under this devilish power I did go back, and after calling him up, shot him dead."

How many are, like this poor man, "led captive by the devil at his will!" They have no power to break the chains by which they are bound, and they will not turn to Him who is "mighty to save," the great Deliverer. Many, alas! whilst knowing that they are sinners in the sight of God, that they are "guilty before God," have never confessed their sins to Him. They plainly say they are "no worse than their neighbours," and thus try to deceive themselves, but when the hour and article of death are just in front of them, they have to confess (for very fear) that they have done evil; and when all their earthly hopes are gone, then they think of turning to God—at the last moment hoping He will have mercy upon them. But the confession of the murderer did not avail to save him from the gallows, and the confession of the sinner (if made through mere fear of hell) as he nears eternity, and earth recedes, may avail him nothing.

The question is not so much "How did he die?" but rather "How did he live?" Reader, are you living for God? or are you living, as millions are to-day, in sin and wickedness, careless of the "Great Assize," when "God will judge the world in righteousness by that Man, whom He hath ordained"?

THE SERMON—IN THE STREET.

The Court was closed, the trial scene was over, a fellow-man had been tried, convicted, and condemned to die, and would soon be reaping the consequences of his sins. "The wages of sin is death." The devil indeed is a bad master. There are thousands whom he has got into trouble and sorrow, but there are none whom he has ever got out. He is an adept at leading men into sin, which always results in misery and disgrace, but he is unable to deliver us from the consequences of our folly and our shame.

Thinking on the reality of the scene I had just witnessed, I felt impelled to hold an open-air service outside the Court, and with the help of one or two friends soon had a goodly crowd listening intently to an address from the words, "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." I dwelt upon the solemn event which had lately taken place—a fellow-creature condemned to die—no hope—no escape. He had broken the law, and must pay the penalty. If this be soleman and fearful in all its reality, I said—and much more so to the condemned man than to us—where only the body is concerned, how much more solemn, how much more intensely real, will be the hour when "the Judge of all the earth" at "the JUDGMENT DAY" shall declare of those who have sinned against Him, and who have refused his offer of mercy, have rejected his dying love, and have resisted his Spirit's striving—"THESE shall go away into everlasting punishment!" If the death of the body be a serious and an awful reality, then the death of the soul is a thousand times more serious and more solemn. "It is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment."

The meeting was soon over, and the audience left the ground where they had been listening so intently, evidently impressed by the day's proceedings, and solemnised by the words of the preacher. I have good hopes that some went home to think about that day when "God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil."

Beloved reader, think of that day, and through faith in the precious blood of the Lord Jesus Christ, which was shed for sinners, be prepared for it.

Upon a life I did not live,
Upon a death I did not die—
Another's life, Another's death—
I stake my whole eternity!

HITTITE INSCRIPTIONS.—The Record states that in a lecture on Tuesday week at the Medical Society's Rooms, in Hanover-square, under the auspices of the Palestine Exploration Fund, Dr. William Wright stated that he had just received a letter from Professor Sayce, who stated that he believed he had succeeded in deciphering the Hittite inscriptions discovered in Hamath in 1873. The lecturer narrated the circumstances under which he succeeded in procuring plaster casts of these inscriptions for the British Museum and the Palestine Exploration Fund, and he exhibited the casts of some of the smaller inscriptions. He expressed his firm conviction that the references to the Hittites in the Bible were correct, although that remarkable people were not mentioned by any classical author. Those who believed not Moses and the Prophets were now being confounded by bricks and stones; and the nineteenth century B.C. was now, by the use of the spade, yielding up its secrets to the nineteenth century A.D.

* This is a reprint of one of a series of very readable booklets, by the author of "The Prisons of the World." 2s. per 100. Drummond's Tract Depot, Stirling.

Mr. Moody in England.

THE LAST DAY IN HULL.

Whit-Monday witnessed enormous gatherings at the circus in Hull, both afternoon and evening. This was the more remarkable that the day was so fine, and the inducements to go out of town exceptionally numerous.

The power attending the gatherings was quite as noteworthy as their size. The afternoon meeting proved a season of deep heart-searching with regard to family life particularly, and the number of spoken requests for prayer, uttered at the after-meeting on the part of individuals, both for themselves and for their loved ones, told how deep an impression the Word had made.

Every inch, even of standing room, appeared to be occupied at the evening meeting, and when the after-meeting was announced it seemed as if almost the entire audience desired to remain. The inadequate accommodation afforded by the side-rooms for meetings with inquirers was heartily and speedily taken advantage of, Canon M'Cormick being left by Mr. Moody in charge of the large gathering in the circus proper. While that great gathering continued in prayer many workers were busy in the side-rooms endeavouring to direct the anxious. As in the previous evening, it was found that so real had been "the demonstration of the Spirit" in connection with the preaching of the Word that, even as Mr. Moody had been speaking, some had "passed from death to life."

Of course, we are disposed to regret that the Mission could not be longer, and that we could not follow it up by further services in the same place; but that a very profound and widespread impression has been made there can be no question. We are deeply thankful that Mr. Moody's way has been directed to Hull, and very confident that the results of the visit he has paid us, brief as it was, will be recognisable in the quickened life of all the churches interested for many days to come.

J. G. T.

THE VISIT TO SHREWSBURY.

Once again Mr. Moody has broken fresh ground, by visiting a town in which his voice has not before been heard. The selection of Shrewsbury for a brief campaign was in response to a very warm and unanimous invitation from the Y.M.C.A., supported by ministers of all denominations, who have one and all loyally and heartily rallied round the evangelist.

But not only so: for a month or more before his visit the way had been prepared by earnest, united prayer. These old provincial towns are hard to move, and it was not remarkable that Mr. Moody should be told on his arrival, that he had "struck a hard place this time." All the more need, therefore, that divine aid should be earnestly invoked, for truly "vain is the help of man." Indeed it is (as Mr. Moody pointed out at one meeting), upon the "dry ground" that God's promise is to "pour floods," and that word has once more been verified.

With the thermometer at an abnormal figure, when the intense heat experienced last week was at its height, the evangelist entered the Music Hall, the largest available building in the town, on Thursday afternoon, to find that the windows were not made to be opened! Just arrived after a long journey, it would not have been surprising if he had found in such enervating conditions a serious obstacle to a successful commencement; but it was not so, and again in the evening the hall was packed with a large and most attentive audience. In view, however, of the intense heat, he wisely announced that on the following days, if weather permitted, the larger meetings would be held in the open air.

Finding on inquiry that most of those present were professing Christians, he set forth what he considered to be the essential qualifications for Christian service; and as he reasoned of faith, courage, enthusiasm, love, and other such fruits of the Spirit, it was evident that those who lacked them felt their need, and those who possessed them would seek them yet more abundantly. In referring, by way of illustration, to the incident of the Good Samaritan, he pleaded hard for a "hand and foot" Christianity, which would, for the sake of Christ, go out of its way to render practical assistance when required, not contenting itself with mere words, or even pity. Too often are the concluding words of the narrative overlooked: "Go thou and do likewise."

Encouraged by the spirited interest manifested by the ministers and Christian workers present, Mr. Moody decided to give them an hour's talk upon "How to Handle the Bible in Dealing with Inquirers." Accordingly, at nine a.m. on Friday, Rev. F. Tinkler's Congregational church accommodated a goodly number desirous of rendering effective service in the Master's cause.

After insisting on the importance of personal work, and what he termed "the luxury of winning souls" for Christ, the evangelist enumerated various types of persons to be met with in an after-meeting—the self-righteous, the sceptic, the backslider, those under conviction of sin, those who lack assurance, or who know no joy. For each of these, suitable passages of Scripture were alluded to as suggestive of the line which might appropriately be taken in such cases, and judging from the busy time pencils and paper had in the hands of the audience, it may be hoped that such hints were put to the test during the ensuing evenings.

The spot selected for the open-air gatherings could not have been bettered. Shrewsbury boasts one of the largest and pleasantest recreation grounds to be found in the country. Several acres of meadow land flanking the Severn, with a small lake, abundant horticulture, and shaded by planted a century and a-half ago, afforded a delightful refuge from the heat; and it was in one of the angles formed by the juncture of two avenues that a large crowd gathered in the afternoon to listen to the old Gospel, powerfully expounded by Mr. Moody—a great improvement, as all agreed, upon the interior of the Music Hall.

MAGNIFICENT AVENUES OF LIMES,

But during the service, clouds began to steal across the sky, and though, with characteristic aptitude, Mr. Moody made use of their presence to point an illustration in his discourse, they nevertheless brought with them sufficient rain to necessitate the holding of the evening meeting indoors.

Between these two meetings, however, Mr. Moody gave another address to ministers and workers upon the office of the Holy Spirit and endowment for service. He declared criticism in the pew to be responsible for much lack of power in the pulpit, instancing in his own racy way how different might have been the result of Peter's address at Pentecost had James and John, Philip and Andrew occupied themselves thus. Then, too, much personal influence is foiled by an inconsistent walk before those we are anxious to reach, and in many such ways is the work of the Holy Spirit checked. The counsel was suited to all phases of church and home life, and proved one of the most useful utterances of the mission.

In the evening, for the fourth time Mr Moody faced a large and expectant audience, in the Music Hall, and very faithfully did he expound the doctrine of the new birth. As usual, his address was prolific with illustrations drawn from personal observation and experience, and some very remarkable instances of men, deeply sunken in sin, having passed from death to life, were given. A solemn hush reigned throughout the hall, and when, at the close of the address, the speaker for the first time invited those who sought to learn the way of God more perfectly, to follow him into a smaller hall adjoining, there was a considerable response, and, so far as human observation could judge, some real work for eternity was done.

SATURDAY AND SABBATH.

But encouraging as were the tokens accompanying these gatherings, Saturday and Sunday saw yet greater things than these. The large concourse of market folk, who seemed to take possession of the town to dispose of their produce, very greatly swelled the ranks of listeners who thronged "The Quarry" for the afternoon service in the open air on Saturday. Sturdy farmers, market gardeners, men and women of all ages and various ranks, stood side by side attentively listening to the Word of life as it was forcibly proclaimed by homely truth or vivid picture.

At the close of the address an inquiry meeting was held on the spot, which presented the unusual sight of a popular pleasure resort converted at once into a trysting-place for sinner and Saviour. No time was lost by the workers in seizing the opportunity to press home upon the anxious and the careless the importance of personal surrender to the King of kings. In the evening the weather necessitated the use of the Music Hall, which was as before (only more so!) taxed to its utmost capacity, the inquiry meeting proving very fruitful in result.

Then came the work of the Sabbath, commencing at 8.30 a.m., when a large throng assembled to learn how "the Son of Man came to seek and to save that which was lost." At 3 p.m., an immense concourse of from six to seven thousand persons met again in "The Quarry," the most notable feature being the vast majority of men present. It was a grand sight, that sea of upturned bearded faces; some tanned with the sun and in other ways bearing tokens of honest labour; others wearing the hardened look born of long indifference to the things of God; while in not a few were visible unmistakable traces of drink and debauch. What more suitable subject than "Sowing and Reaping" to such a crowd as this; and it was manifest that the truths urged, and pointed by frequent allusions to the customs which the agriculturist knows so well, went with the arrow of conviction to the heart and conscience of not a few. This was further evidenced by the promptness with which was accepted the preacher's invitation to meet him in the Music Hall, as he went direct from the one place to the other. Off trooped the throng, traversing the half-mile intervening in a very few minutes, until to those unable to walk so fast was conveyed the unwelcome intelligence that the hall was packed and that no more room could be found. To those assembled inside Mr. Moody described the blessedness of the two Rests of Matt. xi. 28-30, and a time of great solemnity was experienced.

The evening meeting was fixed for the Music Hall, which was filled an hour before the time; it was then found that a large concourse had also collected in "The Quarry." These were ultimately gathered into the Workman's Hall, where Mr. W. R. Lane preached, and for the further overflow an open-air service was held in the Market-square. Mr. Moody's discourse on Herod was as appropriate as that in the afternoon, as he pressed immediate decision upon those who were "not far from the kingdom of God." The workers rallied well to the privilege of dealing with the anxious, and were rewarded by the profession of many who they had entered into the joy of the Lord.

A farewell meeting was held in Castlegate Congregational Church on Monday morning, at which some wise counsels and practical hints were given for the living out of the blessing that had been received. The work of following up was entrusted to Mr. Lane, who continued until Wednesday evening. G.

A minister of the town writes:—"Shrewsbury has been greatly blessed, and praying people have shared in the fulfilment of the promise of Pentecost. At first it was felt to be a great disappointment that Mr. Sankey was not coming, but from the time that the tide began to rise the assemblies forgot man that they might listen to what the Lord would speak. It was manifest that the Lord had come up with his servant and co-workers, for all felt the constraint of the Holy Ghost within, and witnessed his power resting on each of them. Ministers, officers, and members of the churches have been united in waiting for the blessing, and it has come; they have been revived by seeing the joy of others finding salvation by being born again. During a pastorate of nearly twenty years, I have seen nothing like this as a revival of religion in this dear old town."

WOLVERHAMPTON.

The Evangelist proceeded from Shrewsbury to this town, where he was cordially welcomed by a number of the ministers whose names had appeared on the requisition. A preliminary meeting for ministers and workers was held on Monday afternoon, and in the evening between two and three thousand persons assembled in the Drill Hall. We hope next week to give an account of the meetings.

Rev. Archibald G. Brown.

Dear Sir,—Will you allow me to say through your columns that it is impossible for me to make any outside preaching engagements? My dear wife still continues very dangerously ill, and I spend most of the week with her, only coming up to town for the Thursday and Sunday services. I ask this, as it will save my daughter no little work in the way of correspondence.

May I also add that all the mission work and Homes are carried on as usual? It would be a great relief amid much trouble if my friends would remember this, and save me bearing any extra burden. For years I have willingly gone all over the country trying in some little way to help others; will they now help me in a season of sorrow and trial?—Yours faithfully,

Archibald G. Brown.

22, Bow-road, E., June 11.

For the Young.

DAISIES AND BUTTERCUPS.

The sun was shining one summer morning upon a peaceful country landscape; trees were waving in the soft breezes; meadows had just changed from green to gold, and in the hedgerows birds were chirping, and cottages peeped out here and there with their gardens gay with flowers, and musical with the hum of bees from the old-fashioned bee-hives which appeared against sunny walls.

In one of these cottages unusual activity might be observed. "A regular turning out," Mrs. Raynor called it, as she shook, and swept, and dusted; helped, or perhaps hindered, by a bright-faced little girl with a curly head, who was endeavouring to do everything that "mother" did. The mother was bright-faced, too, though a shade of sadness now and then overspread the features, and once she sighed as she sat down for a moment in the little room she was cleaning, but it was only for a moment. A glance at little Bessie, vigorously rubbing the casement window with her mother's cap, which had fallen off, restored her equanimity, and giving the child a hearty kiss she recommenced operations.

"The sooner I go off the better, I suppose," remarked a man, looking in. "I don't see as I can help much. Fancy doing all this for a little rascal of a boy, now! He's used to dirt, I'll be bound!"

"Very likely, Jem, and all the more reason why he sha'n't see it here. We must teach the poor little London boy some nice country lessons—mustn't we, Bess?"

"I'll teach him to make buttercup balls and daisy chains," said Bessie, "and oh, mother, may I go with father as far as high meadow?" and having obtained permission, off she ran, and Mrs. Raynor pursued her thoughts aloud as she worked. "A boy! and I didn't want a boy a bit. I wouldn't have minded a little girl, Bessie's age, but we've never had a boy in the house since my Willie was taken—and in his little room, too! If Minister hadn't asked, I couldn't have done it. Well, I hope he won't be up to London tricks and teach Bessie bad ways. I must keep her away if I can. Poor little chap! been ill and has no mother. I'll make him happy, and he can go out with father."

That same morning, the same sun, but with much feebler rays, shone into the murky courts of the London slums, and penetrated to a stifling room where a pale-faced lad of about eleven years old was gazing with great eager eyes through the grimy windows. He had a large handkerchief wrapped round his neck and a cap on his head, and he held a bundle in one hand. It was evident that he was going somewhere and waiting for someone. Ever since the doctor had told him he was to go into the country and be quite cured of his long and tedious illness, Bill Evans had been in a state of wild excitement; he had the very vaguest idea of what the country meant, for he had never been out of London, and only once or twice in the parks, and he had no one to talk to about it, for since his illness he had been shut up in the room, a corner of which he called his own. A woman, who said she was his aunt, had looked after him a little, but hour after hour had been spent alone on the hard, comfortless floor, which was his only bed. One friend he had, a district visitor, and though he was too busy to come often, he had been the greatest blessing to the friendless little lad, and it was through him that this boon had come of a fortnight in the country.

Evening came, and little Bill Evans had arrived. Mrs. Raynor's motherly heart had melted and her fears vanished as she saw the wasted little form and large pathetic eyes of her guest, and he had a warm welcome. She heaped his plate with good things and was vexed to see how little he could eat, and Bessie wanted to take him out at once for a walk.

"Not till to-morrow," said mother; "he's tired out with the journey, and the sooner he's in bed the better." And soon little Bill was sound asleep in a bed, such as he had never in all his life slept in before; and he did not wake next morning till John Raynor was off to his work, and Bessie had had her breakfast and had been in and out twenty times to see if Bill had waked, so Mrs. Raynor's precautions for that day were frustrated.

And what did the little city sparrow behold when the sun, shining through the clean windows, roused him from his slumbers, and he crept, wondering, to look out? You and I, reader, would simply have seen a bit of flat country, fields and lanes, and hedges, and a few trees, and a strip of dusty road. What Bill saw was Paradise! Surely "that country so bright and so fair," that the hymn spoke of, could not be more beautiful than this—the lovely green fields, and others with a gleam of gold all over them, the flowers in the little garden beneath, birds singing in the tall, waving trees. And what was that sparkling water down in the long grass? Where did it come from, and where was it going?

This question Bill propounded while eating his breakfast, while Mrs. Raynor and little Bessie watched the already improving appetite with approval.

"Bless the boy!" said the former, "he means the stream that runs right through Baker's meadow to the river. Come, Bill, finish that bread-and milk, and Bess shall take you for a walk, and don't you let her get her feet wet."

"And may we pick the gold flowers, ma'am?"

Again Mrs. Raynor said, "Bless the boy!" and Bessie added, "He means the buttercups, mammie; he's never seen any—he says they don't grow in London." And off the children started. It was a never-to-be-forgotten walk for Bill Evans.

The Raynors were outwardly religious, and they attended Divine service regularly every Sunday, and taught Bessie hymns and verses from the Bible, and put away her toys, but no real love to God was in their hearts, and they had not felt the need of a Saviour. When their only boy died, several years before, eternal things seemed very near, but though they still mourned him, the serious impressions had passed away, and Bill's simple faith was new to them, and so were the stories from the Bible he would tell Bessie while they sat in the sunny meadows making daisy chains, and picking great bunches of buttercups.

"Well, wife," said John Raynor one evening when the children were gone to bed, "Bill isn't a bad sort of boy, after all. I expect we shall miss him, and what the little 'un will do I can't think."

"John," said Mrs. Raynor, putting down her knitting, "there never was such a boy, except one, and that was our Willie—doesn't he remind you of him?"

"Yes, now he's filled out a bit and got some colour he has a look of our boy; the same name, too, and the same nature—always wanting to help everybody."

"That he has!" replied Mrs. Raynor, warmly; "why, there's not a thing he wouldn't do for me, if I were to let him! And such nice manners, and such a sweet temper, and so trustworthy! I'd let Bessie go anywhere with him, and our child is ever so much more obedient since he came. I'll tell you what it is, John—it's religion—religion is a real thing with Bill."

"That's it, wife, I do believe."

"John," said Mrs. Raynor, after a pause, during which she wiped her eyes, "why should little Bill go? He could keep Willie's room."

"I'd be willing to keep the little chap, and welcome," said her husband. "Let's ask Minister about it."

This suggestion was carried out next day, and the result was great joy in that little cottage. Bill Evans never went back to the London slums, the kind Raynors gained a son in place of the one they had lost and little Bessie a brother, and best of all, through the loving influence of the Christian boy, and in answer to his prayers, his friends were led to the Saviour, and "Peace, perfect peace"—God's own peace—dwelt in that little home.

This little story is written to aid the country holiday work of the London Congregational Union. Last year over five hundred poor London children were rejoiced in spirit and improved in bodily health by a fortnight in the country, and several thousands more were made glad by occasional excursions to green fields and rural delights. Ten shillings pays the entire cost of a fortnight's holiday for a boy or girl, who, but for the generosity of loving hearts, would know nothing of country life. The children are selected because they have been ill, or are in delicate health, and need bracing up for the work of life. Ten or twelve cottages in a charming village in Kent have been selected for the holiday homes of such children, who will be sent from London in parties of fifty or more, according to the amount of contributions received.

ORPHAN GIRLS AT FLORENCE.

The Protestant Orphanage for Girls at Florence was formerly called Collegio Ferretti, in honour of its founder. The objects are first to provide a refuge for the orphans of Protestant Italians, and secondly, to enable colporteurs and missionaries to secure a good education for their daughters, on moderate terms. It has also, occasionally, offered to foreign Protestants residing in Italy, and of limited resources, the advantages of an educational establishment

During the past twenty-five years shelter and education have been given to a considerable number of people from all parts of Italy, most of whom would otherwise have remained uninstructed, or have been subjected to Roman Catholic training. Last year the inmates ranged from forty-five to forty-seven.

The inmates receive a good plain education, the larger number being fitted for domestic service, while those who give promise of intellectual ability receive such training as may enable them to pass the Government examinations. Of these several have obtained the requisite diplomas, and are now qualified teachers in schools and private families, thus diffusing, in ever-widening circles, the benefits of their own early training in Scriptural truth.

The total expense last year amounted to 16,320 lire, which brings the cost of each person to the small sum of less than one franc per day. Eight girls left the Home during the year, and seven new ones were admitted.

The secretary of the English Committee-in-Aid is Miss Reynett, 3, Cranley-place, Onslow-gardens, S.W.

OPEN-AIR WORK IN IRELAND.

Two meetings of open-air preachers and workers were lately held in the Christian Union Buildings, Dublin. At the first, a tea-meeting and conference, Mr. Jas. Barton, Hon. Sec. of the Irish Evangelisation Society, presided, and the meeting was addressed by Revs. R. C. Hallowes and H. Harrison, of Arklow, Mr. James Price, Mr. John R. Fowler, Mr. Geo. Williams, Captain R. W. Thompson, and others. Very encouraging accounts were given of open-air work in many parts of Ireland, especially by the itinerating preachers of the Irish Church Missions at fairs and market places. Besides preaching the Gospel, copies of the Scriptures and other religious literature was freely sold. All spoke of the greater opportunities for this kind of Christian work than formerly, and the more ready access to Roman Catholics when earnestness and love for souls is combined with discretion and tact.

At this meeting the committee were requested by resolution to appoint a secretary to organise and arrange open-air meetings throughout Ireland.

The second meeting, a breakfast, took place on Friday, June 10. The presence in Dublin of so many ministers of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, many of whom are known to be in sympathy with this kind of Christian work, made it desirable to awaken further interest in the Open-air Mission. Fifty-five gentlemen were present, most of whom were ministers of the Gospel. Mr. J. R. Fowler presided, and explained the objects of the Mission.

The meeting was addressed by a number of friends, and encouraging testimony was given of the good resulting from open-air meetings and of the readiness of the people to hear the Word.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sun., June 19, Luke ii. 18-35; Mon., June 20, ii. 36-52; Tues., June 21, iii. 1-14; Wed., June 22, iii. 15-23; Thurs., June 23, iv. 1-15; Fri., June 24, iv., 16-32; Sat., June 25, iv. 33-44.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. H. Hutchinson, Lincoln, June 16, 17; Stedham, June 19; Lancing, June 20; Mr. Jas. S. Tyler, Christ Church Hall, Lancaster-road, Enfield, to June 17. Mr. T. Lewes Sayer, St. Andrew's Hall, Upper Norwood, to June 24; Mr. A. G. Dodderidge, St. Leonards and Hastings, to June 17; Anerley, June 25. Guildford Convention, July 2 and 3.

PRESBYTERIANS IN IRELAND.

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland met last week in Dublin. Rev. R. McCheyne Edgar, of Dublin, was unanimously elected Moderator; in his opening address he showed the evil of placing any mediators between God and man, and the impossibility of any reunion of Christendom on the basis of the "Historic Episcopate," or "round Rome as a nucleus." It is evident that during the year the influenza epidemic told severely on the pastorate of the Church, as twenty-six ministers died, the annual average for the last eighteen years being only fifteen. The Independent congregation in Agnes-street, Belfast, was received into connection with the Assembly, and leave was given to establish four new congregations in Belfast. The statistical report was fairly encouraging. The Assembly has now under its care 558 congregations and 82,000 families, being an increase of 3000 families since 1882. It lost, however, during the year 81 families and 563 Church members. It has a capital of £1,003,692, and its revenue last year was £232,834 10s. It has 758 day-schools, with 35,000 scholars; 1084 Sunday-schools, with 9979 teachers; 103,655 scholars, and 60,739 members of Bands of Hope. It employs twelve missionaries in India, four in China, besides those in Hamburg, Spain, and Syria. It has 640 ministers in Ireland, and 33 colporteurs. The spiritual life of the Church is not, however, in as satisfactory a state as could be wished, and Rev. Dr. Rodgers, of Whiteabbey, who presented the report on this subject, compared the present time with the year 1859, greatly to the disadvantage of the former period.

Two events which will do much to make this year's Assembly historic took place. One was a conversazione, given by the Presbyterians of Dublin on Thursday night, at which Lord Plunket, Archbishop of Dublin, was present; and the other was a garden-party, given to the members of the Assembly by Lord Plunket, at his residence, Old Connaught, Bray, on Friday evening. At this the Archbishop delivered an address, in which he said that if the various Protestant Churches cannot have fusion or federation, he did not see why they should not have fraternisation, inasmuch as they were already united by internal affinity and external danger. These sentiments were reciprocated by Rev. Dr. Lynd and others on behalf of the Assembly, and there can be no doubt that such friendly meetings between the two most powerful Protestant Churches in Ireland will do much to break down the religious rancour that has too often characterised the representatives of each, and have been a hindrance to the work of God in Ireland.

THE SHAFTESBURY INSTITUTE.

A large and influential meeting, at which H.R.H. Princess Christian was present, was recently held at 79, Harley-street, by invitation of Lady Jeune. The drawing-room was lent to Miss Meredith Brown for her advocacy of the work of the Shaftesbury Institute, and contributions, at the request of Lady Jeune, were given in memory of the late Dr. Donald Fraser, who took a deep heart-interest in the work. The promissory papers handed to the Chairman, after Miss Meredith Brown's address, amounted to about £270, £50 of which will be devoted to establish "The Fraser Dormitory" in the Labour Home, and to enlarge the women's and children's shelter at the Girls' Institute; a portion will be used to pay off the loan of £235 on the New Labour Home buildings, and the remainder will go to help the Girls' Institute. £500 was the sum asked for, so that £200 is yet required.

Sir Wm. Mackinnon, Bart., who occupied the chair, thanked the Princess for her kind interest. He said he had paid a visit to the Shaftesbury Institute, and he could testify to the admirable work carried on there.

Miss Meredith Brown alluded to the great loss the work had sustained in the death of Dr. Donald Fraser, and gave a graphic account of life and work among the roughs of West London. She stated that the plan of work included room-to-room visitation in the uncared-for streets in the district. About five hundred visits had been paid by the deaconesses during the past month. A day nursery is much needed; it is a home for many little ones whose mothers are compelled to go out to work, and it is a means of reaching the mothers, who are often touched by the loving care bestowed on their little ones.

Miss Brown concluded with a strong appeal for funds. Living among the roughs, she said, was no sacrifice; it was a privilege to give life; but life will only do half the work. God commits to his stewards the privilege of sharing in his work by giving.

Short addresses were given by the Rev. O. P. Wardell-Yerburgh (rector of the parish), Canon Girdlestone, and Dr. Schofield.

A WAIF OF THE STREETS.

BY T. J. BARNARDO, F.R.C.S.Ed.

"It is the most miserable infant I ever beheld," wrote a missionary from the Whitechapel district on behalf of a recent candidate for the Homes. He added: "The baby has been hired out to beggars ever since its birth." Such statements as these prepared me for a sad history, and on investigation I found my anticipations fully borne out by the facts revealed. The baby's mother had been a tramp, who died when the child was three months old. Then the little thing had been exploited for her own ends by the "deputy" of the lodging-house in which it had been left. By the time it was two years old nobody in the lodging-house would own it. It had been systematically let out on hire to beggars who frequented the house or the neighbourhood, and who wanted a baby in arms as a means of reaching the sympathies of the benevolent; but the police had of late grown so inquisitive and suspicious with regard to such classes of beggars that the baby had become a drug in the market. It was pitiable to think of such a forlorn little creature so situated, and I was glad to open my doors for its reception.

"THE BABY HAS BEEN HIRED OUT TO BEGGARS EVER SINCE ITS BIRTH."

It is not easy to describe in words what the baby was like, and my artist can hardly help my readers to realise its appearance. Suffice it to say that all baby-lovers would have their feelings harrowed up with indignation could they have beheld, as I did, the wizened little object that was carried into our office a few nights after the good missionary's application reached me. It was quite clear that never in its brief life (though it looked so pitiably old!) had the little one received the care and attention which a baby needs. Now it has already grown visibly younger, and is, for the first time in its life, something like a baby of civilisation.

But why did you not allow this infant to go to the workhouse? Chiefly for one reason: simply because it would not have been brought to the workhouse. Although the child was a superfluity, not one of the women in the house would have thought of such a thing, even if it were dying of want. Had I not received the baby, it would have remained where it was, picking up a precarious livelihood, dragged up "anyhow," depending on the chance generosity of the lodgers, and, of course, becoming certainly prepared for degradation in the near future. How primitive were the conditions of this unrescued little life may be gleaned from a small detail which the artist has conscientiously reproduced in this engraving. When admitted the child had round its toe a string attached to a piece of rag. This was its plaything, and was alternately sucked and toyed with! But anything sadder than the sight of that wizened little creature, gravely playing with its one object of interest, I can hardly imagine. The missionary who carried the baby to me was himself a great, strong, fine-looking man, and well accustomed to sights and scenes of misery, yet even he was overcome by the pathetic misery of this little waif, who was without one friend except himself in the whole world.

Ah, sad little one! We estimate thy frail life, not by man's often cruel and contemptuous standard, but by our sense of thy vast and solemn potentialities for good or for ill, which can only be read aright in the light of the Redeemer's cross and passion!

Our agents are constantly at work raking the very slums to rescue children from degradation and suffering. The work is ceaseless, winter and summer. To-day nearly 4500 are under my care, for all of which I beseech the practical sympathy of my readers. I hope our second party of two hundred trained lads will sail for Canada on June 23.

18 to 26, Stepney-causeway, London, E.

SHIPWRECKED DISTRESS.

"Thank God, sir, we're all here!" or, "Only the ship's dog left aboard in the last rush, sir!" is, alas! not always a possible response to the sympathetic question, "Any loss of life, men?" put ever and anon by the officers and representatives of our National Maritime Relief Organisation, the Shipwrecked Mariners' Society, to the weather-beaten, rescued crew of some ill-fated craft. Too often, by far, comes, in reply, the half-choked utterance, "All gone but us, sir!" perchance adding, with a manly tear of hardly-suppressed emotion, "and we've got to break it to those at home, sir!"

These hapless sailors of the nation—it may be famished, naked, bruised, and wholly destitute, yet, amid their own distressful plight, themselves so bravely resigned, and so nobly mindful of their lost shipmates, with the consequent overwhelming grief to others—have incontestably, by title of their dire need, the most indisputable of claims upon, and with grateful heart and voice receive, the nation's ready help, to the number of between 4000 and 5000 yearly restored to hope and to home, on the nation's behalf, through the medium of the Shipwrecked Mariners' Society.

A still further conspicuously charitable feature of this same national work is the immediate seeking out, on first news of disaster, of the widow, the orphan, or the aged parent, at the suddenly desolated fireside, wherever located, of the drowned sailor, and the organised instant succouring of their every want, with such a benevolent promptitude that the timely proffer of consolation and aid not infrequently forestalls the sad tidings of bereavement.

In especial connection with this divinely-commended mission of "visiting the fatherless and widow in their affliction," could be recounted, side by side with tale upon tale of surpassing wretchedness and woe, full many a thrilling incident, or affecting "touch of nature" which "makes the whole world kin"; as when, perhaps, attracted by some outward semblance—haply, of the never more to be welcomed father—the gleeful, albeit now truly orphaned babe, with expectant arm outstretched to greet the Society's kindly almoner, will joyously call, "Daddy! Daddy!" till himself well-nigh all overcome at the scene, the visitor, with fast-moistening eye, scarce can make known his errand of mercy and comfort to the prostrated mourners.

Thus charitably labouring from year to year, during the past fifty-three years, in the beneficent fulfilment of its national scope, "the alleviation of every phase of shipwreck distress amongst the seafaring population," assuredly indeed may it be said by the Shipwrecked Mariners' Society: "The blessing of him that was ready to perish came upon me, and I caused the widow's heart to sing for joy.

WILFORD-ROAD MISSION.—Middle-row and Wilford-road are known to many as the "open sore" of Croydon. In this sad district, and chiefly among miserable women and children, Miss K. Peake has laboured for four years, and has been used in the rescue of many who seemed utterly hopeless. A little paper just issued gives several touching illustrative cases of girls and young women saved from the saddest lives. We understand there is need for funds, and no doubt many interested in the district will aid in clearing off the deficit of fourteen pounds. Communications should be made to Rev. J. F. Lepine, 37, Dingwall-road, Croydon.

REV. GEORGE COUSINS,

EDITORIAL SECRETARY, LONDON MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

IT is not very often that a man is successful in the foreign mission field and also in work at home. The gentleman whose portrait we give this week has achieved this. The position he holds, and the high esteem which is so readily accorded by his fellow-workers and others, have been fairly earned by persistent and conscientious toil in positions which have been beset with difficulties. Much of his work has been creative. We mean that there have been no ruts, or clearly-defined lines of work, for him to travel in, and by which industry, energy, and the Spirit's help ensured success. It has been so ordained that Rev. GEORGE COUSINS should enter the Madagascar Mission and the London Mission House at times when great changes were impending. To his share in these he has brought a mind clear, straightforward, practical, and singularly free from prejudice. Whilst ready to adopt any methods which appeared suitable for his purposes, he has not hesitated either to alter or to reverse his methods as experience or the requirements of the work in hand seemed to need.

In 1864 there was a further demand for workers in Madagascar. The Mission, after being closed for twenty-five years, had been re-opened two years before by a band of men under the venerable Rev. William Ellis; and, although its prospects appeared uncertain, it was deemed wise to make the most of the opportunity. The hand of God was doubtless with the bold policy then initiated, and the faith thus shown has been confirmed by abundant success. Mr. Cousins was appointed to this work. Before leaving England he was united to Miss C. Dixon, of Horbury.

Upon arriving at the capital in August, 1864, Mr. Cousins took charge of the church at Ambatonakanga, with the country district attached to it, at first as the junior colleague of Rev. William Ellis, afterwards as his successor. The great interest attached to this spot is that here the first building for Christian worship in Madagascar was erected, and also that in the old native chapel many Christians were imprisoned; some dying there of their sufferings, and others being taken thence to execution.

Upon this historic site the directors determined to erect the first of the series of memorial churches, in which the love and sympathy of British Christians should be visibly expressed to their long-suffering Malagasy brethren. This massive building was designed and erected under the supervision of Mr. James Sibree, F.R.G.S. (Mr. Cousins' successor as Principal of the College), who, amid numberless difficulties and delays, on August 31, 1866, fixed the finial cross, and, led by Mr. Cousins, the little group at the top of the tall spire united in prayer and praise to God for his preserving watchfulness and help.

While the progress of the evangelistic work under Mr. Cousins' charge was continuous, there were years when the Mission seemed to leap forward, and he expressed his feelings by saying that "none were more astonished than the missionary." The year 1869 was one of wonderful change and progress. The adherents sprang from 37,000 to 153,000, but the missionaries became wary of admitting as church members those who had not been tested. Mr. Cousins says that out of the twenty thousand people then under his care, more than fourteen thousand had given up their heathenism in less than twelve months. His sphere of labour widened. Placing greater responsibility upon the deacons of Ambatonakanga, he directed the efforts of the numerous native helpers, who, with growing zeal and acceptance, itinerated as preachers among the village churches of the district. Evangelists were also sent out to new stations where there were no chapels, and also to render help to existing churches which had no one to guide them. Mr. Cousins also devoted much time to preaching at the out-stations. Thus the itinerating system grew from paying occasional visits on the Sunday, with Bible-classes during the week in a few places, to a regular system of visitation.

The missionaries had long wished for some regular effort to be made to train young men for the ministry of the churches and as evangelists. In spite of many difficulties, it was determined to make a trial for six months. Mr. Cousins and Mr. Toy were requested to teach the students. They commenced with thirty-four, besides any pastors who liked to attend. The students and pastors proved satisfactory students. Mr. Cousins had ventured to hope that perhaps a dozen out of the original thirty-four would be found suitable. A much larger number, however, were capable, and a theological institution was established.

Mr. Toy having returned to England to recruit his health, it became impossible for Mr. Cousins to carry on the work both of the church and district and that of the institution, so at the end of 1870 he transferred the former to the care of Rev. C. F. Moss. This change coincided with the jubilee of the Madagascar Mission, of which Ambatonakanga was the mother church. The adherents throughout the island numbered 231,759, with 20,951 communicants.

(From a photograph by Mr. Mitchell, Oscar House Studio, Lewisham.)

In 1874 the Directors of the London Missionary Society approved a long-cherished project of the Madagascar missionaries, by which the theological institution was developed into a general college, so as to include not only young men in training for the Christian ministry, but others of superior intelligence, and some from the higher classes in society, who in future would occupy important positions in the government and the social life of the country. Suitable buildings having been sanctioned the erection commenced.

In 1874 Mr. Cousins returned to England on furlough, and resumed his duties in 1876 at the college. In the same year the church at Analakely, with its connected country district, was associated with the college, and placed under his charge.

Mr. Cousins' chief work in Madagascar was undoubtedly the college, which owes much to his earnest, persevering, and enthusiastic work for it. He also took a full share in the formation of a native literature, and has written several valuable books in Malagasy. He was for several years one of the delegates on the Committee for revising the Malagasy Bible, prior to which with his brother, Rev. W. E. Cousins, he had edited and partially revised an edition of a paragraph New Testament.

Besides being a first-rate Malagasy scholar, he held a high place as a preacher. No one surpassed him in the knowledge and command of colloquial Malagasy, and as a public speaker he was much liked.

The health of Mrs. Cousins, who had returned to England in 1881, was no longer equal to the demands of residence in that climate. When, therefore, at the end of 1883, the directors of the London Missionary Society were looking round for an agent to stimulate and organise the auxiliaries in the London district, and to take the editorship of the Society's literature, they found a suitable man ready for their purpose. Though reluctant to give up the work he loved so well, Mr. Cousins could not deny that the training and experience which his varied missionary activities had given him were just those needed for the post which was offered. The results of more than eight years' labour now proved that the Hand which prepares special workmen for peculiar posts had been purposeful in its operations towards this appointment.

Mr. Cousins upon taking up his new duties in January, 1884, soon made himself familiar with the London churches and their requirements. With steady persistence he has sought to unite them for the purposes of the Society, and to develop in each the organic features which have become prominent in the best-managed town and provincial auxiliaries. His work in this direction has issued in the formation of the Metropolitan Auxiliary Council, which, besides working in the interests of the London Missionary Society, also nominates forty-five persons yearly to the directorate. Several suggestions, of a progressive character, made by the Council have been adopted by the Board of Directors. Doubtless much good will result to the Society by the healthful energy which the united power of so large a number of churches will in due time exert if well directed.

Much good has accrued to the Society by the establishment of the Young Men's Missionary Band. Mr. Cousins' object in calling meetings of young men at the Mission House was, by giving them missionary information and encouraging them to speak, to qualify some at least for addressing juvenile audiences, and for delivering lantern lectures on missions. The Band has been most successful, and in about a dozen provincial towns similar associations have been established.

Mr. Cousins' hand and skill are even more apparent in the literature of the London Missionary Society. He has brought both wisdom and artistic perception into play. The growing appreciation of the Directors in Mr. Cousins' labours was emphasized last year in their making a special department for literature, of which he has been appointed secretary. They also elected him assistant foreign secretary of the Society, and it is to be hoped that he may long be spared to fulfil the onerous duties resting upon him.

MISS TAYLOR'S SCHOOL, BEYROUT.

This is a work worthy of notice. For nearly thirty years Miss Jessie Taylor has been labouring in Mount Lebanon with untiring devotion, largely amongst orphan children of Moslem parentage, although she reaches many others, including men and women. Having seen a great deal of her work for some time past, and spending many hours at her house, I wish to speak of its reality and thoroughness, both spiritually and temporally. In all my travels as one who visits all quarters of the globe in missionary interest, I have been particularly struck by the care taken to follow up by very careful supervision Gospel addresses and personal dealing, so as to instil the truths into the hearts of all.

Several times a week texts bearing upon various sides of truth are given, and without any help or copying from one another, they write out their ideas and personal experience of the same. Their original thoughts and expressions are very simple, and often deeply touching. I have seen tears filling the eyes of those who read them.

The influence God has given our good sister over the hearts and minds of so many is very remarkable; she is much beloved and respected by the Moslems, and from time to time the Holy Ghost has set his seal to the work, and especially of late, her faithful labours have been rewarded. It need hardly be added that many and deep have been the trials of such a work, watered and strengthened with many tears and prayers. Never has the Lord's goodness failed during the late long hard times of quarantine (through cholera); numbers have been helped; though great has been the struggle, blessed has been the work. The many years of constant labour, though cheerfully borne, and recent illness have begun to tell upon the strength and constitution of our beloved sister. Any one who would feel it a privilege to help this true work for the Lord could do so by either communicating with Miss Taylor, the Moslem School, Beyrout, Syria, or Mr. W. Ferguson, Kinmundy House, Mintlaw, near Aberdeen. J. H.

[The above is from Mr. Joseph Hannington. I visited Miss Taylor's school last year, and heartily endorse what Mr. Hannington has said.—R. C. Morgan.]

[524]

Convention at Stoke Newington.

"They perceived that this work was wrought of our God." As the writer's eye fell on this text it seemed a fitting beginning for a brief report of the Wellington-road Convention, held from May 30 to June 5. In some of the meetings especially the power of the Lord was remarkably felt, and we would fain write these lines to show forth the loving-kindness and the faithfulness of God, to whom be all the praise! Great things were asked of Him in earnest, united prayer; and it is believed eternity alone will reveal the blessed results of this gathering. Whilst thoroughly Scriptural teaching came from the lips of those of various sections of the One Church, one sometimes lost sight of who was speaking in view of the power of the Lord, and his application of the word spoken. The conveners were Dr. F. Montague Miller (who owns Wellington-road Hall, and has meetings there every Sunday and every Tuesday evening), and Rev. W. Darlow Sarjeant (of the Wesleyan West-end Mission).

The later attendance was good, particularly in the evening, when about eight hundred were present. On Sunday evening, by close packing, some one thousand found room. The chief speakers were Rev. R. W. Colquhoun (Maidstone), Rev. E. Davidson (York), Rev. J. Gelson Gregson (Bradford), Rev. J. G. Mantle (Birmingham), Mr. Reader Harris (Clapham), Rev. C. G. Moore (China Inland Mission), Rev. E. Potts (Nottingham), Mr. Thomas Payne (London), Rev. R. Turner Sole (Margate), Dr. W. Woods Smyth (Maidstone), Rev. Geo. D. Watson, D D. (Florida, U.S.A.), Mrs. Armitage, and Mrs. Watson.

In some of the smaller meetings the feeling seemed to prevail that (to quote the words of Mr. Mantle) "what the world wants is a band of men and woman who know how to use their priestly functions, and in God's name and power give blessing to others. I am more concerned," he said, "about the Church than the world." "O God, have mercy on these modern churches," were the words of another speaker; "worldliness is eating out the heart of the churches!"

After reading from Zech. iii., Mr. Mantle said: "I am quite sure that if the words spoken this afternoon are effectual, and the prayers answered, some will see things to be 'filthy' that appeared fairly clean before. God uses this strong language again and again, and why should we hesitate to do so? In God's sight all sin is great; as Dr. Dale said: 'If God can save a man from vile outbursts of temper, can he not save a man from anger of heart? If you have something to put off, bring it now before the Lord Jesus Christ, and He can heal it now; something that has been grieving you and Him. Point it out to Him now, and in his strength you will be able to put your foot on the neck of your fallen enemy.'" Mr. Mantle referred to holiness in commerce, and spoke of a gentleman who said to him, after a meeting, "It seemed as if God were writing down thing after thing in my business that is wrong. It will cost me hundreds of pounds to make the changes, but I am going to do it."

A lady spoke very earnestly of the need of giving ourselves time to hear the voice of the Good Shepherd. Jesus said, "My sheep hear my voice," and I am quite sure that if we want to hear God's voice we must wait upon Him, and be eager to hear it. There are some Christians so busy with God's Word they have no time to seek to know Him.

Mr. Davidson spoke from the text, "The very God of peace sanctify you wholly." It should not be forgotten that as soon as a person is regenerate by the work of the Holy Spirit, sanctification is begun in his nature. This leads us to inquire into the nature of entire sanctification. It is thus defined by Fletcher of Madeley: "Entire sanctification is the pure love of God and man shed abroad in the believer's heart, to cleanse and to keep him clean from all filthiness of flesh and spirit, and to enable him to keep the law of Christ. It is the removal from our moral nature of everything opposed to God's Holy Spirit. Thus in a person who is sanctified wholly there will be faith without unbelief, love without anger, obedience without wilfulness, patience without murmuring, and so on." In the regenerate there may be a great deal of love, but in some corner of the heart some enmity; and when the fire of God's Spirit falls upon that corner, it destroys it all. In the merely regenerate man there will be much of faith, but in some corner a little unbelief, and the Holy Spirit comes and removes that.

Especially on Tuesday, Friday, and Sunday evenings, the rooms were filled and refilled with earnest seeking souls; though we are sure a far greater work was done than that seen by mortal eye. Frances Anne Budge.

VICTORIA HOMES FOR WORKING-MEN.

For several years the necessity of maintaining the Emigrants' Christian Home at Blackwall has been steadily decreasing, in consequence of the discontinuance of the assistance to emigrants formerly given by the Government of Queensland. It is, therefore, proposed to open the building on an early day as a temperance hotel, and so to continue, in a sense, the blessed work which had been carried on under its roof, in ministering to another class of people.

But the two East-end model lodging-houses, as they may be called—the Victoria Home for Working-men, No. 1, Commercial-street, and No. 2, Whitechapel-road — which arose out of the Blackwall effort, have been steadily growing in importance as instruments for temporal and spiritual good. Last Thursday afternoon a full representation of all interested in these Homes met in that in Whitechapel-road to praise God for having called them to do his work, and to encourage each other to perseverance in well-doing.

Mr. T. A. Denny, who presided, gave the history of the Blackwall Home from 1883—when it was established by Lord Radstock and others—up to the present time, when there are no emigrants to see to, as the funds of the Queensland Government have failed. The Word of the Lord came with peculiar force to the hearts of those who had made that Home their last resting-place before leaving for a foreign land, and the instances of conversion were innumerable. As the institution at Blackwall had served to keep the emigrant from the snares of Ratcliff-highway, so the Homes for Working Men afforded an opportunity to the poor toiler to escape the demoralisation of the common lodging-houses. That in Commercial-street during the five years of its existence had sheltered 598,720 men, and the one in Whitechapel-road, opened eighteen months ago, 217,000. As these houses were conducted on business principles they were self-sustaining. Fourpence a day entitled a man to a clean bed, privacy, shelter, and several desirable aids to health and comfort. But beyond all this, the effort was unremitting to direct the wayfarer to the path that inevitably leads to the heavenly home into which neither suffering nor sin can enter.

Mr. E. Trotter said they required no funds. What they needed was constant aid from God in the difficulties which beset them. Hospital tickets, orders for convalescent homes, and the like could be turned to good account by their lady workers. Miss Keighley showed in the form of anecdote how old clothes and the things Mr. Trotter had mentioned could be of use in caring for the bodies and the souls of men. Mr. Wilke spoke of the efficacy of special prayer in cases of difficulty and perplexity. Mr. F. Deacon said it was easy to distinguish one who had given his heart to God, even in the most bitter poverty, by the very light which beamed on his countenance. Christ is the real help and stay. Among the others who participated in the exercises of this refreshing meeting were Miss Greenwood, Mr. Groves, Dr. Gage Brown, and Mr. George Holland.

DR. PENTECOST IN MARYLEBONE.

The fresh interest manifested in Marylebone Presbyterian Church since Dr. Pentecost undertook, for a year, the pulpit and pastoral duties, must be most encouraging to all associated with or responsible for the affairs of the congregation. Last Sunday evening we found the church well filled, a goodly proportion of the audience being young men.

Dr. Pentecost, who spoke for forty-five minutes, gave an able and masterly exposition of the passage Heb. ii. 6-11, the varied themes handled finding their unifying thought in the kinship between Jesus and the believer. In the first chapter of the epistle we find the Lord Jesus Christ set forth in his human character; and in the second chapter the Apostle raises the question how we will escape if we neglect the great salvation brought to us by Jesus Christ. Then he calls our attention to the fact that God did not make us for ruin, but for honour and glory. But alas! man is fallen, and we do not see man in honour, but in ruin. What do we see? We see Jesus crowned with glory and honour. The purpose of God in Man is first carried out and manifested in Jesus Christ. In Him, as the head of the new redemption, every believer is crowned with glory. Now, in order to bring many sons to glory, it was necessary the Captain, or author of their salvation should be made perfect through suffering. Here we come, then, to the great redemptive work of the Lord Jesus Christ; and this redemptive work is marvellously shown in the three great offices exercised by our Lord and Saviour—that of Prophet, Priest, and King.

There can be nothing more clear and conclusive than we need, in our blindness and ignorance, a teacher, and Jesus is that teacher. Hear how He is foretold: "The Lord thy God will raise up unto thee a Prophet from the midst of thee, of thy brethren, like unto Me" (Deut. xviii. 15). When Jesus appeared the Father said, "Hear ye Him," and He Himself said, "Moses, in the law, did write of Me." Here, then, is the Teacher, and this Teacher is our Brother. At this point the preacher introduced with remarkable effect an incident of his boyhood, when, in a Western village, he first heard a lecture on chemistry. How he longed to know more, to have certain points cleared up, but such a great man he dared not approach to ask what he wanted to know. But with Jesus as our Teacher, how different—a Brother; a Brother who loves us, then we may ask and He will answer.

Further teaching will not save us; knowledge will not save us. We need a priest—some one who can bring us unto God. This also is provided, and like the prophet, He is of our kin. "Take thou unto thee Aaron thy brother, and his sons with him, from among the children of Israel, that he may minister unto me in the priest's office." This daysman, advocate, mediator, has appeared for us, and has opened the way for us within the veil. As our Advocate He pleads guilty, and presents on our behalf the unchallengeable plea of his own perfect and complete atonement.

Then we need further a King to rule and defend, and God has given his King; but, as we find in the law of the King (Deut. xvii. 14, 15), the King, as well as the prophet and priest, must be "from among the brethren." So our King is our brother, and yearns over us in love. We are the brothers of a King. He is not ashamed to call us brethren, and there is our right, our claim, to succour now, and heaven and home hereafter.

THE BIBLE IN PORTUGAL.—In spite of monetary difficulties and increasing opposition, progress is being made in the publication of the "Illustrated Edition of the Bible," which is being brought out, in serial form at a low price, by Mr. H. W. Cassels, of Oporto. Already half the entire work has been published. The text followed is that of Figueiredo, and is identical with that of the few expensive editions which, under many restrictions, are issued by the authority of the Roman Catholic Church. Instead of notes the Latin Vulgate, as authorised by Sixtus V. and Clement VII. is given in smaller type at the foot. The engravings are the same as the collection used in Messrs. Cassell's Illustrated Family Bible, and the maps, expressly prepared by Rev. R. H. Moreton, are the only thing of the kind ever published in the Portuguese language. The subscribers are under a thousand in number, so that the great expenditure is so far but ill requited. Further information on the subject may be had by addressing Rev. Dr. Noyes, secretary, Spanish and Portuguese Church-Aid Society, 8, Adam-street, Adelphi, W.C.

RABBI LICHTENSTEIN'S TRIALS.

The sketch which we recently gave of the life and Christian testimony of Rabbi Lichtenstein, of Tapio-Szele, in Hungary, excited a widespread interest in a very remarkable man. The June issue of The Jewish Herald publishes a letter from the Rabbi to Mr. Roeder, of the British Jews Society. We give the substance of the communication:—

"You are not mistaken in the belief that the Lord has chosen me to be a teacher in Israel, because the Gospels which were to thousands of Jews as a sealed book have been opened and have comforted many since I began to witness for Christ. Yes, since 1886, many in my neighbourhood have been baptized, and, of course, this makes the enemy rage against me. In every way they try to hinder me; and my income has been cut down, so that I am in the greatest straits.

"Only the day before yesterday, a pious gentleman wrote to me for assistance, thinking that treasures flow into my lap. I told him 'silver and gold have I none,' but that which I have and give in the name of Jesus Christ has awakened a host of enemies and evil spirits against me. I have been, and I am still, sorely persecuted; materially, I am ruined, so that I am often reduced to extreme want, and this, with my sick wife, makes the trial inexpressibly severe.

"But 'man does not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God.' It seems you have not read my last pamphlet, 'Judaism and Christianity,' which I forwarded to you. I have already several others finished for the press, only I am in need of a friend who is able and willing to sacrifice a little for me, in order that I may entirely shake off the loathsome and pressing fetters which bind me as Rabbi.

"Be comforted! We will be courageous, strong for our people, for the cities of our God. May the Lord do what seems pleasing to Him."

Rev. John Dunlop, of the British Jews Society, states that he is about to visit the Continent, and hopes to make the Rabbi a friendly call. He would be glad to show him practical Christian sympathy on behalf of such as can enter into his severe trials. Letters to Mr. Dunlop may be addressed: 96, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury-square, W.C.

FORTY YEARS.

Where are the faces and homes so dear
In life's first joyous glow?
Hushed is the father's directing voice,
The mother's, soft and low;
Where are the little ones gone who played
Some forty years ago?

Where are the rays from our lives of love
To brighten mourners' tears?
Where are our heaven-born songs to drown
The death-bells in their ears?
How have we profited God or man,
Those wilderness-forty years?

Have we from self and the world been turned,
Truly counting the cost?
Walked on the wave at our Lord's command,
When calmed or tempest-tossed?
Lord, had we been what we might have been,
Those years had not been lost.

God may be bidding us look our last
On treasures laid up below;
He may be calling us near, even now,
To give us, ere we go,
Joys of the beautiful Beulah Land,
Where milk and honey flow.

Lord, we have longed in our better hours
To walk on earth with Thee;
Though we have failed so far, so far!
Thy grace is great and free—
Life, in a day, can be made as bright
As forty years may be.

Pardon, O Lord, the numberless sins
Of time that sped so fast,
Walk with our souls in the cool of eve,
Thy glory round them cast!
Grant them to set in a golden sea,
Their brightest hour, their last!

Donemana, Ireland. J. K.

GUILDFORD.—A suitable building has been acquired in High-street, Dorking, for the headquarters of the Y.M.C.A., and Lady Hope has furnished the rooms. The branch has over a hundred members.

YORKSHIRE EVANGELICAL UNION.

Last Thursday and Friday the third annual conference of this vigorous Union was held in the De Grey Rooms, York. Canon Favell, who presided, said, in his opening address, it was not true that to be an Evangelical consisted in the distinct pronunciation of narrow shibboleths or party watchwords. Evangelicals were not enslaved by "beggarly elements" of outward formalism. On the contrary, the very essence of Evangelicalism was in the emphasis it placed upon the spiritual verities of their most holy faith. It witnessed to and proclaimed the completeness of the sacrifice of atonement made by Jesus Christ upon the cross, as the one full, perfect, and sufficient sacrifice, oblation, and satisfaction for the sin of the whole world — capable neither of repetition nor of addition—the one means of peace for the wounded conscience and the troubled spirit. Again, Evangelicalism maintained and announced the all-sufficiency of the priesthood of Jesus Christ—that man needed no other mediator with God save the Man Christ Jesus. Once more, Evangelicalism realised and asserted the necessity and the efficacy of the ministry of God the Holy Ghost. Evangelicals claimed to be the successors of the spiritual giants of the last century. Let them see to it that they were indeed their successors in the spirituality, the consistency, the power of work.

Canon McCormick, in a paper on the article of the Apostles' Creed, "I believe in the Holy Catholic Church," said that the final court of appeal must be the Scripture, and not mere theories or traditions. Instead of a church contemporaneous with a nation, they had now a multitude of professing Christians scattered throughout the whole world, and split up into sections and churches, and these in the aggregate formed the visible church. The fact was, the Holy Catholic Church was a spiritual kingdom. Its seat was in the heart. It was builded not by ecclesiastics but by the Lord Himself. Rev. J. Hollywood (Bradford), Canon Fausset (York), and others took part in a discussion.

Addresses on new methods in missionary enterprise were afterwards given by Mrs. Bishop, and Rev H. Sutton.

On Friday morning a paper was read by Canon Fausset on "The Higher Criticism." The infallible authority of Scripture as the Word of God had in all ages been assailed, but the peculiarity of these last days was that the assault came from the professed friends and ordained ministers of the truth. A school of criticism had arisen maintaining that the Pentateuch was not the writing of Moses, but originated a thousand years later, and that Jewish priests, after the Babylonian captivity, in order to magnify their authority, wrote it in the name of Moses, to give it the greater weight. The speaker quoted numerous passages of Scripture in proof that the Pentateuch was the work of Moses under the Spirit of God, and maintained that even the position and action of the critics in these days went to prove the inspiration of Scripture.

Addresses on the same line followed by Revs. Dr. James, G. Sandford, C. Gore, and others.

ILFORD VILLAGE HOMES.—Dr. Barnardo invites all lovers of little children to visit the Village Home for Girls, Barking-side, Ilford, Essex, on Saturday, June 25, when it is hoped a memorial stone of the Children's Church will be laid, and many other interesting incidents take place. A special train will leave Liverpool-street at 2.12, which will be met at Ilford Station by carriages. Visitors desiring to be present should write at once to Mr. John Odling, 18 to 26, Stepney-causeway, London, E., for coach tickets, price two shillings each for the return journey. If wet, the function will be postponed to Saturday, July 2.

BAPTISM OF A JEWISH RABBI.—In the June issue of The Hebrew Christian, Rev. Jacob Freshman, of New York, describes a meeting at which he was privileged to receive a believing Jewish rabbi into the Christian Church. We read:—"The sermon concluded, Mr. Freshman asked the candidates for baptism to come forward. They did so, eleven in all, and all of one family. Rabbi Hermann Faust, Ph.D., his wife, and his two oldest children were baptized upon confession of their faith in Christ. It was their own idea and desire that in addition to their former names they should each receive a new name chosen from the New Testament." The seven young children were also given second names. A large number of Hebrews were present during the proceedings, and many Christian hearts were moved to tears of joy at this example of fidelity to conviction regardless of temporal cost.

LONDON'S DRIFT-CHILDREN.

Under the auspices of the Ragged School Union the Country Retreat for Drift-Children of East London was re-opened on Thursday last. The commodious shelter, capable of holding 400 to 500 children, is situated in a delightful part of Epping Forest, within ten minutes' walk of Snaresbrook Station, on the Great Eastern Railway. A goodly number of the friends of the Drift Children attended the afternoon meeting.

A special feature of the opening celebration was the presence of about 300 "grandmothers," to whom were given an outing by tram-car, and meals during the day. It was amusing to see the cheery faces of the old folks at sunset. "You know," said one, "I was brought up in the country, and it is such a treat to roam about the forest like this, and to see the green fields again." "I have found two or three ferns," said another; and she opened a bit of newspaper in which were also concealed some tiny oaks and other roots, which by this time are enlivening some abode in the slums. "What a fine bundle of rushes that little girl has," said a third. "I do so wish I had gathered a handful of them!" And her eyes sparkled with delight as the little maid gladly proffered the coveted rushes. When the tramcars arrived at the terminus, the grannies were as excited as a parcel of children, their faces betokening the happiness experienced during the day.

On Monday the first of a series of excursions to be provided out of the "Fresh Air Fund," contributed by the readers of Pearson's Weekly, took place, when over two hundred children, including thirty cripples, were entertained at the country retreat. We are glad to observe that £276 has already been subscribed to this fund, the aim being to provide twenty thousand "drift" children with a day's outing and good food at a cost of ninepence per head. We hope this commendable effort will meet with the generous support which it deserves. It is intended to convey about two hundred children daily to the country retreat during the next few months.

F. T. W.

LONDON CITY MISSION OUTING.

Three hundred of the London City Missionaries with their families or friends had their annual outing on Tuesday last week at Ramsgate and Broadstairs. Leaving London between eight and nine in the morning, they arrived at Ramsgate about noon, and then dispersed to spend the day amidst the scenery of the healthful, picturesque, and historic coast. Everywhere they were courteously and cordially received. In the afternoon they had a refreshing tea in the New Assembly Rooms and the Vale School-room at Broadstairs. Later in the day there was a well-attended public meeting in the New Assembly Rooms, Mr. C. M. Sawell presiding.

Rev. Mr. Davies, on behalf of the residents of the locality, heartily welcomed the missionaries, and gave them some pleasant exhortations. Rev. C. Bradshaw Foy, as representing the London clergy, expressed his sympathy with the great principle of Christian unity which permeated and directed the efforts of the London City Mission. As one who knew what the spiritual wants of a great metropolitan parish were, he could not but regard the missionary as an absolutely essential agent in dealing with men and women individually. Time, perseverance, tender solicitude are all requisite in awakening sinners to a realisation of their condition, and of imparting to them a lively conception of the pardoning, elevating, and purifying influence of the Gospel. There were living in London many in a worse state of moral degradation than any he had seen in the neglected deserts of Egypt.

Mr. Gilman, one of the missionaries specially appointed to work at the docks, gave an interesting account of the methods he pursued, and of the success he had met with among foreign Roman Catholic sailors. Mr. Sawell spoke with appreciation of the efforts that had been made by the people of the Thanet coast for the comfort of their visitors. Mr. Roberts, the local secretary, said the growing recognition of what the London City Mission was doing for London and for England must assuredly prompt increasing support. At a late hour the missionaries arrived in London.

THE GLOUCESTER CONVENTION.

Again we have proved God's faithfulness and loving-kindness. The praise meeting disclosed how much God had wrought. From beginning to end all was quiet, unostentatious, deep.

The work of the Holy Spirit was the pervading theme, and these were some of the chief thoughts set before us. In self we cannot accomplish the will and purpose of God. Life in the Spirit involves the abandonment of the self life. The fire of the Spirit consumes self-confidence, self-energy, self-ease, self-influence, self-sympathy (sympathy not proceeding from the Spirit). Fellowship with Christ in his risen life includes non-fellowship with sin and law, and obedience to the Spirit. If the management of our life is left in the Lord's hand, He will provide for all the needs. Fellowship with the risen Christ include also fellowship with the coming Christ. Some Christians lose the blessing and the power of their Nazarite consecration to God through the enticements of the flesh, and then, like Samson, they grind in a round of mechanical, religious duties, with their eyes put out, and they do not see God.

The phrase, "the evangelisation of the world" is inadequate. Our Lord says, "Make disciples of all nations." To live in the Holy Spirit puts one out of sympathy with the world, its amusements, its aims, its bondage, its dulness, and in sympathy with the will, and aims, and purposes of God in regard to ourselves, the Church, the Jew, and the world.

On Thursday afternoon 162 of various denominations gathered together at "God's Board," and the Lord made it a time of sweetest fellowship. "In one Spirit we are all baptized into one body."

John J. Luce.

University Notes.

CAMBRIDGE.

The Ramsden Sermon was preached on Sunday, June 5, at the University Church, by the Bishop of Derry, from John xvi. 14. He spoke on the office of the Holy Spirit in relation to (1) Christ's words; (2) Christ's Church.

The first day of the May Races was marred by the sudden death of an undergraduate. He was on his way down to the races when a thunderstorm commenced. On crossing a wide open common close to the river, walking with a friend, a sudden flash of lightning came and he dropped down dead. Medical aid was summoned, but proved of no avail, as life was already extinct. The thought, "It might have been me," sounded loud in many a young man's heart as the news spread among the crowds of 'Varsity men.

The Conference on Foreign Missions has been a great success, and well attended. The opening address on Tuesday evening was by Dr. A. T. Pierson. The room was literally packed, many having to stand. Rev. H. C. G. Moule was in the chair. Dr. Pierson spoke of two great ways in which God made known his will to men—(1) by his Word; (2) by his Providence. When those two combined they made the will of God not only very manifest but very emphatic. There ought to be no question as to the duty or the privilege of carrying the Gospel. The work will never be done till there come a revival of the spirit of devout and believing prayer. The only way to save their life was to lose it in the service of God.

On Wednesday morning Rev. Wardlaw Thompson, the Foreign Secretary of the London Missionary Society, spoke. Having touched on the wonderful revival of missionary zeal, he went on to speak of the magnificent opportunities. Every gift they had could be well used in foreign service.

Dr. Henry Martyn Clark, of the C.M.S., pleaded the claims of the Mohammedan world. He said that the missionary's life was a weary one if he had not a call from God. But if they were chosen he knew of no life to equal it.

Miss Geraldine Guinness gave a few words on the needs of China.

In the evening Lord Kinnaird took the chair and introduced Dr. Pentecost, who said he was profoundly convinced that the providence of God was that the world should be evangelised by Anglo-Saxon men, i.e., the English-speaking race.

Dr. Harry Guinness, of the Congo Mission, detailed the need of Africa. They way was open; they wanted more men.

On Thursday in the morning the speakers were Rev. J. B. McCullagh, C.M.S., N. Pacific; Rev. F. Sowerby, B.M.S., China; Rev. J. Mühlenbruch, missionary to the Jews in Roumania. Bishop Ridley, through ill-health, was obliged to be absent.

At the evening meeting the Principal of Ridley Hall announced the departure that morning of Mr. Ernest Millar for Central Africa. He said Mr. Millar quietly left them, as if he were merely going to London. Mr. Marcus Wood (C.I.M.), in the course of a stirring address, said that if they realised the Gospel, they would not want stirring up to send missionaries abroad.

Rev. J. Taylor Smith, Canon Missioner in Sierra Leone, said his message was "Launch out into the deep," but let it be at the Master's word; obedience would prove the secret of blessing.

Friday-morning meeting closed the conference, at which Rev. R. Clarke, Rev. A. F. Polhill-Turner and Mr. Dudley Kidd spoke.

OXFORD.

The special Annual University Sermon on Church Extension in the Colonies was preached on Sunday by Rev. H. W. Tucker, secretary of the S.P.G.

This is the term when the Martyrs' Memorial open-air services can be prosecuted with vigour, and the present term's work has been no exception to the rule.

The weekly meetings of the Oxford University Missionary Union have been well attended during this term, especially when the outdoor attractions of Oxford are remembered.

Two meetings were recently held at Wycliffe Hall in connection with the missions to seamen, Rev. T. S. Treanor, Chaplain of the Downs, giving an interesting account of that important work.

The Oxford Branch of the British Women's Temperance Association is about to lose by removal its indefatigable Hon. Secretary, Miss Harley, daughter of the Rev. R. Harley, formerly of George-street Congregational Church. Miss Harley has done much to further the work of the association in Oxford.

The links of connection between Oxford and East and South London were practically manifested on Whit-Monday, when parties of working-men came and were shown the sights of Oxford, and entertained through the day by a number of undergraduates from various colleges. Such work cannot but prove helpful all round.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children has taken a firm hold on Oxford sympathy. The first Annual Meeting was held on Thursday last, which was attended by a large and representative number of members of the University and citizens. The Rev. B. Waugh, founder and hon. director, gave a special address on the work of the society.

In connection with the Church Army Social Scheme a Labour Home was opened last week in Oxford by the Bishop of the diocese. The Home was formerly a public-house, and has been altered and arranged for its present use under a committee of church workers. The officer in charge is a man of good experience, and there is every likelihood of some valuable work being done in this tramp-infested city.

The annual meetings of the Oxfordshire Association of Baptist Churches have been held in Oxford. In connection with the visit of the association, special services were held on Sunday, May 29, conducted by members of the University. The meetings were addressed by Dr. Fairbairn of Mansfield, Mr. Caff of Shoreditch, and several local ministers. The Association is doing valuable work in the villages of the county, and this feature formed the predominant note of interest in the meetings

A HUNDRED YEARS AT SURREY CHAPEL.—Rev. Benjamin Senior, pastor of the New Surrey Chapel, has written this record of Gospel work. Beginning with the opening of Old Surrey Chapel in 1783, he tells the story of the life and labours of Rowland Hill. The work of James Sherman and Newman Hall having been described, the century ending with Mr. Senior in ministerial succession, we have an account of the erection of the New Surrey Chapel. The inaugural sermon was preached by Rev. C. H. Spurgeon on September 26, 1888, and the place has now, in the words of Mr. Senior, "become a hive of spiritual industry." Mr. Senior, who has been pastor for thirteen years, concludes his very interesting story by giving a complete list of subscribers to the new chapel, over £8000. (Paper, 1s.; cloth, 2s. Passmore and Alabaster.)

OUTRAGES ON MISSIONARIES IN CHINA.—Letters received at San Francisco from Shanghai describe renewed outrages upon European missionaries in the Fukien Province, in Eastern China, and in Se-Chuan, fifteen hundred miles up the Yang-tse-Kiang. On April 27 the house occupied by missionaries of the Church of England at Chin-ho was attacked by a mob. After being exposed to insults for three hours Messrs. Johnson and Newcomb were rescued by a mandarin. Evidence is not wanting pointing to the complicity of the mandarin in the riot. On May 11 the little mission hospital and dispensary at Kien-ning was wrecked by a mob of ruffians in the pay of a leading literary man of the city. Dr. Rigg was very roughly handled, and narrowly escaped death. A quantity of infamous literature was circulated in Se-Chuan with the object of stirring up the people against the missionaries at Chun-King. After an attempt to boycott the missionaries, the roofs of their houses were removed, and as they did not take the hint to leave, they were carried outside the city. The movement against the missionaries is said to be inspired by the Viceroy.

NOTES ON DAILY READINGS.

SUNDAY, JUNE 19.—EXODUS XI.

In some senses there is no difference between Israel and Egypt. There is none as to sinnership, for all have sinned and come short, and none in inclusion in the love of God, who is rich unto all them that call upon Him. But there is one, and a very deep one, between those who are included in the terms of the covenant, because of their faith in the God-appointed lamb, and those who are enemies in their mind by wicked works. That difference is ordained by God, and lies in the very nature of things. God is their strength and shield. He builds around them a strong wall of defence. He becomes to them a place of broad rivers and streams, on which goes no galley with oars, neither does gallant ship pass thereby. All is helpful and favourable, with as few disadvantages as possible. And when God thus becomes the Deliverer of his people, how absolutely does all opposition break down and give way! If you are on his plan, He is bound to provide for you; and if He is with you, none can be against you. Not a dog shall move his tongue. No weapon that is formed against you shall prosper. Nothing shall by any means hurt you. Surrounded by the invisible protection of God's presence, hidden in the secret place of the Most High, sheltered under the wing of the Divine care, a host may encamp around you, but you shall not fear; war may rise against you, but in this may you be confident. The Israelites had earned the jewels which were heaped on them for centuries of servitude. The word "borrow" means "ask." It was a voluntary act, but behind all was God, who saw that his people should receive some recompence for their toils.

MONDAY, JUNE 20.—EXODUS XII.

Behold the Lamb of God! It was as if the Holy Spirit could not withhold his testimony to the work, which is his theme, until the cross could be reared, and the precious blood shed, but must needs begin to unfold the mysteries of redeeming love. We gather round this great sight with awe and love. Here is our Master evidently set forth, in the blamelessness of his character, in the maturity of his manhood, in his setting apart by the Father, in his indication by the Baptist, in the agony of his sufferings, in the bitterness of his sorrow, in the shedding of his blood, in his unbroken bones, in the redemption which he has achieved from the sword of judgment and from the penalties of a broken law. Here He is also in the provision made by Him for the spiritual needs of his own, so that their hunger may be satisfied, their strength recruited, their life forces fed by contact with his own. And in this wonderful miniature we may find ourselves. We are there under that sheltering blood, which speaks our deliverance from the sword which awoke against our Shepherd, that it might never touch the flock. We are there standing around the table, in pilgrim guise, feeding on the flesh of the Lamb, and on the alert for the first notes of the trumpet which shall sound the signal for our march. And that triumphant march out of the land of bondage into that of victory, what is it but a premonition of the emancipation of the sacramental host of God's elect, from the darkness and bondage of the present age into Rest. None but the circumcised could partake. O! my soul, hast thou put off from thee the filthiness of the flesh by the circumcision of Christ, so only canst thou be sure of having a right to the body and blood of the Lamb.

TUESDAY, JUNE 21.—EXODUS XIII.

The first-born had been specially saved, and so were specially God's. On them was branded the one brief word, "Mine." What a lesson for us all, who have been redeemed with the precious blood of Christ! We are his by right of purchase, and we must be his in choice and life, and sanctified by his own indwelling and possession. And when we have taken up this position with respect to God, we may count on his strong hand. Whatever tyrant tries to hold us, and however mighty the tyranny of Egyptian bondage, none can keep us back when God determines to let us go. He will bring us out. But we must not expect to have a swift and easy course to the home of our souls. God still leads his people about. Often in life there comes a tedious waiting time; we are prevented from going straight forward; it is evident that some obstruction has been permitted to divert our course. At such times let us believe still in his leading, only that He has some special reason which we may not at the time apprehend. Perhaps there are lessons to learn, experience to acquire, strength to gain by the wilderness march, which will more than compensate for the further delay. But whatever comes, let us follow the pillar of cloud by day, and rest beneath the brooding pavilion of the glowing pillar of fire by night.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 22.—EXODUS XIV.

How often the providence of God appears to lead his people into impossible positions! They become, so to speak, entangled in the land. Before them is the sea, on either side the frowning precipices, and behind them Pharaoh. Then the spirit is apt to break out into loud and bitter complaint, but faith hushes their voice, and looks away to the all-sufficiency of God. The one thing about which we need to be anxious is to be sure that we are being led by the cloud, for, if that is so, all other responsibility is entirely on God; and if there is no other way of deliverance, we may expect Him to open it through the depths of the sea. There are two commands which come to us when we are in perplexity. The first is to stand still and see God's salvation If you do not know what to do, wait to see what God is about to do. Only be still, cool, calm, collected. Look not around at the imminent danger, but up to his very present help. And when He says, "Go forward," do not hesitate for a moment to advance. For as your feet touch the fringe of the brine, a way will cleave down into the heart of the sea, and through the depths. He leads the believing soul through the depths as a horse through the wilderness, so that it may not stumble. But the hand which delivers the saint is heavy on the sinner. The cloud which is light to the one is darkness to the other.

THURSDAY, JUNE 23.—EXODUS XV.

This glad outburst of melody is a striking type of that other song which shall break out around the sea of glass. There they sing the song of Moses, the servant of God, and the song of the Lamb. See how the entire glory of the victory is ascribed to God Himself. The Lord is throughout the blessed agent of deliverance: His right hand; the greatness of his excellency; the blast of his nostrils. And as they stand upon the eminence of that deliverance, they dare look forward and believe that He will not fail nor forsake them, until the entire programme is completed. So doth faith boast herself on her God. She judges for the future by the past. What He hath done that He will do; and He will not stay his hand until the prepared people are settled in the prepared place. But how rapid are the transitions of life! To-day the song of victory, to-morrow the bitter wells of Marah, and the next the shadow of Elim's palms. But we learn more of God at Marah than at Elim. There He shows his tender love in healing the waters by the tree of the Cross, and pledges Himself to heal our diseases and redeem our lives from destruction.

FRIDAY, JUNE 24.—EXODUS XVI.

The true manna first fell at Bethlehem, and has been the food of man ever since. But it must be gathered every day. And there is no time like the early morning, for if we delay longer it is apt to melt, and our desire to fail. Those who gather the most need it all, and have nothing over; those who gather least, by the force of circumstances over which they have no control, find that a little will go a long way, so that a morsel of Christ will sustain the soul for long hours of work or warfare. Let us ever remember that rest of heart is equally important with the satisfaction of spiritual hunger. We must rest as well as feed, feed as well as rest. Evermore, oh, our Father, give us the true bread from heaven; give us, each day, the bread for the day, that spirit, soul, and body may have their meet provision, and be satisfied. And may we ever find that, in our experience, also, the bread, which is Christ, is mingled with the dew, which is the Holy Spirit.

SATURDAY, JUNE 25.—EXODUS XVII.

From the smitten rock the water flowed to refresh the weary host. Only thus could the thirst of the world be met. The Rock of Ages was smitten, and from his riven side there flowed out blood and water. Not blood alone, but water also. Let us not fail to drink of Him, and the water which He will give will become in us a spring of water rising up always to eternity. Perhaps in a minor sense each of us will have to be smitten before we can yield water for thirsty souls. But such refreshment is often the preparation for warfare. Then came Amalek. When our bodily needs are satisfied, there is always the fear of Amalek, the type of the flesh. But, thank God, He who gives water for our thirst, also gives deliverance and victory. It is for us to get up into the mountain to pray, and it is for our Joshua—Jesus—to fight for us. The Lord is our banner. Let us serve under Him, and go undauntedly to meet our foe, sure of this, that the conflict cannot be for ever, since the Lord hath sworn to blot out his remembrance from under heaven.

International S. S. Lessons.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON, JUNE 26.

MESSIAH'S REIGN. Psalm lxxii.

GOLDEN TEXT: Verse 11.

According to the title this Psalm was written by Solomon, and was intended to refer to his kingdom. But the language of the Psalm can only find fulfilment in the reign of the Messiah. It describes the character, the extent, and the perpetuity of the kingdom of God. They are in the kingdom who now consent to the reign of Christ in them. Let him be King in our lives.

1. Compare Solomon's prayer for himself (1 Kings iii. 9). Give. The true king reigns not by popular choice, but by Divine authority. He is God's vicegerent, and pronounces judgments in his name. 2. Thy people. They are so frequently described in this Psalm that we may learn who they are (see 2, 4, 7, 12, 13). Poor, needy, oppressed, victims of deceit and violence, yet righteous. Do not mistake poverty for piety. Yet it is clear that great wealth makes sincere godliness a difficulty (1 Cor. i. 26, 27). Too often has partiality been shown to the rich and great. In the kingdom of Christ the most needy are the most richly blessed (Luke i. 53).

3. Peace and righteousness are inseparable (Isa. xxxii. 17). Our peace with God is secured by Jehovah our Righteousness (Heb. vii. 2). And perpetual peace within is only possible when every part of our being consents to his righteous rule (Isa. ix. 6, 7). For this reason there is no peace to the wicked (Isa. lvii. 21).

4. Deliverance for the oppressed means always judgment upon the oppressor. In whatever form the work of the oppressor is carried on, destruction is sure (James v. 1-4).

5. Fear—not in any slavish sense, but with the fear of reverence, of awe, of obedience, and of love. All generations. His worship shall never cease. Unlike other monarchies this shall not pass away (see Heb. xii. 28).

6. Like rain, &c. A figure of the gentleness as well as the beneficence of Messiah's reign. "Those great conquerors who have been the scourges of mankind have fallen like the fiery hail of Sodom, transforming fruitful lands into deserts; but He with mild, benignant influence softly refreshes the weary and wounded, and makes them spring up into newness of life." 7. Like King like people (Prov. xx. 8).

8. No language could better describe the universal reign of the Messiah as a personal monarch. The boundaries of Solomon's kingdom can never limit the extent of the kingdom of Christ. 9. Wilderness—referring to the wandering people of the desert. Lick the dust—in token of their humble surrender to him. "No one was allowed to address the Persian kings, unless he prostrated himself on the ground, and kissed the footsteps of the king." How useless to remain at enmity against Him! (Psa. ii. 12). 10. Recalling what Solomon had experienced (1 Kings iv. 21), and the visit of the Queen of Sheba (1 Kings x.). The isles—refer to the Gentiles in general. Compare Isa. xlii. 4 with Matt. xii. 21. Sheba, a region in Arabia Felix. Seba, in Ethiopia. Tholuck thus describes verses 9 and 10. "The most uncivilized, the most distant, and most opulent nations shall pay their homage to Him."

12. Crieth. This is the condition on which the needy are delivered. Nothing is so eloquent as prayer out of deep distress (Gen. xxi. 17). 13. Save. "Scipio used to say that he would rather save a single citizen than slay a thousand enemies." Such is the work in which Jesus delights (Matt. i. 21). 14. Precious, &c., "The Angolani so despised their slaves that they would sometimes give away twenty-two for one hunting dog. For breaking one goblet the Roman cast his slave into the pond to be devoured." These contrasts magnify the grace of our King.

15. He shall live, though He died in the work of saving his people. Alexander, when dying, said, "Lo! I am dying whom you falsely called a god." Contrast the once dead but now ever living Saviour (Rev. i. 18). Prayer—not only to, but for Him. Every prayer for the salvation of men is really a prayer for Him. All can thus hasten his coming and kingdom.

16. A striking description of temporal prosperity resulting from his reign, and a type also of spiritual blessing.

18-20. The doxology closes this book of Psalms (see xli. 14). We have reached the highest possible point of desire when we have prayed for the triumph of Messiah's kingdom. Our prayers end there, for we have nothing more to ask.

The Book World.

The Blood is the Life.

In a day when great names are too often allowed to carry all before them, it showed not a little courage on the part of Dr. Bennett, the vicar of St. George's, Worthing, when delivering a course of lectures at the National Club, two years ago, on the subject of the Cross of Christ, to publicly call in question Bishop Westcott's view, that the blood, as used in sacrifice, means life rather than death. Dr. Bennett's lectures attracted a good deal of attention at the time; and in response to a request that he would give them a more permanent form, he has brought out this book,* which contains a very interesting examination of the whole subject, and a sketch of the history of the doctrine of the Cross of Christ from the earliest times.

We only propose, however, here calling attention to this, perhaps the most interesting feature of Dr. Bennett's book: his exposure and refutation of the view advocated by Bishop Westcott, grounded on the words which head this article.

The words "the blood is the life" are those upon which Bishop Westcott founds his theory, or rather upon their expansion and explanation in Lev. xvii.; but, as Dr. Bennett shows, he falls into the mistake of not distinguishing between the blood as spoken of whilst it is in the veins, and when it has been poured out. It is just because "the life of the flesh is in the blood" (Lev. xvii. 11) that when poured out of the flesh it represents no longer life, but death. Hence, as any one may see who looks at the word "blood" in a concordance, the normal idea associated with the word throughout Scripture is death, not life; and the very reason given for the prohibition to eat blood is that it has been given upon the altar to make atonement for the soul or life of the offerer—i.e., the blood when poured out represents the substitutional death of the victim, and thus becomes a covering or propitiation for the forfeited soul or life of the offerer—all, of course, having relation to the great victim that should in due time be manifested to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself.

The Bishop's view, as stated by himself in his Commentary on the Hebrews, is that "the Scriptural idea of blood is essentially an idea of life and not of death"; "the blood poured out is the energy of present human life made available for others"; "Christ became true man under such conditions that He could die even as men die, and in dying make the virtue of his life accessible to the race"; "the life of Christ offered in its purity and fulness to God cleanses men and enables them also to serve Him who is a living God." Well may Dr. Bennett say, "We are thus face to face with a body of doctrine which is totally at variance with the teaching of Protestant Christendom as embodied in the Articles and Formularies. Its most prominent features are (1) that the blood means not death but life, and (2) that the blood is communicated to man for practical sanctification." Dr. Bennett shows that the Bishop's theory rests upon a mistaken view of Lev. xvii. 11: "It is undeniable that the life is in the blood; and while the blood remains in its natural condition in the body it may be spoken of as representing life. When, however, the blood is shed, the normal relationship between the body and the blood ceases, and death instantly ensues. In other words, the blood shed is the exact opposite of life, it is death."

Dr. Bennett refers to Isaiah liii. 12 as throwing light upon the subject. There we read of Christ: "He hath poured out his soul unto death." The word for soul here is the same as that rendered "life" in Lev. xvii. 11. According to Dr. Westcott's theory we should have expected "poured out his soul unto life."

As the High Priest once a year stood in the immediate presence of God in the holy of holies, he carried in thither the blood which he solemnly sprinkled before God, and thus typified our great High Priest, who has gone into heaven itself in virtue of his blood once shed, and ever liveth to make intercession for his people. But we must not confound the two distinct elements of death and life, which we see portrayed in this type of Christ in heaven. The High Priest in his own person represented the risen Christ, i.e., life; the blood he carried in was the memorial of death, i.e., of Christ's death. Thus he was enabled to represent those who as sinners deserved death, seeing that the blood testified that death had been endured on their behalf.

If Bishop Westcott's theory were true, there would have been two types or representations of life within the vail at the same time—the living High Priest and the blood—and the death of the sacrifice would not have been represented at all! According to the view generally received among Christians, both were represented, as, indeed, both were needed; and both are recognised in the words spoken by our risen High Priest Himself (Rev. i. 18): "I was dead, and behold I am alive for evermore." The Greek is even stronger, "I became dead." See R.V.

Another proof of blood symbolising death, not life, is to be found in the Passover. The blood of the lamb was sprinkled on the doorposts as a sign to the destroying angel that death had already visited that house in the death of the substitute provided by God's appointment. "When I see the blood I will pass over you."

Dr. Bennett has some excellent remarks on the Bishop's unsatisfactory exposition of that cardinal passage in 1 John i. 7: "The blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin." The Bishop says: "The thought is not of the forgiveness of sin only, but of the removal of sin. The sin is done away, and the purifying action is exerted continuously."

Dr. Bennett, in reply to this, quotes Lev. xvi. 30: "On that day shall the priest make an atonement for you, to cleanse you, that ye may be clean from all your sins before the Lord," and adds: "It is this alone which is meant when the blood of Jesus Christ is said to cleanse us from all sin. We are free from the imputation of guilt before God. Sin is not removed, except as to its guilt, so long as we are in the body. Purifying action is exerted by the Holy Ghost, and not by the blood of Christ. Confusion thus pervades the Bishop's remarks upon this vital passage."

Dr. Bennett here takes the same view of the meaning of "the Cleansing Blood" as that put forward in an admirable little book bearing this title, written by one who is an authority on such subjects, the Rev. H. C. G. Moule, Principal of Ridley Hall, Cambridge.

There is very much of deep interest, which it is impossible here, from want of space, to notice, in this book of Dr. Bennett's. It deserves to be commended very strongly to all who desire to have a clear understanding of this vital subject, and who will value the sound cautions which it contains as to prevalent errors of the present day, endorsed often, alas! by names of deservedly great weight in the sphere of Biblical criticism. One thought which the study of Dr. Bennett's book very strongly impresses upon the mind is this: that valuable as great scholarship undoubtedly is in the interpretation of Scripture, it cannot supply the place of that knowledge of the Gospel of the grace of God which the teaching of the Holy Spirit alone can impart. H. E. B.

* Crux Christi: Being a consideration of some aspects of the doctrine of the Atonement, with special reference to the recent suggestions of Bishop Westcott. By Rev. J. Bennett, D.D., vicar of St. George's, Worthing. (John F. Shaw & Co.)

Counsels for Young Ministers.

To My Younger Brethren: Chapters on Pastoral Life and Work. By Rev. H. C. G. Moule, M.A., Principal of Ridley Hall, Cambridge. (5s. Hodder and Stoughton.) Here are twelve chapters, specially addressed to such as have recently entered the Christian ministry in the Church of England. Opening with very instructive and helpful pages on the secret walk with God, the book proceeds to deal with the daily walk in the world, Scripture study, pastoral work and preaching, as well as various related topics. A sense of the deep responsibility of ministering to ministers is conjoined with great ability in treatment on every head. The author, in a preface, urges the necessity of personal holiness in the Christian minister—no mere form moulded from without, but a life developed into manifestation and action from within. This is a valuable work, thoughtful and practical in a high degree.

Ulf, the Norseman. By Mary Onely. (1s. 6d. Sunday-School Union.) The adventures of an English lad among the brave and kindly Norsemen. A thoroughly wholesome and attractive book for the boys.

Helen's Garden-Party. By Emma Leslie. (6d. Sunday-School Union.) A pleasant story for the girls, full of good purpose. From the same we have also Portreath Sands, a capital penny book in the Rainbow Series.

Bells of Gold and other Poems. By E. F. Heinekey. (2s. 6d. Wertheimer, Lea, and Co., Circus-place, London-wall.) This is a charming little volume of hymns and pieces by one who knows the Gospel and can sing its choicest notes. Among other gems are: "He knoweth," "The Bridegroom Cometh," and "Jesus all in all."

A Way in the Wilderness. By Maggie Swan. (2s. Partridge.) A really good story by the sister of the well-known authoress, Annie Swan. The dire evils of gambling and indulgence in strong drink are so delineated that the pages will administer timely warning to young people. Readers will follow the incidents of the tale with a well-sustained interest.

Christ the Creator and Redeemer. By W. Popley. (3s. 6d. E. Stock.) The discourses in this book are very various, e.g., No spontaneous generation; Genesis not compiled later than the days of Moses; Christ's sacrifice covers all sins. The writer is well-read, laborious, and spiritually-minded, but we cannot add lucid. His matter is good, his arrangement faulty, and his sentences too often obscure.

Peeps into China. By Rev. Gilbert Reid, M.A. (2s. Religious Tract Society.) Really vivid and interesting sketches of Chinese life and life among the Chinese as seen by a hard-working and earnest American missionary. Numerous as have been the recently issued works on China, this one has, within small compass, a specialty of its own in the very simplicity and directness of its presentation of every-day life in China.

That Glorious Future, or, Key to the Revelation. By Rev. J. L. Thompson. (3s. Morgan and Scott.) This very thoughtful little book has reached a third edition, revised throughout and enlarged. The interpretation regards the visions as largely concerned with events still in the future. The author has his eyes wide open to the really practical purpose of the Apocalypse, with its many stimulating passages. His studies as a whole present a view which is worth the attention of all earnest students of the Word. At once reverent and lucid, the book in its present form should encourage many to read the Revelation, who have hitherto neglected it.

Prison to Platform: A Testimony of Divine Grace in Daily Life and the Gift of Power for Service. By Thomas Payne. (1s. 6d. J. Marshall & Co.) The entire absence of careful literary style is the feature of this book that first strikes the educated reader. Those who do not on this account prejudge the work, will be well repaid by reading on to the end. From the ups and downs and struggles of youth, Mr. Payne rapidly proceeds to tell the story of his unwearying labours in the Gospel, formerly in connection with General Booth's organisations—the Christian Mission and the Salvation Army—and during more recent years in various parts of the country as doors have been opened to him. The pages are warm with evangelistic purpose and effort.

Land: its Attractions and Riches. By fifty-seven writers. Edited by C. F. Dowsett, F.S.I., (£1 7s. 6d. The "Land Roll" Office, 3, Lincoln's-inn-fields.) Here is a bulky volume of nine hundred pages on the charms of British broad acres and the subject of real property in general. In the opening chapter Mr. Dowsett points out that one effect of pessimistic views regarding land investments has been an alienation of capital from the soil, "and millions sterling have been diverted into joint stock investments—many of which have turned out to be unremunerative, and some total failures, whereby individuals have been wrecked, and the nation injured. Rural districts have become, in a measure, impoverished, farmers have had to desert the old homesteads of their ancestors, labourers have been reduced to great poverty, and have been compelled to immigrate to towns; tradesmen have had to curtail or close their businesses, and commerce generally (as well as agriculture) has sustained widespread and deep-rooted losses." There are several articles on losses by Stock Exchange speculations, and others advocating investment in land. Town and country life having been compared, some of the attractions and advantages of the latter are set forth. The following are quite charming contributions: "Some of the Poets on the Country," by Constance L. Maynard; "The Fir Forest," by Dr. Hugh Macmillan; and "The Pleasures of a Country Life from a Natural History Point of View," by W. H. Harris. The pages are alternately practical and entertaining, the subject being considered as it relates to health, society, and commerce, as well as in technical, legal, scientific, and other bearings. At the close there are chapters on ancient agriculture, including a brief statement on "Land in the Jewish Polity," by Rev. F. B. Meyer, and a study of "The Primeval Command and the Prophetic Promise," by Mr. G. H. Pember. Those who possess (or desire to possess) real estate, or are engaged in developing property in land or directing work thereon, as stewards or trustees, will find the book of real service.

How Ethel Made Home Pretty, by L. Shorey, is truthfully styled a "practical" story. (6d. Stoneman.)

Mr. W. A. Nudd, Haymarket, Norwich, has published a little volume of verse, "Enoch and Other Poems," by C. C. Bailey. (6d.)

The Christian's Purse and the Lord's Treasury. The Scriptural aspect of a subject of great importance is stated in this address to Christians by N. J. (4d. Partridge.)

My Memories and Estimate of my Friend Spurgeon is a very readable and interesting booklet by J. de Kewer Williams, Independent minister, Hackney. (3d. Passmore and Alabaster.)

"Excellent Women" is a new series of penny biographies published by the Religious Tract Society. The first two issues are devoted to Elizabeth Fry and Selina Countess of Huntingdon. There is in each case a good portrait.

A sketch of Professor John Duncan, LL.D., has been added to the penny Biographical Series of the Religious Tract Society. There is an excellent portrait of the "Rabbi," whose story is admirably told by W. Ballantyne, M.A.

The Forgotten Truth. The Gospel of the Holy Ghost. By Charles Bullock, B.D. (2d. "Home Words" Office.) This is a sterling booklet on a subject of supreme moment. It sets forth the great need of the Church to-day, and shows what would ensue upon a due recognition of the Holy Spirit and his Divine work.

The Graphic Summer Number contains an unusually varied collection of coloured sketches, engravings, and stories. The presentation plate is a reproduction of the picture by Frank Dicksee, R.A., entitled "Beatrice," and will be found fully equal to those of the series of Shakesperian Heroines already published.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

From James Clarke and Co.—Evolution of Christianity By Lyman Abbott. (4s.)

John F. Shaw and Co: Noontide Thoughts for Busy Folks. By Leonard K. Shaw.

From Drummond's Tract Depôt:—Gospel Leaves. Two-page tracts by Cheyne Brady. (6d. packet.)

From T. Fisher Unwin:—The Speaker's A. B. C. By Colonel Arthur Montagu Brookfield, M.P. (2s.)

From Hodder and Stoughton.—The Life and Faith of the Early Church, by W. F. Slater, M.A. (7s.)

From Elliot Stock—The Church: Invisible, Visible, Catholic, National. By Archdeacon Sinclair, D.D.

From J. S. Virtue and Co.—Healthy Households. By Guy Cadogan Rothery. (1s.) Easy and Economical Cookery. By Millicent Rose Fardell. (1s.)

Letters to the Editor.

ARMY CHAPLAINS.

Sir,—I have no hesitation in affirming, after thirty-five years' service in the Army, that the great majority of the chaplains, owing to their High Church proclivities, encouraged by the present Chaplain-General, Dr. Edghill, have no real influence for good with the officers and men over whom they have the spiritual oversight. The introduction of monotoning the service, with the adoption of the Eastward position, and the usual unscriptural teaching which invariably accompanies these practices, are forced upon the military congregations, with the inevitable result of indifference, if not distaste for spiritual things.

The time is come that either the men should be allowed to absent themselves from services which they dislike, or that they should be conducted in a plain, simple manner, as was formerly the case, during the tenure of the office of the Chaplain-General by the late Mr. Gleig.

General and C.B.

Dear Sir,—My experience during about fifteen years' service has been similar to Colonel Hobbs, given in his letter published in your paper of June 2.

Since my retirement from the service I have seen something of Christian work amongst soldiers. In Gibraltar, until lately, there was no objection to the ladies connected with the Soldiers' Home visiting sick soldiers in the Military Hospital every day between certain hours; but now this privilege has been withdrawn. I believe both the Presbyterian and Wesleyan chaplains are willing that the ladies should speak to the patients belonging to their denominations, but the senior chaplain, Church of England, with the consent of the medical officer, has closed the door of the hospital against them. Soldiers are naturally very much annoyed at this interference, and I feel sure if it were brought to the notice of H.R.H. the Commander-in-Chief, the soldiers in hospital would no longer be deprived of the sympathy and kind attention of the ladies who have the real interest of the soldiers at heart.

J. Armstrong, Late Captain 26th Cameronians.
The Home, Girvan, N.B.

Dear Sir,—The present controversy in The Christian respecting the alleged God-resisting hindrance of Miss Robinson's labours, and, indeed, of all spiritual endeavour in the Army, impels me to send you a few lines. I am bound to say that the impression my personal experiences have left is that chaplains, with, no doubt, some admirable exceptions, care more for salutes than souls. I cannot recollect, in the course of work among our men on active service, meeting with any one, save a much-hampered Scripture Reader or two, who took the smallest interest in their spiritual condition. At Suez, in 1884, where at the time there was only a Roman Catholic chaplain, I was strictly prohibited from entering a tent, to speak a word, or give a tract or text to the sick and wounded (some dying) men who had come in from the front. Occasionally, as I prowled round the tents, I would get a likely-looking sentry to put into his vest a few small books or cards for the poor fellows whom I could see, but might not approach. The like prohibition was experienced by an earnest Christian lady, the wife of an officer whom I visited at the cantonments.

Previously, at Alexandria, a medical officer of high position, to whom I had a cordial letter of introduction, told me, while accepting his friendly welcome at the hospital, that to his deep regret he could not venture to give me permission to visit any of the sick under his charge; that, Surgeon-General though he was, he should, were he to do so, be admonished to attend to his medical duties, and not interfere with those of the chaplains. What duties they performed he was silent over.

At Cairo I was privileged to have an interview with, I believe, the Senior Chaplain to the Forces, a much-braided, dignified personage, from whom I wished to obtain the address of an Army Scripture Reader under his supervision. He professed ignorance respecting his humble subordinate, but favoured me with a vehement tirade against my intrusive work and my books, none of which, he begged me to be assured, should be distributed by any Reader under his control. My only reply being a repeated request for the address I wanted, the irate chaplain withdrew, but sent it to me by an orderly. The Scripture Reader, whom I saw a few hours later, told me he had been so persistently thwarted in all his endeavours to do any real work among the men that he was "almost broken-hearted," and had just given in his resignation.

On active service I thankfully found things different. At Suakim I had free access to tent, fort, and ambulance. I do not, indeed, recollect hearing of any approach to spiritual work among the men. I did not meet a regimental captain while in the Soudan, but the Colonel commanding the troops there under canvas most courteously granted me the use of a commodious tent for holding services, and I record with grateful pleasure that the chaplain of the flag-ship on the station, a bright young Christian, cheered me with kind zealous help in conducting them.

In what I have written I have but avowed convictions which, it seems to me, I ought not at this time to withhold. My heartiest sympathies and my best-loved work have always been with soldiers, and in the service I have experienced much true kindness, and enjoyed the happiest brotherly intercourse, yet I am bound to say that my unvaried experience in respect of evangelistic work has been, as regards its acceptance by "The Proper Authorities," much the same as I met with in my endeavours to get some Red Cross work at the front from an officer of rank, to whom I presented a letter of perhaps too warm recommendation from a late dear friend, then holding an important post in the Egyptian Administration, and who wound up his refusal of my services with the now-forgotten words (apologised for later), "In fact, sir, assistance is interference."—Very faithfully yours, S. G. Prout.
Braunton.

Sir,—The various letters which have appeared in your columns on the above subject, in connection with the case of Rev. R. F. McLeod, raise the following serious question:—Is it possible that Protestants will allow a clergyman of their own theological views to be driven out of the army for conscience' sake without demanding for him that which has been refused on his personal application, a court of inquiry into his conduct? If the Chaplain-General and those in authority at the War Office were justified in making Mr. McLeod resign his position, they should welcome a demand for an inquiry.

The matter is a very serious one. It is not only Mr. McLeod who is affected. He is simply the unfortunate victim that has opened our eyes to the fact that apparently a determined effort is being made to eliminate Protestant worship from our army chaplaincies, and to set up in its place Ritualistic formalism and the idolatry of the mass.

Little can now be done in the present Parliament, but Protestant electors can help to obtain justice for Mr. McLeod, and to secure protection for our soldiers from Ritualistic tyranny, by demanding from their candidates for the new Parliament a promise that they will vote for an inquiry into Mr. McLeod's case in particular, and into the army chaplaincies generally.—Yours respectfully,

E. Darbyshire.
Lindisfarne, Upper Norwood.

NAVY CHAPLAINS.

Sir,—The correspondence in the columns of The Christian on Army Chaplains might profitably lead to further correspondence on chaplains in the other and, for England, more important branch of the services. In a recent conversation I had with a brother-in-law, who has had some eighteen years' experience of the Royal Navy, I was sorry to hear him express a generally unfavourable opinion of the Navy Chaplains. My brother-in-law, I may say, is not an active Christian, but he is an honourable, upright, and kindly man.

The practical presentment of the religion of Christ by too many of the chaplains of the Royal Navy is, it seems, terribly perfunctory, and therefore little better than a caricature. They regard themselves and are treated as "officers"; they mix little with the men; they are seen mostly, except by the other officers, at the Sunday service; and the men talk of them as "Holy Joes," "Sky-pilots," and so forth. There is probably another side to the story; and, if so, I should like to hear it.—Yours, &c.,

W. E. C.

"THE ACCUSER CAST OUT."

Sir,—Your correspondent, Mr. G. F. Trench, begins by setting forth this supposed principle: "In no sphere of the universe is it conceivable that Christ, the champion of the saints, and Satan, his great antagonist, can remain in power together;" and he attempts to prove this by asserting that, "when Christ took upon Him our nature, Satanic possession of the body ceased at his command."

In direct and positive contradiction, both of the principle here stated as well as of the supposed proof of it, the Word expressly says, (1) That in this "sphere of the Universe," i.e., on the platform of this very earth, where Christ reigns in the hearts of his people, Satan is "the god of this age" (2 Cor. iv. 4); and that "the whole world lieth in the wicked one" (1 John v. 19); and (2) that the personal individual Antichrist is to be indwelt of Satan (2 Thess. ii. 8-9); and that he will cause all whose names are not written in the Lamb's Book of Life to worship him (Rev. xiii. 7-8).

Hence, your correspondent's principle being erroneous, the inferences derived from it must necessarily fall to the ground, as, indeed, they are also rebuked by the positive and absolute statements of the Word to the contrary.

What he says about Rom. viii. is mere assertion, which is contrary to the fact, as I have shown in my previous letter. In 1 John i. the inferences are against him, because the Apostle, by there describing Jesus Christ, our Advocate, as the Righteous One, clearly intimates that it is a question of righteousness which is at stake (as I pointed out in my letter), and as the passage in Zech. iii. plainly shows, a passage which is manifestly future, for the iniquity of Israel is on them still; and contrary to what your correspondent says about the believer's conscience, this question, the passage shows, is settled before his conscience is pacified.

In 1 Cor. iii. and 2 Cor. v. it is not a question of justification at all, but of works, and the exercise of gifts and talents, as in the Parables on that subject, with which Satan has nothing to do, he having then, of course, been cast out.—Yours truly,

Robert Brown.
8, Trinity-road, Scarborough.

THE OPIUM QUESTION.

Sir,—There were those who looked upon the meeting at the Society of Arts on the Opium question as a success for the pro-opiumists, but all along I felt the doctors had proved too much. They really placed the Government in a dilemma; for if opium really were the "febrifuge" claimed for it, and produced a condition unknown in medicine with reference to opium, but described by Sir William Hunter, K.C.S.I., as an "unconscious safeguard" against malarial fevers, then taxing opium as the Government credited themselves with, was apparently most unjustifiable, while to prohibit its sale to the malaria-stricken Burman was a positive injustice.

That meeting, however, bore fruit, when the medical champion of the pro-opiumists, Surgeon-General Sir William Moore, K.C.I.E., found himself professionally alone in the discussion which followed his paper on the subject of this letter, at the meeting in the Westminster Town Hall, under the auspices of the East India Association on June 1st. One native gentleman alone supported Sir William Moore in his theory of "the harmlessness of the opium habit," both as regards its physical and moral effects, and selected the City of Ahmedabad as an example. Having the Government Blue-book on opium with me, I gave it to a friend who had not spoken, and who asked for permission to read the Government opinion of this case, as gathered from the reports of its officials, which was diametrically opposite. Even a staunch pro-opiumist, as regards the justifiable character of the revenue derived from opium, Mr. Martin Wood severely criticised the style of the paper, and especially that part where Sir William claimed for opium the power of enabling the half-starved peoples of India to live on little food.

Our Sikh brother Hira Singh Puri's noble confession, at the close of his ten minutes, that he was there at considerable inconvenience, perhaps loss, as he had to appear before an examining Board next day to bear witness to his love for the Saviour who died for him, was in strange contrast to the sneering allusions of the author of the paper to the very sacrifice our Sikh brother bore such loving testimony to; while a native gentleman protested against the author's comparison between Christ and Buddha as totally foreign to the subject under discussion.

One stranger from Australia, unknown to all, told a tale of the ravages of opium in the colonies, which, when it appears in print, will surprise the people of this country. In short, the time of prayer and intercession on the morning and forenoon of May 31 bore ample fruit on June 1 at this meeting, and, on thinking it over that evening, I felt that the Master's promise had come true, "from this day will I bless you." Some, I fear, went to that meeting with but little hope of its proving a help to the cause we have so much at heart, but I can best describe it in the words of Scripture, Ex. xiv. 14: "The Lord shall fight for you, and ye shall hold your peace." Truly He raised up speakers for us, and we had little to do but praise Him, as those most interested in the question, the peoples of India, in the persons of their countrymen in London, spoke with no uncertain voice.

As one who has had the opportunity of attending many meetings during the past six months, I can only say, the meeting in the Westminster Town Hall on June 1 will be known as the meeting, and if ever an illustration was graciously granted to his promise to "the residue of his people," in this time of great national falling-away, it was given last Wednesday, when the Master Himself turned "the battle to the gate" (Is. xxviii. 6); and at a meeting got up by, and probably for, the pro-opiumist party, gave to this "residue of his people" a splendid victory, and a precious assurance of the not-far-distant triumph.

He who has helped us thus far will not leave us till He has accomplished his own purpose of saving mercy to the millions now under a bondage to which slavery could offer no comparison.—Yours faithfully,

Robert Pringle, M.D., Brigade-Surgeon.
Blackheath, S.E.

REV. W. J. MAYERS, who left England fifteen months ago to visit the colonies on behalf of Dr. Barnardo's Homes, has started to return. He left Adelaide with his party of eight lads belonging to the Homes on June 1 in the Orient s.s. Oruba, which is due in London on July 12. Mr. Mayers has visited South Australia, Victoria, New South Wales, Queensland, New Zealand, and Tasmania. His meetings have been largely attended; much sympathy has been manifested in Dr. Barnardo's work, and very gratifying practical results have been the outcome of the Mission.

Temperance Notes.

A new Temperance Hall was opened last week in Fenny Stratford by Mrs. Cyril Flower.

The Rechabites continue to make most gratifying progress in Australia, especially in New South Wales and South Australia.

The British Temperance League holds its annual Conference at Batley on July 12 and 13; the women's meetings in connect on are to be held at Dewsbury.

During the year some excellent work has been accomplished by the Bradford Sunday Closing Association, over twelve thousand tracts having been disposed of.

The Clapton Branch of the Young Abstainers' Union has just celebrated its Tenth Anniversary. Since 1879 this Branch has enrolled upwards of 630 members, one hundred having joined during the past year.

M. Henri Martel, in an interesting article in the official organ of the Belgian National Temperance League, speaks most hopefully of the progress of temperance societies, as well as of temperance in Belgium.

Mr. John Robinson, in The Nineteenth Century for June, says, in writing on the moral condition of male servants in high-class families:—"The practice of giving beer ought to be abolished in every house in the kingdom."

The Independent Order of Rechabites is advancing in India; supplies are on the way for four new Tents. The Pioneer Tent, at Allahabad, is making splendid progress. Tents are being opened at Lucknow, Jullunder, and Cawnpore.

The two most potent forces in England are conscience and the breeches pocket. When we have got these on the right side of the liquor question, the public-house will change its character.—Irish Temperance League Journal.

The Young Abstainers' Union, the object of which is the promotion of Total Abstinence from intoxicating liquors among the sons and daughters of the upper and middle classes, has now eighty branches, and a membership of over eight thousand.

The suggestions of Lady Henry Somerset, with regard to the action of the Temperance party at the General Election, have been adopted at Brighton, and in support a great united open-air temperance demonstration will be held on Saturday and Sunday next.

Sir Andrew Clarke, at a recent Conference of Temperance workers at Chatham, declared that if ever he had the power to raise his voice in Parliament against the blasting and withering influence of the drink traffic, he would do so with all his heart.

A study of the "Dublin Metropolitan Police Blue Book" reveals the sad fact that the arrests for drunkenness and for drunken and disorderly conduct in the Dublin metropolitan district have during the last few years increased very largely, both for men and women.

A series of temperance addresses, arranged for by Rev. Canon Elliott, has just been delivered in Manor-hamilton and the neighbourhood by Rev. Dr. Sidley, of Granard. The addresses were much appreciated, and resulted in a considerable number having been added to the temperance roll.

The Committee of the B.W.T.A., in consideration of the critical time through which the Association is passing, and the importance of right action at the present juncture, has proposed that the Branches unite in prayer, on Sunday, June 19, the hours chosen being 9 a.m., 3 p.m., and 10 p.m.

Lady Henry Somerset, following up her call for united temperance demonstrations in support of the direct veto and Sunday closing, has addressed letters to the Archbishops, Bishops, deans, and archdeacons of the Church of England and of Ireland, and also to the heads of the Church of Scotland, and to all Nonconformist churches in the United Kingdom, for definite help in the temperance warfare.

Lacon Owl says:—"We don't believe drunkenness is a disease, but we do believe it is a cultivated appetite that will ruin, degrade, and make poverty for every man who will continue it long enough. Fill a man's stomach with some drug, such as used by the 'drunkenness cure,' and you can make liquor disagreeable to him, but it is only a matter of time when he can again cultivate the desire. Shut up the saloons and stop making poisonous liquor, and then a sure cure will be had whether it's a disease or habit."

A physician of St. Louis, U.S.A., confidently asserts that there are in that city not less than twenty thousand victims of the morphia habit, the great majority of the victims being women of the well-to-do classes. He puts the blame on medical men, who, he says, too constantly resort to hypodermic injections of morphine as a cure for headaches and other minor ailments, or as a stimulant in cases of nervous prostration or fatigue, with the result of creating the craving, which soon becomes irresistible. He admits that medical men invariably warn their patients of the danger of the habit, but in spite of this warning the habit grows upon them and speedily becomes a mania.—Medical Press.

NOTTINGHAM.—As an outcome of the recent Convention for the increase of spiritual life, it has been arranged to hold a series of meetings for the same purpose in Circus-street Hall, the first of which, on Tuesday next June 21, will be addressed by Rev. William Haslam.

Evangelistic Notes.

Beckenham.—A series of special meetings are being conducted at the Wesleyan Chapel, and several profess to have received blessing.

High Wycombe.—Mr. W. R. Bradlaugh has commenced a month's evangelistic mission at High Wycombe, and already tokens of Divine blessing have appeared.

A Cycle Mission Band has been formed in connection with Dorking Y.M.C.A., and a fortnight's mission tour through Kent, Sussex, Hants, Wilts, Gloucestershire, Oxford, Berks, and Surrey has been arranged.

Ashford, Kent.—A special mission has been conducted at Marsh-street Chapel, Ashford, by Mr. J. Chamberlain, of the Metropolitan Tabernacle, assisted by the pastor, Rev. J. Whittaker. The mission has been attended with much blessing.

Norfolk.—A very successful three weeks' tent mission has been brought to a close at Swanton Abbot, Norfolk. The meetings have been held in a large tent belonging to Miss Hamond, of Fakenham, and conducted by an evangelist from the Evangelisation Society.

Rev. D. M. Cameron, of Wandsworth, London, has been holding evangelistic meetings at Helensburgh, N.B., for eight days, both in the open air and inside. The weather being fine, numbers gathered at the waterside, and much interest appeared to be taken in the service.

Ormesby.—A day's mission campaign was conducted here last week by the Yarmouth Welcome Mission, under Rev. J. Le Pla. The band is doing real aggressive work in the surrounding villages and in the town, and many—some being notorious characters—have professed conversion.

Ireland.—A very successful Gospel mission has been held in Killead Parish Church, co. Antrim, by Rev. J. P. Cushing, of the Church Parochial Mission Society.—The mission car, "Peace," recently sent over to Ireland by the Gospel Mission Car Association, has been doing during the past two months excellent service in Moira and Donacloney, co. Down.

Mr. W. H. Bernahard, a converted German Jew, is making a missionary tour in South Dakota, visiting some settlements of Russian Jews for the purpose of distributing Hebrew New Testaments and witnessing for the truth as he has found it in Jesus. This summer he intends to journey through these parts with a large tent, holding Gospel meetings, remaining about ten days in a place, accompanied with an evangelistic singer.

Canning-street, Liverpool.—Rev. S. R. Macphail, in his local magazine, says of a mission held in this church by Gipsy Smith: "The Lord has been graciously pleased to grant a spring-time of blessing in Canning-street Church. There has been a turning to a present God by Christ, the atoning Saviour, to live a new life in Christ, the living Saviour—170 confessing—and doubtless others who have not made themselves known; while believers give thanks for fresh quickening and much help."

Obituary.

PASTEUR ARBOUSSE-BASTIDE.

Few pastors were more widely known in France, Switzerland, Belgium, and Holland than M. Arbousse-Bastide, who recently passed away, after a painful illness, at Montauban. He was for many years the agent of the Religious Tract Society, whose cause he advocated with zeal, and on behalf of which he travelled largely. He was a writer of poetry and prose, and his works have for many years been popular among French-speaking Protestants.

WAH-BUN-AH-KEE, A CHRISTIAN CHIEF.

Many will hear with regret of the death of this celebrated Christian and Temperance leader amongst the Indians. The head of the Mansee tribe of Delaware Indians and of the "Six Nations," he was a prominent official in the Good Templars' Grand Lodge of Canada. He recently visited England, and was present at the Crystal Palace Temperance Fête in his native costume. He had long waged war against fire-water among his braves. Wanbuno boasted that the tribe to which he belonged was one of the tribes that signed the Penn Treaty, and that they had never broken the promises they then made.

REV. R. J. MEYER, BELFAST.

Much regret is felt in the North of Ireland at the death of Rev. R. J. Meyer, who lately passed away at the age of eighty-two years. He was a native of co. Wexford, and entered the Methodist ministry in 1837. For forty years he laboured with great energy, zeal, success, and self-denial in such centres as Enniskillen, Omagh, Lurgan, Maryborough, Longford, Donegal, and Monaghan. For some time past he resided in London, but recently returned to Ireland, as he had a strong wish to die in his native land. Mr. Meyer was an indefatigable worker for his Master, and one who tried to avail himself of every opportunity of doing good.

Personalia.

Mr. W. P. Lockhart is still, we learn, seriously ill; though progressing favourably.

Rev. E. R. Barrett, B.A., of Liverpool, has, after a fortnight's consideration of the call received from Brisbane, decided to decline.

Mr. S. Pyall Diprose, well known as a devoted Christian worker, has now removed to Whitland, South Wales.

Rev. G. C. Lorimer, D.D., of Boston, is expected to visit England next month, and has promised to preach in various chapels.

Rev. Mark Guy Pearse concludes to-morrow (17th) his present series of Friday morning addresses in Princes Hall, Piccadilly.

Brigade-Surgeon J. Robinson, hon. treasurer of the South-East African Mission, wishes it to be noted that his address is now 5, Western Elms-avenue, Reading.

Lady Henry Somerset will address at Blackheath to-day (Thursday) meetings to be held in the Rink Hall, afternoon and evening; the latter meeting is open to all.

Rev. Dr. Parkhurst, whose assaults on misrule in New York have been exciting such comment, is to visit England in the autumn. He will arrive in London towards the end of September.

Rev. A. Maclaren, D.D., hopes to deliver the annual address to the Bala College students on July 7, when Dr. Evans, of Cincinnati, will be recognised as Professor of Hebrew and Old Testament literature.

Mr. H. T. Wills, M.A., grandson of the late Mr. H. O. Wills, of Bristol, has been accepted by the London Missionary Society as a missionary to Travancore, whither he is expected to go in October.

Rev. R. W. Dale, D.D., is, we regret to hear, still so feeble that it is not deemed advisable to remove him to a distance. Meanwhile he proposes to stay with a friend near Birmingham, and with returning strength will proceed to a milder climate.

Rev. Thomas Spurgeon arrived in London from New Zealand on Friday. He hopes to occupy the Metropolitan Tabernacle pulpit for three months from the first Sunday in July, and take part in the Founder's Day at the Stockwell Orphanage on Wednesday next.

Dr. Talmage, of Brooklyn, U.S., is visiting this country on a preaching tour of three months. He is expected to preach in Myrtle-street Baptist Chapel, Liverpool, on Wednesday evening next, and in Dr. Parker's City Temple, London, on Sunday morning, June 26.

Rev. J. Travis, who was last week elected president of the Primitive Methodist Conference, has been thirty-three years in the ministry, has been foreign missionary secretary for some years, and is said to be a man of great administrative capacity and pulpit power.

Mr. Joseph Hannington, who during his walking tour in Palestine saw much of mission work there, hopes to be in this country in a few weeks, and will be glad to give addresses on prophecy, the Jews and their own land, mission work in the East, and such subjects. He may be addressed, 4, North-street, Brighton.

Bishop Taylor's report from Africa, at the recent M. E. Conference in America, was listened to with deepest interest. The veteran missionary never seemed more at home than when giving a detailed account of the work of the Lord in the Dark Continent. He is held in profound respect by the brethren. He returns as soon as possible to his field of labour.

We deeply regret to hear of the illness of Rev. Henry H. Bourn, who has laboured as an Evangelist and Baptist Minister since 1849, in England, Scotland and Ireland. His health broke down in 1875, at Windsor, by an attack of diphtheria, caught by burying a little boy, since which time he has not been able to preach. He has written several religious books, all of which have been well received, but having been out of print since 1836, are of no profit to him. In addition to his long illness, he was seized last March with a severe paralytic stroke, affecting his speech, taking away the entire use of his right side, arm, and hand, and also injuring his brain. His circumstances at the present time are most needy, as the constant care of a nurse is necessary. This is a case which we feel at liberty to mention for the sympathy of fellow-Christians. The address of Mrs. Bourn is 24, Claremont-road, Tunbridge Wells.

SWEEPERS OF BOMBAY.—Rev. G. W. Park, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Mazagon, Bombay, writes:—"If any friend has a strong safety bicycle which he would like to have used in the Lord's work, I should be very glad to receive it. In Bombay distances are long, the sun is hot, and carriage hire is expensive. We have converts among the sweepers from one end of Bombay to the other, and it is absolutely necessary that these shall be frequently visited, and not only this, but that those who as yet sit in darkness shall have the Gospel preached to them. The Christians in Bombay, whom I might ask to help me, are already giving to the best of their ability to the cause of Christ."

CADBURY'S COCOA

ABSOLUTELY PURE, THEREFORE BEST.

The late Editor of the Sanitary Review, writing on "The Consumption of Cocoa," warns the public against the use of foreign cocoas containing alkali, and makes the following allusion to the firm of Cadbury Brothers:—"It is the aim and practice of this famous firm to send out cocoa absolutely pure, of the highest quality which art will permit."

The Editor of the Medical Annual speaks in the highest terms of Cadbury's Cocoa as a beverage and a food for invalids on account of its absolute purity, high quality, and great solubility; and counsels the Medical Profession to remember, in recommending Cocoa, that the name Cadbury on any packet is a guarantee of purity.

NO CHEMICALS USED

(AS IN THE SO-CALLED PURE FOREIGN COCOAS).

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

An Evangelists' Training Home has been opened by the Bishop of Lichfield in Wolverhampton.

Rev. J. Stephenson, lately of Liverpool, has entered on the charge at Boston, left vacant by the death of Canon Blenkin.

A Younger Clergy Union has been formed in Liverpool in order to enlist sympathy and co-operation on behalf of the C.M.S. and foreign missions.

On Thursday, June 2, during the Jewish Feast of Weeks, a sermon was preached to Jews in Christ Church, Spitalfields, by Rev. J. M. Epstein. The service was conducted in Judeo-German, and the congregation was numerous.

At St. Katherine Cree Church, Leadenhall-street, Rev. Dr. W. Meynell Whittemore preached on Sunday week his fortieth Flower Sermon to a large congregation. Choosing his text—"Is there no balm in Gilead?" (Jer. viii. 22)—the preacher described the history and properties of the famous balm, and drew lessons therefrom.

The curious custom of raffling for Bibles took place in the Parish Church of St. Ives', Hunts, on Tuesday. The vicar directed the proceedings, and twelve children cast dice for the six Bibles awarded. The custom dates from 1675, and is in accordance with the will of Dr. Wilde, who left £30 to provide a fund for the purpose.

The annual sermon on behalf of the Daily Prayer Union was preached on Thursday week, at Park Chapel, Chelsea, by Rev. Francis Gell. The sermon was an able and eloquent setting forth of the Gospel of the Holy Ghost. The text was John xv. 26, and the preacher enlarged upon the work of the Holy Spirit, as displayed (1) in the individual heart, (2) in the Church, and (3) in the world.

A Diocesan Committee has been formed for Liverpool, Manchester, and Chester, in connection with the Evangelical Lay Union. Its objects are: the unity of the Evangelical Party at and around the centres named, to strengthen the position of that party in the councils of the Church, and generally to enable it to resist the efforts of the Ritualistic party towards its extinction.

Some interesting letters from the Hon. and Rev. E. Carr Glyn, who is travelling in the Holy Land, are published in the Kensington Parish Magazine. On an expedition to the Dead Sea the vicar bathed in that curious water, and described himself as "nearly pickled and boiled." On their return to Jerusalem they heard of a party of travellers two days in front of them who had been robbed and murdered by Bedouins. Mr. Glyn is accompanied on his travels by Lady Mary Carr Glyn and Miss Grenfell.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Rev. G. Gladstone, of Glasgow, has declined the call to Finsbury Park.

Rev. A. Goodrich, D.D., preached at Wollerton, Salop, on Thursday week, to very large congregations.

A new church is in course of erection at Southtown, Great Yarmouth, which has doubled its population in late years.

Services were on Sunday week commenced in the Public Hall, Midhurst, under the auspices of the Sussex County Association.

The American Year-Book for 1892 reports 4986 Congregational churches, with 525,093 members. In the Sunday-schools are 626,060 scholars.

At the recent meeting of the Hunts Association, Rev. J. M. Gibbon delivered a striking address on "Spiritual Power and How to Get It."

The London Missionary Society has decided to appoint an artisan missionary to accompany Rev. A. J. Wookey, who is about to commence work in the region of Lake Ngami.

During the past winter a large Mission Chapel has been erected at Willingham—the locality of the well-known 'Long Man,' an example of Druidical remains on the slopes of the South Downs.

Rev. Michael D. Jones, principal of Bala College, and founder of the Welsh colony in Patagonia, is now anxious to form a Welsh mission to the Welsh colonists in that distant part of the world.

The church at Commercial-street, Northampton, has accepted the resignation of Rev. T. Gasquoine, recognising that the state of his health and the orders of his medical adviser leave no alternative.

At the invitation of the pastor and deacons, the anniversary services of the Presbyterian Church, Whitehaven, were held in the Congregational Chapel. Dr. Monro Gibson, who preached on the occasion, expressed his delight in such an evidence of brotherly-kindness among the churches.

BAPTIST.

The Baptist Chapel at Worth, Keighley, is to be enlarged, at a cost of £850.

Rev. Henry Wright, of Clifton, Bristol, has accepted an invitation to the pastorate of Queen's-park Baptist Church, Glasgow.

At the annual meetings of the Baptist Union of Ireland, most encouraging reports were presented from various parts of the country.

At the annual meetings of the Yorkshire Baptist Association, most interesting accounts were given of the village work, which is well organised.

Rev. F. B. Meyer, B.A., has concluded a three days' mission at Rochdale. The meetings have been successful and a blessing has been obtained.

The church worshipping in the iron structure known as Altrincham Tabernacle have made arrangements to purchase the recently-closed Bowdon Baptist Chapel.

A great meeting was held last week at Leicester, to welcome home Rev. J. G. Greenhough from his visit to the West Indies, and to hear an account of the Lord's work in those islands.

The work in Ashton-under-Lyne, under the pastoral care of Rev. J. D. T. Humphreys, continues to make good progress. During the year there has been a clear increase, while the Sunday-school and working-men's class are in good condition.

A valedictory service was recently held at Graham-street, Birmingham, in connection with the departure of Rev. C. H. Homer, of the Pastors' College, as missionary pastor to a newly-formed Baptist Church at Port Elizabeth, South Africa.

An interesting feature of the Centenary gatherings was an exhibition in Fuller Chapel schoolroom of letters written by William Carey, Andrew Fuller, and others; several pen-and-ink sketches designed for the Centenary volume of Baptist Missions, just published; and other articles of interest and antiquity. The letters included one from Moulton Church, in 1789, to the Association meeting at Leicester, and signed by William Carey. There was another written by Carey from Harvey-lane Church, Leicester, in 1791.

METHODIST.

A beautiful village chapel has just been opened at St. Columb, Cornwall.

Rev. Thomas Waugh held last week deeply interesting services in King-street Chapel, Bristol.

The seventy-third annual conference of the Primitive Methodists was held last week in Norwich.

Nearly four hundred local preachers have been holding their annual conference this week at Bristol.

New North-road Chapel has been thoroughly repaired, and was reopened on Sunday as the centre of a new mission effort.

The Forward Movement in Oakham is just now making very rapid strides, under the energetic management of Mr. Clutterbuck.

At the annual meetings of the Calvinistic Methodists, held last week in Liverpool, the statistics showed a marked and cheering increase.

In various populous places, such as Bristol, Newcastle, and Hull, the Wesleyan Mission bands united on Whit Monday in evangelistic demonstrations, creating much interest, and holding rousing open-air services.

The Methodist New Connexion, at its annual conference held this week at Ashton-under-Lyne, reports an increase in its membership. With the exception of one year, when there was a small decrease, the New Connexion has had the joy of annual increase for the last fifteen or sixteen years.

The yearly association meetings of the Welsh Calvinistic Methodists of Liverpool district have been held this week, leading ministers from all parts of the Principality taking part. The statistical returns show that during the last twenty years the Connexion has practically doubled its numbers in that district.

Summing up the discussion on the three years' term, which has been continued for some months, in The Connexional Magazine, Dr. Gregory says that, on the whole it seems to him from a careful weighing of the arguments on both sides, and a comparison of them with the results of a rather wide and long experience and observation, that so soon as there shall be a clearly predominating wish for an extension of the term, an extension to five years would probably turn out to be of greater advantage than risk.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Dr. Monro Gibson has recently visited Edinburgh, and opened a new Free Church in Warrender Park.

Rev. J. W. Stewart was last week ordained minister of Cleator Moor, in succession to the late Rev. A. Davidson.

Rev. Thomas Curry, who has been doing good work in Bermondsey, has resolved to accept the call from his old congregation at Aston Tyrrold.

A good work has been going on in various villages around Marsh-green, and Rev. D. Smith maintains that if only small buildings could be secured, good churches would soon be formed.

The programme of the Toronto Conference of the Presbyterian Alliance has been published. It is anticipated that the number of delegates from the British and Continental Churches will be very large.

Professor Lindsay, convener of the Free Church Foreign Missions Committee, told the Assembly that since the beginning of its session he had received, either in actual money or in promises, chiefly for the volunteer student movement, partly for the movement for Indian village evangelisation, and partly for separate objects, the sum of no less than £3607.

NOTES FROM SCOTLAND.

The Dundee Mission to the Outdoor Blind has had a prosperous year of work.

Rev. Mr. Jeffrey, Free Church minister, of Shettleston, Glasgow, has resigned his charge, in order to devote himself to evangelistic work.

Another article in The Scottish Pulpit, on "Tempted Glasgow," deals with dancing saloons, which are the source of much demoralisation.

"Gipsy" Smith has been addressing a series of meetings in Edinburgh. To a crowded audience in Free St. George's Church he told the story of his life.

A special missionary service was held in the McCheyne Memorial Church, Dundee, on Sunday week, in connection with the departure of Miss Dodds for Lovedale Mission, South Africa.

A Y.M.C.A. District Conference was lately held at Aberdeen, when Mr. Henderson Smith, Travelling Secretary for Scotland, read a well-considered paper on the responsibilities of Christians towards young men.

The Free Church Monthly appeals for help for a new mission hall in Glenlivet, for which £100 was left by a poor widow who had been originally brought up a Roman Catholic. The hall is in course of erection, and is situated in a region of dense Popery.

At the quarterly aggregate meeting of the Fellowship Union, recently held in Edinburgh, Mr. Charles J. Guthrie, advocate, urged that we must take large views in mission matters. In the foreign field we surely did not expect to have our particular churches perpetuated. In India or China we should have great Indian and Chinese churches. It would be hopeless, it would be sinful, to attempt to carry out there many of the things from which we get such benefit here.

On Sunday week the annual Covenanters' sermon was delivered by Rev. Mr. Borland, Yarrow, on the memorable battlefield of Drumclog. Taking his text from Psalm cxxv., he gave a historical account of the events that led up to the ever-memorable battle which they were met that day to commemorate. He vindicated the cause of the Covenanters, who had won and bequeathed to us our civil and religious rights and liberties. After the sermon, Professor Blackie, Edinburgh, addressed the audience.

A correspondent of The Glasgow Mail states that at last communion of Rev. John Robertson's Gorbals Tabernacle, fifty-two new members joined the church, and with a like result at the near approaching communion there will be a total of one thousand who have been enrolled since Mr. Robertson's advent to the city last year. The Grand National Hall is packed as usual, and the audience are manifestly held in thrall by the preacher. Whole families who formerly neglected church ordinances are now constant worshippers with Mr. Robertson, whose success, under the blessing of God, affords a striking illustration of the attractive power of the Gospel when it has a competent exponent.

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

The Home Mission Fund of the General Assembly is nearly £1000 in debt.

Ten additional orphans have been taken charge of by the Cavan Protestant Orphan Society.

The Managing Committee of the Methodist Church has resolved to locate one of the General missionaries in Co. Clare.

It has been arranged to hold an Episcopal Church Conference in Armagh early in September to consider such subjects as "Lay Help," "Special Hindrances and Helps to the Spiritual Life," and "How to Revive in Our Own Day the Missionary Spirit of the Ancient Irish Church."

FALLEN ASLEEP.

At Brankesme-road, Brixton, on June 2, Florence J. Shephard, an earnest young Christian worker. At Elphinstone-road, Hastings, on June 1, W. C. Beeh, aged fifty-six, a faithful worker. At Glasgow, J. B. McCallum, an earnest and helpful leader in the South-side Baptist Church. At Llanelly, on June 6, Mr. W. R. Rogers, an active church worker. At Carmarthen, Mr. Thomas Jones, a godly and useful deacon. At Crouch-hill, Mrs. B. D. Mackenzie, who will be sorely missed at Regent-square. In Edinburgh, while attending the Assembly, Rev. A. D. Campbell, of Lockerbie. At West Bromwich, Rev. John Dowty, M.A., who had been in the Wesleyan ministry fifty-three years. At Cowbridge, Canon Edmonds, aged eighty-five. At Landor-road, Edinburgh, on 7th inst., Mrs. Milne, widow of Rev. John Milne, of St. Leonards, Perth. At Newton Rectory, on 7th inst., Rev. T. Todd, M.A., aged seventy-nine. At Ince, Chester, on 3rd inst., Rev. E. O. Rawson, M.A., aged forty. At Clifton, by a fall from her horse, Miss Emily Sturge, well known in connection with educational movements. At Lisnadill, co. Armagh, Rev. Stephen Radcliff, for the past eighteen years rector of Lisnadill. At Wilkinstown, co. Meath, Rev. Thomas A. Stopford, rector of Clongill, aged seventy-seven years.

Notices.

Communications Received with Thanks.—J.K. W.C. J.C. C.S.P. E.E.H. E.V. I.B. G.G.W. R.B.B. C.L. D.D.B. J.K. H.U. Dr.F. A.C.R. A.M.A.G. R. H.W. R.C. C.B.S. S.A. J.C. J.L. E.F.H. A.M. J.P. A.H.T. R.B. F.M.B. B.B. W.K. J.E.C. M.B. A.J.A.G. C.A.D. A.W. J.C. W.D. W.A. W.J.C. A.M.C.E. J.R. E.M. D.M.C. J.R.B. B.S. J.B. Q.H. B.S. H.W.R. E.H. J.C. W.B. J.D. S.B. N.F.D. E.S.B. H.W.J. A.C.E.K. J.O.F. B.B.B. M.A.G. G.S. E.S.B. S.D.W. F.A.B. A.G.B. T.E. J.G.T. P.E.L. M.S. J.T.I. J.L. W.H. C.B. J.J.D. L.W. E.W.R. M.B. G.J. A.McL. A.T.G. J.B. R.S. H.W. W.F.A.A. M.B. J.D. A.T.A.M. J.J.L. C.D. T.E.B. W.G. G.T.G. G.M. W.T.F.

Applicants for Tracts.—R. Howell Davies, 33, Willow-street, Oswestry; F. W. Pulsford, 4, Denmark-cottages, Linkfield-road, Isleworth; Miss C. Willoughby, 8, Earl's Park-terrace, Beechcroft-road, Upper Tooting, S.W.; G. Wise, Cottenham-road, Worthing; A. Finch, 50, Monnes-street, Abbott's-road, Poplar, E.; Miss Jeannie Hornsby, 26, Ventnor-road, Bridge-street West, Birmingham; T. G. Tredennick, 77, Granth m-road, Sparkbrook, Birmingham; E. W. Beaty, Stanwix, Carlisle; W. Lippett, 1, Walker's-buildings, Lich-street, Worcester; Miss Jones, 60, Albert-road, King's-heath, Birmingham; Miss E Pay, 22, Exmouth-street, Birkenhead; Miss McLean, Conference Hall, Eccleston-street, S.W.; W. Grundy, 27, Woodley-street, Harpurhey, Queen-road, Manchester; Miss A. Smith, 19, Village-grove, Village-street, Everton, Liverpool; Miss R. E. Brauer, 24, Village-street, Everton, Liverpool; W. Starr, West-street, N.S., Carrickfergus.

[As it is found that infidels and others send tracts to the persons whose names are inserted here, it is most desirable that all books and papers should be carefully read before being given away.]

Appeals.

Keswick Convention.—Mrs. Baskerville, of St. Stephen's Vicarage, Walthamstow, has been asked to take a house for a few missionaries to attend the coming Keswick Convention. Will some of the Lord's stewards help to enable her thus to be the means of giving these honoured servants spiritual refreshment, before returning to their various spheres of labour?

Soldiers' and Sailors' Home, Floriana, Malta.—For a couple of years past, while the number of soldiers frequenting the house has been maintained, owing partly, no doubt, to the fact that the ships of the fleet have been so much away from Malta, the business takings have been considerably less. With enlarged premises and larger expenses we have thus been brought into serious difficulties. We need £200 to settle accounts, and £200 more to renew furniture worn out with long use, and to add some new beds. Our want is very urgent. J. Laverack, Wesleyan chaplain.

The Birmingham Christian Evidence and Protestant Association, which has been doing good work for some years, is compelled to leave the room rented from the Y.M.C.A., that room being required by the Y.M.C.A. itself. A large hall has been secured in a central position suitable for holding meetings and lectures, but the rent will be much larger than hitherto paid, while some fittings and furnishings are needed. Help is earnestly asked, and should be sent to Mr. T. H. Aston, 197, Deritend, Birmingham.

Midnight Meeting Movement.—The committee have been forced to adopt the alternative of temporarily suspending the work of the Mission until funds come in, or applying to their bankers for a loan to keep the operations going, and they have deemed it better to borrow than to cease this much-needed rescue work. Messrs. Hoare have granted a loan of £200 for three months. The committee are most anxious to arrange for the work of the coming autumn, and they believe that contributors will support their policy by kindly sending such prompt help as will enable them to pay off the loan, and to arrange for meetings.—C. Wilson M'Cree, Secretary, 8A, Red Lion-square, W.C.

(For Forthcoming Meetings see page 30.)

SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY
FOR IRELAND.

Funds greatly needed to extend the work.

Irish-speaking readers are sent where required, and the work is carried on in a spirit of love.

Reports sent on application to Captain J. Kearney White, Offices, 27, Lower Pembroke-street, Dublin, and 9, Paternoster-row, London, where Donations may be sent; or to the Office of The Christian. John xiii. 35.

Please notice exact title of Society.

St. Giles' Christian Mission

CHILDREN'S HOLIDAY FUND.

The Holiday Season is close upon us, and the Children attending the Sunday Schools of the St. Giles' Christian Mission are anxiously looking forward to their Annual Treat. Last year, in addition to giving a Day's Outing to 1500

Little Ones, drawn chiefly from the Courts and Alleys of St. Giles', we were enabled to send considerably over 200 for a fortnight in the country. We are anxious to do at least as much this year.

WILL YOU HELP?

Donations will be most thankfully acknowledged if sent to our Treasurer, F. A. Bevan, Esq., 54, Lombard St., E.C., or to Mr. George Hatton, Superintendent St. Giles' Christian Mission, 4, Ampton St., Regent Sq., W.C.

THE ANCHORAGE.
SPECIAL HOUSE OF SHELTER FOR THE MORE RESPECTABLE CLASS OF YOUNG WOMEN.

Trustees:—REV. H. E. FOX and GEORGE HANBURY, Esq.

NINETY-SIX per cent. of the Mothers sheltered last year are now known to be leading respectable lives. The Committee therefore confidently appeal for funds to maintain the work, full particulars of which will be found in the Annual Report, which will be forwarded on application to the Secretary, 32, Charing Cross, London, S.W.

Orders for garments made at the ANCHORAGE will be thankfully received by the Secretary as above, from whom price list may be obtained.

Contributions may be paid to Messrs. Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings; or, to the Secretary of the Anchorage, 32, Charing Cross, London, S.W.

THE ROYAL BLIND PENSION SOCIETY.

Patron—HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.

President—THE DUKE OF GRAFTON, K.G.

This Society pays Life Pensions to the needy and deserving blind, through the Agency of over 400 Honorary Almoners in all parts of the Kingdom. There are now 630 pensions being paid at an annual cost of nearly £5000. Nearly the whole of this sum is collected from voluntary sources. The Committee urgently plead for new Subscriptions to enable them to carry on the work of relieving the Blind Poor. No office rent is incurred; the Secretary is the only paid officer.

Bankers: Bank of England and London and Westminster Bank (Southwark).

JOHN C. BUMSTED, Treasurer.
GEORGE POCOCK } Hon.
PERCY R. POCOCK } Secretaries.
W. ELLIOTT TERRY, Secretary. c509

235, Southwark Bridge-road, London.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

LARGEST SALE IN THE WORLD.

A WONDERFUL MEDICINE for all Bilious and Nervous Disorders, such as Sick Headache, Constipation, Weak Stomach, Impaired Digestion, Disordered Liver, and Irregularities.

PREPARED ONLY BY THE PROPRIETOR, THOMAS BEECHAM, ST. HELENS, LANCASHIRE.

Sold by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Dealers everywhere, in Boxes 9½d., 1s. 1½d., and 2s. 9d. each. Full directions with each box.

BEECHAM'S TOOTH PASTE.

Will recommend itself; it is efficacious, economical, cleanses the teeth, perfumes the breath, removes tartar, and prevents decay. It is composed of the best-known ingredients for neutralising the acids of the mouth and preventing all deleterious deposits upon the teeth.

BEECHAM'S TOOTH PASTE is put up in collapsible tubes, perfectly air-tight, and so adjustable that no waste need occur; the packages are pretty for the toilet table, and most convenient for the travelling bag. They are sold everywhere for ONE SHILLING each.

"THE WORLD'S PROVED REMEDY FOR ALL CHEST DISEASES."

COUGH, ASTHMA,

CHRONIC BRONCHITIS,

INFLUENZA.

Rev. F. F. HEAPE, of Derby, in a recent letter, says:—"Your Medicine always puts my lungs right, and drove out the terrible INFLUENZA last May."

This Medicine has been prepared for 65 years.

CONGREVE'S

BALSAMIC ELIXIR,

In Bottles 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., 11s., and 22s. may be had of all Chemists and Medicine Vendors.

The New Way

To pick up, to gain strength, to fortify both brain and body, is just the reverse of the old way.

No more tonics, no more nauseous drugs, no more pills and patent medicines, but simply Medical Electricity.

No physician is needed.
The cost is trifling.
It don't interfere with your business.
Easy to use; pleasant and safe.
It cures, when medicine fails.

Our Book Free.

The way and the reasons are clearly set forth in a little book, which we gladly send free—post paid.

PULVERMACHER'S GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT, 194, Regent Street, London, W.

MAZAWATTEE

Recalls the Delicious TEA of Thirty Years ago.

DONATIONS
RECEIVED BY MESSRS. MORGAN & SCOTT TO MONDAY, JUNE 13, 1892.

⁂ Donations should be sent by Cheque or P.O.Orders, not by stamps.

⁂ Will donors oblige us by giving explicitly and fully the titles of the missions to which they wish their donations to be applied? Mistakes which sometimes arise will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind that our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Monday morning? Any amounts received afterwards will be acknowledged in the subsequent week's number.

⁂ Cheques, Money Orders, or Postal Orders should be made payable to Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings, London, E.C., and crossed "City Bank;" this will effectually prevent loss.

	£	s.	d.
M'All Mission (France)—M.W., 10s.; J.O., 5s. ...	0	15	0
Miss de Broen's Work (Paris)—M.W.	0	10	0
British Syrian Schools—M.W.	0	10	0
Distribution Rabbi Lichtenstein's Literature among Jews—Melrose	0	10	0
British and Foreign Bible Society—L.A.T., 5s.; E.B., £1; Mrs. R.C., 10s.; E.M.D., 10s.; H.E.R., £1	3	5	0
London Missionary Society—Emma	0	5	0
Lepers of India—L.M.H., £1; Santry, £2 1s. 1d.; H.E.R., £1	4	1	1
Moravian Missions—C.M., 2s. 6d.; H.E.R. (West Indies), £1	1	2	6
China Inland Mission—L.M.H.	1	0	0
Sailors' Home (Havre)—M.S.	5	0	0
Mr. Wall's Work (Rome)—M.S.	5	0	0
Young Men's Foreign Missionary Society—M.S. ...	2	2	0
Dispensary Hospital (Adjudhya)—Isa. lviii. 6 ...	10	0	0
Salvation Army (France)—Isa. lviii. 6	5	0	0
Church of England Zenana Medical Mission—H.E.R.	1	0	0
Scutari Orphanage—H.E.R....	0	10	0
Golden-lane Mission (Day in the Country), Mr. Orsman—S.G.P.	0	2	6
London Samaritan Society (Day in the Country)—S.G.P.	0	2	6
Homes for Aged Blind, Crouch-hill—H.E.R.... ...	0	10	0
Miss Mittendorff's Home—H.E.R.	0	10	0
New Hospital, Mildmay—H.E.R.	0	10	0
Aged Pilgrims' Friend Society—H.E.R.	1	0	0
Church Pastoral Aid Society—H.E.R.	1	0	0
Evangelisation Society—J.O....	0	5	0
Society for the Relief of Persecuted Jews—J.O. ...	0	10	0
Irish Church Missions—C.L.M.T.	1	0	0
London City Mission—G.W.R., £10 10s.; E.G., £1 H.M.L., 10s.; S.A.C., 10s.; L.M., 2s. 6d.; J.O., £1	11	10	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—M.W., 10s.; D.A., 4s. 6d.; H.M.L., 10s.; S.A.C., 10s.; L.M., 2s. 6d.; J.O., £1	2	17	0
Mrs. Meredith's Work—M.W.	0	10	0
Drury-lane Mission (Day in the Country)—S.G.P....	0	2	6
Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen—M.W.	0	10	0
Missions to Seamen—M.W.	0	10	0
Miss Weston's Work (Royal Navy)—M.W., 10s.; H.E.R. (in response to immediate), £1	1	10	0
Miss Robinson's Work (Soldiers)—M.W., 10s.; H.E.R., 10s.	1	0	0
Gratuitous Circulation of THE CHRISTIAN—M.W., 5s.; Mrs. E.N.G., 2s. 6d....	0	7	6
THE CHRISTIAN Tract Fund—M.W.	0	5	0
Day in Country Fund—W., £1; S.G.H., £5; W.H., £5; Sailors (at Sailors' Home, Havre), £2 10s. 9d.; H.M.L., 10s.; A.S.R., 10s.; E.C., £1; J.H.L., 5s.; A.J.W., 2s. 6d.; Eleanor, 2s.; Mrs. E.N.G., £1; J.O., 5s.; S.G.P., 2s. 6d. ...	17	7	9
Sufferers from Fire, Sixpenny Handley—E.T.L	2	0	0
Theatrical Mission—M.S.	2	2	0
George-yard Ragged Schools—(Day in Country), J.W.	0	5	0
Friendless and Fallen—A Friend	5	0	0
Mr. Fegan's Homes—Emma, 5s.; J.O., 10s.	0	15	0
British Society Gospel Among Jews (Jubilee Fund)—A.S.R.	0	10	0
Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children—M.S.	3	3	0
Mr. Toye's Orphanage—M.S.	3	0	0
Mrs. Wilkes' Rescue Work—M.S....	5	0	0
Sailors' Welcome Home (Miss Child)—M.S.	5	0	0
Women's Mission to Women—M.S.	2	2	0
Flower Girls' Mission—M.S....	3	3	0
Working Men's Mission (New Cut)—M.S.	2	2	0
Mr. Colin Young's Work Among Jews—M.S.	2	2	0
Billingsgate Christian Mission—M.S.	2	2	0
Bristol Orphan Homes—S.A.C., £1; C.L.M.T., £1	2	0	0
Stockwell Orphanage—S.A.C.	1	0	0
Home of Industry—S.A.C.	1	0	0
St. Giles' Christian Mission—S.A.C., 10s.; Isa. lviii 6, £20; J.O., 5s.; (Prison)—Y.R., £1 ...	21	15	0
Mildmay Mission to Jews—S.A.C., 10s.; J.O., £1; R.K., £2 10s.	4	0	0
Association for Free Distribution of Scriptures—S.A.C.	0	10	0
Mr. T. Connellan's Work, Ireland—Isa. lviii. 6 ...	20	0	0
The Bible League—Isa. lviii. 6	20	0	0
Tower Hamlets Mission—Isa. lviii. 6	10	0	0
Mrs. Smyly's Work, Dublin—Isa. lviii. 6, £10; H.E.R., 10s.	10	10	0
Mr. C. R. Hurditch's Village Mission—Isa. lviii. 6	5	0	0
	£213	11	4

[ADVERTISEMENT.]

Bethnal-green Free Library, E.—C.W., £2 2s.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—That the result of the impending General Election may be blessed of God to the spread of the Gospel and peace in Ireland.—For outpouring of God's Spirit on a police meeting next Friday, 17th.—For a tent mission at Brooke, Norwich, June 12 to 29.—For special tent services being held at Colyton (Devon).—For a mission in the West-end.—For an East-end Bible-class.

Mount Hermon Orphan Homes.

MRS. MARY ANN PARRY in issuing the twenty-eighth report of these Homes says:—We have had tokens of spiritual blessing. Many of the children have decided for Christ, and shown by their conduct the reality of their decision. We have received twenty-two new cases, and twenty-seven orphans have left the Homes.

But the year just past has been one in which our faith has oftentimes been greatly tried for want of funds; so much so that, in September last, we thought it wise to close our Cottage Home in Mill Lane for the winter, hoping to re-open it in the spring or summer. This we have not yet been able to do, and are now waiting upon the Lord for guidance in the matter. Many of the Lord's stewards may be led to help, so that our Cottage may speedily be re-opened as a Convalescent Home for the benefit of several of our delicate children who are needing change, and thus make room in our Cambridge Avenue Houses (which are now quite full) for some urgent cases that are awaiting admission. We also greatly need money for necessary repairs and painting for all the houses, and for daily expenses. Communications should be addressed Mrs. Parry, Mount Hermon, 55, Cambridge-avenue, Kilburn, N.W.

DR. PIERSON.—A farewell meeting, on the eve of Dr. Pierson's departure for America, has been arranged for Monday evening next at 7 p.m., in the Metropolitan Tabernacle.

SUN LIFE OFFICE

FOR ASSURANCES UNDER COST PRICE.

Apply for the New Prospectus at the Chief Office,

63, THREADNEEDLE STREET, E.C., to

HARRIS C. L. SAUNDERS, General Manager.

St. Giles' Christian Mission.

A PUBLIC MEETING

In support of the work of this Mission amongst Men, Women, and Boys will be held at

THE MANSION HOUSE, E.C.,

At Three o'Clock on Thursday Afternoon, June 23rd, 1892.

THE RIGHT HON. THE LORD MAYOR

Will Preside, and will be supported by the following Gentlemen:

Col. HOWARD VINCENT, C.B., M.P.
Sir W. CHARLEY, Q.C., Common Serjeant.
Dr. ANDERSON, Assistant-Commissioner of Police.
F. A. BEVAN, Esq., Treasurer
T. A. DENNY, Esq.
R. LOVELAND LOVELAND, Esq., Judge at Middlesex Sessions.

And the following London Magistrates:

Sir JOHN BRIDGE.
JAMES VAUGHAN, Esq.
H. J. BUSHBY, Esq.
R. H. B. MARSHAM, Esq.
A. De RUTZEN, Esq.
H. CURTIS BENNETT, Esq.
E. BAGGALLAY, Esq.
HADEN CORSER, Esq.
F. MEAD, Esq.
J. DICKINSON, Esq.
F. LUSHINGTON, Esq.

Tickets of admission will be sent free upon application to the Superintendent or Secretary.

Funds are much needed to carry on the many-sided work of the Mission, and Donations will be most gratefully acknowledged if sent to the Treasurer, F. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard Street, E.C.; to the Secretary, Mr. W. WHEATLEY, 29, Brooke Street, Holborn, E.C.; or to the Superintendent,

MR. GEORGE HATTON,
4, AMPTON STREET, REGENT SQUARE, W.C.

The 26th Anniversary of

"Dr. Barnardo's Homes"

(NOW CONTAINING 4500 WAIFS AND STRAYS)

WILL BE HELD (D.V.) IN THE ROYAL ALBERT HALL,

On Wednesday Evening, 22nd June, 1892.

THE RIGHT HON. THE LORD KINNAIRD

Will take the Chair AT SIX O'CLOCK PRECISELY, and will be supported by, among others,

The Right Hon. The EARL of ABERDEEN, P.C. The Rev. CANON WILBERFORCE, M.A.
The Rev. CANON GIRDLESTONE, M.A. Sir HENRY SELWIN-IBBETSON, Bart., M.P.
Colonel C. E. HOWARD VINCENT, C.B., M.P. The Rev. H. SINCLAIR PATERSON, M.A., M.D.
Mr. SAMUEL G. SHEPPARD. Mr. WILLIAM FOWLER. The Rev. Dr. THAIN DAVIDSON.
The Rev. PREBENDARY BARKER, M.A. Major and Mrs. EVERED POOLE.
The Rev. EVAN H. HOPKINS, M.A. Mr. HOWARD WILLIAMS.
The Hon. and Rev. W. T. RICE, M.A. The Rev. J. B. FIGGIS, M.A. The Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A
The Rev. PREBENDARY GORDON CALTHROP, M.A. The Rev. Dr. MacEWAN.
Mr. JAMES RANKIN, M.P. General Sir ROBERT PHAYRE, K.C.B., and Dr. BARNARDO.

Among other interesting items of the Programme will be the following:

1. The Right Hon. the COUNTESS OF ABERDEEN will present Prizes to OLD BOYS and OLD GIRLS now out in service.
2. Singing by 1500 Trained Children, Conducted by Mr. J. Frank Proudman.
3. Ten Workshops in full swing.
4. Gymnastics and Musical Drill by Little Boys.
5. On Board a Man-of-War—Smart Naval Drill.
6. A Narrow Escape from Fire!
7. How "Our Girls" are taught to work.
8. A Village Green on the first of May.
9. Manitoba Emigrants en route.
10. Some Very Raw Material.
11. Crippled Soldiers in the Battle of Life.
12. The Babies' Play-hour.
13. Musical Drill by some of "Our Girls."
14. A Procession of Young Craftsmen.
15. The most important function — the Collection.

Tickets for admission to different parts of the House can be obtained as follows:—Gallery, 1s. (all sold); Balcony, 2s. 6d. and 3s. 6d.; Arena, 5s.; Stalls, 7s. 6d.; Loggia Boxes, 10s. per seat, or £3 per Box (holding eight seats); Second Tier Boxes, 15s. per seat, or £2 15s. per Box (holding five seats); Grand Tier Boxes, 21s. per seat, or £5 per Box (holding ten seats).

THE ROYAL BOX (BY PERMISSION OF H.M. THE QUEEN), SEATING TWENTY, £15; THE BOXES KINDLY PLACED AT THE DISPOSAL OF THE COMMITTEE BY T.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES AND DUKE OF EDINBURGH, 10 GUINEAS EACH.

OFFICES: 18 TO 26, STEPNEY CAUSEWAY, LONDON, E. JOHN ODLING, Secretary.

FRESH AIR for Poor Wee CHILDREN. Miss Florence Nightingale and Household are heartily thanked for their most acceptable CONTRIBUTIONS. For each 10s. subscribed, a pent-up London child can be boarded out for 14 days—3,197 during seven seasons. Funds pressingly needed.—Bankers: L & County, Islington.—A. STYLEMAN HERRING (for Local Committee), Vicar St. Paul's, Clerkenwell, 45, Colebrooke Row, N.

LONDON CITY MISSION.

500 MISSIONARIES now employed in beseeching the masses in the Metropolis to be reconciled to God through Jesus Christ our Lord. House-to-house visitation Personal dealing. Work purely undenominational.

THE NEED IS URGENT.

Secretaries: T. S. HUTCHINSON, M.A., ROBERT DAWSON, B.A.
Treasurer: P. A. BEVAN. Office: 3, Bridewell place, E.C.
Bankers: BARCLAY, BEVAN, RANSOM & Co., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.

THE RAILWAY MISSION

Carries on Gospel and Temperance work among railway men throughout the world. Its Missionaries and Evangelists organise and conduct meetings at times and places that suit the convenience of the men. 250 branches have been opened in the United Kingdom. Missionaries have been sent to South Africa and Egypt.

A Convalescent Home specially for maimed and wounded railway men is about to be opened at Hastings.

Funds are urgently needed. Subscriptions and donations may be sent to the Treasurer, S. GURNEY SHEPPARD, Esq., 57, Old Broad-street, E.C.; or to R. NIXON, Secretary, 13, New Bridge-street, London, E.C.

THE JUBILEE OF Field Lane Ragged Schools & Refuges.

AN EARNEST APPEAL is made by the Committee for £1000 to enable them to commemorate the Jubilee by Building a NEW WING to the BOYS' HOME.

Funds are also urgently needed for ordinary expenses.
Donations will be thankfully received by the Treasurer, Banker, or Secretary (see below).

THE ANNUAL MEETING

Will (D.V.) be held on THURSDAY, JUNE 23rd, 1892, at the HOLBORN TOWN HALL, Gray's inn-road, at 6.30 p.m.

The President, the EARL of ABERDEEN, will Preside.

The following gentlemen have kindly consented to address the Meeting:—

GAINSFORD BRUCE, ESQ., Q.C., M.P. | REV. F. B. MEYER, B.A.
REV. J. MONRO GIBSON, D.D. | REV. W. R. MOWLL, M.A.

Treasurer—WILFRID A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.
Bankers—Messrs. BARCLAY, BEVAN, RANSOM & CO., 54, Lombard-street, E.C., and 1, Pall Mall East, W.
Secretary—Mr. PEREGRINE PLATT, The Institution, Vine-street, Clerkenwell-road, E.C.

Forthcoming Meetings.

[Communications respecting forthcoming meetings cannot be inserted unless received by Tuesday morning at the latest.]

The Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, or Wales, on due notice. Apply Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.; or, The Sec., Evangelisation Society, Scottish Branch, The Grove-street Institute, Glasgow.

The Irish Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

The Church Army will send evangelists (working-men) to any clergymen on due notice, for short or long missions. Hon. Sec., 128 and 130, Edgware-road, W.

The Metropolitan Tabernacle Evangelists' Association will send evangelists to any evangelical denomination within the London postal area. Hon. Sec., 5, Crown-villas, Kennington Oval, S.E.

The Country Towns Mission supplies qualified missionaries for work in the country. Apply to Secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C.

Mr. Henry Thorne's Evangelistic Missions.—Friends wishing to make arrangements for mission services may apply for particulars to the Secretary, Mr. James Pearce, Exeter Hall, Strand, London.

Y.M.C.A., 59 and 60, Cornhill, E.C.—Bible Readings by Mr. Charles Inglis, June 16 and 17, 1.15 to 2.15 p.m., June 20 at 1.15 p.m., Mr. Maxwell Wright will speak on Mission Work in Brazil. Gospel service, young men, Tues., at 6.15 p.m., and Suns., 3.30 p.m.

Conference Hall, Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E.—Sun., June 19, 3 and 7 p.m., Mr. Geo. Hyde. Women's meetings, Sun. 3 p.m., Mon. 3 p.m., Tues. 8 p.m., Wed. 7 p.m.

Y.M.C.A., Exeter Hall, Strand.—Sun., 3.45 (men only), Mr. E. S. Kennedy. 7, public. Meetings for men nightly at 8. Cheerful service, public, Sat., at 8. French Bible-class, Tues., at 8. Prayer-meeting, Mon. to Fri., from 1 till 2 p.m.

West London Central Mission.—St. James's Hall, Sun., Rev. Mark Guy Pearse, 11 a.m.; Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, 7 p.m.

House of Rest, 10, Finchley-road, N.W.—Fri., 17, at 4 p.m., Rev. H. E. Sampson, on "The Slum Work of the Salvation Army." Dr. Montague Miller at 7. Sun., 3.30, Bible Readings by Miss Mason.

Abbey Road Chapel, St. John's Wood.—Sun., Rev. H. E. Stone, at 11 and 6.30 p.m.

Edinburgh Castle, Limehouse, E.—Sun., 19, Messrs. Pierson and Goldsbury at 11, and 7; Rev. H. Bright at 3.

Great Assembly Hall, Mile-end-road, E.—Sun., Mr. W. Nobbs, 11 a.m. and 6.30 p.m.

Regent's-park Chapel.—Rev. F. B. Meyer, B.A., Sun., 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Bible Readings for workers, Fri., 8 p.m.

Public Hall, West Norwood, S.E.—Pastor W. F. Gooch, on Sabbath next, at 11 and 6.45.

Evangelistic Mission.—Kilburn Hall, Kilburn-gate, N.W., Sun., 7 p.m., Mr. C. R. Hurditch. Malden Hall, Queen's-crescent, Haverstock-hill, N.W., Sun., 7 p.m., Mr. G. Assitur.

Marylebone Presbyterian Church, Upper George-street.—Rev. Dr. Pentecost, Sun., 11 and 7. Thurs., at 8 p.m.

St. George's Hall, Langham-place.—Mr. Herbert Francis. Sun. at 11 and 7, Barlington Hall, Wed., at 8 p.m.

Conference Hall, Mildmay-park.—Sun., June 19, 3.30, Dr. Wm. Gould; 7, Dr. Henry Soltau.

Conference Hall, Eccleston-street.—Sun., 19th, Mr. C. Russell Horditch at 3.30; Mr. A. M. Neatby at 7.

Talbot Tabernacle.—Sun., June 19, Mr. J. E. Cooke.

St. Giles' Christian Mission.—Meeting at Mansion House, Thursday, June 23, at 3 p.m., the Lord Mayor in the chair, supported by the Common Serjeant and eleven London magistrates.

Bestry Hall, Haverstock-hill.—Missionary Meeting in connection with the Zenana Bible and Medical Mission, Fri., June 17, 8.15 p.m.; Hon. Gertrude Kinnaird and Rev. G. F. Pentecost, D.D., will give addresses.

"Ruth Elliott" Home of Rest for Children.—Opening meeting in Wesleyan Schoolroom, Enfield, Sat., 18, at 3.30, Lady E. Biddulph and others.

Temperance Conference, Exeter Hall, Tues., 21, at 3 p.m. Public meeting at 7 p.m., Sir Wilfrid Lawson, M.P., in the chair.

[Annual Meetings.]

Shipwrecked Mariners' Society, Well-street Sailors' Home, June 16, at 2 p.m., Hon. Francis Egerton.

Ragged Church and Chapel Union, 4, Trafalgar-square, June 16, at 7 p.m., Mr. J. Peters.

After-care Association.—Upper-terrace House, Hampstead, Mon., 20, at 4 p.m., Dr. Rayner.

Female Servants' Home Society.—Morley Hall, 316, Regent-street, Mon., 20, at 6.30, Mr. R. Paton.

Anti-Vivisection Society.—Wed., 22, Westminster Palace Hotel, at 3 p.m.

Dr. Barnardo's Homes.—Albert Hall, Wed., 22, at 6 p.m., Lord Kinnaird.

Stockwell Orphanage.—Orphanage Grounds, Stockwell, Wed., 22, at 3 p.m., Mr. Burdett Coutts, M.P.; at 6 p.m., Mr. A. McArthur, M.P.

Field-lane Refuges.—Holborn Town Hall, Thurs., 23, at 6 p.m., Earl of Aberdeen.

[Coming Conventions.]

Clapham.—June 15, 16, 17. Sec.: Rev. N. S. Taylor, Babbacombe, S. Devon.

Clothesay, N.B.—June 18-21.

Mildmay-park.—June 21, 22, 23. Sec.: Col. Morton, The Conference Hall, Mildmay, N.

Guilford.—June 27 to July 2. Sec.: Col. Brown, Alburhora, Guildford.

Cheam Heath, Epsom.—July 6, 7.

Llandrindod (Radnorshire).—July 11 to 15. Sec.: Mr. H. S. Newman, Leominster.

Keswick.—July 25 to 30. Sec.: Mr. Postlethwaite, Eskin-place, Keswick.

Carlisle.—Sept. 6-9. Sec.: Mr. C. J. Clapperton, 6, Chiswick-street, Carlisle.

Salisbury.—Sept. 19-23. Sec.: Rev. E. Thwaites, Fisherton, Salisbury.

Glasgow.—Sept. 20-24.

Dundee (Evan. Alliance).—Sept. 26-29. Sec.: Mr. Arnold, 7, Adam-street, London, W.C.

Perth.—Sept. 13 to 15. Sec.; Rev. Dr. Bannerman, Perth.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER.
Awarded Grand Diploma of Honour, Edinburgh, 1890; Two Prize Medals, Paris, 1889.

IRISH CAMBRIC

Children's	- - - 1 3	per doz.
Ladies'	- - - 2 2	,,
Gentlemen's	- - - 3 3	,,
HEMSTITCHED:—
Ladies'	- - - 2 11½	,,
Gentlemen's	- - - 3 11	,,

Embroidered Handkerchiefs in all the latest styles, 1/- to 29/-

Samples and Illustrated Price Lists Post Free.

POCKET HANDKERCHIEFS.

"The Irish Cambrics of Messrs. Robinson & Cleaver have a world-wide fame."—Queen.

By Appointments to the Queen and Empress Frederick of Germany.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER, BELFAST.

EUCALYPTUS AND PINE JUJUBES
C. B. LAWRENCE, ORIGINATOR

LAWRENCE'S EUCALYPTUS AND PINE JUJUBES are the best for all Throat and Lung affections—Bronchial Asthma, Bronchitis, Incipient Consumption, Catarrh, Loss of Voice, &c., quickly yield to their Antiseptic and Curative influence.

The Medical Profession have recognised their value in allaying troublesome Cough, and in advanced stages of Consumption prescribe them as a useful adjunct to other treatment. Letters and recommendations from all parts prove their worth.

Insist on having the ORIGINAL, as inferior Jujubes and Lozenges are being constantly offered.

Price 1s. 1½d. and 2s. per box (post free 1s. 3d. or 2s. 3d.). Of all Chemists, or from LAWRENCE & CO., 20, High-street, Rhyl. London Agents—Barclay, Edwards, Newbery, Sanger.

LADIES

Do you wear DR. WARNER'S UNBREAKABLE CORALINE CORSETS? If not, why not? Send post-card to Manufacturer, W. Pretty, Ipswich, for Illustrated Catalogue and Testimonials. Phenomenal Success. Over Ten Million pairs already sold.

LADIES

CHIVERS'
GOLD MEDAL.
FLAVOURED WITH RIPE FRUIT JUICES.

Dr. Gordon Stables says:—"Messrs. Chivers have come to the front with jellies that really add to our health and luxury."

A child can in a few minutes make jellies of which any cook might be proud. Of all grocers and stores. The address of the nearest grocer to you will be sent on receipt of post card.

S. CHIVERS & SONS,
HISTON, CAMBRIDGE.
First Prize, Whole Fruit Jams, Royal Windsor Show, 1889.

JELLIES

CONDY'S FLUID

USED IN THE ROYAL PALACES AND IN ALL HOSPITALS.

CONDY'S REMEDIAL FLUID.

SORE THROATS, BURNS, WOUNDS	Slight cases cured in a few hours; severe cases speedily checked.
TENDER FEET, PERSPIRING FEET	Instantly relieved by using a little "Condy" in the foot bath.

CAUTION.—INSIST ON HAVING 'CONDY'S.'

Three Large Books, containing Remedial Disinfecting and Veterinary Directions, sent Post Free on application to

CONDY'S FLUID WORKS,
41, TURNMILL STREET, E.C.

LACE CURTAINS.
FROM 1s 6d. PER PAIR. Carriage Free.
SAVE 3d. TO 6d. IN THE 1s.
BEDROOM CURTAINS 2½ to 3 yards long, 38 to 44 inches wide, from 1s. 6d. to 4s. per pair.
DINING AND DRAWING ROOM CURTAINS, 3½ and 4 yards long, 1½ to 2 yards wide, from 3s. 6d. to 25s. per pair.
WHITE OR ECRU.
Send for my list of new designs free on application.
GEO. A. HARRISON, Lace Manufacturer, STAPLEFORD, NOTTINGHAM.

PEPSONYMIN TONIC
THE GREAT CURE
FOR INDIGESTION

There is no known remedy to equal it in cases of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, &c.

Sufferers from Indigestion should read our Pamphlet, containing valuable advice by Dr. Andrew Wilson. Post Free on application. Pepsonymin Tonic will be forwarded Post Free by the Proprietors on receipt of 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., or 4s. 6d., or may be ordered through the local chemist.

FRANCIS SPITE & CO., LIMITED, GLASGOW.
The Trade supplied either direct or through the Wholesale Houses. c327

RUPTURE.
A NEW SPRINGLESS APPLIANCE
For the Immediate Relief and Cure of Rupture (Pat. Reg. No. 4,392), stands
UNEQUALLED for EASE, COMFORT, & DURABILITY.
For Testimonials and full particulars for Self-Measurement, &c., send stamped address to
A. LIVESLEY, Chemist, New Mills, via Stockport. [c120

THE DEAF HEAR
BY USING WALES' PATENT
SOUND DISCS
Which are the same to the ears as glasses are to the eyes. Positively Invisible. Worn months without removal. Book of particulars, 2stamps.—THE H. A. WALES CO., 62 & 63, New Bond St., London, W.

EPILEPTIC FITS.
Most remarkable cures continue to be effected by Mr. Osborne's Remedy for Epilepsy, which has won for itself golden opinions in all parts of the world. Full particulars (with testimonials) sent free on application to James Osborne, Medical Pharmacy, Ashborne, Derbyshire. Reference permitted to Rev. J. Baker, M.A., Stockport.

WEAR THE HALF-GUINEA "PERFECTED"
ELECTRICAL BELT.
Cures Rheumatism, Lumbago, Indigestion, Spinal and Lung Weakness, Epilepsy, Debility, &c. Gives HEALTH, VIGOUR and VITALITY.
Most Comfortable for Ladies and Gentlemen.
The Rev. W. M. CAVE, Wesleyan Minister, late Chairman Devon and Cornwall District, writes:—"Your Electrical Appliances have proved a great success."
Write for Particulars and Testimonials. Tested 13 years.
PLAYER & RETALLACK, 264, Regent Street, London.

PAIN KILLER
The Great Family Medicine. Get a Bottle to-day of PERRY DAVIS'S PAIN KILLER. Acts directly on the seat of Pain. Externally it cures Scalds, Burns, Boils, Sprains, Bruises, Toothache, Headache, Stings and Bites of Insects, &c. Internally it cures Colds, Liver Complaints, Headache, Heartburn, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Sea Sickness, Cramp and Pain in Stomach, Colic, Diarrhœa, Cholera, &c. Sold by all Chemists at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. British Depot: 46, Holborn Viaduct, E.C. Avoid Imitations under misleading names.
PAIN KILLER
c101

BYWATER, TANQUERAY & PHAYRE,
LIMITED.
BANKERS AND AGENTS.
Directors.
ARTHUR BYWATER.
JAMES TRUMAN TANQUERAY.
GENERAL SIR ROBERT PHAYRE, K.C.B.
Secretary: CAPEL SEWELL.
79, QUEEN VICTORIA ST., LONDON,
And at LIVERPOOL and NEW YORK.

Banking in all its Departments. No charge for Current Accounts.

Cash received on Deposit at the following present rates of Interest:—

2½ per cent. per annum for 3 months' notice.
5 " " for 6 "
6 " " for 12 " or longer.
Interest paid Quarterly.

For many years the appointed Agents to 15 of the leading Missionary Societies, English and American. Drafts issued on Foreign Countries free of charge.

ALLIANCE ECONOMIC INVESTMENT COMPANY (Limited).

CAPITAL, £500,000 in 100,000 Shares
Of £5 each, DIVIDED INTO
50,000 ORDINARY SHARES OF £5 EACH;
50,000 PREFERENCE SHARES OF £5 EACH.
Secretary:—MR. WILLIAM FURMAGE PALMER.
Offices:—35, LINCOLN'S INN FIELDS.

This Company was formed in 1871 for purchasing good houses in London. It has now 436 houses, and its annual rental exceeds £42,000. The Preference Shares pay a clear 4½ per cent. to the Investor at the present price of £5 11s. The dividend on the Ordinary Shares has averaged over 6 per cent. per annum from the commencement. The Company receives Deposits at 4 per cent. interest in sums of £50 and upwards.

"YOUR SPLENDID REMEDY SAVED MY LIFE."
(So writes a Patient recently.)

FOR THE TREATMENT OF CONSUMPTION
AND
ALL CHEST DISEASES,
RESULTS OF INFLUENZA, &c.,
See the NEW EDITION, with APPENDIX, of
MR. GEORGE THOS. CONGREVE'S
Book "ON CONSUMPTION, &c.," which may be had, post free for ONE SHILLING, from the Author, Coombe Lodge, Peckham, London, S.E.

FORTIETH SERIES OF CASES.
CASE FOR THE WEEK.
PHTHISIS—"HOPELESS" CASE of a PATIENT at DRONFIELD.

"His doctor had given him up, and I have advised him to try your remedies. He has procured some medicine of yours, but he wishes to put himself entirely in your hands, so I write for advice and what you think needful."

So writes Mr. SAM. HEWITT, superintendent of the Baptist Sunday-school, who resides at Stubley-road, DRONFIELD (on behalf of a member of the Baptist Church), in May of last year.

MR. H. thus states the case:—"Consumption hereditary. He has not been strong for some years; had influenza twelve months since; took cold a few weeks ago; has been brought into a very low state; has an abscess on the breast, &c., &c."

In a month Mr. H. reported him to be improving nicely in all respects, except that there was a little spitting of blood, but cough was much less severe.

Four months after commencing my treatment Mr. H. reports:—"Your patient is truly grateful to you. He was well, but not being careful as he should as to exposure to night air, he has had a slight return of symptoms. He will go on regularly with your remedies."

I received a letter dated Feb. 23rd, in which he speaks of the patient's recovery:—"I am pleased to say that after a six months' course of your medicine he has been able again to earn his livelihood. Both he and his wife are truly grateful to you for your kindness and advice. We all wish you every blessing in your noble work."

P.S. Since the above was prepared for the press, I regret to hear, by letter dated June 6, that the patient has been laid aside with supposed incurable cancer.

NOTE.—CONSULTATIONS FREE at Coombe Lodge, Peckham, on TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings only. No charge except the usual charge for three or six weeks' supply of medicine. All Patients should read the Book first.

SELLING JEWELLERY, SILVER PLATE, COINS, &c.
For CHARITABLE PURPOSES.
SPINK & SON, Goldsmiths and Silversmiths, 17 & 18, PICCADILLY, W., and at 2, GRACECHURCH-STREET, CORNHILL, E.C., respectfully announce that they VALUE or PURCHASE for CASH valuable Diamond and other Jewellery, Silver Plate, Coins, Medals, &c. [EST. 1772.

BUMSTED'S TABLE SALT.

FRY'S Pure Concentrated COCOA

MR. C. B. HARNESS' ELECTRIC CORSET
FOR HEALTH, COMFORT, AND ELEGANCE.

5/6 POST FREE

Ladies residing in the Country, and those who are unable to call and personally inspect these Corsets, have only to send correct waist measurement with postal orders, and they will obtain, by return of post, the prettiest, best-fitting Corset they have ever worn. Its high-class style and beautiful finish, combined with its marvellous health-giving properties, has already won the highest reputation among the leaders of fashion.

In appearance they do not differ from the regular corsets, being made of the same material (best quality), in the latest style, and most approved shapes. They are, in fact, the

"VERY THING"
For Women of all ages.

THESE Health-giving
CORSETS
CURE
"WEAK BACK"
And Speedily Relieve HYSTERIA,
Internal Complaints,
Loss of Appetite,
DYSPEPSIA, KIDNEY DISORDERS,
AND ALL
Rheumatic and Organic Affections.

FOR THE HEALTHY DEVELOPMENT OF THE CHEST.

WEAKNESS AND CONSTIPATION.

Mrs. WHITING, Fishbourne Villa, Chichester, writes: "I wish to thank you most sincerely for the benefit I have derived from wearing a pair of your 5s. 6d. corsets. I never should have believed that they could have done me so much good. I have suffered all my life with constipation, but since wearing your corsets, for the last month, I have been wonderfully better, and most strongly advise everyone suffering in the same way to wear them. I have recommended many of my friends to try them, and know that several have sent you already."

Madame LENA SCHEYER, 5, Walterton-road West, St. Peter's Park, writes: "I have much pleasure in recommending the Electric Corsets, invented by Mr. C. B. Harness, to all suffering from Spinal Neuralgia. I have derived much relief and support since wearing one."

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

We supply Mr. Harness' Patent Electric Corsets in all QUALITIES, SIZES, AND DEGREES OF ELECTRICAL POWER, at 5/6 and upwards, to suit all classes of Society. Specially-designed Corsets for ladies who wear Tailor-made Dresses.

HARNESS' ELECTRIC CORSET is an invaluable adjunct of attire for DELICATE WOMEN and all who suffer from Organic Diseases, Rheumatic Affections, and
"WEAK BACK."

It should be worn daily, in place of the ordinary one; it will always do good, and never harm.

There is no sensation whatever felt in wearing it, while benefit always and quickly follows. It soon INVIGORATES the entire system, and assists nature in the HEALTHY DEVELOPMENT OF THE CHEST.

Mrs. GARWARD, West Hill, Portishead, writes: "I am very pleased with the Corsets. I find they generate a warmth round my body directly I put them on—quite a comfort. Since I commenced wearing them I feel stronger. My dressmaker intends sending to you for a pair, she is so pleased with the shape, let alone the good they do."

Miss KING, Newton Abbot, writes, 9th Feb., 1892: 'I am extremely pleased with the Electric Corsets.'

The Editor of THE LADY writes, January 7th, 1892: "A very useful addition to the many valuable inventions of Mr. C. B. Harness in the field of electrical science is the electrical corset, which, so far as appearance is concerned, is precisely similar to the ordinary corset. It is made of similar material, and is fashioned in the latest style and most approved shape. The electric corset is particularly recommended to be worn by delicate women, or those who suffer from organic affections, chronic rheumatism, or pains in the back. This useful addition to the successful electropathic belt combines the advantages of health, comfort, and elegance. The price is 5s. 6d., post free."

N.B.—Qualified Lady Nurses are in daily attendance, and may be consulted free of charge, either personally or by letter.

"NO WOMAN SHOULD BE WITHOUT ONE."

They are honestly worth four times their cost, apart from their genuine curative properties; therefore SEND AT ONCE Cheque or Postal Order for FIVE SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE, and obtain one of HARNESS' BEAUTIFUL ELECTRIC CORSETS, before you forget it. Please address all communications to the Lady Superintendent, THE MEDICAL BATTERY CO., LTD., 52, OXFORD ST., LONDON, W.

Cheques and Postal Orders should be crossed "London and County Bank."

By Special Warrant of Appointment to HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN, H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES,
And other Members of the ROYAL COURTS OF EUROPE.

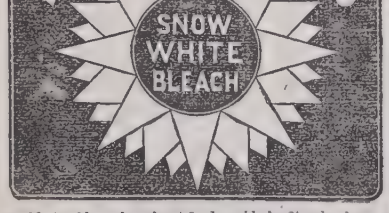
FASHIONABLE DRESS MATERIALS
For Ladies, Children, and Gentlemen.
Unsurpassed for Beauty, Novelty, and Sterling Value.
Prices for Ladies—from 10½d. to 5s. 6d. per yard.
PATTERNS POST FREE.

REGISTERED.

Egerton Burnett's Royal Serges

REGISTERED.

SUMMER PATTERNS
NOW READY.
Any Length of Material Sold.



Carriage Paid on Orders of £1 in value to any Railway Station in the United Kingdom.
Goods Packed for Exportation.

CAUTION—NO AGENTS. NO REPRESENTATIVES. Mention this Paper.
Address—EGERTON BURNETT, Serge Warehouse, WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT
CELERY COFFEE
THE GREAT NERVE & BRAIN STRENGTHENER & RESTORER

Prepared Solely from Celery, guaranteed pure and unmixed.
Extract from Health, Edited by Dr. ANDREW WILSON.
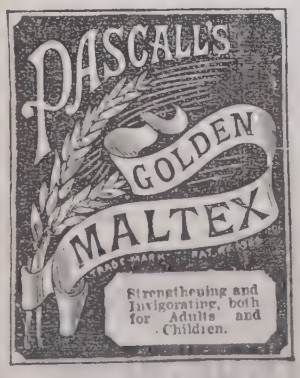
"Sufferers from gout and rheumatism may well be persuaded to give Celery Coffee a trial; while those who are not invalids, and with whom ordinary Coffee disagrees, may find this beverage a pleasant change from their ordinary drink."
Sold in Tins at 1s. and 2s.; Post Free, 1s. 3d. and 2s. 3d.
Manufactured by the CELERY COFFEE Co., 654, Eglington St., Glasgow.
SOLD BY ALL GROCERS, CHEMISTS, AND STORES.

"HOUSEKEEPER'S GUIDE" FREE ON APPLICATION.

Irish Cambric Handkerchiefs. — Ladies' Hemstitched, 2s. 11d., 3s. 3d., 3s. 9d., 4s. 3d., 4s. 9d., 5s. 3d., 6s., 7s. 6d., 9s., 10s. 6d., 12s., 15s., 6s. per dozen; Gentlemen's Hemstitched, 4s. 11d., 5s. 6d., 6s. 9d., 8s., 10s. 6d., 12s., 13s. 6d., 15s., 18s., 21s. per dozen; Ladies' Plain Bordered, 2s. 9d., 3s. 6d., 4s. 3d., 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d., 8s., 10s., and 12s. per dozen; Gentlemen's Plain Bordered, 4s. 6d., 5s., 6s., 7s. 6d., 9s., 12s., 14s. to 17s. per dozen. A most beautiful and Useful Present.
Bleached Plain and Twilled Linen Sheetings, &c.—70 to 72in. wide, Plain, 1s. 8d., 1s. 11d., 2s. 3d., 2s. 11d. per yd.; 88 to 90in. wide, Plain, 2s. 3d., 2s. 6d., 2s. 11d., 3s. 9d. per yd.; 70 to 72in. wide, Twills, 1s. 11d., 2s. 3½d., 2s. 7½d. per yd.; 88 to 90 in. wide, Twill, 2s. 6d., 2s. 11d., 3s. 4½d. per yd.; Challenge Linen Sheeting, 90in., Plain, 2s. 4½d. per yd. Diaper—Nursery, from 6d. per yd.; Bird's Eye, from 8d. per yd. Linen Pillow Cases Huckaback Towels, Glass Cloths, Linen Dusters, Roller Towelling.
Damasks.—Table Cloths, about 2 yds. square, 2s. 11d., 3s. 6d., 4s. 6d., 5s. 3d., 6s. 6d., 7s. 6d. each; about 2 yds. wide by 2½ yds. long, 3s. 9d., 4s. 3d., 5s. 9d., 6s. 6d., 8s., 9s., 9s. 6d. each; to dine 6 people, about 2 by 3 yds., 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 9s. 6d., 11s., 11s. 6d. each; to dine 6 to 8 people, about 2½ by 3 yds., 8s. 9d., 11s. 6d., 13s. 6d., 15s., 16s. 9d. each; to dine 10 to 12 people, about 2½ by 4 yds., 11s., 12s. 6d., 15s. 6d., 17s. 6d., 20s., 22s. 9d. each; to dine 14 to 16 people, 2½ by 5 yds., 19s. 6d., 21s., 24s. each; larger sizes, up to 3 yds. long, always in stock. Damask Table Napkins, Kitchen Table Cloths. SAMPLES POST FREE. ORDERS CARRIAGE PAID IN U.K.
ROBERTSON, LEDLIE, FERGUSON & CO., Ltd., BELFAST.
Please name this paper.

HIGHLAND COSTUMES

TWEEDS OR TARTANS



EVERY ACCESSORY FOR THE HIGHLAND DRESS.

Catalogues, Patterns, and Prices on Application.

R. WALLACE FORSYTH, Tailor and Outfitter, GLASGOW.

A DELICIOUS SWEETMEAT.

Contains 25 per cent. Allen and Hanbury's Extract of Malt, the valuable properties of which are well known.—Vide Dr. Tanner's Report.
In various sized Packages and Boxes.

Of all Chemists, Confectioners, &c.

THE 1lb. BOTTLE, 2s., IS THE CHEAPEST.

JAS. PASCALL,
Confectioner, London, S.E.

ZEBRA Grate Polish.
No Hard Work.

Printed by W. Speaight and Sons, Fetter Lane, E.C.; and Published by the Proprietors, Morgan and Scott, at 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.
Sole Advertisement Agents; John Haddon & Co.'s Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C.

The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL"

Weekly Record of Christian Life and Testimony; Evangelistic Effort, and Missionary Enterprise.

PRINCIPAL

e Ulster Convention 8
HE CULTURE OF THE DEVOUT LIFE 8
HE NEW "AGE OF REASON" 9
ghts and Shadows of Mission Work 10 omises Fulfilled in China 11 rangers in London.....12 me Rule in Malta.....13 rasian Children in India 13
ssion to the Khonds 14
ght on the Congo 14
ngregational Church Life.....14
r the Young:—The Sea 15 sten! Listen! (Poem) 15
rs. Baeyertz in Dublin 15

Portrait and Sketch of

Dr. D. L. Moxey.

CONTENTS.

MR. MOODY IN ENGLAND 16
City Home for Working Boys 18
Emigration to Australia 18
Ladies' Corsica Village Mission.....18
"Doors Open in Chili" 18
CLAPHAM PROPHETIC CONFERENCE 19
Bridge of Allan Convention 19
Working Lads in Whitechapel 19
The Lawyers' Prayer Union.....20
Home of Industry Workers 20
Islington Young Men 20
The Ikwezi-Lamaci Mission 22
Death of Dr. J. W. Kirton 22
The Christian's Relation to the State 24

o. 1169.] THURSDAY, JUNE 23, 1892.

REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C. [ONE PENNY, POST FREE, 1½d.

Dr. and Mrs. Barnardo

CORDIALLY INVITE ALL LOVERS OF LITTLE CHILDREN

TO BE PRESENT AT THE GIRLS' VILLAGE HOMES, ILFORD, ESSEX,

ON

Saturday Afternoon, June 25th, 1892,

WHEN, IF WEATHER PERMITS,

A GREAT MEETING WILL BE HELD UNDER THE OLD CEDAR TREE.

A MEMORIAL STONE will be UNVEILED in the CHILDREN'S CHURCH, now being built.

MUSICAL DRILL by some of the Girls, and the CROWNING of the MAY QUEEN on the Lawn.

Tea, 1s. each; served in the Children's Cottages.

RAILWAY AND COACH ARRANGEMENTS.

A Special Train will run, leaving Liverpool-street at 2.12 p.m. on Saturday, the 25th, which will be met at Ilford Station by brakes to convey visitors to and from the village.

Coach Tickets for the Brakes (price 2s. each) must be obtained beforehand from the undersigned. Railway Tickets for the Special Train to be purchased at the booking office, Liverpool-street Station, on the 25th—1st class, return, 1s. 7d.; 2nd class, 1s. 1d.; 3rd class, 10d.

18 TO 26, STEPNEY CAUSEWAY, LONDON, E. JOHN ODLING, Secretary.

☞ If the day be wet, the function will be postponed to Saturday, July 2nd.

Institutions.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.

ANXIETY OF SOUL.—Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear, are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C. c343

GEORGE-YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c.,
HIGH-STREET, WHITECHAPEL, E.

George Holland thankfully acknowledges receiving from W., £1; Anonymous, Flowers.

Rations of Food to Hungry Children. Infant Day Nursery. Week-day, Sunday, and Evening Schools. Classes for Rough Boys and Girls. Band of Hope. Children's Services. Industrial Classes. Shelter for children. Important Missionary Operations amongst Young Women and Elder Girls. Mission Work amongst Lads and Young Men. Mothers' Meetings. Evangelistic Services. Mission to Inebriate Women. Lodging House Meetings. Bible Classes. Temperance Meetings. Room-to-room Visitation. Training Home for Motherless Girls. Various Thrift Works, &c.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post-office Orders should be made payable at 68, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George Yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E. c1605

"DAY IN COUNTRY FUND,"
GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &C., HIGH-STREET, WHITECHAPEL, E.

Received, with many thanks, from F. V., 5s.; S. B., 5s.

George Holland will take (D.V.) 500 poor children for a day in the country when sufficient funds are in hand.—GEORGE HOLLAND, George Yard Ragged Schools, &c., High-street, Whitechapel, E. c1605

SOCIETY FOR DISTRIBUTING SCRIPTURE TRUTH, Text Rolls for Walls, Handbooks, Cards, and Leaflets. Reports and lists of publications, with prices, sent on application to WM. W. BROWN, Secretary. Subscriptions and donations will be thankfully received. Eastbourne: 7, Pevensey-road.

ZENANA MEDICAL COLLEGE, 58, St. George's-road, S.W. The Committee are prepared to receive applications for admission next term. Prospectus on application. Funds needed. Bankers, London and County Bank, Balham.

ASHLEY MISSION, Bethnal-green, E.—Help is earnestly asked, to enable a large mothers' meeting, a factory girls' class, and Sunday-school to have a day in the country.—Miss BONTEIN, 22A, Devonshire-street, Portland-place, W. c1491

COSTERS' HALL, HOXTON, LONDON.—Mr. W. J. Orsman, L.C.C., Honorary Superintendent, greatly needs £100 for the following mission operations:—Costers' Donkey Show, Children's and Adults' Country Holiday Homes, Sick and Benevolent Fund, and Convalescent Cottage for Invalid Christian Women.—Address Milton House, Shacklewell-green, Hackney. c1477

CLAPHAM MATERNITY HOSPITAL and School of Midwifery for Gentlewomen, 41, Jeffrey's-road, S.W. Under fully qualified medical women. 20 beds. Small payments from patients. Monthly nurses trained. Subscriptions needed.
Apply SECRETARY.

THE ANTI-INFIDEL TRACT ENTERPRISE. Established 1880, for the gratuitous Distribution of Anti-infidel literature at Home and Abroad. Funds most urgently needed. All subscribers of Five shillings and upwards receive assorted parcels of literature of the value of twice the amount of their subscriptions. Parcels for warded to any missionary or address given. Catalogue post free.—W. R. BRADLAUGH, 70, King's Cross-road, London, W.C. c322

PRIVATE PATIENTS can be received at the Deaconesses' Institute and Hospital, Tottenham. Fees from two to five guineas per week. Applications to be made to the Director of the Institution.

Educational.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space.

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors.
DELTA, Ward's Library, 112, Kensington-pk.-rd., W.

HAPPY HOME SCHOOL.—A Clergyman's Daughter offers the above. Loving care. Good education. Every attention. Terms £2 monthly, or 20 guineas yearly. Healthy, open neighbourhood. —52, Fenwick-road, East Dulwich.

EDUCATION.—Llanberis, Ealing, W. Superior Home School for the daughters of gentlemen. Resident, foreign and visiting Masters. Pupils prepared for Oxford and Cambridge exams. and London Matric. Children whose parents are in India or abroad receive the particular care of the Principal. Special terms made for the daughters of officers' widows and ministers. Reference kindly allowed to Rev. Thain Davidson, D.D., Ealing. c171

CHERTSEY HOUSE, Redhill, Surrey.—Parents may find here a happy, healthy home for their daughters. Beautiful walks. Resident governesses. Visiting professors. Preparations for University exams. Inclusive charges. Clerical, Medical, Army references, with prospectus on application to Miss M. B. GREDS. c331

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, East Tytherton, Chippenham.—Christian training. Preparation for examinations. Moderate terms.
Principal, Miss HOLLIS. c164

HIGH-CLASS CHRISTIAN HOME SCHOOL. Languages and music specialities. The very young and delicate lovingly cared for. Entire charge taken of Indian and other pupils.—References, KÖNIGSHEIM, Gorringe-rd., Eastbourne. c106

SEASIDE KINDERGARTEN and Home School for Girls. Froebel House, Liverpool-terrace, Worthing. Thorough education and careful training. Principal, Miss Yerbury. c272

SCHOOL FOR GENTLEMEN'S DAUGHTERS, 6, Orchard-gardens, Teignmouth, Devon. Principal: Miss Rees, certificated, higher Cambridge. Efficient staff of masters and resident certificated English and foreign mistresses. Successful preparation for examinations. c466

THE BOYS' HOME,
Branches: Greenwich, Ramsgate, Toronto.
SOUTHWARK.

OPEN DAY AND NIGHT
To receive really destitute boys from 6 to 18 years of age without payment or recommendation beyond absolute need.

Urgent cases are considered at any time, but Mr. Fegan may be personally consulted about Orphan, Homeless, or Erring Boys at The Boys' Home, 95, Southwark-street, S.E., on Mondays from 10 till 2.

All communications should be addressed—
J. W. C. FEGAN,
The Boys' Home,
95, Southwark-street, London, S.E.

THE
Unsuccessful Candidates.

Contributions are earnestly solicited in aid of a special collection for the candidates who failed at the late Election of Pensioners on the Incurable Fund of the National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic. There were twenty-seven candidates, and only twelve pensions to bestow; fifteen poor sufferers were consequently disappointed, and to each of these the Ladies' Committee propose to send a gift of 20s., or £2, if sufficient money can be raised for the purpose. The smallest donations will be thankfully received.

ROSA PEARMAN, Vice-President.

LADIES' SAMARITAN SOCIETY
National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, Queen-square, Bloomsbury.

Gratefully acknowledged—Two anonymous contributions of clothing. c357

TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.
"The Christian."

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates: (PREPAID.)

Not exceeding—	s.	d.
30 Words	3	0
39 Words	3	9
48 Words	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Advertisements should arrive not later than Monday, addressed to JOHN HADDON & CO., Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C., and stating that they are for insertion in THE CHRISTIAN.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order (not by Stamps) or by Cheque, crossed "City Bank, Limited."

Replies to Advertisements will be received and forwarded for an additional charge of sixpence, to cover postage, by Messrs. JOHN HADDON & Co.

TERMS FOR SUBSCRIPTION
TO
"The Christian"

"THE CHRISTIAN" is published every Thursday (PRICE ONE PENNY), and may be ordered through any Bookseller or Newsvendor, or will be supplied direct by the Publishers, MORGAN and SCOTT, London, on the following Terms, post free, and including double numbers.

ENGLISH
SUBSCRIPTIONS.

for the year 1892.	£	s.	d
One Copy & Postage ½d.	0	6	7
Two Copies and Postage 1d.	0	13	2
Three Copies and Postage 1½d. ...	0	19	9
Four Copies and Postage 2d.	1	6	4

The Subscription for one copy to Foreign Countries, (except United States and Canada), is 8s. 9d. per annum. To the United States and Canada, 2¼ dollars.

HAPPY SEASIDE HOME, with education. Girls and little boys. Terms 6s. weekly. Convalescent and invalid children 10s. weekly. Young ladies requiring rest from 12s. 6d. weekly.—SECRETARY, Albion-terrace, Ramsgate. c238

ETONHURST, WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—Preparatory School for the Sons of Gentlemen. Competent masters attend daily.—Prospectus on application to LADY PRINCIPALS. c575

MALVERN HOUSE, Blockley, Worcestershire.—Principals, the Misses Judson, who will be pleased to send prospectus and references on application. As only a limited number of pupils are received, the care and comforts of a refined Christian home are combined with the discipline and stimulus of a school. Thorough education. Resident foreign governess. Pupils escorted to and from Paddington and Birmingham.

THE PRINCIPALS of a high-class school, well-established, and singularly successful, holding testimonials of the highest order from parents, evangelical clergy, ministers, and others, have been solicited to place the advantages of earnest Christian training, combined with all the advantages of high-school methods, within reach of parents of good social position, but limited resources, who are unable to meet the usual fees, which to such will be reduced to 30 and 40 guineas, and made inclusive.

Preparations for all examinations. The staff is composed of experienced, certificated (London University), Christian governesses, English and foreign, with visiting professors. Liberal diet. Spacious residence replete with every modern appliance to ensure health and comfort. Delicate girls and orphaned families receive exceptional care.—CREDO, care of Messrs. Haddon and Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C.

COLLEGIATE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, combining technical training, practical instruction in household management and cooking, with the highest educational advantages. Inclusive fee, twelve guineas a term, payable in advance.—PRINCIPAL, Strickland's Girls' College, Stowmarket, Suffolk. c448

CRESWELL HOUSE Young Ladies' School, Westgate-on-Sea, offers thorough education and earnest Christian training. Home comforts. Watchful care. Highest references. Terms moderate.—Principals: Mrs. JAMES PIKE and Miss BEITTEN, M.C.P. c485

WIESBADEN, Neuberg Villa. — The Misses Voigt, daughters of a clergyman, offer a happy home and every advantage of a high education to a limited number of young ladies. Two vacancies. Escort end of July and September. Reference: the Rev. W. Kendall, St. Thomas Vicarage, Stafford.—For prospectus apply to the PRINCIPALS. c501

BRUSSELS. — Christian Educational Home for Young Ladies, Rue Belliard 185. Beautiful villa. Large garden. Tennis court. Superior instruction. Comfortable family life. Small number. Twelve drawing-room pupils received. Prospectuses with highest references.—In Brussels refer to Rev. W. R. Stephens, Vleurgat 185. Principals, Mademoiselle T. Kropff, Fräulein P. Stursberg.

DRESDEN.—Two German ladies receive a few young English ladies in their comfortable home. Excellent masters attending for music, painting, &c. Family life. Highest references in England. Moderate terms.—Frl. BECHER, 15, Walpurgisstrasse. 1624

SOUTH-WEST LONDON COLLEGE.
High-class School for Young Ladies.
CARLTON MANSIONS, CLAPHAM-RISE, LONDON, S.W.

Principal—Mrs. HALE A.C.P., F.S.Sc., Lond.

Modern system of teaching. Visiting masters in regular attendance. Resident certificated governesses, with careful personal supervision and home comforts. Special advantages for music and languages. Good garden and tennis. Highly recommended for nineteen years by the late Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

Excellent testimonials also from parents of pupils, Rev. D. McEwan, D.D., Rev. W. Williams, and others. c468

BOURNEMOUTH.—A lady wishes to recommend a good school at which her daughter has been pupil for nine years. Special educational advantages. Every care given to delicate girls.—Mrs. C., at May's, 100, London-wall, London, E.C. 1609

ST. HILDA'S COLLEGE,
ABBEY-ROAD, N.W.

Superior home school for the daughters of gentlemen. Resident foreign and visiting teachers, holding University degrees. Pupils prepared for B.A., London Matriculation, Oxford and Cambridge Local Art, and Musical Exams. Children whose parents are in India or abroad receive the particular care of the principal. Special terms made for the daughters of officers, clergyman, and widows. Careful training. Well appointed house. Healthy neighbourhood. c555

ABBOTSFORD, CLEVEDON, SOMERSET.—High-class School for Girls, combining the advantages of a thorough modern education with a pleasant seaside home. Preparation for all exams. —Prospectus, with references, on application to the Principal, Miss TUCKLEY, B.A. (Lond.). c530

BURLTON HOUSE, READING.—High-class Ladies' School. Principal Miss RATCLIFFE. Old-established. Thorough teaching. Modern educational advantages, examinations. Finishing masters. Careful Christian training. Well-appointed home. Highest references. Inclusive terms. c540

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL,
Wellington, Shropshire.
Established 1845.

A HIGH-CLASS SCHOOL, possessing excellent premises. Preparation for the Universities and Public Examinations.

Principal: G. E. W. CRANAGE, M.A., Oxford.

ST. CLARE, UPPER WALMER, KENT.
LATE MANOR HOUSE SCHOOL, HASTINGS.
Principal: Mr. A. E. MURRAY.

For gentlemen's sons under 14 years of age.

St. Clare stands in its own grounds of about 12 acres, 100 feet above the sea, but protected from winds by high trees.

Tennis Courts, Gymnasium, Workshop, Chapel, Sanatorium, &c.

References, Parents of Pupils, Lord Radstock, the Lady Anne Trench, Rev. Claud Bosanquet, Colonel Bruce Brine, R.E., James E. Mathieson, Esq., &c.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS, Entrance scholarships, navy, &c. Delicate boys medically supervised. Experienced. First-class classic. Entire charge if desired. References: clergy, headmasters, eminent physicians.—M A, M. B., Sunnyside, London-road, St. Leonards. c510

OXFORD COUNTY SCHOOL, Thame.—Established 1840. Efficient, home-like. Excellent table. Perfect sanitation. Fine premises and grounds (11 acres.) Tepid swimming bath, gymnasium. Exams. University. Locals, Chamber of Commerce, &c. Many distinctions. Reference: The Vicarage, Thame; The Manse, Thame; The Rectory, Aston; Sandford, Thame, &c. "Friends much pleased with care and attention received." Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

NEW COLLEGE,
CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.
Head Master: Rev. GEO. HUGH JONES.

First grade modern school. Small classes. Individual attention. Form work arranged with due regard to health. Decided Christian training. Splendid premises, workshops, cricket field, tennis courts. Fees £45, no necessary extras. c143

STANLEY HOUSE,
CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

Thorough education, classical or commercial, with decided Christian training. Workshop and laboratory for technical instruction. Half the pupils entered for and passed some public exam. last Christmas. Separate premises for junior school.—Prospectus on application to PRINCIPAL. c159

UNIVERSITY SCHOOL, HERNE BAY.—"Healthiest watering-place in kingdom."—Registrar-General. Resident minister, Rev. W. Frecar Principal, Mr. W. Frecar (London University). Highest references. Special preparation for all exams.

MR. J. W. C. FEGAN desires to recommend to Christian parents a high-class School for Sons of Gentlemen, in the best part of Folkestone. A thoroughly good education, with real Christian influence, home comforts, and close individual attention to each boy. Highest references.
Mr. J. W. C. FEGAN, The Boys' Home,
95, Southwark-street, S.E.

YOUR BOYS have Christian home and sound education with Mr. and Mrs. Dixon, Gordon-Biddle-class School, Kingston-on-Thames. Near Richmond and Bushey Parks. Entire charge taken for parents abroad. 13 to 25 guineas yearly. c398

CHRISTIAN PARENTS seeking young gentlemen's boarding school at the seaside (South Coast), a short journey from London, where, in addition to a thorough and first-class education domestic care and sound Gospel training are reckoned of paramount importance, are invited to write to Dr. THORN, Paddington, London (who is in no way connected with the school he recommends). 471

SOUTH EASTERN COLLEGE,
RAMSGATE.

President, The Dean of Canterbury. Headmaster, Rev. F. W. Tracy, M.A. (St. John's, Cambridge). Terms, £60. Healthy climate. Founded by the South-Eastern Clerical and Lay Alliance, to afford a thorough public school education, based on the Protestant and Evangelical principles of the Church of England.—For prospectuses apply to the HEADMASTER or to the Rev. J. B. Whiting, Hon. Sec., St. Luke's Vicarage, Ramsgate. c284

LITTLE BOYS ONLY.—Principal of gentleman's school at SEASIDE, seeks several little boys for his resident certificated governess under his supervision. Private house entirely detached from the main school buildings. Advantages of sea air, excellent situation, Christian family and influence, home life and comforts.—Apply Mrs. BROWNE, 48, Upper Park-road, Haverstock-hill, London. c504

A VICAR highly recommends a clergyman's home for boys to prepare for public schools. Good tutor. £9 per term. Cricket, drill, batas.—H., 4, Bank-houses, Old London-rd., Hastings. c172

TO BE DISPOSED OF, boys' preparatory school, conducted by ladies. Established 42 years. Thoroughly Evangelical teaching.—Apply, by letter, N. B. G., 54, Manor-road, Brockley, S.E. c1723

MRS. TAPLING, Ockenden, Cuckfield highly recommends her North German finishing governess. Fluent French English, music, drawing, and painting from nature.—FRL. RAEBEL Ockenden, Cuckfield, Sussex.

SCHOLASTIC.—Wanted, in September at a seaside boarding school, a resident music master. Must be fully competent and a decided Christian.—Address, stating age, salary, and experience, M., Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C. c553

ENGLISH GOVERNESS, returning from Paris, desires Re-engagement, resident or daily. If latter, North London preferred. Would take holiday engagement or arrange for next term. Good testimonials.—L., 57, Rue Bayen, Paris. c1728

AS GOVERNESS (young). — Thorough English, French, German (certificated), drawing, music (piano certificated, rudiments of violin), kindergarten. Christian. Clergyman's reference. Kindly state salary. No agents.—Miss M. ROSE, Welford, Newbury. c1626

A YOUNG GERMAN GOVERNESS, 1 years, requires engagement. School preferred. German, fluent French (three years in France), music. Good references.—A. M., 47, Harley-street, W. c1625

YOUNG FRENCH earnest Christian tutor, diplômé, desires holiday engagement, travelling or otherwise. Classics, sciences, French, German. Excellent references.—Write Y.M.C.A., 6, Quai de Retz, Lyons. c1674

A YOUNG FOREIGN LADY of good birth, who speaks French and German fluently and can express herself clearly in English, desires to enter a family as Governess. She would undertake to teach music to beginners.—Information to be obtained from Miss DE LIEFDE, Apeldoorn, Holland. c1676

A FRENCH LADY seeks a holiday engagement from the end of July for six or seven weeks.—BETA, 23, Pencester-road, Dover. c1654

ASSISTANT MASTERS AND GOVERNESSES desiring appointments after the summer vacation should apply immediately to the Scholastic Mutual Association, Limited, Burlington Chambers, New-street, Birmingham.—T. W. BOWMAN, Managing Director. c1634

GOVERNESSES' AND ARTISTS' INSTITUTE (founded by Miss Leigh).—Home on very moderate terms for Governesses and Art Students. Lady visitors received for short periods in summer months.—Apply 18, Rue de Milan, Paris. c1016

Appointments, Situations, &c., Wanted.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Advertisements should be received by Messrs. JOHN HADDON & Co. not later than MONDAY.

SECRETARY.—Christian gentleman, who has recently relinquished position as deputation secretary to a well-known mission, desires a similar appointment, or as secretary or superintendent of a mission, or philanthropic work. A good organiser and acceptable preacher.—A. B. C., care of Messrs. Haddon and Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C.

SECRETARY.—The adverti-er (48, married) being desirous of devoting his whole time to the Lord's work, seeks engagement in town or country as organising, deputation, or general secretary to a Christian or philanthropic society. Would also assist in evangelistic work, having had considerable experience.—THOMAS W. KITT, 68, Sandemere-road, Brixton, London, S.W. c1622

A CHRISTIAN MAN, 50, married, total abstainer, seeks situation, any capacity, intelligent, active, reliable, 8 years in present post, excellent references.—PAUL, 88, Crawford-street, W. 1621

MAN AND WIFE as Coffee Tavern Managers. Last place six years. Several years' experience. Good testimonials and references.—Write C1724, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, London, E.C. c1724

RESPONSIBILITY.—Advertiser, middle-d, well educated, with unexceptionable cha-er and references, is open to an engagement of st. Salary moderate.—DELTA, care of Mr. ngbridge, Stationer, 5, Church-street, Stoke vington, N. 1736

MR. HARRY SMITH. Secretary of the ughborough Hall and Institute, Loughborough-ction, S.W., is open to treat with a first-class se of business, with a view to an appointment London or country representative, or one rein by dint of tact and perseverance he could se for himself a position. Good record and nest testimonials. c1712

CLERGYMAN strongly recommends as kkeeping clerk, middle-aged man, who lost, winter, through severe illness, situation held nineteen years.—Rev. J. WILKINSON, 24, shurst-road, South Hackney. c1694

MARRIED COUPLE seek re-engagement anage a Home, Orphanage, or similar work, ere the spiritual need is a special feature. roughly experienced. Excellent testimonials to character and ability. Recommended by J. W. C. Fegan, Boys' Home, and others.—S., kbourne-villa, 13, Rockbourne-road, Forest-hill, c1658

CHRISTIAN YOUNG MAN wants situa-n as House Carpenter and Joiner for gentle-n's house. Can make himself useful. Ab-ner. Good references.—c1688, Haddon and Co., verie House, Salisbury-square, London. c1688

AS COACHMAN, thoroughly experienced riving single or pair. Three years' excellent racter. A c 25. Christian and abstainer. ets.—J. GUNNER, Holmwood Cottages, Four ns, Edenbridge, Kent. c1657

WANTED BY EARNEST CHRISTIAN N. 29, situation, any place of trust, by August or tember. Now indoor servant, married when ted.—C1665, Haddon's Advertising Offices, verie House, Salisbury-square, E.C. c1665

LAD.—A lady wishes to recommend a well-nclined, intelligent lad of 13, to train as Page, or ler a gardener, in a Christian family in the ntry. Midlands preferred.—Miss CHAPMAN, Balcombe-street, Dorset-square, N.W. c1635

THE WIFE OF A WELL-KNOWN ANGELIST in the South of England, whose band's health has completely broken down ough incessant work, is desirous of finding a ace of Christian labour, such as the charge of ission work or small home in a village district country town. She has had a long and varied erience in every department of this work, and s been much owned of God in Gospel cottage d other meetings.—X. Y. Z., 27, Paternoster-sare, London. c1619

ASSISTANT MATRONSHIP wanted. ar London or Eastern Counties preferred. ined Princess Louise Home and Burlington ools. Certificated College of Preceptors. od needlewoman. Age 24.—Miss FISHER, St. ter's Orphanage, Broadstairs. c1618

AS HOUSEKEEPER to gentleman (or mpanion to lady). Domesticated, experienced y seeks re-engagement where trust and sincere rest would be valued. Highest reference from vious engagements.—L. B., 71, Ashburnham-d, Bedford. c1660

NO SALARY.—Lady (middle-aged) seeks ious work. Superintendent girls' club, W.C.A., home, or similar work. Evangelical urch of England. Rooms, board, attendance, asked.—FAITH, Colville Library, Talbot-road, swater, W. c1677

UNE INSTITUTRICE expérimentée dans des premiers pensionnats, désire utiliser ses vances de mi-Juillet au lier Septembre dans une ille anglaise.—P., Centaur Caan 177, Amster-n, Holland. c1616

A LADY HIGHLY recommends a lady to e entire charge of motherless children. House-per, companionable help, or any place of trust. vious experience. London or suburbs.—No. Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, isbury-square. c1611

USEFUL HOUSEKEEPER, companion, ny post where trust, sympathy, economy, &c., ued. Lady over forty. Abstainer. £16-20. cellent testimonials, 3½ years.—Particulars, ary, care of 192, Loughborough-road, Stoke Newing-c1647

HOUSEKEEPER (Lady), 33, requires Re-gagement. Experienced, well educated. Tho-ughly domesticated. Knowledge of cooking. cellent needlewoman. Accustomed to children. ary £25, and laundress. Good references,—PHA, 24, Market-place, Loughborough. c1641

LADY DESIRES CHARGE OF RESCUE PREVENTIVE HOME. Eight years' experi-e. Evangelical principles. Would take tem-ary engagement.—1695, J. Haddon's Advertising ces, Bouverie House, Salisbury-sq., E.C. c1695

EXPERIENCED CHRISTIAN WORKER ks employment (partial or otherwise) as secre-y, conductor of mothers' meetings, Bible classes, other Evangelistic work. Remuneration under-.—ZOE, 18, Cazenove-road, Stoke Newington, N. c1629

MISS WALKER recommends a young y as companion to lady. Cheerful, domesti-ed. A good reader and needlewoman.—Miss ESONS, Mount Ballan, near Chepstow. c1713

LADY, active, cheerful, domesticated, , experienced, will give companionship and help for comfortable Christian home and small salary. Neighbourhood of London pre-rred.—META, 19, The Quadrant, Richmond, rey. c1638

REQUIRED, by two sisters, care of valescent or home of rest or offices, one salary, position of trust (together). Good references. s is urgent.—M. B. Hyde, Stationer, 17, Market-ce, New Malden, Surrey. c1719.

A CLERGYMAN wishes to recommend ss cook to a lady or gentleman, or to wait on valid, a thoroughly trustworthy person, who s been many years in his service. Total ab-. Early riser. Very thorough in her work. et, Christian household desired.—VICAR, Surrey. c1649

AS HOUSEMAID, age 17, two years cha-er, with highest references. Christian and tainer. In Sussex preferred.—E. N., care of Newman, Broadbridge-heath, Horsham, ex. c1707

WANTED, FOR A RELIABLE CHRIS-N WOMAN, age 37, very quick and capable, ayment as General Servant in a small family. by Miss BANKS. Wesleyan East-end Mission, Came-street, E. c1717

NURSE, trained, wants permanent case. Accustomed to consumption and nerves. Kind, attentive. Good needlewoman. Willing to be useful. Good references. Salary £40 to £45. Age 36. —NURSE, 8, Victoria-street, Brighton. c1735

AS EXPERIENCED NURSE to a lady's first baby. From the month preferred. Age 30. Wages £20 to £22.—L.C., Harlee, Beaufort-road, Surbiton. c1715

MISS RUMANN can thoroughly recommend experienced nurse-attendant; mental case preferred.—Registry, Deaconess House, Mildmay park, N. c1609

WANTED BY A LADY (partly trained), situation as Lady Nurse to delicate child. Or would be as daughter to a widow or aged lady.—C 1665, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, c1665

Appointments, Situations, &c., Vacant.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.

A1 TEA AGENCY.—Any one wishing to increase their income can easily do so by selling our Fine Ceylon Teas among friends and customers. The exceptional terms we offer enable Agents to earn £2 weekly. Compare samples.—United Tea Supply, Union-court, London, E.C. Name paper

FREEST SCOPE FOR WINNING SOULS —Wanted, earnest spiritual men and women to be trained as Evangelists, Labour Home Evangelists, Evangelist-Colporteurs and Mission Nurses. Allowance to family where needed during the short training. Sufficient salary guaranteed. When health prevents full active service in quieter C. A. posts generally obtainable.—Consult in confidence Rev. W. CARLILL, Hon. Sec., Church Army, 128, Edgware-road, London, W. Funds urgently needed for training. c533

EVANGELIST WANTED (undenominational), whole-hearted, strong and sound in doctrine, for a gospel hall in poor neighbourhood. None need write who cannot promise his services to the fullest extent, both in word and work. Large Sunday-school.—Address C. L., 130, Mildmay-road, N. c548

CARETAKERS. — Christian man and wife, abstainers, wanted, without children, to take charge of coffee house, Norfolk village, in return for rooms, coals, lights.—Miss BAGGE, Lancaster House, Harrogate. c1651

THE HELP OF A LADY wanted in Y.W.C.A. Institute, as mother of the household. Must have knowledge of housekeeping and be capable and bright. A very busy and happy life to one who will undertake the work as for her Divine Master.—45, Wellington-road, Regent's-park, N.W.

NO SALARY.—A gentleman evangelist wanted, to take the oversight of a thriving, self-supporting, unsectarian mission in London. Free scope for soul winning. Evangelist, Haddon's Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square.

PORTER.—Strong young man wanted. One who understands plate polishing preferred. The highest references as to integrity required.—Apply, by letter, A. B., 59, Messrs. Deacon, 150, Leadenhall-street, E.C. c1724

AN EARNEST CHRISTIAN LADY wanted, to organise and carry on Gospel work among working-men. The work will consist of Bible-classes, Gospel meetings, and visiting. A small salary will be given.—Apply to C1674, Haddon's Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C. c1604

A SCHOOLMISTRESS (experienced) wanted for the Certified Industrial School for Girls, 75, Windsor-street, Burmantofts, Leeds. Salary £40.—Apply, by letter, to the SECRETARY. c1492

CHRISTIAN GOVERNESS wanted, for boys. Able to take entire charge. Also for three pupils, 13, 11, and 9. Many other vacancies. No charge unless suited. Mrs. Edwin Hooper's Institute and Home for Governesses, 36, Compton-terrace, Islington, London, N. Board and residence from 13s. weekly. c1650

A TRUSTWORTHY CHRISTIAN WOMAN wanted as children's nurse and help, or nursery governess, willing to work. One who would be as a mother. Thoroughly experienced. Wishing to remain in service for years, and willing to go to the colonies. Youngest child five years. References.—H. S., Lake Lodge, Sandown, Isle of Wight. c1673

YOUNG LADY to teach, take charge of two children, six and eight, assist mother in care of baby. Musical. Fond of children indispensable. £12, laundress.—Mrs. HAWKES, Littlehill, Wellesbourne, Warwick. c1644

MOTHER'S HELP AND COMPANION wanted. Cheerful disposition. Husband of lady going abroad. Good home. Knowledge of household matters preferred.—Apply, by letter, HAYWARD, opposite Town Hall, Wandsworth. c1652

YOUNG LADY wanted, competent to assist principal in domestic matters. Good plain cooking essential. Comfortable home.—Address particulars of age, experience, references, salary, to Miss Collins, Brazenose School, Stamford. c1720

SERVANTS SEEKING SITUATIONS.—Miss Lovejoy offers comfortable home. Lodgings 2s. 6d. to 3s. 6d. weekly, in compartments. Meals provided moderately. Registry. Charge for ladies, 1s. entry, and 2s. 6d. to 3s. 6d. when suited. Established 1851.
32, Sydney-street, Fulham-road, London, S.W.

A SELECT AGENCY for Male and Female Servants is opened by Mr. FORDER at 105, Gloucester-road, South Kensington, S.W. Hours, 8 till 6. Numbers of all better-class servants are required daily to fill vacancies. Also Soho Bazaar, 77, Oxford-street, W.

OFFICES FOR HOME HELP, 9, Upper Baker-street, N.W. Miss Hooper supplies Christian governesses, companions, housekeepers, hands of every description, nurse-companions, and maid-attendants, also superior domestic servants.—Telegram, HELPFULNESS, London. c1633

LADIES OR GENTLEMEN wanted, to obtain orders from friends, &c., for choice Teas at moderate prices. Liberal payment. Strictest confidence. Little trouble.—S. J., Shelley's Advertising Offices, 36, Gracechurch-street, E.C. c1634

WANTED, AT ONCE, good Cooks, House Parlourmaids, Housemaids, Nurses, and good General Servants. Quiet situations. Good wages This office can be well recommended as thoroughly reliable.—Miss MAULDEN (late missionary), 97, Harrow-rd., Paddington-gn. Stamp for reply. c1643

COMPANION for an elderly invalid lady. Age not under 40. Must be a lady possessing kind, bright, and genial manners, who would not object to a quiet country life. No society.—Apply, stating terms, Dr. BERRETON, Newport, Salop. c1706

KITCHEN MATRON, Plain Cook, or good General, wanted, at once, for school for blind. Active, reliable, economical manager. Abstainer. Willing. One with institutional experience preferred. Christian home. £16 rising to £18. About 30.—LADY SUPERINTENDENT, 15, Kilburn-priory, N.W. c1661

A GOOD WORKING HOUSEKEEPER wanted. Washing put out. Wages £20, all found. —Apply by letter, 5, Mount Edgecumbe-gardens, Clapham-road, S.W. c1732

HOUSEKEEPER-COOK.—Wanted, in City house of business, thoroughly trustworthy person to live in house. Assistance given. Highest references required.—Apply, by letter, C.M., 59, Messrs. Deacon, 150, Leadenhall-street, E.C. c1624

LADY REQUIRED, to assist in boarding-house. £50 required. Good home and share of profits. Income can be doubled with partner.—C1620, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C. c1620

WANTED, FOR A HOME for Female Penitents, an assistant in the laundry for packing and sorting. Evangelical churchwoman. Total abstainer.—State age, salary required, and references, SECRETARY, Home Villa, Queen's-park, Brighton. c539

A RESPECTABLE, TRUSTWORTHY, COMPETENT WOMAN wanted, about thirty years of age, as clerk and cashier in first-class steam laundry in western suburbs.—A., 25, Windsor-road, Ealing. c1640

A GOOD NURSE wanted, for five children. Fond of children, and a good needlewoman. An under-nurse is kept.—Mrs. E. W. AUSTIN, 36, Highbury-hill, London. c1630

GOOD COOK wanted, in August, for Whetstone. Some general work. Trustworthy and abstainer. Two in family. Housemaid and boy kept. Wages £20 to £23.—MADDOX, Milford House, John-street, Hampstead. c1675

GENERAL SERVANT wanted, immediately. Age 24. Wages £15, all found, after first year rise to £16. Boy kept.—5, Crossfield-road, Belsize, London, N.W. c1702

GENERAL SERVANT.—Wanted, at once, thoroughly capable General Servant, not under 26. Another kept. No boots, knives, or steps Three in family. Good references required, and good wages given.—Mrs. J., 17, Florence-road, Ealing, W

HOUSEMAID (experienced) wanted, for small private family, 9th July. Middle-aged Christian and abstainer.—Miss SMITH, 49, Cromwell Hove-road, Brighton. c1683

GOOD PLAIN COOK and House-Parlourmaid required in a small family. Must understand their duties. Good wages. Personal character indispensable.—Apply to M. B., 10, Grange-road, Ealing. c1730

To Let, Apartments, &c.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space.

MIDLAND TEMPERANCE HOTEL, 76, Guilford-street, Russell-square, W.C.—A first-class Hotel for Visitors to London. Central and pleasantly situated. A thoroughly clean and quiet home, with every comfort and convenience. Highly patronised and recommended by the clergy and ladies and gentlemen. Bedrooms from 1s. 6d., breakfast or tea from 1s. 3d., service 9d. Full tariff, with testimonials, free on application to J. W. TURNER, Proprietor.

BEDFORD HOTEL, LONDON,
93, SOUTHAMPTON ROW, RUSSELL SQUARE.
Quiet family Hotel; central. Bedrooms from 1s. 6d.; plain breakfasts or tea, 1s. 6d. Other charges equally moderate. Printed tariff on application to THOMAS HENRY WALDUCK, Proprietor.

W. TAVERNER, TEMPERANCE HOTEL, 41 and 43, Judd-street, Euston-road, London, W.C. Five minutes from Great Northern, Midland, and North-Western Railways. Beds from 1s. 6d. Plain breakfast or tea, 1s. Silent roadway. Ten minutes from British Museum. Tariff on application.

BRIGHTON.—SUSSEX HOUSE BOARDING ESTABLISHMENT, 53, Old Steine, near to sea, Aquarium, piers, and Pavilion. Liberal table, with home comforts. First-class references.—Mr. and Mrs. Box.

BRIGHTON, WEST.—To let, two rooms, well-furnished, in a quiet Christian home. Would suit a delicate lady. Highest references could be given. — H., Denly's Library, West Brighton. c1623

BRIGHTON (Hove). — Clergymen recommend private boarding house. Close to sea and lawns. Moderate terms.—M. G., Friend's Library, Western-road. c1615

BRIGHTON.—Select Boarding House, Pleasant and healthy situation. Near West Pier and lawns. Rooms lofty and airy. Home comforts. Terms moderate. Special for permanency. —Moreland House, 116, Lansdowne-place, Hove.

BRIGHTON.—Engedi House, Eastern-road. House of Rest for Christian workers and others. Terms 10s. 6d., 12s. 6d. and 15s. per week.—Stamped addressed envelope enclosed for reply, LADY SUPERINTENDENT. 497

BETTWS-Y-COED, North Wales,—The Pont-y-Pair Temperance Hotel. Very comfortable. Moderate charges. Special week end terms.—Tariff on application to manageress. c518

BOURNEMOUTH.—Boscobel Hall, Boarding Establishment. Apartments en suite, Central. Overlooks gardens and pier approach. Magnificent land and sea views. Liberal table. Inclusive terms, 35s. to 45s.—WHYTE. "Can cordially recommend this most admirably conducted home."—Dr. Pierson, Metropolitan Tabernacle. c380

BOURNEMOUTH.—A lady offers board and residence in a delightful establishment surrounded with lovely grounds. Near the sea and gardens. Moderate terms. Every comfort.—Priory Mansions, Bath-road. c483

EAST BOURNEMOUTH.—Castle Court, Boscombe Chine.—Select Boarding Establishment. Charming sea and land views. Well appointed Five minutes from pier. Private apartments.—Mr. and Mrs. J. D. HAZARD. c513

BOURNEMOUTH WEST.—Comfortable board and residence. Terms from 21s. to 30s. Near sea, pinewoods and chines. South aspect. Good cooking. Liberal table.—B. BRANSDALE, Alum Chine-road. c1705

WEST BOURNEMOUTH.—To let, furnished, for two months, a semi-detached villa, beautifully situated, overlooking sea and common. 3 reception, 5 bed rooms, dressing and bath room References.—M., Chewardine, Alum Chine Bournemouth.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Comfortable, large, airy apartments, in own grounds, on best part of East Cliff, among pines. Sea view, near pier and gardens. Terms moderate.—Mrs. MOON, The Neilcherries, Grove-road. c1726

BUXTON, DERBYSHIRE. — Brunswick Boarding House, Hardwick-square. A few minutes' walk from stations, baths, and gardens. Lovely mountain views. Established in 1862.—For prospectus apply to Miss PALMER. c348

BLACKHEATH.—To Let, 2 bedrooms, double sitting-room, middle of August to end of September. Good position, facing heath. Near station. Use of own maid. 24 guineas.—ASHFORD, 3, Montpellier-road, Blackheath. c541

CORNWALL.—Comfortable home offered to one or two lady boarders. Terms moderate.—Miss TRUSCOTT, Lessyn, Lostwithiel. c1650

CLEVEDON, SOMERSET,—Large, comfortably-furnished house to let during August. Near the sea and station.—T., Abbotsford, Clevedon. c529

DEVONSHIRE.—In a small town in a beautiful district and a bracing climate, an old-fashioned but commodious house (14 rooms), just rebuilt, with small garden and stable. Rent £30. Suitable for a family, school, or convalescent home. —Apply to Owner, R. CRUMP, Wray House, Moretonhampstead, Newton Abbot. c1704

EASTBOURNE Y.M.C.A. Boarding House. Central. Three minutes of sea. Terms: full board, drawing, reading room, piano, week 24s. day 4s. Married couple 48s. Convenient for ladies. —M. WATERS, The Holidays, Langney-road. c156

FOLKESTONE.—Comfortably furnished apartments. Well-appointed house, three minutes' from station. Splendid views of sea and land. Large garden, orchard. Coachhouse and stable if desired.—B., Kensington Lodge, Dover-rd. c1474

FOLKESTONE.—Home from home for Christian abstainers. Best part, not far from the Lees. 35s. to 52s. 6d. inclusive weekly.—Miss WOODWARD (Member of British Nursing Association), Haverstock Villa, Claremont-road, Folkestone. c1711

EBRINGTON HOUSE, COMBEMARTIN, near Ilfracombe.—Apartments to let. Lovely land and sea view. Three minutes' walk from sea. Bracing air. Good cooking and attendance. Drains perfect. c1631

FOLKESTONE.—Board and residence. Moderate terms.—Apply Mrs. CLARK, Grove House, Dover-road. c1686

HARROGATE.—A Lady receives three or four Lady Boarders, permanent or otherwise. Very comfortable home. House pleasantly situated.—M. A., care of Mr. Wiley, Stationer, Harrogate. c1628

HASTINGS.—5, Holmesdale-gardens. Select board and residence, or apartments. Quiet, sheltered. House comforts. Terms most moderate. Three minutes from sea. Highest references.—G. GOLDSTON, many years an elder at Metropolitan Tabernacle. c327

HARROGATE. — Beechwood. — Superior Boarding Establishment. Queen's-road and Cold Bath-road. Unsurpassed for position and home comforts. Within ten minutes of wells and baths. Stabling and carriages for hire.—Miss. C. LORD. c165

ILFRACOMBE.—The Grauville (Foster's Boarding House). Magnificent sea views, 120 feet above sea level. A delightful home on Christian and temperance principles. Faces full south. Forty bedrooms, baths, balconies. Special sanitary certificate.—FOSTER'S Bijou Guide to Ilfracombe gratis.

ILFRACOMBE.—To be let, for August (furnished), containing ten rooms. Beautifully situated. Fine sea view. All appointments.—Rev. J. W. GENDERS, Park View House. c1636

ILFRACOMBE.—Comfortably furnished house. Pleasantly situated. Land and sea views. Two sitting, one dressing, and five bed rooms, to let for two months, or longer.—Apply G., St. Leonards, Station-road. c1667

ILKLEY IN WHARFEDALE.—To let, furnished, for six weeks, from July 29th, comfortable, airy, detached family house. Large garden. Good situation on hill-side close to moor. Three reception rooms, eight bedrooms, five double eight single beds. There is in Ilkley good tennis club and golf links. Fishing may be had in the Wharfe by ticket.—Apply Mrs. RICHARD ECROYD, Eastburn, Ilkley, Yorks. c1655

JERSEY.—To let, furnished house during August and September. 14 miles from St. Heliers. Two sitting-rooms, six bedrooms. Quiet horse with trap can be had.—JOHN WHITING, Cliffside, Leeds. c1668

LITTLEHAMPTON HOME OF REST FOR CHRISTIANS.—A magnificent building, fitted with all modern appliances. Facing sea. South aspect. In every respect arranged for the comfort of visitors. Terms 15s. per week.—For particulars, send stamped envelope, Rev. W. BLOW SARJEANT, Osney-crescent, Camden-road, N.W.

MALVERN Y.W.C.A., Strathview, 5, Promenade.—Boarding houses and holiday homes for those in business. Governesses and Christian workers. Near the hills.—For terms apply Lady Superintendent. c1659

MARGATE. — Private boarding-house within three minutes of sea. Best part of Cliftonville. South aspect. Every comfort, with liberal table. Early dinner. Moderate terms.—PROPRIETRESS, 5, Magdala-villas. c1687

NORFOLK COAST.—To let, furnished house. Also cottage, five rooms. Attendance if required.—Miss S. Hamond, Weybourne, Holt. c1633

NORWAY.—Charming Temperance Pension for families, six hours from Bergen. Good fishing, boating, bathing, excursions.—View and tariff from Mr. C. Hoopes, Exeter Hall, London. c322

PARIS.—Pension de Famille. Change of address. Miss Galloway, 3, Rue St. Didier-avenue, Kléber, close to Bois and Champs Elysées. Comfortable refined home. Situation healthy and convenient. Lift, bathrooms. Sanitation perfect. Moderate terms. References exchanged.

PARIS.—Visitors to Paris can be accommodated with nice, comfortable home with an Anglo-French Christian family.—Apply to Madame De Launay, 69, Avenue de Sexur. c437

PARIS.—Central, near Louvre. Comfortable rooms and apartments, by day, week, or month, with or without board. Ladies and families. Charges very moderate.—Apply Lady Secretary, 205, Rue St. Honoré. c1730

PAIGNTON.—Attractive home on small scale, with two sisters. One lady 30s. weekly, or lady, and little girl to educate (music, &c.), two guineas.—Inquire Miss Hetzler, Budleigh Salterton. c1656

RICHMOND HILL.—House to let (furnished) for August. Four bed, three reception room, bath (hot and cold). Near park, river, and gardens. Quiet.—Herbert E. Francis, 11, Pyrland-road, Richmond. c1657

ROTHESAY, SCOTLAND.—House of Rest and Hydropathic. A resort for Christians. Finely situated. Overlooking the sea. Terms, board, lodging, attendance (inclusive), 27s. 6d. to 35s. per week.—Prospectus from C. Campbell, Proprietor. c250

SALTBURN-BY-THE-SEA.—Yorkshire coast. Quiet home for a few Christians. Near brine baths. Bracing air, woodland walks. Terms for board and lodging, 25s. per week.—Mrs. Holderness, Station-square. c1645

SEVENOAKS—To be let for the summer, a well-furnished house near two parks and a common. Two reception, five bed rooms. Large garden.—Miss Martin, Park View. c1710

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Rev. F. Whitfield desires to recommend select and home-like boarding establishment to Christian visitors. Central position. South aspect. Near piers, baths, and station. Terms moderate.—Mrs. Warschawski, Avondale, 16, Warrior-gardens. c1663

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Boarding Establishment, Melhora House, 20 and 21, Carisbrooke-road. Conducted by the Widow of the late Rev. F. Wagstaffe and Mrs. Locke. Good table. Home comforts. Terms moderate. Near sea, gardens, and rail. 134

SOUTHSEA.—To let, furnished, for month or six weeks, double-fronted six-roomed house. Easy distance from sea. Garden front and back.—Jno. Denning, Myrtle House, St. James-road. c549

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA—Christian Home for Ladies and Gentlemen. House pleasantly situated within 3 minutes' walk of sea. Terms moderate. Reduced railway fares.—Apply, with stamp, Principal, 5, Alexandra-terrace, Cliff Town. c1672

SOUTHSEA—Christian home for lady workers needing rest and change. Near the sea. Highly recommended. 20s. and 25s. Stamped envelope for reply.—Miss Edwards, 5, Grahame-terrace, Hawke-grove. c1731

SOUTH DOWNS, near Brighton

An exceptional opportunity of acquiring a most comfortable and commodious

FREEHOLD MANSION,

standing in its own grounds of nearly three acres, and standing. For the past seven years the owner has carried on a successful mission work, and trusts the Lord will find a purchaser who will carry on the work, which is most encouraging and appreciated in the neighbourhood.

Full particulars of owner,
George Smith, Upper Beeding, Sussex.
c1725

TORQUAY.—Board and residence, or a holiday home from home, in Christian family. Very central, near the sea. Terms very moderate. Highly recommended.—Mrs. Shapcott, 19 and 20, Fleet-street, Torquay. c1632

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—To let, furnished, 33, Queen's-road, a 12-roomed house, kitchen, garden well stocked, for six weeks or longer. Apply Messrs. Brackett, Estate Agents, Tunbridge Wells. c1612

SWITZERLAND.—August. 17 days' tour for 12 guineas, inclusive guides, second-class travelling, and board from day of leaving London to return of visitors: Brussels, Strassburg, Lucerne, Vitznau, Lucerne Rigi, Brunig Pass, Geissbach, Interlaken, Grindelwald, Thun, Berne. Select party.—Programme and all particulars, Edwin Hooper, Governess' Institute, Compton-terrace, London. c1646

WINDSOR.—To let (furnished), for three months or longer, House. Eight bedrooms, bathroom, 4 sitting-rooms. Garden back and front. Lawn tennis.—Apply Beta, Wright's Library, Peascod-street, Windsor. c1710

WORTHING.—Board and residence, or apartments in lady's house. Three bedrooms and sitting-room. Pleasantly situated. Near sea and church. Children objected to.—References, terms, apply M., Eastland Villa, Seldon-road. c1642

WORTHING.—Home of Rest for Ladies and Gentlemen, close to, but not facing sea. Every comfort. Liberal table. Terms £1 3s. to £2 2s.—Lady Superintendent, Rutherford Lodge, Worthing. c1648

A CHARMING COUNTRY HOME for August, in a picturesque village on the Cotswold Hills, is offered to one or more young ladies by an English and a German lady, who, having lived abroad for years, offer special opportunities for French and German reading and conversation; also advanced music. Tennis lawn. Highest references.—Address first, Fraulein, care of Messrs. Haddon and Co.'s Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square. c532

HOME FOR CHRISTIAN LADIES.—Temporary or permanent. Very comfortable. Conveniently situated for train and omnibus.—For terms, address, enclosing stamp, Miss Lankester, St. Bernard, 41, Beresford-rd., Mildmay, London, N. c1528

NERVOUS AFFECTIONS.

Private Establishment at the Seaside for Lady Patients suffering from Hysteria and Nervous Affections (not insane). The house is pleasantly situated in its own grounds, in a well-known health resort. Christian influence and home comforts. Massage, Baths, and Electrical treatment carried out under a Medical Specialist of many years' experience. Highest reference. Letters and Telegrams—Proprietor, "Clevedon, Somerset. c381

SEASIDE HOLIDAYS.—Superior and select boarding-house on sea-front. Fine views of English Channel. Good country. Nice walks. Christian society. One guinea weekly till August.—Address Principal, Caswell, Lancing-on-Sea, Sussex.

FURNISHED APARTMENTS.—Wanted by widow lady and son, one sitting and two bed rooms, in refined Christian home, with pleasant surroundings. Advertisers are of quiet, abstemious habits. Bath. Near N.L.R. or G.N.R. stations.—Address, full particulars, Kathleen, 29, Mincing-lane, London. c1734

LADY, far advanced in life, but in good health and of active independent habits, wishes to engage board and residence with quiet family or boarding house where two or three ladies are received, residing in pleasant locality within ten miles of London.—A. N., 3, Castlenau-terrace, Barnes, S.W.

EXCEPTIONAL ADVANTAGES for Parlour Boarders in ladies' school. Parisian French. Terms moderate. Healthful, comfortable home. Pleasant country.—Apply to Mme. Clemencet, Rainoy, near Paris. Good references. c1739

FURNISHED APARTMENTS to let, two to five rooms, bath-h. and c. South aspect, near station and Bushey-park, high and healthy situation. Highest references.—North, Norman Hurst, Princes-road, Upper Teddington. c1709

EXCHANGE FOR AUGUST.—Lady and family wish to exchange house in Clapham Park for one in Eastbourne, not far from the sea, west-end.—S., 41, Kingswood-road, Clapham Park, S.W. c1632

REFINED COTTAGE HOME for gentlewoman. Separate bedrooms from 16s. to 20s. a week. Sixteen miles from Paddington.—Miss Balls, Chiltern View-villas, Uxbridge, Middlesex. c1684

TO LET, furnished house in August, for two months or longer. Good situation. Near cliff and sea. Four bedrooms, three sitting-rooms.—R. Braidney, Sandown, I. of Wight. c1679

A COMFORTABLE HOME offered to a superior person, who would undertake the work of small house. Two in family. Afternoons and evenings free.—H., 2, Halsdon-terrace, Torrington, North Devon. c1680

TO LET, bed and sitting room. Quiet house. Good cooking and attendance. Terms inclusive, one, 12s. 6d., two, 1 guinea. Large garden. Address W. Beeby, Thistlecroft House, Hersham, Walton-on-Thames. c1696

BOARD AND RESIDENCE in a pleasantly situated house offered to a lady for 14s. a week.—Mrs. L., 5, Gladstone-road, Watford, Herts. c1635

CHEERFUL BEDROOM to let, for one or two gentlemen, with use of sitting-room. Partial board if required. Christian family. Moderate terms.—York House, York-grove, Queen's-road, Peckham. Near tram and rail. c1722

COMFORTABLE HOME under superintendence of medical man's daughter. Two minutes' walk from sea. Terms (inclusive) from 25s. per week.—Medical, 5, Earl's-avenue, West Lees, Folkestone. c1714

INTEMPERANCE and Nervous Debility.—A Private Home at the seaside (established in 1874), for ladies only, suffering from alcoholism, opium, morphia, chloral, or drugs; every care, judicious supervision, with home comforts and amusements. Highest references.—Address Medicus, care of Messrs. Tayler, 154, Fleet-street, London.

MISS HAYWARD, daughter of the late Rev. T. Hayward, of Rochford, offers board and residence to ladies and gentlemen in a quiet, pleasantly situated home near sea and cliffs. Terms upon application.—1, St. Vincent's-road, Southend, Essex. c1012

COLONEL ARCHDALL MEMORIAL, HOLIDAY HOME, Bundoran, Ireland, overlooking the sea, and commanding a fine view of Donegal Bay and mountains. Receives ladies and persons of the working-classes. Terms per week, including board, from 7s. 6d. to 35s., according to rooms. First and second class dining-rooms. Fine sea-bathing. Reference required. Return tickets in Ireland at single fare. c538

FARM-HOUSE BOARD AND RESIDENCE, Freedom and ease of family life. Charming scenery from the Surrey Hills. Healthy locality. Liberal table. 30s. per week, inclusive, or 5s. 6d. per day. Surrounded by the lovely district of Coldharbour, Leith-hill, Ockley, Boxhill, &c. Address Miss Fawcett, Bregselis Farm, Holmwood, near Dorking. c1617

VERY DESIRABLE COUNTRY HOME offered. Suitable for middle-aged or elderly Lady or Gentleman, as one of small Christian family. Carriage. Farm residence, North Hants.—"Beta," 84, Petherton road, London, N. c1630

UNFURNISHED APARTMENTS.—Two Ladies require 3 or 4 rooms, one as kitchen. Neighbourhood, Brompton, Earl's-court, West Kensington. Terms moderate. No children. References exchanged.—J. B., 75, Ramsden-road, Balham. c1075

FREEHOLD LAND, 33 miles from London, in one acre plots at £20, and half-acre plots, at £10 each. No restrictions, free conveyance. Payable by instalments. Good land, well adapted for fruit or poultry. Also old farmhouse, cottage, barn and outbuildings, garden and orchard, 1¼ acres for £125. Why emigrate?—Mr. Brake, Farnborough, Hants. c523

COMFORTABLE BOARD AND RESIDENCE for lady desiring change. House prettily situated in hop gardens. No objection to permanent boarder. 15s. per week.—M., Bower Cottage, Wrecclesham, Farnham, Surrey. c1701

TO BE LET, for August and September, a pleasant, furnished cottage. Three sitting, four bedrooms, and garden, in healthy village in Essex Terms moderate.—Address Mrs. Krogh, Stock Ingatestone. c1703

COMFORTABLE HOME for companionable Christian lady. Share sitting and bed room with landlady, or could have a separate bedroom. With or without board. References exchange Terms very moderate.—Mrs. Weighill, 27, Richmond-road, Bayswater, London, W. c1690

HAPPY CHRISTIAN HOME for ladies. Abstainers. Lovely country. Bracing. Sheltered. Home comforts. Piano. 15s. weekly.—J. E. West, Hendrad Manor, Steventon, Berks. c1633

TO LET, large, old fashioned, comfortable furnished house, in healthy, bracing village in Suffolk. Pleasure ground, 1, Nearest G.E. station, and rail. Small garden and paddock.—For particulars, C. E. H., Old Woking, Surrey. c1685

HOME OF REST FOR CHRISTIAN WORKERS, HASTINGS. Very superior. 21s. to 35s. weekly. Pleasantly situated, gardens in front. View of Castle and surrounding hills. Three minutes from station and pier. Home comforts guaranteed. Good winter apartments.—The Misses Wood, 28, Cornwallis-gardens. c338

UNFURNISHED APARTMENTS.—Two Ladies require 3 or 4 rooms, one as kitchen. Neighbourhood, Brompton, Earl's-court, West Kensington. Terms moderate. No children. References exchanged.—J. B., 75, Ramsden-road, Balham. c1075

SEASIDE.—A well-furnished villa to be let for two or three months, or longer. Sunny, bracing position. Close to sea. Three reception, five bed rooms, bath-room, &c.—Gilbert, Riffelberg, Rowlands-road, Worthing. c1670

LADY BOARDER wanted in a family of two. Quiet comfortable home. Early dinner. Middle-aged Christian preferred. Terms according to requirements.—Beta, care of Mrs. J. Brown, 84, High-street, Tunbridge Wells. c1708

TO LET, in favourite suburb, August and September, well-furnished house, with attendance. Three bedrooms available. Very airy. Three minutes from station. No annoyance. Twenty from Victoria.—Miss Burgess, Redleaf, Greyhound-lane, Streatham Common, S.W. c1613

COUNTRY HOUSE.—Lease for sale. Good opening for Christian workers. Three sitting-rooms, study, and usual domestic offices. Six bedrooms (one small), handsomely-fitted bath-room and lavatory, with hot and cold water. Stable, coach, cow and hen houses, harness-room and two piggeries. Nice garden, lawns, greenhouse, also paddock. Near station, post-office, church, and mission hall. Premium £200. Rent £65.—Apply, by letter, Rose Bank, Longford, Sevenoaks.

Miscellaneous.

30 WORDS for 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space.

ANXIOUS INQUIRERS.—A Christian will gladly correspond with any earnest seeker after Divine truth.—Evangelist, Clapham, S.W.
2 Cor. v. 20

SEASIDE.—A party being formed to spend some weeks at Scarborough, can be enlarged by two or three more ladies.—Exit, 112, Kensington-park-road, W. c534

IRON CHURCH, secondhand, for immediate sale, cheap, accommodating 150 persons, with vestries and additions, seats and fittings. Payments by instalments if required. On view Tottenham Court-road. Several churches, chapels schools, and other buildings.—Apply Humphreys, Ltd., Iron Buildings Works, Knightsbridge, London, S.W. c1603

FRUITS PROTECTION NETS, &c., as under:—50 yards by 11 yards, at 12s. and 14s. each; cut to order, ½d. and ¾d. per square yard extra.—David Pratt, Net Merchant, 38, Rodger-street, Cellardyke, Fife. c1681

AN INVALID begs for orders in needlework of any description. Handkerchiefs marked from 1½d. per letter. Antimacassars, tea and sideboard cloths, shawls, children's blouses, pinafores, Tam-o'shanters, &c., &c. Approval.—H., Evedon, Sleaford, Lincolnshire. c1687

WONDERFUL SYMBOLICAL PLANT.—Calvary Clover, leaves three in one, with bloodlike stain, seed-vessels surrounded with mimic crown of thorns. Easily grown in pot or open ground. 2 well-rooted plants, 1s., free.—N. Rayner, Avenue, Southampton.

THE CLIMBING MAIDENHAIR (adiantum cirrhosum), runs 30ft. in season. Exquisite pale-green, finely divided foliage. Clusters flesh-coloured tubular flowers. Quite hardy. Grows anywhere. 3 good plants, 1s., free.—Rayner, as above. c1662

No Householder Should be without a supply of this, the strongest non-poisonous disinfectant known. It destroys the disease germs of all fevers and infectious diseases. Removes all bad smells. Very economical. Preferred before all others wherever tried. Of all Chemists, 6d. & 1s. per bottle. Sample bottle post free 8 or 14 stamps, from the sole maker,

G. Ury Ellison, F.C.S.
The Disinfectants' Chemical Works, CLECKHEATON.
Special Agents Wanted.

MRS BRAMWELL BOOTH is anxious to bring to the notice of friends the Salvation Army Steam Laundry. Washing well and properly done at the usual prices, and fetched in our own vans. On behalf of the social scheme we ask you to give it a trial.—Please address instructions, The Manageress, S. A. Laundry, Maury-road, Stoke Newington, N. c1634

CHURCH SEATS FOR SALE.—Twenty-eight church seats, 11ft. long, 3ft. high, in red deal, stained and varnished. Excellent condition.—Apply Vicar, St. Mark's Vicarage, Leamington. c1671

HILL'S PRINCES' RETREAT,
BUCKHURST HILL, EPPING FOREST.
A Beautiful Secluded Spot.

W. Hill can contract for School Treats at moderate rates. Shelter for 700. Plenty of Amusements. Trains every 15 minutes. Testimonials from Mr. Charrington, Mile End. c1242

TENTS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION on sale or hire. Good seconds and marquees at low prices, to clear previous to removal to new premises.—J. H. Brown, Railway Arches, Burdett-road, E. c441

TO INVESTORS.—Shares (£5 each) for sale, in a very sound Industrial Company. Preferential for 8 per cent. dividends as well as entire capital. Business established over 25 years. Thoroughly safe. No risk. Holder urgently requiring the cash, will sell cheap.—Investor, care of Bates, Hendy and Co., 37, Walbrook, E.C. c536

Umbrellas Re-covered from 2s. each.

IF YOUR UMBRELLA WANTS RE-COVERING send it by Parcels Post (with Postal Order) enclosed to Strong Bros., Umbrella Makers, Redhill, Surrey, who will re-cover it and return it as good as new by next post, carriage paid. Good strong twill, ladies' 2s., gents', 2s. 6d.; good alpaca, ladies', 3s., gents', 3s. 6d.; strong durable silk, ladies', 4s. 6d., gents, 5s. Patterns post free. Reference kindly permitted to Rev. F. Little, Redhill.

☞ A sample New Umbrella at wholesale price. List free.

IDEAL WOOL UNDERCLOTH NG.—The Celebrated Castle Donington Quality, highly recommended by the Medical Profession for Winter and Summer Wear, made of Purest and Softest Natural and White Wools of English Manufacture, at Reasonable Prices. Every description of garment for Ladies, Gentlemen, and Children. A descriptive Catalogue and Patterns of Webbings (free by post) could be in the hands of every Lady and Gentleman who values Health, freedom from Chill, and Perfect Comfort.—Hygienic Hosiery Mills, Castle Donington, Via Derby.

NOTICE.—Lindsey and Son's Trusses, Elastic Stockings, and Belts.—Best house for all kinds of surgical bandages. A female attendant. Price list post free.—32, Ludgate-hill, and 40, Grace-church-street, London; and 8, Broad-street, Oxford. Established 1830.

SHEFFIELD CUTLERY and electro-plate, for hotel and domestic use, wedding gifts, presentations, &c. Buy direct from the great centre of production. Large illustrated catalogue, post free.—J. G. Graves, Surrey House, Sheffield. c514

COUNT MATTEI'S REMEDIES.

The Electro-Homœopathic Remedies discovered by Count Cæsar Mattei, of Bologna, Italy, extracted from non-poisonous plants, may be obtained of Miss Marriott, 3, Hillside, Crouch-hill, London, N. By filling in replies to consultation form, which will be forwarded on application (with stamped envelope), a prescription can be sent, with the necessary Remedies, by post.

NERVOUS, FUNCTIONAL, MUSCULAR, Heart, Chest, Debility, Paralysis, Exhaustion, Overtaxed Energies of Brain, Defective Circulation, Cold Feet, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, &c., cured by BENNETT'S IMPROVED MAGNETO-ELECTRIC VESTS, BELTS, SPINE, LIMB VITALISERS, SOLES, &c., always impart energy. Not known to fail. Frequent letters from sufferers prove their surpassing efficacy, economy. Batteries all Currents. Count Mattei's very effective Electro-Homœopathic Treatment. Information gratis.—Bennett, Medical Electrician, Penley's-grove, York. c311

NEAVE'S FOOD.

BEST AND CHEAPEST.

IN PATENT AIR-TIGHT TINS.

21s SPEACH & SONS 21s
LACE CURTAINS
DIRECT FROM THE LOOMS CARRIAGE PAID

"POPULAR PARCEL" FOR 1892 (Reg.).
CARRIAGE PAID. LOT No. 259.

Containing 1 pair of elegant Drawing-room Curtains, exquisite fine floral sprays, superb designs, 4 yds long and about two wide, taped edges; 1 pair handsome Dining-room Curtains, rich design from real lace, 3½ yds. long, 56 in. wide, taped edges; 1 pair Breakfast-room Curtains, 3 yds. long, 49 in. wide, taped edges, fern border, gracefully festooned centre; 1 pair of beautiful Bedroom Curtains, 3 yds. long and about 43 in. wide; 12 yds. white washing Lace; 1 Lady's Handkerchief with edging of lace; 1 Lace D'Oyleys; 6 yds. magnificent Point D'Alencon Lace; 1 of Peach's "Registered Roller Blinds," with valance attached, given away with every Popular Parcel.

THIS PARCEL IS REALLY
A GIFT AT THE SUM OF 21s.

These Popular Parcels are known all over the world for their marvellous value. The Curtains are the latest patterns for 1892. May be had in Ecru if desired. Money returned if not approved. 1892 Price List of Lace Curtains, Black Silk Flounings and Laces, &c., post free on application. P.O.O.'s and Cheques payable to S. PEACH & SONS Lister Gate, Nottingham. Established 1857.

KNITTED SILK SHAWLS. — Orders wanted for the above. Finest quality price 1 guinea, size 45 inches square, exclusive of fringe. Second quality a little smaller, price 10s. 6d. (postage extra) to be had in the following colours:—White, Black, Cream, Gold, French Grey, Cardinal, Sky, Grenat.—ESTHER KERR, 14, Abbey-street, Paisley, N.B. c1387

PORTABLE HARMONIUMS from 75s. Organs, from 85s.—The late Mr. Gawin Kirkham, Secretary of the Open-Air Mission, wrote:—"I can speak from experience of the excellency of your instruments."
CHAS. YOUNG, 21, High-street, Kingsland, London.

AMERICAN ORGANS AND HARMONIUMS. 5-octave harmoniums, £3 17s. 6d. Organs from £5 5s. Karn and Smith organs at reduced prices. Warranted 5 years.
CHARLES L. YOUNG, 21, High-street, Kingsland.

ASTHMA. — Persons suffering from Asthma, difficulty of breathing, &c., are invited to try (free of charge) a Remedy for affording immediate relief.—C., Mr. G. A. Keyworth, Hastings. c1344

LAUNDRY GLAZING.— Cuffs, Collars, and fronts like white china. Nothing used in the starch. No polishing irons. Particulars free.—LAUNDRY, 124, Liscard, Birkenhead. c1659

DAINTREE & CO., DYERS,
The LARGEST WORKS IN LONDON for Dyeing and Cleaning in every Branch.
95, Mount-street, Grosvenor-square, W.;
365, Southwark-park-road, S.E.; 41, Leicester-square, W.C.
Carts Collect and Deliver to all parts.—PRICE LISTS BY POST. LONDON.

BAGSTER'S BIBLES.
FROM 3s. 6d.
SAMUEL BAGSTER & SONS, LIMITED, 15, PATERNOSTER-ROW, LONDON.

GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT.—Chronic Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Paralysis, Nervous Affections, &c., successfully treated. Special cases received into the establishment. Particulars free. Established 40 years.—RICHARDSON and WILKINSON, Volta House, Buxton, Derbyshire. c1700

"TWO OLD LADIES IN LODGINGS." Exceedingly striking original poem, teaching contentment. Excellent for distribution at mothers' meetings or amongst cottagers 3s. dozen. Specimen Copy three stamps.
SECRETARY, Dunkeld, St. Albans. c1676

CHARITY and Mrs. John Ford are thanked very sincerely for the parcels of back numbers of "The Christian," &c.—G. F. HILCKEN, Secretary and Librarian, Bethnal-green Free Library, E. c1614

FOREIGN GOSPEL TRACTS (sixteen languages) offered to missionaries and other Christian workers by Evangelical Tract Society.—Write (enclosing freewill offering, if able) to Mr. ROBERTS, 26, Paternoster-row, London. c546

Publications.

GOSPEL TRACTS at very cheap rates, suitable for broadcast distribution, advertising mission and other services, &c. Supplied at inclusive rates. Carriage paid. Specimen packets sent post free to any Christian worker.
PENMAN and Co., 33, Furnival-st., London, E.C.

MRS. GRIMKE'S TEXT CARDS.—Send to Wellington House, Higher Broughton, Manchester for New List. Cheapest English, 1s. 6d. 100; foreign per 100; or to
E. KAUFMANN, 30, Paternoster-square.

OUR INHERITANCE. Thoughts on the Book of Revelation, 2s., from Mrs. Grimke, as above.

Just published, paper cover, price 6d.
GEMS OF SACRED TRUTH.
By H. M. L.
JAMES NISBET & Co., 21, Berners Street, W. c505

THIS IS WORTH PICKING UP! Striking Gospel booklet imploring sinners to come to Jesus. Excellent for scattering during summer vacation. 50 for 3s., post free.—Dunkeld Lodge, St. Albans. c751 Biographical Works.

ROBERT ANNAN:

THE CHRISTIAN HERO.

By Rev. JOHN MACPHERSON.

Presentation Edition:
Cloth boards, 1s. 6d. (Tinted covers, 1s.)

Cheap Editions:
Tinted covers, 6d.; Cloth neat, 1s.

Special Edition: 4to size, for Gratuitous Distribution: Tinted covers, 1d.; 7s. per 100 net.

"A striking example of the power of Divine grace, exhibited in the conversion and devoted life of ROBERT ANNAN—a 'Christian Hero' indeed."—Gospel Magazine.

DUNCAN MATHESON:

THE SCOTTISH EVANGELIST. HIS LIFE AND LABOURS.

With Life-like Portrait.

By Rev. JOHN MACPHERSON.

Presentation Edition: Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

Cheap Edition: Tinted covers, 1s. 6d.

"We very strongly advise every reader who wishes to get a glimpse of a real man, a real Christian, and a real worker for eternity to get this volume. And we make bold to say that every out-and-out Christian who peruses it will rise from the study saying, 'After all, reality is the great thing,' and be thankful that he has been in the company of this noble man of God."—The Weekly Review.

HENRY MOORHOUSE:

THE ENGLISH EVANGELIST.

With Life-like Portrait.

By Rev. JOHN MACPHERSON.

Presentation Edition:
Cloth gilt, bevelled boards, 2s. 6d.

Cheap Edition: Tinted covers, 1s. 6d.

"Full of interesting incidents from which counsel and encouragement may be gathered. We heartily commend this record of simple unaffected piety to the attention of those who would know what may be done by workers somewhat off the ordinary recognised lines."—The Rock.

"A DEVOTED LIFE:"

MEMOIRS OF ISABELLA MACPHERSON.

By Rev. JOHN MACPHERSON.

Presentation Edition:
Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.
Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

"The record of a brave, beautiful, and earnest life, inspired by true Christian enthusiasm, proves that we need neither sisterhoods nor other forms of Romanism to develop true saintliness of character, and to exemplify the true and the beneficent power of woman's work in the Church. This book will prove a fountain of Christian earnestness and energy. Those who read will catch its fervour."—Baptist Magazine.

JAMES SCOTT:

A LABOURER FOR GOD.

By Rev. ANDREW A. BONAR, D.D.

With Portrait.

Presentation Edition:
Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

Cheap Editions:
Tinted covers, 1s.; Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.

"The book will be read with interest and profit, and its perusal will stimulate others to follow the example of this devoted servant of the Lord."—Methodist Times.

JOHN B. GOUGH.

AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY. REVISED BY HIMSELF.

With Additions Completing the Narrative.

Presentation Editions:
With Portrait and Three Illustrations:
Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.;
Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

Cheap Editions, with Portrait:
Tinted covers, 1s.; Cloth limp, 1s 6d.

"This AUTOBIOGRAPHY is admirably suited for the drawing-room table or for a gift-book; but is especially worthy of possession as a memento of Mr. Gough, who has now entered into the joy of his Lord. Beautifully printed, appropriately illustrated, attractively bound, and tastefully embellished—it deserves a wide circulation."
Temperance Record.

GEORGE WHITEFIELD.

A LIGHT RISING IN OBSCURITY.

By J. R. ANDREWS, Barrister-at-Law.

Presentation Edition:
With Steel Portrait: Cloth, bevelled boards, 5s

Cheap Editions:
Tinted covers, 6d.; Limp, 1s.; Boards, 1s. 6d.

"The popular and powerful preacher, whose efforts, synchronized with those of the Wesleys, is here set before us in a striking piece of portraiture; and the extracts from his diaries give many life-like touches to the sketch. The details of his work, both in America and in this country, are full and complete; and afford a striking proof of his immense capacity and unceasing energy."
Publishers' Circular.

LITTLE KATHLEEN;

OR, SUNNY MEMORIES OF A CHILD WORKER.

By ANNIE R. BUTLER,

Author of "Stepping Stones to Bible History," &c., &c.

With Two Striking and Life-like Portraits.

Tinted Covers, 6d.; Cloth Boards, 1s.

"The story is one of the sweetest testimonies to the grace of God in the heart of a little child which has appeared in these days, and will make an attractive gift to readers both old and young."
Medical Missions at Home and Abroad.

NINETEEN BEAUTIFUL YEARS:

A RECORD OF THE LIFE OF A BELOVED SISTER.

By FRANCES E. WILLARD.

With Introduction by BISHOP FOSTER; and a Prefatory Note by the Poet, JOHN F. WHITTIER. With three Portraits and View of Miss Willard's Birthplace. Cloth, bevelled boards, 2s. 6d.

Presentation Edition:
Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s.

"A book that may be safely put into a young lady's hands, with the assured confidence that it will serve to strengthen and deepen all influences for good."
The Christian

THE CHILD MINISTER.

RECORDS OF A YOUNG LIFE.

By ANNA SHIPTON.

With Monotone Portraits.

Presentation Edition:
Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 1s. 6d.

Cheap Editions: Tinted covers, 6d.; Cloth, 1s.

"GIVE THE CHILD A CHANCE!"

A Neat Illustrated four-page Card addressed to Parents who send their Children to the public-house to "Fetch the Beer."

By G. E. MORGAN, M.A.

A useful adjunct to evangelistic and temperance work. See opinions of eminent Christian workers:—

"'Give the Child a Chance' is capital. Poor lambs! I was quite outwitted lately at our Band of Hope. I asked, 'How many of you this week had to go for beer?' Almost all the hands went up, but one lad exclaimed, 'I don't sip as I used to!'"—Miss Annie Macpherson.

"Admirable. I wish it a wide circulation."—Mr. Robert Anderson, LL.D.

"I like it more than I can say."
Dr. Barnardo.

"A capital thing! We intend to work it well."—Mr. W. S. Caine.

"Excellent and greatly needed. . . Delighted to take some."
Mr. F. N. Charrington.

"I like your card immensely."
Rev. S. A. Selwyn.

"Will be productive of very much good."—Mr. John Cory.

"I admire your ingenuity. There's a great deal to do and the time is short."—Mr. T. A. Denny.

"I like your card very much."
Rev. Newman Hall.

"I have long felt that something was required. It will do an immense amount of good."—Mr. George Holland.

"It seems to meet a great want very effectively."—Rev. Hugh Price Hughes.

"A well aimed blow at a great evil."
Rev. John Macpherson.

"Just what is needed. Constantly bewailing the evil it is designed to remedy."—Mr. John Kirk (Ragged School Union).

2s. per 100 (2s. 3d. post free); 50 for 1s. (post free 1s. 2d.); 17s. 6d. per 1,000. May be Localised.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C. Or through any Bookseller.

CHILDREN AND THE PUBLIC HOUSE.

The HERALD OF MERCY

PACKETED IN ASSORTED NUMBERS & LEAVES.

Packet A — Contains 100 assorted numbers of The Herald of Mercy.
AN EIGHT-PAGE ILLUSTRATED PERIODICAL.
Price for Gratuitous Circulation,
THREE SHILLINGS PER PACKET.
(Postage 7½d. extra.)

Packet B — Contains 30 assorted numbers of The Herald of Mercy.
AN EIGHT-PAGE ILLUSTRATED PERIODICAL.
Price for Gratuitous Circulation,
ONE SHILLING PER PACKET.
(Postage 3d. extra.)

Packet C — Contains 60 assorted (four-page) Herald of Mercy Leaves
(PARTLY ILLUSTRATED).
Price for Gratuitous Circulation,
ONE SHILLING PER PACKET.
(Postage 3d. extra.)

Packet D — Contains 12 assorted (two-page) Herald of Mercy Leaves
(PARTLY ILLUSTRATED).
Price for Gratuitous Circulation,
ONE SHILLING PER PACKET.
(Postage 2½d. extra.)

Packet E — Contains 1000 assorted (two-page) Herald of Mercy Leaves
(PARTLY ILLUSTRATED).
Price for Gratuitous Circulation,
SEVEN SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

London: MORGAN AND SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered through any Bookseller.

To the Nonconformists of England, Scotland, and Wales.

An Appeal from their Brethren in Ireland.

Dear Brethren,—As we have reason to think that a large number, perhaps the majority, of our brethren who are not resident in Ireland, do not realise the position in which the Irish Protestants would be placed if what is called Home Rule, as proposed by Mr. Gladstone, or any modification thereof as shadowed forth by his followers, were adopted, we request you to give your earnest and prayerful attention to the following observations:—

The whole body of Irish Protestants are practically unanimous in their desire to continue to be governed with their British brethren by the Imperial Parliament, and they dread and deprecate the being placed in any respect under the power of a separate Irish Parliament.

Being at a distance you possibly do not appreciate the power which the Roman Catholic bishops and priests have over the great bulk of Irish Roman Catholics, and the determination which they display to compel obedience to their directions in temporal as well as in spiritual matters. The Roman Catholic Hierarchy claim the right to direct their people in all proceedings where the interests of Catholicity are involved, and also to determine for their people what are the proceedings which affect the interests of their Church. This is, in effect, a claim on the part of the Hierarchy to govern Ireland, in which the Roman Catholic population is in a majority, and under a system of Home Rule they would be enabled to do so.

We believe that no guarantees, moral or material, can be devised which will guard the rights of the Protestant minorities which are scattered throughout Ireland against the encroachments of a Roman Catholic majority endowed with legislative and executive powers, and thus directed by their clergy. History, as well as experience, in this and other lands, assure us of this.

We accordingly feel that the proposal to give Ireland Home Rule most seriously threatens our religious liberties, which would in numberless ways be imperilled under an Irish National Parliament, the majority in which would be elected on the nomination of the Roman Catholic priests. Judging from the past, such a Parliament would claim and exercise the right to tax Protestants for the maintenance of educational institutions in the direct interests of Roman Catholicism, would legalise the desecration of the Lord's Day, and would ultimately establish and endow the Roman Catholic religion in Ireland. From these and many other evils we are preserved by the Imperial Parliament.

Under the Imperial Parliament Ireland has received valuable benefits in recent years. Her land laws are more favourable to the cultivator of the soil than those of England, Scotland, or Wales, and her criminal procedure, applicable to all parts of the country alike, has occasioned inconvenience only to the instigators or perpetrators of outrage.

Home Rule, we believe, would nullify many of the benefits of recent Imperial legislation for Ireland, and would reproduce the condition of lawlessness, outrage, terror, and distress which flourished prior to the present Government coming into power. It would accentuate the social and religious differences of its peoples, and there is too much reason to fear would involve them in serious feuds from which Ireland would receive lasting injury, and which would prove a source of trouble and weakness to Great Britain.

We appeal to you, brethren, as you value the possession of civil and religious liberty yourselves, to guard your co-religionists in Ireland from the oppression with which they are menaced, and earnestly to oppose any attempt to place the loyal Protestant inhabitants of Ireland under the domination of a Legislature which would mainly be composed of the two parties known as National and Parnellite Home Rulers, which are now contending for the mastery.

Already signed by the Rev. N. M. Brown, D.D., Moderator, and the Revs. C. L. Morell, D.D., William Johnston, D.D., Wm. Magill, D.D., Robert Watts, D.D., H. B. Wilson, D.D., James M. Rodgers, D.D., Robert Ross, D.D., Robert John Lynd, D.D., and Wm. Park, M.A., Ex-Moderators, and the Rev. John H. Orr, D.D., Clerk of Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland; the Rev. John Woods Ballard, Vice-President, and the Rev. James Donnelly, Secretary; the Revs. Wm. Guard Price, Oliver McCutcheon, Wallace McMullen, D.D., Henry Evans, D.D., George Vance, D.D., Wesley Guard, Wm. Nicholas, D.D., John E. Green, and Charles H. Crookshank, M.A., Officers of the Methodist Church in Ireland; the Rev. A. McCaig, Secretary of the Baptist Association, and the Rev. James Grogan, Secretary of the Congregational Association; and by 6044 ministers, elders, deacons, stewards, and other officers and members of the Non-Episcopalian Churches in Ireland. Many ministers have been authorised and have signed for and on behalf of their whole congregation. More signatures are being daily added.

PENTECOSTAL LEAGUE.

EXETER HALL, STRAND
(Lower Hall).

MR. and MRS. READER HARRIS,

and Members of the Pentecostal Mission, will (D.V.) conduct SPECIAL

HOLINESS MEETINGS,

on TUESDAY EVENINGS, JUNE 28th, JULY 5th, 12th, and 19th, at 8 o'clock.

Please pray for these Meetings, come to them and bring your friends. Admission Free. Doors open at 7.

SCRIPTURE TEXTS

For Walls of Mission Rooms, Hospitals, &c

A List of these Large Type Texts, printed in blue ink, size 31 inches by 20 (70 different Texts, 3d. each), will be sent on application to the Publishers.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C.

JUST PUBLISHED. Price 7s. 6d., cloth.

JAMES GILMOUR OF MONGOLIA.

His Diaries, Letters, and Reports, edited and arranged by Richard Lovett, M.A., Author of "Norwegian Pictures," &c. With Three Photogravure Portraits, two Maps and other Illustrations. Large Crown 8vo, 7s. 6d., cloth boards.

"The story of James Gilmour will, if we mistake not, take a place of its own in modern missionary literature. To a world devoted so much to mercenary interests, and a Church too given to take things easily, the life is at once a rebuke and an appeal not easily to be forgotten."—Christian World.

"We are sure that this work will be read with the deepest interest by Churchmen as well as Nonconformists."—The Record.

"We gladly welcome another notable addition to the number of impressive and fascinating missionary books—a volume fit to stand on the same shelf with the biographies of Paton and Mackay."—British Weekly.

"Out of sight the most interesting and valuable missionary biography of recent years."—Literary World.

"Not only deeply interesting as a record of missionary labour, but teems with characteristic sketches of Chinese manners, customs, and scenery."—Times (Weekly).

Published by THE RELIGIOUS TRACT SOCIETY, 56, Paternoster-row, London.

FRIENDLESS AND FALLEN.

TO THE READER.

I do not know whether it is in consequence of the great excitement caused by the APPROACHING GENERAL ELECTION, which doubtless will, for a time, ABSORB PUBLIC ATTENTION, but certain it is that within the last month contributions for the DAILY MAINTENANCE OF THE HOMES has seriously fallen off—exceptionally so. But the work continues, and during this period of trial not one suitable applicant will be turned from our doors unaided.

However, THE READER is asked very earnestly to send prompt help in aid of this Preventive and Rescue work

IN THE FOLLOWING HOMES:—

Preventive Homes,

Especially for Friendless Girls in their teens.

	No. of Inmates.
The Jubilee Home, 7, Parson's Green, S.W.	50
459, Holloway Road, N.	26
461, Holloway Road, N.	26
Total	102

Reformatory Homes.

	No. of Inmates.
200, Euston Road, N.W.	24
35, Eden Grove, Holloway	33
Milton House, Brompton	30
The Holt-Yates Memorial Home, 5, Parson's Green	30
Total	117

Open all Night Refuge.

37, Manchester Street, W.C., Visited Every Morning to arrange permanent help to New Comers... 21

Total number of Inmates to Maintain 240

CONTRIBUTIONS MAY BE SENT as usual to Messrs. MORGAN and SCOTT, of "The Christian," 12, Paternoster Buildings, City, E.C.

Edward W. Thomas.

200, Euston Road, N.W.

BY THE LATE DR. KIRTON.

JOHN WESLEY:

HIS LIFE AND TIMES

Tinted Covers, 6d.

By JOHN W. KIRTON, LL.D.,

Author of "Buy Your Own Cherries," &c., &c.

MORGAN & SCOTT'S CHEAP AND POPULAR EDITION.

WITH PORTRAIT. Cloth Limp, 1s.; Cloth Boards, 1s. 6d.

"A marvel of cheapness! It contains within its fully a hundred and twenty closely-printed pages, a remarkably well-compacted, well-arranged, and most interesting Life of the great Methodist. It is written in a very lively style such as will attract young readers; whilst it will render it more acceptable to all, and it sets before us a life-like portraiture of its subject. We welcome it heartily. John Wesley's grand life can afford to be told often, and we are glad to see it here in such form as to reach the homes of the poor."—British Messenger.

London: MORGAN AND SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.

And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

The Christian.

☞ It is particularly requested that all letters relating to business matters should be addressed to the firm, Messrs. Morgan & Scott, and not to individual members. Communications for THE CHRISTIAN should be addressed to the Editor. Letters of a personal nature should in every case be so marked.

All Advertisements for THE CHRISTIAN should be sent to Messrs. John Haddon and Co., Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, London, E.C., accompanied by remittance. (For Terms, see Page 2.)

Notes and Comments.

NEXT week we purpose giving portrait and sketch of Rev. THOMAS SPURGEON, son of the late pastor of the Metropolitan Tabernacle.

Mr. and Mrs. Hudson Taylor, of the China Inland Mission, left Shanghai on May 10 for England, viâ America. After a brief stay in Canada and the United States, they expect to reach England in time for the Keswick Convention.

We have so far received nearly a hundred applications from workers among the poor of London, begging a share of the "Day in the Country" Fund which, year by year, has been raised by readers of THE CHRISTIAN. The moral influence upon children and others of a ramble among rural scenes, even for but a few hours, is undoubted; and we all know it is estimated very highly by those who are engaged in Christian labour among the denizens of the courts and alleys of the Metropolis. As the season advances, the appeals of our friends become more numerous and urgent, and we trust our readers will hasten to enable us to assist, as heretofore, the many local efforts to brighten the lives of the cheerless and despairing of our population.

We have already, with great regret, announced the enforced retirement of our long and highly valued friend, Mr. George Hatton, from the superintendence of the St. Giles's Christian Mission. It is perhaps due to our readers that we should publish the following letter received from him a few days ago:—

> I am extremely sorry to inform you that I have been compelled through continued ill-health to resign the superintendence of our much-loved Mission, and I feel I must write you a line to express to you my deepest gratitude for the long years of kindness and sympathy you have ever shown to myself and the work for God with which it has been my joy to be connected. In almost every time of dire need you have aided us by your kindly word to the readers of THE CHRISTIAN, and I would bespeak for my dear friend Mr. Wheatley, my successor, whom you know quite well, the same generous aid. What such Missions as ours would do in times of temporary pressure without your support I scarcely know, and perhaps no institution is more deeply indebted to you than we are. It would have been a great comfort to me to leave Mr. Wheatley with a balance in hand, but I am sorry that this is not the case, as we are considerably behind and shall need at least £2000 to enable us to go through the summer months. I do not altogether separate myself from the work of the Mission, as I have accepted the office of President, and shall also retain some oversight over the spiritual work at the Mission Chapel, Little Wild-street.

The Protestant communities of Russia—Stundists, Baptists, and Molokans—are being persecuted with renewed severity. The head of the Orthodox Mission to the "sectaries" in the Caucasus threatens to deck the walls of their meeting-houses with icons and sacred pictures. A telegram from Odessa, states:—

> Meeting-houses of Baptists have just been closed in Ivanovka, Saratovka, and Baku. Only the lack of sufficient means prevents these harried wretches from emigrating in large numbers to America. Three Stundist preachers have just been tried in Kischeneff, charged with disseminating the tenets of their faith. The hearing took place with closed doors. Two of the offenders were sentenced to banishment to the Persian frontier, with the loss of all civil rights and privileges; the other to eight months in gaol.

The privileges which we enjoy will be very jealously guarded if we keep our eyes open to the disabilities which are imposed upon humble believers in lands where apostate churches hold sway. While we should rejoice to hear of measures to enlarge the Russian Protestants into circumstances of freedom, we cannot doubt that God will, in his wisdom, use their bold testimony in their own land.

In the preface to the new edition of his book, "The Impregnable Rock of Holy Scripture," just issued, Mr. Gladstone says:—

> It really too often seems as if, when we are arguing about the authenticity of Genesis or Exodus, we had no weightier task in hand than if we were discussing the Epistles of Phalaris, or the letters of Ganganelli, or the authorship of Junius. And yet there they stand, these great facts and doctrines, in all the primitive severity of their outline, unshaken and august. There we find, now as heretofore, the doctrines of creation, of life, of human life, of the introduction of sin into the world, of the havoc which it wrought, of the simultaneous promise of redemption, of the selection of a special race for special purposes, and of the gradual preparation of the nations until the fulness of time had come.
>
> More particularly I own does it appear as if there had now spread among many of the teachers of religion an apprehension of fully unfolding and strongly enforcing on their hearers of to-day the doctrine of sin, and of its moral and judicial consequences, such as it is taught in the Jewish and the Christian Scriptures. But this, I have no doubt, is due in part to an enemy very far more powerful than what is called the higher criticism, namely, the world and its increasing power over our minds and lives.

Modern analytic study has done nothing to impress upon the Church the authority and majesty of Holy Writ. Those who will survey the Book telescopically, as Mr. Gladstone does in his volume, will be amply rewarded. Almost unconsciously they will become grounded in the faith and proof against all the depreciative suggestions of such as only employ worn-out critical microscopes.

The Review of the Churches says that "Dr. T. T. Munger contributes to The Homiletic Review an article on 'Exegetical Preaching,' in which he deals courageously and vigorously with a question which must be in the mind of almost every preacher, viz., the effect which the Higher Criticism must have upon the preacher and his preaching."

The "courage and vigour" of Dr. Munger are exhibited in such assertions as these—that the attempt to find Christ in the Song of Solomon is to bury the pulpit with contempt. Genesis is a semi-historical compilation, giving various accounts of the Creation. To insist that these should be read literally and as veritable history is to violate all the canons of criticism and to sink the pulpit below the average intelligence of the people. The historical books are of immense value, but they do not contain the laws and truths by which we live in this nineteenth century. Leviticus, having served its purpose, was brought to an end by St. Paul (!).

Eratostratus dealt "courageously and vigorously" with the temple of Diana, when, to make himself a name, he burnt that wonder of the world. It would seem that these higher critics are vieing with each other as to which of their names shall go down to posterity as the destroyer of the Word of God.

But Dr. Munger sets his touch to still other parts of the Holy Scriptures. The Psalms, voicing the experience of many of God's saints, sink when loaded with a theory of inspiration, and made to carry prophetic meanings that were never intended. Job comes nearest inspiration of anything in the Old Testament. It cannot be preached too much if made to carry its own great truth, and not loaded with history which is not in it, and prophecy which it never dreamed of. The prophecies are the ecstatic utterances of religious patriots, of great ethical value, and full of inspiration for all time; but they are not foretellers, except as they utter universal truths that must some time have fulfilment.

Do men who write like this know really anything of the Word of God, living and active, sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and discerning the thoughts and intents of the heart?

The same number of The Review of the Churches contains also "a most amusing satire on the 'Higher Criticism,'" reprinted from Our Day, and also an article entitled "The Battle of the Bible—the Methodist Heresy Hunt," which is mainly a quotation from Dr. Gregory's reply in The Wesleyan Methodist Magazine to the criticisms of The Methodist Sunday-school Record upon his review of Dr. Beet's handbook on Christian Evidences. While both sides of "The Battle of the Bible" are thus stated, The Review of the Churches offers no editorial opinion either way; but in so far as its feeling may be gathered from the use of the term "heresy hunt," as applied to Dr. Gregory's article, and "courageously and vigorously" to that of Dr. Munger, it would seem that its sympathies lie with the destructive criticism.

But The Review of the Churches is, more prominently than anything else, the advocate of Christian Union. To this end the Re-union Conference at Grindelwald. But how is union or re-union possible with these disintegrating views of Scripture? The Living Word and the Written Word stand or fall together. All we know of the Person is through the Book, and of all latter-day dreams and follies none is a more "baseless fabric" than that of union, with the Personal Word for a centre, while the Written Word is depleted of its Divine authority. We expect no Christian Union except in reverent submission and obedience to the Written Word.

The English Church Union, the leading "High Church" organisation, by resolutions passed at its thirty-third annual meeting on Tuesday last week, committed itself to the practical abolition of the Sunday morning service in parish churches, as it has been hitherto generally performed, in favour of the celebration of "High Mass." No objection can be taken to this way of putting the result, for the President, Lord Halifax, himself used the words. The Union has also formally sanctioned fasting Communion as "the universal custom of the Church." The discussion showed that an influential minority of the members is strongly opposed to these resolutions, not, however, because of any remaining Evangelical sentiment, but because "choral mattins" is thought to be required for the use of those who are unfit to attend the Eucharist. And so, having departed from the simplicity of the Gospel, thousands of active members of the Church of England are hungering and thirsting after the poisoned meat and drink of the Roman fold.

Those who are apt to question statements in regard to the silent and unwearying policy of the Jesuits in these islands should study a paper in the current number of The Andover Review, in which some of the results of their labours in Canada are summed up by Mr. Stetson. After giving a list of the measures which are more or less directly due to the followers of Loyala, he refers to the legislation as marking a long step backward towards the days of Jesuitical propagandism, "whose shackles even Italy long since cast off."

The unexpected visits which the President of the Local Government Board made recently to the workhouses and casual wards have not been without a satisfactory result. It is, doubtless, to them that we owe the London Casual Ward Bill, which will go far to remove many of the scandals in connection with the treatment of the destitute poor. An increased number of wards, the earlier release of the casuals, telephonic communication between the various wards, so that the overflow casuals in one district may be provided for in another, and horses and cars for the conveyance of the destitute in such cases—these are a few of the improvements provided for in Mr. Ritchie's Act, and there is in it, therefore, much that will be hailed with gratification by all who sympathise with the deserving poor.

The Ulster Convention.

We are glad to observe that The Daily News showed no indication to underrate the importance of the remarkable demonstration held in Belfast on Friday last. It was, indeed, too gigantic and too successful to be ignored. If there were between eleven thousand and twelve thousand delegates in the large wooden erection put up for the occasion, and at least one hundred thousand people at the monster meeting in the Botanical Gardens, it deserves to be described as "one of the greatest political demonstrations ever seen in Ireland."

The meetings themselves seem to have been remarkable, not only for their orderly and unanimous character, but for the earnest, serious, determined spirit in which the protest was made. The appropriate prayer with which the meetings commenced, the hearty singing of the Forty-sixth Psalm by a company of about twelve thousand persons, must have been deeply impressive. Whether we agree with the object of this Convention or not, we cannot fail to see that the promoters of it are engaged in what they regard as a sacred duty. They believe they see in Home Rule possible dangers to which the English Protestants and Nonconformists who support the measure are blind.

How shall we explain this vigorous, intelligent, and serious opposition? Is there any sufficient reason for it? The protesters are living in the country, and are able to see Irish Roman Catholicism as it exists among them. Is this the reason for their opposition to the measure? We confess that the explanation given in The Daily News does not satisfy us:—"Home Rule, as designed by Mr. Gladstone, would mean the entire and final abolition of every Legislative or Ministerial principle or practice that conferred traditional and hereditary ascendancy on one religious sect and one political order, we might almost say one political class." This is too vague and indefinite. It states a general principle which many will admit, but which has no proper application to the case in point. The Daily News assumes that it has, and adds:—"We could hardly expect that the holders of a traditional privilege should see it pass away from them without their special wonder, and without making a hard fight to keep it with them still."

To us this explanation is wholly unsatisfactory. If this Convention had been purely an Orange demonstration it is doubtful whether the language even then would apply. But it was not in any sense a gathering of Orangemen. It did not represent any one religious sect. It comprised Episcopalians, Presbyterians, and other Nonconformist bodies. Is it right to speak of these as a privileged "religious sect" or "political class;" and to attribute to them no other motive in this Convention than that of retaining some fancied "religious ascendancy"? The explanation will be rejected for the one vital reason that it does not explain.

It is opposed to Protestant principle to seek or to exercise such ascendancy; but the history of Christendom is the history of the always-asserted and the too often successful claim of the Romish Apostasy to such ascendancy.

From the tone of the speeches delivered it is clear that it is not the dread of losing some hereditary privilege, but the greater dread of being sold under the domination of Rome, which influences the Protestants of Ireland. Is this an unreasonable fear? Perhaps the evils anticipated from Home Rule are being exaggerated; yet it is admitted that a Home Rule Parliament in Dublin would have a large majority of Roman Catholics. Is it inconceivable that when Rome possesses power she will use it for her own purposes? Is it conceivable that she will fail to do so? The history of the past and the present condition of Roman Catholic countries alike bear witness to the tyrannical power of Rome, and justify the fears of the promoters of this Convention. We repeat, those fears may be exaggerated. Possibly they are groundless, but they are seriously cherished by a very large and influential minority (if, indeed, it be a minority) of the inhabitants of Ulster, and ought not to be lightly set aside. To sneer at them, or to impute base motives, is vain, and betrays only weakness.

"But there are safeguards." Yes, we know; so do the thousands who met in Belfast the other day. Yet these safeguards do not prevent the fears inspired by the prospect of a Roman Catholic majority in an Irish Parliament. If we could blot out all Romish history, or were blind to existing facts in other nations, and even in our own, we might regard this rooted distrust of Rome as a mistake. We are bound to say that Rome as a system is not to be trusted, and, therefore, that the utterances at this recent Convention are deserving of and demand serious and careful and prayerful consideration.

Never more than in view of the impending election did the Church need to cry for light and wisdom to direct the affairs of this kingdom. God still overrules all human affairs, and out of the conflicts of political parties can work his own purposes of righteousness and peace.

The Culture of the Devout Life.

As soon as the May Meetings finish, they are followed by a month or two of Conventions, which are certainly a remarkable sign of the times. It constantly happens that the largest buildings in provincial towns are filled for three and four successive days with vast crowds gathered to hear addresses on the deepest themes of the religious life; whilst in London and its neighbourhood there are Mildmay, and Guildford, and other less famous gatherings of the same character.

Many purposes are gained by these great convocations, such as the interchange of thought; the manifestation of the unity of believers; the presentation of sides of truth which are in danger of being set aside by ordinary religious teachers, because of the mixed audiences they are called upon to address, and the lack of appreciation of spiritual truth existing among average congregations. But chief among the advantages of these conventions is the opportunity afforded for the culture of the devout life.

Christianity is too often confounded with the holding of a creed, with assent to certain propositions, with special theories of Inspiration; when, in point of fact, it is something as much more important than these, as the spirit of life than the physical frame it tenants. The whole operation of the Spirit of God amongst men, of which the Bible is alike the record and the channel, is intended to create and nurture in us that life which was with the Father, and was manifested to the world in Jesus Christ. And the perception of the truth of Scripture is largely dependent on the vigour with which the devout life is maintained.

These two forces act and react, and in their exact balance the equilibrium of the soul is maintained. On the one hand, it is obvious that the devout life is fed and nurtured in the soul by the continued and prayerful study of the Bible. Here is the manna spread on the table of the wilderness floor! Here the provisions of our Father's storehouse! But, on the other hand, it is certain that the state of the inner life will very much determine our attitude towards the Bible and our views of Inspiration.

Spiritual declension often prepares the way for misgivings as to the truth of Scripture. The soul has been overcome by sin or negligence, and being in an unhealthy condition has fallen an easy prey to the germs of scepticism with which the spiritual atmosphere is full. And in many cases, if we were to trace back the destructive, iconoclastic treatment of God's Word to its source, we should find that there had been a previous laxity in prayer, in watchfulness over appetite, and in the closeness of the spirit's walk with God.

These thoughts have been suggested by two instances which have come under our own notice during the last week. The one was of a young minister, who was airing his sceptical notions, most of which were borrowed and retailed at second-hand, in the presence of a Christian lady, who turned to him simply and said, "Have you spoken to the Lord Jesus about them?" He had never thought of making them a subject for prayer. They had been a topic of flippant talk with man, but never of soul-travail before God. There had not been sufficient earnestness of heart to seek to ascertain God's will and God's thoughts. And it could therefore be no matter for wonder that as the eye was not single, the whole body was full of darkness. That remark, however, led him to see his error, and to retrace his steps.

The other case was that of a Divinity student who was induced to attend a well-known convention. He came to the meetings as to a psychological study, and was deeply touched by the fervour and intensity of the religious life manifested around him. In converse with a friend, he was led to give himself up to the Spirit of God, abjuring his pre-conceived notions, and professing his willingness to be led whither He willed, and almost instantly there fell from his eyes as it had been scales, and he came back to belief in the Scripture as a little child.

And does not this drawing together of people to conventions suggest to religious teachers the desirableness of giving more explicit directions for the culture of the devout life? There seems in some quarters a dread lest the teaching of the Epistles should prove too strong and elevated for the appreciation of modern congregations. The unreasonableness of this fear is, however, attested by the popularity of the convention movement. And surely the truths which the Apostles taught those who were but just escaped from the taint of heathenism, must be available for those who have inherited the wealth of Christian centuries. It is a profound mistake to level our teaching down to the tone of this Laodicean age, let us level the people up to the position which the early Church occupied; and directly we do so, the effect will appear in the new hold which our people will take on evangelical truth. The quickened life naturally, and with avidity, turns to the Word of God, and therein acquires a belief which no amount of criticism can undermine or destroy. Raise the temperature, and you destroy vermin.

And it is only thus that the pulpit can hold its own. The forum or bar will surpass it in rhetoric; the laureate singers of the age will leave it far behind in flights of poesy and imagination; the essay, or review, or writings of the mere moralist, will rival it in precept and exhortation. But none of these can dare to match themselves with the Christian minister who deals with the spiritual life of his people, a virgin soil, unwrought by all else, and deeper than mind or soul. This is an empire that none can dispute.

Many and severe are the complaints against the business morality of professing Christians. With the new theology men are introducing a new and lower code of morals. There is an evident tendency in some quarters to relax the stern, high standard of former days, in favour of a milder and less exacting one. All this springs from the same cause as that by which we have accounted for loose views of the authority of Holy Scripture.

But with the insistence on the virtue and necessity of the devout life, much of this would be altered, and a closer walk with God would involve a more careful behaviour towards men. We deprecate the way in which spiritual gipsies are apt to fasten themselves on the Convention movement, following it from place to place. we would dissuade the leaders from making excessive demands on the attention and emotions of the people, without warning them of the inevitable reaction which must ensue, after prolonged seasons of spiritual exaltation. But we hail with thankfulness any attempts to raise the standard of spiritual life among us and to culitvate the devout life, feeling assured that this is needed to meet most of the evils under which the Church and the world groan.

The New "Age of Reason."

THERE were many who thought that Mr. urgeon took a needlessly severe view of at he called the "Down-grade" in Theo-y. I thought so, too, at first, and ventured, friendly note, to express this—reminding of the immense circulation of his own ks, and of other books on old orthodox s. In his reply, Mr. Spurgeon said: "The arture from the Gospel is far more terrible n you dream. This rot is at the very heart the Church, and those may see it who care lo so. Ask any publisher, and he will tell that orthodoxy does not pay—that a smack heterodoxy is needed."

Time has shown that Mr. Spurgeon was ht. The progress of error has been rapid ce he sounded the alarm. Without men-ning other books, let us look at the work of non Driver (of Oxford), which forms the t volume of "The International Theo-ical Library," and of which the third tion has already been issued. He calls his k "An Introduction to the Literature of Old Testament," but this title is imperfect, l ought to be thus completed: "chiefly ording to the views of recent rationalist ters." The Dutch Professor Kuenen, is main model, but he also, in wonderful ail, gives the speculations of a multitude German critics and professors, as well as Englishmen of "the new school," while nitting comparatively few notices of men equal learning, but more reverent spirit, oring their conclusions, or dealing with m contemptuously as traditionists. If he fined himself to the "literature" of the l Testament, as he professes to do in his face, we should leave his book to the con-eration of Biblical students, but he raises stions affecting faith as well as learning.

The hundred-and-tenth Psalm has in all ages the Church been regarded as "Messianic" a signal prophecy of the Lord Jesus Christ, cribing his person, kingdom, priesthood, l the work of redemption accomplished by n. Parts of this prophecy are quoted and plied in the New Testament; as by St. er in Acts ii. 34; by St. Paul, 1 Corin-ans xv. 25; but more especially by our d Himself, as we read in Matthew xxii. 45, in Mark xii. 35-37, and in Luke xx. 44. This quotation is given in all the noptic gospels, and with such variations confirm the common testimony. The stion was, "What think ye of Christ? ose Son is He? They say unto Him, The n of David." And then comes the answer, he words of Mark's gospel, "David him-f said, by the Holy Ghost, 'The Lord said ny Lord, Sit thou on my right hand till I ke thine enemies thy footstool.' David refore himself calleth Him Lord, and nce is he then his Son?"

Now, how does Canon Driver treat this ect reference, by our Lord, to the Psalm, as tten by David, the Spirit of the Lord aking by Him? He says: "This Psalm, ugh it may be ancient, can hardly have n composed by David. If read without judicium, it produces the irresistible im-ssion of having been written, not by a king h reference to an invisible Spiritual Being, nding above him as his superior, but by a phet with reference to the theocratic king." s setting aside of the plain testimony of Saviour Himself can only be possible under of two suppositions; either he assumes absence of knowledge in the Divine cher, who declared David to be the author the hundred-and tenth Psalm; or (more worthy supposition) he charges our Lord h accommodating his teaching to the orance and prejudices of the Jews of his . Dr. Ellicott, Bishop of Gloucester and stol, whose Biblical learning and sound gment all acknowledge, has given the fol-ing warning, in a Charge to the clergy of diocese, on "the new criticism":—

> have felt, and most deeply felt, the dangers, ially to the young, of accepting theories, nious and even fascinating as they may appear ct. of the origin and composition of the Old ament, which careful investigation may show to be irreconcilable with the teaching of Christ. ...Such theories...originate in most cases from a readiness, if not to deny, yet assuredly to minimise, the supernatural; and by the inevitable drift of consequences they commonly end in some form of spiritual paralysis, some enduring inability to lay hold of the life eternal. This downward drift and ultimate issue may easily be traced. If the theory is not reconcilable with the teaching of Christ, and is fairly felt to be so, then the temptation to believe in a possible ignorance on the part of our Lord becomes in many minds irresistible, and the way is paved for a belief in the possibility, not only of his ignorance, but even of his fallibility—and so, by dreadful inference, in the possibility of our hope in Him, here and hereafter, being found to be vain and illusory.

Another point in the rationalist view of the Old Testament is the denial of Isaiah being the author of a large portion of the book bearing his name. Canon Driver, following several German and English critics, affirms in a dogmatic way that "this prophecy (chapters forty to sixty-six of Isaiah) is not the work of Isaiah, but has for its author a prophet writing towards the close of the Babylonian captivity." It would take too much space to show the groundlessness of this tenet of the new age of reason. Suffice it to say that it betrays utter want of appreciation of the nature of prophecy as a part of Divine revelation. The prophets sometimes predict events of near occurrence, but often their predictions refer to events of the distant future as if they were present. Isaiah does this, first as to the coming judgments on the people of Israel and the captivity in Babylon; but he is also inspired to utter words of consolation for the future, and foretells their deliverances and their return from exile. Then, beyond this, in the closing chapters his inspired strain rises to a higher level (majora canamus), and he tells of the deliverance of the true Israel of God from worse than Assyrian bondage, and of the glory of the kingdom of Christ, of which all true believers, the children of Abraham by faith, are the members.

It was of this spiritual kingdom that the Messiah spake, when, in the synagogue of Nazareth, the book of the prophet Esaias was handed to him, and of the sixty-first chapter He said: "This day is this Scripture fulfilled in your ears" (Luke iv. 16-21). The Jews could not understand that through suffering and death the Messiah was to come to his glorious reign, and so they denied that the fifty-third chapter referred to Jesus of Nazareth, as the Jews do still (and as the rationalists do) when they speak of "Jehovah's ideal servant," who is to restore them to their own land. The fathers and doctors of the Church, in all the ages, have understood that Isaiah spoke of Christ's humiliation and his passion, and of the glorious kingdom of the risen Lord into which Gentiles as well as Jews were to be gathered. Hence Isaiah has always borne the honoured title of "the Evangelical Prophet." For Isaiah we are now asked to substitute an unnamed and unknown prophet in the time of the captivity.

Let it be also observed that out of thirty-four quotations from Isaiah in the New Testament, twenty-one are from the chapters said to be anonymous, and only thirteen from the rest of the book. Our Lord and his apostles, and the Church universal, in all times, until this new age of reason, knew only one Isaiah.

Of the former "Age of Reason," the most notable champion was Thomas Paine, a clever but coarse and unprincipled man. He knew what had been said by Voltaire and other infidels and deists, but his own acquaintance with the Bible was very slight. In many instances his blundering ignorance was demonstrated by Dr. Watson, Bishop of Llandaff, in his "Apology for the Bible." Isaiah is called by Paine "a lying prophet and an impostor," and his prophecy is described as "one continued rant, full of extravagant metaphor, without application, and destitute of meaning." He anticipated the critics of our time in saying that "some parts of the prophecy could only have been written by a person who lived long after the death of Isaiah." To an unbeliever like Paine, a supernatural knowledge of future events was a sheer impossibility, and against reason.

The present rationalist attacks on the Bible though in some ways less disreputable, are more dangerous than those of former times. They are more dangerous, because made by men some of whom profess reverence for Divine revelation. It is all very well to say, "What does it matter who wrote a book, if we admit it to be inspired?" But where the Lord Himself has taught us, and the Church catholic—the company of faithful people for all times—has accepted his teaching, loose speculation should be avoided. (See St. John v. 39.)

In noticing the work of Dr. Driver, The Times said that "the service which this book will render to the present confusion of mind on this great subject can scarcely be over-estimated." We should rather say that the book is calculated to create great confusion of mind, and to destroy confidence in the Word of God as the sole rule of faith and practice. Hitherto it has been admitted among all Protestants that to the written word every difference of opinion is to be referred. There is ample room for both reason and learning in the study and interpretation and elucidation of Holy Scripture; but the question is now raised, What is Scripture?

A striking incident is told about the great Indian missionary, Dr. Duff. He was wrecked on his first voyage to the East, upon the coast of Africa. All his library, and his notes of much study, perished in the sea, but his Bible was cast ashore and recovered. He took this as a providential lesson that the Word of God, "the Sword of the Spirit," was to be to him the great weapon in his warfare. The Bible has ever been the spiritual weapon in the hands of all preachers and teachers, and of ministers and missionaries at home or abroad—of Luther, and Calvin, and Latimer, and Knox; of Hooker and Owen; Bunyan and Baxter; Butler and Chalmers; of Whitefield and Wesley; of Carey, whose centenary has this year been celebrated; of Moffat and Livingstone; of James Gilmour, the latest of Gospel missionaries of whom record is made. I mention only a few names of the great and good who are departed. Of what service, for personal influence or public work, would a Bible have been to such men if it had been revised by a committee of modern Rationalists?

There are in the Bible difficulties to explain and textual errors to correct, but these are of comparatively little account in things essential. It was a great scholar and critic, Michaelis, who said that "all the corrections he had ever seen or heard of did not affect a single point of doctrine or of duty." All efforts of learned men to elucidate the Scriptures are gladly recognised, but this is very different from efforts to destroy the authority of the canonical Scriptures; to allow reason to subvert faith; and to substitute rationalistic theories for spiritual wisdom and for common sense.

When a sin-stricken, sorrowing soul is anxiously looking for pardon and peace, its feeling is expressed in these lines:—

> Laden with guilt, and full of fears,
> I fly to Thee, my Lord,
> And not a glimpse of hope appears
> But in Thy written Word.

Where is this written Word, according to the new age of reason? If we turn to the Old Testament, we are told that the 51st Psalm is not the prayer of David, the great sinner, seeking to have pardon through the blood of the Great Saviour. This Psalm, says Canon Driver, "is a confession written (during the exile) on behalf of the nation, by one who had a deep sense of his people's sin" (Third edition, p. 367). Or if we turn to the New Testament, and would look to Christ lifted up on the cross as the Saviour of the world, we are told that the Gospel of St. John was not written by the disciple whom Jesus loved, but is the production of a Christian Gnostic. We used to say of the Bible—

> This is the Judge that ends the strife,
> Where wit and reason fail;

but in the new age of reason the Bible itself is pulled to pieces, and we cannot be certain what is the written Word on which to rest our hope.

"Judge all things, hold fast that which is good." It is necessary to examine the writings of modern critics, but a very slight examination proves that most of the assertions of those who call themselves rationalists are unreasonable, and opposed to the plain words of the Bible, as well as to "traditional" teaching. The attempt to reconstruct the Pentateuch, and to destroy the authority of Moses, as that has always been received, has been ably exposed by the Rev. A. Moody Stuart, in his book, "The Bible True to Itself" (Nisbet and Co.). The absurdity reaches its height when we are told that the Book of Deuteronomy was written by an unknown Jewish prophet, seven or eight hundred years after the death of the great lawgiver. Statements are made about "the post exile origin of the Levitical institutions," with other distortions of history, irreconcileable with each other as well as with Scripture. The institution of sacrifice, as we know, dates from the earliest ages, and throughout the time of the Mosaic law it was held that without the shedding of blood there was no remission of sin; yet these rationalists now tell us that the priestly code, with its sacrifices of atonement, was first promulgated after the Exile.

It is greatly to be desired that a revised edition of the masterly and judicious "Handbook of the Bible," by Dr. Angus, should now be published, embodying the results of recent discoveries and researches. It would not need very much additional matter, for it is one comfort in regard to the speculations of rationalist critics, that they refute and cancel each other and do not deserve permanent record. New theories are taken up by professors (in Dissenting colleges as well as in our Universities), and by "able" editors (of encyclopædias as well as newspapers), and they mislead those to whom a little learning is a dangerous thing. The faith of many is unsettled, and not a few are glad to seek rest by submitting reason to authority. Others are driven to become agnostics and sceptics—Sadducees, in fact—by the plausible theories of the Scribes and Doctors of modern rationalism.

In one of his latest letters from Mentone, Mr. Spurgeon wrote:

It is my life to proclaim the everlasting Gospel of the grace of God, and it is a happy reflection to me, that through my printed sermons I shall live and speak long after I am dead. I cannot but look back with gratitude, and forward with hope. Better days may yet come. It may be we shall live to see a reaction in favour of the old Gospel; if not, we will many of us die contending for it.

And here are the closing sentences of one of his last sermons:—

Let me very briefly tell once more "the old, old story, of Jesus and his love." Jesus Christ died in the stead of sinners. We deserved to be punished for our sins. Under the law of Moses there was no pardon for sin except through the blood of a sacrifice. Jesus Christ, the Son of God, is the one sacrifice for sins for ever, of which the thousands of bullocks and lambs slain under the law were but types. Every man who trusts to the death of the Lamb of God, may know that Jesus Christ was punished in his stead; so that God can be just, and yet forgive the guilty; He can, without violating his justice, remit sin and pardon iniquity, because a substitute has been found, whose death has an infinite value because of the Divine nature of the sufferer. He has borne the iniquities of all who trust Him. "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life."

This is "the old Gospel," which is no doubt "foolishness" to some men of "advanced thought" in our day, as it was to the Greeks to whom Paul wrote. "Where is the wise? where is the scribe? where is the disputer of this world? hath not God made foolish the wisdom of this world?" (1 Corinthians i. 20). These two opening chapters of the epistle of the great Apostle of the Gentiles to the Corinthians were written, under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, not for his own time only, but are worthy of study in this our "new age of reason."

James Macaulay, M.D.

BASUTOLAND.—Mr. Mabille, writing from Lessouto, says: "Our latest statistics indicate gratifying advance. We have 788 more communicants (total 7900), and 789 more catechumens (total 4,543), six more out-stations (total 128), and twenty-five more active helpers (total 241).

Lights and Shadows of Mission Work.

No. IV.

My mission at St. P—— was begun under circumstances most discouraging. The vicar's wife was ill in bed. He, poor man, was being worried out of his life by secular work thrust on him by the peculiar surroundings of his church. The congregation, that had numbered thirteen hundred at the time of the Crimean War, had been brought down, by the vagaries of a Ritualist, to about forty or fifty, and now had only been brought back, through my friend's efforts, to about 250. I was thankful that so many of these were present to hear the Word of God; but I must confess that the empty seats about the church struck a chill to my very soul.

On the first Sunday night—I think it was while the organist was giving us the first voluntary—I was informed that some strange clergyman had borrowed a chorister's surplice and was sitting with the choir. I hate preaching at a person, but I own that I sometimes feel led to give what I feel a special case demands, and I spoke very pointedly about the new birth which is from above. At the close of the sermon I invited all who desired conversation to come with me into the vestry. About a dozen came, and our clerical friend among the others. "Will you lead us in prayer?" I asked, though I knew my request would not be granted. "I would rather be excused," was the reply; "yet I shall be very glad to have a few words with you when these good people are gone." At length the others departed, and we were left alone. "Well, what is it?" He pulled a prayer-book out of his pocket, and pointing to the first collect in "The Communion Service"—"It is this," said he, "that I want."

"Is it not rather salvation?"

"I am a child of God," was his answer.

"What leads you to think so?"

"I have been baptized."

"And so has Mr. B—— (I was referring to a well-known infidel lecturer); but do you regard him as a child of God?"

"I may offend my father and get disinherited."

"I might do the same thing, were my father living; and yet I should still remain his son. The relationship between father and son is an eternal one; but do you think that all baptized people go to heaven, or, on the other hand, do you believe God has children in hell?"

Opening my Bible at 1 John iii. 9 and 10, "Read this," said I; and he read those words that have been the means of showing so many sincere Ritualists their error: "Whosoever is born of God doth not commit sin, for his seed remaineth in him, and he cannot sin, because he is born of God. In this the children of God are manifest, and the children of the devil. Whosoever doeth not righteousness is not of God."

"Let us in fancy," said I, "fetch twenty of those poor prostitutes from the adjoining street, and another twenty drunkards or burglars with them. Haven't fifteen out of the twenty been baptized? Let us ask them whether they have ever remaining in them the holy principle here called the SEED of God. They will understand us better if we say something that keeps them from living a sinful life. What do they answer? They make no pretence of holiness, but rather glory in their shame. Are these children of God? If so, who are the children of the devil that the Holy Ghost speaks of in this tenth verse? Friend, let God be true."

"Have you seen Sadler's views on this passage?" he asked.

"I know Mr. Sadler," I replied; "but you and I are now considering what the Holy Ghost says, and there is no possibility of mistaking HIS meaning in the words before us. 'Whosoever is born of God doth not commit sin.' I understand this (from comparing this chapter with t first of the epistle) to be wilful and habitual s See, again, the 'seed' REMAINETH. So must not talk about falling from grace; a remaining, it renders it an impossibility for a one really born of God to lead the life that the baptized people before us are living. Going step further—are we to give the lie to the Ho Ghost, and say that these habitual sinners ha been born of God, when He says they cann have been?"

The clock struck eleven, and the weary sext came and asked us to consider him. The ne night my friend turned up again, and we we over the old ground once more. In youthf days, when rather fond of fighting, an old m had advised me always to follow up a bl that found a weak point in an opponent. I ha often acted on that same principle when engag in a doctrinal contest; and, on this occasion, d-termined to follow up the impression that knew St. John's words had made on the mind my arguing friend. On the Wednesday night failed to put in an appearance, but on t Thursday, when I gave an opportunity f any one to express a wish for the prayers the believers present, he arose before all t congregation. We conversed again till elev o'clock, and I gave him a little book I h written, entitled "Jesus Only." This, he told on the following evening, had been the means showing him the truth. He gave me his na and address, but I have never seen him sin If he reads this sketch he will recall all the c cumstances of that eventful week, and I know will admit that all I have said has been stric true.

I had another most pleasant experience at t mission. A "High Church" lady, from t "West-end," who was giving both her time a money to the laudable effort of rescuing fr their life of shame, the poor fallen girls w which the neighbourhood abounded, came to of our services. At its close she remarked th had it been possible, she would have liked me have gone with her to two "Refuges" in wh she was interested. My Saturday afternoon free, and I offered it to her. At the first of t two I allowed the girls to choose a text for and one of them gave the words, "Ye must born again." It seemed so marvellous, for I now enabled to speak to my lady friend on the v subject that was uppermost in my thoug while we had been travelling together, a if tears meant anything they told me the w had gone home. At the next, the matron quie asked me what line I thought of taking. "D don't be afraid," I replied, "that I shall say a thing about the woman who was a sinne "Thank you," she said, and afterwards told that eight out of every ten who addressed young people took that one subject. Indeed, t girls had got into the way of asking each oth 'Is she to be trotted out to-day?" I to "Ruth and Orpah," and God appeared to ap the word. A long time afterwards, I went speak to a young woman who was engaged prayer at a mission "after-meeting," think she might be an anxious soul. "Don't y know me?" she asked, with a smile on her fa I did not. Then she told me that she had b the first girl to cast herself on Christ when I spoken at the F—— "Refuge," and was engaged in rescuing others from the lost co tion in which she had once been herself.

Evangelist

LIMELIGHT SERVICES.—Rev. J. Flanagan, is in charge of the South-east London Mis Trinity-street, Borough, having a suitable han is anxious to give open-air limelight services, and secured the use of the playground of Harper-s Board School for the purpose. He now wants a £15 to meet the expenses of the season in a m of service which in such a district he believes h to prove fruitful in good. His address is 47, A dale-square, Old Kent-road, S.E.

Promises Fulfilled in China.

(Concluded from our last.)

It was not long before we were again put to he test. The more usual remittances were cut ff, partly through our treasurer in China being id aside ill, and other causes; but Phil. iv. 19 as not yet been cut off from his word, and shall ot be. Ourselves and others were at times very ort of means, when one day a collection was ade in our household of natives to give a edding feast to our school-teacher. I gave three ndred cash (one shilling), all I could then fford, being the same as given by our servants. he day before the captain of an American barque ad inquired in the settlement if any mission- ries were in the city, and, having found us, ith his wife called upon us, and invited us on oard to dinner. This was the only foreign sail- g vessel we had ever heard of coming to Chin- iang for some years. The captain inquired what ociety we belonged to; how we were supported; nd, when told that we never ask anyone for oney, he said: "Then, are you never without ay?" "No," I said; t my saying this he was much surprised, and hen put into my hand fourteen dollars. How ttle he knew how near we were to being with- ut at that moment! At the evening wedding ast we surprised our scholars and teachers by lling them that if God had not helped us, it ould have been a feast to-day and a fast to- orrow.

"GOD NEVER LEAVES US WITHOUT."

For some months our trials of faith were fre- uent with regard to the supply of our need, and times were supplied with dainties—as butter, ame, salt pork, such as then we should not have ought—by persons who could not possibly have nown our circumstances. One Monday morning, hen very "hard up," a letter came from a lady orker in China, only a mile or two from us, nclosing ten dollars for ourselves and ten ounds for our school. We praised God and, fter some time, when we were better off, I told er how God had helped us, through her gift, in me of need. "Do you know," she said, "that r weeks I had been thinking of sending you elp, but did not know how your school was sup- orted; but on Sunday night I could not bear it ay longer, so I wrote the note at once, and sent it rly on Monday."

Soon afterwards a severe illness of my dear ife's necessitated, in medical opinion, her im- ediate return to England. Being in Chinese ess, we had not a single English garment for y wife or myself for the voyage; nor had we e means to get any. Still, He had promised, ven in this, to supply all our need. In about ree days, all the time we had to prepare, every- ing we really needed for starting was kindly nt to us without charge. But how we should anage to travel with my wife and one child, th so dangerously sick, and another little one st weaned, across the Pacific, then across the merican Continent—the former in a steerage ssage, the latter second class—without help, I uld not see. But just then a kind-hearted ster-worker arrived from Nan-kin, who in- nded going home in a few months, and had oney for her passage. Seeing our difficulty, e at once decided to accompany us, without en returning to Nan-kin for her baggage. Her ving help was more to us than a hired nurse uld possibly have been expected to be, all the y to England. and her remarkable freedom m sea-sickness showed us how He who promised lovingly fulfilled every need. We were perfect rangers to all on board, but when we reached okohama ite unsought by us, instead of steerage for ich only we had paid. He who knew our ak state saw the need and supplied it. We had with us not a single letter of introduction, but met with much kind help, such as we needed, from those whose names we had not even known before.

A FIRST-CLASS CABIN WAS GIVEN TO US,

More than one year was spent in England, when we were more than usually cast upon God as to our temporal supplies, but our Father never once failed to supply our need. I will here mention only one occasion occurring in England. Our beloved director, Mr. J. H. Taylor, was in China. My dear wife and I felt it was time for us to return to the heathen field, but two medical gentlemen differed in opinion as to her health being sufficiently good to return. What could we do? God must decide the matter. So we asked Him, if it were his will for us to return to China, to send us the money for our passages, &c., apart from ordinary Mission funds (of the China Inland Mission). This we kept to ourselves and our Lord. In a very short time a lady, whom I had met only once, wrote asking me if there were no persons wishing to go out to China, and also if I would go and preach in her Iron Room. I went to her house and stayed for a few days preaching. One day she asked me how many wanted to go; I said, "Five of us," for I knew of three others who wished to accompany us. She then said, "I will give you one hundred pounds, which will pay for two of them." Having thanked the good lady I went to my room and thanked God, asking Him for the rest of the needed money. When I returned downstairs Mrs. —— said to me, "I shall like to give you another one hundred pounds, and that will pay for four." I returned home and there found that a present awaited me of forty pounds (very largely composed of a collection of small sums from a number of very humble Christians, and twenty pounds from one with whom I had had the privilege of being an under-labourer in the Word). This made our way clear to return to China in the autumn of 1873. We should have liked to return to work in our previous sphere, where precious souls had been led to the Saviour, and some of whom we dearly loved; but it was otherwise ordered. Some personal accounts of these and later converts may perhaps be given another time, if God will.

A GOD NEAR AT HAND.

We were now posted in Nan-kin, that great southern capital of China, where, in the one year we remained, only one soul was baptized, who afterwards proved of great value. We thence removed, with our director, Mr. Taylor, to Wu-chang, to commence work in the farther West of China. Here we were greatly helped in some severe straits by the kindness of some of the Wesleyan, and some of the American Episcopal Mission, far more so than they could themselves be aware of. While in Wu-chang, a circumstance occurred to a dear brother, now in heaven, M— H—— T——, which is never likely to be published unless I do it now. He had gone from us to pioneer in Honan province, where hitherto no Protestant missionary had ever settled. He succeeded in getting a small house in one of the cities, but found that the hostility of the officials and others was far more severe than he had anticipated. Every possible means, short of actual violence, was tried to get him out of the place, until at last the rulers put out a notice forbidding the people to sell food to a foreigner, hoping our brother would be starved out. His native assistant was far absent, yet God was at hand—his only near Friend within a hundred miles. His small stock of food gradually diminished, until he had almost nothing, when he heard at the back of the house someone trying to force open the shutters. Could it be robbers, or what? He went to see, and finding a man attempting to enter alone, was going to push him back. The man, however, looked friendly, and beckoned him to be quiet. M. H. T. then let him in, whereupon the man unfolded one of his garments, and turned out several cakes of Chinese bread, and quietly departed. This the strange visitor did several days, until the native Christian helper returned with money from Wu-chang, and our brother was able to depart. The God who fed Elijah could still send a heathen man to feed his servant alone among enemies.

After some little work had been done, and souls saved in Wu-chang, my brother-in-law, Mr. J. F. Broumton, and I started on January 2, 1877, with two native Christians, for

THE PROVINCE OF KWEI-CHOW.

In a few days we reached the province of Hu-nan, long known for its hostility to Europeans. We made but a brief stay at the city of Yoh-chow, where I had formerly been driven out with some violence, and then passed on to Longiang-hsien, crossing the great Tong-ting Lake, and to Chang-teh-fu, a great city. We preached the Gospel at almost every place we came to on our route of about six weeks through this extensive and beautiful province.

The beautiful mountains, the dangerous but grand rapids up which we passed, and much that was lovely and romantic—is not in my purpose now to describe. About a year before this time, this route had been taken by Mr. Margery, who, although he had a Pekin passport, yet experienced great difficulty in passing through some of these Hu-nan cities. In at least two of the towns where he was mobbed, we, in our native dress, were able to preach unmolested to good audiences on the streets. Mr. Margery was murdered in Yun-nan shortly after his conversion to God while passing through China; and I know of nothing for many years which so opened China to missionary work as the results following

THE MURDER OF THIS GOOD MAN.

As we approached the city of Chin-üain-hsien we feared trouble, for it was here that the people had dragged ashore Mr. Margery's boat and burnt it, although he escaped unhurt. Some Romish missionaries had gone ten days out of their way, we were told, to avoid this city. However, like Jacob of old, we planned and prayed, in order to pass quietly through if possible. Our baggage we sent on first, then my brother-in-law and myself followed a little further in the rear. At the city gate our baggage was stopped, and the keeper demanded whose it was. "A foreigner's," was the reply. "Then we must see him," said the gate-keepers; and Mr. Broumton, who was so like a Chinaman that they did not recognise him, sat waiting till I, the evident foreigner, arrived; and, to our joy, we were allowed to pass on, after a very brief stay in the street, in perfect peace. Only those who have passed through that place can fully take in the value of such a passing through quietly.

Beyond this we passed through the most enchanting scenery I ever saw—mountains clothed with pine forests, every leaf of which was covered with ice, like a coat of mail, all sparkling in the occasional sunlight, and here and there great trees breaking down with a crash under their load of ice. Clouds floated in the precipice below, hiding at times the lower ground from view. As the sun went down we wended our way towards a village yet hidden by the trees, led on by twelve coolies—perfect strangers to us—on a road of which we knew absolutely nothing. We felt how easily the coolies could have made away with us and taken all we had, but for the God whose we are and whom we serve. We entered a little cottage, where a fire was burning on the midst of the floor, but without any chimney or window save the door. We took off our shoes and socks, which were saturated and frozen, melted them, and, having washed our sore feet and eaten our supper of very coarse but welcome food, lay down on some boards, and slept soundly under which He said we should "dwell among the heathen."

"UNDER HIS SHADOW,"

The next few days we passed through a country, open and wild, infested with robbers; almost every traveller we met was armed with sword or gun but of course we had none. Arriving one night at a lonely little stopping-place on the hills, we stayed at an inn, the walls of which were simply a few rough stakes, with grass filling up the spaces, and a thatched roof. No other place was to be had. We could easily see through every wall. Before we lay down to sleep we were cautioned to be on the look out; for the soldiers placed near to guard the roads from robbers were said themselves to frequently rob passengers in that neighbourhood. We at first lay down in our clothing for fear we might have suddenly to arise in the night. Presently the word of God came to me as a living voice: "I will lay me down in peace, and sleep; for thou, Lord, only makest me dwell in safety." I was so ashamed of my fears that I got up, took off my clothing, and, lying down in my nightdress, slept soundly. As soon as I awoke the words came to my mind, "I laid me down and slept; I awaked, for the Lord sustained me." We passed on our lovely but somewhat dangerous journey for the next few days in quietness and safety. Sometimes our feet were very sore, and our meals at times only poor rice and radishes; but we were kept well and strong until we reached the capital of Kwe-chow province. Here we were greatly helped by General Mesney, in the employ of the Chinese army, in getting a place to commence mission work—the first Protestant mission station in the south-west of China.

In a few days I left Mr. Broumton, my brother-in-law, in Kwe-chow, myself to return with a native Christian servant, by way of Sze-chuan province, back again to my station in Hu-peh. The first twelve days' journey, across rich plains, mountains, ravines, rivers, &c., gave little for my present purpose of writing. Romantic it was, but I write now for another purpose. Reaching Chong-king, that busy commercial city of Sze-chuan, I took a small boat to travel down that great and beautiful river, the Yang-tsze-kiang, to Wu-chang. There was just room for myself and servant to lie in the middle of the boat at night, and the boatman, his helper, and two boys in the ends of the boat. We had passed about about two days down the river, when, staying early one morning at a village on the bank, to buy food, I preached and sold some books to the crowds gathered there—for it was a market day. Thankful to God for the good time of preaching, we had left the place, and got about half-an-hour's row down the rapid river, when we heard voices shouting angrily for us to stop and go back. Looking back we saw two boats full of men, about eight or ten, in full chase. We hastened on, but soon found ourselves overtaken. They took our boat and tied it to the shore, when a long parley took place. They demanded that we should return, saying we were Romanists, and they were determined to exterminate all Roman Catholics. I showed my books and papers, proving that I was not a Romanist. This did not satisfy, but they demanded my return, promising that if their head man found me all right he would pay for my loss of time. Seeing that resistance was useless, I agreed to return on their last promise, which nevertheless I knew was only a lie. They then came on to my boat, one man sitting beside me with a drawn sword, about six others with guns and spears in front of me. My first feeling, on seeing this, was to seize a piece of wood and knock some of them into the river; but this would have been neither good nor wise. The Lord alone could now help. It must have taken two hours to row back again up the stream to the village; during this time I began to question them as to what they meant by such conduct, and what they were going to do. I was soon answered by a man pointing his gun in my face, and saying

HE WOULD KILL ME IF I SAID ANY MORE.

So I became obediently quiet for the rest of the way.

Arriving at the village, my boat was tied to a rock, and I was desired to go ashore. This I refused to do, as my servant had hinted to me that if I did so I should not be able to come back, and my only human hope of escape was by the water. They allowed my native servant liberty, so he went ashore, and while there inquired from the market-people what those men were going to do with that foreigner. They said, "Keep him until dark, and then, when the market-people are gone away, kill him." The man returned to the boat with a sad face. I looked at him in an inquiring manner, not daring to converse while the man with the sword sat beside me. My man looked at me, and said, "The same as Mr. Margery." (Mr. M. had been murdered about a year before, but these people did not know it.) I felt this was my death warrant; but God was with me, and kept me in peace, yet not without a great desire to see my family once more. I looked to Him; He had promised to supply all my need, but for aught I knew that need was then grace to depart.

The time seemed to go very slowly. At last my sentinel left me, and sat for a brief space at the other end of the boat. I asked the boatman then to go up to the next city and tell the mandarin of my position. He refused to go at any price, and I had soon reason to suspect he had become an accomplice. I then urged my servant to go, who at first refused; but I told him that it might at least save his life, and if I were killed he would know what had become of me. So I gave him a piece of silver, with my passport, and he started. I afterwards learned that had he reached the next city the mandarins certainly would not then have helped us. He had only gone about two hundred yards up the river bank, when, to my dismay, I saw them seize him and bring him back. My last human hope was gone, but I looked to Jesus, my Shield. No sooner did he reach the boat than all the armed men, as if seized by some panic, at once fled—why, I never yet knew, save that God made them afraid—and I myself began to breathe freely. But our danger was not all over. Some other men came on board, as far as I could see, unarmed, saying they would escort us down to the next village. Against this I protested, but in vain.

They transferred my boatmen to their boat, and they took possession of me and my boat. On reaching the next village they said they must take my boatman and servant on shore. Having reason to believe that now they wanted to get over my servant to their plot, as well as the boatman, and seeing I could not resist their taking them, I hinted to my man to be as quickly back as he could. It was not long before I saw him running down the hill back again, having escaped from the others. Immediately he was on board we sent the boatman's son ashore, with word to his father to meet us at the next city, eighteen miles down the river; and my servant and I pulled away, with the one man, as hard as we could at the oars, passing in the darkness of night over several rapids in the river, preferring to trust the Lord to keep our boat safe through the dangers of the river rather than fall into the hands of those ruffians again.

We reached the next town in safety, and, joined by our boatman next morning, were thankful for our Father's deliverance. We passed the next few hundred miles in safety, but not without some few other perils ere we reached home. While speaking of "perils of robbers," I may mention a somewhat singular instance which occurred to us a few years before, while in Yang-chow city. One morning when my wife awoke, she remarked to me that she had had a most unpleasant dream about some robbers getting into the house. After breakfast our Chinese teacher arrived, and, calling me aside, asked if I knew what had happened in the night; and then told me that about a dozen or more robbers had been seen in the night by a city watchman, all armed, and preparing to enter our house through a back window. The watchman went for a small guard of soldiers, who caught several of them before they had succeeded in entering our window, and their heads were soon seen hanging on nails over the city gate. A few days previous a magistate's place had been robbed; hence, when these men attempted our house and were taken their speedy decapitation, without our having any voice in their guilt or pardon. Nevertheless we rejoiced, that He who keepeth Israel neither slumbers nor sleeps, and had kept us safely, with only a hint of our danger.

The foregoing is written in the hope of helping the faith of many who have recently started to labour among "China's Millions," and of stirring up many to believing, earnest prayer for them and us.

CHAS. H. JUDD.

STRANGERS IN LONDON.

AT the instance of Mr. Quintin Hogg, the President of the Polytechnic Institute, a conference was held last Friday, at No. 5, Cavendish square, W., to consider the question of the reception of young men and women on their arrival in London from the provinces. In the absence of Mr. Hogg, caused by an accident, the Hon. T. H. W. PELHAM presided, and called on Mr. A. ROBERTSON, of the Caledonian Christian Club, to make a statement. Since it was established, on December 9, 1887, Mr. Robertson said the club had succeeded in providing the comforts of a home and good religious influences for young Scotsmen on their first coming to the metropolis. Latterly it was deemed proper to admit young men from any part of the British Isles to the same privileges. Now it has been considered necessary, in conjunction with the Reception Bureau of the Polytechnic and Young Men's Christian Associations, to enlarge the accommodation of the club, and impart to it a more cosmopolitan character, but retaining its former essential features.

Archdeacon SINCLAIR expressed his deep interest in what would tend to keep up for the young men arriving in London the continuity of their early religious associations. His experience and observation had convinced him of the expediency of instituting such a means to that end as has been proposed.

Dr. MONRO GIBSON approved of the Reception Home. There was nothing precisely like it. Residence in it was not intended to be permanent but temporary. It was important that safeguards should be thrown around those who came alone to a great city, and he trusted that the churches in England would take the same interest in their home as those in Scotland had done through the exertions of Mr. Robertson.

Canon LEIGH urged the wide advertising of the existence of the reception agency, and describing how that could be done. He moved a resolution which was seconded by Rev. Dr. MCGAW, that, "In order to render the work of the Reception Home effective, it is thought desirable that a representative committee should be formed, embracing all the Christian churches, and that adequate provision should be made to accommodate (temporarily) the fresh arrivals coming to London and to continue their church connection by introduction to their respective churches." In accordance with the resolution, the following names were added to the committee:—Archdeacon Sinclair, Dr. Monro Gibson, Rev. A. Jeakes, Mr. Osborn, Rev. Z. B. Woffendale, Mr. Clark, Dr. MacRae, Mr. E. Gibb, Rev. J. Wilson, Major Swanson, Rev. L. S. Bond, Hon. Mr. Kinnaird, and Miss Morley.

RESCUE WORK IN NORTH LONDON

THE work that has been so successfully carried on at Alpha House, 43, Hanley-road, London, N. for the past seven years is in great need of help. It is by no means a local work. The cases brought under our notice come from all parts of England, some even from Germany. Our vigilance and rescue work go together, but the necessity they involve expense. According to the last report published, eighty women were housed for various periods from one to six months. Two occupiers of notoriously bad houses were successfully prosecuted and the houses were closed. Every deserving case that has come under our notice from whatever part of the land, has received prompt attention. This has landed the committee in a debt of £50. However much they may wish to continue their useful labours, the want of funds cripples their hands. Alpha House is quite full of many deserving cases of women and girls, and every case has our prompt attention.

T. FISHER.

ROME RULE IN MALTA.

Which Sovereign rules in Malta—Queen or pe? - is a question that may well be asked in w of the recent action taken by the Legisla- e Council in that island, as embodied in the aft Ordinance now under consideration in at Assembly. On June 17, 1890, Sir James rgusson gave an assurance that, in any legis- ion that might be prop sed for settling ques- ns as to the validity of marriages in Malta, he intention of the Government was that Pro- tants should not be placed in any worse posi- n than they had hitherto enjoyed." But by the dinance now proposed the union of a Protestant th a Roman Catholic in Malta is to be pro- unced invalid, unless celebrated by a Romish iest, and in the form prescribed by Papal Law. If lebrated according to British Law the marriage to be held to be null and void, the children of ch marriage to be considered illegitimate, and ereby incapable of inheriting their father's operty.

More than this, the proposed Ordinance inter- es with and invalidates the marriage of Protes- nts with one another if contracted contrary to e degrees of affinity, or other impediments claimed by the Canon Law.

The Protestant Alliance has done good service directing public attention to this overt con- ssion to the Papacy; but we find it stated in a altese newspaper, Public Opinion, of the 4th inst., at "the rules laid down by His Holiness as the validity of marriages, not only between tholics, but between Catholics and non- tholics, as well as between Protestants, re formally and publicly accepted by Her jesty's Minister Plenipotentiary and Envoy traordinary, by his legal adviser, the Crown dvocate to the Malta Government, as well as Her Majesty's Government in Her Majesty's me; and both General Sir Lintorn Simmons d Dr. J. Carbone have been rewarded for the rvices rendered to Her Majesty's Government connection with the Mission. General Sim- ns has been elevated to the dignity of Field rshal, the highest to which a soldier can pire; whilst the Crown Advocate has been omoted to be Knight Commander of the most stinguished Order of St. Michael and St. orge."

This journal refers to the rumours that Her jesty's Government had intended "to back t of the solemn treaty entered into with His oliness, the head of the Catholic Church, a eaty concluded at the suggestion of Count rickland," the Governor of Malta, and states at these rumours "are now proved to be with- t any foundation whatsoever. For if Her ajesty's Government had been contrary to y of the provisions of that Ordinance, e Chief Secretary and the Crown Advocate, o are known to be under the immediate order the Secretary of State (Lord Knutsford), uld not have allowed the Ordinance to be roduced, to be read the first time and printed, d to be read the second time, without entering rotest, without giving any reason, good, bad, indifferent, against the passing of that dinance."

This Ordinance now awaits a third reading in e Legis'ative Council of Malta; but we trust that e it is ratified by the Crown and becomes law, indignant expression of public opinion may in- ce Her Majesty's Ministers to consider what miliation such legislation will bring to Protes- nt England, and what a monstrous perversion justice will be effected thereby.

Rome and the Bible.

In her latest Letter from Spain, Mrs. Rodriguez kes the following instructive statement:—

When in England last year, holding meetings behalf of the mission, some who know but ttle of the Church of Rome could hardly credit r statements of her character and lines of ion. 'Such things belong to the Dark Ages; ey do not happen nowadays,' was the frequent mment. The following fact proves that Rome's otto 'unchangeable' is but too true. Her ted to the Word of God is as bitter as ever. a week or two ago, a case of Scriptures was rnt in the Custom House in Barcelona sent to in 1885, since which time it had been un- stly detained by the authorities. A few of e books were, however, rescued—viz., five large bles, five small ones, and ninety gospels. The ws reached us here, and the pastor at once nt to Barcelona and purchased them all."

FOR RIGHTEOUSNESS' SAKE.

Miss Fuller, Carril, Pontevedra, writes on June 10th:—

I need the most earnest prayer of my friends just now, for it seems as though my feet were set in slippery places. The priest has twice lately denounced me from the pulpit, and for- bidden the people to come to our meetings; but there are few days when one or two do not come to me with some bodily ailment. The priest seems determined to put a stop to this if he can. He has stirred up the doctors, and one night last week the doctors here and in the next village met together to see what could be done to stop the people coming to me. That not being pos- sible, they concluded to find me guilty of break- ing the laws, and sent one of their number to inform me so.

I asked, "What have I done? Is any one the worse for anything I have given them, or for what I have done for them?" "Oh, that is just the point. You have the fame of curing everyone who comes to you." I said, "I have not done anything wonderful. I have only a few simple remedies, and as to wounds and sores, you know the doctors here never dress them, but give a prescription." Miss Fuller reminded the doctor that his own wife had come to her with her hand terribly scalded with boiling oil, and that it had been healed. The doctor said, "I do thank you for that which you have done for my wife; nevertheless, I must tell you that it is against the laws of our land. If you were to see a man bleeding to death on the road, and made a rough bandage and stopped the bleeding (which I expect you would do), you would be infringing the laws of our land."

Miss Fuller adds:—I know the doctors are watching me, and if I should make any mistake, or any one should fancy I had done them any harm, they will doubtless do all in their power against me; but I go on praying every step, and if it ends in my being imprisoned, the Lord will give me grace to sing there, as greater servants of his have done before. The English Consul here is a Spaniard, and if I were to call on him he would probably favour his own countrymen. But my trust is in One who "doeth all things well."

Since I began writing, six different persons, two from quite a way off, have come to me, and though I could do little for their bodily ailments, I never had more earnest listeners to the Gospel.

THE PRESENT CRISIS IN THEOLOGY.

An old correspondent sends us the following from "The Song of Songs Unveiled," published in 1859, by B. Weiss, a Christian Jew, and a pro- found Hebrew scholar:—"We shall waste neither time nor thought in hunting those little German foxes that spoil the gardens in these rationalistic days—those secret agents of semi-infidelity, who, with their dark lanterns, stealthily enter or break into the Holy Place, lay hold on the sacred vessels of the Spirit, and presumptuously examine his right to the possession of them—daring to dis- pute the authenticity of the names of the sacred writers prefixed to books known as canonical and acknowledged as such during thousands of years, both by Jew and Gentile, and by thousands of far abler and more competent critics than modern rationalists, and by millions of enlightened and sanctified children of God, who have found in these, in their blessed experience, the internal evidence of their Divine authority. We only deplore their daring, their sacrilege, their blind- ness, their wanderings in a wilderness of dark- ness, and the lamentable consequences to them- selves and those whom their poison infects and destroys. The more we examine their stores the more we find them full of chaff and stubble, the more we see that their webs are those of the spider, strong enough to entangle flies but nothing more, and the more we discern their re- semblance to those clever Cossacks on the bor- ders of Russia, who, though unable to read or write, always find some faults and irregularities in the best of passports."

IRELAND.—A most success-ful series of Gospel services, at which many have been led to decision for Christ, has just been held at the Methodist Church, Cloughjordan, co. Tipperary, by Rev. J. B. Atkins.

EURASIAN CHILDREN IN INDIA.

England maintains a garrison of over eighty thousand troops in the East, and the mixed race now rising in India, and left destitute in the Bazaars to grow up in every sort and kind of vice, is an awful problem which we have no sufficient means to grapple with in this country. The Eurasian is usually looked down upon by both races; he is seldom cared for in his childhood; he grows up in his vice and ignorance, and actually boasts of the little European blood he has in his veins. He will not stoop to work as a native, but he is not at all ashamed to beg!

Endeavours have from time to time been made to rescue him from his surroundings and give him a fair start in life. I would particularly mention Miss Anstey's Home for these children at this station. Miss Anstey is well-known for the good work she did at Kolar, and now she has opened a home for the Eurasians here, which has been only eight months in existence, and provides for sixty girls and thirty boys. The American Mission have lent her the use of the buildings in their Compound, and the girls are now accommodated in the old church. The new church is used for a school-room, and the boys sleep in the Parsonage. The children are thus kept quite separate under the care of respectable matrons. Boys are not taken in after twelve years of age, but girls are received from one to fifteen years of age. They are all taught to read, write, and cipher, and carefully instructed in the Bible. One child of eight, when taken into the home, could not even speak English, but now, through the kind care and attention of the head teachers, Miss Phoebe Davies and Miss Coles, this poor child reads well. A drill sergeant attends the school regu- larly, so that Miss Anstey has already done great things for this miserable population.

But the work is getting beyond her private resources, and as England is responsible for the existence of these outcasts, I trust you will endeavour to get her all the assistance you can from home, in money, clothes, &c. I am a fre- quent visitor at this orphanage, and gladly testify that the children are well cared for, trained, and fed and clothed. The numbers are increasing so fast that Miss Anstey and her head matron, Mrs. Leigh, are unable to meet all the demands made upon them. We must remember that this destitution exists amongst thousands of these poor children.

We have no hope of being able to assist Miss Anstey in this country. The caste prejudices of the natives prevent their doing anything at all for such a population. The European population is always changing from one station to another, or leaving the country altogether, and, alas! forgetting the sin and misery they leave behind them.

Under British rule the native population of India has increased enormously, and has far out- grown the food-supplying capacity of the country, hence the frequency with which famines recur nowadays, and the chronic fear and dread of these scourges in which the whole population exists. Under such circumstances it is too much to expect that the ordinary native will have any sympathy with a race they despise.

Miss Anstey has done and is doing a noble work for her Master, but, unless she is helped at once by Christian friends at home, I fear there is no chance of her being able to continue her work. In fact, she is now in the greatest want and dis- tress. The season has been a remarkably un- favourable one, and we do not know if we have yet been spared from another famine. I would, therefore, earnestly solicit Christian friends at home to send Miss Anstey all the assistance they possibly can, and as soon as possible.—Your obedient servant,

John F. Fischer, General R.E.

Bangalore, India, May 24.

THE PHILO-JUDEAN SOCIETY has been quietly working, since 1827, among poor Jewesses in the East-end. A Bible and sewing class is held for Hebrew women on Tuesday afternoons in the Vic- toria Hall, Commercial-street, Whitechapel. Work is provided and sold to the mothers; also sixpence is given to each woman for two hours' sewing. About seventy women attend every week, joining in the singing of Sankey's hymns, and listening earnestly to the reading and explaining of the Word of God. A Bible-woman is employed to visit in the homes of these Jewish mothers. Many of the old friends of the Society have died, and among those who are specially missed is the Dowager Countess of Cavan. The hon. treasurer is Mrs. Orchard, 44, Denning- road, Hampstead, N.

MISSION TO THE KHONDS.

The Mission commenced about two and a-half years ago by Messrs. Wilkinson and Long is making satisfactory progress. Mr. and Mrs. Long are fairly established at Russelkonda; and Mr. Wilkinson at Udayagiri, Ganjam. By letters recently received from the latter, it appears that the missionaries are in good health; attacks of fever having been slighter this year than last. Preparatory work has necessarily occupied a large portion of their time; house building and repairing and well-sinking, in addition to the acquisition of the Khond language. This, we are told, it is difficult to learn, so as to acquire a ready speech.

Mr. Wilkinson has just completed a translation of the Gospel of Mark, and has made application to the Madras Bible Society to print it. He is desirous of opening schools in different centres, and hopes soon to be able to employ an earnest native evangelist as teacher and preacher, at a salary of ten pounds. The people are fond of singing, and simple Gospel hymns are to be rendered into Khond. In evangelising among the villages, he finds the people always willing to listen, but very slow to comprehend spiritual truth. They are accustomed to sacrifice goats and fowls upon any emergency, and cannot understand how the One sacrifice once offered can be enough. Notwithstanding the simple, affectionate nature of the Khonds, their ready appreciation of kindness, and their willingness to learn, it is not easy to convince them of sin.

Many grievous sins are not regarded by them as wrong, and they have no word to express sin as a transgression of God's law. Having no religious books and no religious teaching, they have no idea of obedience or disobedience to God's commands. Praise, prayer, thankfulness, being all unknown to them, the idea of doing worship by itself, that is without sacrificing goats, pigs, or fowls, seems strange to them. "The older people seem conscious of their dulness, and say: 'We are Khonds, and have always done as we do now. No one taught us. But take our children and teach them, and they will do as you say.' It is hard to get the people to believe that the Gospel is really for Khonds, and that the Son of God came to die for them." Mr. Wilkinson is anxious for a place which will answer for both chapel and school. To build this will cost about £10. Mr. W. T. Long, 461, Bethnal-green-road, is Hon. Sec. of the Mission.

LIGHT ON THE CONGO.

I wrote you some time ago of a visit paid by Mr. Whytock and myself to the back towns of the "Mongo People." I had the pleasure of visiting them again on March 13. They were delighted with our former visit, and gathered around me to hear again the old, old story of Jesus.

Poor simple people, how they listen! They often repeated sentences so as to be sure they had it right. God's gift of his Son does not seem to interest them so much. But the loving life He lived, his death, his resurrection, and his coming again is ever welcome, and many a dear soul looks on with amazement. I visited Eciko, Bokala, Bongaudanga; I had six services, and I believe a day of much blessing.

We have had six lads baptized here; they are living holy lives, and of their own accord go to the towns and testify of God's saving power. Many more are longing to be baptized, but we must be a little cautious. We have also ten inquirers. I am alone here now, as Brother Whytock has gone home.

We have two services every day, and school in the afternoon. On Sundays we commence with a prayer-meeting at 6.30 a.m., and have about thirty present. Other meetings follow, and visits to various places. I feel it is really grand to work for God in this dark country. I would be nowhere else. I love Africa, and had I a thousand lives they should all be spent here.

This part of Africa is opening up. Yet there are many towns around us which have not yet been visited. In going to the different towns I have always had a large number to speak to. While many an aged sinner passes the house of God at home, crowds are anxious here. Of course, we meet with things to discourage us.

One Sunday Mr. Whytock and I went to town and spoke of Jesus. On our way home we thought we would speak to a few women who were preparing the evening meal. Very little attention was seemingly paid, and we came home thinking the second service was lost. The following week I had occasion to go to Bonginda. On the way we called at Bokakata. I told them of Jesus, and to my surprise I saw among the listeners one of the women to whom we preached the previous Sunday. After I had finished speaking, she told the people all Brother Whytock had been saying the Sunday before as clearly as he could himself! So, when we think our services lost, God fulfils his word, "It shall not return to Me void"

A dear lad came to me the other day and said he wanted to love Jesus. We talked, and he said he wished to do right. In the evening he went to town, and his father wanted him to strike a small lad. He obeyed his father and struck the lad. He afterwards came and told me all about it, saying he felt he had done wrong. I told him he was to go and ask the other boy to forgive him, and then to ask Jesus to forgive him. To my surprise he brought the other boy to the house, and, without saying anything, took the hand of the other lad into his. They both knelt down and he prayed, asking God to forgive him. Then he asked the little lad to forgive him. As I witnessed this I felt that a work of grace had truly commenced in one heart, and I inwardly thanked God and wept.

I should like to form a small library for our station. Any good books will be lovingly accepted.—Yours faithfully,

John R. Fellery.

Ikau Station, Congo-Balolo Mission, Gulanjo River, Central Africa.

SHIPWRECKED FISHERMEN AND MARINERS.

Great Britain, as the chief maritime nation of the world, has to record the largest number of losses and casualties along the coast and at sea. As in all the former years of its existence, the Shipwrecked Fishermen and Mariners' Royal Benevolent Society responded last year nobly and promptly to the demands made upon it, by means of its central office in London and its one thousand local honorary agencies. There were relieved 6236 persons distressed through shipwreck, and under all heads of its benevolent work a grand total of 11,647, at an expenditure of £25,660. It is satisfactory to observe that the contributions are keeping pace with the demands upon this noble charity, and that there is every probability that gratitude for what the whole people owe to the British sailor will ensure an adequate income in the future.

The annual meeting of the Society was held in the Sailors' Home, Dock-street, London, E., and was presided over by Admiral Egerton, who was supported by a large number of gentlemen of eminence in the Royal Navy or in the mercantile marine. Every seat in the hall was occupied. The speech of the chairman was brief, seamanlike, and sympathetic. He called attention to the arrangements made for meeting distress instantly where it occurs; cautioned the public against giving money, without careful inquiry, to alleged sufferers from loss at sea; congratulated the Society on its gaining strength and confidence year by year; and urged his fellow-sailors to practise thrift and sobriety.

Captain Mainland, of the Finance Committee, said that he could speak from personal knowledge of the economical management of the funds of the Society, but he would have the expenditure for benevolence larger if the income would bear it. Rear-Admiral Brine thanked the ladies warmly for their exertions on behalf of the sailor, and advised all sailors to become members of the Society. Admiral Sir Houston Stuart spoke of the thoroughness with which the members of committee attended to their duties, and their solicitude for the welfare of the sailors.

Among others who delivered brief addresses were Rear-Admiral Beamish, Mr. M. S. S. Dipnall, Admiral de Kantzow, Captain Holdsworth, Rev. E. Bray, Canon Stevens, Admiral Sir Edward Inglefield, Captain Crawford Pasco, and Captain Pitman.

MISSIONS TO SEAMEN.—Lord Brassey has given the sum of £5000 towards the provision, for the port of London, of a block of buildings, to consist of a Missions to Seamen Church, with institute, gymnasium, adult schoolroom, class-rooms, and coffee bar, &c., for the free use of sailors and fishermen of all nationalities. Four other seamen's institutes will involve the Society in a total outlay of £30,000, which will, it is hoped, soon be raised. A further sum of £3000 a year is required for the maintenance of the proposed buildings and staff.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH LIFE.

At the annual conference at Stourbridge, a few days ago, of ministers and delegates of the Congregational churches in the counties of Stafford, Worcester, and Warwick, Rev. J. F. T. Hallowes read a paper on "Congregational Church Life: What it is and what it might be.

He held: (1) We need to cultivate a more spiritual life in the individual and in the family. The foundation of the collective life of the church is personal life of the individual member. (2) We must endeavour to develop a greater spirit of fellowship among our members. This is difficult in large churches; but it is the caste spirit which prevails in some churches which constitutes a far more formidable barrier to fellowship than their size. Persistently we must teach that men cannot hold "the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ with respect to persons." (3) Our church life would have greater intensity if we laid greater stress on the ordinary services as aids to Christian devotion. The attitude of some worshippers in the house of God is often suggestive of irreverence rather than devotion. (4) Ought we not to allow greater liberty of prophesying? Would it not be a helpful addition to the ministry of the pastor if some of the members, who have the personal gifts or grace, with the confidence of their brethren, were encouraged to open their lips in exposition and testimony?

For the further development of our gifts and graces, (5) Bible-reading and Christian Endeavour Societies might be profitably multiplied among us. This is necessary because people do not sufficiently read and study the Bible in private, partly through the pressure of business and partly through the competing claims of other literature. (6) The church meeting and the prayer-meeting are not in a very satisfactory state. The former ought to be restored to its true place and dignity; but this cannot be as long as it is simply an addendum to the week-night service. The prayer-meeting ought to be revived, for no church can afford to give up the prayer-meeting or allow of its enfeeblement. (7) Both our needs and the times demand that Christian women should have a prominent position in our churches. (8) Missions might be made a helpful stimulus to church life.

Among our numerous needs few are greater than that of (9) cultivating congregational altruism in the place of congregational individualism. To save ourselves, and to save England we must take more interest in our village churches, for the battle of the Reformation will have to be fought over again in the villages and the Free Churches are the true bulwark against priestly aggressiveness and counterfeit Romanism. On all these points Mr. Hallowes enlarged with considerable emphasis, especially under the head relating to the necessity of cultivating and encouraging the missionary spirit. Finally, he concluded, our greatest and most comprehensive need, as ministers and people, is to be filled with the Spirit of God.

WORKING LADS IN GREENWICH.

The Committee of the West Greenwich Ragged School is in the happy possession of a fine new building of modern type in which to carry on their operations. Besides the religious and social work among the children, there is a Working Lads' Institute, to which much attention has been given. The results are most promising, lads are attracted over a wide area, and the membership is nearly two hundred. For them a Bible class is held every Sunday; while every week night the social and reading-rooms and the gymnasium are open. A fine spirit of emulation is created by annual prizes, provided by friends in Blackheath, for athletics, swimming, and music.

A Bible woman is engaged daily in visiting the homes of the children, and many doors are opened to her friendly knocking. The children in regular attendance number 220.

The annual meeting was held on the 11th inst. at No. 1, Aberdeen-terrace, Blackheath, by the kind permission of Mr. and Mrs. Young, and was attended by numerous friends. The report submitted by Mr R. McClure (secretary) was of a most encouraging nature. Addresses were given by Sir Thomas Crawford, Mr. H. Hatch, President of the Greenwich Y.M.C.A., and Mr. John Kirk, of the Ragged School Union. The meeting gave a hearty response to a resolution that the work should continue to be vigorously prosecuted

For the Young.

THE SEA.

BY REV. JOHN MITCHELL.

Those who live near the coast think it strange hear of people who have never looked upon the . But multitudes in our country have never n it. Many live and die without ever having t their eyes upon the great ocean. Whether have seen it or not, we have all heard of it, d may try to understand its language, for it aks to us continually.

I.—The sea speaks of God. "The sea is his, d He made it." True, he made the earth also, t man makes so many changes upon it by gging and building that the beauty of God's rk is marred, and then so much of man's ings causes us to think of human skill and to get God. But the sea cannot be built upon, r can its channels be emptied to allow man lay railroads and to build bridges. We can erefore look on the sea as God made it and as rules it.

It speaks to us of his mighty power. Only God n say, "Hitherto shalt thou come, but no ther." Napoleon Bonaparte once went t in a storm, and as the waves tossed his tle barque on the angry billows, he cried t, "Oh! this sea! this sea! it rebels against r power, but it may be conquered." Just then great wave struck his boat and drove it back the shore. And so the would-be conqueror s conquered. The sea had no more respect an emperor than for any other man. How ferent when Christ was on the earth! Once, en the sea was lashed into fury and beyond all man control, the disciples—who, with Christ, re in a little boat—were greatly afraid, and oke the sleeping Saviour. He arose and spoke the sea, and instantly there was a great calm. e sea knew the voice of its God and obeyed m. Would that we were all as obedient to m as the sea and the storm were! Many a uble and many a sorrow would we save ourves if we always obeyed Him.

The sea tells us of God's wonderful ways of rking. That the water may be kept from vering the land it is necessary that there uld be a wall of some kind to keep it within unds. The wall that serves this purpose is e sand. These minute grains of sand keep the off the land while the great strong rocks are ng gradually washed away, and the sea gain- on the land. And so we find that wherever id is, the sea is driven farther and farther ay from the shore; but where the rocks are e sea is stealing in upon us. God often uses ble things to accomplish his greatest works. ly man despises that which is small. And remember how, when children came to Jesus, e disciples drove them away just because they re so little. But Jesus rebuked the disciples, d called the children unto Him and laid his nds on them and ble sed them.

The sea speaks of God's wonderful works. riners tell us of the many strange sights away t on the ocean. Some parts of the waters m all aglow with living fire, other parts appear be of different colours. Queer-looking fish e constantly seen, and curious shells found on e shore. And there are many other wonders be seen, which they can best tell us of when meet them.

The sea speaks to us of God's great goodness. e rain that falls to refresh the earth, and the ter we drink, comes from the ocean after ving been purified in the air. And food also nes from the sea. Thousands of fishermen busy, day and night, catching fish that many ple may have their dinner and supper.

The sea carries away and covers much that uld bring sickness and death upon us if it re left on land. And this reminds us that d has promised to cast our sins behind his ck, and into the depths of the sea, if we come Him. Then they will never more be remem- red against us. But if we try to cover sin by y devices of our own, God shall one day sweep ay the covering and bring us into judgment.

II.—The sea speaks of man. Look at the sea a storm. See how it is tossed about by the pest! How angry and restless it seems! d says the wicked are like that. They are ke the troubled sea, when it cannot rest, whose ters cast up mire and dirt." On the hearts of unconverted are stamped these words, "No ." They may have every comfort for their es, but inwardly there is a storm. They know y are sinners, and are not at peace with God. They dare not think of death and judgment, because they are unprepared. Vainly they try to rest in the world's pleasures and occupations. How different it would be if they would listen to the voice of Jesus, which says, "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

III.—The sea speaks of resurrection. "The sea shall give up the dead which are in it." What a vast number of people lie buried in the sea! It is by far the largest cemetery in the world. Young and old, rich and poor, great and small are there. But the day is coming when the sea shall no longer conceal its dead, but shall yield them up to God for judgment. How will it be with us on that day when all shall appear before God? Only those whose names are written in the book of life can hope for favour. What of the others? "And whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire."

IV.—The sea speaks of Heaven. It is given us as one of the glories of Heaven that there shall be "no more sea." Those who love the sea may think that there is not much attraction in a land where there is no sea. But what we are to understand by Scripture is that no more will there be a sea with its storms to cause shipwreck and death. No more will there be a sea to separate loved friends from one another, and no more will there be seas of trouble and unrest.

There will be glories in heaven far greater than any of earth. We shall have everything there to satisfy us, and never can any one be disappointed.

> There no sin ever enters, nor sorrow;
> The inhabitants never grow old;
> But not half of the joys that await them
> To mortals has ever been told.

It is for us meanwhile to make sure that when we are done with this world, we shall enter that heavenly country where so many glories are reserved for all them who love the Lord Jesus.

LISTEN! LISTEN!

In the sunlight on the meadow,
In the silence of the dawn,
In the deep, deep forest shadow,
In the smiling of the corn,
God is speaking—Listen! listen!

In the ripple of the river,
In the sparkle of the dew,
In the dead leaves' mournful shiver,
In the calm of heaven's blue,
God is speaking—Listen! listen!

In the lily's matchless whiteness,
In the radiance of the rose,
In the daisy's meek-eyed brightness,
Where no other flower grows,
God is speaking—Listen! listen!

In the crested billows' motion,
In the waves' beat on the shore,
In the heavings of the ocean,
In the thunder's mighty roar,
God is speaking—Listen! listen!

In the noise and din of city,
In the laugh of childish glee,
In the voice that craves thy pity,
God is speaking unto thee,
God is speaking—Listen! listen!

Lucy Greeves.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. H. Hutchinson, Reading, June 25-26; Mr. J. S. Tyler, Birchington Bay, June 26-29; Mr. T. Lewes Sayer, St. Andrew's Hall, Upper Norwood, to June 24; Forest-hill, June 25; Romford, June 28; Kilburn Hall, July 3; Mr. A. G Dodderidge, Anerley, June 25. Guildford Convention, July 2 and 3.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sun., June 26, Luke v. 1-15; Mon., June 27, v. 16-26; Tues., June 28, v. 27-39; Wed., June 29, vi. 1-16; Thurs., June 30, vi. 17-34; Fri., July 1, vi., 35-49; Sat., July 2, vii. 1-17.

MINISTERING CHILDREN.—Rev. H. B. Macartney, jun., writes:—"The Ministering Children's League in the Colonies has received a great impulse from the recent visit of Lord and Lady Meath. With true nobility of character they went in and out among the Christian and philanthropic people of Hobart, Adelaide, Geelong, Melbourne, and Sydney, with the utmost simplicity and self-denying kindliness. It seems to me that the League, of which Lady Meath is herself the foundress, is capable of the most glorious and holy uses, if taken in inseparable connection with the study of the Bible and with early training for the winning of souls."

MRS. BAEYERTZ IN DUBLIN.

Mrs. Baeyertz has concluded her mission in the Christian Union Buildings, Dublin, under the auspices of the Young Women's Christian Association. The work commenced on Sunday, May 29, and continued every day except Saturday, up till and including Monday, June 13; two meetings were held daily, one in the afternoon, which was specially devoted to Christians, and the other in the evening for those outside the fold of Christ. From the first address given, which was on the subject of Martha, Mary and Lazarus, it was evident that no ordinary teacher was amongst us. Notwithstanding the sultriness of the weather, and the Whit season, the meetings steadily increased in interest and numbers until the close, when the audiences began to assemble an hour and upwards before the time for commencing the meetings.

The Scriptural nature of the teaching has been a prominent feature in her Bible readings and expositions. Mrs. Baeyertz's experience as a strict Jewess, well and carefully trained in the leading theories and ceremonies of Judaism, has laid a fitting foundation for the exceedingly clear and beautiful expositions of Holy Scripture with which Dublin audiences have been favoured. Many of these will not soon be forgotten. The Gospel, too, in all its fulness and efficacy, has been faithfully and earnestly preached. Special mention should be made of her teaching on the subject of Holiness; which was remarkably clear, common-sense and practical. Mrs. Baeyertz avoided the error of those who regard holiness principally as an inner experience, or as it is styled "the blessing," apart from righteousness of life. At the same time, she kept clear of insisting upon righteousness of life apart from an inner experience of whole-hearted surrender to Christ. Between both extremes she steered an even keel, and proved very helpful to many earnest Christians.

The inquiry meetings were of a unique type. The evangelist usually deals with all the inquirers in the first instance, but in such a way that the meetings are more like a family conference; those around listening to the exposition of Scripture passages specially suited to such occasions. She firmly believes in the power of the truth itself accompanied by the Spirit of God to lead souls into the light of salvation. No hesitation appears to take possession of those who have once had experience of such close and intimate acquaintance with this lady. The tendency seems to be to seek further opportunity of instruction, publicly and privately, at her lips. Nearly two hundred persons came into the inquiry-room to receive help during the mission, but this number very inadequately represents anything like the good done.

Mrs. Baeyertz repeated her address on "Cain and Abel" and "The Jewish Passover," and she also re-told the story of her conversion from Judaism to Christianity, by special request.

The Dublin Missions will be long remembered, and an earnest desire is felt that Mrs. Baeyertz should before long visit our city again.

Robert Cotter.

Christian Union Buildings, Dublin.

VILLAGES OF INDIA.—Rev. R. Clark, of Amritzar, writes:—"The special need and the special opportunity with us are now connected with the villages. The villagers of India amount to about ninety per cent. of the whole population. Less than five per cent. of the people live in towns of twenty thousand inhabitants. The villages are the real population of India. We are now placing many of our best missionaries in them. Our ladies find access to the women everywhere, through the open door which God has so wonderfully, of late years, placed before us in this country. The work is great and the labourers are few."

THE CHILDREN'S HOME.—The report of this institution, which is under the care of Dr. Stephenson, President of the Wesleyan Conference, shows that there are 874 children in the several branches. The Christmas-boxes, sent out last year for the first time, yielded nearly £600. Three years ago it was feared there must be a reduction in the number of inmates, but the finances now show an improvement of £5000 upon that date, while the number of children has increased. The opening of Seymour House will place twenty-five additional vacancies at the disposal of the Committee. The improved state of the finances and the presidential fund of £10,000 will make it possible not only to liquidate the heavy debt, but to purchase new property at Gravesend to replace old premises about to be given up. The presidential fund, which is being raised in recognition of the Principal's presidency of the Wesleyan Conference, has now reached £8198.

Mr. Moody in England.

WOLVERHAMPTON.

From Monday to Friday last week Mr. Moody paid his first visit to this town, where the ground had been well prepared by prayer and the united efforts of the clergy and ministers of various denominations, the secretaries being Rev. S. C. Adam (Church of England), Rev. R. W. Hopewell (Wesleyan), and Rev. W. Johnston (Presbyterian). The meetings were held in the Drill Hall, which was seated for over three thousand persons. An excellent choir was in attendance, and in few if any provincial towns in which the evangelist has laboured have such well-known hymns as "All people that on earth do dwell," "Rock of Ages," "There is Life for a Look," &c., been so effectively rendered. This was a welcome feature of the opening meeting, imparting as it did a heartiness which greatly cheered and helped the preacher.

Each day the interest visibly deepened, and although political matters were absorbing much attention, there were, nevertheless, multitudes who manifested anxiety concerning their relation to the kingdom of heaven. Day after day the Word was with power, declared with that fearlessness of utterance which has ever characterised Mr. Moody's work. "Are you willing to break with sin? if not, abandon all hope of entering the Kingdom." This was the burden of his message to the unsaved; "No compromise" was his war-cry, and again and again its effects on those who heard found voice in the old-time question, often wrung from the heart in its agony, "What must I do to be saved?"

At a meeting of ministers, one present alluded to certain prejudices which had existed regarding Mr. Moody's preaching. "Sentimental," "sensational," it had been called. But, said the speaker, these and similar objections had one by one been dispelled during this Mission. Certainly nothing less sentimental or more practical could characterise any preaching than such palpable truths as these:—"People do not believe facts, and imagine that, therefore, facts are not true." "You have been deceived by your friends, by your neighbours, by your children, perhaps; but by your own heart most of all. If you doubt this, count the resolutions you have made and broken which the deceitfulness of your heart made you think you would keep." "Why are there so many dishonest clerks and servants to be found? Because employers teach them to deceive others in the ways of business, and at last find that they themselves reap what they have sown." The insidiousness of sin, the certainty of retribution, the necessity of restitution, the efficacy of the atoning work of Christ, the inability of education to save from sin, the certain hope of our Lord's final victory: these were nails driven hard into many a sure place, as was attested by the large numbers of inquirers who sought to know the way of God more perfectly.

One very gratifying feature of the work was the considerable proportion of men attending the meetings. Needless to say, this fact did not escape the preacher's notice, and his well-directed statements, backed up by sound argument and common sense, paved the way for the direct and personal appeals which, in their turn, followed them. "You can't get over this," said a working man to his companion, as they thoughtfully walked out of the hall, "what he says is TRUE, WHETHER WE LIKE IT OR NOT."

It is impossible, if, indeed, desirable, to specify one meeting as having been more than another full of power, for who can gauge the work of the Spirit? Suffice to say that great solemnity pervaded more than one gathering, as the vast audience was brought really face to face with the issues hanging upon immediate decision as to which of the two ways each would choose. Not until the last evening did Mr. Moody seek to elicit any token on the part of those present as to their acceptance of Christ; he then invited any who were willing to yield themselves to God to express the fact in the words "I will," and from every part of the hall were voiced the desires of scores of men and women in their anxiety to be loosed from the burden of their sins.

To meet the lack of inquiry-room accommodation the hall had on each occasion been divided into sections, under the superintendence of a minister with a band of workers at his side. In this way personal conversation was secured with those who remained to the after-meetings, and a register which reached considerable dimensions, was made of the names and addresses of those spoken with. Thus the first step was taken for "following up," and it is not likely that the results will ever all be known to any save the God who hears and answers prayer.

But it was not the unsaved alone who profited by the Mission, which proved fruitful in many ways to the Lord's people themselves. There was, of course, the enthusiasm kindled by these "wondrous gatherings day by day," which will no doubt prove a stimulus to future service. But there was also the instruction in the things of God, which proved helpful to many. The importance of prayer, its essentials, its hindrances; the office and work of the Holy Spirit; Assurance of salvation; the need of confessing Christ; the promises of God—all these were expounded with a freshness born of keen insight into Scripture truth, and lessons were enforced by which the teaching should be applied to everyday life. Not a less important privilege was it for the Christian workers to listen to the manner in which Mr. Moody presented the Gospel to the unconverted; how he insisted on the degeneration of all men from God's standard of right, the impossibility of forgiving a man who does not want to be forgiven, and the necessity of actual decision.

Then, too, there was the spirit of unity engendered by persons of various denominational views co-operating in the effort to bring salvation before those who had hitherto rejected it, and very "pleasant" was this "dwelling together in unity," not to end, we trust, with a particular series of meetings, but to be yet further used as a channel of blessing to many a weary heart.

One fact may be mentioned as bearing upon the question,

"DO THESE CONVERTS LAST?"

One of the ministers stated that he had been one of a class of twenty-four students in a theological college, of whom no less than sixteen owed their conversion to the meetings held by Mr. Moody and Mr. Sankey in years gone by. Much depends upon the "following up," and it was particularly gratifying to find the Wolverhampton ministers keenly alive to this necessity, and anxious to do all in their power to feed the newly-gathered flock in their respective churches. One practical outcome of the Mission is likely to be the formation of a Y.M.C.A., the need of which has been greatly felt. Indeed, it is astonishing that a town of such importance should have been so long without one. The matter is being warmly espoused, and we hope, ere long, to learn that it has been established on a firm and worthy basis.

G.

A minister also writes:—Perhaps the first thing that struck the mere onlooker at these meetings was the union of Christians of all denominations in the work. On the platform, supporting Mr. Moody and taking part in the services, were representative ministers from the Episcopal, Baptist, Congregational, Methodist, and Presbyterian churches of the town. In the after-meetings there were seen as workers, not only ministers, but Churchwardens, Baptist and Congregational deacons, Presbyterian elders, and members of the Salvation Army. Such an exhibition of Christian union has been unprecedented in the history of the town.

To Christians of all denominations the mission has been an unspeakable blessing. Among many who were earnest Christians there prevailed a strong distrust of evangelistic methods, which they were accustomed to look upon as superficial. But these meetings have taught them that Mr. Moody's preaching does not merely play on the feelings, that the aim is not to frighten sinners into the kingdom of God. From first to last his message took a strong grip on the intelligence of the people. He enlisted the conscience on his side; and having won the consent of mind and conscience, he went for the heart.

Perhaps the most touching scene that hundreds present ever witnessed was at the close of the farewell meeting. The preacher had been dealing with the excuses of sinners for not closing with Christ. Then he put it to the audience to signify their willingness to be Christ's. It might seem a small thing to do, but in many cases it was a severe test of earnestness. Brothers, sisters, and friends were all around as witnesses. And yet in spite of the desire of an anxious soul to hide its anxiety from friends, some three hundred, one after another, indicated their desire to begin to lead a Christian life. It is impossible just yet to tabulate the number of conversions. Perhaps it is never wise, even though possible, to state in figures what has been the result of any mission like this. But one thing is certain—a large number have professed decision for Christ; many wavering Christians have been led to take a stand; many careless, useless ones have reconsecrated themselves; and others who were Christ's at heart, but who were living a double life, causing men to doubt them, and, worse still, to doubt God, and Christ, and the reality of all religion, openly and publicly committed themselves to the Lord's side.

The Drill Hall was well filled every night, sometimes every seat was occupied, and hundreds were standing. We have had no such proof before of the drawing power of the Gospel here.

There were present lawyers, and doctors, magistrates and ministers, town councillors, and aldermen, but it was also evident that "the common people heard him gladly." It was not an emasculated Gospel that drew them. Mr. Moody does not relegate future punishment to the region of myths. He finds his Master was not silent about it, nor is he. But he speaks of it, not with clenched fists, but with deep emotion as he beseeches men to flee from the wrath to come. He is an apostle of the love of God in Christ, and of free grace. And now that he is gone from us to other work elsewhere we follow him, thousands of us, with grateful hearts and earnest prayers that God may bless his work in other fields as He did here.

FOLLOWING UP IN SHREWSBURY.

Mr. W. R. Lane has been carrying on the Mission here since Mr. Moody's departure for Wolverhampton, and the numbers who have crowded nightly to hear the Gospel simply and faithfully spoken have been most encouraging. Very great interest has evidently been awakened in the town and neighbourhood. The culminating point of the Mission was reached on Wednesday—the last day—when the hall was full. As the evangelist made his final appeal to the unsaved, a great stillness fell upon the listening assembly. A number entered the inquiry-room, and were dealt with by Mr. Lane and the workers, and in response to his invitation nearly all rose at length and audibly confessed Christ. It is believed that above one hundred persons have given in their names as converts, and for these a thanksgiving meeting is to be arranged for.

CARDIFF.

A correspondent writes: "Notwithstanding the short notice given for this visit, ample preparations were made and a splendid reception accorded. The largest buildings in the town were secured, and it is estimated that not less than twenty thousand persons were present at one or another of the five services held on Sunday. The day's proceedings began with a service at eight o'clock in the Park Hall, which is the finest building in the town. At this, and at the three o'clock service in the same building, the Cardiff Blue Ribbon choir rendered valuable aid. At eleven o'clock Mr. Moody preached at Roath-road Wesleyan Chapel, which was crowded, an overflow meeting being held in Longcross-street Baptist Chapel.

"Those who have heard him frequently declare that Mr. Moody seldom preached with greater power than on Sunday. At a quarter past eight at night a service was held at the Hayes, which is a splendid site for an open-air service, and it is estimated that not less than ten thousand persons were present. Another service was held at Wood-street Congregational Chapel afterwards. On Monday Wood-street Chapel was crowded for the afternoon service, and from the interest shown there is every promise of a successful mission. Mr. Moody is in good health and vigour."

THE Y.M.C.A. ON THE CONTINENT.—On June 11 the foundation-stone was laid of the new institute of the Young Men's Christian Association, in the Rue de Trévise, Paris. Mr. Alfred André told the interesting story of the rise and progress of the Association; M. Louis Vernes pledged the sympathy of pastors of all denominations; and M. Buscarlet, president of the Paris Association, traced the development of the work among young men. The present membership is about five hundred. The triennial fete of the associations in French-speaking Switzerland was held recently at Geneva. About five hundred members assembled, representing 139 associations, with 2065 members and 855 associates.

DR. DAVID ANDERSON MOXEY,

ELOCUTIONIST AND EVANGELIST.

DR. MOXEY is one of the men of culture and distinction in our time who have heard the words "Follow Me" addressed to them in the midst of worldly activity and prosperity, and have obeyed them as really, promptly, and cheerfully, as did Matthew the publican, when he forsook all and followed Christ. He is the son of the late George Todd Moxey, Staff-Surgeon, R.N., and grandson of Benjamin S. Moxey, Commander R.N., and was born at Edinburgh, June 30, 1836. His mother, still living at the age of eighty-five, was daughter of Rev. David Anderson, for fifty years minister of Kirkurd, Peebles-shire. He was educated at the University of Edinburgh, with a view to the ministry of the Established Church, but he knew enough of what a minister ought to be to see that he was not truly qualified for the office, and he devoted himself to medicine. He took his degree with éclat, and entered on the practice of his profession with great ardour. He was medical officer in Hants County Lunatic Asylum, 1858-9; surgeon in Royal Navy, serving in the Mediterranean, 1859-62; in general practice in Chiswick, W., 1862-68; and as a physician in Prince's-street, Hanover-square, London, 1868-72. He was a frequent contributor to The Lancet, and made suggestions for particular ailments that were counted of no little value.

It could have been no sight reason that induced him to give up a profession in which he was so much interested; but his health gave way, and a mode of occupation presented itself to which he took still more cordially. He had great gifts as a reader, especially of dramatic pieces. To this attractive art he now gave his whole attention. Assuming the name of Leo Ross, he rapidly rose to the highest distinction as a reader and reciter. The drama was the subject that best drew out his powers, but he was at home in the comic as well as the tragic, in prose and poetry, grave and gay, Scotch and English. He was thus able to give his public entertainments much variety, and he soon became a great favourite with the public. As an author, his little brochures as Leo Ross were much sought after, and wealth, as well as fame, was being rapidly attained. He was just in that worldly position from which it would have been impossible to dislodge him by almost any earthly force.

His parents were both godly persons, and Dr. Moxey knew that he was not converted. In 1865 he married Clara, youngest daughter of John Bryan, of Fairlawn, Chiswick. Her influence was always for good, although she had not come into the full light and joy of evangelical faith. With her he attended church, and went to the Communion, not conscious of doing wrong, although aware that he had not undergone the great change. "Oh, if we could be good," was often his wife's aspiration, showing that she had got a high Christian ideal, but one that seemed unattainable.

In 1876, having obtained the appointment of Fulton Lecturer on Elocution, in New College, Edinburgh, Dr. and Mrs. Moxey removed to that city. They attended the ministry of Mr. Dawson, in St. Thomas' Episcopal Church, and on the first Sunday in February, 1879, which was a Communion Sabbath, the minister said that the table was spread for the followers of Jesus, who had accepted Him as their personal Saviour. There were but two classes of men, and he would ask those who were not in communion with Christ by faith and love what right they had to kneel down and partake of Christ's Communion? At that moment a well-known verse flashed on Dr. Moxey's mind:—"He that eateth and drinketh unworthily eateth and drinketh damnation to himself." He did not want to do that, and he inwardly prayed: "Great God, forgive me! Strike me dead on the spot!"

(From a photograph by Mr. Moffat, Edinburgh.)

He did not partake of the Communion, but his wife did; and when she came home, and told him how much she had enjoyed it, he was greatly affected. He begged a visit from his minister, but it did not bring him to peace. The minister sent him a copy of Mackay's "Grace and Truth," and he saw that he was a lost soul. He waited for a feeling that he was saved, but it did not come. A friend said to him: "Dr. Moxey, sink that proud will of yours that stands between you and Christ. Let Jesus Christ save you, and don't try to save yourself. Accept of salvation like a little child." Still he was miserable; all the more that his utmost efforts seemed so thoroughly in vain. Then at last, in utter helplessness, he besought God to take him and save him. And then peace and joy came. From that hour he became a new creature in Christ Jesus.

In Dr. Moxey's case it was eminently true that old things passed away and all things became new. His old pleasures lost their relish, eclipsed by the joys of faith and heavenly communion. Impressed by the conviction that he must try to bring others to know what he had found and to seek it for themselves, he went where he was invited, and in halls, churches, and chapels told of his conversion. It was, indeed, a strange thing when the man who had become famous for dramatic and humorous readings was announced in so different a capacity! But he did not mince matters, but spoke out gravely and warmly, and told them plainly that all the pleasures of his past life were literally nothing compared to his new-found joy. And he gave proof of his sincerity by recalling the little books that bore the nom de plume of Leo Ross, because he was not satisfied with their tone and aim. And when he went on the platform to give readings these were of a different cast. As a profession he abandoned, to a large extent, the function of public reader, with all its gains, just because he felt that he must now do all in the name of the Lord Jesus. His heart was in the work of evangelisation, and whatever he could do in that cause he cordially did.

As a coadjutor of Mr. Moody and Major Whittle, Dr. Moxey did excellent service, as did Mrs. Moxey, too, in a quiet way. Twice he visited America, and our readers will remember the notes he furnished in these columns of Mr. Moody's Convention. Of the good done by him as an evangelist there is ample testimony. But perhaps it is more interesting to note the evangelistic results that have sometimes been associated with his more professional pursuits. His reading of the hundredth Psalm, the story of the Prodigal Son, the Ten Commandments, Abraham offering up Isaac, the narrative of the Syrophenician woman, the 53rd and 55th chapters of Isaiah, have sometimes been remarkably blessed. Mr. John McNeill is said to have remarked that the reading of the hundredth Psalm was a revelation to him, which he has since made use of. Nor can we well conceive a greater contrast than that between the dull, mechanical way in which that Psalm is often read, and the reading which gives due emphasis to its great aim, to enlist joy, cheerfulness, and brightness in the service of praising God.

Recent years have been clouded to Dr. Moxey by the death of his beloved wife, after a long illness—a loss which cannot be fully appreciated even by those who know how closely they were knit together by the ties of natural affection, and of deep sympathy in the work of faith and labour of love. He himself, too, has for some time been in very delicate health, and obliged to withhold himself from all but the most necessary work. We trust that many years of useful service are yet before him. It is rare to hear a bitter word spoken against him. One who has given emphatic, self-denying proof of his sincerity disarms the scorn even of the world. With a bright countenance, and a genial, attractive manner, he conciliates wherever he goes. In a day when so many unbelievers attempt to excuse their scepticism because professing Christians are inconsistent, the history and life of men like Dr. Moxey have a pre-eminent value.

CITY HOME FOR WORKING BOYS.

Pelham House, Spital-square, having, as we stated some time ago, to be rebuilt, has now been demolished, temporary premises being secured for the Home at No. 7, just opposite. The foundation-stone of the new building was laid on Wednesday in last week by H.R.H. Princess Christian, in the presence of a large and influential company. Miss Mary Pelham, the treasurer's little daughter, having presented the Princess with a very handsome bouquet, Mr. C. C. Birch, on behalf of the committee, read an address to Her Royal Highness, in which it was stated that one of the main objects of the institution was to save shop boys from the evils of the common lodging-house. The home in Spital-square was established twenty-two years ago by the late Mr. Samuel Morley and others, and during that time it had proved an immense boon to those for whom it was intended. In conclusion, the committee expressed their earnest hope that the work carried on by them for this deserving class of the community would receive a fresh impetus from the visit of her Royal Highness.

A portion of Holy Scripture was read, and after prayer by Rev. M. Thomas, M.A., the Princess proceeded to lay the stone. The stone having been duly laid, the treasurer, Hon. T. H. W. Pelham, gave a financial statement respecting contributions received for the building fund. These included £100 from the Corporation, £100 from Mr. F. A. Bevan, and liberal grants by several City companies.

The Lord Mayor, in proposing a vote of thanks to the Princess, remarked that during the long period the Queen had governed this realm, all the members of the Royal Family had taken a keen personal interest in works of a charitable and philanthropic character. All connected with the institution were, he was sure, deeply grateful to the Princess for her presence that afternoon. A few words followed by the Hon. F. W. Smith, M.P., and the proceedings terminated with the Benediction, pronounced by the Bishop of Wakefield. Towards the £5000 needed for the new building, no less than £4150 has, we understand, already been received.

Open-air Mission.

In a circular letter of appeal on behalf of this work, Archdeacon Sinclair, of St. Paul's, says:—

"The work of the Open-air Mission needs little explanation. Wherever great crowds of persons are gathered together, for races, fairs, steeplechases, regattas, fêtes, and other occasions of popular pleasure and amusement, there, of a certainty, will be vast numbers of those who are careless and indifferent about the fear of God. To such multitudes the faithful evangelist addresses himself. He speaks the Word in season as God gives him grace, or hands in print his message of infinite love. Again and again has the seed sown in humble faith taken root and grown up to life eternal.

"Funds are entirely exhausted, and it would be sad, indeed, if this missionary work should be stopped. The removal of that saintly pioneer of open-air enterprise, Mr. Gawin Kirkham, immensely emphasizes the need. The last communication I had from him was on the subject of this very letter. 'The amount of good which we have accomplished in the diocese of London,' he says, 'during the thirty-nine years of our existence is incalculable; and we have influenced this apostolic mode of proclaiming the Gospel in all parts of the world.' I believe that amongst the very last words that he spoke was a reminder to be sent to me about this appeal. Mr. Kirkham's 'Manual of Open-air Preaching' ought to be in the hands of every man, clerical or lay, who undertakes this difficult and delightful work. But I am sure we ought to preserve his holy influence and spirit by large and liberal support of the Mission."

Mr. Frank Cockrem, 14, Duke-street, Adelphi, W.C., is assistant-secretary.

[546]

EMIGRATION TO AUSTRALIA.

Sir,—I see in your issue of March 31, just received, a letter from Mr. Mackay on emigration to Australia. Will you allow me, as a colonist of ten years' standing in this part of the world, with some personal knowledge of New South Wales, Victoria, South Australia, Tasmania, and New Zealand, to emphasize and reiterate that portion of Mr. Mackay's letter where he says: "At present things are not very encouraging, and it would be utter folly for any person to abandon a living here (i.e., in England), however precarious, on the mere chance of bettering his condition in Australia"?

Let me assure any of your readers who think of emigrating of the following facts. (1) There is an ample supply of almost all classes of labour in these colonies. (2) There is constantly a large number of unemployed, especially in the winter time, when there are always hundreds of men tramping from place to place in search of work, too often unsuccessfully. It would astonish those who look upon the Australias as a veritable El Dorado and the paradise of the working-man, to find what swarms of applicants there are (from the English University man to the tramp) for any situation, however menial, that may be advertised in the daily papers. There are any number of unfortunates in the various branches of labour, willing and able to work, who have no idea where to turn to provide their families with the necessaries of life. (3) Work is so fluctuating that even the best firms in every line of business are constantly obliged to increase or reduce their staff according to their requirements, work, even in the best of times, being procurable, as a rule, only for a limited period, which is succeeded by days, weeks, or months of enforced idleness, so that the savings of to-day may be swallowed up by the needs of to-morrow.

This state of affairs is accentuated by the fact that as prosperity ebbs or flows in the different colonies, hosts of workmen rush from one to another, and swamp that labour market which at the time offers the most attractions. (4) Living, as a whole, is much more expensive here than in England, the item of house rent being particularly heavy.

The only classes of labour who are needed here are: (1) the agriculturist with some capital (the more the better) at his back, who is willing to take up land, and by dint of sheer hard work achieve success. (2) Trained domestic servants, for whom there is a large demand. Let me earnestly warn those of your readers who may be contemplating emigration, to consider the matter very carefully before deciding to take the step, and even then to take a preliminary voyage of discovery before committing their families to what is too often found to be a mistaken course. As a medical man I have too frequently been brought into contact with those who having left home "to better themselves" bitterly regret it, and write to dissuade their friends from following their example. Many parents think that for the sake of their children it is desirable to emigrate, as these would have better opportunities of getting on. Nothing is farther from the truth, as opportunities are few here compared with the older and more densely-settled countries, and there are plenty of native-born Australians to pick up anything worth having for themselves.—I am, &c.,

Melbourne, May 12. Mentor.

LADIES' CORSICA VILLAGE MISSION.

This Mission, carried on by Miss Grant Brown and a companion at Corte, and in the mountain villages of the Balagna for about five years, is marvellously developing. It may be said that "a great door and effectual is opened, and there are many adversaries." The priests, who are ignorant and degraded have taken the alarm, and are stirring up the roughs to injure and, if possible, to destroy the work. On the death of a convert, they compel the relatives to bury according to the Romish rites. This has distressed the evangelicals so much that, at length, those of Muro united in the purchase of a burial ground, are building a wall round it, and have put over the gateway, in French, the words: "Thanks be unto God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

A priest, on seeing this, assured them that soon all the Protestants would be buried in it, and the next evening the converts, on leaving their Mission Hall, were set upon by a party of roughs, led by the priests, and were severely cut with stones. The police came to the rescue, but the local authorities are timid and lukewarm. At Calenzana the converts have the promise of ground for a similar purpose from the doctor of the village, who is one of their number. About forty men of the Calenzana converts were about to visit the burial-ground at Muro, some miles distant, when they found that the priests had so effectually blocked the road that their carts could not pass, and, to their great regret, they had to abandon their purpose. It is hoped that an appeal to headquarters in Paris may lead to their protection in future.

Of the college students who, more than two years ago, found their point d'appui, and a new life, when listening to the Gospel message at Ile Rousse, two, after a course of training in this country, returned to their native island, and are now preaching the Gospel with great acceptance. Their names are De Matra and Marinetti. The latter is at present evangelising at Ile Rousse and De Matra at Corte, while De Matra's two sisters are giving Bible readings at working parties of the women.

The cost of the Mission in supporting these two evangelists, besides the hire of halls and travelling expenses, has greatly increased, so that any help will be gladly received. This may be sent to Barclay, Ransom, and Co., 1, Pall Mall East, account of the Foreign Evangelisation Society.

"OPEN DOORS IN CHILI."

The letter published in The Christian, March 3, has brought more replies than I can possibly answer, I therefore beg space to answer all in one. To those who have written about self-support in Chili until the language is learned, and who hope to preach the Gospel, supporting themselves, I would say be very sure that God puts it upon you to do so before you start, as on the human side (from my experience) I would advise no one to come to Chili. No one should come to do Gospel work in Chili without support guaranteed, to have their hands perfectly free to devote all their time and thought to the work.

There are very few in Chili who know the truth as it is in Christ; the mass not only do not know, but do not care to know. One needs (in Chili), to know by experience the power of God, or he will be swept back into Satan's net. I have met many who at home had a Christian experience, but here have gone back to the flesh-pots of sin, and they are often the worst.

I suppose there are places in the world more sinful than Chili, but I would not care to live in them. It is a place where one looks forward with joy at the prospect of the Lord's early return, and prays that He may hasten his coming. I cannot close without calling the attention of Christians to Ecuador, a priest-ridden country where the Bible is not allowed to enter, and the sound of the Gospel is interdicted. If the Gospel is to be preached as a witness to all people before the Lord comes, we must hasten to find some way to enter Ecuador with the Bible and the Gospel. I do not wish that any well-meaning and enthusiastic people should come to Chili, thinking to support themselves and preach the Gospel, through anything I may have written. I wish them to know the truth about Chili; but missionary societies should do more for Chili and all South America than has been done.

Geo. D. Coleman.

Concepcion, Chili, April 26.

CLAPHAM PROPHETIC CONFERENCE.

THE ninth annual Prophetic Conference, in connection with the World-wide Prayer Union for the return of the Lord Jesus, was held at 143, Clapham-road, on June 15 to 17 inclusive. On the first day Sir Robert Phayre presided, the subject being "Theosophy, Spiritualism, Political Anarchy, and Ecclesiastical Apostasy," considered as signs of the times. Addresses were given by Mr. Louis Liesching, Pastor W. Fuller Gooch, Mr. H. W. Fry, Lieut.-Colonel Alves, and the Chairman.

On the second day the subject was "Attacks upon the Bible, Open and Covert, in the Pulpit, on the Platform, and through the Press," as signs of the times. Dr. ROBERT ANDERSON maintained that the Bible is not merely a book conveying a scheme for saving men's souls, but it unfolds God's plans which centre in Christ, by whom and for whom are all things. The personal anti-Christ who will in due time be manifested will be a substitute for that Christ of whom each human heart, even among the heathen, feels the need. He will be a supplanter of Christ, and when the restrainer—the Holy Ghost—is removed, the attack, which is now against the written Word, will be directed against the personal Word, both of which are expressions of what God is. When the Scriptures are attacked, the stage is clear for anti-Christ; the incarnation becomes a legend, and the cross an old-world story.

Canon FAUSSET mentioned as a peculiarity of present-day attacks upon the Bible the fact that the assault comes from the professed friends of the truth. An apostate church is filling up her iniquity by joining with Jewish materialists in discrediting the Lord Himself and his written word. But as she rejects the Scriptures, the world shall reject her, hating her and burning her with fire, to prepare the way for the manifestation of the lawless one. The Book is one harmonious whole, unfolding the fulfilment of the promise of Genesis iii. 15. The Law gives object lessons as to Him; the histories select those events which have relation to Him; and the Psalms reflect the prayers and praises of which He is the object. Other addresses on the second day were by Revs. J. GOSSETT TANNER, who urged a more earnest study of Scripture; W. FULLER GOOCH, who held that there is no remedy for the unknown danger of the final apostasy but confidence in the Word; C. H. STURDY, who showed that personal holiness in many details is promoted by the study of prophecy; and G. D. HOOPER, who spoke with reference to the purpose of the Word, the power of the hope, and the promise of the reward.

The third day was devoted to a consideration of the Church's duty to the Jew, the Moslem, and the heathen in the expectation of the coming of the Lord. Rev. T. H. SPARSHOTT gave an address on work in Africa, where some five hundred tongues are spoken into which no portion of the Scriptures has so far been translated, and where there are probably two hundred millions who have never heard the Gospel. The Hon. Emily KINNAIRD, of the Bible, Zenana, and Medical Mission, described work among women in India. Rev. H. GRAHAM THWAITES, who occupied the chair, spoke of the connection subsisting between missionary work and the coming of the Lord. The movements of the Jews and evangelisation among them, was the subject of addresses by Rev. H. Brass, Mr. C. T. Lipshytz, and Miss Lloyd.

The conference was (as stated) held in connection with the World-wide Prayer Union for the Coming of the Lord. The terms of membership are very simple, and a minimum subscription of one shilling is solicited, in return for which the publications of the Union are supplied. All information may be obtained from the secretary, Rev. N. S. Taylor, Babbacombe, South Devon.

DERBY Y.M.C.A.—A friend of the young men in Derby has, in memory of his son, given £300 to this institution, with the promise of another £100 as soon as the promoters can show that that amount, added to other contributions, will enable them to open the building free of debt, with the exception of £1000 to be borrowed on mortgage. The cost of the institute, with the gymnasium and the Victoria Hall—the only memorial in Derby of Her Majesty's Jubilee—is estimated at £4000, of which £2300 has been already received, and £200 promised; so that it will be necessary to obtain £500 more before the building can be opened free of debt

SOUTHERN BAPTIST ASSOCIATION.

AT the meetings of the Southern Baptist Association, held in the West Cliff Tabernacle, Bournemouth, from June 13 to 15, the subject of Foreign Missions was kept well to the front. On Monday evening a paper was read by Rev. W. V. Robinson on "Sunday-Schools in Relation to Foreign Missions," and was followed by an interesting and profitable discussion.

The Moderator's address on Tuesday morning dealt with the Centenary of Foreign Missions, which is now being celebrated, and pleaded for earnest and generous help toward the realisation of the scheme which has been proposed.

On Wednesday morning the Foreign Missionary Secretary's report brought the subject forward again, and a desire was expressed to organise a scheme for daily prayer and gifts, similar to that adopted at the West Cliff Tabernacle.

We regard this unusual prominence being given to the subject of the world's evangelisation as one of the most favourable signs of the times. A revival of missionary zeal will certainly bring about renewed blessing upon the work at home.

The circular letter read by Rev. J. Kemp, of Portsmouth, recalled the Church to a sense of her duty to the young.

The report of the Evangelistic Union showed that the struggling village churches are not being neglected, and that there is every disposition to give them more practical and generous help. The Home Mission meeting on Tuesday evening was full of enthusiasm, and the addresses of the Chairman (Alderman Ridley), and of Revs. J. M. G. Owen, of Southampton, and J. Ossian Davies, of Bournemouth, were exceedingly helpful and inspiring. Rev. J. Seamell preached the early morning sermon to young men, and the Association sermon was preached on Wednesday evening by Rev. C. Joseph, of Portsmouth.

THE BRIDGE OF ALLAN CONVENTION.

DURING the past week a convention has been held at the Bridge of Allan, strictly on the lines of Keswick. The meetings were a great success. A spacious tent has been purchased with the intention of making the conference annual. It is almost a duplicate of that so familiar to frequenters of the Keswick Convention, but a little larger. It was nightly filled to its utmost capacity. Visitors came from all parts of Scotland to spend the week in this beautiful resort, and the people streamed in also from the neighbourhood.

The weather for the most part was propitious The showers did not affect the attendance, and most of the meetings were held in genial sunshine, which revealed the beauties of the scenery to advantage. From the upper road, with its rows of pretty villas, the eye is delighted as it ranges over a wide stretch of country, from the hill on which the Wallace monument stands sentry over the town of Stirling on the left, to the distant peaks of Ben Lomond, fifty miles away to the North-East. Woods, fields, hills, and rivers lend their varied charm to the scene. And there is that air of seclusion from the world, that absence of hurry and unrest, that adaptation between the place to the spirit of the gatherings which are so essential in meetings of this sort.

The programme was arranged on the Keswick model, with early prayer-meetings, Bible-readings, general meetings, gatherings for ministers, ladies, young ladies, and others. Indeed, it seemed as if we had already commenced the mother convention, which was the first in order of these tent-convocations.

The audiences included many of the leaders in the different Presbyterian churches, who had seen the result of the Keswick Conference, their friends or fellow-ministers, and had come to observe the movement before pronouncing their opinion on its tendencies. In addition to these were many of the younger ministers, who professed to derive much benefit, to whom the ministerial conferences were specially helpful.

Mr. Robert Wilson presided, and the speakers included Revs. E. H. Hopkins, C. Inwood, J. Gelson Gregson, F. B. Meyer, E. W. Moore, Dr. White, and others.

The meetings, which commenced on Tuesday, closed on Saturday with very enthusiastic praise and missionary meetings; and it seemed as if nothing were wanting to crown this first convention with very permanent and conspicuous blessing.

WORKING LADS IN WHITECHAPEL.

ONE evening last week, in the crowded thoroughfare of Whitechapel, an event took place almost unnoticed by the public, but perhaps more important than many a great political demonstration. Opposite the London Hospital stands the Working Lads' Institute. Here was a gathering of the poor but industrious lads residing in such large numbers in East London, to receive prizes for industrial work done by them in their leisure hours. There were 119 exhibits of articles made of wood, specimens of wood carving, also metal work and engraving, pencil and chalk drawings, &c., &c.

Mr. Edward Aston presided, and the prizes were presented by Mr. Passmore Edwards. The advice given to the lads by the chairman was excellent—to be true and noble in character; to do all their work thoroughly and well; to serve God and to do their part to fulfil the prayer we daily utter, "that God's will may be done on earth as it is done in heaven."

During the evening the lads gave musical performances, and there was a gymnastic display which surprised and pleased all who saw it.

Mr. HENRY HILL, Hon. Sec., referred to the many phases of the work. Thrift and temperance are encouraged, Bible-class and evangelistic services are held. The advantages of the institution are offered to all working lads, while for those from the country and orphans there are provided two large dormitories. The Institute is a happy Christian home for many lads who might otherwise have to live in wretched lodgings exposed to temptations to vice.

There are practically only two limitations to this good work—the want of friends and the want of funds. If six ladies or gentlemen would devote one night per week, the number of classes and agencies could at once be increased. As to finance, the work is carried on at the minimum cost, as so large an amount of service is given by friends, and the lads themselves contribute as much as possible, not only in the way of entrance fees and subscriptions, but in supporting their clubs. Last year they contributed £131 16s. 7d.

Mr. Hill stated that, after fifteen years' labour amongst these lads, he was more than ever convinced of the usefulness and permanence of such work. He regretted that, notwithstanding all their efforts, and the raising of over £13,000, there remained a balance on the building account of £4342 10s. He had given some £600 to this, and if he had the means would gladly write a cheque to clear the balance. They were encouraged by the receipt of £50 from Sir Thos. Fowell Buxton, and gifts from other friends. At present about £200 per annum has to be paid for interest, and this hinders the work. A great and, it is hoped, a final effort is being made to extinguish this building debt; when that is accomplished they could extend the advantages still further.

Mr. PASSMORE EDWARDS highly commended the work carried on. Speaking of the advantages enjoyed by the members of the club, he said that for sixpence per month they have privileges which a subscription of ten guineas to a Pall Mall Club would not command. It seemed probable that in God's providence the British race would in a few years spread over and largely influence the whole world. How important that we should care for and train the young. He liked the Institute because it was so many-sided, and seemed to meet all the needs of lads. He noticed the want of books in the library, and would be happy to supply that need.

Any friends willing to help in clearing off the debt are invited to write to Mr. Henry Hill, Hon. Sec, 38, Bow-lane, E.C.

THE FOREIGN EMPLOYMENT AGENCY of the Y.W.C.A. at 316, Regent-street, supplies first-rate governesses, nursery-governesses, and servants of every kind. Especial care is taken to recommend no one without good references as to character and suitability. The Registry is open to all foreigners, whether members of the Y.W.C.A. or not.

EMIGRATION.—From the report of the Self-Help Emigration Society we learn that during the past year 343 persons have availed themselves of the advantages presented by the Society as a means of improving their positions, making a total of 3,666 who have emigrated to Canada, Australia, and other British Colonies under its auspices since its formation in June, 1884. The emigrants assisted during 1891 hailed from all parts of Great Britain, but the majority were from London and neighbourhood. The offices of the Society are in the Memorial Hall Buildings, Farringdon-street, E.C.

THE LAWYERS' PRAYER UNION.

This association of Christian lawyers was formed in the year 1852, and only a few of its original members now survive. But its numbers are occasionally reinforced by the adhesion of members of the judicial bench, and of barristers, solicitors, law students, and articled clerks. Thus there have always been found among the ranks of the legal profession, during the last forty years, a few hundred of godly men who are willing to bear testimony to the power of Christ's constraining love. The list of members is as large now as it has ever been; but it is only a little company compared with the thousands who belong to the great and learned profession of the law.

About twenty-five years ago the Lawyers' Prayer Union first began to hold public devotional meetings, to which none are admitted except lawyers and their clerks; and no speaker has ever appeared on their platform except such as are engaged in legal practice, or have at some period of their lives been so employed. Experience has shown that exhortation and testimony come with the greatest force from speakers who have shared with their audience the temptations and struggles, the successes and disappointments, of a common occupation.

The forty-eighth half-yearly public meeting of the Union was held on Thursday evening, June 16, at the mission-hall adjoining St. George's Church, Bloomsbury. This place is consecrated by the precious memories of many similar meetings of the Union. On the present occasion the chairman, a member of the Bar now holding a high official position, reminded his companions of their previous gatherings, when weighty words had fallen on their ears, and become enshrined in their memories, uttered by godly men who had occupied the same chair. He recalled with pleasure the utterances of Earl Cairns, of Lord Justice Lush, of Mr. Justice Archibald, and others who had entered into their eternal rest, as well as of several godly men still pursuing their career in the law.

The platform, as well as the body of the hall, contained men, old and young, engaged in the daily toil of an arduous profession—men well accustomed to weigh evidence and to sift the truth or falsehood of things claiming their attention. If to such skilled lawyers the claims of the Gospel possessed the deepest interest, and the service of Christ occupied the foremost place in their thoughts, it might well cause a sceptic to pause and to reflect. This devotional meeting of lawyers afforded a strong evidence of the overwhelming power of the Gospel of Christ and the transforming influence of his Spirit.

The addresses, which were short but intensely earnest, were given by barristers, solicitors, and law clerks, and in one instance by a gentleman who, after following the law, had become a well-known minister of the Church of England. He gave many forcible words of exhortation, and almost moved the audience to tears as he related how he was saved when a lawyer. He described the idle and wicked life which he led before his conversion, and how, with marvellous suddenness, God used the words of a newly-converted brother to cut him to the heart. After a night spent in weeping and crying aloud to God, he found forgiveness and peace, and thenceforth became a new man, a diligent worker in the law, and a faithful witness for God among his companions. He said that scarcely ever before had he felt at liberty to tell the story of his conversion; but on this night, among praying lawyers, an unwonted freedom seemed to be given him, and out of the abundance of his heart his mouth spoke. Sweetly to the ears of those present sounded this glowing testimony to the saving grace of God, and many hearts were bowed beneath the influence of that hallowed hour.

Another young lawyer told of a mission-hall near London where he was working for God. There he met a man who gained his living by writing for the sporting papers, and who had come from the Colonies to describe a recent prize fight. With this purpose he came to England, but the loving purpose of God was to save his soul by bringing him across the ocean to the place where the young lawyer met him, and pleaded with him for Christ. After a severe struggle, arising from the difficulty of giving up a well-paid journalistic engagement, the wanderer abandoned his wicked life and cast himself upon Christ.

Thus the evening was spent in prayer and praise, with many welcome and useful words of exhortation. By gathering lawyers and law-clerks to those half-yearly public meetings, during the last quarter of a century, the Lawyers' Prayer Union has been sowing seed which has already in various quarters sprung up, for the glory of God and for the benefit of the legal profession.

The secretaries of the Union are Mr. J. E. Woodroffe, Stone-buildings, Lincoln's-inn, and Mr. H. C. Nisbet, 35, Lincoln's-inn-fields. All communications may be addressed to the latter.

HOME OF INDUSTRY WORKERS.

A bright company of boys and girls in training for Canada were mustered last Wednesday evening to welcome the friends assembling for the monthly workers' meeting. Miss Macpherson chatted in her own pleasant way over these little ones, their past sorrows, and the future opening before them. Two Russian-Jewish exiles, brother and sister, were also introduced, who had been found in a deplorable condition, and admitted to the Home of Industry, where they are fast picking up the English tongue, and learning new ideas as to Christian love. Various interesting letters from Canada were shown, one being from a former protegee, now evangelising fruitfully, and another from two lads and one girl sent out by our sister, and now sending home money to bring their poor father, mother, and the whole family out also.

Two complete and well-made outfits for little girls were also shown, the work of a class of factory girls at Streatham, who, led by their lady teachers and helpers, have for some years clothed completely in this way two of the girl emigrants. It was mentioned that a party of seventy will start shortly for the other side.

Mr. C. Boardman gave an address on Home Christian work, and specially on the open-air work, addressing himself to the young men won from Bird Fair and in other branches of the service, and united in a band earnestly seeking to witness for Christ. The hints given by the speaker from his own practical experience out of doors, while peculiarly valuable and helpful to these zealous beginners, were scarcely of a character necessary to be given here. We may, however, note that he laid stress on the usefulness of solos sung in the open air by ladies; these prove remarkably attractive and especially in inducing working men to stand and listen to the Gospel.

Miss Macpherson told how years ago she began open-air testimony among the coprolite workers, having with her a young blacksmith (William Rudland, now in China), and two carpenter lads, who came to stand by her and pray. In company with these she went to a lonely rural beerhouse, where men were wont to assemble from many parts, and spend the Lord's-day drinking and gambling. God gave her favour in the eyes of these men, who proved willing to listen. So she began, and went right on, simply following God's leading. When she came to London one of the first converts in Club-row was George Clarke, who has now, like Mr. Rudland, been many years in China. As he began, so these young men and lads have now begun to serve God as they have opportunity, and soon He may lead them out into larger service. Miss Macpherson went on to tell how several devoted ladies were teaching these young men, and how they are now witnessing in Bird Fair and elsewhere.

A few representatives of these young men were called to bear testimony, and the first told how, once an infidel, God laid hold of him, and now he was working as a co'porteur in connection with the Home of Industry, and God is giving much blessing. He knew of sixteen souls saved this year through means of this work. The next (a mere lad) told how God saved him in Commercial-road, and how his own mother was the first he set himself to pray for, and God heard and answered. Then came an ex-pugilist, whose story ought to be published in full, being remarkably stirring. He told simply and briefly how on the very eve of a fight, and while in training, he was laid hold of by the Word spoken in Bird Fair. From the engagements in which he was then involved many difficulties arose, but God led him through, enabled him to forfeit the stakes, and confess openly the change in his life. So far as now appears, he seems to have been called by God to a very special work among the lowest and roughest class.

ISLINGTON YOUNG MEN.

Mr. George Williams presided over the forty-fifth annual meeting of the Islington and Highbury Young Men's Christian Association, which was held on Tuesday evening last week in the Myddelton Hall, Upper-street. A large number of young men attended, and many friends of Christian work on their behalf took part in the proceedings.

The report, which was read by the secretary, Mr. J. Nash Rees, recorded progress and blessing in every department of the work. Attendance at the Bible-class has risen from fifty to fifty-seven, much of the success being due to the diligence of the tract band, which meets on Sunday afternoons, and was instrumental in introducing about eight hundred strangers to the class during the year. Some who have thus been led to the class are now leading changed lives, and engaged in showing other young men the way to God. Efforts among the rough lads that frequent Upper-street on Sunday evenings have been continued, with an average attendance of about fifty at the special meetings provided for them. A number of friends helped, by lectures and other studies, to promote intellectual life among the members of the Association, and at meetings of the Mutual Improvement Society papers were read, and discussions engaged in, to the delight and advantage of many. The Library received some additional books, bringing the total up to 900 volumes. The Association is not backward in social effort, but it ever places things spiritual at the top of the programme. The year closed with the funds in a more healthy condition than formerly, but unless some £100 more is raised annually the operations will be sadly crippled.

Rev. F. B. Meyer, in an earnest address, answered the question, How can a young man keep himself pure in the impurity of London life? The first essential was the linking of a young man to the Man of men—the living Christ. The Y.M.C.A. organisation meant the "You-must-come along organisation." It was all important, of course, for young men to link themselves together; but the chief thing was to link one's self to Christ. The first thing was a vital connection with Christ; the second was what might be called "thorough" salvation. One needed not only to have been saved, and to be saved, but to be saved through and through by the indwelling Christ.

Mr. W. Hind-Smith, remarking that the sun never sets upon the Association, said that there are now 4951 centres and 418,799 members, while during last year the members and associates increased by 29,005.

Archdeacon Sinclair, in a hearty address, pointed out the need for a sense of duty towards God. When occasionally called to preach in Islington he had been struck with the evidences of indifference to the Lord's Day. A better public opinion is needed as to the worship of God, as to his commandments, the precepts of Christ, and the cause of temperance. What an enormous benefit it would be if young men could create in England some such opinion as prevails in the States of America, which regards as a disgrace the presence of a woman near a public-house. The vice of gambling, also, is a terrible curse to the community, and here young men have great opportunities to exercise a wise and wholesome influence. There is also duty to the neighbour. With sympathy and kindliness, young men should try to bring into the Church the many young men who are upon the streets ouside. As to the young man's duty to himself, Dr. Sinclair appealed to his hearers to improve their topics of daily conversation by the study of superior books, and to cultivate higher and holier ideals.

The proceedings closed with some words of hearty encouragement by Mr. George Williams.

THE PROTESTANT GOVERNESSES' FUND AND HOME.—The object of the Fund is to provide a small free temporary Home at the seaside for poor Protestant Governesses needing change and rest, or waiting for engagements; to give pecuniary help and clothing, thereby throwing a little sunshine across the shady paths of those who have been reared in refined and comfortable homes. Distressed governesses, owing to their culture, feel the pinch of poverty with a keenness that is most painful to witness. Many are without money or home, no friends, out of health, or health entirely gone and scanty clothing. The little report just issued shows that several sad cases have been helped during the past year; and many more might have been, had funds been larger. Full information may be had of Miss Clementina Kingdon, 22, Chatham-place, Brighton.

NOTES ON DAILY READINGS.

SUNDAY, JUNE 26.—EXODUS XVIII.

THE names of Moses' sons preserve a record of his feelings during his exile. Though he had received such kindness in Jethro's home, he could not forget his people, and carried with him ever the pilgrim-spirit. Like all his fathers he confessed that he was a stranger and a sojourner. But amid all his sorrows he never forgot that there was help for him in God; hence, as often as he called his second son by name, he was reminded that God was his help.——The frank acknowledgment of God's goodness and supremacy on the part of Jethro was extremely beautiful. Oh, for more of that wisdom to discern, and that humble reverence to acknowledge, the loving-kindness of the Lord. Jethro's advice was most statesmanlike. It is far better to set a thousand people to work than to do the work of a thousand people. The mistake of so many is that they love to engross all the work, thus depriving others of the privilege and blessedness of Christian activity. But after all the truest recipe to preserve us from wearing away is to acquire the art of casting our burdens on the Lord, and to believe that for every burden which He puts on us, there is grace sufficient and to spare in Himself, only waiting to be appropriated by a loving faith. Let us not seek our burden-bearers amongst men, however good and wise; but in Him who daily beareth our burdens, and not them only, but ourselves.

MONDAY, JUNE 27.—EXODUS XIX.

Sinai is always a wilderness. The Jordan must be crossed ere we reach rest and luxuriant beauty. If we are the children of faithful Abraham, we have a perfect right to claim the realisation of the words with which this chapter opens. Bear us also on eagle's wings. Bring us for thyself. Enable us to obey thy voice, and keep thy covenant in Him who is our surety. Make us thy peculiar treasure, a people for thine own possession, kings reigning with Thee, and priests ministering before Thee. How much here, as in the words of Jesus, turns on literal, prompt, and exact obedience. When we first hear the words of the Lord, and the promises which accompany them, we proudly avow our determination to fulfil all his demands, but that resolve is destined to disappointment, and we make a golden calf under the very mount that burned with fire, and we have to learn that it is only as He works in us to will and to do that we can work out our own salvation. The excessive care about invading the sanctity of the mount was the beginning of a vast system of ceremonial design, by outward symbols to teach the people the holiness of God, as being altogether apart from their own conceptions and habits of life. It is only thus that we can acquire any conception of the nature of that holiness which is God's distinctive property.

TUESDAY, JUNE 28.—EXODUS XX.

This code of commandments is a transcript of the records of conscience in the heart of men. This is to those what the great town clock is to the watches which the citizens carry in their pockets. We cannot keep this holy law, in its letter or in its spirit, as expounded by our Lord. It is high, we cannot attain to it. Every attempt is doomed to fail, as St. Paul tells us in Rom. vii., which we make in the energy of our own nature. And it is only when we are filled with the Holy Spirit that we are able to realise the Divine purpose in laying down these transcendently glorious claims. We yield obedience then, not because of pressure brought to bear on us from without, but from an inward impulse, which it is our joy to obey. We are not actuated by the fear of a slave, but by the love of a child, who is animated by the spirit of his Father. Moses had drunk somewhat into that spirit when he said, "Fear not." Perfect love and knowledge and trust cast out the fear that hath torment, whilst they inspire the fear that dreads to grieve the One that is loved. The simplicity of the altar, which was not to be in any way ornate, reminds us that our consecration must not be ostentatious, but must humble us to the dust of self-abasement. But wherever it is reared, we may expect God to draw near to bless.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 29.—EXODUS XXI.

"Mine ears hast thou digged," said the Psalmist, in evident allusion to the custom alluded to in the opening paragraph of this chapter. The great Servant of Jehovah said as much: "The Lord God hath opened mine ear, and I was not rebellious, neither turned away backward." Hast thou served the Lord for six years because thou couldst not help it? Has not the time come when thou shouldst give thyself to Him utterly and for ever, so that He shall bore thine ear to his cross, and make thee his after a closer and more lasting fashion? Canst thou not truly say, I love my Master, I will not go out free? Then thou shalt serve Him for ever; but his service is perfect freedom. Some of these enactments are below the Christian standard, but, as our Lord says, were necessitated by the hardness of their hearts, which made it necessary that their conscience should be gradually levelled up from the standard in vogue around them. He speaks to us as we are able to bear it. And as we rise to the lower standard He presents a higher one. Obedience is a spiral staircase from the bottom of a pit ever nearer the light. Those enactments about the goring by an ox, which made the owner liable for all the mischief it did, have far-reaching applications. Let us be very careful of our speech and influence, of our words and deeds, lest in the injury they do in piercing others they bring us seriously under condemnation.

THURSDAY, JUNE 30.—EXODUS XXII.

How that word restitution rings out like a clarion in this chapter! It is not enough to confess a wrong to God and to man, we must make it good, and add interest on the bare amount. But before we do so, we must know certainly that we are in fault. We must avoid becoming morbidly and nervously scrupulous. All this is unhealthy. There must be definite dealing with definite acts of wrong. It is most interesting to read these regulations which teach so clearly the lines on which we must proceed. Professing Christians do not always live up to them. Side by side with this stringency against sin, what tenderness is there toward the stranger, the widow, the fatherless, the poor. These enactments are still in force, and full often calamities of a literal and temporal kind overtake those who are oblivious to them. If any such oppressed ones read these words, let them be comforted by the assurance that when they cry God will hear, because He is gracious. This mercifulness extended to the relationship between the animals and their young. Maternal tenderness was to have some response from its young. Oh to be holy men, feeding on the Lamb and the Manna, and turning from all unclean food.

FRIDAY, JULY 1.—EXODUS XXIII.

Let us watch our speech, so that we take away no man's character by false accusation. Let us dare to stand for truth, though we stand alone. Let us make ourselves act charitably and generously, though it be toward the man who hates us, our rival and opponent. It is not for us to take any mean advantage of him. God will avenge us if we are wronged. We need not fret ourselves in any wise to do evil. Let us hold the balance evenly, giving to men their dues, irrespective of fear or favour. Side by side with this we must cultivate the spirit of mercy and of rest. So also in each life there should be the constant commemoration of the Passover of Calvary; of Jesus Christ's resurrection, the first-fruits of the resurrection of the dead; and of the advent of the Holy Spirit at Pentecost. It is also a good motto to give the first-fruits of everything to God. Oh! that blessed Angel of the Covenant, who ever goes in front of us to keep us, to bring us whither God would have us be, and to be an adversary to our foes: let us not grieve Him. Reverently appropriate these blessed privileges that follow on obedience. Deliverance from our inbred Canaanites, the blessing of God on food and water, the absence of sickness, the flight of foes, the extended coast. Shall not we claim these by our obedient faith?

SATURDAY, JULY 2.—EXODUS XXIV.

Again the people in the strength of their own resolution promise obedience. How little they knew themselves. Only those who are indwelt and possessed by the Holy Spirit can do what they promised. The covenant into which they entered with God was, however, ratified by the blood of victims slain beneath the mount. Yet, notwithstanding all, that covenant was destined to be broken and to be set aside, being superseded by a better, which does not depend on our obedience at all, but on the obedience of our Representative and Surety. The new covenant, which is ordered in all things and sure! We, too, may behold the glory of God, and may eat and drink. There need be no discomposure or agitation in our proximity to Him. And well would it be if all our eating and drinking were carried on beneath the deep impression of His nearness. But there are circles within circles. Outside, the people; then the elders; then Joshua; but closest to God, in the very heart of the burning glory, Moses, the Man of God, the faithful servant, whose meat and drink consisted in doing the will of Him that sent him.

International S. S. Lessons.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON, JULY 3.

THE ASCENSION OF CHRIST. Acts i. 1-12.

GOLDEN TEXT: Verse 9.

THE Acts of the Apostles was written by Luke, the companion of Paul in some, if not all, of his missionary journeys. Like his Gospel, it was written to a personal friend (i. 1, with Luke i. 1-4), and continues the story of the work of Christ after his resurrection and ascension. Its events cover a period of over thirty years. The account was written probably about the year A.D. 80.

This lesson contains a summary of Gospel facts (1-5); an account of our Lord's last meeting with his Apostles (6-9); the promise of his second coming (10, 11); and the Apostle's return to Jerusalem (12).

1-5.—This summary of Gospel facts describes (1) the life work of Jesus, which consisted of doing and teaching. (1) Note the combination of the two. In every one who would teach successfully they must be combined. Example is better than precept. The best teaching, if not enforced by a consistent life, will be ineffective. Christ lived what He taught. By the Holy Ghost. He laid no claim to originality in one sense of the word. He received the words He taught to others (John xii. 49, 50; xiv. 10; xvii. 8). To teach as He taught we must learn as He learned (Isa. l. 4). Commandments. Christ never conferred with others as to what He should teach; never uttered mere opinions or doubtful speculations. He was the Truth, and spake with authority. His teaching does not invite our criticism, but requires our obedience. He began—his work was not over when his earthly life closed. This Book is not so much a record of what the apostles did for Christ, as of what Christ did through the apostles. (2) The death of Jesus. The word "passion" (3) describes this. Why should such a life, so full of good works, end in such a manner? See Isa. liii. 5, 6. (3) His resurrection. The evidence for this is ample. Note the witnesses, the nature of the appearances, and the number of days during which He appeared (3). Mistake was impossible. This foundation fact of the Gospel is undeniable. (4) The promise of the Spirit. Why is this called the promise of the Father? Is it not because all other gifts are included in this (comp. Matt. vii. 11 with Luke xi. 13)? Or is the promise made to Jesus, which was to crown his work on earth and to continue it through his disciples (ii. 33)?

These are the Gospel facts upon which our salvation and our power in the service of Christ depend. In chap. ii. it will be seen that these were the facts to which Peter bore witness on the day of Pentecost.

6-9. The scene of this last meeting was Mount Olivet (12). The disciples were still cherishing the hope of a temporal kingdom. This hope had received a terrible shock by the death of Christ (Luke xxiv. 21). His resurrection had revived it, for if He had conquered death, He could surely break the power of Rome. The reply of Jesus is significant (7, 8). It does not declare the hope to be wrong. The Old Testament abounds with promises of an earthly kingdom, of which Jerusalem is to be the centre. Because the time for this kingdom is not yet, we must not therefore relinquish the hope. It reminds us that God has his secrets, and among these are the times and seasons for fulfilling prophecy. No man can calculate so accurately as to fix the day. (See Deut. xxix. 29.) It promises to us full equipment for present duty (8). We are to be witnesses, whose witness-bearing must begin amongst those nearest to us, and must extend to the whole earth. Who is sufficient for such an undertaking? Not apostles, though they have lived in the company of Christ, and have conversed with Him since his resurrection, but God the Holy Ghost, possessing and indwelling men (John xv. 26, 27). The presence of the Spirit of God with man is the convincing proof that Christ is risen from the dead. This was his last promise before his ascension. (9) He was taken up. The Father exalted Him, as Jesus had often foretold, and had anticipated with such joy (John vi. 62; xiv. 12; xvii. 5). Yet He desired it, not merely for his own sake, but because it would enable Him to use more widely the power which was given to Him. Out of their sight, but not actually away from them. He went from them that He might, in a better sense, be continually near to them. It is for our gain as much as for his glory that He has gone (John xvi. 7).

10-11. The upward look of the Apostles expressed their longing to follow or at least to see their Lord where He had gone. The appearance of the two angels gave immediate evidence that they were still connected with Him. The promise is so definite that nothing except a literal return of this same Jesus can fulfil it. This is the New Testament hope. As surely as He came in humiliation and fulfilled the promises of the Old Testament, so surely will he return and fulfil the promises made to us. Live and work with this in view.

12. They returned to Jerusalem, not mourning their bereavement, but with great joy (Luke xxiv. 52). In the work to which they were called, the promised Spirit for whom they were to wait, and the hope of their Lord's sure return, they had reason for "joy unspeakable and full of glory."

THE IKWEZI-LAMACI MISSION.

Mrs. Aitchison, writing to the Young Men's Foreign Mission Society, Birmingham, states that the influenza has been prevalent in the part of Natal in which the Mission is working, attacking both blacks and whites. Every one in her own household was down, Mr. Aitchison having to attend to all, even while suffering himself. As to the work, the school since Christmas has been remarkably well attended, and, notwithstanding many difficulties, good progress has been made, both in general education and in Scriptural knowledge. The industrial department, in which the boys are being taught good, useful trades, is also very satisfactory.

The chief feature in all this, says the writer, is the joy of seeing the young people we have taught and trained now giving their hearts to Jesus. In the beginning of the year we received nine converts, and since then a number more are seeking; and when these young people make this stand, I cannot tell you the amount of influence for good there is shed abroad, although there are plenty, too, to make a stand against them, for some are set thinking and inquiring into this matter—the chief of all matters.

In February we had grand doings—a double wedding. Both parties were favourites, and all interested in the events. Great preparations were going on for some time, and so many, even to the little ones, were anxious to look well—indeed, I had a busy time trying to gratify all. The bridal party was George Jojo and Lingelwa, daughter of a native "medicine" doctor, and Skwilet and Stoffles, a sensible young man, brought up and much respected by a white family some few miles distant.

We did not forget the anniversary of the opening of the church, and again a large gathering assembled to give thanks and show their practical interest. The voluntary offering was far more than on any previous occasion, amounting to money value about £12. Of late we have been greatly blessed. Certainly the whole work—the services, branches and schools, helpers and learners, as well as seekers after truth—has never before been so hopeful and in such a flourishing state. Pray for us that we may not be carried away with success, but that we may be kept humble, our faith deepened; having a greater desire for the indwelling of the Spirit, getting a wider love for soul winning, to so forget self that nothing—either success or depression—can turn us aside or lessen our activity and zeal in the Master's cause. We need your prayers, too, for health of body. We do most heartily thank one and all for all the forms your practical interest take in the support of this work; it all helps to stimulate and increase our usefulness.

RAGGED CHURCH AND CHAPEL UNION.

Since its organisation, under the Earl of Shaftesbury and others, thirty-nine years ago, the Ragged Church and Chapel Union has endeavoured to provide or subsidise mission halls where the life-giving Gospel may reach those bowed down under poverty and sin. It has now a hundred preaching stations, in connection with which many Spirit taught and unpaid evangelists labour with marked success.

At the anniversary meeting held last Thursday, at 4, Trafalgar-square, Mr. Joseph Peters, who presided, contended that the great need of mankind was God's Christ. Rev. W. Edwards considered that work such as this, where the eternal verities of God's Word were brought into prominence, tended to draw together Christians who were so apt to be divided upon points of church government, which had nothing to do with essential truth, and which never could and never did save a soul. Lieutenant-Colonel Alves deprecated the attempt to make "emotional religion" take the place of solid Bible-teaching, which so works as to convince and convert sinners, and builds those up who are in the way. Major J. Smith maintained that the Union was but obeying the Lord, who advanced as proof of his Messiahship, that to the poor the Gospel was preached. Major Evered Poole related two interesting cases of fruitful rescue work. Mr. E. J. Curtis eloquently dwelt on the sympathy for others being a very practical and applicable measure of one's progress in Christian life.

Among others who took part in the meeting were W. A. Blake and Mr. Tompkins.

OBITUARY.

Dr. John William Kirton.

Many of our readers will hear with regret that the popular author of "Buy Your Own Cherries" is no longer with us. He has gone in to see the King. In August of last year indications of serious disease were manifested, but with courageous perseverance Mr. Kirton kept on with zeal and courage, earnestly working as a writer, lecturer, and preacher of the Gospel. In the early part of last week it was evident that he was rapidly sinking.

When the tidings were broken to him concerning the serious nature of his case, his submission to the Divine will was beautiful to behold. Calmly resting in the Lord Jesus, whose finished work he had known and rejoiced in for more than forty years, his end was perfect peace. Mr. Henry Varley, who is related to Mr. Kirton, was impelled, whilst in the City on Wednesday last, to go to the house, and there, after some hallowed converse and prayer, Mr. Kirton peacefully passed into "the inheritance of the saints in light." Too weak to use many words he pointed to the words which hung upon the wall, and said, "There is my confidence. The Lord is good, a stronghold in the day of trouble, and He knoweth them that trust in Him."

In 1856 Mr. Kirton was engaged as an active agent of the United Kingdom Alliance. Serving with marked assiduity for twelve years, he became then widely known as a public lecturer on the Temperance platform. During these years, both as an author and preacher of the Gospel of Christ, his power was widely felt, and his influence continued to increase. Occupying for some years the important post of secretary to the Order of Good Templars, we believe that mainly through his energy the formidable debt of £7000 was removed, and he left the Institution freed from its burden. His books, pamphlets, and tracts are almost legion, and our readers will not need reminding how genial and healthy have been his contributions and works. His tractate, "Buy Your Own Cherries," has given him world-wide fame. The publishers of this paper issue a succinct "Life of John Wesley" from his pen.

Within the past eighteen months he had been successful in erecting a substantial iron building at Harringay, near Finsbury-park, where he resided, and where with success he preached the Gospel of Christ. Of his remarkable life it may be written: "He has been steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord."

The funeral took place on Monday at Abney-park Cemetery, where many friends gathered to tell by their presence the loving esteem in which Mr. Kirton is held. His name throughout the country specially is as a household word.

Miss Layton.

Many will hear with regret of the death of another missionary in India from cholera—Miss M. E. Layton, Principal of the Cawnpur Memorial School. We recently recorded the death of Miss Janet Hunter, M.D., of Madras. Miss Layton had been in India fourteen years; she had an honourable record as principal of the M. E. Girls' School, Calcutta, and, four months ago, returned from furlough and took charge of the Cawnpur School. It appears that Miss Layton was feeling the strain of work and anxiety very keenly this hot weather, which, of course, made her an easier prey to the disease.

Rev. John Cruickshank, Turriff.

By the death of Rev. John Cruickshank, D.D., senior minister of Turriff, the Established Church of Scotland loses one of its oldest ministers. Dr. Cruickshank retired from the work of the ministry about three years ago, and since then has been living in London, where his death took place. He was a native of Fordyce, and after completing his studies for the ministry, served for some years as a chaplain in the Army. In the year 1828 he was appointed minister of Turriff, and with that parish he remained associated throughout the greater part of his long life.

Rev. A. Macpherson, Meigle.

Not only in ecclesiastical circles, but by the many who knew him, the intelligence of the death of Rev. Alexander Macpherson, the Free Church minister at Meigle, will be learned with profound regret. In his later years Mr. Macpherson was rather frail and infirm, but notwithstanding that he had reached about eighty-five years he attended to his pastoral visitations and pulpit ministrations with wonderful strength and zeal. He passed peacefully away in the quiet and secluded manse at Meigle last week. A thoroughly upright and God-fearing man, he was a typical minister in the discharge of his duties, and his death removes a figure well known and dearly beloved.

Rev. William Magill, D.D.

The Irish Presbyterian Church has incurred a heavy loss in the death of Rev. Dr. Magill, of Belfast, formerly of Cork, who has passed away in the eightieth year of his age. Deceased was a native of co. Down, and entered the ministry in 1834. In 1847 he was settled at Cork, where his ministry extended over a period of thirty-seven years, during which time he was given to see much spiritual fruit for his labours. In 1884 he felt compelled, owing to age, to resign his charge. He did not cease to work, however, but was much sought after for special services. He was an able preacher, a wise administrator, a devoted labourer in his Master's service, and a broad-minded man. His pen also was a busy one, and he contributed many articles, from time to time, to magazines and reviews.

Rev. G. M. H. Innocent.

During last week's sitting of the Methodist New Connexion Conference at Ashton-under-Lyne intelligence came of the sudden death of this young missionary, who was the son of the founder of the New Connexion Mission in China, Rev. John Innocent. Born in 1859, he was but three months old when taken by his parents to Tientsin, and was the first English child ever seen in that city. In May of last year he came to England from China on furlough, and in March of the present year he was married to Miss F. E. Pottinger, of Sunderland; and, after spending a few weeks with friends in various parts of the country, they left England for China on Easter Sunday, and the steamer was expected to arrive at Shanghai on Whit Sunday. This port, however, George Innocent never reached, for the message received by the Conference bore the brief, mournful words, "George Innocent died at Hong-Kong." Fuller particulars are anxiously awaited by a large circle of friends belonging to every community; and for the bereaved young widow, thus left desolate in a strange land, the tenderest sympathy is manifested.

Bournemouth.—Voluntary Building.

A very unusual and pleasing sight was to be observed in the neighbourhood of Rosebery-park, Pokesdown, during last Easter holidays, where a number of Christian friends were engaged together in the work of building a Mission Chapel. For about a year past the members of a mission here have been holding their services in the schoolroom, Stanley-road; but desiring to obtain a larger and more suitable building, they decided some nine months ago to raise funds to secure a good piece of land and build a hall. A splendid site at the corner of Morley and Harcourt roads, Rosebery-park, being offered them, they agreed to purchase it, and at once the sum of thirty pounds was contributed by members of the Mission. Having succeeded by means of collecting cards and their own voluntary offerings in obtaining the whole amount (ninety pounds) necessary to make the land free of debt,—a loan has been obtained for the amount required to build the hall.

Several members of the Mission then promised that if the bricks and mortar were provided they (being bricklayers) would build the walls free of all charge. Meanwhile, the same men commenced operations on the land to obtain sand and gravel, also digging the trenches and putting in the concrete footings. The foundations of the building being thus prepared and the bricks and lime all got in readiness, a resolute and cheery start was made in erecting the walls early on Good Friday morning. Six bricklayers joined in the work and other willing helpers were at hand to carry bricks, mix mortar, &c. By seven o'clock at night, they had raised the walls scaffold high, and continuing their "labour of love" for their next two holidays (Saturday and Monday) the walls of the main building were completed.

The self-denial of these men in thus giving the whole of their time for three days to the work of building the hall, speaks well as a Christian testimony, and their earnest, praiseworthy efforts should excite the sympathy and generous help of all Christian workers to enable them to clear off the debt of about £150 which will be involved in the erection and fittings of the hall. The hall is now completed, and was opened by a public meeting on Wednesday last. The Mission secretary is Mr. Thomas Tarrant, Morley-road, Pokesdown, Bournemouth.

Students at New College.

A series of meetings were held on Monday last, in the library of New College, London, arranged for by the Council with the view of stimulating the religious life of students and ministers. There was a large attendance. The Principal, Rev. Vaughan Price, presided, and addresses were delivered by various well-known ministers—Revs. H. Simon, Radford Thomson, Dr. Parker, and others. The address in the afternoon, by Rev. F. B. Meyer, on the Holy Spirit, with special reference to ministerial efficiency, led to a most interesting conference, in which several took part. In the evening the Lord's Supper was administered, and the closing address was given by Dr. Parker. The Council have every reason to be encouraged by the result of their effort.

Letters to the Editor.

ARMY CHAPLAINS.

Sir,—I can corroborate, from my own knowledge, many of your correspondents' remarks about the ritualism in the Army Chaplain's Department. The responsibility for this rests undoubtedly with the Chaplain-General. He appointed the chaplains who have been its nurses. Under his régime, a Roster has been initiated, whereby twenty-two of his nominees have been kept at home continuously since their appointment, while chaplains who have already borne the burden and heat of one tour of foreign service have been, and are being, most unfairly sent abroad a second time. The Chaplain-General has, to my knowledge, allied himself with ritualism by praising and approving its fosterers' action, even when that ritualism was disapproved of by members of the congregation, and was protested against by the chaplain in charge. A merciless "discipline" has been used to crush non-ritualistic chaplains. It has been exercised in my own case. For years past I have suffered persecution, because I refused to adopt the eastward position, and to succumb to the pressure brought to bear upon me to induce me to embrace ritualism. Dr. Edghill has now caused me to be driven out of the Army (securing likewise the confiscation of my pension), because I wrote a letter to The Broad Arrow commenting on his system, while at the same time I have been refused an opportunity of substantiating the statements made, which in justice to myself—as well as for the sake of the Chaplain-General himself—ought to be granted. Another chaplain, who, like myself, would not adopt the eastward position, has been removed recently from the active list, on a side issue.

If Army chaplains who will not propagate ritualism are thus treated—if they are, at great expense, shifted about from station to station, sent to places where their hands are tied, or relegated to out-of-the-way charges where they can do no harm—is it any wonder that Miss Robinson has been treated as she has? In view of Miss Robinson's explicit statement that she was "not allowed to hold meetings in barracks because the chaplains disapproved," the marvellous thing is that Mr. Brodrick should have been put up to say "she had never been refused permission." This, however, is only on a par with his previous declaration—viz., "That the Secretary for War was not aware that there was among any class of the chaplains dissatisfaction with the conduct of the Chaplain-General"!

I know from my own experience—though it is a sad confession to have to make—that the staff-sergeant mentioned by Major Windham is not the only soldier who has been compelled to sever his connection with the Church of England through being forced to attend ritualistic parade services. Is not the religious system which drives men out of the Church of England hostile to the true spirit of Christianity, as well as a source of danger and weakness to the Church of England in the Army? The garrison churches are intended to be places where all Church of England troops may attend Divine service, without having any violence done to their religious feelings and convictions by the mode in which the service is conducted. As far as my experience goes, such is not the case at present. This is a state of things the country will not, I imagine, suffer to continue.

As Vice-Admiral Grant truly says of Miss Robinson's case:—"This seems to me a question which calls for impartial investigation by competent authorities, and I trust it will not be long before such an investigation takes place." One would suppose the Chaplain-General would invite, and hail with delight, the prospect of such an investigation, together with a full and public inquiry into the administration of his department. If he has been misjudged, it would be so easy for him thus to prove it to the satisfaction of the public, and everyone concerned. Hitherto, however, such an inquiry seems to have been quietly ignored. More than one chaplain has even suggested that a subscription should be started in the department to enable the Chaplain-General to clear himself by taking out an action for libel.—Your obedient servant,

R. F. McLeod, late Chaplain to the Forces.

48, Warwick-road, W., June 13.

THE ACCUSER CAST OUT.

Sir,—Although I should not myself adopt Mr. Trench's mode of arguing from what is inconceivable—such à priori reasoning being unsatisfactory—yet, on the other hand, I cannot see that Mr. Brown has at all shaken his position, such as it is. Mr. Trench's argument evidently implies that heaven is the sphere of the universe where Christ is now in power, and it is no answer to this to speak of earth being a similar sphere because Christ reigns in the hearts of his people. I think old George Herbert has more truly described the nature of that reign when he says:—

> But now thou dost immure Thyself and close
> In some one corner of a feeble heart;
> Where yet both sin and Satan, thy old foes,
> Do pinch and straiten Thee, and use much art
> To gain thy third and little part.

At all events, even if this language be pitched too low for the ideal of Christian life, we can hardly speak of Christ's reign in the hearts of his people (which, by the way, is not a Scripture expression) as a sphere in which He reigns in power, and if not, there is no contradiction to Mr. Trench's position that "in no sphere of the universe is it conceivable that Christ and Satan can remain in power together."

As to Antichrist, whether we regard him as present or future, we all believe that when Christ comes into the sphere of his power it will be to destroy him, so here again Mr. Trench's position is untouched.

H. E. B.

Sir,—In reference to Mr. Robert Brown's letter (June 3, 17), I beg to remark that if Satan is now accusing saints of this dispensation, who have been already justified from all things, and if that great Hallelujah in heaven is still future, notwithstanding the ascension of the Atoner and the Justifier into heaven itself by his own blood, now to appear in the presence of God for us, it is strange that there is not one affirmation in the New Testament of such accusation; that it has no place in Christian theology; and is unknown, so far as I am aware, to our doctrinal hymns.

Is it credible that no mention should be made of a state of things which creates such interest in heaven that its termination causes the burst of thanksgiving and exultation of Rev. xii. 10-12?

Mr. Brown distinguishes between the offices of Advocate and High Priest, but he uses advocate and intercessor as interchangeable terms; and yet he quotes Heb. ix. 24, vii. 25, to prove Christ's intercession, as distinct from his priesthood; whereas these passages refer to Him as our High Priest, and not to any advocacy or intercession other than this.

Has it ever been received as a part of Christian doctrine that our Lord Jesus exercises an office as Advocate which is not included in his High Priesthood?

The charges laid by the accuser in Rev. xii. are not against those who have committed grievous outward sin, open sin, such as that of the incestuous Corinthian, as supposed by Mr. Brown. They were laid against "our brethren" who overcame him because of the blood of the Lamb [slain in God's purpose from the foundation of the world], and because of the word of their testimony, and who loved not their life even unto death. They were not backsliders and grievous sinners; they included the excellent of the earth, the elders who obtained a good report through faith, those of whom the world was not worthy, men like Noah, Daniel, and Job, David, Samuel, and the prophets. The better they were the more were they (like Mordecai) the objects of the accuser's malignant attacks. For the possibility, the ground, of the accusation lay in this, that the blood of atonement had not yet been shed, and that therefore no expiation had been actually made for sin. But when Jesus had put away sin by the sacrifice of Himself, and had made the offering by which He perfected for ever them that are sanctified, there was no room for an accuser any more. "Through death He rendered powerless him that had the power of death, that is the devil [the accuser], and delivered them who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage." I ask with all respect, is that work of Christ to be undone? Is not his a finished work?

The assertion that Zech. iii. is all future is quite unproved, and is in opposition to the view of reliable commentators who have been already quoted to show that the one day of removing iniquity was the day of Calvary. No one thinks that Heb. ii. 14 and ix. 26 are future, though all the results of that mighty sacrifice are not yet accomplished. M.

ALBERT VICTOR SAILORS' REST.

Sir,—H.R.H. the Duke of York, patron of the British and Foreign Sailors' Society, has kindly consented for his brother's memory to be associated with our great East London and its vast docks.

The Duke, himself a sailor, and knowing the sailors' needs, has consented for the contemplated extension in the West India Dock-road to be called the Albert Victor Sailors' Rest. The old disused public-house called the "Jolly Sailor," with the cottage behind, have already been purchased with their freehold for this purpose. A most valuable Institute at the Millwall Docks is to be opened by H.R.H. the Duchess of Teck on July 14. The Board hope also to strengthen their stations at the large Victoria and Albert Docks and at Shadwell, and to develope these Rests and Institutes in other needed centres. But to be able to do this, in view of recent extensions in South America, Russia, and other ports, they ask that this tender Memorial Fund, associated with a nation's great sorrow, should not be less than ten thousand pounds.

It is proposed by the "Albert Victor Memorial Fund" not only to erect this building, but to permanently sustain, and, where necessary, to extend these valued Rests and Institutes in London, the greatest sea-port in the world. If East London is thus provided for, the Society will be better able to respond to the most pressing appeals from yellow fever ports like Santos and Rio de Janeiro, where our seamen, captains, officers, and men have recently died in great numbers. In the latter port a brave young agent of the Society has just fallen a victim to yellow fever at the early age of twenty-two, after heroically ministering to British and Foreign seamen. The benefit of such Institutes abroad is seen in a report just received from Her Majesty's Minister, the chairman of the committee at Monte Video, that from April to December, 1891, 2605 naval seamen slept in the small Sailors' Home paying their way, while 3840 made use of it during these nine months, and at the same time 3368 meals and 962 beds were given to distressed merchant seamen.

When the late patron, the Duke of Clarence, visited this port in H.M.S. Bacchante, there was no shelter for the sailor, and he wrote of the blue jackets being crimped. It is appropriate that a memorial, associated with one who received no small part of his education on board ship, should be connected with the port of London. Seamen of all nations and from all ports come to London. Few realise the tremendous figures stated at the Society's meeting at the Mansion House. London adds to its population, including its greater boundaries, every year a town equal to the size of Plymouth. This London had in 1891 no less than 5,633,332 persons, 31 per cent. of these being described as poor. And to this poorest district there came in the previous year (including ships from foreign countries, British possessions, coastwise and repeated voyages) a fleet of 50,951 vessels of 13,141,455 tons. An expert reckons that on board of this fleet there would be 690,335 seamen. These men are scattered over a vast area, and cannot possibly be reached by a central institution. And the fact must be faced that near these great docks the inhabitants are poor and annually becoming poorer.

For seventy-four years the Society has worked in London. The Duke of Fife told a large audience at the Fishmongers' Hall what he saw at the Sailors' Institute, Shadwell, erected under the patronage of the late Prince Consort. But to-day seamen are scattered over a vast area, and the "Albert Victor Memorial Fund" will further help to meet this need. Help will come from many countries to this fund, but the directors hope that not less than £1000 will be received from each of the following:—

Contributions might be sent from Australia to the Hon. J. H. Angas, V.P., Angaston, South Australia; Canada to the Hon. Sir Charles Tupper, High Commissioner, London; Scotland to ex-Lord Provost Henderson, Aberdeen; Wales to Mr. John Cory, J.P., V.P., Cardiff; Ireland to the Lord Mayor of Belfast; or to the treasurer, Mr. Thomas Hankey, Bank of England.

We have the honour to be, Sir, on behalf of the Society,

David Evans, Lord Mayor, Mansion House, London.
Brassey, President.
Wm. Sinclair, Archdeacon of London, V.P.
Henry D. Grant, V.P., Vice-Admiral.
George Williams, V.P., President Young Men's Christian Association.
J. Monro Gibson, Ex-Moderator English Presbyterian Church.
E. Herber Evans, Chairman Congregational Union of England and Wales.
A. Scrutton, Director.
Edward W. Matthews, Secretary.

British and Foreign Sailors' Society, Mercer-street, Shadwell, London, E.

WOMAN'S POSITION IN THE CHURCH.

Dear Sir,—For many years my soul has been exercised on this momentous subject. Leaving on one side all worldly policy as to woman's rights, I desire simply to advocate the cause of women as members of Christ's body, and temples of the Holy Ghost. Having for many years worshipped with those who claim to have the authority of God's Word for meeting in the name of Jesus, "simply as disciples gathered" round the person of the Lord, in the power and under the direct control of the Holy Spirit, for worship and ministry, I have enjoyed rich seasons of communion and blessing. The holy anointing oil has flowed from our risen Head down to the skirts of his garment. We have feasted at the King's table, his banner of love seemed to be waving over us, and the odour of his name was as precious ointment poured forth.

But I must confess also that many times the ministry of the sanctuary has failed to strengthen and refresh. I have gone to the meeting rejoicing in God my Saviour, but instead of the communion of saints being a means of further grace, or the remembrance of my Lord's death bringing me into a fuller realisation of His love, I have been constrained to say,

"They have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid Him." Many times, too, my heart has been surcharged with longings to give expression to the yearnings of my soul, and I have been painfully conscious of grieving, and even quenching the Spirit of God, through disobedience to His dictates, overwhelmed by the fear of man.

I am constrained to confess this, being fully convinced that there must be some mistake in silencing women in the presence of men. I find, too, I am not alone in my convictions. Many sisters have told me they have gone through the same experience, and have, like myself, been constrained to seek open doors for the exercise of gifts, given them, as they believe, by the Anointed Head of the Church, for which they will be held responsible in the day of his coming. In these days of evolution and revolution, what might not be accomplished if a company of men and women were banded together by the unity of God's Spirit as witnesses to the truth, waiting upon God for a fresh baptism of the Holy Ghost?

In these last days such a testimony is needed. Shall we not sink our differences, heal our divisions, and come together with one soul, claiming the power of the Lord to be manifested as in Acts x. 31-33?—Yours faithfully, P. L.

THE CHRISTIAN'S RELATION TO THE STATE.

In view of the impending General Election, we are glad to call attention to Mr. George F. Trench's thoughtful pamphlet, "God in Government: or, The Christian's Relation to the State." (4d. Shaw.) Some who are desirous of giving practical effect to a righteous judgment on current political questions, hesitate to do so through fear that they would thereby be compromising their position as children of God and heirs of a kingdom which is "not of this world." Mr. Trench writes regarding New Testament teaching:—

The sum and substance of the revelation would seem to be that—(1) God alone is the author of power; (2) The powers are of God's appointment; (3) The object of government is the punishment of evil-doers, and the praise of them that do well; (4) The Christian is to acknowledge the institution as one provided "for his good;" (5) the Christian is to be in subjection, and to make rulers the subject of his prayers and thanksgivings. Thus we perceive God is the author of governmental power in the world, according to the solemn and reiterated declaration of the inspired Word. To that Divine revelation let every spiritual mind bow in humble submission.

There is an unscriptural spirituality, or sentimentalism, which would disown this, and denounce magisterial rule as worldly, because its sphere is the world, forgetting that God is its author, and that He has ordained it as a temporal blessing for the world in His grace, as He has ordained the Gospel a spiritual one. I may quote one sentence from a pamphlet on this subject to illustrate the error I allude to. The writer says, "The fountain of authority, whence I derive mine, is the world. How can any who say they are his, retain any authority conferred on them by the world?" Here the plain word of God is directly contradicted, in proof of which I need only again call attention to the passages to which I have already referred, which, if they prove anything, prove that the fountain of rule is God, the believer's Father, and that those who hold the office should fill it as servants of God.

In the answer to this simple question lies the solution of every inquiry as to whether a Christian may fill the post or not. Whence comes the authority? By whom is it conferred? If it be of the world or the devil, let us flee from it, nay, rebel against it; but if it be of our Father in heaven, let Him have the willing consent of our obedient hearts to undertake the duty when circumstances require it, however difficult or irksome it may be.

The confusion of mind that gives rise to such a statement as I have quoted, arises from the fact that the channel through which authority descends to the officers of justice and peace is a worldly one; viz., the rulers of this world. But they are not its source, its fountain; God is its fountain. And in the deputing of that authority to many hands, though our rulers may be ungodly, and actuated only by the spirit of the world, it is as God's ministers they rule and depute rule; and it is from their hands as God's ministers that his children should accept the charge.

This principle, that God is the fountain of government, being fairly admitted, it is impossible, to my mind, to avoid the conclusion that godly persons are best fitted for its administration. Nor can such decline the office on the ground that this beneficent ministry is also by God's wisdom entrusted to other hands than theirs. That an ungodly or a worldly man should be admitted by God to rule for Him, the unjust set to administer justice, must ever be a matter of difficulty to us, forming one department of the great mystery of the sufferance of sin in the Creator's handiwork. But it is no wonder that God's children should be his ministers in an office so directly ordained of Him.

They only can serve Him faithfully from the highest motives of subjection and love. They only can truly recognise the sanctity and solemnity of the office. They only (knowing as they do the arts and raging of Satan) can fully estimate the blessing it is to man to have such protection from his power.

For every reason, therefore, they may, when duty so requires, cheerfully accept the service, fulfilling it to God and not to man. In heaven such service will, thank God, be no longer needed. But on earth we all occupy a double position. As to the spirit we are heavenly, as to the body earthly. Citizens of heaven in one sense, we are citizens of earth in another. (Acts xxi. 39.) Encompassed by spiritual dangers, and supplied by God with spiritual ministry for our help, we are also encompassed by many temporal dangers; and God has for our protection ordained the ministry of which we speak.

The Book World.

The Social Centres of London, being a Comprehensive Guide to the Social, Educational, Recreative, and Religious Institutes and Clubs of the Metropolis. 6d. (Polytechnic Reception Bureau, 309, Regent-street, W.) Several interesting papers on various departments of work, form an introduction to a series of very useful lists relating to the various districts of London.

Foreshadowings of the Gospel, and other Biblical Studies. By Henry Thorne. (2s. Drummond's Tract Depôt.) This little book contains fifty-two talks with young men and others. Based on the subjects included by the National Council of the Young Men's Christian Association in the list of lessons for 1891, they cover a wide field of Scripture instruction, special prominence being given to fulfilled prophecy, biography, and practical religion. The book abounds in illustrative information, and conductors of Bible-classes will find it of special service.

The Story of Uganda and the Victoria Nyanza Mission. By Sarah Geraldina Stock. (3s. 6d. Religious Tract Society.) This book, well written and illustrated, will have a peculiar interest at the present time. It gives some idea of the progress of knowledge regarding Central Africa, and a useful outline of the work of the Church Missionary Society in Uganda. Of necessity the fascinating and pathetic stories of Hannington, Parker, and Mackay are briefly given. There are also portraits of the various missionaries, and the book concludes with a hint that though much has been done, "clouds loom darkly on the horizon." There is a reference to the intriguing of the Romanists, of which more has been heard since the pages left the printer's hands.

The Kingdom of Christ and the Church of Ireland. By Right Hon. R. R. Warren, LL.D., Chancellor of Cashel and Waterford. (3s. Hodder and Stoughton.) This able little book might be described as "a brief on behalf of the Church of Ireland." Churchmen, and indeed all Englishmen, have very vague ideas of the changes effected in that Church, both in formularies and discipline, since its disestablishment. Whatever men may think of that proceeding, few Evangelical Christians can deny that the Irish Church is more spiritually effective since. We would commend Evangelical Churchmen, in view of possible changes, ecclesiastical and political, to study the Irish Book of Common Prayer aided by Mr. Warren's clear and convincing commentary. The appendix is excellent. The author knows what he writes of, and writes well.

The Huguenots in the Seventeenth Century, including the History of the Edict of Nantes, from its Enactment in 1598 to its Revocation in 1685. By Charles Tylor. (Simpkin, Marshall and Co.) A lucidly written chapter of Protestant history. After a brief account of the promulgation of the edict by Henry IV., the steps are traced by which, through nearly a century, efforts were incessantly made to undo his work; and the narrative of the sufferings of the Huguenot Church is continued down to the year 1700. Here is a book for the times, as showing the unchangeable policy of Romanism, and what Evangelical Protestantism may do and dare by the grace of God. The result of prolonged research, this little volume is admirably divided into short chapters, and will be perused with interest by all thoughtful readers. There are several good illustrations.

Light and Peace: Sermons and Addresses by Henry Robert Reynolds, D.D., Principal of Cheshunt College. (3s. 6d. Sampson Low and Co.) This is an important addition to the "Preachers of the Age" series, and is properly dedicated to the former students of Cheshunt College, to whom the discourses were primarily addressed. The purpose of the volume is to set forth the relation that subsists between religious ideas and holy living. After maintaining that an intelligent apprehension of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ illumines the darkest places of our thought, our duty, and our destiny, Dr. Reynolds exercises hearts and minds alike in regard to surrender and consecration, combat and growth, and other lines of life and action which issue in the peace which passeth all understanding. Inspiring to preachers, and calculated to minister refreshment and comfort to all readers of a reflective turn, the book is worthy its distinguished author, of whom an excellent engraved portrait is given as a frontispiece.

Studies in Scottish History, chiefly Ecclesiastical. By A. Taylor Innes. (Hodder and Stoughton.) The second part of this book is devoted to a series of thoughtful, earnest, and informative sketches of Scottish Church History, as viewed by a Presbyterian lawyer of some eminence. The half century since the Disruption, as well as the movements within the Church of Scotland which led to that Disruption, are well handled from a Free Churchman's standpoint. We are not, however, wholly satisfied with the two opening essays which form the first half of the book. One of these deals with the saintly Rutherford, portraying what the writer considers a darker side of his character; while the second seems conversely an attempt to whitewash one whose memory is still execrated in Scotland as the "bluidy Mackenzie." The author deems these biographical studies, from a new point, likely to afford light on a puzzling problem in Scottish character, but we question if many will be willing to accept his estimate of their usefulness.

Drummond's Tract Depot has issued a series of six booklets, "Sketches from Life," by Mr. Charles Cook. They are printed in colours and illustrated. (1s. per dozen.)

The Crucifixion of our Lord Jesus Christ (Digby, Long, and Co.), a Poem by J. W. Farmer, can only be described as 270 pages of solemn doggerel, with the rules of rhyme, metre, and grammar set at defiance on every page.

Last week's Gentlewoman had a special supplement, containing portraits of all the Queens and Empresses of Europe. These have never before been published together, and form a companion picture to the "Royal Children of Europe," previously published, every edition of which was speedily sold out.

Through Northern Seas. By W. W. Champion. (2s. 6d. Jarrold and Sons.) A somewhat prosaic description of a trip taken last summer to "the land of the midnight sun." A little "padding" here and there might be excusable, but thirteen pages taken up with a poem by Will Carleton, simply because it was read by one of the travellers, is too great a strain on the reader's indulgence. The reproduced photographs are the best things in the book.

A New Creed: Human and Humane. (3s. 6d. Digby, Long, and Co.) The author dedicates this work to "suffering humanity," but himself remains discreetly "nameless." So far as we can extract the essence of a very diffuse and rambling essay, the "new creed" propounded is the transforming power of Divine sympathy; but then, it has not been left to the author to discover that. Moreover, it is only one factor in a very complex situation, and can by no stretch of common sense be dignified by the name of a "creed." The writer gives utterance to many excellent truisms, but we fear that suffering humanity will find small relief in his prescription.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

From T. Fisher Unwin.—The Art of Singing, by Sinclair Dunn. (2s.)

From S. W. Partridge and Co.—Nella; or, Not My Own. By J. G. Cooper. (1s. 6d.)

From Hodder and Stoughton. The Gospel of St. Matthew. Vol II. Bible-class Expositions by Dr. Alex. Maclaren. 3s. 6d.

From Edward Arnold, 37, Bedford-street, Strand:—Protestant Episcopal Layman's Handbook. By an Ex-Churchwarden. Second edition, enlarged. 3s. 6d.

MISSIONERS FOR THE NORTH SEA.

Will you allow me, on behalf of the Council of the Mission to Deep-Sea Fishermen, to invite the help of any evangelical ministers and laymen who would be willing, for the sake of winning souls for Christ, to devote two or three weeks of their summer or autumn holiday to evangelistic work on the North Sea?

A cruise in one of our mission ships would, to any person who has a love for the souls of his fellowmen, offer a grand opportunity for real missionary work in the midst of bracing sea air and the rough, manly life of the fishing fleets.

Two things, however, are of the greatest importance:—First, that applicants should not only have an earnest desire to preach the Gospel, but also sufficient experience in evangelistic work to make them acceptable to the older as well as to the younger men in the fleets. Secondly, that they should be proof against seasickness, and have sufficient strength and activity for climbing in and out of boats and ships at sea.

The Council will gladly welcome offers of service addressed to the Secretary, Mission to Deep-Sea Fishermen, Bridge House, 181, Queen Victoria-street, London; and whilst afloat will regard such persons as the guests of the Mission.—I remain, dear Sir, yours very truly, W. F. A. Archibald.

Inglewood, Woking.

A United Service Home.

Dear Sir,—We have opened in Devonport a United Service Home, where the social and spiritual welfare of the soldiers, sailors, and Metropolitan police is sought. Though under the direction of the acting Wesleyan Chaplain, the home is non-sectarian, its advantages are open to every man in Her Majesty's service, and the workers seek to bring men to Christ, and not to proselytise or interfere with existing agencies. The premises have been suitably fitted. Friends locally have generously helped, but a sum of £150 yet remains to meet the initial cost.

(Rev.) C. de P. Giddon.

Garfield-terrace, Devonport.

Temperance Notes.

The Leeds Temperance Society held last week interesting open-air meetings in Jubilee Park.

"To drink well," said Demosthenes, the great orator of Greece, "is a property meet for a sponge, but not for a man."

The British Medical Temperance Association now numbers 415 members and 81 associates, who are abstaining medical students.

W. C. T. U. work is being vigorously pushed in Wallawalla co. (Wash.), Indiana, St. Paul and Duluth (Minn.), West Virginia, and other districts.

A memorial in favour of "the popular veto" is being widely circulated among the clergy and is receiving, it is believed, numerous signatures.

At a crowded meeting held in the Music Saloon, Wakefield, stirring addresses were delivered on the evils of opium by Rev. J. and Mrs. Adams, and Mr. H. Varley.

"Wine bringeth forth three grapes—the first of pleasure, the second of drunkenness, and the third of sorrow"—was the saying of Anacharsis the Scythian.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Chicago has established a free dispensary for the cure of alcoholism. It is open every evening from eight till nine and the treatment is free.

The Sons of Temperance have been holding their annual session at Bristol, and the report for the past year shows a total membership of 28,612. The Cadets of Temperance now number 8,772, having added 1,213 during the year.

It would need six hundred years to send a Bible to each inhabitant of the globe at the present rate of progress; the drink bill would enable us to do it in six months. Missions cost us seven shillings for each tick of the clock; drink about eight guineas.

Miss Mary Allen West, for years editor of The Union Signal, is going to the Sandwich Islands and Japan, by special commission of the World's W.C.T.U., to teach and train workers by means of her schools, held a few days in a place.

Rev. Charles Garrett, has sent out an appeal to every voter in the Abercromby division of Liverpool asking him to promise not to vote for any candidate who will not support Sunday closing. Out of nine thousand electors, 1861 have pledged themselves to this proposal.

Miss Hewlett, of Mirzapur, in the course of a recent Band of Hope address, said that drunkenness is not in India a national sin, as it is in England. But bhang is drunk to excess in some districts, and English intoxicants are also being largely introduced. Some castes in Bengal drink heavily—for example, the "cowherds," a numerous class in and around Mirzapur.

Dr. Andrew Wilson, in a recent paper on the subject, asserts that apoplexy "is an ailment liable specially to affect drunkards, for in them the blood vessels are weakened by the alcohol, and rendered more liable to rupture."..."See that no stimulants are given to the patient," continues the doctor. "This is very important. If you give brandy or whisky to an apoplectic man you may kill him. The heart has to be kept quiet. You don't want an increased supply of blood to go to the brain, and you will send it additionally fast if you give stimulants."

The liquor dealers (says The Union Signal) own Chicago and every large city on the continent. Their chains are riveted more closely every day. The latest is a vote of forty-three to seventeen, whereby they have defeated in Chicago's city council a Bill which, after explicitly stating that it did not interfere with existing saloons, provided that in any block where a majority of the buildings is devoted exclusively to residence purposes it shall be necessary, in order to obtain a licence, to prove that a majority of the property owners and householders have signed the saloon-keeper's application.

The Primitive Methodist Conference last week adopted the following resolution:—That this Conference, representing the churches of Primitive Methodism, with a total membership of nearly two hundred thousand, and acting in harmony with the traditions of the Connexion, which has always been first and foremost in the van of drink reform, and believing as we do that the drink traffic is the fruitful source of crime, pauperism, immorality, and religious indifference, demands of the Government of this country immediate legislation for the absolute closing of public-houses on Sundays, popular control of the licensing system with the right of veto, and the placing of club-houses where intoxicants are sold under police surveillance.

At an inquest held last week in Central London, on an aged woman shown to be a habitual drunkard, Dr. Norman Kerr, president of the Society for the Study of Inebriety, testified that death was due to apoplexy consequent upon habits of intemperance. He added that never within his recollection had he seen so many drunken women about the streets as during the recent Whitsuntide holidays. He had frequently seen groups of four or five of them—some quite young—in a more or less intoxicated condition. The most practical proposal, in his (Dr. Kerr's) opinion, was that a prison should be set apart for the reception and treatment of chronic liquor cases where there was no actual crime done. Compulsory power of detention should be conceded, and treatment and maintenance should be gratuitous in the case of the poor, for whom at present no provision whatever was made.

Personalia.

Mr. W. R. Lane's address is now 3, Upper Highlever-road, North Kensington, W.

Rev. J. E. Clapham is recovering strength and hopes to be at his post at the Conference next month.

Rev. E. Herber Evans, D.D., has been appointed Principal of the North Wales Independent College.

Rev. R. W. Dale, D.D., is we are glad to learn regaining strength and giving promise of early restoration to health.

Mr. Joshua Poole is, we regret to hear, very ill from influenza and weakness. Many will pray that this honoured labourer may be once more restored to strength.

Canon Chalmers, of Melbourne, at one time a missionary in Borneo, has been chosen to succeed Dr. Mosac Thomas, as Bishop of Goulbourn, New South Wales.

Rev. W. F. Moulton, D.D., Wesleyan ex-President, is somewhat seriously ill, and speech-day at the Leys School, Cambridge, of which he is principal, has been postponed.

Rev. B. Gregory, D.D., for so many years Wesleyan Connexional editor, has intimated his intention of shortly resigning his office, on the ground of failure in health.

Canon Henry Blagden, who has been recently appointed honorary canon of Christ Church, Oxford, has intimated his intended resignation of the vicarage of Hughenden, Bucks.

Mrs. Grattan Guinness is, we are thankful to learn, progressing slowly at Cliff House, and able to be out of doors on fine days. She is yet, however, quite unable to resume her work.

Rev. A. Mackennal, D.D., delivered last week the annual address to the students of Mansfield College, selecting as his topic "The Living Christ and the Christian Consciousness."

Dr. Kerr, of Morocco, has we regret to hear, suffered from a severe bereavement. His twin boys have both been taken from him. They died at the Mission House in Rabat within a few days of each other.

Mr. W. A. Southwell, the General Secretary of the Melbourne Y.M.C.A., is, at latest news, slowly recovering from protracted and severe illness, and would not be able to resume his duties for many weeks.

Rev. W. Talbot Hindley, whose work in North London as an earnest clergyman is well known and appreciated, has been appointed to the vicarage of Meads, Eastbourne. We doubt not he will do much to uphold Evangelical truth in that fashionable Sussex resort.

Bishop Wm. Taylor, of Africa, requests us to announce that he has instructed his publisher, Rev. Ross Taylor, to send to all who may apply for the same his beautifully illustrated African News for three months free of expense. Addresses should be sent on a postal card to 210, Eighth Aveune, New York.

Rev. Dr. Pierson preached his farewell sermon at the Metropolitan Tabernacle on Sunday evening prior to returning to America. There was an audience of six thousand persons, and the address was very impressive. It is not yet determined whether Dr. Pierson will return, or even be asked to return, in September to the Tabernacle, but Rev. Thomas Spurgeon will, in the meanwhile, take up the work.

Miss Fooks (sister of Mrs. John McKittrick, of the Congo Balolo Mission) who has since 1883 been working in connection with the Home Mission Department of the East London Institute, and teaching at Doric Lodge, has been accepted by the London Missionary Society for India, and expects to sail next autumn. She will be accompanied by Miss Christlieb (daughter of the late Professor Theodor Christlieb, of Bonn), who has spent two years at Doric Lodge.

THE RIOTS IN CHINA.—Letters received from Fu-Kien describe the disturbances in which Misses Johnson and Newcombe were threatened with rough treatment. The riot is explained as having arisen out of processions organised "to appease the evil spirits" on account of the influenza epidemic which had broken out. Some men went to the house of the missionaries demanding money for the idol feast. On being refused, they raised the feeling of the mob against the missionaries, and some hundreds of men and boys gathered round the house; they battered down the door, but, beyond jostling and crushing, no harm was done to the ladies. The mob tore down from the front wall the Emperor's proclamation for the protection of missionaries, and continued shouting for nearly two days, when the Mandarin came with soldiers, and took the ladies to the Yamen, where they were treated kindly by his wife. None of their property was injured, and it is believed that the feeling against them was not general. On the contrary, kindness was shown. The ladies have retired to the Mission Station at Nang-Wa, and were in safety when the mail left.

Evangelistic Notes.

Rev. James Pinkham is at present doing good work in Wyoming.

Lord Radstock has been giving addresses in the Town Hall of Simla, India's summer capital.

Rev. J. F. T. Hallowes, M.A., of Birmingham, has conducted a mission at Seaford (Sussex) with marked success.

Rev. C. H. and Mrs. St. John have been conducting a series of evangelistic services at Weir, Kan., which have been fruitful in results.

Rev. F. C. Spurr has conducted a series of conferences on the person and work of the Holy Spirit at the Baptist Church, Gipsy-road, Norwood.

Mr. William Forbes has been giving a number of addresses at the New Hall, Tottenham. On Sunday next he will begin a mission at Bridge of Allan, in Scotland.

Messrs. Jenner and Titmuss, of the Pastor's College, recently conducted a fortnight's evangelistic mission at New Southgate Chapel. The Lord blessed the services, and many professed faith in the Lord Jesus Christ.

Burslem Wakes.—During these great annual gatherings, when thousands assemble in the Potteries, special services are carried on by Rev. M. Graham and other earnest workers amongst the masses. Mr. J. J. Browne, of the London City Mission, goes down to assist in the work.

Rev. John McNeill continues to meet with much success in his Gospel mission in Dumfriesshire. He is arranging to have an evangelistic tour in the extreme north of Scotland, beginning at Thurso and culminating at Braemaw, where he will preach on the Sabbaths in August.

Dublin.—Every Sunday a band of earnest workers from Merrion Hall conduct Gospel services near the Custom House, in Phœnix-park, and at Irishtown. Large numbers assemble, and the Gospel is quietly listened to. It is intended this summer to hold similar services at Merrion, a busy promenade. It is believed that God has used this open-air testimony to his glory.

Mr. Henry Varley conducted the services last Lord's Day at the Mission Hall at Harringay, erected through the labours of the late Mr. J. W. Kirton. Deep interest prevailed. The building was crowded at night. The power of the Holy Spirit was evidently with both speaker and hearers. Considerably more than a hundred rose in the after-meeting to confess their reception of the word of life.

Belfast.—The Mission recently held in Belfast by Mrs. Charles Inglis has been greatly owned of God. The Tent has been filled nightly, and on Sundays by overflowing congregations. Not a service has passed without some professing conversion. Many of the addresses given were intensely solemn and searching. One preached on "Lot's wife" seems to have been specially blessed in bringing conviction home to many hearts.

Rev. George C. Grubb has concluded his special missions in Australia and New Zealand. In March he was at Oamaru and Christchurch; in April at Wellington and Nelson; while later he visited Napier, Gisborne, and Auckland. The Christchurch Mission, says the missionary, was very good; we are continually hearing of the blessings which were received; the converts have started all sorts of meetings. The Wellington Mission has been wonderful; crowds were turned away from the Opera House—a splendid building, which seats about two thousand. A number of souls have been beautifully saved, and very many Christians have been lifted higher.

Notices.

Communications Received with Thanks.—J.W.F. B.B. M.L. P.G.L. N.S.T. J.A.E. S.L.R. C.M. G.B. E.G.C. C.K. M.C. J.E. G.W. M.A.B. W.H.H. R.M.C. J.D. J.E.P. W.M.J. G.M.B. C.A.B. J.C.P. H.W.B. A.H. C.D.T. C.T. T.T. E.A.P. D.R. Mrs. C.G. J.A.O. R.T. H.E.B. F.B.M. L.G. A.M. A.H.R. H.W.P. J.D. J.P. G.K.F. E.L.W. W.W. J.V.S. B.S. H.S. F.W. M.C. W.R.L. C.I. Miss D. W.J.G. J.N.R. D.J.M. J.M. B.H. D.C.G. S.A.W. J.W.R.T. W.C. J.P.'. W.B. E.D. C.Y. G.R. M.P. W.G.S. S.J.M. C.E.P. M.J.G. R.C. A.W.J. W.D. W.W.S. H.W.S. C.J.F. A.B.O. W.H.B. L.B. J.B.F. E.S.B. G.C. L.V. T.F. M.W. R.T.T. T.J. R.T. B.L. E.A.K. H.S. B.H. F.N. M.H.S. H.N. J.R.E. T.K.B. F.B.T. J.H.F.H. M.A.A. S.H. L.C. W.D.M. W.L. S.Y. J.C.F. M.A.S.

Mr. George Pearse has returned (from Marseilles) to 48, Rue Brunel, Ternes, Paris.

Mr. Monro Collings has now removed to South View Cottage, Stoke-road, Gosport.

Applicants for Tracts.—J. J. Browne, 48, Upper-park-road, Hampstead, N.W.; Charles Bulstrode, Newtown, Bishops Waltham; A. F. Holway, 126 and 127, Walton-street, Oxford; Miss May Stephenson, 50, Great Russell-street, Birmingham; H. Hickmott, 33, St. George-road, Hastings; F. Fayles, Cattybrook, near Bristol; Rev. F. Sumner, Compton Greenfield Rectory, near Bristol; Mrs. Curry, Norton Fitzwarren, Taunton, Somerset; Charles Locke, 85, Ilbert-street, Queen's-park, W.

New York yearly meeting is earnestly opposing the unjust treatment of Southern negroes, one hundred of whom have been killed during the year, seven burned alive, and others tortured. It is also opposing the restrictive laws against the Chinese, and any legislative enactment for opening the Columbian Exposition on Sundays, or selling intoxicating drinks thereat.

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

Rev. J. J. Lias has been appointed to the Rectory of East Bergholt.

A new mission church was opened on Saturday at Hackney-wick, in connection with the Eton Mission.

It is stated that in seven years both the C.M.S. Intelligencer and Gleaner have nearly doubled their circulation.

Rev. Cecil Hook has now entered upon his duties as vicar of Oswestry; his health is reported to be quite restored.

The Bishop of Sodor and Man delivered his primary charge last week—a strictly practical and business-like utterance.

The autumn Conference of the Yorkshire Evangelical Union will, on the invitation of Canon M'Cormick, be held this year at Hull.

The Bishop of Oxford has just opened a new Labour Home in Oxford. It is well arranged for the raising of tramps and criminals.

The Executive of the Curates' Augmentation Society Fund voted during the past year grants amounting to upwards of seven thousand five hundred pounds.

Mr. J. D. Allcroft invited last Friday an influential company to breakfast at the Cannon-street Hotel, to talk over the best means of extending the work of the C.P.A.S.

The Church Army has been incorporated under the Board of Trade's Act as a Limited Liability Company. Each member of the committee makes himself responsible for £100.

Bishop Claughton and his wife celebrated their golden wedding last week. Dr. Claughton, who was the first Bishop of St. Albans, to which he was transferred at his own request from Rochester, is considerably over eighty years of age.

The Ipswich and Norwich Evangelical Society held a united Conference last week, when Rev. A. R. Buckland opened a discussion on "Present-Day Literature, its Relation to Faith and Morals," and Professor Stanley Leathes on "Old Testament Criticism."

By means of the new sustentation fund, the Bishop of Liverpool has been enabled to raise the stipends of sixteen incumbents in poor parishes with more than five thousand inhabitants to £245 per annum, and of seven incumbents of parishes with less than five thousand inhabitants to £200 per annum.

At the quarterly Conference of the Notts and District P.S.A. Classes, at Langley Mill, the vicar of Heanor, Rev. C. E. Corfield, said he had inaugurated a class in his parish church, and there was now a membership of 150, all men. He invited those present, to whatever denomination they belonged, to come and address the class, and promised them the use of the lectern for the purpose.

On Wednesday week the Lord Mayor presided at the Mansion House at a meeting held with the object of drawing attention to the appeal the Bishop of Saskatchewan is making for the sum of twenty thousand pounds, to enable the district of Calgary to be severed from his diocese and formed into a separate bishopric. The diocese of Saskatchewan covers an area as large as France, while Calgary is equal in size to Great Britain and Ireland, excluding Wales. The Bishop addressed the meeting, and speeches in support were made by Rev. F. E. Wigram and General Lowry.

CONGREGATIONAL.

A church is to be erected at Kirdford for a congregation gathered by the Sussex Home Mission.

The Highbury Quadrant congregation have decided to give a second invitation to Rev. W. J. Dawson, of Southport.

Rev. E. Greaves, of Mirzapur, North India, preached the Sunday-school anniversary sermons at Torpoint on Sunday.

Rev. March Timson has been appointed Secretary of the Western Division of the Sussex Association, in succession to Rev. W. Morley, who is leaving for Australia.

As a result of a "Welcome Mission," founded by Rev. J. Le Pla, at Middlegate Church, Great Yarmouth, one hundred adults have signed the pledge in a little over six months.

Rev. G. S. Barrett preached at Princes-street Church, Norwich, last Sunday, a sermon on "The Reunion of Christendom," suggested by the visit of the Primitive Methodist Conference to the city.

Mr. David Thomas, son of the late Rev. J. Thomas, was ordained on Thursday minister of the Hill Church, Swansea, in succession to his father, who laboured there since the formation of the church about ten years ago.

The Countess of Huntingdon's Church, Brighton (pastor Rev. J. B. Figgis), was reopened last Friday after renovation. The electric light has been introduced into the church. Dr. Pentecost preached at the afternoon service, taking as his text Ex. xxv. 1-8.

A large number of coal porters employed at the King's-cross bays, St. Pancras, were entertained at tea on Monday week at Bedford Church Schools. Addresses were given by Mr. Prentice and other friends interested in this department of Christian work.

The work connected with the New Grange Church, Great Horton, Bradford, has so far been attended with considerable success. Since the place was opened in May last, there have been large congregations at each service, and already much useful toil has been carried on in the district.

Miss Charlotte Spicer presided last week at a meeting held in Mansfield Hall, Canning Town, in connection with the Evening Home for Working Girls. The factory girls were present in large numbers, and delighted a crowded audience of friends by a display of musical drill and by tasteful singing.

An interesting meeting was held on Wednesday week in New-court Chapel, to bid farewell to a band of seven missionaries going out to Madagascar. Mr. and Mrs. Sibree and Mr. and Mrs. Huckett, and Miss Craven are returning to the service after rest; while Mr. and Mrs. Sharman are fresh labourers.

Mr. Hadley Stewart, M.P., presided on Thursday evening at the ceremony of laying the foundation-stone of a new Congregational church to be erected at Barnet. Mr. Stewart is an old Barnetonian, and his father was for many years pastor of the church which now seeks to erect more commodious premises. Amongst other notable Congregational ministers who have been connected with this church were the late Professor Griffiths and Dr. Allon. Mr. Stewart announced his intention of giving a cheque for £25 towards the building fund.

BAPTIST.

Rev. W. Herbert Harris, of Preston, preaches at Colwyn Bay, N.W., in August.

The Association of Gloucester and Hereford reports progress and encouragement.

The Bucks Association reports good earnest work and indications of blessing, during the past year.

A new chapel has been opened at Cadoxton-Barry, a rapidly-growing suburb of Barry Dock.

Revs. Dr. Glover and C. Williams addressed a centenary missionary meeting at Tredegarville, Cardiff, on Thursday week.

At the urgent desire of many friends Rev. J. P. Clark has consented to continue his services at Gunnersbury, W., for a further term of six months.

Pastor John Felmingham commenced his ministry at Northcote-road Baptist Church on Sunday last, 19th inst., under the most happy circumstances.

The annual report of the Jamaica Baptist Union of 1891 states that the additions during the year were 4116, with losses of 3230, or a net increase of 886.

On Wednesday in last week Mr. J. L. Stanley was welcomed at Chatsworth-road, Norwood, as pastor. From a statement made by Mr. Arnold it appeared that about two-thirds of the church remain.

At the recent annual meeting of the Colwyn Bay Training Institute, it was decided to form a separate missionary organisation on close communion lines, and send white missionaries to Africa in addition to some coloured boys.

The church meeting at Abbey-road Chapel has resolved "That, in the opinion of this church, the time has arrived when in the interests of 'pure religion and undefiled' it is necessary that we now withdraw from the Baptist Union."

Much interest was awakened last week in Mildenhall at the recognition of Mr. C. J. Fowler as pastor. The work shows signs of reviving, and on Whit-Sunday eight persons professed Christ by baptism in the river, just a few yards from the spot where the late Mr. Spurgeon was baptized.

"Ye Olde Meeting," as the historic church at Stevington is known, having been in existence since 1655, has just been compelled to repair thoroughly the venerable building, which dates back to 1720. At a bazaar held to raise funds, Rev. G. T. Gillingham, the present pastor, gave some interesting details of the church's history and service.

The Baptist Association of Cardigan and Carmarthen held its meetings last week at Llandilo. The congregations were large and the sermons preached were most effectual, and a liberal collection was made in aid of the Baptist Home Missionary Society. A conference was also held, and Rev. D. Richards, Cwmdaul, was elected vice-president.

METHODIST.

The Primitive Methodists have resolved to provide and start a mission van to work in the villages.

The eighty-seventh annual conference of the Independent Methodists is being held this week at Wigan.

An important and largely-attended conference of local preachers has been held in Bristol during the past week.

The Sunday-schools of the Primitive Methodists show an increase for the past year of seven thousand scholars.

The Wesleyan body of Middleton have decided to erect a new chapel, the accommodation afforded by the present one not being adequate for the increasing congregation.

The Director of the Medical Department of the West London Mission is in immediate want of a Nursing Sister, and will require four more nurses in September, in order to meet the necessities of the work.

A Fellow of the Royal Statistical Society in an able and exhaustive examination of the returns of Methodism (given in The Methodist Times) shows that the real failure in modern Methodism, where there is failure, is in the great and growing centres of population, not in the country districts.

The Beckwith-street Wesleyan Schools, at Birkenhead, which have been closed for five years in consequence of their having been rendered unsafe by operations necessitated by the construction of the Mersey Tunnel, were re-opened on Monday week, after undergoing alterations involving an outlay of £1550.

On Sunday last an interesting meeting was held in connection with the Men's P.S.A. Society at Market Drayton. The Wesleyan Chapel was filled with men to hear an address from the Rector of Stoke-upon-Terne, Rev. R. W. Corbet, M.A., who is well known in Shropshire for his practical sympathy with all denominations.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. A. D. Gray has accepted a call to succeed Rev. J. S. Cockburn, at Penrith.

Rev. James Durran, of Willesden, has formally accepted the call from Queen-street, Edinburgh.

Cavaliere Prochet addressed last week the London (North) Presbytery, giving stirring details of progress in Italy.

At last week's meeting of the Manchester Presbytery interesting reports were given as to the mission work at Eccles and Tunley.

United open-air services were again held on Sunday in Regent's-park and Hyde-park by Revs. Dr. Monro Gibson, W. Morison, and others.

Professor Candlish occupied on Sunday week the pulpit at Regent-square, where the congregations remain most encouraging. On Sunday Principal Dykes took the services.

Rev. A. A. Bonar, D.D., Glasgow, preached at Peel-road Church, Bootle, to large congregations on Sabbath, 12th inst., in connection with the ministerial semi-jubilee of Rev. J. H. Colhe.

The late Mr. George Duncan, who was an elder of Regent-square Church, has, it is stated, left £6000 to schemes connected with the English Presbyterian Church, and £2000 to form a permanent endowment for the church at Holybourne.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

A Friends' Meeting House, with Institute adjoining, has been opened at Northfield, near Birmingham.

Tent missions and adult school anniversaries are in hand, or projected, in many places for this charming summer season.

"On May 10 the foundation-stone of the first Friends' Mission Hall in Bulgaria was laid at Philippopolis by J. Rendel Harris."—The Friend.

Many expressions of gratitude come from Russia to the generous donors of relief, so impartially administered during the grievous famine they are still suffering from.

J. Rendell Harris, late Fellow of Clare College, Cambridge, has been invited to accepted the Chair of Greek in the Leland Stanford University, near San José, California. There are two Friend professors there already.

Ulster Friends are moving. The committee of the Quarterly Meeting has just held a week's mission at Richhill co. Armagh, which has resulted in much good. Neighbourings rvices were suspended on the two Sabbath evenings of the Mission.

Joseph R. Pim and wife have held very successful meetings in villages in France, where they have found an open door and crowds of eager listeners. They say: "Such hunger and thirst after God's Word. Come over and help us is all we can say."

In connection with the opening of the Bournville Institute and Friends' Meeting near Birmingham, which, with the room underneath, will hold seven hundred or eight hundred people, The Friend says: "If Friends would only adapt themselves to the need of country districts, their arrangements and organisations are specially suited for the work."

NOTES FROM SCOTLAND.

The Home of Rest at Portobello, for single aged women, has been reopened.

News has come to Edinburgh of the death, at Livingstonia, of the wife of Dr Henry, medical missionary there.

Rev. W. Patrick, late of St. David's Free Church, Kirkintilloch, has been inducted into the pastorate of Free St. Paul's, Dundee.

The Temperance Committee of the Free Church are taking steps to test Parliamentary candidates on matters of Temperance reform.

Last week a largely-attended conference of "Constitutionalists" in the Free Church—mainly from the Highland District—was held at Inverness to protest against the recent passing of the Declaratory Act. It was resolved to circulate the protest, in view of further contemplated action.

During his visit to Scotland last week Rev. F. B. Meyer met a number of the Baptist ministers of Scotland at Dunoon. The meetings were arranged by Rev. D. Macgregor, who is doing an excellent work there. His chapel is crowded, and several young men around him preparing themselves for the work of the ministry. The conference was continued over two days, and the meetings were of an unusually earnest character. Mr. William Quarrier, Rev. John Roberts on, of Glasgow, and Rev. C. G. Moore also delivered addresses.

Some time ago ex-Provost Moncur, Dundee, intimated his intention of giving to Dundee a country house as a sanatorium and home of rest for working girls, whose health had run down, and whose strength needed setting up. At a cost of about £3000 he secured Bannatyne House, Newtyle, and it has been formally handed over to a committee of management. At the ceremony it was intimated that, in addition to his primary gift, Mr. Moncur is now prepared to hand over to the committee the sum of £2500 as a partial endowment of the Institution, the rest of the necessary funds for upkeep to be subscribed by the public.

The personal estate of the late Joshua Paterson, M.D., who resided at 8, Grosvenor-terrace, Kelvinside, Glasgow, has been returned at £91,820 5s. 3d. By his will Dr. Paterson leaves handsome legacies to his wife and family, and directs his trustees to divide the whole residue of his estate equally among the following seven schemes of the Free Church of Scotland:—The Sustentation Fund, the Home Mission, the Foreign Mission, the Jewish Mission, the Aged and Infirm Ministers' Fund, the Widows and Orphans' Fund, and the Society for the Benefit of the Sons and Daughters of Ministers and Missionaries of the Free Church of Scotland.

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

A Methodist new church, which has cost about £150), was opened on Saturday at Glenady, co. Antrim, by Rev. Dr Stephenson.

Two united meetings for prayer on behalf of Ireland at this crisis in her history were held this week in the Y.M.C.A. Hall, Belfast, and were largely attended by representatives of the various denominations.

The Hibernian Bible Society, at its monthly meeting just held in Dublin, granted as free gifts 2162 Bibles, 2132 Testaments, and 800 portions for use in day and Sunday schools, and for colportage work in the South and West.

A new Gospel car, built specially for the North of Ireland, has been working in Ulster for the past two months, and reports of its mission in Lisburn, Moira, Donaclone), and other places, already prove that it has not been built in vain.

A joint missionary meeting representing the Church Missionary Society, the Fuh Kien, the Chota Nagpore, and the S.P.G. Missions has just been held in Tralee, and a series of twelve meetings on behalf of the first has been held in the diocese of Cork.

The 250th anniversary of the first meeting of Presbytery in Ireland, held in Carrickfergus on June 10, 1642, was observed on Sunday week in the First Presbyterian Church, Carrickfergus, when Rev. John Stewart preached from Ps. li. 8, the text from which, in 1842, Rev. Dr. Cooke preached when commemorating the 200th anniversary of the same event, and from which Rev. John Baird preached when constituting the Presbytery 250 years ago.

FALLEN ASLEEP.

At Bury St. Edmunds, on 9th inst., Mrs. Cumming, wife of the Baptist pastor, and a faithful helpmeet in the work of the Church. At Worthing, on 7th inst., Mr. G. H. Smith senior deacon at Montague-street Chapel, and an ardent temperance worker. At Burton Joyce, Nottingham, on 8th inst., Mr. Charles Bennett, of Manor-gardens, Holloway, known and loved as a helper of every good work. At West Houghton (Lanc.), Mr. T. Green. At Southport, on 13th inst., in her 81st year, Mrs. Berry, the beloved mother of Rev. C. A. Berry. At Carmarthen, aged 63, Alderman John Morris, mourned by many. At Rushmere, Suffolk, very suddenly, Rev. T. W. Irby, for fifty years' rector of the parish. At Eastbourne, Rev. F. W. Briggs, for forty years a useful Wesleyan minister. At 63, Myddelton-square, on the 17th inst., very suddenly, at the breakfast-table Rev. E. Allfree, for forty-two years rector of St. Swithin in the City. At St. Leonards, on 16th inst., Rev. W. Williams, for many years an earnest preacher of the Gospel. At Snowhill, Wolverhampton, on 12th inst., aged sixty-two, Mr. J. W. Barker, well known for many years as a Temperance worker. At Newton (Lincs.), Rev. Thomas Todd, for thirty-five years' rector of Newton-cum-Haceby. At Milford, near Derby, on 12th inst., aged seventy-six, Rev. T. Crossland, an Evangelical Churchman and staunch Protestant. At Eyrecourt, Rev. Chris. H. Gould Butson, Dean of Kilmacdnagh, aged seventy-five years. At Smyvale, co. Monoghan, Mr. Jas. Clow, a devoted Presbyterian elder and a most earnest Christian worker. At Belfast, on 15th inst., Rev. W. Magill, formerly of Trinity Presbyterian Church, Cork, widely known and greatly loved. At Castle-Douglas (N.B.) on the 16th inst., Mr. R. Higgs, beloved and respected as a devoted and useful home missionary. At Saltcoats (N.B.) Bailie Miller, esteemed both as a magistrate and elder, as well as friend of the poor.

HAY FEVER

POSITIVELY CURED AND PREVENTED BY THE

CARBOLIC SMOKE BALL

HAY FEVER is a disease from which many people suffer during the most pleasant season of the year, and one which renders their lives miserable.

HAY FEVER makes its presence known by incessant fits of sneezing, followed by a flow of hot transparent mucus from the nostrils, accompanied by a burning sensation and watering eyes. The soothing action of the Carbolic Smoke Ball upon the membrane allays all irritation, gradually arrests the hot flow from the nostrils and eyes, and stops the sneezing and burning sensation.

THE CARBOLIC SMOKE BALL will positively cure, and is the only remedy ever discovered which has permanently cured, HAY FEVER, a disease that has hitherto baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians, who have sought in vain to cure or prevent its annual return.

TESTIMONIALS.

HAY FEVER. — Major ROWLAND WEBSTER, Surrendale-place, Sutherland-avenue, W., writes, January 15, 1891:—"The Carbolic Smoke Ball gave me entire satisfaction last summer. I unintentionally got into a field where Hay-making was going on, and I was not inconvenienced by it. I have not been able to do such a thing for the last twenty years without suffering frightfully."

HAY FEVER.—The Rev. Dr. BULLOCK (Editor of The Fireside) writes:—"Those who are troubled with Hay Fever will do well to try the Carbolic Smoke Ball. From practical testimony we can certify that it gives great relief."

HAY FEVER.—Col. W. C. WESTERN, 33, Palace-gardens-terrace, W., writes:—"After using the Carbolic Smoke Ball three times a day for about two weeks, my daughter was cured of Hay Fever. She thinks it an excellent remedy for Hay Fever and colds."

HAY FEVER.—G. H. GILL, Esq., Commercial-road, Pimlico, writes:—"I suffer regularly every June from Hay Fever, and I never found any remedy to give me the slightest relief until I tried the Carbolic Smoke Ball."

TESTIMONIALS.

HAY FEVER.—Miss ADA S. BALLIN, Lecturer to the National Health Society, writes:—"The Carbolic Smoke Ball gives rapid relief in Asthma, and that other despair of the doctors, Hay Fever, for which no cure has hitherto been discovered."

HAY FEVER.—Mrs. HIGHFIELD writes from 9, Greek-street, Runcorn, June 16, 1891: "The Smoke Ball has proved the greatest boon to me, for it has quite saved me from my usual attack of Hay Fever, from which I have suffered for the last sixteen years."

HAY FEVER.—Mrs. SEELY, of Nottingham, writes:—"Please send me two Carbolic Smoke Balls. This remedy for Hay Fever was recommended to me by a London Physician."

HAY FEVER.—FREDERICK MEAD, Esq., Lyric Club, writes, January 2, 1891:—"I had suffered severely with Hay Fever for several years during the summer months, and was disturbed almost nightly with Hay Asthma, but found immediate relief from the first trial of the Carbolic Smoke Ball last year, and from that time have never had a single night's rest interfered with by the Hay Asthma."

THE

CARBOLIC SMOKE BALL

Will also Cure the most severe forms of the following Ailments:

TESTIMONIALS.

COLDS. — Madame ADELINA PATTI writes from Craig-y-Nos Castle:—"Madame Patti has found the Carbolic Smoke Ball very beneficial indeed, and the only thing that would enable her to rest well at night when having a severe cold."

ASTHMA.—CHARLES MOORE, Esq., of Westgate-on-Sea, writes:—"It has afforded immense relief to my wife, who has suffered severely from Bronchial Asthma. When I bought the ball she was unusually bad. It acted like magic."

TESTIMONIALS.

BRONCHITIS. — Dr. H. G. DARLING, M.D., Linden Cottage, Shepherd's Well, Kent, writes, 18 April, 1892:—"I had used the Carbolic Smoke Ball only a few times when it gave me immediate relief—although I am 83 years of age and have suffered more than one-third of that time from Bronchitis complicated with Asthma."

DEAFNESS.—J. HARGREAVES, Esq., of Manchester, writes, 28 August, 1891:—"Since using the Carbolic Smoke Ball I can hear my watch tick three or four inches away, which I have not done for months."

TESTIMONIALS.

CATARRH. — Rev. HENRY S. LUNN, M.D., writes from 5, Endsleigh Gardens, London, N.W., 16 November, 1891:—"I have much pleasure in testifying to the great value of your Carbolic Smoke Ball. It has been used in my household with the best results in cases of bad Catarrh."

FOR THE VOICE.—C. J. BISHENDEN, Esq., writes from Portland Place, W., 18 January, 1892:—"The Carbolic Smoke Ball does all that is claimed for it. Every singer and speaker should have one, as it is simply invaluable."

One CARBOLIC SMOKE BALL will last a family several months, making it the cheapest remedy in the world at the price—10s., post free.

The CARBOLIC SMOKE BALL can be refilled, when empty, at a cost of 5s., post free. ADDRESS—

CARBOLIC SMOKE BALL CO.,

27, PRINCE'S STREET, HANOVER SQUARE, LONDON, W.

BIBLE-WORK IN MADRAS.

The latest report of the Madras Auxiliary of the Bible Society gives some striking information. "The past year," it says, "has been one of marked religious activity in this presidency. Many new labourers, the messengers of the churches in western lands, have entered the field, and entrance into the Christian fold has been on a scale but rarely experienced in the earlier years of local missionary enterprise. In all directions there is clear and unmistakable evidence that the seeds of truth and righteousness have taken root in the soil. Hindus of all shades of opinion and degrees of education, alike in town and country, feel and acknowledge this. The circulation of the Holy Scriptures by this auxiliary—174,564 copies, the highest yet attained in any single year—has kept pace with the progress of missions. The work of translation and of revision has steadily progressed. In addition to reprints, new portions and the Telugu New Testament with references and marginal readings, have been issued for the first time. The depôt system has been extended, and colportage has entered into new fields. Throughout Southern India Bible-women's work has been pursued vigorously, and with ever-increasing signs of its great usefulness.

"Mrs. Lazarus, who is well qualified to judge, says: 'When I remember how very difficult it was six years ago to gain an entrance into a Hindu home, and now how readily the door is opened, and how eagerly the women ask me to visit them and send them a Bible-woman, I feel deeply thankful to note the change which is going on in the seclusion of the zenanas. Light is dawning upon these dark chambers and the Saviour's voice is heard by their thoughtful inmates.'"

A Village Gospel Hall.

From a long account sent us of evangelistic work in Lye, Stourbridge, we glean that in this village, given over to drinking and gambling, an earnest mission work is going on. Col. S —— built, some five years ago, a Gospel hall seating from four to five hundred people. This hall has been the birthplace of many precious souls, drunkards have been reclaimed, and sinners of the deepest dye, rejoicing in the knowledge of sins forgiven, are now seeking to show forth the praises of Him who hath called them out of darkness into his marvellous light. Besides the meetings held in the hall, during the fine weather they go out with our Gospel banner to the open air, where often five hundred or more gather round and listen to the Word of Life. There is also a flourishing Sunday-school, with 130 scholars, and a mothers' meeting. The missionary is Mr. J. H. McEwen, Hill-street, Lye, Stourbridge.

Dublin Visiting Medical Mission.

The dispensary has been open nine weeks, and patients are coming well three days a week. A short service is held with a Gospel talk, the people being told that any who do not wish to remain during the service may stay in the outer hall, and be seen by the doctor all the same. As yet, however, only two women have left the room during the service. The workers have already been encouraged by indications of blessing. A suitable house has been secured, and will soon be occupied, the present being temporary premises, but meanwhile about £100 must be spent on alterations and repairs. The house could be purchased for £200. Dr. Long, the medical missionary, feels much encouraged, while the nurse and lady workers have the joy of seeing real results. Communications should be made to Mrs. E. J. Figgis, jun., 6, Simmons-court-villas, Donnybrook, Dub in.

NECESSITIES AND IMPOSSIBILITIES. — Mark the two necessities in our Lord's discourse in John iii.: "Must be lifted up"; "must be born again." See the same in Hebrews: "Without shedding of blood" no remission, "without holiness" no seeing God.—Dr. H. Grattan Guinness.

THE HOLY SCRIPTURE.—Daily experience convinces me more and more that as a thousand charms discover themselves in the works of nature, when attentively viewed with glasses, which had escaped the naked eye, so our admiration of the Holy Scriptures will rise in proportion to the accuracy with which they are studied.—Doddridge.

CHRIST'S ATTITUDE TO JEW AND GENTILE.—"If thou hadst known" to the Jew (Luke xix. 42); "if thou knewest" to the Gentile (John iv. 10). In the one sentence what regret, in the other what hope! Such was Christ's attitude to Jew and Gentile, and history has justified Him.—Dr. H. Grattan Guinness.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—On behalf of a mother, that she may be brought to the Lord; and for a father and three sons, and mother-in-law.—For a Christian young woman—difficulties have arisen in her soul, and she is in deep distress.—On behalf of special work at the coming Burslem Wakes.—For blessing on a Mothers' Meeting

DONATIONS

RECEIVED BY MESSRS. MORGAN & SCOTT TO MONDAY, JUNE 20, 1892.

 Donations should be sent by Cheque or P.O.Orders, not by stamps.

 Will donors oblige us by giving explicitly and fully the titles of the missions to which they wish their donations to be applied? Mistakes which sometimes arise will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind that our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Monday morning? Any amounts received afterwards will be acknowledged in the subsequent week's number.

 Cheques, Money Orders, or Postal Orders should be made payable to Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings, London, E.C., and crossed "City Bank:" this will effectually prevent loss.

	£	s.	d.
North Africa Mission—A.E., £5; J.T., £5	10	0	0
China Inland Mission—M.G., £5; S.N., £10; R.S.C., 5s.; P.S.A. Y.M.C.A., Lowestoft, 11s. 6d.; F.W., 10s.	16	6	6
Leper Work, Almora—J.T.	5	0	0
M'All Mission—C.S., Aberdeen	10	0	0
Miss de Broen's Work—C.S., Aberdeen, £5; L.E., £1	6	0	0
Zenana Bible and Medical Mission—H.M.A.S. ...	1	0	0
Moravian Missions—H.M.A.S.	1	0	0
British and Foreign Bible Society—South Lambeth, 10s.; R I.A., £5...	5	10	0
Persecuted Stundists—I.H.G.	1	0	0
John G. Paton Fund—E.L.H.R.	5	5	0
Mr. Wall's Work (Rome)—V.W.	1	0	0
Figueras Mission (Pastor Rodriguez)—V.W.	1	0	0
Famine in Russia (Rev. A. Francis)—V.W.	2	0	0
Society for the Relief of Persecuted Jews—M.E. ...	0	10	0
Englishwomen's Russian Famine Fund—Spero ...	1	0	0
Scripture Readers' Society, Ireland—Mrs. C. ...	2	0	0
Day in Country Fund- Mrs C., £1; R.B.J., £7; Mrs. M., £5; J.H.B., £1; J.C., 5s.; J.L., £10; G.H.M., £1; Mrs.P.P.W., £1; L.E., £2; R.T.T., 2s.; C. and A., 5s.; M.E. 5s.	28	17	0
Ragged School Union (Holiday Homes)—Mrs. C. ...	2	0	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—Mrs M., 10s.; W. and H.S., 2s. 6d.; C.S., Aberdeen, £5; N.A.Y., 2s. 6d.; R.I.A., £10; L.E., £2	17	15	0
Suffering Women and Children at Cleveland—Mrs. M.	1	0	0
Evangelistic Mission—Mrs. S.	2	0	0
Fresh Air for Poor Children (Rev. S. Herring)—Mrs. S., £1; C.S., 5s.	1	5	0
Shaftesbury Institute—M.E.	0	10	0
Bishopsgate Mission to Jews—Spero	1	0	0
Christian Community All-Night Rescue— C.C.M.	10	0	0
Thames Church Mission—H.B.	1	0	0
George-yard Mission—J.T., £5; (Day in Country), Mrs. P.P.W., £1	6	0	0
Blackdown Mission—J.T.	5	0	0
Miss Sharman's Orphan Homes—J.C.	0	10	0
Friendless and Fallen—J.C., 10s; M.E, 3s.	0	13	0
Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children—E.T., £1; R.I.A., £5	6	0	0
Flower Girls' Mission, &c.—E.T.	0	10	0
Army Scripture Readers' Society—H.M.A.S.... ...	1	0	0
Mr. Orsman's Mission—H.M.A.S., 10s; (Day in Country)—M.E., 5s.	0	15	0
Ogle Mews Ragged School—H.M.A.S.	1	0	0
Barbican Mission to Jews—Miss R.	0	5	0
London Aged Christian Society—H.M.A.S.	1	1	0
Evelina Hospital—H.M.A.S.	1	0	0
London City Mission—N.A.Y., 2s. 6d.; R.I.A., £5	5	2	6
Amyard-park Chapel, Twickenham—M.S.	1	1	0
St. Giles' Prison Mission—R.I.A.	20	0	0
Dr. Stephenson's Children's Homes (Bonner-road)—R.I.A.	10	0	0
Wesleyan West-end Mission—R.I.A.	10	0	0
Bridge of Hope (Miss Steer)—R.I.A., £5; V.W., £1	6	0	0
Strangers' Rest, Ratcliff—R.I.A.	5	0	0
National Vigilance Society—R.I.A.	5	0	0
Mr. Pamment's Expenses to British Columbia—T.A.D.	5	0	0
Jewish Children (Mr. Oppenheim) (Day in the Country)—Working Man	0	0	6
Mildmay Mission to Jews (Shelter, London Docks)—C.T.	0	5	0
Gratuitous Circulation of The Christian—R.T.T.	0	2	0
Mount Hermon Orphanage—M.E.	0	10	0
London Samaritan Society (Day in the Country)—M.E.	0	5	0
North-East London Gospel Mission (Seaside Homes)—H.B.	0	10	0
Mildmay Institutions—M.S....	10	10	0
	£233	18	6

[Advertisement.]

London Samaritan Society, 98, High-street, Homerton, E. (Convalescent Homes)—Miss H., 2s. 6d.; W.H.H.A., 7s. 6d.; Miss A.M., £1.

Appeals.

Camberwell.—A. H. Roe, 92, Blake's-road, Peckham, S.E., writes: "A large six-roomed house and shop (No. 251, Southampton-street, Camberwell, S.E.) has been taken, and it is intended to be opened soon as a mission-hall for children only. The mission, in a most populous and poverty-stricken part of South London, will supply a needed want. To meet the initial expenditure I shall be pleased to acknowledge donations, also books and magazines for the library, and a few wooden chairs."

Amyand park Chapel, St. Margaret's, Twickenham.—Mr. J. Durden, 1, Flodden-villas, St. Margaret's-road, Twickenham, S.W., appeals for help on behalf of this sectarian mission work. Since the chapel's establishment £460 have been raised on the building account, beside £2 10 raised and spent for sustaining the work of the Gospel during the same period. The balance due on the building fund is £396. Contributions towards reducing this amount will be most gratefully received.

NATIONAL PROVIDENT INSTITUTION

Invested Funds, £4,500,000.
Profits Divided, £4,000,000.
Paid in Claims, £8,000,000.

For Mutual Life Assurance

All the Profits are Divided amongst the Assured

Bonus Year 1892

the next Division of Profits will be made as at 20th Nov 1892, and all now assuring will participate.

Established 1835

Arthur Smith, F.C.A., Secretary. 48, Gracechurch St., London, E.C.

BYWATER, TANQUERAY & PHAYRE, LIMITED.

BANKERS AND AGENTS.

Directors.

ARTHUR BYWATER.
JAMES TRUMAN TANQUERAY.
GENERAL SIR ROBERT PHAYRE, K.C.B.

Secretary: CAPEL SEWELL.

79, QUEEN VICTORIA ST., LONDON,
And at LIVERPOOL and NEW YORK.

Banking in all its Departments. No charge for Current Accounts.

Cash received on Deposit at the following present rates of Interest:—

2½ per cent. per annum for 3 months' notice.
5 " " for 6 "
6 " " for 12 " or longer.
Interest paid Quarterly.

For many years the appointed Agents to 15 of the leading Missionary Societies, English and American. Drafts issued on Foreign Countries free of charge.

Try a 1/- Jar OF

ARDENBRITE LIQUID GOLD

ON DIRTY AND OLD

Picture Frames, Chairs, Fenders, Umbrella Stands, Mirror Frames, Gaseliers, Bedsteads, Plastic Figures, Cornices, Leather or Compo Brackets, Screens, Fans, Slippers, Iron Rods, Lamp Stands, &c., &c., &c., and you will be DELIGHTED with the MAGIC effect.

Made in Gold, Silver, Green, Blue, Red, Orange, Copper, Brown, Green Gold. Ready for use; requires no varnishing; dries in five minutes, and will keep its brilliancy for six years.

SOLD ALL OVER THE WORLD.

Send 12 Stamps for 1s. Sample Jar.

PAVITT & SONS,
70, SOUTHAMPTON ROW, LONDON.

"THE WORLD'S PROVED REMEDY FOR ALL CHEST DISEASES."

COUGH, ASTHMA,

CHRONIC BRONCHITIS,

INFLUENZA.

Rev. F. E. HEAPE, of Derby, in a recent letter, says:—"Your Medicine always puts my lungs right, and drove out the terrible INFLUENZA last May."

This Medicine has been prepared for 65 years.

CONGREVE'S

BALSAMIC ELIXIR,

In Bottles 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., 11s., and 22s. may be had of all Chemists and Medicine Vendors.

SELLING JEWELLERY, SILVER PLATE, COINS, &c.

FOR CHARITABLE PURPOSES.

SPINK & SON, Goldsmiths and Silversmiths, at 2, GRACECHURCH-STREET, CORNHILL, E.C., respectfully announce that they VALUE or PURCHASE for CASH valuable Diamond and other Jewellery, Silver Plate, Coins, Medals, &c. [Est. 1772.

LONDON CITY MISSION.

500 MISSIONARIES now employed in beseeching the masses in the Metropolis to be reconciled to God through Jesus Christ our Lord. House-to-house visitation Personal dealing. Work purely undenominational.

THE NEED IS URGENT.

Secretaries: T. S. HUTCHINSON, M.A., ROBERT DAWSON, B.A.
Treasurer: F. A. BEVAN. Office: 3, Bridewell-place, E.C.
Bankers: BARCLAY, BEVAN, RANSOM & Co., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.

SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND.

Funds greatly needed to extend the work.

Irish-speaking readers are sent where required, and the work is carried on in a spirit of love.

Reports sent on application to Captain J. KEARNEY WHITE, Offices, 27, Lower Pembroke-street, Dublin, and 9, Paternoster-row, London, where Donations may be sent; or to the Office of THE CHRISTIAN. JOHN xiii. 35.

Please notice exact title of Society.

St. Giles' Christian Mission

CHILDREN'S HOLIDAY FUND.

The Holiday Season is close upon us, and the Children attending the Sunday Schools of the St. Giles' Christian Mission are anxiously looking forward to their Annual Treat. Last year, in addition to giving a Day's Outing to 1500

Little Ones, drawn chiefly from the Courts and Alleys of St. Giles', we were enabled to send considerably over 200 for a fortnight in the country. We are anxious to do at least as much this year.

WILL YOU HELP?

Donations will be most thankfully acknowledged if sent to our Treasurer, F. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard St., E.C., or to Mr. George Hatton, Superintendent St. Giles' Christian Mission, 4, Ampton St., Regent Sq., W.C.

FRESH AIR for Poor Wee CHILDREN.

The Duchess of Wellington and A. W. Peet, Esq., are heartily thanked for their most acceptable CONTRIBUTIONS. For each 10s. subscribed, a rent-up London child can be boarded out for 14 days—3,197 during seven seasons. Funds pressingly needed.—Bankers: L & County, Islington.—A. STYLEMAN HERRING (for Local Committee), Vicar St. Paul's, Clerkenwell, 45, Colebrooke Row, N.

Christian Community.

CHILDREN'S HOLIDAY HOME.

President—GEORGE WILLIAMS, Esq.

THIS Home at Foots Cray, Kent, has been opened for the benefit of poor sickly children connected with the several Mission Halls occupied by the Society, all in localities where the poorest classes reside, and who are totally unable to pay for a holiday, and yet most urgently in need of it. The Home provides accommodation for 18 children at a time. The cost of each child is 6s. per week. Last year over 300 poor little things received the benefit, who found it to be a real boon.

To continue this for the present year an earnest appeal is hereby made to sustain this truly charitable work. Help in any form will be gratefully received by the SECRETARY, as under; or by the Treasurer, F. A. BEVAN, Esq., at the Bank, 54, Lombard-street, London, E.C.; or the EDITOR of THE CHRISTIAN.

JAMES ATKINSON, Secretary.
28, Enfield-road, Kingsland, London, N.

GUILDFORD CONVENTION.

MR. D. L. MOODY

will hold Evangelistic Services in the Tent (God willing), July 2nd and 3rd.

Convener: Rev. F. PAYNTER,
Rector of Stoke-next-Guildford.

Honorary Secretary:
COLONEL BROWN, Albuhera, Guildford;
To whom application for lodgings may be made.

HOMES FOR AGED CHRISTIAN BLIND MEN & WOMEN,

HANLEY ROAD, CROUCH HILL, LONDON, N.

Office:—77, HANLEY ROAD.

AN URGENT APPEAL is made on behalf of these Homes to meet present and very pressing liabilities. The inmates number 80, many are very aged and infirm, as well as blind. These require day and night nursing, taxing much, and in many ways, the funds, which are exhausted. Not sufficient to meet current accounts.

Also a strenuous and final effort is being made to raise £250, to free the whole property from debt; this will save interest and help the maintenance fund.

Contributions will be gratefully received by the Founders and Hon. Superintendents, Rev. H. and Mrs. BRIGHT, at the Homes; also by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, Office of The Christian.

The Homes are open for Inspection every day.

THE CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY.

Established 1856. President—LORD ABERDARE, G.C.B.

2,412 Children have been rescued from Dens of Infamy.
5,000 Children are in Industrial Homes, to which Grants have been made.
8,222 Children (boys and girls) have been aided by the "Boys' Beadle."

The Society has an Emigration Agency with a reception house in Manitoba, at Shaftesbury House, Winnipeg, whence lads are carefully placed in employment.

PARTICULARS of the WORK will be sent on Application.

FUNDS ARE URGENTLY NEEDED.

Secretary—ARTHUR J. S. MADDISON. Office: Charing-cross, S.W. Bankers—Messrs. BARCLAY, RANSOM & Co., 1, Pall Mall East, S.W.

SOCIETY FOR RELIEF OF PERSECUTED JEWS.

Food and Fuel have been daily given to above

3,000 OF THE STARVING REFUGEE JEWS

In the Winter months by Mr. R. Scott Moncrieff (Special Commissioner for the Society) in Palestine, where there are above

100,000 JEWS MOSTLY DESTITUTE.

BEDDING, CLOTHING, AND SHELTER HAVE ALSO BEEN GIVEN.

Jews are trained at Abraham's Vineyard, near Jerusalem, in out-of-door industry

FUNDS NEEDED SPECIALLY FOR GIVING WORK.

THE DISTRESS IS VERY GREAT.

Hon. Treasurer: F. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.
Secretary: E. A. FINN, 41, Parliament-street, S.W.

DEDICATION OF THE NEW & PERMANENT

HOME OF REST, LITTLEHAMPTON,

Also of a

HOME OF REST FOR MINISTERS,

On WEDNESDAY, JULY 6, 1892.

DEDICATORY SERVICE at 2.30 p.m., at which LADY HENRY SOMERSET will preside.

LUNCHEON at 1 o'clock.

Tickets from London Bridge and Victoria to Littlehampton and back, 5s.

Stamped and addressed envelope, for Tickets, to be sent to Rev. W. DARLOW SARJEANT, 38, Oseney-crescent, Camden-road, N.W. c513

GENERAL ELECTION.

Papers relating to Protestant questions, Address to Electors, Questions for Candidates, &c., may be obtained, Free of Cost, on Application to the SECRETARY of the PROTESTANT ALLIANCE, 9, Strand, London

BURGH HEATH CONVENTION,

JULY 6, 7, & 8.

Speakers:—
Rev. J. B. FIGGIS,
Rev. C. A. FOX, Rev. W. HASLAM,
Rev. F. B. MEYER,
Rev. MARK GUY PEARSE,
H. W. MAYNARD, Esq.,
Gen. Sir ROBT. PHAYRE, K.C.B., Chairman.

Burgh Heath is about 1½ miles from Banstead Station; about 3 from Epsom, and 4 from Sutton. Conveyances will leave Sutton and Epsom one hour before each Meeting (fare from and to Sutton, 1s. 6d.; Epsom, 1s.), returning to Sutton and Epsom after each meeting. Conveyances will meet the 10.27 a.m. and other trains at Banstead, fare 1s.

W. HODSON,
North Tadworth, Epsom, Convener.

MAZAWATTEE

Recalls the Delicious TEA of Thirty Years ago.

Forthcoming Meetings.

[Communications respecting forthcoming meetings cannot be inserted unless received by Tuesday morning at the latest.]

The Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, or Wales, on due notice. Apply Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.; or, The Sec., Evangelisation Society, Scottish Branch, The Grove-street Institute, Glasgow.

The Irish Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

The Church Army will send evangelists (working-men) to any clergymen on due notice, for short or long missions. Hon. Sec., 128 and 130, Edgware-road, W.

The Metropolitan Tabernacle Evangelists' Association will send evangelists to any evangelical denomination within the London postal area. Hon. Sec., 5, Crown-villas, Kennington Oval, S.E.

The Country Towns Mission supplies qualified missionaries for work in the country. Apply to Secretary, 19, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C.

Mr. Henry Thorne's Evangelistic Missions.—Friends wishing to make arrangements for mission services may apply for particulars to the Secretary, Mr. James Pearce, Exeter Hall, Strand, London.

Y.M.C.A., 59 and 60, Cornhill, E.C.—Addresses at daily prayer-meeting (1.15 to 2.15) as follows:—Fri., June 24, Mr. Kriker Behesnilian will give an account of mission work in Tarsus and Celicia; Mon., June 27, Messrs. Pierson and Goldsbury, from America. Gospel service, young men, Tues., at 6.15 p.m., and Suns., 3.30 p.m.

Conference Hall, Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E. — Sun., June 26, 3 and 7 p.m., Pastor W. T. Float. Meetings for prayer: Sun. 7.45 p.m., Fri. 7.45 p.m., Sat. 7.30 p.m.

Y.M.C.A., Exeter Hall, Strand.—Sun., 3.45 (men only), Mr. W. D. Pink. 7, public, Mr. John Jackson. Meetings for men nightly at 8. Cheerful service, Sat., at 8. French Bible-class, Tues., at 8. Prayer-meeting, Mon. to Fri., from 1 till 2 p.m.

Y.W.C.A., 14, Finsbury-square.—Missionary meeting in Gymnasium Hall; addresses by the Hons. G. and E. Kinnaird (recently returned from India), Wed. 22nd inst., at 8.30 p.m.

West London Central Mission.—St. James's Hall, Sun., Rev. Mark Guy Pearse, 11 a.m.; Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, 7 p.m.

Abbey Road Chapel, St. John's Wood.—Sun., Rev. H. E. Stone, at 11 and 6.30 p.m.

Edinburgh Castle, Limehouse, E.—Sun., 19, Messrs. Pierson and Goldsbury at 11, and 7; Rev. H. Bright at 3.

Great Assembly Hall, Mile-end-road, E.—Sun., Mr. W. Nobbs, 11 a.m. and 6.30 p.m.

Evangelistic Mission.—Kilburn Hall, Kilburn-gate, N.W., Sun., 7 p.m., Dr. Neatby. Malden Hall, Queen's-crescent, Haverstock-hill, N.W., Sun., 7 p.m., Mr. P. Gardiech.

Marylebone Presbyterian Church, Upper George-street.—Rev. Dr. Pentecost, Sun., 11 and 7. Thurs., at 8 p.m.

St. George's Hall, Langham-place.—Mr. Herbert Francis, Sun. at 11 and 7, Burlington Hall, Wed., at 8 p.m.

Westbourne-grove Chapel.—Mr. Henry Varley, 7 p.m., Sun. next.

Talbot Tabernacle.—Sun., June 26, Mr. J. E. Cooke.

St. Giles' Christian Mission.—Meeting at Mansion House, Thursday, June 23, at 3 p.m., the Lord Mayor in the chair, supported by the Common Serjeant and eleven London magistrates.

Harley House, Bow, E.—Annual farewell meetings to-morrow (Friday) at 3 and 7 p.m. Chairmen, Mr. T. A. Denny and Hon. and Rev. E. V. Bligh.

A Call to Prayer.—Special prayer for foreign missions, Council Chamber, Exeter Hall, Tues., 28th inst., from 4 to 6 and 7 to 9 o'clock.

Police Institute, 1A, Adelphi-terrace, W.C.—Wed. (29th), special meetings for prayer and praise, at 4.30 and 7 p.m.; addresses by Mr. Dudley A. Kidd, of the Cape General Mission, and others.

Sailors' Welcome Home, 173, St. George-street, London, E.—"Christian Lifeboat Crew," Tues., July 5, at 7 p.m.

Pentecostal League.—Special holiness meetings, Exeter Hall, Strand, Tuesdays, June 28, July 5, 12, and 19, at 8 p.m., conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Reader Harris, and others.

Blackheath (Prophetic).—July 7 and 8, Alexandra Hall, 11 a.m., 3 and 7 p.m.

Open-Air Mission.—Special meeting in Exeter (Lower) Hall, on Thurs., June 30, at 7 p.m., in memoriam of the late Secretary, Mr. Kirkham. Sir Arthur Blackwood, K.C.B., in the chair, addresses by General Sir Robert Phayre, Rev. H. Pelham Stokes, Mr. James E. Mathieson, and others.

[Coming Conventions.]

Guildford.—June 27 to July 2. Sec.: Col. Brown, Albuhera, Guildford.

Mid Lincs, Boston.—July 4 to 7. Sec.: Rev. Joseph Dunne, Friar, Old Leake.

Burgh Heath, Epsom.—July 6, 7 and 8. Sec.: W. Hodson, North Tadworth, Epsom.

Llandrindod (Radnorshire).—July 11 to 15. Sec.: Mr. H. S. Newman, Leominster.

Keswick.—July 25 to 30. Sec.: Mr. Postlethwaite, Eskin-place, Keswick.

Carlisle.—Sept. 6-9. Sec.: Mr. C. J. Clapperton, 6, Chiswick-street, Carlisle.

Perth.—Sept. 13 to 15. Sec.; Rev. Dr. Bannerman, Perth.

Dublin.—Sept. 19-22. Sec.: Mr. Robert Cotter, Christian Union Buildings, Dublin.

Salisbury.—Sept. 19-23. Sec.: Rev. E. Thwaites, Fisherton, Salisbury.

Glasgow.—Sept. 20-24.

Leicester (In connection with the Christian Police Associations).—Sept 26-28.

Dundee (Evan. Alliance).—Sept. 26-29. Sec.: Mr. Arnold, 7, Adam-street, London, W.C.

Accoats, Manchester.—Oct. 9-16. Sec.: Mr. F. W. Crossley, Star Hall, Ancoats, Manchester.

Bible Readings will (D.V.) be delivered by Mr. Maxwell Wright at Daily Prayer Meeting, Y.M.C.A., 60, Cornhill, E.C., July 4-8 (1.15 to 2.15 p.m.) as follows:—Subjects—Mon., 4th, "Sons of God"; Tues., 5th, "Servants of God"; Wed., 6th, "Soldiers of Christ"; Thur., 7th, "Friends of Christ": Fri., 8th, "Temples of the Holy Ghost."

FAST DYE SERGES 8/11

JAQUES & JAQUES beg to call attention to a VERY SPECIAL PURCHASE of ALL-WOOL SERGES, in Black, Navy, and Cardinal, which they warrant perfectly fast dye. They offer these good Serges at 8s. 11d. the Full Dress Length of 5 yards, carriage paid to any address. Patterns of these, and of the Special Series of 900 varieties of choice productions at 4½d. to 2s. per yard, are now ready, and will be sent on approval, post free. When writing, kindly name this paper to

JAQUES & JAQUES, [c531
French Dress Specialists, DARLINGTON.

BUMSTED'S TABLE SALT.

CONDY'S FLUID

USED IN THE ROYAL PALACES AND IN ALL HOSPITALS.

CONDY'S REMEDIAL FLUID.

SORE THROATS, BURNS, WOUNDS, TENDER FEET, PERSPIRING FEET — Slight cases cured in a few hours; severe cases speedily checked. Instantly relieved by using a little "Condy" in the foot bath.

CAUTION.—INSIST ON HAVING 'CONDY'S.'

Three Large Books, containing Remedial Disinfecting and Veterinary Directions, sent Post Free on application to

CONDY'S FLUID WORKS,
41, TURNMILL STREET, E.C.

EUCALYPTUS AND PINE JUJUBES

LAWRENCE'S EUCALYPTUS AND PINE JUJUBES are the best for all Throat and Lung affections—Bronchial Asthma, Bronchitis, Incipient Consumption, Catarrh, Loss of Voice, &c., quickly yield to their Antiseptic and Curative influence.

The Medical Profession have recognised their value in allaying troublesome Cough, and in advanced stages of Consumption prescribe them as a useful adjunct to other treatment. Letters and recommendations from all parts prove their worth.

Insist on having the ORIGINAL, as inferior Jujubes and Lozenges are being constantly offered.

Price 1s. 1½d. and 2s. per box (post free 1s. 3d. or 2s. 3d.). Of all Chemists, or from LAWRENCE & CO., 20, High-street, Rhyl. London Agents—Barclay, Edwards, Newbery, Sanger.

RUPTURE.

A NEW SPRINGLESS APPLIANCE

For the Immediate Relief and Cure of Rupture (Pat. Reg. No. 4,392), stands

UNEQUALLED for EASE, COMFORT, & DURABILITY.

For Testimonials and full particulars for Self-Measurement, &c., send stamped address to

A. LIVESLEY, Chemist, New Mills, via Stockport. [c120

NEW PACKETS OF TRACTS.
15TH MILLION.

GOSPEL LEAVES. By Cheyne Brady. Packet 6. 100 Illustrated 2pp. Tracts. 6d. per Packet.

"Mr. Brady is quite to our heart. He is direct as a dart, clear as a sunbeam, and brief as an angel's visit. Earnestness throbs in every line, and withal a power of keen thrusting too seldom possessed. He knows the sins and sorrows of the human heart, and the Saviour who can work their cure—and, in addition, can plainly point the burdened spirit to the peace-giving Christ."
—Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

ILLUSTRATED GOSPEL TRACTS. By Rev. P. B. Power, M.A. Packet of 4pp., 6d. Packet of 8pp., 6d.

WHOLE AND SOLE. By Rev. P. B. Power, M.A. 32pp. Booklet 1s. per dozen.

DRUMMOND'S TRACT DEPOT, STIRLING.
London: S. W. Partridge and Co.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER'S

Awarded Grand Diploma of Honour, Edinburgh, 1890. Two Prize Medals, Paris, 1889.

LINEN Collars. Ladies' 3-fold from 3 6 doz.
" Gent's. 4-fold 4 11 per doz.
Cuffs for Ladies or Gentlemen from 5.11 per dozen.

Samples Post Free.

COLLARS, CUFFS & SHIRTS,

Matchless Shirts. Best quality Long Cloth, with 4-fold Linen Fronts, 35s. 6d. per ½ doz. (to measure 2s. extra).

By appointments to the Queen and Empress Frederick of Germany. [c73

ROBINSON & CLEAVER, BELFAST.

TEA IN PERFECTION.

From the Tea Plant to the Tea Cup, in its native purity. Untampered with. Shipped direct by

ELLIS DAVIES & CO.,

and sold direct to the public at strictly wholesale prices. From 1s. 4d. to 2s. 10d. per lb. All middle profits saved. Free delivery to all parts of Great Britain.

E. D. & CO.'S FAMOUS SELECTIONS

of the Pure Teas of India, China, and Ceylon, are known in every Town and Village of the United Kingdom, and are guaranteed to be of the highest quality; and all who appreciate a Cup of really Fine Tea, possessing pungency, briskness, and flavour, are invited to write for Samples (which are sent free), and Contrast with other Teas.

ELLIS DAVIES & CO., 44, Lord Street, Liverpool.

Goddard's Plate Powder

Admitted to be the BEST and SAFEST Article for Cleaning Silver and Electro Plate. In Boxes, 1s., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d.

SIX GOLD MEDALS

EPILEPTIC FITS.

Most remarkable cures continue to be effected by Mr. Osborne's Remedy for Epilepsy, which has won for itself golden opinions in all parts of the world. Full particulars (with testimonials) sent free on application to James Osborne, Medical Pharmacy, Ashborne, Derbyshire. Reference permitted to Rev. J. Baker, M.A., Stockport.

BE SURE TO CUT

10,000 RUGS GIVEN AWAY.

THIS PHENOMENAL OFFER is made to the Readers of this Journal only. On receipt of this advertisement, accompanied by Postal Order for 5/3, or 68 stamps, we will forward DIRECT FROM OUR LOOMS to your address, one of our genuine SEAMLESS WOVEN REVERSIBLE CARPETS, suitable for Drawing-room, Dining-room, Bedroom, &c., handsomely bordered and woven in 30 different patterns and art colourings to suit all requirements, and LARGE ENOUGH TO COVER ANY ORDINARY SIZED ROOM. These carpets are manufactured from a material equal in wear to wool, and are undoubtedly the cheapest in the world.

With every Carpet we shall ABSOLUTELY GIVE AWAY a very handsome RUG to match, or we will send 2 CARPETS and 2 RUGS for 10/-

The Queen says: "Decidedly stouter and handsomer than any of the kind, the price being the astounding part of the matter." Schoolmistress: "For style, durability, and cheapness, they cannot be beaten." Penny Illustrated Paper: "Manufactured in every variety of colour, and is one of the most surprising bargains I have seen." Church Bells: "Truly wonderful value."

Thousands of Testimonials similar to the following, & Repeat Orders, have been received from our Customers:

Gent. 14, London-street, Folkestone.
The Carpet I bought of you last year wears well and gives every satisfaction. One which has been in use four years is as strong and keeps its colour as well as ever.—J. Ashtell.

This offer is made to the Readers of this Paper only, and will not be repeated. All Orders despatched same day as received. Cheques and Postal Orders to be crossed "Union Bank." Address—

The British Carpet Weaving Co., 250, HIGH HOLBORN, LONDON, W.C., & 31, OLD STREET, LONDON, E.C.

Note.—Having bought up Messrs. Oliver, Mason, & Co., we have now opened at the above address.

NOT APPEAR AGAIN.

THIS OUT, LET MARK

THE GIGANTIC SALE OF THE "QUEEN'S ROYAL" HOUSEHOLD

HEARTHRUGS (Regd.)

Carriage Free. 2/6 IN REVERSIBLE RICH TURKEY PATTERNS, measuring 6ft. long and 3ft. wide. These Hearthrugs have gained a world-wide reputation for magnificence, cheapness, and utility, having no equal. Registered Designs, and considered works of art. Thousands of REPEAT ORDERS and Testimonials received, INCLUDING UNDERMENTIONED, giving the highest satisfaction. SPECIAL OFFER—Three for 7s.; Six for 13s. 6d.; Twelve for 26s. CARRIAGE FREE.

Sunningdale, Berks, 5th July.—Sir FREDERICK A. MILLBANK, Bart., writes:—"Please supply me with another 'Queen's Royal' Carpet, 12 by 21 feet, 49s. 3d., for my drawing-room at Barningham Park, similar terra-cotta and gold colours as supplied for my drawing-room last year."

ARCHBISHOP OF YORK. | ARCHDEACON RAWSTORNE. | H.R.H. PRINCE K. BIGIT (Siam).
ARCHDEACON OF DROMORE, D.D. | BISHOP OF CAPETOWN. | THE PRINCESS DE CROY
ARCHDEACON OF OSSORY. | PRINCE LOUIS OF BATTENBERG. | THE COUNTESS OF YARBOROUGH.
THE VISCOUNTESS HALIFAX

Trade Mark on all Goods. Beware of Imitations. Please mention this Magazine.

"Pulford House, York, Jan. 23rd, 1892
"Major Sandys' compliments, and he will be obliged if Mr. F. Hodgson will send him early as possible another of his 'Queen's Royal' Carpets, 6ft. by 9ft., 11s. 9d. Major Sandys has had on a former occasion two of these, which have worn exceedingly well. Cheque 11s. 9d. for same."

"The Elms, West End, West Hampstead, Jan. 4th.
Sir WILLIAM ONSLOW, Bart., writes: "I was much pleased with the 'Queen's Royal' Carpet and Rugs which I had from you short time ago. Please send me another, 12ft. by 9ft., £2 2s., with three Hearthrugs to match. Cheque enclosed."

"Haddlesey Rectory, Feb. 12th, 1892.
"The Rev. J. N. Worsfold writes thanking Mr. Hodgson for the promptitude of despatch of the 'Queen's Royal' Carpet, which has been duly received and gives great satisfaction. Kindly send a Hearthrug to match same. P.O. 2s. 6d. enclosed."

Lidith-road, West Kensington, Feb. 14th, 1892.
Mrs. R. CLAYTON writes: "Having found the 'Queen's Royal' Carpets bought of Mr. Hodgson 3 years ago wear very well, wishes two to be sent, 10½ft. by 12ft., at 25s. 9d., and one, 12ft. by 12ft., 27s. 9d.; both to match in dark tints of old gold and blue, and terra-cotta. Cheque 53s. 6d. enclosed."

THE "QUEEN'S ROYAL" HOUSEHOLD REVERSIBLE Rich Turkey Pattern CARPETS (Regd.)

Admittedly the Cheapest in the world. Woven without seam, superior quality, with handsome border to correspond; a marvel of excellence and beauty.

6ft. by 9ft., price ...	...	11s. 9d.	9ft. by 12ft., price...	...	22s. 9d.	12ft. by 13½ft., price ...	...	31s. 3d.
6ft. by 9ft., " ...	...	12s. 6d.	9ft. by 13½ft., " ...	...	25s. 9d.	12ft. by 15ft., " ...	...	34s. 9d.
6ft. by 12ft., " ...	...	15s. 6d.	10½ft. by 12ft., " ...	...	25s. 9d.	12ft. by 18ft., " ...	...	42s. 0d.
9ft. by 9ft., " ...	...	17s. 9d.	9ft. by 15ft., " ...	...	27s. 9d.	12ft. by 21ft., " ...	...	49s. 3d.
9ft. by 10½ft., " ...	...	20s. 9d.	12ft. by 12ft., " ...	...	27s. 9d.

Carriage free

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE (Chancery Division).—Hodgson v. Webb Brothers.—On the 18th day of July, 1890, his Lordship, Mr. Justice Chitty, granted an interim injunction restraining Messrs Webb Brothers, of Hackney Wick, from infringing Mr. Fredk. Hodgson's trade mark, "Eclipse," No. 91,774 (of Leeds).

The World's Wonder, "ECLIPSE" CARPET (Regd.)

Carriage Free. THE LARGEST EVER SOLD AT THE PRICE.

4/9 I will forward direct from the looms to any address, on receipt of amount, a GENUINE WOVEN REVERSIBLE CARPET suitable for sitting-room or bedroom, bordered and woven in art shapes, large enough to cover any ordinary-sized room. A RUG sent with Carpet, 1s. 6d. extra, or Two Carpets and Two Rugs for 10s. 6d., or Four Carpets and Four Rugs 20s., carriage paid. Satisfaction guaranteed. Do not miss this opportunity.

Portman-square, London, W., Nov. 23, 1891.
Lady Julian Walker writes: "I am much pleased with the 'Eclipse' Carpets and Rugs sent last week. Would Mr. Hodgson send twelve more of them. Cheque enclosed."

The Vicarage, St. John's in Weardale, Jan. 25, 1892.
The Rev. R. Shepherd writes: "The 'Eclipse' Carpets have arrived, and as they are so cheap and satisfactory will thank you to send two more of the 'Eclipse' Carpets with Rugs. I enclose Cheque 10s. 6d. in payment."

Illustrated List and Testimonials free. To readers of THE CHRISTIAN all goods sent carriage free. Cheques and P.O.O.'s payable to

F. HODGSON, Manufacturer, Importer, and Merchant, WOODSLEY-ROAD, LEEDS.

NOTE.—The above goods can only be had direct. No Agents appointed.

THE MOST USEFUL THING IN THE WORLD.

THE PLEASURE OF EATING AND DRINKING.

Wash up breakfast, dinner, and tea services with HUDSONS EXTRACT OF SOAP. Makes grease fly! Never clogs! Leaves no smell. Makes knives, forks, spoons and anything washed with it scrupulously clean and sweet, thus greatly increasing the pleasure and safety of eating and drinking. Sold everywhere in packets only.

"On Oath."

Mr. NORMAN TATE, F.I.C., Analytical Chemist, Liverpool, has sworn a solemn affidavit that, compared with other soaps, HUDSON'S will do a much larger amount of cleansing work, and does not injure the fabrics washed with it.

KNOWN AS HUDSON'S EXTRACT OF SOAP, OR HUDSON'S DRY SOAP.

SOLD EVERYWHERE IN PACKETS ONLY.

PEPSONYMIN TONIC

THE GREAT CURE FOR

INDIGESTION

There is no known remedy to equal it in cases of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, &c.

Sufferers from Indigestion should read our Pamphlet, containing valuable advice by Dr. Andrew Wilson. Post Free on application. Pepsonymin Tonic will be forwarded Post Free by the Proprietors on receipt of 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., or 4s. 6d., or may be ordered through the local chemist.

FRANCIS SPITE & CO., LIMITED, GLASGOW.
The Trade supplied either direct or through the Wholesale Houses. c327

FACTS re NERVETONINE

Used and Recommended by many Eminent Clergymen, Members of Parliament, &c.
Thousands of Testimonials.

is a positive, safe, and permanent cure for all Nervous Affections, Nervous Exhaustion, Nervous Debility, Mental Depression, Hysteria, Loss of Memory, Sleeplessness, &c. Nervetonine is a very powerful Brain, Nerve, and Muscle Strengthener, a Blood Nourisher, and a Stomach Reviver. Nervetonine is invaluable in all diseases of the Digestive System, Indigestion, Headache, Loss of Appetite, Constipation, &c. All forms of Nerve Pains, Neuralgia, Toothache, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Gout, and Sciatica, are Instantly Relieved and Permanently Cured with NERVETONINE. Bottles, 1s. 9d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s.; postage, 2d. extra. For further particulars see "THOMPSON'S CONCISE GUIDE TO HEALTH," Gratis. From Sole Proprietor,

M. F. THOMPSON, Central Pharmacy,
17, GORDON STREET, GLASGOW;
and 97, PRINCES STREET, EDINBURGH.
None genuine without M. F. Thompson's Signature.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."

BEECHAM'S PILLS

FOR ALL

BILIOUS AND NERVOUS DISORDERS,

SUCH AS

Sick Headache, Constipation, Weak Stomach, Impaired Digestion, Disordered Liver, and Irregularities.

Sold Everywhere in Boxes, 9½d., 1s. 1½d., and 2s. 9d. each.

"YOUR SPLENDID REMEDY SAVED MY LIFE."
(So writes a Patient recently.)

FOR THE TREATMENT OF CONSUMPTION

AND

ALL CHEST DISEASES,

RESULTS OF INFLUENZA, &c.,

See the NEW EDITION, with APPENDIX, of

MR. GEORGE THOS. CONGREVE'S

Book "ON CONSUMPTION, &c.," which may be had, post free for ONE SHILLING, from the Author, Coombe Lodge, Peckham, London, S.E.

FORTIETH SERIES OF CASES.

CASE FOR THE WEEK.

LEFT LUNG DISEASED—An ENGINEER at CRAWLEY.

"Make use of my case with full address, but for a special reason omit my name at present. I do all I can to recommend your golden medicines, and if anyone is referred to me they shall receive an answer."

So writes this patient from Whiteley Hill Lodge, WORTH, near CRAWLEY, Sussex.

The first symptom, as described to me in December, 1890, was a cold shivering at night, followed by severe sweats. This no doubt arose from a chill, to which engineers are often exposed by coming out from the great heat of the boiler-house into cold air. Pains in the chest and left side, followed with cough and pinky expectoration, distressed breathing, and general weakness.

In January he writes:—"I am glad to say I feel stronger, and do not cough so much nor spit so much."

In February he reported himself as "steadily progressing under your treatment."

The patient continued my medicine through the year. Writing me January 25 of this year he says:—"I feel it is my duty to acknowledge the great benefit I have gained from your medicine, and that under the most trying circumstances. I was told my left lung was affected very much, and I must go to another climate. When I heard of you I put great faith in your treatment. I felt it was my only chance. I have been working sixteen hours a day, and am now better in health than thousands at this trying time (the time that influenza was raging). Yours gratefully, &c."

NOTE.—CONSULTATIONS FREE at Coombe Lodge, Peckham, on TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings only. No charge except the usual charge for three or six weeks' supply of medicine. All Patients should read the Book first.

PAIN KILLER

The Great Family Medicine. Get a Bottle to-day of PERRY DAVIS'S PAIN KILLER. Acts directly on the seat of Pain. Externally it cures Scalds, Burns, Boils, Sprains, Bruises, Toothache, Headache, Stings and Bites of Insects, &c. Internally it cures Colds, Liver Complaints, Headache, Heartburn, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Sea Sickness, Cramp and Pain in Stomach, Colic, Diarrhœa, Cholera, &c. Sold by all Chemists at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. British Depot: 46, Holborn Viaduct, E.C. Avoid Imitations under misleading names.

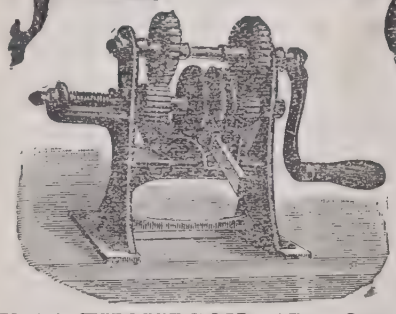
PAIN KILLER

c161

THE DEAF HEAR

BY USING WALES' PATENT

SOUND DISCS



Which are the same to the ears as glasses are to the eyes. Positively Invisible. Worn months without removal. Book of particulars, 2stamps.—THE H. A. WALES CO., 62 & 63, New Bond St., London, W.

BORWICK'S BAKING POWDER

BEST THAT MONEY CAN BUY.

Remember!! This Baking Powder is Pure, and contains no Alum.

Apex Knife Cleaner

Gives a Rapid, Brilliant Polish.
Does not Wear the Knives.
Is Simplicity itself. Is Easily Fixed. Cannot get out of order. Complete with Emery Powder, 15s. Carriage Paid.

Money returned if not approved. Of all First-class Retailers, or direct from

W. H. THOMPSON, 147, Queen Victoria-st., E.C.

Ladies should write for Patterns of BLACK

FIGURED DRESS GOODS

1/6, 1/11½, 2/3, 2/6, and 2/11 per yard, and

PLAIN

CASHMERES

1/-, 1/3, 1/6, 1/11½, 2/6, 2/9, 2/11, 3/6 per yard,
DIRECT from the "EXCELSIOR" MANUFACTURING CO.,
Sutton-in-Ashfield, Notts.
The "EXCELSIOR" SEA-SIDE SERGES cannot be equalled.
25 per cent. saved.

"MERINOLAN" SUMMER UNDER-WEAR—for LADIES, GENTLEMEN or CHILDREN.

Samples and Illustrated Catalogues containing all particulars sent on receipt of inquiry, post free.

Opinions of the Press.

THE QUEEN says: "The latest samples in Under-wear (Forsyth's 'Merinolan,' Glasgow) that have come under our notice, are little short of perfection, and may be obtained in a delicate, silky texture for present season, or in heavier qualities for Autumn, both for Ladies and Gentlemen. In all the qualities they are admirably soft and exquisite to the touch, whilst in the shaping of the garments, they are beyond praise."

THE LADY says: "Messrs. Forsyth, of Renfield-street, Glasgow, have brought out a most beautiful make of Under-wear called 'Merinolan,' which is extremely soft, very elastic, and combines every possible improvement in fabrics, fastenings, and finish. Every hygienic condition is fulfilled by 'Merinolan,' and it is very moderate in price, considering the very high-class quality of the garments."

TRADE MARK No 72442

THE PERFECTION OF SCOTCH-MADE UNDER-WEAR.

Practically Unshrinkable.

Exquisitely Soft.
Improvements in Finish.
Perfect in Shapes.
All Selvedge Seams.

TRADE MARK No 72442

Opinions of the Press.

THE COURT JOURNAL says: "Mr. Forsyth, of Glasgow, has attained much-desired fame for his makes of Under-wear, producing garments which combine quality, comfort, and all possible improvements. His 'Merinolan,' whether as an Undervest or Combination for Ladies, or Shirts and Pants for Gentlemen, are alike beautifully soft, elastic, and delicate in texture, so that the most sensitive skin may not be subjected to the slightest irritation, thus rendering the various articles of the highest utility, and to be specially appreciated by the invalid."

HEALTH says: "In the garments made by Messrs. Forsyth, the purchaser has a guarantee of their sound wearing qualities; while the great attention to the matter of finish will afford to wearers a great degree of comfort."

LANCET says: "The samples from Messrs. Forsyth are eminently satisfactory, and are gratifying examples of home manufacture."

FORSYTH, RENFIELD STREET. GLASGOW.

Please Name this Paper.

TO BRIGHTEN EVERYTHING ABOUT THE HOUSE USE STANLEY'S

"ABBOT"

(BRAND.)

Cleans PAINT.
IVORY.
FLOORS.
TABLES.
EARTHENWARE.

Polishes
BRASS.
COPPER.
STEEL.
TIN.
GLASS, &c.

POLISHING

SOAP

(PATENT.)

Is a Splendid Knife Cleaner!

Makes Hands White as Snow!

TABLETS, 1d. BARS, 3d.
Samples 3d. in Stamps.

Manufactured by C. STANLEY & SON, WATH, ROTHERHAM.

THE

'EWBANK' Carpet Sweeper

BUY ONE NOW FOR SPRING CLEANING.

Sweeps clean, and raises no dust. The Brush will outwear many Brooms. Wonderful improvements just added.

"The perfection of Sweeper. . . . It is a perfect gem." LADY.

CAUTION.—Beware of cheap American Sweepers knocked together for sale at a low price, and without any of the special features of the "Ewbank." The name "Ewbank" is on every Sweeper. From all Ironmongers, Furniture Dealers, &c., or, if any difficulty in procuring, please write to the Manufacturers, ENTWISLE and KENYON, Accrington, who will send address of nearest agent.

The Dudley 15/- Costume.

AS SUPPLIED TO THE COUNTY FAMILIES.

ALL MADE FROM THE CELEBRATED DUDLEY FABRICS.

English Cloth and Tweeds, 15s., complete. Smart Promenade Costume, 21s., complete. Serviceable Travelling Costume in Serges, Tweeds, &c., 25s. Tourists' Costumes, for hard wear, 27s. 6d. Charming Afternoon Gowns in Bengalines, Cashmeres, Tweeds, Cheviots, &c., 33s. 6d. Best Costumes in Silk Knop Tweeds, Ben Nevis Velveteens, Checks, 39s. 6d., 42s., 49s. 6d., 52s. 6d. French Embroidered Robes, made complete, from 2 Guineas. Silk Gowns, in latest styles, from 3½ to 7 Guineas. Wear guaranteed. Send Pattern Bodice.

LATEST STYLE. PERFECT FIT. Send for Patterns.

Write for F. W. COOK'S SHOPPING GUIDE, NEW FASHION BOOK, and PATTERNS, Post Free.

F. W. COOK, Ladies' Tailor, DUDLEY.

Reckitt's Blue.

WARNING
Refuse all Substitutes!

Printed by W. Speaight and Sons, Fetter Lane, E.C.; and Published by the Proprietors, Morgan and Scott, at 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.
Sole Advertisement Agents: John Haddon & Co.'s Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C.

The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

Weekly Record of Christian Life and Testimony; Evangelistic Effort, and Missionary Enterprise.

Portrait and Sketch of

Rev. Thomas Spurgeon.

PRINCIPAL

dmay Musings 8
rcessory Prayer 8
OGMENT BY FIRE. Address by Rev.
H. C. G. Moule 9
ewell to Missionaries 10
d-lane Institutions 10
General Election and Opium 11
sionary Conference at Brighton 11
. BARNARDO'S FESTIVAL 12
Tenana Breakfast 13
Palace of Ease for the Poor 16
Moody in England 16
erican Notes 16
the Young—"Flowers" 18

CONTENTS.

Little Things (Poem) 18
Stockwell Orphanage—Founder's Day 22
Work Among Discharged Prisoners 23
Pastor Hugh D. Brown and the Baptist Union 23
Notes on Daily Readings 24
Temperance Notes 25
Abbey-road Chapel, St. John's-wood 25
Among the Churches 26
Stillness (Poem) 26
THE MILDMAY CONFERENCE:
Addresses by Sir S. A. Blackwood, Hon. and Rev. W. Talbot Rice, Rev. J. B. Figgis, Dr. A. T. Pierson, Rev. George Wilson, and Dr. H. Grattan Guinness ... 14

No. 1170.] THURSDAY, JUNE 30, 1892.

REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C. [ONE PENNY, POST FREE, 1½d.

THE CONFERENCE HALL,

ECCLESTON STREET (Near Victoria Station).

27th Anniversary

OF THE

Evangelistic Mission

On FRIDAY, July 8th,

A CONVERSAZIONE will be held at HALF-PAST SIX o'clock.

A PUBLIC MEETING AT 7.30,

AT WHICH

SIR ARTHUR BLACKWOOD, K.C.B., will Preside.

The following with other Gentlemen have kindly promised to take part:—

Gen. Sir ROBERT PHAYRE, K.C.B. Revs. B. W. BUCKE, M.A.
G. T. PENTECOST, D.D. F. B. MEYER, B.A.
H. SINCLAIR PATERSON, M.D. T. A. DENNY, Esq.
J. E. MATHIESON, Esq. Colonel MORTON.
R. COPE MORGAN, Esq. HERBERT W. TAYLOR, Esq.
EDWARD TROTTER, Esq., and Mr. HENRY VARLEY.

Frequent 'Buses, Trams, and Trains from all parts run close to the Hall.

The attendance of those who sympathise with Home and Foreign Missions is earnestly invited.

Office of the Mission:—
164, ALEXANDRA ROAD,
ST. JOHN'S WOOD, N.W.

C. Russell Hurditch,
DIRECTOR.

WILTON HOUSE OF REST,

RECENTLY ERECTED,

1 & 2, Grosvenor Gardens, West Marina

(FACING THE SEA),

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.

A SUPERIOR House for Evangelical Clergymen, Ministers, and Christian Workers of all denominations from home and foreign fields of service. It is beautifully situated close to the sea, commanding extensive views, and is supplied with every comfort. A large Library. Tennis Courts on the adjoining Grosvenor Gardens.

Prospectuses sent on receipt of stamped addressed envelope.

Special Return Tickets, available for one month, from London Bridge or Victoria Stations, at 5s. each, on presenting an order obtained from the Superintendent, Miss HURDITCH, to whom all communications are to be addressed.

Institutions.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.

ANXIETY OF SOUL.—Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear, are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C. c415

GEORGE-YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., HIGH-STREET, WHITECHAPEL, E.

George Holland thankfully acknowledges receiving from G., £5.

Rations of Food to Hungry Children. Infant Day Nursery. Week-day, Sunday, and Evening Schools. Classes for Rough Boys and Girls. Band of Hope. Children's Services. Industrial Classes. Shelter for Children. Important Missionary Operations amongst Young Women and Elder Girls. Mission Work amongst Lads and Young Men. Mothers' Meetings. Evangelistic Services. Mission to Inebriate Women. Lodging House Meetings. Bible Classes. Temperance Meetings. Room-to-room Visitation. Training Home for Motherless Girls. Various Thrift Works, &c.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post-office Orders should be made payable at 63, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George Yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E. c2006

"DAY IN COUNTRY FUND,"

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &C., HIGH-STREET, WHITECHAPEL, E.

Received, with many thanks, X. Y. Z., 10s.; L. E. W., 2s. 6d.; Anonymous, 2s.

(D.V.) George Holland intends taking 500 children for a day in the country when sufficient funds are in hand.—GEORGE HOLLAND, George Yard Ragged Schools, High-street, Whitechapel, E. c2006

DAY IN COUNTRY.—Rev. J. W. Atkinson, Claremont, Cawley-road, London, E., urgently pleads for help to give a day in Epping Forest with substantial meal to poor, and in many cases orphan East London children. Cost under one shilling per head inclusive. Every gift great or small promptly acknowledged. Balance sheet by chartered accountants. c573

MEDICAL AND SURGICAL HOME.

In-patients, 9, LUPUS-STREET } BELGRAVIA.
Out-patients, 32, LUPUS-STREET }

PRIVATE ROOMS for Confinement Cases.

Probationers' classes (midwifery, dispensing, nursing, and lectures) in connection with out-patient department. Certificates recognised by licensing bodies.—Address HON. SEC. c570

COSTERS' HALL, HOXTON, LONDON.—Mr. W. J. Orsman, L.C.C., Honorary Superintendent, greatly needs £100 for the following mission operations:—Costers' Donkey Show, Children's and Adults' Country Holiday Homes, Sick and Benevolent Fund, and Convalescent Cottage for Invalid Christian Women.—Address Milton House, Shacklewell-green, Hackney. c1477

THE BENEVOLENT OR

Strangers' Friend Society.

Treasurer—Mr. Ald. J. C. DIMSDALE.
Chairman—J. H. ANDERSON, Esq.

Founded a hundred and six years ago. GREATLY STRAITENED FROM WANT OF FUNDS. There are 233 Christian men and women unpaid visitors engaged in the Society's work of BEFRIENDING THE SICK POOR of London. Kindly remember it in testamentary arrangements.

Office, 52, Finsbury-pavement E.C. c677

Educational.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space.

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors.—DELTA, Ward's Library, 112, Kensington-pk.-rd., W.

HAPPY HOME SCHOOL.—A Clergyman's Daughter offers the above. Loving care. Good education. Every attention. Terms £2 monthly, or 20 guineas yearly. Healthy, open neighbourhood. —82, Fenwick-road, East Dulwich.

EDUCATION.—Llanberis, Ealing, W. Superior Home School for the daughters of gentlemen. Resident, foreign and visiting Masters. Pupils prepared for Oxford and Cambridge exams. and London Matric. Children whose parents are in India or abroad receive the particular care of the Principal. Special terms made for the daughters of officers' widows and ministers. Reference kindly allowed to Rev. Thain Davidson, D.D., Ealing. c171

CHERTSEY HOUSE, Redhill, Surrey.—Parents may find here a happy, healthy home for their daughters. Beautiful walks. Resident governesses. Visiting professors. Preparations for University exams. Inclusive charges. Clerical, Medical, Army references, with prospectus on application to Miss M. B. GERDS. c331

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, East Tytherton, Chippenham.—Christian training. Preparation for examinations. Moderate terms. Principal, Miss HOLLIS. c164

HIGH-CLASS CHRISTIAN HOME SCHOOL. Languages and music specialities. The very young and delicate lovingly cared for. Entire charge taken of Indian and other pupils.—References, KÖNIGSHEIM, Gorringe-rd., Eastbourne. c106

SEASIDE KINDERGARTEN and Home School for Girls. Froebel House, Liverpool-terrace, Worthing. Thorough education and careful training. Principal, Miss Yerbury. c272

SCHOOL FOR GENTLEMEN'S DAUGHTERS, 6, Orchard-gardens, Teignmouth, Devon. Principal: Miss Rees, certificated, higher Cambridge. Efficient staff of masters and resident certificated English and foreign mistresses. Successful preparation for examinations. c465

HAPPY SEASIDE HOME, with education. Girls and little boys. Terms 6s. weekly. Convalescent and invalid children 10s. weekly. Young ladies requiring rest from 12s. 6d. weekly.—SECRETARY, Albion-terrace, Ramsgate. c238

PRIVATE PATIENTS can be received at the Deaconesses' Institute and Hospital, Tottenham. Fees from two to five guineas per week. Applications to be made to the Director of the Institution.

THE

Unsuccessful Candidates.

The sum of £10 is still required to complete the collection for the fifteen unsuccessful candidates at the late election of pensioners on the incurable funds of the National Hospital for the paralysed and epileptic. Will not kind friends help?

ROSA PEARMAN, Vice-President.

LADIES' SAMARITAN SOCIETY

National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, W.C.

Contributions of cast-off clothing are urgently needed. c560

THE BOYS' HOME,

Branches: Greenwich, Ramsgate, Toronto.

SOUTHWARK.

OPEN DAY AND NIGHT

To receive really destitute boys from 6 to 18 years of age without payment or recommendation beyond absolute need.

Urgent cases are considered at any time, but Mr. Fegan may be personally consulted about Orphan, Homeless, or Erring Boys at The Boys' Home, 95, Southwark-street, S.E., on Mondays from 10 till 2.

All communications should be addressed—

J. W. C. FEGAN,
The Boys' Home,
95, Southwark-street, London, S.E.

TERMS FOR

ADVERTISEMENTS.

"The Christian."

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates: (PREPAID.)

Not exceeding—	s. d.
30 Words	3 0
39 Words	3 9
48 Words	4 6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Advertisements should arrive not later than Monday, addressed to JOHN HADDON & CO., Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C., and stating that they are for insertion in THE CHRISTIAN.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order (not by Stamps) or by Cheque, crossed "City Bank, Limited."

Replies to Advertisements will be received and forwarded, for an additional charge of sixpence, to cover postage, by Messrs. JOHN HADDON & CO.

TERMS FOR

SUBSCRIPTION

TO

"The Christian"

"THE CHRISTIAN" is published every Thursday (PRICE ONE PENNY), and may be ordered through any Bookseller or Newsvendor, or will be supplied direct by the Publishers, MORGAN and SCOTT, London, on the following Terms, post free, and including double numbers.

ENGLISH SUBSCRIPTIONS.

for the year 1892.	£ s. d
One Copy & Postage ½d.	0 6 7
Two Copies and Postage 1d.	0 13 2
Three Copies and Postage 1½d.	0 19 9
Four Copies and Postage 2d.	1 6 4

The Subscription for one copy to Foreign Countries, (except United States and Canada), is 8s. 8d. per annum. To the United States and Canada, 2¼ dollars.

BOURNEMOUTH HIGH SCHOOL.—Principal: Miss Broad, assisted by Miss Chaplin, B.A., and trained teachers. The new building will give additional accommodation for boarders in September. Swedish gymnasium. Resident gymnastic mistress. c564

BOURNEMOUTH.—A lady wishes to recommend a good school at which her daughter has been pupil for nine years. Special educational advantages. Every care given to delicate girls. Mrs. C., at May's, 100, London-wall, London, E.C. 1009

ABBOTSFORD, CLEVEDON, SOMERSET.—High-class School for Girls, combining the advantages of a thorough modern education with a pleasant seaside home. Preparation for all exams. —Prospectus, with references, on application to the Principal, Miss TUCKLEY, B.A. (Lond.). c530

ETONHURST, WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—Preparatory School for the Sons of Gentlemen. Competent masters attend daily.—Prospectus on application to LADY PRINCIPALS. c375

MALVERN HOUSE, Blockley, Worcestershire.—Principals, the Misses Judson, who will be pleased to send prospectus and references on application. As only a limited number of pupils are received, the care and comforts of a refined Christian home are combined with the discipline and stimulus of a school. Thorough education. Resident foreign governess. Pupils escorted to and from Paddington and Birmingham.

THE PRINCIPALS of a high-class school, well-established, and singularly successful, holding testimonials of the highest order from parents, evangelical clergy, ministers, and others, have been solicited to place the advantages of earnest Christian training, combined with all the advantages of high-school methods, within reach of parents of good social position, but limited resources, who are unable to meet the usual fees, which to such will be reduced to 30 and 40 guineas, and made inclusive.

Preparations for all examinations. The staff is composed of experienced, certificated (London University), Christian governesses, English and foreign, with visiting professors. Liberal diet. Spacious residence replete with every modern appliance to ensure health and comfort. Delicate girls and orphaned families receive exceptional care.—CREDO, care of Messrs. Haddon and Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C.

COLLEGIATE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, combining technical training, practical instruction in household management and cooking, with the highest educational advantages. Inclusive fee, twelve guineas a term, payable in advance.—PRINCIPAL, Strickland's Girls' College, Stowmarket, Suffolk. c448

CRESWELL HOUSE Young Ladies' School, Westgate-on-Sea, offers thorough education and earnest Christian training. Home comforts. Watchful care. Highest references. Terms moderate.—Principals: Mrs. JAMES PIKE and Miss BRITTEN, M.C.P. c405

BRUSSELS. — Christian Educational Home for Young Ladies, Rue Belliard 185. Beautiful villa. Large garden. Tennis court. Superior instruction. Comfortable family life. Small number. Twelve drawing-room pupils received. Prospectuses with highest references.—In Brussels refer to Rev. W. R. Stephens, Vleurgat 185. Principals, Mademoiselle T. Kropff, Fraulein P. Stursberg.

SOUTH-WEST LONDON COLLEGE.

High-class School for Young Ladies.

CARLTON MANSIONS, CLAPHAM-RISE, LONDON, S.W.

Principal—Mrs. HALE A.C.P., F.S.Sc., Lond.

Modern system of teaching. Visiting masters in regular attendance. Resident, certificated governesses, with careful personal supervision and home comforts. Special advantages for music and languages. Good garden and tennis. Highly recommended for nineteen years by the late Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

Excellent testimonials also from parents of pupils, Rev. D. McEwan, D.D., Rev. W. Williams, and others. c468

ST. HILDA'S COLLEGE,

ABBEY-ROAD, N.W.

Superior home school for the daughters of gentlemen. Resident foreign and visiting teachers, holding University degrees. Pupils prepared for B.A., London Matriculation, Oxford and Cambridge Local Art, and Musical Exams. Children whose parents are in India or abroad receive the particular care of the principal. Special terms made for the daughters of officers, clergymen, and widows. Careful training. Well appointed house. Healthy neighbourhood. c555

BURLTON HOUSE, READING.—High-class Ladies' School. Principal Miss RATCLIFFE. Old-established. Thorough teaching. Modern educational advantages, examinations. Finishing masters. Careful Christian training. Well-appointed home. Highest references. Inclusive terms. c540

TO BE DISPOSED OF, boys' preparatory school, conducted by ladies. Established 42 years. Thoroughly Evangelical teaching.—Apply, by letter, N. B. G., 54, Manor-road, Brockley, S.E. c1876

SWITZERLAND.—Family Pension and Educational Home for Young Ladies. Beautiful situation. Families and young ladies can be escorted there.—Full particulars by A. B., 100, Haverstock-hill, London, N.W. c1882

CALAIS.—Comfortable Christian home with French education. Every advantage for sea bathing. Drawing, music and singing if necessary. Happy family life. References exchanged. Moderate terms.—Madame ARNETT, rue Gaillard. c1828

DRESDEN.—Two German ladies receive a few young English ladies in their comfortable home. Excellent masters attending for music, painting, &c. Family life. Highest references in England. Moderate terms.—Frl. BECHER, 15, Walpurgisstrasse. c1795

LADY AND DAUGHTERS (Church, Evangelical), experienced, have Vacancies for Two Girls. Only six received. Pleasant, healthy situation. Earnest Christian training. Individual care and home surroundings, with school discipline. Highest references given and required.—Mrs. COBYTON, Selwood, Hornsey-lane, Highgate. c1805

HOME SCHOOL for Little Boys, in healthy suburb of London, conducted by a Christian lady of long experience in the care and training of boys. The advantages of a happy Christian home and evangelical teaching are combined with thorough education on the best modern methods, and preparation for public schools. Large house. Separate beds and desks. Baths, gymnasium, cricket. The arrangements of the school are specially designed for the convenience of Christian parents going abroad. Pupils can enter at any time and remain for the holidays, in the care of the lady principal, visiting the seaside with her in the summer. Highest references to parents and ministers. Fees moderate and inclusive. Photographs and prospectus on application.—C 1845, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C. c1845

YOUNG PARISIAN LADY, Protestant, 19, desires to teach French in a Christian family, and be considered one of them would help in household duties.—A. L., 17, Rue de l'Arc de Triomphe, Paris. c1831

GOVERNESS WANTED, in the country. Three children, 8, 5, and 4. English, French, music, rudimentary Latin, needlework.—Mrs. A. BARTLETT, Shapwicke, near Blandford. c1798

HOLIDAYS.—An experienced boys' school Governess desires care of boys for the summer holidays in their family or seaside. Unexceptionable references. Girls not objected to.—M., 118, Stonefield-terrace, Hastings. c1786

GOVERNESS PUPIL.—Christian lady, many years a high-school mistress, now principal of high-class Preparatory School for Boys, offers comfortable home, with thorough teaching to a young assistant, over sixteen. References to former governess pupils. Moderate premium. —C 1846, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C. c1846

HOLIDAY ENGAGEMENT from Augu 1st required. Christian young man, about very gentlemanly, patient, lively disposition, go health. A few hours' teaching daily to you aged 14, Latin, Greek, Arithmetic. Companio ship for walks, fishing, boating, with careful a tention.—Terms and references to Mada Vuillamy, Nonancourt, Eure, France. c1852

SCHOLASTIC.—Wanted, in Septembe at a seaside boarding school, a resident ma master. Must be fully competent and a decid Christian.—Address, stating age, salary, and e perience, M., Haddon's Advertising Offic Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C. c53

TO GODLY PARENTS.—The undermen tioned (who is in no way connected with t school) is desirous of recommending an o established

YOUNG GENTLEMEN'S BOARDING SCHOO where the constant aim of the Principal is to tra those committed to his care in the fear of t Lord; and by the power of Gospel teaching ma tain a Christian tone among the boys, combini this with a thorough and first-class Education.

The Premises are advantageously situated up HIGH GROUND, NEAR, and WITH VIEWS THE SEA, on the South Coast, a short run fro London, and afford especial facilities for outdo recreation.

Prospectus and Papers of Examinations pass and honours gained will be forwarded on applic tion. Several of the Vice-Chancellors ha appointed their Wards as Pupils to the Scho Terms moderate

Dr. THORN, Paddington, London

ST. CLARE, UPPER WALMER, KEN

LATE MANOR HOUSE SCHOOL, HASTINGS.
Principal: Mr. A. E. MURRAY.

For gentlemen's sons under 14 years of age.

St. Clare stands in its own grounds of about acres, 100 feet above the sea, but protected fr winds by high trees.

Tennis Courts, Gymnasium, Workshop, Chap Sanatorium, &c.

Referees, Parents of Pupils, Lord Radstock, t Lady Anne Trench, Rev. Claud Bosanquet, Colo Bruce Bring, R.E., James E. Mathieson, Esq.; &

PUBLIC SCHOOLS, Entrance schol ships, navy, &c. Delicate boys medically sup vised. Experienced, First-class classic. End charge if desired. References: clergy, hea masters, eminent physicians.—M A., M. B., Sun side, London-road, St. Leonards. c510

OXFORD COUNTY SCHOOL, Thame. Established 1840. Efficient, home-like. Excell table. Perfect sanitation. Fine premises a grounds (11 acres.) Tepid swimming bath, gy nasium. Exams. University, Locals, Chamber Commerce, &c. Many distinctions. Referen The Vicarage, Thame; The Manse, Thame; t Rectory, Aston; Sandford, Thame, &c. "Pric much pleased with care and attention receive Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

NEW COLLEGE,

CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

Head Master: Rev. GEO. HUGH JONES.

First grade modern school. Small classes. dividual attention. Form work arranged wi due regard to health. Decided Christian traini Splendid premises, workshops, cricket field, ten courts. Fees £45, no necessary extras. cl

STANLEY HOUSE,

CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

Thorough education, classical or commerci with decided Christian training. Workshop a laboratory for technical instruction. Half t pupils entered for and passed some public exa last Christmas. Separate premises for jun school.—Prospectus on application to PRINCIP cl UNIVERSITY SCHOOL, HERNE BAY "Healthiest watering-place in kingdom."—Reg trar-General. Resident minister, Rev. Freear Principal, Mr. W. Freear (London U versity). Highest references. Special preparati for all exams.

MR. J. W. C. FEGAN desires to reco mend to Christian parents a high-class School Sons of Gentlemen, in the best part of Folkesto A thoroughly good education, with real Christ influence, home comforts, and close individual tention to each boy. Highest references.

Mr. J. W. C. FEGAN, The Boys' Home, 95, Southwark-street, S.E.

YOUR BOYS have Christian home a sound education with Mr. and Mrs. Dixon, Gor Middle-class School, Kingston-on-Thames. N Richmond and Bushey Parks. Entire charge ta for parents abroad. 18 to 25 guineas yearly. c2

LITTLE BOYS ONLY.—Principal gentleman's school at SEASIDE, seeks seve little boys for his resident certificated governe under his supervision. Private house entire detached from the main school buildings. vantages of sea air, excellent situation, Christ family and influence, home life and comfort Apply Mrs. BROWNE, 48, Upper Park-road, Ha stock-hill, London. c5

GERMAN GOVERNESS (30), Clergyma daughter. Ten years' experience. English, Co French (Brussels), music, drawing, needlework KITHA, Mrs. Edwin Hooper's Governess Institu Compton-terrace, Islington, London, N. Introd tion free. Many Christian governesses disengag c18

THOROUGHLY EXPERIENCED GOVE NESS in a boys' preparatory school desires engagement in September. Usual English s jects, Latin and French. Good disciplinar Highest references.—Miss TURNER, 76, The M Newport, I.W. c18

GOVERNESS.—Wanted, in September young lady to teach three little girls Engl French, music, attend to wardrobes. Christ Dissenter.—C1799, Haddon's Advertising Off Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C. c17

TUTORSHIP.—A Cambridge grad (Classical Tripos, 1892) desires an Engagem travelling or otherwise, from July to the en September. Church of England. Abstain B. D. W., 59, Hopton-road, Coventry-park, S Tulham, S.W. c1

GOVERNESS.—Re-engagement requir by Christian Young lady, in family or sch English, music, elementary French, Latin, shorthand. Excellent references. Willing to tra —E. S., 136, Tufnell-park, Holloway, London, N c17

WANTED, FOR A YOUTH, of 17, priv tuition with a few others of similar age; or a fi class private school preparatory for college. C anyone recommend such, where decidedly sc tural and evangelical training may be coun upon?—F. C., 50, Brunswick-place, Brighton. c

FRENCH PROTESTANT LADY re- resident engagement in good school. ch, elementary music, drawing, needlework. references. Also holiday engagement. Sea- preferred. —C1854, Haddon's Advertising es, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, Lon- E.C. c1854

YOUNG TALENTED VOCALIST or mentalist required, to train salaried or or performer, resident articled pupil. on Conservatoire of Music, Porchester-road, e-park. Branches: Liverpool, Manchester, ingham, Brighton.—Address SECRETARY. c1866 ointments, Situations, &c., Wanted.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
ertisements should be received by Messrs. IN HADDON & Co. not later than MONDAY.

SECRETARY.—Christian gentleman, who recently relinquished position as deputation tary to a well-known mission, desires a lar appointment, or as secretary or superin- ent of a mission, or philanthropic work. A organiser and acceptable preacher.—A. B. C., of Messrs. Haddon and Co., Bouverie House, bury-square, E.C.

SECRETARY.—The advertiser (48, mar- ried) desirous of devoting his whole time to Lord's work, seeks engagement in town or try as organising, deputation, or general tary to a Christian or philanthropic society. d also assist in evangelistic work, having had derable experience.—THOMAS W. KITT, 68, lemere-road, Brixton, London, S.W. c1622

RESPONSIBILITY.—Advertiser, middle- , well educated, with unexceptionable cha- and references, is open to an engagement of Salary moderate.—DELTA, care of Mr. dbridge, Stationer, 5, Church-street, Stoke ington, N. 1733

MANAGER OR SECRETARY. Christian eman, well educated, widely connected, g had some experience as manager of an tution, desires re-engagement in similar city, or as secretary. Good disciplinarian. llent testimonials and references.—C1867, ton's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, bury square. c1867

A SHORTHAND CORRESPONDENT Typist, or bookkeeper. Quick shorthand r, with knowledge of French. Aged 29. Thor- ly experienced. Good references.—PHONO, of Messrs. John Haddon and Co., Central rtising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury- re, London, E.C.

A LAY AGENT, Scripture Reader, or gelist, by a young man, married (no family), erly with the late Canon Garbett, Sir Wm. de l Brooke. Good testimonials from clergy- And others.—H. B., Soldiers' Home, Lichfield, and c1811

RESPECTABLE MAN seeks situation as aker, lodgekeeper, or any place of trust. Ab- ler. Seventeen years' character as coachman. E. N., 63, Upper Gloucester-place, London, c1776

WANTED, BY A BUTLER, who would o leave private indoor service, a situation of and responsibility, care of offices, or willing ake himself generally useful. Married. Age Abstainer. Twenty-two years' highest char- r.—J. C., care of F. W. Reynolds, Esq., meld House, Bromley, Kent. c1739

WANTED BY MAN AND WIFE, Situation retakers. Office Keepers. Man could assist ice work, act as messenger, &c. Wife could ain cooking, &c. Stewards of club, Church or Keepers, or Verger. Abstainers. Age 35.— , Broadley-terrace, Lisson-grove, N.W.

THE REV. DARLOW SARJEANT can gly recommend a Christian man, married, for sition of caretaker, chapel-keeper or manager ee bar or temperance restaurant.—Apply H., ryle-street, King's Cross, W.C. c1770

SITUATION BY MAN AND WIFE, both r, as chapelkeepers, caretakers, or any worthy place. Highest refs. Chris- and abstainers.—E., 26, Pont-street, Lond n, c1842

MAN AND WIFE seek re-engagement offee Tavern Managers. Last place six years. n years' experience. Good testimonials.— C1873, Haddon's Advertising Offices, rie House, Salisbury-square, London. c1873

COLONEL DRURY-LOWE recommends oughly reliable couple, without children, ble for charge of coffee house, or any place st. Man just left the navy, wife good cook. ington House, Southsea.

YOUNG MAN wants situation. Gentle- y appearance. Fairly educated. Knowledge hand. Abstainer. Six years' reference last tion. Salary not so much an object as em- ent.—C. Fleury, 27, President-street, E.C. c1737

GARDENER (head-working or good ssistant). Twenty years' practical experi- ence. Three years present situation, seven ons. Married. Age 34. Christian.—CARTER, ener, Hanger-hill, Ealing, W. c1847

GARDENER, thorough, wants situation, ere through giving up establishment. Can oroughly recommended.—Apply to G., care of ommar, Hare-lane, Farncombe, Godalming. c1839

A COACHMAN, thoroughly experienced ving single or pair. Three years' excellent ster. Age 25. Christian and abstainer. e—J. GUNNER, Holmwood Cottages, Four , Edenbridge, Kent. c1772

ROOM-COACHMAN, thoroughly under- s the duties. Ride and drive well. Single or Christian and abstainer. Good reference. ent. One girl 11 years.—W. PAIN, South e, Enfield, Middlesex. c1849

A COACHMAN.—Highly recommended ference. Steady single or pair. Age 37. 21 experienced character. Married when suited. ster, 15, Courcy-road, Bromley, Kent. c1804

A LADY WISHES to recommend a very ent, middle-aged person as Matron to a home V.C.A., where a salary is paid.—Mrs. GEORGE ge, Dunraven, Enfield. c1801

ENGAGEMENT required as companion ere would not objected to). Christian, ab- ent. Excellent references.—Address H., 5, rs road, Clapham-common, S.W. c1823

HOUSEKEEPER, working; bachelor or widower preferred. Good manager and cook. Can be thoroughly recommended. In fellowship with Open Brethren.—E., care of Miss Gilchrist, 1, Greus- road, St. John's Wood, N.W. c1771

ENGAGEMENT wanted as invalid attendant or housekeeper where servants are kept. An abstainer. Two good references. Middle age.— BETA, 19, Fulham-road, Harrow-road, W., Padding- ton. c1768

LADY WISHES to recommend young woman (35) as sewing-maid or housemaid in quiet light place. Conscientious and willing. Very neat appearance. Christian home desired.—JANE WRITING, The Common, Malvern. c1766

WANTED, BY PRACTICAL BUSINESS WOMAN, who understands housekeeping, situation as manageress in Stationery and Fancy, or in Temperance House, or would work up a trade. —C1743, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C. c1743

CHRISTIAN HOUSEKEEPER requires situation in female business house, charge of widower's family, or position where strict integrity is valued.—E. STEWART, 42, Cedar-road, Fulham- road. c1745

A CLERGYMAN recommends a young lady as Companion. Good reader, active, bright, kind, and sympathising. Musical.—Apply to X., Ashwood, Lancham, Lincoln. References to Rev. T. Ovens, Weymouth. c1749

A AS MOTHER'S HELP or useful com- panion. Experienced, good needlewoman, musical, well-domesticated, pleasant, and willing. Good references. £18.—G., 40, Pickering-place, West- bourne-grove, W. c1777

INSTITUTIONS, homes, or hospitals, charge of, wanted for a few weeks, from beginning of August. Held similar posts before. Excellent references.—D., 118, Stonefield-terrace, Hastings. c1787

A LADY can highly recommend a widow lady as companion or to take charge of an invalid child. Kind, careful, and considerate.—S., Wilford House, Shorncliffe-road, Folkestone. c1784

A LADY wishes to recommend a person of Christian character and considerable experi- ence as Matron in a preventive institution, or in a training home for girls.—L., 4, Benwell-road, Holloway, N. c1807

GERMAN LADY (young) desires holiday engagement as Governess or Companion, travel- ling preferred.—C.84, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C. c1814

AS USEFUL COMPANION, Housekeeper, or Governess to children under 10. A Young Lady, highly recommended. Domesticated, cheerful, musical. Good needle worker.—Write A. B., 22, Whitehall-parade, Archway-road, London. c1834

AS USEFUL OR MOTHER'S HELP, age 21, in a Christian family. Very fond of young chil- dren. Thoroughly domesticated.—Address A., care of Mr. JARVIS, 22, High-street, Haverhill, Suffolk. c1832

RE-ENGAGEMENT as Lady Matron and Housekeeper. Fifteen years' experience as useful governess. One year in boys' college. Six months in girls' school as above. Salary £20 to £30.—F. W., Miss Green, 7, Loampit Vale, Lewisham. c1804

WANTED, BY A MIDDLE-AGED NURSE (Scotch), District Nursing. 2½ years' hospital training. Long experience. Good testimonials. No midwifery. Money not the highest object.— NURSE, S. S., 1, Chester-terrace, Cambridge- road, Aldershot. c1855

A LADY WISHES to recommend a quick, willing boy, who has been in her house four months, for housework. Under man-servant.— Miss E., 40, Pont-street, S.W. c1840

A LADY DESIRES engagement as Com- panion in or near London. Evangelical Christian. Age 32. Good reader. Disengaged middle of August. References exchanged.—Miss LAKE, 26, Well-walk, Hampstead. c1857

AS HOUSEMAID, where parlourmaid is kept, in a quiet Christian family. Abstainer. Christian privileges. Age 26. Wages £17-£18. In or near Surbiton preferred.—E. B., Moorcroft, Cobham, Surrey. c1759

A LADY IS ANXIOUS to find a situa- tion immediately for a young servant, aged 19, as Under-Housemaid. Has been well-trained, and is a good needlewoman.—Reply by letter to Miss Lourence, Poynder's-road, Clapham-park, S.W. c1760

AS GOOD COOK in a quiet, Christian family. Understands dairy and baking. With help given. Age 33. Wages £22, with all found. Near Bedford preferred.—H., Misterton Rectory, Lutterworth, Leicestershire. c1839

WILL ANY LADY (out of London) take girl of 15 on trial? Difficult temper, but capable and steady. Wages less object than good home.— Miss STUART, 24, Barkston Mansions, London, S.W. c1835

AS USEFUL MAID, a competent, trust- worthy person, with twenty-five years' excellent character. It is important that she should be in a temperance family.—Full particulars from Miss AYERST, Church House, Dean's-yard, Westmin- ster; or the Secretary, 37, Chesham-place, S.W. c1793

Appointments, Situations, &c., Vacant.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.

A1 TEA AGENCY.—Any one wishing to increase their income can easily do so by selling our Fine Ceylon Teas among friends and customers. The exceptional terms we offer enable Agents to earn £2 weekly. Compare samples.—United Tea Supply, Union-court, London, E.C. Name paper.

TO SHEEPSKIN RUG MAKERS.— Wanted, a Man, about 30 years of age, who under- stands cutting, with a knowledge of wool boas. One who could superintend during absence of principal. An abstainer and conscientious prin- ciples preferred. Accommodation to live on works. —By letter, EDWARD, 104, Fentiman-road, Clap- ham. c1794

OFFICES FOR HOME HELP, 9, Upper Baker-street, N.W. Miss Hooper supplies Chris tian governesses, nurse-companions, housekeepers, maids of every description; also superior domestic servants.—Telegrams "Helpfulness," London. c1750

A MANAGER wanted, for a small village coffee house. Church communicant and abstainer. Evening attendance only necessary, and should be combined with other employment during day. Rent 4s. a week.—Rev. S. CHURCHILL, Birling Vicarage, Maidstone. c1857

BUTLER OR INDOOR SERVANT wanted. Active and reliable. Single man. Abstainer. Footman kept.—Apply, with references and stating wages required, to Mr. M., Gresford, Queen's-road, Boscombe-park, Bournemouth. c1838

A SELECT AGENCY for Male and Female Servants is opened by Mr. FORDER at 105, Glouces- ter-road, South Kensington, S.W. Hours, 8 till 6. Numbers of all better-class servants are required daily to fill vacancies. Also Soho Bazaar, 77, Oxford-street, W.

WANTED, AT ONCE, good Cooks, House Parlourmaids, Housemaids, Nurses, and good General Servants. Quiet situations. Good wages. This office can be well recommended as thoroughly reliable.—Miss MAULDEN (late missionary), 97, Harrow-rd., Paddington-gn. Stamp for reply. c1755

TO PARENTS.—An architect and sur- veyor, in good practice, has a vacancy in his City office for a pupil. Premium moderate and accord- ing to ability.—Address F. S. L., Scriven's Adver- tising Offices, 66, Ludgate-hill, E.C. c574

TRAVELLERS' REST.—MANAGER AND WIFE wanted. Must be earnest Christian workers, total abstainers, having had some experi- ence of the working of men's lodging-houses.— L. D. F., Rutherford Lodge, Worthing. c1773

SECRETARY wanted, not under 35, for an undenominational mission in one of our colo- nies. He must be a thoroughly earnest Christian gentleman, with good business qualifications, and some knowledge of accounts and editing. Active interest in mission work indispensable, and, if pos- sible, should possess some independent means.—For further particulars apply, with testimonials, to ARTHUR MERCER, 2, Berkeley-terrace, Wimbledon. c1813

DRAPERY.—Wanted, a Young Lady for fancy and to dress fancy window. Also apprentices. Close on Thursday at two.—RICHARDS, 50, New North-road, London. c1746

WANTED, FOR AN ENGLISH FAMILY, in a small country house in Ireland, a middle-aged Christian woman, abstainer, to undertake the housework and assist with cooking. Four in family. Boy kept. A comfortable home.—State wages required to Mrs. GATES, Kildorrery, near Mallow, co. Cork. c1744

CAN ANY LADY RECOMMEND a young mother's help or nursemaid, good needlewoman, for a child of two, and assist with others?—State wages, reference, experience, A., 26, Ashburton- road, Southsea. c1780

A CHRISTIAN LADY wanted, by vicar's wife in Essex, to undertake entire work of house. No children. Help on Saturdays. Salary small. Happy home.—C856, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square. c1856

DISTRICT VISITOR wanted, to devote part time to various branches of mission work, carried on by members of the Society of Friends.— Apply J. E. BRAYSHAW, 25, Cecil-street, Green- heys, Manchester. c1865

WORKING HOUSEKEEPER wanted, for artisan's household. Four children.—Mr. Kebbe, Hoddesdon. c1802

YOUNG LADY wanted in Y.W.C.A. Home, to assist the secretary and lady superinten- dent. Partial payment for board required.—Apply Chestnut House, Sutton, Surrey. c1767

GOOD LAUNDRY WOMAN, capable of teaching girls in a Temperance Home.—Full par- ticulars from Miss AYERST, Church House, Dean's-yard, Westminster, S.W. c580

WANTED, IN SEPTEMBER, steady Chris- tian woman as Laundrymaid. Also young girl to help.—Miss BROAD, Girls' High School, Bourne- mouth. c565

LAUNDRESS wanted, in private family. Man and wife, if without a family, would suit, if man a good gardener. Cottage attached to laundry. —Apply Mrs. GEORGE CADBURY, Selly Oak, near Birmingham. c585

GOOD PLAIN COOK required for small family, two young children. Two nurses, house- maid, and day boy kept. Comfortable, country home for good servant.—Mrs. E. CALEY, Watton Vicarage, Norfolk. c1812

GOOD COOK wanted, understanding dairy. Family small. 4 female servants, man- servant and page. Balham is the station for Park hill, Upper Tooting. Trams pass the gate. c1833

CAN ANY LADY recommend a thoroughly good and trustworthy Cook for situation in a suburb of London? She must be clean, active, and a good manager, also an abstainer. Age not over 40.—A. B., 88, Bishopsgate-street Within, London.

A GOOD NURSE wanted, about the middle of August, for the country, to take entire charge of first baby from the month. Must be capable and thoroughly trustworthy. Age from 22 to 26. Good wages and every consideration offered to an earnest, conscientious woman.—C 1806, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square. c1806

A NURSE wanted, experienced in waiting upon consumptive patients. Christian demeanour. Strong, active, and not under 30. Salary £20. Kind home, in clergyman's family. Two references will be required.—Letters first, BETA, care of Matthews, 11, Newington-butts, S.E. c1829

NURSE wanted for two young children, willing to help in housework. An earnest Chris- tian desired.—Mrs. Geary, 233, Norwood-road, Herne-hill, S.E. c1877

TWO COUNTRY GIRLS wanted as Nurse and General Servant. Aged from 20 to 25. Sisters preferred. Two in family, and one child 11 months. Nurse must be fond of children and good needle- woman. General servant understand plain cook- ing. Good wages and Christian home.—Mrs. W. LOWEN CLOVELLY, Durham-road, East Finchley, N. c1878

THOROUGHLY RESPECTABLE WOMAN required, about 50, as Cook. Must be a good man- ager, clean, and understand her work. Kitchen and scullery maids kept. Wages £16.

Also YOUNG LADY for one year's train- ing in rearing and management of infants and young children. Must be good needlewoman, bright, and intelligent.—MATRON, Babies' Castle, Hawkhurst, Kent. c1843

MOTHER'S HELP wanted. Must be a Christian. Aged about 25 to 30. No teaching. Help with three children and light household duties. Salary £14.—P., 15, Bruce-grove, Tottenham, N. c1883

MOTHER'S HELP wanted to assist with young family. Salary nominal, but comfortable home. Servant kept.—Apply, by letter, stating full particulars, age, &c., to Mrs. WALTER, Living- stone Villas, Haywards-heath. c1809

A RESPECTABLE GENERAL SERVANT wanted. Private house. Gentleman and lady only. Tall person preferred.—Apply, by letter or per- sonally, between 10 and 12, Eastbourne House, Fentiman-road, Clapham-road, S.W. c1794

HOUSEMAID wanted at once. Must be willing to give assistance with children, ages 5 and 9 years. Wages £14.—Mrs. DOWN, 24, Hendon- lane, Finchley, N.

HOUSE-PARLOURMAID wanted for gentleman's family, seven miles from Brighton. Age not under 40. Abstainer. Wages £25 and all found. Good personal character necessary. A trustworthy, high-principled person much valued. —Mrs. GRAY, Hampton Lodge, Hurstpierpoint, Sussex. c1850

GENERAL SERVANT wanted. Must be able to cook. Age between 20 and 24. Wages £12 to £14. Another servant kept. Abstainer pre- ferred.—Apply Mrs. NORTH, 52, Waldegrave-park, Strawberry-hill. c582

GOOD GENERAL SERVANT wanted. Plain cooking. Two in family. Another servant kept. Abstainer preferred. About 23. Quiet, comfortable home. Wages £14 to £16.—Apply, after 5, at 7, Randolph-road, Maida-hill, W. c1742

A RESPECTABLE SERVANT wanted, as good plain cook in a small establishment, where two servants are kept.—30, Nightingale-road, Southsea. c1818

To Let, Apartments, &c.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space.

MIDLAND TEMPERANCE HOTEL, 76, Guilford-street, Russell-square, W.C.—A first-class Hotel for Visitors to London. Central and plea- santly situated. A thoroughly clean and quiet home, with every comfort and convenience. Highly patronised and recommended by the clergy and ladies and gentlemen. Bedrooms from 1s. 6d., breakfast or tea from 1s. 8d., service 6d. Full tariff, with testimonials, free on application to J. W. TURNER, Proprietor.

BEDFORD HOTEL, LONDON, 93, SOUTHAMPTON ROW, RUSSELL SQUARE. Quiet family Hotel; central. Bedrooms from 1s. 6d.; plain breakfasts or tea, 1s. 6d. Other charges equally moderate. Printed tariff on application to THOMAS HENRY WALDUCK, Proprietor.

W. TAVERNER, TEMPERANCE HOTEL, 41 and 43, Judd-street, Euston-road, London, W.C. Five minutes from Great Northern, Midland, and North-Western Railways. Beds from 1s. 6d. Plain breakfast or tea, 1s. Silent roadway. Ten mi- nutes from British Museum. Tariff on application.

BRIGHTON.—SUSSEX HOUSE BOARD- ING ESTABLISHMENT, 58, Old Steine, near to sea, Aquarium, piers, and Pavilion. Liberal table, with home comforts. First-class references.—Mr. and Mrs. Box.

BRIGHTON.—Select Boarding House, Pleasant and healthy situation. Near West Pier and lawns. Rooms lofty and airy. Home com- forts. Terms moderate. Special for permanency. —Moreland House, 116, Lansdowne-place, Hove.

BRIGHTON.—Engedi House, Eastern- road. House of Rest for Christian workers and others. Terms 10s. 6d., 12s. 6d. and 15s. per week.— Stamped addressed envelope enclosed for reply, LADY SUPERINTENDENT. 497

BRIGHTON (West).—Comfortably-fur- nished sitting-room and bedroom, 17s. 6d. Extra bedrooms. Near sea. Highly recommended by a doctor's wife, and Mrs. Osborne Howe, of South Africa.—TRUTH, 27, Westbourne-terrace.

BRIGHTON.—Board and residence for Christians. Restful, homelike. Ladies 21s., gentle- men, 25s., weekly; 3s. 6d., 4s. 6d. daily. Two friends 2s. 6d. each less. Omnibus from station 2d.—C. W. NUNN, 152, Marine-parade. c580

BRIGHTON.—Board and residence, per- manent or otherwise. Quiet, comfortable home. Close to sea and pier. Late dinner. Terms moder- ate.—Mrs. GOYDEN, 24, Montpelier-place. c1804

BRIGHTON.—A select boarding estab- lishment, central position, four minutes' to West Pier. Home comforts. Cheerful and quiet. Terms, 25s., 28s., 30s. weekly.—Apply to PROPRIETRESS, 6, Clarence-square, Brighton. c1799

BETTWS-Y-COED, North Wales.—The Pont-y-Pair Temperance Hotel. Very comfortable. Moderate charges. Special week end terms.— Tariff on application to manageress. c518

BOURNEMOUTH.—Boscobel Hall, Boarding Establishment. Apartments en suite, Central. Overlooks gardens and pier approach. Magnificent land and sea views. Liberal table. Inclusive terms, 35s. to 45s.—WHYTE. "Can cor- dially recommend this most admirably conducted home."—Dr. Pierson, Metropolitan Tabernacle. c386

BOURNEMOUTH.—A lady offers board and residence in a delightful establishme t sur- rounded with lovely grounds. Near the sea and gardens. Moderate terms. Every comfort.—Priory Mansions, Bath-road. c493

EAST BOURNEMOUTH.—Castle Court, Boscombe Chine.—Select Boarding Establishment. Charming sea and land views. Well appointed. Five minutes from pier. Private apartments.— Mr. and Mrs. J. D. HAZARD. c513

BOURNEMOUTH.—Comfortable, large, airy apartments, in own grounds, on best part of East Cliff, among pines. Sea view, near pier and gardens. Terms moderate.—Mrs. MOON, The Nellgherries, Grove-road. c1736

BOURNEMOUTH.—Board and residence, 25s., with family of medical man. Cheerful, healthy position. Convenient for cliffs and pleasure grounds. Careful attention to invalid.— DOCTOR, Linden House, St. John's-wood-road. c1731

BOURNEMOUTH.—"Melbourne," Knyveton-road, East Cliff. Comfortable, refined home offered to limited number. House pleasantly situated among the pines and near the sea. South aspect. Terms moderate. c1820

WEST BOURNEMOUTH.—To let, furnished, for two months, a semi-detached villa, beautifully situated, overlooking sea and common. Three reception, 5 bed rooms, dressing and bath room. References.—M., "Cheswardine," Alum Chine, Bournemouth. c1840

BOSCOMBE.—To be let, furnished, during August, desirable house, four reception, six bed rooms, bathroom, garden, &c.; 5 acres to shops and pines, five minutes' from beach.—Apply Mrs. VENIS ROBINSON, Serampore, Boscombe. c1800

BLACKHEATH (near).—Widow lady (young) desires to meet with a lady to share her very comfortable home. Terms moderate. Sociability rather than profit.—F., care of Messrs. Lenn, 28, Eltham-road, Lee, S.E. c1844

BURNHAM, SOMERSET.—Holiday home for Christian desiring quiet rest. Close to sea. Bracing, healthy resort. Very comfortable. Liberal table. Inclusive terms from 25s. per week.—Miss BROOKS, Elnathan House, Burnham. c1870

BRIDGE-OF-ALLAN (Near).—Board (liberal). Private residence. Lovely situation. Accessible. Bracing. Arrangements strictly family character. Gardens, tennis, trap, boat, cows, poultry.—From guinea weekly. Highest references.—PROPRIETOR, Corntun Vales. c1752

BUXTON GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT. Chronic Rheuma tism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Indigestion, Paralysis, Spinal and Nervous Affections, &c., successfully treated. Special cases received indoors. 40 years' practice. Particulars free.—RICHARDSON and WILKINSON, Volta House. c1763

BUXTON, DERBYSHIRE.—Brunswick Boarding House, Hardwick-square. A few minutes' walk from stations, baths, and gardens. Lovely mountain views. Established in 1883.—For prospectus apply to Miss PALMER. c443

CLEVEDON, SOMERSET.—Large, comfortably-furnished house to let during August. Near the sea and station.—T., Abbotsford, Clevedon. c529

DAWLISH, DEVON.—Furnished six-roomed house to let in August. Making up three beds £1 weekly. No garden. Near lovely scenery, sea and station. No attendance.—E., 5, Carlton-terrace. c1783

SOUTH DEVON.—Seaside apartments. Well appointed detached house. Pretty grounds (one acre). Ten minutes' from beach. Bracing air. Beautiful views. Pony and trap.—E., care of Casely, Budleigh, Salterton. c1779

NORTH DEVON.—Furnished house to let, for longer or shorter period. Twelve rooms Fine views. Two minutes' from sea. No servant left. Terms moderate.—L., Bay View, Combmartin, near Ilfracombe. c1765

DARTMOOR (NEIGHBOURHOOD).—Four small, back, cottage rooms (furnished), practically-separate cottage, behind small meeting-room. Offered only to Christian ladies. Rent ten guineas yearly. Vacant now.—Pound-street Cottage, Moretonhampstead, Devon. c1836

EASTBOURNE.—To let, lady's comfortably furnished house, five minutes' from pier, for 6 or 8 months, from middle of July. Two sitting, four bedrooms. 30s. weekly.—H. S., Pulsford's Library, Eastbourne. c1782

EAST COAST.—Small furnished cottage, 3 bed, 2 sitting rooms, in pleasant healthy village, 2½ miles from sea, to let for five weeks in August and September. Would suit small quiet family.—GLADWYN, Westleton, Saxmundham. c1736

EASTBOURNE Y.M.C.A. Boarding House, Central. Three minutes of sea. Terms: full board, drawing, reading room, piano, week 24s., day 4s. Married couple 48s. Convenient for ladies. —M. WATERS, The Holidays, Langney-road. c156

FOLKESTONE.—Home from home for Christian abstainers. Best part, not far from the Leas. 25s. to 52s. 6d. inclusive weekly.—Miss WOODWARD (Member of British Nursing Association), Haverstock Villa, Claremont-road, Folkestone. c1711

HARROGATE.—Beechwood.—Superior Boarding Establishment. Queen's-road and Cold Bath-road. Unsurpassed for position and home comforts. Within ten minutes of wells and baths. Stabling and carriages for hire.—Miss. C. LORD. c165

HERNE BAY.—Comfortable apartments. Pleasantly situated. South aspect. Close to sea and cliffs. Bathroom (hot and cold).—Inverara, Victoria-park-road. c1825

HASTINGS.—"Auld Lang Syne," Boarding House, 25, Cornwallis-gardens. Terms from 28s. per week. Highly recommended. Home comforts. Under Christian management. c567

ILFRACOMBE.—Comfortably furnished house, pleasantly situated, land and sea views, two sitting, one dressing, and five bedrooms, to let for two months, or longer.—Apply W. GREENAWAY, St. Leonards. c1761

ILFRACOMBE.—The Granville (Foster's Boarding House). Magnificent sea views, 120 feet above sea level. A delightful home on Christian and temperance principles. Faces full south. Forty bedrooms, baths, balconies. Special sanitary certificate.—FOSTER'S Bijou Guide to Ilfracombe gratis.

JERSEY.—Furnished apartments close to sea, within a few yards of bathing place. Bright Christian home; highly recommended. Terms moderate; special terms for permanency.—Mrs. LLOYD, 70, Rosville-street, La Collette. c1816

KESWICK CONVENTION.—First-class apartments to let for fortnight. Drawing and dining rooms, three bedrooms, immediately opposite the tent.—Address MCKANE, Reliance Printing Works, Keswick. c1863

KENT (Bromley).—To let, for four or five weeks from early in August, a house, most pleasantly situated, suitable for a large family. Garden front and back. Terms moderate.—M., Cromwell House, Bromley-common. c1868

LITTLEHAMPTON HOME OF REST FOR CHRISTIANS.—A magnificent building, fitted with all modern appliances. Facing sea. South aspect. In every respect arranged for the comfort of visitors. Terms 15s. per week.—For particulars, send stamped envelope, Rev. W. DARLOW SARJEANT, Oseney-crescent, Camden-road, N.W.

NERVOUS AFFECTIONS.

Private Establishment at the Seaside for Lady Patients suffering from Hysteria and Nervous Affections (not insane). The house is pleasantly situated in its own grounds, in a well-known health resort. Christian influence and home comforts. Massage, Baths, and Electrical treatment carried out under a Medical Specialist of many years' experience. Highest reference. Letters and Telegrams—Proprietor, CLEVEDON, SOMERSET. c341

MARGATE.—Private boarding-house within three minutes of sea. Best part of Cliftonville. South aspect. Every comfort, with liberal table. Early dinner. Moderate terms.—PROPRIETRESS, 6, Magdala-villas. c1859

MALVERN.—Y.W.C.A., Strathview, 5, Promenade. Boarding house and holiday home for those in business, governesses, and Christian workers. Near the hills.—For terms, apply LADY SUPERINTENDENT. c1803

PAKEFIELD, Lowestoft.—Furnished House to let, June, July, August, September. Whole or part. Five bed, two sitting, kitchen. Good sanitation. Close sea. Good beach. Safe bathing.—OWNER, 331, Amhurst-road, London, N.E. c1738

PARIS.—Pension de Famille. Change of address. Miss Galloway, 3, Rue St. Didier, Avenue Kleber, close to Bois and Champs Elysées. Comfortable refined house. Situation healthy and convenient. Lift, bathrooms. Sanitation perfect. Moderate terms. References exchanged.

PARIS.—Visitors to Paris can be accommodated with nice, comfortable home with an Anglo-French Christian family.—Apply to Madame DE LAUNAY, 69, Avenue de Segur. c437

PARIS.—Central, near Louvre. Comfortable rooms and apartments, by day, week, or month, with or without board. Ladies and families. Charges very moderate.—Apply LADY SECRETARY, 205, Rue St. Honoré. c1730

RAMSGATE.—Home of Rest, 2, Lindenvillas, South Eastern-road. Near sea. Good table. Every comfort. Terms inclusive. Gentlemen 30s., ladies 25s. per week. Invalids received on special terms. c1751

RAMSGATE.—Furnished house to let for August. Two sitting, four bed rooms, with attendance. Three guineas per week.—Apply Rev. J. B. WHITING, St. Luke's Vicarage, Ramsgate. c1752

ROTHESAY, SCOTLAND.—House of Rest and Hydropathic. A resort for Christians. Finely situated. Overlooking the sea. Terms, board, lodging, attendance (inclusive), 27s. 6d. to 35s. per week.—Prospectus from C. CAMPBELL, Proprietor. c250

SALTBURN-BY-THE-SEA.—Yorkshire coast. Quiet home for a few Christians. Near brine baths. Bracing air, woodland walks. Terms for board and lodging, 25s. per week.—Mrs. HOLDERNESS, Station-square. c1757

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Rev. F. Whitfield desires to recommend select and home-like boarding establishment to Christian visitors. Central position. South aspect. Near piers, baths, and station. Terms moderate.—Mrs. WARSCHAWSKI, Avondale, 16, Warrior-gardens. c1663

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Boarding Establishment, Meliora House, 20 and 21, Carisbrooke-road. Conducted by the Widow of the late Rev. F. WAGSTAFFE and Mrs. LOCKE. Good table. Home comforts. Terms moderate. Near sea, gardens, and rail. 134

SOUTHSEA.—Christian home for lady workers needing rest and change. Near the sea. Highly recommended. 20s. and 23s. Stamped envelope for reply.—Miss EDWARDS, 5, Grahamterrace, Waverley-road. c1788

SANDOWN.—Y.W.C.A., Isle of Wight, Home of rest for ladies. South aspect, with long verandah facing the sea and esplanade. 15s. to 25s. weekly.—Address LADY SUPERINTENDENT.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—Superior furnished apartments from 15s., with board from 20s. Bathroom, certified sanitation, sea view, easy access to City.—Mrs. GROOM, 2, Allendale-terrace, York-road, Southend. c1753

TOTTENHAM-GREEN.—To let, furnished house. Two sitting, five bed rooms, bath, or sitting and one or two bed rooms, with or without board.—Y., care of Miss Philips, The Green, Tottenham. c1858

WORTHING.—Home of Rest for Ladies and Gentlemen, close to, but not facing sea. Every comfort. Liberal table. Terms £1 5s. to £2 2s.—LADY SUPERINTENDENT, Rutherford Lodge, Worthing. c1808

WORTHING Y.W.C.A. Home of Rest for teachers and others. Board and lodging from 11s. 6d. to 17s. a week.—Apply Lady Superintendent, 2, Liverpool-terrace. c1817

HOLIDAYS.—Hospital nurse wishes to obtain board in the country for a fortnight. Farmhouse preferred. Terms moderate.—Miss T., Cleveland-house, Chiswick-lane, London, W. c1875

FARMHOUSE wanted for August in bracing situation within two miles of railway station and 100 miles of London. Hampshire or Surrey preferred. Four bedrooms. Or exchange of houses.—Reply, care of E. HICKOX, 288, Seven Sisters-road, London, N. c1874

SUPERIOR COUNTRY APARTMENTS. Beautifully situated. Woodland walks and drives, bracing air. In the house of a Christian. Clean and comfortable. Permanency or otherwise.—M. A., Providence Cottage, Woodford-bridge, Essex. c1879

A MOTHER is desirous of meeting with a young lady student or otherwise, to share with herself and daughter their eligible and commodious apartments on terms exceptionally moderate. Highest references.—MATER, 229, High-road, Kilburn, N.W.

A MIDDLE-AGED, SINGLE LADY with small income, and total abstainer, would like to share cottage with another lady or married couple similarly placed. Could furnish 2 rooms; must have use of kitchen. Total abstainers and neighbourhood of Tunbridge Wells preferred.—Write to E. R., 85, Eltham-road, Lee. c1796

TWO CHRISTIAN GENTLEWOMEN wish to share their bright, happy home with one or two ladies for a permanency or otherwise. Terms from one guinea weekly. References. KONIGSHEIM, Gorringe-road, Eastbourne. c105

LAKE DISTRICT.—Superior, comfortable farmhouse apartments offered. Near Derwent Water. Extensive views. Terms moderate. Healthy situation. Fine bracing air. References.—Mrs. THWAITE, East House, Newlands, Keswick. c1832

SUPERIOR HOME FOR INVALID and attendant, at Hampstead, with widow of medical man. Handsome bed and dressing room bath, &c., on first floor. Large, well-appointed house. Highest references.—C., Haddon's Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C. c1886

GENTLEWOMAN highly recommends bright sitting and charming large bed room, two minutes from sea, pier, and post. Excellent cooking and attendance.—Miss G., St. Helier, Graham-road, Worthing. c1872

A YOUNG COUPLE in one of the healthiest and loveliest districts of California desire to share home with English lady. Pleasant society. Good climate.—C1871, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square. c1871

SYDNEY WATSON heartily recommends West-end to Christians seeking a neighbourhood in which to settle. A wide field for quiet usefulness for God. Exceedingly healthy. Pine plantations. Four miles from Southampton. An undenominational work is carried on in a hall. Several very desirable family residences at present to let.—Particulars from J. BAKER, The Firs, West-end, near Southampton. c1810

INDIAN OR ORPHAN CHILDREN.—A lady, highly recommended by an eminent London physician and other gentlemen, and living at North Finchley, would give a thoroughly happy home, with every care, to two or three Indian children. Detached house. Good garden. High bracing. Good schools near.—Mrs. A., Mrs. Rounding, 45, Clephane-road, Canonbury, N. c1822

CHEAP SEASIDE QUARTERS, Hayling Island.—Holiday home. Adjoining common, facing sea. 21s. per week, inclusive. Reduced return fair, 5s. Either sex. Garden, field, bathing, boating, &c.—Particulars from Rev. G. L. HARDING, 4, Upper Porchester-street, Edgeware-road, W. c1824

FARMHOUSE APARTMENTS wanted, for July (possibly longer), within 1 hour of London. Three bedrooms. Healthy, picturesque neighbourhood. Near river preferred.—ALLEN, 26, Highbury-quadrant, N. c1793

WANTED BY A LADY, board and residence in a small Christian family, N.W. district.—Address, stating terms, to S.S., Fowler's Library, 92, Haverstock-hill, N.W. c1789

COUNTRY APARTMENTS, beautifully situated. Comfortable home for one or two ladies, with or without board.—Mrs. CAREY, Blendon, near Weston-super-Mare. c1790

THE WIFE of a clergyman residing near Doncaster would be glad to receive into her house two or more young children, who would have every care, including education; an invalid requiring a home; or one or more ladies requiring a home.—All particulars and references may be obtained on application to Mrs. KNOWLES, The Rectory, Winteringham, via Doncaster. c1791

LADY WISHES to find good home in Tunbridge Wells where delicate daughter could stay for a time.—State full particulars, C1778, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, London, E.C. c1778

BOARD AND RESIDENCE.—A comfortable home offered to two or three ladies. Terms moderate, in particular to one of the party who would give assistance in domestic arrangements.—C. V., 3, Beacon-hill, Camden-road, N. c740

COMFORTABLE, HAPPY CHRISTIAN HOME, in the country, for two or three children. Permanent or otherwise. Careful moral, and religious training. Strictly evangelical. Very healthy. Easy of access to London. Good references. Terms moderate.—Miss DAVIS, Prospect-road, St. Albans. c1881

FARM HOUSE BOARD AND RESIDENCE.—Freedom and ease of family life. Charming scenery from the Surrey Hills. Healthy locality. Liberal table. 30s. per week, inclusive, or 5s. 6d. per day. Surrounded by the lovely district of Coldharbour, Leith-hill, Ockley, Boxhill, &c.—Address Mrs. FAWCETT, Bregselis-farm, Holmwood, near Dorking. c1809

QUIET HOME in private house, suitable for two ladies. Permanency desired. Good piano. Moderate rent. Healthy locality.—Address first to FAITH, 34, Ladbroke-grove-road, Notting-hill. c1808

A LADY WISHES to meet with one or two Christian ladies to share private furnished apartments. Best part of Highbury. References exchanged.—P., Mrs. Rounding's, 45, Clephane-road, Canonbury. c1815

CHRISTIAN LADY, evangelical, good musician and linguist, seeks home, with moderate remuneration, in a clergyman's family, as Helper in parish, experienced, or as Governess-Companion. —BETA, 187, Lercham-road, Norwich. c1867

CONGENIAL HOME required by domesticated lady. Not young. Elderly couple. Widower with family. Any position of trust. Useful housekeeping. Small salary. Servant. Excellent references.—Lines Library, 79, Fairfax-road, N.W. c1792

A CHARMING COUNTRY HOME for August, in a picturesque village on the Cotswold Hills, is offered to one or more young ladies by an English and a German lady, who, having lived abroad for years, offer special opportunities for French and German reading and conversation; also advanced music. Tennis lawn. Highest references.—Address first, FRAULEIN, care of Messrs. Haddon and Co.'s Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square. c532

HOME FOR CHRISTIAN LADIES.—Temporary or permanent. Very comfortable. Conveniently situated for train and omnibus.—For terms, address, enclosing stamp, Miss LANKESTER, St. Bernard, 41, Boresford-rd., Mildmay, London, N. c1528

SEASIDE HOLIDAYS.—Superior and select boarding-house on sea-front. Fine views of English Channel. Good country. Nice walks. Christian society. One guinea weekly till August.—Address PRINCIPAL, Caswell, Lancing-on-Sea, Sussex.

EXCEPTIONAL ADVANTAGES for Parlour Boarders in ladies' school. Parisian French. Terms moderate. Healthful, comfortable home. Pleasant country.—Apply to Mme. CLEMENCET, Rainoy, near Paris. Good references. c1729

INTEMPERANCE and Nervous Debilities.—A Private Home at the seaside (established in 1874), for ladies only, suffering from alcoholism, opium, morphia, chloral, or drugs; every care, judicious supervision, with home comforts and amusements. Highest references.—Address MARCUS, care of Messrs. Tayler, 154, Fleet-street, London.

COLONEL ARCHDALL MEMORIAL HOLIDAY HOME, Bundoran, Ireland, overlooking the sea, and commanding a fine view of Donegal Bay and mountains. Receives ladies and persons of the working-classes. Terms per week including board, from 7s. 6d. to 35s., according to rooms. First and second class dining-rooms. Fine sea-bathing. Reference required. Return tickets in Ireland at single fare. c538

FREEHOLD LAND, 35 miles from London, in one acre plots at £20, and half-acre plots at £10 each. No restrictions, free conveyance. Payable by instalments. Good land, well adapted for fruit or poultry. Why emigrate?—Mr. BRAKE Farnborough, Hants. c524

Miscellaneous.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.

9d. for each Additional 9 Words.

Displayed Advertisements according to space.

ANXIOUS INQUIRERS.—A Christian will gladly correspond with any earnest seeker after Divine truth.—EVANGELIST, Clapham, S.W. 2 Cor. v. 20.

SEASIDE.—A party being formed to spend some weeks at Scarborough, can be enlarged by two or three more ladies.—EXIT, 112, Kensington-park-road, W. c534

GRAND BAZAAR, in aid of King's Lynn Y.M.C.A. Contributions thankfully received by G. W. THOMPSON, Y.M.C.A., St. James's-street, King's Lynn. c1754

BOOKS WANTED for a Sunday-school Library. Contributions thankfully received by G. W. THOMPSON, Y.M.C.A., St. James's street, King's Lynn. c1753

HOME REQUIRED for boy, two years old. Orphan of good birth, fair. Will any one adopt same?—Mrs. WILSON, 8, Ethel-road, Seacombe, Cheshire. c1764

WOULD ANY KIND CHRISTIAN LADY adopt a healthy baby boy, sixteen months old, for love only?—K. E., 72, Hampstead-road, London, N.W. c1821

WANTED, IN POOR PARISH, seeking to help missions to the heathen, remnants of any kind for sewing meeting. Contributions thankfully received by Mrs. STACK, Luddendenfoot Vicarage, via Manchester. c1819

DELICIOUS AMERICAN CAKES for afternoon tea, made in ten minutes. This and two other invaluable recipes, 1s. 1d. Infants' first Shirts, finest Cambric, six 5s. 6d.—M. M., 10, Elm place, South Kensington, London. c578

NIGHT-FLOWERING TOBACCO.—Large white blossoms, opening in evening. Most deliciously scented. Grows freely in pot or open ground. Three strong plants 1s., free.—RAYNOR, Avenue, Southhampton.

THE HARDY MAIDENHAIR (Trichomanes adiantifolium).—Fine foliage, closely resembling the famous fern. Excellent for cutting. Flourishes anywhere. 3 for 1s., free.—RAYNER as above. c1826

AN UNUSUALLY GOOD OPPORTUNITY offers for employment of £5,500 in an established and very profitable business, almost a monopoly. Principles only negotiated with.—R. C. & D. Messrs. Deacon, Leadenhall-street, E.C. 1855

FOR SALE, nine numbers Virtue's Imperial Shakspere, beautifully illustrated. Good as new. Value £4 10s. Will take £3 10s.—M., Glenview, Llandovery, South Wales. c1831

CHOTA HAZRI TEAS

1s. 4d. per lb. Unrivalled value. Strongest, most economical, and best-flavoured teas in the world. SAMPLE POUND SENT POST FREE.

1/4

PURE INDIAN 1s. 6d. and 1s. 8d. per lb. Splendid quality. CHOTA HAZRI TEA COMPANY, 17, Lawrence-lane, Cheapside, London.

Numerous unsolicited Testimonials.

DR LAHMANN'S COTTON-WOOL UNDERCLOTHING

PURE. NON-SHRINKABLE. NON-IRRITATING.

PATTERNS POST FREE FROM THE LAHMANN AGENCY, 15 FORE ST. E.C.

A MARVELLOUS REMEDY.

SELLERS' EUPEPTIC LIVER PILLS.

A New Method of Curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Constipation, &c.

SELDOM FAILS IN THE WORST CASES.

In Boxes 1/1½ & 2/9, post free, from the Maker,

J. SELLERS,

57, FARRINGDON ROAD, LONDON,

And of all Chemists.

KNITTED SILK SHAWLS. — Orders wanted for the above. Finest quality price 1 guinea, size 45 inches square, exclusive of fringe. Second quality a little smaller, price 10s. 6d. (postage extra) to be had in the following colours:—White, Black, Cream, Gold, French Grey, Cardinal, Sky, Grenat.—ESTHER KERR, 14, Abbey-street, Paisley, N.B. c1387

PORTABLE HARMONIUMS from 7Gs. Organs from £8.—The late Mr. Gawin Kirkham, Secretary of the Open-Air Mission, wrote:—"I can speak from experience of the excellency of your instruments."
CHAS. YOUNG, 21, High-street, Kingsland, London.

AMERICAN ORGANS AND HARMONIUMS. 5-octave harmoniums, £3 17s. 6d. Organs from £5 5s. Karn and Smith organs at reduced prices. Warranted 5 years.
CHARLES L. YOUNG, 21, High-street, Kingsland.

ASTHMA. — Persons suffering from Asthma, difficulty of breathing, &c., are invited to try (free of charge) a Remedy for affording immediate relief.—C., Mr. G. A. Keyworth, Hastings. c1344

LAUNDRY GLAZING.—Cuffs, Collars, and fronts like white china. Nothing used in the starch. No polishing irons. Particulars free.—LAUNDRY, 124, Liscard, Birkenhead. c1775

HILL'S PRINCES' RETREAT,
BUCKHURST HILL, EPPING FOREST.
A Beautiful Secluded Spot.
W. HILL can contract for School Treats at moderate rates. Shelter for 700. Plenty of Amusements. Trains every 15 minutes. Testimonials from Mr. Charrington, Mile End. c1242

TENTS of EVERY DESCRIPTION on sale or hire. Good secondhs marquees at low prices, to clear previous to removal to new premises.—J. H. BROWN, Railway Arches, Buckrell-road, E. c441

TO INVESTORS.—Shares (£5 each) for sale, in a very sound Industrial Company. Preferential for 8 per cent. dividends as well as entire capital. Business established over 25 years. Thoroughly safe. No risk. Holder urgently requiring the cash, will sell cheap.—INVESTOR, care of Bates, Hendy and Co., 37, Walbrook, E.C. c536

NOTICE. Lindsey and Son's Trusses, Elastic Stockings, and Belts.—Best house for all kinds of surgical bandages. A female attendant. Price list post free.—32, Ludgate-hill, and 40, Grace-church street, London; and 8, Broad-street, Oxford. Established 1810.

Umbrellas Re-covered from 2s. each.
IF YOUR UMBRELLA WANTS RECOVERING send it by Parcels Post (with Postal Order enclosed) to STRONG BROS., Umbrella Makers, Redhill, Surrey, who will re-cover it and return it as good as new by next post, carriage paid. Good strong twill, ladies' 2s., gents', 2s. 6d.; good alpaca, ladies', 3s., gents', 3s. 6d.; strong durable silk, ladies', 4s. 6d., gents, 5s. Patterns post free. Reference kindly permitted to Rev. F. Little, Redhill.
☞ A sample New Umbrella at wholesale price. List free.

COUNT MATTEI'S REMEDIES.
The Electro-Homœopathic Remedies discovered by Count Cæsar Mattei, of Bologna, Italy, extracted from non-poisonous plants, may be obtained of Miss MARRIOTT, 2, Hillside, Crouch-hill, London, N. By filling in replies to consultation form, which will be forwarded on application (with stamped envelope), a prescription can be sent, with the necessary Remedies, by post

NERVOUS, FUNCTIONAL, MUSCULAR, Heart, Chest, Debility, Paralysis, Exhaustion, Overtaxed Energies or Brain, Defective Circulation, Cold Feet, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, &c., cured by BENNETT'S IMPROVED MAGNETO-ELECTRIC VESTS, BELTS, SPINE, LIMB VITALISERS, SOLES, &c., always impart energy. Not known to fail. Frequent letters from sufferers prove their surpassing efficacy; economy. Batteries all Currents. Count Mattei's very effective Electro-Homœopathic Treatment. Information gratis.—BENNETT, Medical Electrician, Penley's-grove, York. c341

SHEFFIELD CUTLERY and electro-plate, for hotel and domestic use, wedding gifts presentations, &c. Buy direct from the great centre of production. Large illustrated catalogue, post free.—J. G. GRAVES, Surrey House, Sheffield. c514

"WHAT WILL IT BE WHEN THE KING COMES?" As sung at Exeter Hall and Mildmay Conference. Music and words 8d. per dozen; words only, 1s. 6d. per 100 (special terms for Conventions).—HAZELL, WATSON, and VINEY, 1, Creed-lane E.C. c1385

IDEAL WOOL UNDERCLOTHING.—The CELEBRATED CASTLE DONINGTON QUALITY, highly recommended by the MEDICAL PROFESSION for Winter and Summer Wear, made of PUREST and SOFTEST NATURAL and WHITE Wools of ENGLISH MANUFACTURE, at REASONABLE PRICES. Every description of garment for Ladies, Gentlemen, and Children. A descriptive CATALOGUE and PATTERNS of WEBBINGS (free by post). Should be in the hands of every Lady and Gentleman who values HEALTH, freedom from CHILL, and PERFECT COMFORT.—HYGIENIC HOSIERY MILLS, CASTLE DONINGTON, VIA DERBY.

NEAVE'S FOOD.
BEST AND CHEAPEST.
IN PATENT AIR-TIGHT TINS.

DAINTREE & CO., DYERS,
The LARGEST WORKS IN LONDON for Dyeing and Cleaning in every Branch.
95, Mount-street, Grosvenor-square, W.;
365, Southwark-park-road, S.E.; 41, Leicester-square, W.C.
Carts Collect and Deliver to all parts.—PRICE LISTS BY POST. LONDON.

BAGSTER'S BIBLES.
FROM 3s. 6d.
SAMUEL BAGSTER & SONS, LIMITED, 15, PATERNOSTER-ROW, LONDON.

Publications.

GOSPEL TRACTS at very cheap rates, suitable for broadcast distribution, advertising mission and other services, &c. Supplied at inclusive rates. Carriage paid. Specimen packets sent post free to any Christian worker.
PENMAN and Co., 33, Furnival-st., London E.C.

MRS. GRIMKE'S TEXT CARDS.—Send to Wellington House, Higher Broughton, Manchester for New List. Cheapest English, 1s. 6d. 100; foreign per 100; or to
E. KAUFMANN, 30, Paternoster-square.
OUR INHERITANCE. Thoughts on the Book of Revelation, 2s., from Mrs. Grimke, as above.

FOREIGN GOSPEL TRACTS (sixteen languages) offered to missionaries and other Christian workers by Evangelical Tract Society.—Write (enclosing freewill offering, if able) to Mr. ROBERTS, 26, Paternoster-row, London. c546

ONE HUNDRED ANSWERS TO INFIDEL OBJECTIONS. By W. R. BRADLAUGH. With complete indices of subjects and texts. Over five hundred difficult portions of Scripture referred to or harmonised, 1s.; or handsomely bound in cloth, gilt lettered, 2s.—JOHN SNOW and Co., 2, Ivy-lane, Paternoster-row, London, and all book sellers. c2.5

"DEVOTIONAL" SERIES of Booklets. By Rev. F. C. Spurr (mission preacher). Eight varieties. Thoroughly teach Scriptural Holiness. 6d. per dozen. 3s. 6d. per 100.
PENMAN & Co., Furnival-street, London, E.C.

THE CHEAPEST SHILLING BIBLE.
SEND FOR SAMPLE TO
TRINITARIAN BIBLE SOCIETY,
7, ST. PAUL'S CHURCHYARD, LONDON.
Ruby type, round corners, red and gold edges, six coloured maps, bound in leather, 1s. net; post free, 1s. 3d. c520

FANCY WORK.—DORINDA'S BOOK. Needlework for Ladies for Pleasure and Profit.—Useful Needlework. Fancy Art Work. Knitting, Crochet, Articles for Bazaars and Presents. How profitably to dispose of Work. New List of Work Societies, and List of Annual Amateur Art Work Exhibitions. Price 2s. together.
RINGROSE, Malvern Link. c1641

Works by Rev. Dr. Pentecost.

"It is well known in Boston that whenever Mr. Moody was obliged to be absent from the great assemblies or the inquiry-rooms of the Boston Tabernacle, in the winter of 1876, Dr. Pentecost was the only man who could fill the gap.

"I heard Dr. Pentecost several times in those days, and rejoiced greatly in his remarkable endowments, and their employment in the service of Biblical truth."—JOSEPH COOK.

"Its Chapters are Mountain Summits, Lakes with the Dew of Hermon."—Rev. Joseph Cook.

"IN THE VOLUME OF THE BOOK";

OR, THE PROFIT AND PLEASURE OF BIBLE STUDY.

With Introductions by Rev. JOSEPH COOK and Bishop J. H. VINCENT, D.D.

TENTH EDITION.

Tinted Covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, 2s.
Presentation Edition:
Cloth, Bevelled Boards, 2s. 6d.

"We have read this work with unusual pleasure. It is full of healthy thinking. It contains a large amount of information; abounds with wise counsels; is tersely and racily written; and is certain to captivate every reader who has even the least desire to be instructed in the many matters with which, in the preparation of it, the author had to deal."—Baptist Magazine.

"No one can read this almost unique volume without being stimulated to a more diligent study of THE BOOK. It is not, strictly speaking, evidential; yet the key to valuable Scripture evidence is to be found within. It is not exegetical; but the careful reader will be taught thereby a sound method of exposition. It is not homiletical; although the seed-corn of dozens of addresses is contained in its brief compass. Buy it, we can say to all; read it with your Bible open and a commonplace book to hand, ready to catch up and store away the many precious things so lavishly scattered throughout its pages."—Night and Day.

OUT OF EGYPT.

A SERIES OF ADDRESSES AND BIBLE READING ON THE EXODUS OF ISRAEL, AND ITS SPIRITUAL LESSONS.

Tinted covers, 2s.; Cloth limp, 2s. 6d.;
Cloth boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"A truly living and freshly suggestive book; bright and manly in utterance; scriptural in teaching; enriched everywhere with suitable anecdote and apt illustration. A most welcome and practical commentary on the portion of the Word with which it deals."—British Messenger.

"Most profitable and spiritual. We wish a large circulation to these valuable Papers; and would recommend them as a useful present to the many young Christians growing upon the Divine life—that they may be kept from the worldly spirit of the Church of God in these days."—Footsteps of Truth.

SMALL BOOKS by Dr. G. F. PENTECOST.

NEATLY PRINTED ON TINTED PAPER.

SUITABLE FOR THE INQUIRY-ROOM; FOR GENERAL DISTRIBUTION; OR FOR ENCLOSING IN LETTERS.

PACKET 1.

"I WANT TO BE GOODER!" 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
THE JAPANESE STUDENT. 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
"I DREADS DE PROCESS!" 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
"PEACE FOR THE LIKES OF ME!" 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
"LET ME SEE THAT!" 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
"SONS OF GOD." 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
THE WITNESS OF THE SPIRIT. 1/- per doz.; 7/- per 100.
THE TWO SISTERS. 1/- per doz.; 7/- per 100.
THE PRECIOUS BLOOD OF CHRIST. 1/- per doz.; 7/- per 100.

The above-mentioned Nine Books may be had in a Neat Packet, price 6d.

PACKET 2.

THE CHRISTIAN AND THE MODERN DANCE. 2/- per doz.
"I GETS SULKY WHEN I'M SPOKE TO!" 1/- per doz.
CONSECRATION; OR, PRACTICAL HOLINESS. 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
"I AM TRYING TO BELIEVE." 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
ABBIE: A PASSAGE FROM A LIFE-STORY. 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
"A SOUTH WINDOW." 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
IN A SNOWSTORM. 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.
"ARE YOU A CHRISTIAN?" 6d. per doz.; 3/6 per 100.

The above-mentioned Eight Books may be had in a Neat Packet, price 6d.

The Christian Worker's Hand-Book:

AND RECORD OF INQUIRERS & CONVERTS.

By G. F. PENTECOST, M.A., D.D.,
Author of "Out of Egypt"; "In the Volume of the Book," &c., &c.

Price Eightpence (Post Free, 9d.)

THIS HANDBOOK, prepared by one who has had wide and lengthy experience in Revival Work, is specially intended for use in the "Inquiry Room." It contains a striking selection of Texts on SIN and SALVATION, for ready reference by the WORKER. It has Five closely-printed Pages of HINTS TO SOUL-WINNERS; Four Pages for Lists of Persons to be Prayed or Conversed with; an INQUIRER'S and CONVERT'S CARD, with the Name, Residence, and other particulars regarding the Inquirer; and also a solemn Form of "Covenant with God," to be signed by the Convert—to whom is handed a Duplicate Copy to be placed in his or her Bible.

"WHAT CAN I DO?"

EARNEST WORDS TO ANY WHO ARE WILLING TO WORK FOR CHRIST.

Price 2d. each, Tinted covers; 14s. per 100.
6 copies sent Post Free for 1s.

CONTENTS.

In the Day of thy Power.
Soul Winning.
"Let your Light Shine!"
"Ye are the Light of the World."
Light-giving Testimony.
The Teaching of a Life.
Need of the Holy Spirit.
Prayer and its Answer
Individual Effort.
A Work for All.
A Spirit of Prayer.
Causes of Conversion.
The Divine Commission
Witnessing for Christ.
"Come and see!"
A Word in Season.
The Woman of Samaria
Another Mode of Working
Tract Distribution.
A Suggestion.
Visiting the Sick.
Helping the Solemn.
Helping—or Hindering?
"Helpers needed."
"God has let me Win a Soul."
An Unexpected Volunteer.
"According to Ability."
Duty and Privilege.
"Do it with your might."
"Diligent, Fervent, Serving," &c., &c., &c.

DEDICATION OF THE NEW & PERMANENT

HOME OF REST,

LITTLEHAMPTON,

Also of a

HOME OF REST FOR MINISTERS,

On WEDNESDAY, JULY 6, 1892.

DEDICATORY SERVICE at 2.30 p.m., at which

LADY HENRY SOMERSET will preside.

LUNCHEON at 1 o'clock.

Tickets from London Bridge and Victoria to Littlehampton and back, 5s.

Stamped and addressed envelope, for Tickets, to be sent to Rev. W. DARLOW SARJEANT, 38, Oseney-crescent, Camden-road, N.W. c543

FRESH AIR for Poor Wee CHILDREN.—For each 10s. subscribed a pent-up little London Child can be boarded out for 14 days. During seven seasons 3,197 have enjoyed these delicious holidays. Funds most pressingly needed.—Bankers: L. and County, Islington.—A. STYLEMAN HERRING (for Local Committee), Vicar St. Paul's, Clerkenwell, 45, Colebrooke-row, N.

NEW PACKETS OF TRACTS.

19TH MILLION.

GOSPEL LEAVES. By CHEYNE BRADY.

Packet 6. 100 Illustrated 2pp. Tracts. 6d. per Packet.

"Mr. Brady is quite to our heart. He is direct as a dart, clear as a sunbeam, and brief as an angel's visit. Earnestness throbs in every line, and withal a power of keen thrusting too seldom possessed He knows the sins and sorrows of the human heart, and the Saviour who can work their cure—and, in addition, can plainly point the burdened spirit to the peace-giving Christ."
—REV. C. H. SPURGEON.

ILLUSTRATED GOSPEL TRACTS. By Rev. P. B. POWER, M.A. Packet of 4pp., 6d. Packet of 8pp., 6d.

WHOLE AND SOLE. By Rev. P. B. POWER, M.A. 32pp. Booklet. 1s. per dozen.

DRUMMOND'S TRACT DEPOT, STIRLING.
LONDON: S. W. PARTRIDGE and CO.

CHILDREN AND THE PUBLIC HOUSE.

"GIVE THE CHILD A CHANCE!"

By G. E. MORGAN, M.A.

A Neat Illustrated four-page Card addressed to Parents who send their Children to the public-house to "Fetch the Beer."

A useful adjunct to Evangelistic and Temperance Work.

"Give the Child a Chance."

PRESS NOTICES:—

"Short and to the point."
Footsteps of Truth.

"Deserves a wide circulation."
The Rock.

"Nothing better could be found for the purpose."—The News.

"Should be scattered in thousands amongst the homes of English working people."—Christian Worker.

"An excellent booklet, which should be scattered broadcast throughout the land."—The Christian Church.

"Armed with this little weapon anybody can lead an attack on parents who send little folk for drink."—Gainsborough Congregational Magazine.

"A kindly-worded remonstrance against the practice of turning children into drink-bearers. The idea is excellent and as the card is illustrated, it is very likely to be carefully noted by parents."
Alliance News.

"A most effective four-page card, which may certainly be described as meeting a long-felt want. . . . The matter is admirably condensed, the card is attractive, and temperance workers would do well to secure a supply to put into the hands of children when observed going to the public-house."—Temperance Record.

2s. per 100 (2s. 3d. post free); 50 for 1s. (post free 1s. 2d.); 17s. 6d. per 1,000. May be Localised.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C. Or through any Bookseller.

THE CATACOMBS AT ROME:

Their Contents and Teachings.

A VINDICATION OF PURE AND PRIMITIVE CHRISTIANITY; AND AN EXPOSURE OF THE CORRUPTIONS OF ROMANISM; DERIVED FROM THE SEPULCHRAL REMAINS OF THE EARLY CHRISTIANS AT ROME.

By the late BENJAMIN SCOTT, F.R.A.S.,
Chamberlain of the City of London.

With many Illustrations.

Tinted Covers, 2s. Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

Presentation Edition: Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d

"Most people have heard of these famous CATACOMBS; but nowhere have we met with a more graphic or instructive account of their contents than in this book. The many wood engravings help to make the whole thing quite plain. We advise our young ministers, or more educated Sunday-school teachers, to study this volume."
General Baptist Magazine.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C.
And may be ordered of all Booksellers.

Paper Covers, 6d. Cloth Boards, Red Edges, 1s. Crown 8vo.

THE BATTLE of the STANDPOINTS

THE OLD TESTAMENT AND THE HIGHER CRITICISM.

By the Rev. ALFRED CAVE, B.A., D.D.,
Principal and Professor of Systematic Theology of Hackney College;
Author of "The Inspiration of the Old Testament Inductively Considered";
"The Scriptural Doctrine of Sacrifice and Atonement";
"An Introduction to Theology, its Principles, its Branches, its Results, and its Literature," &c.

EYRE & SPOTTISWOODE,
LONDON—GREAT NEW STREET, E.C.
EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, MELBOURNE, SYDNEY, AND COOPER UNION, NEW YORK.

The First Edition sold out very quickly.

SHORT TITLE FOR ORDERING,

"CAVE'S STANDPOINTS"

EYRE & SPOTTISWOODE, LONDON.

The Book has been now Reprinted.

Retail through any Bookseller.

A BEAUTIFUL GIFT-BOOK.

THE CHRISTIAN PORTRAIT GALLERY.

Consisting of over One Hundred Striking and Well-executed Portraits of Well-known Christian Men and Women of the Day. With carefully-written and Authentic Biographic Sketches.

Over Four Hundred Pages. Large Quarto size.

Attractively Bound in Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 10s. 6d.

"For half-a-guinea a collection of one hundred portraits of all the distinguished Christian workers of the period: a noble army indeed. This Portrait Gallery can claim a high artistic value, and yet the smallness of its price brings it within the means of many."—Sword and Trowel.

"A most admirable book. The portraits are exceedingly well executed, and accompanied in each instance by a biographical sketch. . . . The book, altogether, got up in the most beautiful and attractive style, and admirably adapted for presentation."—The Gospel Magazine.

LONDON: MORGAN AND SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be Ordered of any Bookseller.

NEW BOOKLET. PRICE ONE PENNY.

"BE FILLED WITH THE SPIRIT."

BY JAS. F. GOVAN. [c1853

LONDON: MARSHALL BROS., Keswick House, Paternoster-row. GLASGOW: R. L. ALLAN, 143, Sauchiehall-street

---

SEARCHING THE SCRIPTURES:

IN ORDER TO ABIDING COMMUNION WITH GOD. Also Suggestions for Bible Reading and Study; and a plan for Consecutive Daily Reading. By Dr. J. Anderson, M.R.C.S. Tinted covers, 1s. 6d.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d. Presentation Edition: Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"A scholarly, accurate, suggestive, and wise work on the study of the books of the Bible; how best to get at their teaching, and how best to turn that teaching to practical account. Preachers and teachers will find it a treasury of thought, beautiful expositions, and fruitful suggestions. The volume is nicely got up, and is suitable for a prize or a present."—Oldham Chronicle.

MANY INFALLIBLE PROOFS:

THE EVIDENCES OF CHRISTIANITY; OR, THE WRITTEN AND LIVING WORD OF GOD. By Rev. Arthur T. Pierson, D.D. With Portrait of the Author. Tinted Covers, 2s.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d. Superior Edition Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

"An invaluable work. The price is low at half-a-crown. It is the book which the present period needs. It is solid plain, conclusive argument. To spread such a treatise as this will be a very gracious work, and the results must be beneficial."—Sword and Trowel.

LONDON: MORGAN AND SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

BY THE LATE DR. KIRTON.

JOHN WESLEY:

HIS LIFE AND TIMES

Tinted Covers, 6d.

By JOHN W. KIRTON, LL.D.,
Author of "Buy Your Own Cherries," &c., &c.

MORGAN & SCOTT'S CHEAP AND POPULAR EDITION.

WITH PORTRAIT. Cloth Limp, 1s.; Cloth Boards, 1s. 6d.

"A marvel of cheapness! It contains within its fully a hundred and twenty closely-printed pages, a remarkably well-compacted, well-arranged, and most interesting Life of the great Methodist. It is written in a very lively style such as will attract young readers; whilst it will render it more acceptable to all, and it sets before us a life-like portraiture of its subject. We welcome it heartily. John Wesley's grand life can afford to be told often, and we are glad to see it here in such form as to reach the homes of the poor."—British Messenger.

"This 'LIFE OF WESLEY' is precisely what it is intended to be, an interesting condensed account of one of England's most popular men, adapted to popular use. Dr. KIRTON has the happy faculty of bringing his facts within the comprehension of the common people, and that is an indispensable thing in a work for popular use."
Christian Commonwealth.

"The spirit of a great reformer's life has seldom been presented in a form at once so brief and lively as we find in 'JOHN WESLEY: HIS LIFE AND TIMES,' by JOHN W. KIRTON, LL.D. There is no disproportion in the memoir: it portrays Wesley in all the aspects of a character that was many-sided. Every page sparkles with edifying anecdote. Its integrity, and also the quiet humour, of the writer are well illustrated in the chapter on Wesley as a husband. The book costs only a sixpence, and ought to have a sale of many thousands. A better bit of biographical work in the same compass and at so moderate a price we have seldom seen."—Christian Leader.

LONDON: MORGAN AND SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

The Christian.

☞ It is particularly requested that all letters relating to business matters should be addressed to the firm, Messrs. Morgan & Scott, and not to individual members. Communications for THE CHRISTIAN should be addressed to the Editor. Letters of a personal nature should in every case be so marked.

All Advertisements for THE CHRISTIAN should be sent to Messrs. John Hadden and Co., Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, London, E.C., accompanied by remittance. (For Terms, see Page 2.)

Notes and Comments.

NEXT week we purpose giving portrait and sketch of the late Mrs. ANNIE IRELAND MACALPINE, of Manchester.

Rev. F. B. Meyer has consented to Mr. Moody's earnest request that he should go again to Northfield. He cannot leave England till after the Keswick Convention, and so will be too late for the beginning of the Northfield Conference; but it is proposed to carry the meetings on, and to make special efforts for the gathering of ministers from all parts of the States, that Mr. Meyer and others may have the opportunity of meeting them. Mr. Meyer will contribute letters to these columns during his absence.

The paragraph given on another page as to the united midsummer breakfast at which members of two neighbouring chapels of different denominations, Baptist and Congregational, met last Sunday morning in Christian fellowship and practical counsel, suggests that many similar opportunities might easily be found or formed for bringing together fellow Christians labouring for the one Master, yet belonging to different branches of the Church visible.

We have received several communications with reference to the coming election, but we can only say, "Pray, brethren, pray." The situation is difficult. Those who are supremely impressed with the hideous evils of the drink and opium traffic, are hoping for good things from the party which they desire may return to power; while those who think that the little finger of Romish tyranny is thicker than the loins of the evils from which we at present suffer, are as anxious for the continuance of the present Government; they have not great confidence in its Protestantism, but they think there is less danger from it than from the party which seeks to supplant it. Some, again, who believe that "cursed is the man who trusteth in man," think there is some hope in woman, and are looking for woman suffrage as the dawn of coming day.

But all believers, whatever their political expectations or hopes may be, must surely feel that now, if ever, their hope must be in God, and their expectation from Him. It is better to trust in the Lord than to put confidence in men; it is better to trust in the Lord than to put confidence in princes. He sees the end from the beginning, and He has assured us that He whose right it is shall reign, and the saints shall, with Him, possess the Kingdom.

In another column we publish a letter from Pastor Hugh D. Brown, of Dublin, in which he states the only conditions on which he can consent to withdraw his resignation of membership with the Baptist Union. Those conditions involve the Union's disavowal of Mr. Aked and the Pembroke church.

In the meanwhile, the Lancashire and Cheshire Association of Baptist Churches—which seems to possess powers of discipline of which the Union is deficient—have fully debated the incident with definite results. On the one hand, a resolution was passed by a very large majority to this effect:—

> That this Association, while steadfastly maintaining the independent right of every church to order its own worship, hereby declares its conviction that it would be inconsistent in Baptists to invite Unitarians to conduct religious services among them, such a course being not only contrary to custom, but also calculated to produce the impression that in their judgment belief in the Deity of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ is of secondary, and not—as Baptists have always held—of primary importance in our ministry of the Gospel of our salvation.

On the other hand, the Assembly rejected, by a large majority, a motion to the effect that the Association should withdraw from the fellowship of the church of which Mr. Aked is pastor.

We hail the former resolution with satisfaction, because it states clearly and definitely that which was involved in the Bloomsbury resolution, but not expressed; and because it expresses the sentiments held by the denomination at large. But we demur to the policy of absolving men who treat such doctrines as that of the Incarnation as open questions, and speak contemptuously of those who hold the inerrancy or infallibility of Holy Scripture. The leaders of the Baptist Union must view with concern the exodus of men of the calibre of Mr. Hugh D. Brown, and the substitution of men who are eagerly accepting the most "advanced" positions of the time on theological and Biblical matters. These circumstances cannot but influence the younger ministers and students who are training for their life work, and must finally, more or less, affect the great body of missionaries abroad.

We acknowledge the difficulties of the position. We know the magnitude of the interests at stake. We should view with much concern the disintegration of a body which has played so important a part in the religious history of England. But we would prefer this to its becoming eaten through with the errors that are so rife in these last days. Indeed, it would seem as if we are approaching a time indicated in the letter to the church at Laodicea, when the Lord turns from the church to the individual, from the aggregate to the unit, and asks that the door may be opened for Him to enter and abide.

The anti-opium societies have issued a joint circular, in view of the General Election, in which they say:—

> Measured by the vastness of the populations directly affected by it, no subject before the constituencies is so far-reaching as the question whether the Government of India shall be suffered to go on scattering broadcast throughout the Eastern world, for the sake of a revenue of between three and four millions sterling a year, the poisonous drug which ruins so many homes and blasts so many lives. Nor does any question more gravely concern the national honour, or more directly affect the extension of the Kingdom of Christ in the hearts of men. Every citizen, still more every professed Christian, should feel bound to do all in his power, by vote and influence, to bring to an end this giant evil.

It is suggested that all candidates for Parliament shall be questioned in such terms as these:—

> Will you vote for the total prohibition of the Anglo-Indian Opium traffic, limiting the sale to medicinal requirements? And will you support the giving of temporary assistance to the Indian exchequer if, on examination, this should be found requisite to avoid placing fresh burdens on the taxpayers of India?

Dr. Maxwell, hon. sec. of the Christian Union against the Opium Trade, has issued a crushing reply to the pro-opium manifesto which recently appeared in The Times. It is addressed to the Parliamentary candidates of Great Britain and Ireland, and we trust it will have the careful attention it deserves. For copies address Dr. Maxwell, 49, Highbury-park, London, N.

A recent writer in The Times, who at great length defended the opium traffic, not only spoke slightingly of the judgment of missionaries on the subject, but went on to say:—

> The truth is that the less instructed missionaries are making a mistake about the use of opium curiously like that which their predecessors made in regard to the worship of Juggernauth. During half a century Juggernauth figured in the missionary imagination as an Indian Moloch who annually crushed thousands of victims beneath his chariot wheels.... The whole fabric, laboriously built up by missionary misrepresentation, suddenly collapsed twenty years ago, when an impartial and accurate scrutiny was applied to the actual facts. The police records under British rule and the vernacular records of native rule proved beyond a question that the murderous procession was a myth.

The facts and arguments of the writer in regard to the opium question prepared us for almost any reckless statement. Dr. R. Pringle, formerly Brigade Surgeon in Her Majesty's Bengal Army, thus replies to the charge against "less instructed missionaries":—

> As one who was present at Juggernauth as medical officer during the "Ruth Jathra," or Car Festival, when the dead, the dying, and the mangled were taken out from under the car of the idol, and as one who operated on some of these poor mangled victims in the hospital, and who witnessed the scenes connected with the worship of Juggernauth, I can give the most unqualified denial to the whole description of Juggernauth and its worship, as given in The Times article, if that description refers to proceedings at its headquarters at Pooree, or Juggernauth.

The Homiletic Review needs to learn the one lesson enforced by threefold illustration, in Deut. xxii. 9, 10, 11:

> Thou shalt not sow thy vineyard with divers seeds: lest the fruit of thy seed which thou hast sown, and the fruit of thy vineyard, be defiled.
>
> Thou shall not plough with an ox and an ass together.
>
> Thou shalt not wear a garment of divers sorts, as of woollen and linen together.

The same number of this Review which contains the slanders upon the Holy Scriptures quoted in our last from Dr. Munger, contains also, though in an inferior position and less prominent type, an admirable paper by Dr. Birrell on "Christ and the Bible: how they stand or fall together," which forms a high-toned and evangelical answer to Dr. Munger. Dr. Birrell shows that Christ believed in the old story of the destruction of the cities of the plain by fire and brimstone from heaven; in the healing efficacy of the brazen serpent; in the turning of Lot's wife into a pillar of salt; and in Jonah in the belly of the fish. Why does the Editor of the Review allow one writer in the same number to rail against another, as amongst "pious but ignorant preachers," who [by believing as Christ believed and taught] turn the Book of Jonah "into a very hot-bed for the production of infidelity and blasphemy"?

Do not God's prohibitions against mingling divers kinds of labour and seed and material in earthly things, forbid à fortiori this mixture in our modern magazines? Will the Master say, "Well done, good and faithful servant," to men taught of God, whose evangelical and scriptural writings are mingled with anti-evangelical serial novels, attacks upon the integrity of Scripture, and oppositions of science falsely so called?

Yet we may learn something from the critics when they confine themselves to what they know, and do not assume to judge spiritual things by the wisdom of this world. Dr. Munger truly says: "The fault of the pulpit of to-day is pettiness. It grows in part out of a general tendency in society to refine and specialise, and, as the result, preaching has no moral perspective, no conception of the Gospel as a whole, and as containing the order of human society. Single and insignificant texts are wrenched from their place and blown up till they fill the whole field of vision."

But even here the learned Doctor does not apprehend the real state of the case. He says: "Texts are played with and played upon in a way that delights the masses, but 'makes the judicious grieve.'" On the contrary, the masses, at least in this country, are not caught with any such chaff; but wherever the Scriptures are expounded in the way that Dr. Munger abhors, where sin is denounced and the atonement by the precious blood of Christ is plainly preached, there the masses congregate, and such preaching is sure of an audience.

Rev. F. B. Meyer has received a perfectly unanimous and hearty invitation to the pastorate from the elders, trustees, and members of the church meeting at Christchurch, Westminster-bridge-road, so long presided over by Rev. Newman Hall, D.D. The trust-deed is perfectly undenominational, and the church itself is not necessarily connected with any existing denomination of Christians.

Mildmay Musings.

This year the programme of the Mildmay Conference was of more than usual interest. The subjects for special study year by year are always chosen happily; but a close and continuous examination of the ways of God in Judgment, Providence and Grace is surely second to none in importance. Our expectations were raised high by the promise of the programme, and looking at the Conference as a whole we were not disappointed.

Perhaps we had some misgiving as to the wisdom of linking the contemplation of the Divine procedure with the strangely complicated symbolism of Ezekiel's first vision—a symbolism so intricate that even Calvin confessed he was unable to understand it. Whether, however, it was the result of thought concentred on the subject for three days, or even more largely, the direction given to our thoughts by the helpful hints of the Chairman and other speakers, the difficulties seemed gradually to dissolve, and there remained present to the mind the might and majesty, the wisdom and wondrousness, the greatness and the grace, of the Divine purpose in its prompt, though progressive, fulfilment. All the imagery—at first confounding, if not confusing—combined in a happy harmony to illuminate the way and work of God.

In so speaking we are only giving expression to our own experience; but we are, indeed, greatly mistaken if this was in any sense singular. The vast audience, hour after hour and day after day, seemed readily to apprehend and greatly to appreciate the expositions of Scriptural truth falling from the platform.

Without any invidious comparison, we may frankly acknowledge having been peculiarly and powerfully impressed by Dr. Pierson's address on "God's Way in Judgment.' Our reporter speaks of its phenomenal length and encyclopædic character. Nevertheless, considering the times in which we live, the prevailing tendency to doubt, if not to deny, the just judgment of God, we welcome its sharply-cut and pungent testimony to neglected truth, with devout thankfulness. Indeed, it would be a real service to the Church if it were printed separately and circulated by thousands.

Probably owing to the multiplication of similar Conferences, the morning meetings were not so crowded as on former occasions, though the large hall was always well filled. The absence of crowding, however, helped greatly the quiet restfulness of the vast assembly, which was noticeably even more marked than usual. If we were inclined to criticise, we think we might fairly ask, Why does not each speaker deal directly with the topic assigned to him? Generally, this was fully and fairly done; but, in more than one case, there was just cause of complaint.

The same impression seems to have been made upon another writer, who says:—

While all the speakers at Mildmay referred to the texts given, not all of them spoke on the subject itself. The ways of God, in judgment, providence, and grace, are well worthy of close and reverent consideration in these self-sufficient days, when learned ignorance assumes to bow God out of his own Book, and out of his own universe.

In treating of the Cherubim, it will be observed that Dr. Guinness spoke of them as representing the Church of God, taken in its largest sense—the redeemed from the beginning to the end of time. This seems to be the true view. Living creatures—the living ones—can scarcely be interpreted to mean one of the attributes of God.

The address of Dr. Pierson on Tuesday evening was evidently not the result of special study for the occasion, but of months or years of thought during which the subject had grown within him, until it had become an integral part of his mental and spiritual equipment. If sceptical teachers in professors' chairs had thus meditated on the ways of God, their utterances would be more humble, more reverent, and more instructive; and they themselves would turn many to righteousness and shine like stars for ever and ever, instead of being like will-o'-the-wisps, the product of the marshes into which they lead their victims, and suddenly disappear.

As Sir Arthur Blackwood invited suggestions for future programmes, we venture to call the attention of the Committee of Arrangements for the next Conference to 1 Thess. i. 3.—(1) The work of faith, (2) the labour of love, and (3) the patience of hope—as a suitable topic.

Intercessory Prayer.

Difficulties which from time to time are thrown in the way of missionaries in various parts of the world are but the repetition of an experience with which the Church of Christ has become familiar. The heathen have raged and the people imagined mischief, the kings of the earth have set themselves, and the rulers taken counsel together to arrest the progress of the Gospel, ever since the Sanhedrim thrust the Apostles into prison, and forbade their speaking again in the name of Jesus.

Various recent developments of the malice and opposition of the great enemy, working through the minds of men, will doubtless result in the same way as so often before. The remainder of Psalm II. will be repeated; Jehovah, seated on his heavenly throne, shall laugh at them, the Lord shall hold them in derision. The answer of heaven is as the roll of thunder to the enfeebled mutterings of earth.

It is interesting to recall a striking episode in the story of missions, as told by Dr. Pierson. In the year 1839 the hostility of the Armenian Church was strongly aroused by the efforts of the American missionaries. The Greek patriarch promulgated a bill of ex-communication; some of the native teachers were put in prison, and others banished; and the Sultan was resolved to insist on the expulsion of the missionaries from his territories. So fierce was the persecution that finally the decree that they should leave the country was actually published, and there seemed no alternative than that Messrs. Hamlin and Goodell, who clung with faithful tenacity to their post, should leave the native converts to their fate.

In that moment of extreme peril Goodell is said to have replied to the announcement of the edict by saying, "The Great Sultan of the Universe can change all this." And the little band betook themselves to the Ninety-first Psalm. Whilst they were yet in the act of prayer the Sultan suddenly died; and the attention of the country was diverted by the defeat of the Turkish forces at Aleppo, and by the outbreak of a terrible conflagration in Constantinople. Four months later a charter was issued, which gave considerably more freedom for the preaching of the Gospel than had ever been granted in the Turkish Empire.

Instances like these indicate the true source of our power. Diplomatists and statesmen have much less to do with these matters than they think. They are but pieces on a board; but behind them a conflict is raging in the heavenly places of which they have little conception who have not looked deeply into the Scriptures of truth.

Of this conflict there are brief and fragmentary evidences in the Bible, as spars and seaweed flung on the shore on some smilin sunny day bear witness to the violence of storm in remote and distant regions of th sea. The angel, whose coming to Daniel ha been delayed; the fall of Satan as ligh ning from heaven, foreseen by the Lord Jesu in anticipation of his victory on the Cross the reference of the Apostle to the hosts o wicked spirits in heavenly places, again whom we wrestle,—all these are symptoms o the mighty conflict which is in progress, an of which the edicts and persecutions to whic we have referred are results and symptoms.

It is not possible to read of the persecutio of the Stundist Christians of the Caucasu without the deepest sympathy. Their meetin houses are being closed, their preachers ar being sentenced to banishment, their trial are being conducted with closed doors, th public being rigorously excluded. It is inex pressibly sad that such things are pe mitted by a civilized, to say nothin of a Christian, government, and by on so closely bound to our own by th relationship of the reigning families. Bu what can be done except to follow the exampl of the early Church, who, when their foremos Apostle lay in prison, made unceasing praye to God on his behalf? And as in prayer th Church adds her spiritual forces to the brigh legions who follow the Word of God as H goes forth to war, there shall come a turn i the tide, the hand which opposes and perse cutes shall be stricken down, and the two leaved gates shall open of themselves befor the missionaries of the Cross.

It is impossible to over-estimate the effec of earnest and believing prayer at such juncture as this, not only with respect to th perils of missionaries and the sufferings o the weak and defenceless, but as regards thos grave moral questions which are just now a stake in our own country, and are likely to b so largely affected by the approaching election We remember that Mr. Spurgeon once en couraged each individual believer to earnest in tercession for the cause of Christ by remindin us that a grain might turn a nicely-balance scale. We must not let the lightness of ou weight keep us from adding its pressure t the great impulse which goes up from th Church of God to Him who sitteth upon th throne. And we should consider intercessor prayer on behalf of these great public con cerns as a most solemn duty. It was a sayin of the late Bishop Hamilton, of Salisbury that "no man was likely to do much good a prayer who did not begin by looking upon i in the light of a work to be prepared for an persevered in, with all the earnestness whic we bring to bear upon subjects which are, i our opinion, at once more interesting and mos necessary."

We question if Intercessory Prayer on be half of the needs of men, and for the comin of the Redeemer's kingdom, is a sufficien item in the daily prayer of individual be lievers; and we would suggest that thi defect largely arises from the neglect of on of the two Advocates given to the Church.

We are not likely to forget that great Ad vocate who ever lives to plead for us before God, mingling the much incense of his meri with our prayer, but we too often forget tha "other Advocate," who in our hearts pleads in correspondence with Him on the throne He makes intercession there "on behalf of th saints" with groanings that cannot be uttered and if we would be still we should become aware of the rising up of those intercessions within us, and should join in with them swept into the current of the purposes and will of God. In private, as in public, "sup plications, prayers, intercessions, thanks givings, should be made for all men."

THE SUMMER NUMBER OF "THE BOY'S OWN PAPER" (6d. Religious Tract Society) contains a budget of short stories, sketches, and articles, ad mirably illustrated. There are two pages of portraits (eighteen in number) of authors and artists contribu ting to The Boy's Own Paper; the great popularity o which is no mystery, for the editor enters into the senti ment and ambition of his readers, and fills his pages with wholesome matter of the type most welcome to the juvenile mind.

Judgment by Fire.

ADDRESS AT MILDMAY CONFERENCE

BY REV. HANDLEY C. G. MOULE.

After reading Ezekiel i. 4, 27, 28, and Rev. i. 14—18, Mr. Moule said:—

We have been reminded in the Chairman's opening words, of the solemn special subject of our Conference meditations. They are well summed up, as to the heart and essence of them, in that word—that we have come to think about God. I take it that this is precisely the message of the subject chosen. It is not primarily about Christian work; it is not primarily even about Christian experience. It is from the other point of view—we look at the things unseen and the things which have to do with the Kingdom; it is from the point of view of God's dealings with his people. The subject does not only affect the people of God, I know. It refers to the ways of God in judgment with the world; the ways of God in judgment with our nation; the ways of God in judgment with the Christian Church from its outward and visible aspect—all these, by many a sign of the times, by many an event, tender and solemn and awful and ominous, are brought before our hearts. We bear them on our hearts before God to-day. I am sure this Conference will be the occasion for a great stirring-up of prayer for mercy on the world, on the land, on the outward and visible aspect of the Church.

But surely we are met mainly and primarily, as believing Christians here, to think about his dealings in merciful judgment with those who humbly call themselves his own; who have, by his grace, come to the feet of his Son; who have been welcomed into the fellowship of the Father and the Son, by the power of the Holy Spirit; who do not label themselves better than others, but who thank God that what once they saw not, they see; and Him whom once they knew not, they know; and that they do desire to live to Him who has loved them and has given Himself for them.

From this point of view it is that I desire to say a few words on the subject assigned to me. As illustrating the judgments of God, we have the whirlwind, the cloud, and the fire and the brightness; I am asked to take the last of these topics, and to say a little about the fire and the brightness in God's dealings with his own.

The message is of the simplest possible kind. We are familiar enough in our Bible study with the large use in spiritual things of the imagery of fire. We find it in almost the first page of Scripture. We find it in the very first records of man's sin and judgment—the sword of fire that turned every way to keep the way of the tree of life. And all down, book after book, through the Word of God there shines and glances this imagery of fire. The Lord Himself calls Himself "consuming fire." It is one of the things that God says He is; not He possesses. He is Light; He is Love; He is Fire. It is essentially in his nature that, as regards certain things, and from a certain point of view, God should be what is imaged out by fire.

The imagery of fire suggests obviously several great moral messages. There is a great awfulness about fire. There is something which instantly suggests—whatever else it suggests—fear, a formidable thing. "Let us have grace," says the apostle, in the Epistle to the Hebrews, xii. 28, 29, "whereby we may serve God acceptably, with reverence and godly fear; for our God is a consuming fire." With regard to his people, observe, He is consuming fire. From a certain point of view, for us as Christians and saints of God, there is that which in us is an appropriate subject of fear, full of awe, not full of torment—a consciousness that we are dealing with One to whom sin in all its forms and phases, with all its ramifications, is now and is eternally the abominable thing that God hateth; that nothing ever modifies it or tones it down; that they are lying words which, in the presence of such a God, would persuade us that sin is but a step in development, but the unfolding of things in an evolution; that it is a "fall upward"; that it is anything, I repeat, but the abominable thing which God hates. And, remember, it is sin as much in the child of God as in the wanderer who has up to now scoffed at his name. It is nothing but sin in the most advanced Christian; in the Christian most active in God's work; in the Christian most eloquent with God's Word; in the Christian most used for the benefit of the souls of others in God's cause. Our God, as regards sin and his thoughts of sin, is a consuming fire.

The imagery of fire also gives the thought of a severity of test. Gold that perisheth is tried with fire. Faith that cannot perish is tried with fire. The whole life of the Christian who lives by faith here below is continually a thing of test by the fire and convictions of God. There is a solemn word in 1 Cor. iii., where the Apostle, looking forward to the great day in which will be summed up all the opinions that God has been forming of the work of his people, uses again the imagery of fire: "The fire shall try every man's work, of what sort it is." Not of what quantity it is, but of what sort it is. There will be work done by those who in that day shall be saved, who shall be accepted and welcomed into the presence of the King; but which will yet be—I repeat it again in that solemn imagery—burnt up. There will be buildings laid upon the true foundation that will not stand, because they have not been built according to the Master's mind. There will be enterprises, undertakings and efforts which have been so tainted with what God loves not, and drawn upon lines that He has never approved, which on that day will find God a consuming fire; and for the worker there will be no crown at all.

So we might go on and take up point after point in which this imagery of fire is used in God's Word as showing, not only with regard to the outside world, but to the Church of God, and the inner circle of the family of God, that He is a consuming fire, from the point of view of what He thinks of their sin and their deflection from his law in the life, in the tone of the life, and in the sort of work they have done. Let us not forget, lastly, in this part of our meditation, that beneficent aspect of the imagery of fire in which it is refining. "He is like a refiner's fire, and He shall purify the sons of Levi." Thank God for his fire when it finds us out and penetrates us, if it deals with heart and soul and conscience so as to bring us with renewed simplicity over again, or, at the beginning if need be, to his feet for the purifying power of his presence within.

But now, looking at the subject in a few simple practical directions, as we are met together before God this morning as Christian workers, I take it that this revelation of God's dealing with his people in the spirit of burning, is intensely to the point with those who are servants and workers for God. I suppose few people come to this Conference Hall to join in the services of these days, who have not in some measure definitely put their hands to Christian work, and definitely made a Christian profession. Let us all, with one heart and soul, ask the Lord that just as He sees each one of us in this great gathering here, He would be to each one of us in his own merciful and real sense "consuming fire"—fire that solemnises our hearts with an intensity of godly reverence before Him. There is need of that, I think, in the present day. I know not how to define it, but in many spheres and circles of the Christian world there is too much light-heartedness of tone about the infinitely holy and blessed God. Let us get down very low before Him in reverence and godly fear. Reverence is no mere luxury in religion; it is part of the breathing of its life. Your religion is suffering around its roots if you are getting to think light-heartedly—which means something very different from cold-heartedly—of God. "Rejoice in the Lord, ye righteous;" but remember, the nearer the blessed around the throne are to the throne the more their song gets concentrated into three words, which are one—"Holy! holy! holy!" I pray God to revive and deepen in us continually, in these days of much Gospel privilege and light, the fire and salt of godly fear.

We have spoken of the testing power of fire, and the purifying power of fire. Shall we welcome the fire—welcome Him? Thank God, it is He and not it. It is not an impersonal something, but the personal Lord who loves us, that we are thinking of. Shall we welcome Him to be the fire on and in and through our life and our work for Christ? Is there a Christian in this room who does not want it to be so? I do not think there is one. But let us all more and more, consciously, and with purpose, ask and seek that it shall be said—

> Search me, O God! my actions try;
> And let my heart appear,
> As seen in thine all-seeing eye;
> To me my ways make clear.

Dear Christian friends, professing the name of Jesus and not ashamed of it; working the work of Jesus and never tired of it; yet never getting to the end of the prayer, "Search me, O God!" we are not meant to live a life of spiritual disappointment. We are meant to live a life of unbroken conviction that in us, that is, in our flesh, there dwelleth no good thing, and that all our fresh springs are in Him. And so I say to you, after saying it a thousand times more to myself, let us welcome Him as the fire upon our Christian life and upon our Christian work. There are things that press it upon my own heart, how needful it is for every child of God to pray for this. Only the other day, at Cambridge, I was speaking anxiously to a young Christian friend about another in whom he was interested, and whom he was, with much loving earnestness, seeking to bring to a warmer life in God. As we talked the matter over, my young friend said of his friend: "I fear there is a little difficulty; he has been so much perplexed by the inconsistencies of men at college who have made a great Christian profession." That little incident is a sample of innumerable ones.

It was such a solemn thing and also such a helpful thing that we had suggested to us in Mr. Hankin's opening prayer, that if the Lord would but bless Israel and Judah, might not superstition and unbelief break like waves around the rock. What the Church of Christ would be then, if only God were fully manifested in his people! There would be much less need than now of reasoned evidences of Christianity, and reasoned defences of spiritual and scriptural religion. Things would not become unreasonable, but they would be commended to men's deepest reason by the directest possible channel—the evidences of the presence of God. And so, if I am speaking only to one soul this morning who has a faint suspicion that some inconsistency of Christian life or inconsistency in Christian work is hindering the manifestation of the Master to another, let them pray for the fire to reveal to them without mercy, and yet for mercy, what sort of life and what sort of work it is. Let them bring it all and cast it at the feet of Him whose eyes are as a flame of fire, and whose feet are like brass that burneth in a furnace. Let Him set it on fire and consume it.

Oh, the vanities that creep into Christian work: the craving for applause and for the sight or hearing of one's own name! May the Lord kill these things by lightning! Oh, the jealousies—another phase of evil—that creep into Christian work! As the Chairman said so searchingly, We have not come here to talk about "my work," "my enterprise," or even "my experience." O God! slay by thy lightning eyes the jealousies of thy people in their work. There is so much that wants the fire of God to fall upon it, for testing, for cleansing, and for purging. Indeed, not in work only, but in life. There is one thing I feel more and more I must speak of—the life, above all things, of the common day and the common hour; of the quiet home and family circle; of the times when it may be our dependents, our employés, our servants, our customers, watch us, and want to find out really and honestly, perhaps, if God is a reality in his people.

But now there is the brightness as well as the fire. Ezekiel speaks of the brightness, and John in the Revelation speaks of the brightness—the eyes as a flame of fire; the countenance as the sun shineth in his strength; the midsummer sun; the sun of the longest day that never passes the blessed solstice. Ezekiel speaks of it, and tells us what it was like—"the likeness of the bow in the cloud in the day of rain"—which also you know must always be the day of sun; for the rain and the sun result in the rainbow. When the Lord brings his people into conviction about Himself, and about themselves in the light of Himself, and then looks upon them, his countenance is as the sun shineth in his strength. There is the glorious rainbow of the everlasting covenant visible then. The Christian who will humbly let the Lord look with those all-searching eyes of his on him, into him, through him; who will humbly let Him tell us all about "the sin that He must see"; who will let him break down, it may be, at some time that success, favour, or popularity in our word and work which we have been letting get too much hold of us from the self-side; who will let Him show us self as it is in his sight,—the Christian who will, if I may dare to use the word, meet those eyes, and will submit himself to those eyes, and will give himself up to the hands of Him who looks through those eyes, will find that the expression of his countenance becometh as the sun shineth in his strength. There is no real spiritual sunshine but that enjoyed by the soul that is at the feet of Jesus; safe beneath the sprinkling of the blood of Jesus; wrapped in the righteousness of Jesus; simply in heart and will looking in the face of Jesus; rescued by his grace; sheltered by his merits; never daring to step into the open from these, but within them looking in the Master's face with the simplicity of an unreserved, penitent, believing, loving surrender. Then there is sunshine—a sunshine of which the sun goeth no more down. Such a life will be the humble life; the accessible life for the weakest and worst that come to have sympathy; the life ready at the shortest notice to do the Master's work. That will be the glorious life: the life of sunshine and the summer sky; for the Lord God Almighty shall lighten it, and the Lamb shall be the Light thereof.

"HE KNOWETH."

We make our plans and choose our way,
And think that way is best,
And find that after all we may
Have planned in vain for rest.

It may be that in bitter grief
The cruel thorn we feel,
Until the Saviour gives relief,
And makes our woe our weal.

We fret and worry o'er the ills
Which seem to blight our life,
Until we find his Spirit fills
The heart that rests from strife.

From strife against the will of God,
Who knows what's best for man;
And we have learnt to kiss the rod
And bow before his plan.

Far from a Father's love we roam,
And find our way unblest,
Nor know until we have come home,
The Father's way was best.

Oh, Saviour! give us grace to prove
The grace that flows from Thee,
That in the liberty of love
Thy people may be free.

Chas. Butler Stoney.

MRS. OWEN HALL, who has carried on for eight and a-half years a successful mission which has been much blessed in the conversion of souls, at Seacombe and Egremont, near Liverpool, has been compelled to relinquish it through ill-health. The mission has been transferred to the Salvation Army.

THE MORAL REFORM UNION has completed a decade of its useful work. The tenth annual meeting, presided over by Mrs. Charles, the well-known Poor Law Guardian for Paddington, took place at the offices, 2, Leinster-place, on June 23. Mr. Maurice Gregory spoke from personal experience of the great need for purity work in India. Miss Conybeare gave interesting information about what she had witnessed in Cape Colony.

FAREWELL TO MISSIONARIES.

As the work of the East London Institute for Home and Foreign Missions grows, the meetings to bid farewell to missionaries leaving for work abroad become more widely interesting. The gatherings during recent years in the Hall of Harley College have been none the less hearty because over-crowded, nor have they been the more pleasant because many friends have found it impossible to secure so much as standing room in the building. The assemblage on Friday last, when more than thirty brethren and sisters were commended to God, prior to leaving for China, India, and Africa, was unprecedentedly large, and almost filled the spacious Bow-road Wesleyan Chapel, which was kindly placed at disposal for the occasion.

It was a grand meeting, being rendered so by the faithful utterances of devoted workers, and an enthusiasm responsive to the greatness and urgency of the Mission cause. The afternoon gathering was presided over by Mr. T. A. Denny, whose words of welcome were characterised by a grave solemnity alternating with a cordial geniality. Speaking of the great work of which Harley House is the centre, he said that 1092 missionaries and workers had been received into the various institutions; as many as 700 of them have gone abroad, and there are 150 still in residence. He rejoiced in the privilege of helping the Institute, and urged all Christian people to devise liberal things in its support.

Miss Geraldine Guinness addressed some sympathetic words to the outgoing deaconesses. Having spoken of the nobility of the vocation of preaching the Gospel in the regions beyond, she referred to her own impressions of the work after a residence of four years in China. Her sense of the world's need has deepened since she looked into some of the dark places. As the glorious Lord came to rescue us from darkness and sin, so we must go forth.

Recalling that in the study of Rev. Handley C. G. Moule at Ridley Hall, Cambridge, she recently saw the motto, "I believe and I belong," she founded some helpful remarks upon these significant words. Missionaries must not only be believers, but they must know what they believe. She said: We must be believers in God. When you find yourselves surrounded by heathenism, you will require to say, "I know whom I have believed." In heathen lands it does not look as though God was working out redemption, and sometimes one is liable to be carried away by the sin and sorrow, pain and death. Then one needs to fall back on the simple fact, "I believe in God," in his nature and purposes, his wisdom and power and love.

More than that, I believe in Christ, in his presence and power. In heathen lands the presence may not seem so manifest, but the fact must be the subject of firm confidence, and there must be no doubting his ability to meet all our needs. Further, we must be believers in the Holy Spirit, in his personal indwelling and office to influence our own hearts and the hearts of others. The missionary may easily drift into a coldness and deadness of heart, and we need the Spirit to make real things real to us, and true things true.

In some further remarks Miss Guinness urged the importance of believing in the Word of God and prayer. Speaking on "I belong," she emphasized the fact that we are not our own, but have been purchased by the precious blood of Christ. Not to this or that mission, but to Christ does the worker belong, and therefore with his Lord or Master must he deal, trusting Him implicitly and taking to Him every anxiety and every joy.

Dr. Pentecost followed with an address on mission work in general and progress in India in particular. Christian enterprise is the only enterprise in the world which has an absolute guarantee of success. The battle is not one for the chances of war, but for a victory which has already been proclaimed from heaven. "Yet have I set my king upon Zion, the mountain of my holiness." When Jesus Christ rose from the dead He triumphed over all dominion and power, and is only waiting until his enemies be made his footstool.

Speaking of the joys of mission work, Dr. Pentecost referred to what he saw and heard during his Indian tour. To come from the scene of such Gospel victories, he said, to the chatter and cackling of men who are for ever advancing theories and speculations about God's Word and fundamental truths—tinkering with their miserable theologies—excites the suspicion that those who are thus engaged have backslidden, or have never had the breath of the Holy Spirit in them. The Gospel has created a new atmosphere in India, and there are joy and gladness for those who go there to further the work of God.

Miss Edyth Fooks, who is going to India, told of God's leadings in opening up the way for her to go to the mission field. Her useful work in Bromley was mentioned by Dr. Harry Guinness, who also hoped God would provide some one to fill her important place at Doric Lodge. Miss Christlieb, daughter of the late Professor Christlieb, of Bonn, who also goes to India, in a brief address, praised God for calling her to foreign service, and sending her to the East London Institute for its very valuable training.

Another meeting was held in the evening, at which addresses were delivered by the Hon. and Rev. E. V. Bligh (who presided), Revs. Eric Lewis (from the Niger), S. Chapman (from Melbourne), and F. B. Meyer. At the close a number remained to commune together at the Lord's table. The day's proceedings were very hearty.

FIELD-LANE INSTITUTIONS.

The fiftieth anniversary of the Field lane Refuges and Ragged Schools was held last Thursday in the Holborn Town Hall, the Earl of Aberdeen presiding; a large party of children from the industrial schools lent brightness to the occasion by singing a variety of pieces.

Mr. Peregrine Platt, the secretary, read a summary of the Report, stating that the institution celebrated this year the jubilee of its foundation. Although not the first of the kind, it was the first that bore the title "ragged school." The male and female refuges have received 866 persons during the year, and placed 251 of them in employment. The Bible Ragged schools have had an average attendance of 50 every Sunday, and 328 every Friday. The mothers' meeting and 485 members of the books, and an average attendance of 280. The girls' sewing school has been in operation each Tuesday during the year with an attendance of about 250 scholars. The servants' training home has had over twenty four poor, and in many cases, homeless, girls under training for domestic services. The industrial schools have had 217 boys and girls under instruction. The cost of maintaining the work of the institution amounts annually to about £8200; the income, however, was below the expenditure, and there was a deficiency of no less than £800. It was therefore urged that special efforts should be made to raise funds for the maintenance of this work.

The Chairman said that the jubilee of an individual or institution was always recognised as a source of congratulation, and there was no an occasion more fitting than the present one. They had enjoyed the distinction and advantage of the presidency of the late Lord Shaftesbury, who was not only a Christian philanthropist, but essentially a man of business, and would not have presided over any institution had he not been satisfied that it was being conducted with sense and discretion. He rejoiced in the work being done by the male and female refuges. They proposed building a new wing to the Boys' Industrial School, which it was hoped Princess Mary of Teck would open at the end of the month.

Rev. W. R. Mowll said that he was himself an old ragged-school teacher, and had experience all the difficulties of that work in his own provincial town. It was of the utmost importance in the present day, when so many attacks were being made upon the Word of God, that children should be thoroughly instructed in the knowledge of the scriptures.

Rev. J. Monro Gibson, D.D., said he regarded the institution as being one of the pioneer movements, and on that ground was worthy of every support. The motion was carried.

Addresses were also delivered by Rev. F. B. Meyer, B.A., and Mr. Gainsford Bruce, M.A. During the evening a letter from an unknown friend was handed to Lord Aberdeen, enclosing a cheque for £100 towards the funds of the institution.

TO CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOURERS. — Arrangements are being made for a Christian Endeavour meeting at Keswick during the Convention week (July 25 to 30), in a room kindly offered for the purpose. We shall be glad if any members of the Y.P.S.C.E. who are going to Keswick would send their names and addresses.

THE GENERAL ELECTION AND OPIUM.

Many of your readers have manifested a warm and practical interest in missionary work in China. I wonder how many of them are thinking and praying about the General Election in its relation to that country. The election has a most important bearing upon it and mission work there; it may result in men being sent to Parliament who will decide that our manufacture in India of vast quantities of opium to minister to the vice and degradation of the Chinese shall cease; or it may return men who for another term of years will do their part to maintain the nefarious traffic.

China is being ruined; everywhere the people are yielding to the seductive and body-and-soul destroying vice of opium-smoking. I have letters from various parts of China telling of "six out of ten," "seven out of ten," "eight out of ten," of the adult male population as now opium-smokers.

Mr. Curnold, writing from Yunnan, says:—

"If the experience of every Church in China is anything like our experience here in establishing the same, then sad and terrible in the extreme is it to contemplate the fearful 'maelstrom' out of which the Church has to be formed and established in China. China is being whirled to its ruin by a means more subtle and ferocious than any hitherto recorded in the annals or ruins of ancient empires. Nothing but the spirit of the Almighty can stay the plague. I do not believe China is able to save herself."

For this appalling condition of things England, without doubt, is chiefly responsible. Of the awful extent of the cultivation of the poppy in China, let the following words, received by last week's mail, speak:—

"Mr. Hobson, in his Customs report, with reference to the opium, says:—

"'It would be idle to attempt an estimate of the probable total yield of what is now the favourite spring crop of regions vaster in extent than individual European kingdoms, but the fact is patent that as regards her opium supply, China is now practically independent.'"

This is taken from The North China Daily News, of May 12, 1892, and the reason of this extensive growth is given in the next day's issue of the same paper. It is sorrowful reading, but here it is:—

"China tried to check it

(OPIUM SMOKING),

and failed. But she might check the leaking out of silver, and this was the reason that the statesmen of China decided to allow the spread of poppy cultivation in so many of the provinces. The question has, in China, become almost entirely a financial question. China can grow her own opium; for her to do this will free her from a tribute of silver to India now amounting to five millions sterling each year. A Chinese writer in a leader in one of the more popular newspapers reasons about it in this way. Since the slavery of this habit was upon us we have been losing at this rate. Such a state of things is most alarming. We shall be bankrupt unless we grow our own opium, and that we will do."

One thing is now certain: it is that the Government of China will make no serious effort to check the growth of the poppy while we continue to send our Indian opium. If we prohibited the manufacture of opium in India (except for medicinal use) the Government of China would, I believe, make an effort to put down the growth of the poppy, and to save the people. The Government may succeed, or it may not. The vice is so general that many doubt the power of the Government to stop it, but if the Empire is to be saved from destruction it must be stopped. The point, I repeat, is that unless we cease the manufacture in India, things in China must go on from bad to worse; but if we cease the manufacture, China may put forth a supreme effort to arrest the evil, and may be successful.

Is there not in this consideration a sufficient reason why every Christian man and woman who has a spark of compassion for suffering humanity, or of concern for the spiritual welfare of the people of China, should pray, irrespective altogether of party politics, that men may be sent to Parliament who in this matter will act righteously. Thousands upon thousands of your readers believe in the power of prayer. Will as many of them as have any concern for the people of China—any concern for the honour of our own country—any desire to bring to an end a great national sin, arrange for gatherings, if but of two or three, for united prayer daily until July 14, by which time the election will be over? Our foes are mighty. Articles on the opium question, ably written, but mystifying, and shamefully misleading, have been admitted by The Times, and answers written by Professor Legge, Mr. Donald Matheson, Dr. Maxwell, and others, have not been allowed to appear.

Even the religious press, with a few exceptions, has done little to spread the knowledge of the true state of things, and now neither time nor funds allow of much being done before the die is cast, and a Parliament returned which, for good or for evil, will deal with this question. "The lot is cast into the lap; but the whole disposing thereof is of the Lord." If appeal be made to Him, He will hear and answer prayer.

During the last eighteen months He has given proof of this; He will do it again, if only his people will call upon Him. Influential men, blinded by self-interest or by false views of the interests of India, may be arrayed against us, and from the merely human standpoint there may be but little to encourage hope; but "is anything too hard for the Lord?"

B. Broomhall,
Secretary, China Inland Mission.

MISSIONARY CONFERENCE AT BRIGHTON.

An united Missionary Conference of the Church of England and other of the larger societies was held at Brighton last week. It differed from an ordinary missionary meeting in that it was not for the advocacy of the missionary cause, but for the comparing of notes in respect to methods of operation, and, by this and other details of service, to deepen an intelligent interest in missionary work throughout the world. If the several meetings were not so largely attended as could have been desired, the spirit that was kindled amongst members of various churches and societies, and the information conveyed, were decidedly marked. It may be hoped that similar gatherings in a like catholic spirit will be convened in other parts of the land.

A preliminary service was held in the parish church of St. Peter's on the Monday evening, in which the clergy of the town and the several Nonconformist bodies were represented. Special prayers of a missionary character were used, and, of course, missionary hymns were sung. The special preacher was Rev. E. L. Roxby, of Tulse-hill, and formerly one of the Brighton clergy, who discussed the successive questions:—Whether it was the duty of every member of a church to help in Christian missions; whether adequate results had followed such efforts; and whether, in the face of so much need at home, so prominent a place should be given to the sending of the Gospel to the heathen abroad. These questions were answered not only in the interests of missions, but of the people at home.

The first assembly was convened in the Pavilion on Tuesday morning. By no great stretch of imagination it might have been conjectured that it was meeting in one of the temples of heathendom. The business-like Vicar of Brighton fittingly presided, and the veteran missionary, Rev. E. Storrow, acted as secretary.

There were three subjects under consideration in the morning, each of which was introduced by a paper, and followed by general comments. "The Cultivation of the Missionary Spirit" was committed to a local clergyman, Rev. H. Newton. He said there should be a missionary Sunday in all churches and Sunday-schools, for the sake of giving information, and for the kindling of missionary zeal. Others suggested a quarterly and perhaps a monthly missionary day. Rev. Charles Jordan, of the Baptist Missionary Society, spoke on "Female Missionaries: Their Qualifications, Duties, and Spheres;" followed by a valuable paper by Rev. E. Storrow on "The Results of Missions in the Spread of Christian Knowledge, in the Overthrow of Barbarous Customs, and in Conversions."

In the afternoon a more public meeting was held in the same place, presided over by Mr. S. Hannington, brother of the late bishop. He said that the important feature of the Conference was that it was called on entirely unsectarian principles, by men inspired with the grandeur of the work, and whose eyes had been dazzled by the knowledge that a hundred thousand human beings lived in ignorance of Christ. It was startling to think how little had been done to extend the knowledge of the Gospel.

Rev. R. L. Dowbiggin (of the Church Missionary Society) told of his experiences as a missionary in Ceylon. Of Buddhism he said it was mere atheism, and the moral results of it were deplorable.

Rev. R. Wardlaw Thompson (Secretary of the London Missionary Society) dealt with missionary labour in its general aspects. The forward movement at home would not only mean a forward movement in the mission-field, but would act there as a breath of God. God was stirring up his Church in this matter, and Christians should rejoice.

In the evening a large meeting was held in the dome, under the presidency of the Mayor (Dr. Ewart), who spoke of some of the difficulties in connection with missionary enterprise which he had observed during a prolonged stay in India. It was essential that men should be sent out who were able to cope with the Brahman. One of them had said to him, "I can understand the morality of Christianity, but how does it come about that this religion of yours is taught by a number of sects?" If the various missionaries in India worked on one method and with one heart it would advance greatly the evangelisation of India. It was the custom to say that the Indian government did not foster Christianity sufficiently; but it should be remembered that the Government of India was carried out by a handful of men, who were surrounded by a population of 280,000,000 and that, as it was, the British rule in that country had effected incalculable benefits; and he undertook to say that there was not a law passed by the Government of India which had not a Christianising aspect, and did not tend to raise the people morally. No doubt there were blemishes—the liquor traffic and the opium traffic in particular being instanced.

Rev. W. S. Swanson (of the English Presbyterian Missionary Society) followed with a telling address on mission work in China, with which he is personally familiar. When he got out into the mission field, he said, he found that his Christianity could be best expressed by two great truths. The first was that men and women are sinners; and the second was that Jesus Christ, the Son of God, was the Saviour of humanity. This speech, which abounded in racy and forceful remarks, carried conviction to an enthusiastic audience, and brought down rapturous applause.

Rev. J. Nettleton (Wesleyan Missionary Society) told of the work of the Gospel in Fiji, where the Sabbath is better observed than in this country, and where, if we wanted Christian heroes, we might find them. With other such words closed this inspiring meeting.

EVENING.

The long bright day has gone to rest
On rosy pillows in the West,
Where curtains of the rainbow's hue
Are drawn to hide it from our view;
And dusky night comes on again,
With all its silent, shadowy train.

The eve of life is drawing near,
The night of death will soon be here;
I fear not night, I fear not death,
I trust in what my Saviour saith;
He is my burning, shining light,
In Him no darkness and no night.

My everlasting life is He,
My joy through all eternity.
He will for aye with me abide,
And closer draw at eventide.
And so I fear not night nor death,
But trust in what my Saviour saith.

Caroline Tickner.

BISHOP EDWARD BICKERSTETH, of Japan, has sent home an urgent appeal for at least fifty more workers. As things are at present, he says, it is impossible for missionaries resident in Tokio and Osaka to give more than the fringe of their time to direct evangelisation. In not a few places, too, only one missionary is stationed, and there are still "immense populations and numerous towns and villages" in which "the mass of the people have no knowledge of the Gospel or means of learning it." The legitimacy and urgency of the appeal for reinforcements is, the Bishop says, emphasized by "the rapid spread of unbelief among all classes" in Japan. But while the need of assistance is great, the Bishop has made much progress with the small staff he has under his command, and the prospects of the church in Japan seem to be very bright.

Dr. Barnardo's Festival.

A SERMON WITH FOUR HEADS AND AN APPLICATION.

For the third time Dr. Barnardo's protégés, patrons, and sympathisers have made pilgrimage to the splendid Albert Hall at Kensington. It is seldom that Belgravia and Bethnal-green meet together, and Dr. Barnardo deserves to be heartily thanked for providing this annual opportunity. Such an object-lesson of the sins and sorrows of the city, with the Christ-like endeavours that are being made to lessen the sin and banish the sorrow, is worth a bushel of speeches. The gathering of Wednesday week was an unqualified success. Brightness was the prevailing element, but enough of the darker side of the picture was shown to throw the sunshine into proper relief. Everybody must have rejoiced at the statement of Lord Kinnaird, the Chairman, that Dr. Barnardo had recovered his physical strength, and was "looking very well." Certainly, he was as energetic as ever, none the worse, seemingly, for the severe and prolonged strain that he must have undergone in directing the thousand-and-one details of such a leviathan and varied programme.

FOUR-YEAR-OLD LILLIE ON THE DEFENSIVE.

These anniversaries of Dr. Barnardo's Homes are now singularly diversified in character and interest. It may not be amiss to compare them to an old-fashioned sermon, with its four heads and an application.

I.—THE MUSIC.

We should only be repeating an oft-told tale if we entered into any detailed description of the thrilling and charming song that came out of the fifteen hundred young throats of the boys and girls crowded into the orchestra. Music, vocal and instrumental, has long been kept to the front in the training of the boys at Stepney and the girls at Ilford. The gleeful traditions so firmly established by the late Mr. Joseph Proudman are being ably sustained by his son, Mr Frank Proudman, to the swing of whose bâton the youthful choir made the great spaces of the Albert Hall resound, evoking the ringing cheers of the immense and brilliant assemblage. The boys' band played capitally; so did the little men with the bagpipes. In short, it was a fine feast of sweet sound, and of itself worth going to Kensington to hear. We believe there are few things the devil dislikes more than good and cheerful music allied with pure and true sentiment. Those young people of Dr. Barnardo's get so much that is good in this line, that there is less fear of their being allured by the vulgarities, the inanities, and the profanities of the music-hall.

II.—THE ILLUSTRATIONS.

It is impossible to produce many absolutely fresh illustrations of the work every year, many-sided though the scope of the institutions be. Perhaps the only positive novelties on this occasion were the crowning of the May Queen and "naval drill on board a training-ship." Dr. Barnardo was an interested spectator at the recent meeting of the Boys' Brigade in Exeter Hall, and he probably desired to "cap" the drilling performances on that occasion with something still stronger. So we had the deck of the training-ship reproduced, with rifle and sword drill excellently gone through at the word of command by very juvenile officers. This was the only part of the programme that might have been profitably omitted. The rearing of the mast hung fire somewhat, and the Doctor evidently had an anxious ten minutes. The sword-drill, with its slash and cut and thrust, seemed rather out of place; but, as a friend judiciously remarked, the training was to be construed as meaning "Defence, not defiance."

As for the rest of the illustrations, no praise could be too extravagant. Ten workshops were seen, for a brief space, in full swing. Then came a most touching procession of boy and girl waifs, fresh from the City slums—the veritable "raw material," out of which the "manufactured article" will by-and-by be evolved. This latter was seen to perfection in the band of sturdy young emigrants, ready to start with others on the morrow for Manitoba, and looking fit for anything. The "babies' play-hour" was quite idyllic in its naturalness and homely suggestion. There was no prettier picture placed on the boards all the long evening than the crowning of the May Queen and the dancing round the may-pole. More prosaic, but more practical, was the glimpse of "Washing-day in the Homes." A procession of young craftsmen, carrying the emblems of their fourteen handicrafts, was followed by physical and musical drill by a company of young girls—most graceful, healthful, and charming. Later in the evening was a reproduction of last year's "sensation," the fire escape. Altogether, these varied examples of what is done in the institutions for the mental, physical, and industrial well-being of the boys and girls who find their way to Dr. Barnardo's School were telling and irresistible arguments for his noble and beneficent work.

III.—THE PRIZE-GIVING.

This demands a brief mention. It is a good custom with the director and his counsellors to keep a friendly eye on the young people who are trained under their roof for some years after they leave to fill positions of useful service in the great world. Those who comport themselves creditably, and are within easy distance, come up year by year to receive prizes or certificates—an excellent plan, surely, not only for encouraging them in the way of well-doing, but for sustaining in them a lively interest in the institution to which they owe so much. Prizes were given this year to some two hundred "old girls and boys" who had creditably filled situations for periods of one to nine years. The coveted douceurs were graciously handed to the recipients by Lady Aberdeen, whose winning smile and kindly word would no doubt enhance the gift of the committee.

IV.—THE SPEECHES.

The Albert Hall was not built for speech-making, and unless the speaker is a practised orator, with the lungs of a giant, he is at a disadvantage. Lord Kinnaird, who very capably filled the chair, boldly faced the situation, and made himself tolerably well heard as he set forth some of the facts and figures of the work of the bygone year. He told how neither vote nor interest was needed to secure admission for really destitute cases; and how physical deformity or ailment is no barrier in the way of otherwise suitable cases. While definite religious instruction is the backbone of the work, it is unsectarian, and therefore appeals to all. Coming to figures, he reported that during 1891, 6866 cases of child-destitution, suffering, and danger were dealt with. In the same period 1717 were admitted to the Homes, and on December 31 there were in actual residence under the sheltering wing of the institution 4219 boys and girls snatched from Britain's waifdom, turned aside from paths of poverty, crime, and moral destruction. The extension of the Cottage Home system was referred to with satisfaction; there are now one thousand children placed out in such homes, where the hallowing influences of family life can be experienced to the full.

RAW MATERIAL.

PHYSICAL DRILL.

In his brief statement as Director, preparatory to the marshalling of the illustrations, Dr. Barnardo supplemented the Chairman's remarks, bringing the figures up to date. The number in the Homes at the date of meeting was 4400. The Director also pointed to several developments in the machinery of the institution during the year—the establishment of seven receiving-houses in large provincial towns; the addition of twenty-five centres to the boarding-out organisation; an auxiliary boarding-out scheme for children of a class not hitherto reached; and the inauguration of the Young Helpers' League and the "Voluntary Association of Adult Helpers." Mr. Mayers' deputation work in Australia has been eminently successful.

Brief addresses were given towards the end of the meeting by Lord Aberdeen, Mr. William Fowler, Lord Rookwood (better known as Sir Henry Selwyn-Ibbetson), and Mr. Gurney Sheppard. All were most hearty in their advocacy of the work of the institutions. Lord Aberdeen was unstinted in his expressions of admiration at the delightful exhibitions of skill on the part of the children. He referred with much approval to the emigration of lads to Canada, all the more as he was now himself a voter and stakeholder in the Dominion. Later in the evening, he showed his practical interest by offering to pay the cost of sending out two of the youths about to leave for the Western land. As the Treasurer, Mr. William Fowler, was very earnest in asking that the exchequer might be kept well filled. He gave it as his honest conviction that the money sent to Dr. Barnardo was well and carefully spent, and that there was no waste. Lord Rookwood, with the honours of his new-born peerage sitting lightly upon him, argued from past as well as present experiences for the liberal support of the public. Mr. Sheppard recalled the fact that at the close of last year's meeting there were two gifts of £1000 each, and hoped some kind friends present were prepared this year to imitate so good an example. This mention of money brings us to

THE APPLICATION.

of which we have spoken; we mean, of course, the appeals that were made by Dr. Barnardo and others for financial support. The institutions have no permanent endowment, but they appeal to possess what is perhaps better—the confidence and approval of the giving public. This will be evident when we state that the income for 1891 totalled up the substantial sum of £131,000. Lord Kinnaird drew attention to the fact that the coming holiday months of July, August and September are serious times for the Homes, as the receipts invariably drop while people are away enjoying relaxation and spending their money on themselves. In order to provide against this, Dr. Barnardo desires to secure £13,000 at once. The collection and donations promised on Wednesday evening amounted to the goodly sum of £2360; but this leaves a very large balance to be made up by the friends of the work throughout the country.

A YOUNG HELPER.

By the kindness of Dr. Barnardo, we give some of the numerous illustrations that appeared in the beautifully got-up programme of the evening's proceedings. They speak for themselves, and will make more vivid to the reader the truly practical and Christlike nature of the work done by these institutions in transforming the children of misery into happy, healthy, and useful youths and maidens.

MORE RAW MATERIAL.

FETE AT ILFORD.

The Girls' Home at Ilford was en fête on Saturday, a goodly company of Dr. Barnardo's friends assembling by special invitation for an afternoon's inspection and enjoyment. The visitors were greeted at Mossford Lodge, and a little open-air meeting was forthwith arranged under the cedar tree on the lawn. Mr. Samuel G. Sheppard, Chairman of the Committee of the Homes, welcomed the company, and Dr. Barnardo followed with a brief statement, when a threatening shower drove the meeting indoors. Fortunately there was not rain enough to mar the subsequent enjoyment.

The keystone of the Doctor's little address was thanksgiving based upon his personal reminiscences of the growth of that particular branch. The visitors learned that the village had now nearly one thousand little inhabitants of all ages up to sixteen or thereabouts, divided up into forty-nine households under a Christian "mother."

The first meeting was followed by another, for the company at once adjourned to the site of the new church at the other end of the village, and there the central event of the day took place in the unveiling of the memorial-stone. The building is only about one-third erected, but enough was there to show that the £6000 given will be worthily expended. Prayer was offered by Rev. D. B. Hankin, and at the touch of one of the tiniest little maidens in all the cottages, the unveiling was performed on behalf of the donor, who, unfortunately, was too ill to be present. The church is appropriately a daughter's memorial to a departed father and mother. Most of its young worshippers are and will be orphans. The completed building is to be licensed, though not consecrated, so that clergymen, ministers, or laymen may alike speak within its walls.

Last Thursday a party of two hundred boys and lads, trained in, and now sent out by, Dr. Barnardo's Homes, left Euston for Liverpool, en route to Canada. Fifty of these will be placed out on Dr. Barnardo's Industrial Farm of ten thousand acres at Russell, Manitoba; and for the others agricultural situations will be found throughout Ontario. The party sailed by the Allan liner, Mongolian. Including these lads, the Institutions have now sent out over 5500 emigrants to Canada and to the British Colonies.

THE NOON MEETING,

186, ALDERSGATE-STREET.

It was stated on Monday that Dr. Pentecost's ministry at Upper George-street, Marylebone, is being attended with power from on high. Last Sunday about twenty men, some of them of good position, were constrained under the power of God's Spirit to confess their conscious need of a Saviour, or that they had been saved.

Mr. Stoughton spoke of a Congregational minister who last year was on the Down-grade, when he was induced to go to Keswick. There he got such a blessing that on his return there was found such variance between his new views and those of his people that the church was reorganised, those who did not approve of his conversion left it, and for the past year quite a different order of things prevailed.

Mr. Nobbs spoke of the work of God at the Great Assembly Hall. If all the work of God in metropolitan localities from week to week were as well made known as when the like occurs in a country town, it would be found that there is much to praise God for every week. If the ministers were to come and tell what God was doing by them, and to hear what He is doing by others, their own souls would be refreshed, and they would go away as glad as Gideon, when he heard the dream and its interpretation in the camp of the Midianites.

The Monday afternoon prayer-meeting for revival has been amalgamated with the meeting at noon, and all who are crying, "O Lord, revive thy work," are very cordially invited.

AGED BLIND FOLK.—About a hundred, including guides, accepted the invitation of Rev. Henry and Mrs. Bright, the hon. superintendents, to the annual garden-party to the blind from some of the London workhouses at the Homes for Aged Christian Blind Men and Women in Hanley-road, Crouch-hill, N., on Tuesday last week. During the afternoon the old folk, to whom such a treat is a rarity, greatly enjoyed the outing in the pleasant grounds of the homes, and after tea and some singing on the lawn, there was a short meeting in the Jubilee Hall adjoining, when one or two interesting recitations and brief addresses were interspersed with some bright singing. Before leaving each of the visitors received a bun and a shilling.

A ZENANA BREAKFAST.

A Breakfast meeting was held in the Cannon-street Hotel on Tuesday morning to welcome Dr. Pentecost and the Misses Kinnaird on their return from India, and to arouse fresh interest in the work of Zenana Missions, particularly the Zenana Bible and Medical Mission, Mr. T. A. Denny, in the unavoidable absence of the host, Lord Kinnaird, presided, and called upon

The Hon. Emily Kinnaird spoke of what she had seen of mission work in Lucknow, Lahore, Poona, Calcutta, and many other parts. She deplored the lack of interest, and even of knowledge, shown by many Anglo-Indians in missionaries, who were toiling hard and successfully in the cause of the Gospel. Let no one say a missionary's life was one of ease and idleness; the truth was, that real missionaries, both men and women, usually work beyond their powers, for the work is great and the labourers are few.

Miss Cornelia Sorabji, B.A., who is returning to India to help her mother, whose devoted labours are well known, spoke briefly but touchingly of India's vast need and of the sorrow of her people.

Dr. Pentecost emphasised what had been already said as to the invincible ignorance on the part of many Anglo-Indians as to work going on around them. Then, again, for years we have been praying that God would open the doors. Now He has opened the doors, and we are not prepared to enter in. The danger is that these doors may soon close should prove unable or unwilling to rise to the emergency.

Mr. D. L. Moody, being called upon for a few words, told how he had intended visiting India and had been hindered. Hence he was not a missionary, and had seen little of missions; but he was profoundly thankful to know that God had used him to call out and send forth many missionaries. Not a few saved during his work in this and other lands were now doing good service among the heathen.

The Hon. Gertrude Kinnaird, in telling of what she had seen in India, devoted herself specially to illustrating the need for women's medical missionaries and women's hospitals.

A few words followed by Sir William Muir and Mr. W. T. Paton, who spoke of the financial need, read an encouraging list of promises, and asked definitely for £300 per annum more in order to extend the work.

Port Said Seamen's Rest.

An interesting report just issued by the committee of the Seamen's Rest, Port Said, states that finances during the past year have often been at a low ebb, yet God has provided every need. From an outline of the work given we find that a number of boats go every Sunday evening to the Colliers, of which from twelve to sixteen are usually in port, and are almost the only vessels making a prolonged stay. The men from these ships are collected and brought to a Gospel address at the "Rest," the manager undertaking that they return to their ships on its conclusion. Very little difficulty has been found in getting them back to their ships. The attention and interest shown has been most marked, some earnest Christians among the men themselves being often found ready to speak a word for the Master and to assist in seeing that all return on board quietly afterwards.

One small man-of-war not carrying a chaplain is usually stationed at Port Said, she too is visited, as a rule on Sunday afternoon. In some ships meetings have been held on board by the special permission of their captains. The "Rest" has aided a good number of destitute British subjects and foreigners, for whose relief no fund exists at Port Said. Missionaries going to and from the East have held little meetings at the "Rest" which have been most cheering to themselves and to others at Port Said. The number of meals served has been about 638; 270 ships have been visited, and much reading matter has been distributed. The work greatly needs help at present. The treasurer is Mr. F. A. Bevan, 54, Lombard-street, E.C.

A TRAINING SCHOOL JUBILEE.—On Tuesday next the jubilee of the St. John's Training Schools for Girls will be observed from four to ten p.m. in the buildings close to Westbourne-park station. The managers are endeavouring to raise a Jubilee Fund to clear off the debt, also to enrol new subscribers. Communications should be made to Lord Kinnaird, 1, Pall Mall East, S.W.

THE MILDMAY CONFERENCE,

JUNE 21–23, 1892.

Subject: THE WAYS OF GOD, IN JUDGMENT, PROVIDENCE, GRACE.

For the thirty-sixth time, and in the pleasantest of summer weather, this annual cosmopolitan gathering of Christian workers began its sittings on Tuesday morning last week. This year the Conference was moved a day forward in the week, with the laudable object, we understand, of enabling the attenders to join in the praise meeting held the morning after the assemblies of the three days.

Sir S. A. Blackwood, who was absent at last Conference, was in his accustomed place on this occasion. He had, indeed, been suffering from severe indisposition on the previous Sabbath, but had happily recovered in time to assume the conduct of the great meetings in the large hall. The attendance was about as large as usual, and the meetings were marked by the orderly quiet, characteristic of Mildmay Conventions.

On Tuesday, at eleven a.m., the Chairman summoned the great assembly to silent petition, after which Mr. Pennefather's opening prayer-hymn was sung on bended knees:—

Jesus, stand among us
In thy risen power.

This was followed by the singing of another hymn, and Rev. D. B. Hankin then led in prayer. It was a singularly soulful utterance—choice in language, lofty in thought, and most comprehensive in scope.

THE CHAIRMAN'S ADDRESS.

Sir S. A. Blackwood, K.C.B., said: Will you open your Bibles at the Word of God as it is written in the first chapter of the prophecy of Ezekiel? Two millenniums and a half have passed away since the captive prophet was amongst the captives by the river Chebar, and, as we see from verse 1, "the heavens were opened, and I saw visions of God." In this latter day we occupy a position of greater privilege than he did. We are not among captives, but amongst those whom Christ has made free. We are not by the river Chebar, but we are sitting to-day by the banks of the river of the water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb. We are permitted to understand, as probably Ezekiel and his fellow prophets did not understand, the visions of God. They searched what these wondrous revelations might portend; but now, in the full light which Christ has revealed, we have the exposition, the divine interpretation. And it is as those who occupy in the marvellous grace of God a position of such liberty, such privilege, such access, we take our stand to-day and open another Mildmay Conference, by endeavouring with the prophet, to contemplate the marvellous scene which passed before his astonished gaze. "The heavens were opened, and he saw visions of God."

Now the order of the chapter is that which is marked out for us in the succession of the subjects which we find in the programme. It is that of "the ways of God in judgment," as betokened in the whirlwind, the cloud, and the fire; it is that of "the ways of God in providence," as denoted by the living creatures and the wheels, wheels within wheels upon earth guided by the heavenly powers; and then, lastly, we have the glorious vision of encircled with the rainbow, the manifestation of the likeness of the glory of Jehovah.

THE ENTHRONED MAN,

In the few opening remarks that I desire to make I would follow or take a different starting-point; for though the prophet saw these three visions thus brought successively before his eye, I think we may well take our stand at the close of the vision at the only place where I feel that sinners like us, pardoned sinners by the grace of God, can properly stand. If we are to contemplate in a suitable frame of mind, with reverence, and at the same time with joy, this marvellous exposition of the grace of God, we must get under the shadow of the throne, we must draw near the throne of grace sprinkled with blood, we must contemplate that risen One at the right hand of the Majesty of heaven. There and there only can we really view the scene we are called upon to witness. And if that be so, surely it is not without meaning that the primitive servants of God are so often presented to us as overwhelmed by a deep sense of the majesty and glory of God, as they were permitted to enter into his secret, and to receive communications from the Most High. Abraham fell on his face when God talked with him; Moses put his shoes from off his feet, for the place where he stood was holy ground; Joshua lay prostrate in the dust, as did Daniel by the River Hiddekel; and even the beloved disciple, who had lain on the bosom of the Man of Sorrows, also fell prostrate—"I fell at his feet as one dead." So here, "when I saw it, I fell upon my face."

Now let us read a few verses beginning with the twenty-fourth, where we see these marvellous living creatures full of life and power, who "when they stood, they let down their wings." The rush and noise of heavenly activity is subdued, active powers, even in heavenly places, keep silence. Do we not need to follow that example? We come, many of us, from scenes of much activity, of work, of labour, and even strife; and we come, as it were, to be quiet,

TO BE SILENT BEFORE GOD.

We come into the secret place of retirement, to be with Him, withdrawn from much that necessarily occupies time, labour, and energy. Figuratively speaking, we "let down our wings."

Having read the chapter to the close, as well as verses 1 and 2 of chapter ii., the Chairman proceeded: May the same Divine Spirit permeate our being to-day, so that we may hear the voice of the Man upon the throne, the blessed God, the one who loves to draw near to his people and speak to them, and convey to them those communications which they need to fit them for service or suffering.

We have to-day the great, solemn, mysterious subject of "the ways of God in judgment" symbolised, as we have seen, by the mighty wind breaking the rocks, the fire enlightening and even scorching, and the cloud which darkens the earth, yet is full of the promise of the fertilising power from above. Without trenching on what our brethren have to say, I may remark that, as I understand it, we need not think of judgments merely as punitive. They may be so; but surely the term implies much more as to the ways of God in dealing with men, with churches, and with individuals, as to the action of God in all things in heaven and earth. He is the Judge of all the earth, and He does right. "God's way is perfect." Then let it take this, that, or the other form suited to the time, season, and condition of the churches, or individuals, or nations. It is well we should withdraw ourselves to a certain extent from much that occupies the mind, and get for a brief season to a higher sphere, a more elevated plane—that, instead of being occupied, as we naturally are, with "my work," "myself," "my church" (all things right enough in their own place), we may, under the shadow of the throne, look upon God's work on the objective rather than the subjective side, and thus have our mind and heart instructed to understand the secret and the loving kindnesses of our God.

And yet we cannot meet this morning without remembering that the ways of God in judgment often wound, chasten, and try. We cannot meet here without looking back at the past. How solemnly this year opened—the pestilence that walketh in darkness, the shadow that fell on the steps of the throne in this land, and then the withdrawal of those honoured servants of God, who had stood beside us on this platform and had spoken so faithfully and lovingly to assembled thousands.

CHARLES HADDON SPURGEON,

Donald Fraser, and Gawin Kirkham, the last named for a long time actually associated with the work in this hall, all of them able witnesses and devoted servants of the living God. They are gone from us to a higher sphere of labour, and surely God speaks to us in these things, and we do well to "consider the end of their conversation and faith." God has providentially withdrawn them, leaving to us, in our humbler sphere, to continue to bear witness to his grace and truth.

So we come here to-day to meditate on Him, whether in his ways of judgment, providence, or grace. Many expressions of thankfulness have reached us with regard to the selection of subject. We were reminded at the preparatory prayer meeting last night of the necessity of knowing more of God Himself. And in coming to consider this subject, it is an important thought for us that in this marvellous book of Ezekiel, as you will have noticed, no less than seventy-one times is that form of words repeated, "That they may know that I am Jehovah." How deeply instructive it is to take up one book like that, with its keynote so clearly written over it, and find therein the revelation of Jehovah to ourselves. God help us to sit at his feet, who alone can speak to us to profit! May He speak to us this morning by his servants, and may we have the listening ear and the understanding heart, so that our energy may be renewed, and we may go forth freshly anointed with the dew of heaven, and with a higher conception of his Divine majesty and of our own responsibility as those called to a knowledge of the Most High; and thus shall we not have met together in vain.

The whole audience then united in reciting audibly Ps. xcvii.

Rev. Handley C. G. Moule followed with the weighty address given in full on pages 9 and 10. After prayer by Rev. C. A. Fox, a hymn was sung, and Colonel Morton read a number of requests for prayer, which were laid before God by Rev. Evan H. Hopkins. The second address of the morning was then given.

A God of Judgment.

Rev. J. B. FIGGIS.

It is written that when the Lord descended in the cloud and with the light of fire, the priests could not minister for the glory; and as we stand together in this solemn scene this morning, it does seem as if the uttered words were almost impossible. We have been reminded that "the Lord is a God of judgment"—you will find these words in the book of Isaiah xxx. 18—and that He "is a God of knowledge, and by Him actions are weighed" (1 Sam. ii. 3). They are put into the scale, they are tested, they are tried. God's mind cannot be ignorant of them, for He is a God of knowledge; His heart cannot be indifferent to them, for the Lord our God is Holiness; His eye cannot be blind to them, for His eyes are as the flaming fire—they search, they try.

The Lord is a God of judgment, but He is a God of mercy, too. He delighteth in mercy, but He is nevertheless a God of judgment. There are thousands of reminders to prevent our forgetting it. I stood the other day, and seem still to stand, in the midst of the ruins of the Acropolis, in Athens. What mean these broken columns and fallen temples? Do they mean that God was angry with Greece, that her actions, when put in the scale, were lighter than vanity? Do they mean it was for this world's good they should pass away? Egypt, Assyria, Greece, and Rome, where are they? Where are they, and where art thou, my country?

WHERE IS THIS ENGLAND OF OURS, with her betting-rings and her gambling on every side, her drunkenness and gluttony on every side, her adulteries and other debaucheries on every side? Is our dear land on the brink of a precipice? God forbid! But only God knows. God grant we may so live, and work, and pray for England, that He may spare her, guilty as she is; that even her Opium Traffic may not sink her under his judgment. How easily we take these things; how lightly! There is none that stirreth up himself to take hold of God; or, if there be some, they are but few, who have learned that in regard to sin we are to be separate, but in regard to prayer and confession we are to be identified with sinners around us. So we find it was with Moses, Nehemiah, and Daniel, who made themselves one with the people. Must not we, the children of God, make ourselves one with the people of England, praying that when the judgments of God are abroad in the earth, the inhabitants of the world may learn righteousness. Thank God that lesson, though slowly learned, sometimes seems to be learned, that nations seem to learn truth and righteousness through the judgments of God—that these judgments seem to keep the world from becoming a pandemonium.

And as with nations, so with individuals, who, through God's judgments, learn his righteousness. Dare I mention what I have learned on the best authority? Years ago there was a great sorrow in our palace, and a princess-mother was weeping o'er her child. Long after she was asked by a faithful one, "Do you love the Lord Jesus Christ?" "I do, indeed." "Do you rest in Him as a personal, loving Saviour?" "Yes, I do." "How did you find Him so to be?" "Our Book says that through much tribulation we must enter in. So it was, that when my child was taken from me I found in the Saviour my rest, my joy, my all." So God as a God of judgment sends his cloud (as we read in Job), whether for correction or for mercy.

Now I turn to another branch of the subject. Deep words have been spoken on this theme; but we cannot leave it without touching the question, whether we, have to do with God's ways in judgment? Let us answer emphatically, We have nothing to do with these ways in regard to our standing, nothing. "He that believeth shall not enter into condemnation," or "shall not enter into the judgment." That is true of every saved soul. Oh, blessed words; he stands on the other side of doom, accepted in the Beloved, complete in Him. And while this is true, let it also be said as strongly and clearly that many of the troubles that touch God's children are not in the way of judgment. Why! did not the Lord Himself correct his disciples about this; telling them that those on whom the tower of Siloam fell, and those whose blood Pilate mingled with their sacrifices, were not guiltier than their fellows? Beware of adding sorrow to sorrow by telling afflicted, mourning ones that it is and must be judgment, and that had they only listened they might have escaped. It costs, said one, a great deal more to say, "I will trust Jesus though He slay me," than to trust Him to take away the sorrow and sickness.

AS CHILDREN OF GOD,

"Is this the way, my Father?" "It is, My child;
For thou must pass the dreary, tangled wild
Ere thou canst reach the sweet invisible,
Thy peaceful home above."

"My Father! it is dark!" "Child, hold My hand;
Trust my all-seeing care; I'll lead thee through the land,
For thou shalt really stand,
'Midst glory bright above."

"My footsteps seem to slide!" "Child, lift thine eyes to mine,
So in these slippery ways
Thou shalt be holden up, and thou shalt praise
Me, for each step above."

"O, Father! I am weary!" "Child, lay thy head
Upon My breast; 'tis I that spread
Thy rugged paths. Hush! hush! till I have said Rest, rest for aye above."

But though that be so, for the most part, there are cases in which a different law prevails. Just as you have seen a young mother take, with trembling hand, a phial and go to her little one (she knows the contents are bitter, and must be to do the child good, yet she pours the contents into a cup and gives it to the little one, that it may drink and be recovered), so our God has, many a time, as it were, to take the cup in his hand and administer it, though it be bitter, for the health of his child. Or you may have seen that mother, sometimes, when there was no ailment, but the child was naughty, not with a phial in her hand, but a rod, going to administer chastisement to the child she loves, and just because she loves it. Tell me, is there nothing resembling that in the dealings of God with his children? His dealings are at times in chastening—a chastening which is love. See how Jacob was chastised for his deceit; how Moses suffered for his anger, by exclusion from the land; how David suffered for his great sin, not only in the death of his darling child, but in a blighted life. These things are in the Old Testament, do you say? Well, then, in the New we read, "The Judge standeth at the door," and "judgment must begin at the house of God." Do we not need it? Are there not many under the rod the sting of whose sorrow is this?—It is my own fault. I brought it on myself by conduct for which there is not an iota of excuse. If God sees a Christian man and endangering the interests of his firm and family, how can God be satisfied with that Christian man? Must He not show that his judgments are according to truth? If God sees a Christian woman not hand in hand with Jesus, but hand and glove with the world, can God be pleased with that woman? How can He be when his judgments are according to truth. If God sees a Christian restraining prayer, neglecting the Bible, forsaking the means of grace, can He be pleased with that Christian? How can He, when his judgments are according to truth? If God sees a Christian hard and cold to his wife, cruel to his children, indifferent to the sufferings of humanity, proud, haughty, self-willed, can He be pleased with such? How can He, when all his judgments are according to truth? These things touch us, it is true, for this life chiefly, but they also touch us for the life which is to come. It is true the believer "shall not come into the judgment"; but it is equally true that "we shall all be manifested before the judgment-seat of Christ," that every one may receive the things done in his body according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad." "Knowing," says the Apostle, "the terror of the Lord, we persuade men; but we are made manifest to God," that we may be approved of Him. One of the most wonderful sermons I ever heard was on these words,

DABBLING IN DOUBTFUL STOCKS,

"APPROVED OF HIM,"

and I saw an honoured and useful London minister sit at the foot of the pulpit stairs, the tears running from his eyes. "What," he was asked, "are you weeping for?" "If," was his reply, "you had been a minister in London for forty years, you would weep, too." He was thinking of neglected opportunities, of work done in the wrong spirit, from a wrong motive. In view of these things, how much reason have we to use the old prayer, "Enter not into judgment with thy servant; for in thy sight shall no man living be justified."

I would say, in conclusion of the whole matter, that the question is, What is our duty in view of Him who is our Judge as well as our God? Our path is clear; it is to put away evil, to have done with it, to let the last time have passed for the commission of any of these sins. Bring them out from their caves and slay them before Him; slay them with the words of his mouth. If thy right hand offend thee, cut it off and cast it from thee; and if thy right eye offend thee, pluck it out and cast it from thee. It is better to enter into life halt and maimed than, having two hands and two eyes, to be cast away for ever. When you have done this, and have judged yourself and executed sentence, then will your God say those sweet, sweet words He longs to say of us: "Is Ephraim my dear son? Is he a pleasant child? For since I spake against him I do earnestly remember him still; therefore my bowels are troubled for him. I will surely have mercy upon him."

Prayer by Rev. W. H. Barlow, vicar of Islington, concluded the proceedings of the morning.

TUESDAY EVENING.

After silent waiting on God, Mr. E. Trotter led in prayer, and a hymn of praise was sung. The Chairman,

SIR S. A. BLACKWOOD,

said: For a moment turn to 1 Kings xix. 11 and 12. May we be like Elijah this evening: "on the Mount before the Lord." We have heard solemn things to-day concerning the dealings of God. The whirlwind, the cloud, the fire, and the brightness have in a measure passed before us, and now we want to hear his voice. We are bidden go forth and present ourselves before Him, and in proportion, as we get into that

"PLACE OF GENTLE STILLNESS,"

it shall be with us as it was with Elijah. "It was so, when Elijah heard it, that he wrapped his face in his mantle and went out and stood in the entering in of the cave. And, behold, there came a voice unto him." It must have been a solemn hour, an appalling scene. First, the rushing wind rending the mountain, then the crashing earthquake, with its avalanche of rocks; then the rushing, scorching, consuming fire. Even the prophet of God, who stood undaunted before Ahab and the hundred prophets of Jezebel and idolatrous Israel, might well feel his inmost being shaken to its centre as he stood alone in that mountain cave and witnessed these convulsions of nature. But now he hears the voice of God, and as the moments drew near when Divine communications were to be made to him, he is bidden stand out alone before God. There is a deeper solemnity than ever in realising the unspeakable presence of Jehovah; and, like Moses of old, he wrapt his face in his mantle and was silent. Does not that attitude befit us this evening? We are called to hear wondrous things. Only the fringe of it has been touched. We want to know much more intellectually, but much, much more experimentally. The prophet Ezekiel, of whom we heard this morning, learned both ways, and we want to learn both intellectually and experimentally, both in the head and in the heart, to know God in his ways of judgment, as well as of providence and grace. If we are so to learn, we must, metaphorically speaking, wrap our faces in our mantles and wait before God to hear his voice in the gentle stillness. No human eloquence, however learned and weighty, can penetrate the heart as does the teaching of the Holy Spirit.

After prayer by Rev. G. F. Pentecost, D.D., the following address was given.

God's Way in Judgment.

HON. AND REV. W. TALBOT RICE.

I take it that in coming together this year to this Conference we come under somewhat special circumstances. We recognise, and those who convened the Conference recognise specially, that God has been speaking to the nation during this year in a very special, solemn and remarkable way, and we want to understand what He has to say to us, and what He would have the outcome of his speaking to be. Besides, we are here to-day on the eve of a General Election, a fact which makes a meeting such as this of the people of God an extraordinarily solemn gathering. Whatever be our desire as to the result, our highest aim surely is that God may be glorified therein. Further, we are living in days of very remarkable and sudden changes, and we do not know what a day may bring forth. I know that something of the kind may be said of every age, but I believe it is true in a peculiar sense of our own. There is a great uncertainty in every heart and mind as to what is coming. Thus it seems to me we are called to live very close to God, and in special confidence in Him, crying to and waiting on Him for grace and help, for guidance and wisdom.

Now, I would turn to two or three thoughts with regard to the subject before us. I ask you to recall the words of John xvi. 11, where the Lord Jesus Christ said that the Holy Spirit would convict the world "of judgment, because the prince of this world is judged."

THE GREAT PRINCE, OR LEADER, or head of this world is judged. He in whom is summed up this world's power, this world's wisdom, this world's ways, the head of it all, is judged. He who is the great master and father of self-will has been judged; and if he has been judged, so has his self-will, and self-will in him. God has passed sentence upon him. All the world knows that Satan and his hosts determined, and carried out the work so far as they could, to destroy Him whom God sent to be the Saviour of the world. God, by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, pronounced once for all that the prince of this world was wrong—that his work was fighting against God, that he was the head and leader of self-will and opposition to the living God. As such he was judged, and in him men who live a life of self-will have been judged too.

Now you and I have been living a life of self-will; and it is plainly written in the dealings of God that that kind of life, that principle and way has been condemned as opposition to God, and lawlessness as rebellion against the living God, the Creator and Maker of heaven and earth. Turn to the instance of one whom God called his child and spake of

(Continued on page 19.)

A PALACE OF EASE FOR THE POOR.

Last Saturday the main street of the quiet little town of Sandgate on the Kentish coast was bright with bunting; it was the opening day of the new "Beach Rocks" as a Convalescent Home for the London Samaritan Society. During the past twelve years nearly fifteen thousand convalescents, coming chiefly from the ranks of London's industrial poor, have been helped back to health and strength by a sojourn at the Sandgate Homes. The old Beach Rocks has long been inadequate to the needs of the Society's work, and additional houses had to be taken in the summer season. This arrangement was both expensive and inconvenient, and Mr. Jones, the director, in co-operation with the trustees, decided to pull down the existing house and erect in its place a larger structure covering the whole site. The new building is now complete so far as its exterior goes, and is faithfully represented by the engraving that appears on this page. The reader will see that it is a palatial edifice; while for the purposes of such an institution the situation is simply perfect.

In carrying out the scheme for the new building, Mr. Jones was fortunate in securing the practical co-operation of Mr. William Dabbs, of Clapton, whose skill in such matters has been freely and gladly placed at the disposal of the Society. The interior arrangements of the Home are in keeping with the attractive exterior. Beauty and comfort go hand in hand. As the patients traverse the spacious corridors and stairways, or find a retreat from sun and wind under the cool and shady verandahs, or rest in the large and lofty ceiled sitting-rooms, or repose at night in the wholesome airy bedrooms, they cannot but feel that everything that is possible has been done to contribute to their happiness and facilitate their recovery. Nothing need be said here as to the cuisine; Beach Rocks has long ago earned a high reputation for its generous feeding arrangements, and there will certainly be no retrograde in the new Home in that respect. The sympathetic kindness and solicitude of the matrons, constitute the added touch that gives the institution a beau ideal character, and will tax its accommodation, large though it be.

The opening ceremony of Saturday was a very pleasant function. The central figures were Sir Edward Watkin, M.P., and his octogenarian wife, Lady Ingram Watkin. A great assemblage of friends lined the sides and double verandahs of the pretty central quadrangle facing the sea, where the meeting was held. After hymns and appropriate prayer, her ladyship formally declared the building open, and trusted that every blessing would attend its operations. Rev. W. Cuff, in a very hearty address, spoke warmly, and from personal knowledge, of the good work that Mr. Jones had done for the poor of London for many years past. In the course of his remarks he very happily dubbed the Institution a "Palace of Ease for the Poor." The utterance of Sir Edward Watkin was most cordial, and so were those of the Mayors of Hythe and Folkestone. Mr. Jones gave interesting particulars as to the working of the Homes. Short addresses followed from Mr. Dabbs, Mr. Noakes, Mr. Du Boulay, Sir John Bissett, and Dr. Alston.

Little was said about money matters, but it transpired that a considerable part of the western wing of the building still awaits its internal fitting and furnishing, and the required sum is £3000. At present there are over one hundred patients in the Home. When the furnishing is complete 230 will be accommodated. The office of the London Samaritan Society is 98, High-street, Homerton, N.

[566]

MR. MOODY'S VISIT.

Mr. Moody's visit to Cardiff will long be remembered. Though there were only six days for making the arrangements, such was the heartiness that marked all the preparations and work done that success crowned the effort in a way that was more than encouraging to those who undertook the responsibility.

On the Sabbath not less than twenty thousand people congregated to hear the evangelist. The afternoon and evening services on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday were attended by two thousand to three thousand people. Mr. Moody has lost none of his tact in managing large audiences. The spiritual power was remarkable, and the inquiry room filled each night

This visit has convinced the workers in this mission that immense service can be rendered the churches by like short missions all over the kingdom. The people are ready and waiting to support the work. Some faint-hearted friends thought it was impossible to arrange on such short notice, and that a large mission was necessary. All unite now in thankfulness for the showers of blessing that have rested upon the with and courage alike of Mr. Moody and those warm-hearted friends who united to undertake the mission

Mr. Moody will conduct evangelistic services in the Convention Tent, at Guildford, on Saturday evening next, and will hold three services there on the Sunday following.

He crosses over to Ireland on the 5th, and will be present at the gatherings at Fenaghy, on July 6 and 7. His other engagements in Ireland will not be definitely fixed till he arrives there. Will friends kindly take note of this, as it will save much correspondence. Mr. Moody will feel grateful to friends in England if, instead of addressing him with regard to future missions, they will correspond with Mr. Clement F. Davis, Westover-road, Wandsworth-common, S.W., who has the arrangements in hand.

It is expected that Mr. Moody will commence work again in England about August 1, and will remain through September.

Poor Convalescents.

The annual meeting of the After-care Association for Poor Female Convalescents on leaving asylums for the insane, was held at Upper Terrace House, Hampstead, on June 20. The chief objects of the Association are to help poor persons discharged from the various asylums in Great Britain, in which there are about 30,000. Dr. Rayner presided. The report showed that much useful work had been done by the Association during the past year.

The speakers included Hon. Dudley Fortescue, Drs. Norman Kerr, Parker Young, Hack Tuke, Savage, Fletcher Beach, Richards, and Rees Phillips; Revs. St. Hill Bourne, and Henry Hawkins. Much interest was shown in the proceedings. Copies of the report may be had from the secretary, Mr. H. Thornhill Roxby, Church House, Dean's-yard, Westminster.

AMERICAN NOTES.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

As I write, the glass registers 98 degs. That means several degrees more in the crowded cities. Matters of great religious and political interest have been crowding in upon us. The Quadrennial Republican Convention has ended its work after nominating President Harrison for re-election. It is cause for thanksgiving on the part of Christian people that not only has a distinguished and upright official received nomination for a second term, by a splendid majority, but that there is now a hopeful prospect of retaining in the Presidential chair a pronounced and consistent Christian. An open Bible, with daily worship, in the home of our Chief Magistrate is a noble example to the country.

Important questions have been considered at all of our religious conventions. Missions have occupied a prominent place, while matters relating to good government have not been lightly set aside. The Chinese Exclusion Bill has been loudly condemned, and resolutions adopted entreating freedom for this harmless class of immigrants, have been forwarded to President Harrison.

The Presbyterian General Assembly decided that the New York Presbytery should try the case of Dr. Briggs. The case will therefore be opened in the hall. The Southern Assembly has taken high orthodox ground, and unqualifiedly condemned the destructive work of the "higher critics."

The great civic fight continues in New York. Several preachers have followed Dr. Parkhurst's example in laying before the public the moral condition of the city. The leprosy is found deeper than the skin, while conspiracies between police and saloons have proved innumerable. The new superintendent has made a sweeping change in police appointments. The good people are encouraged, though they had to wade through moral sewage to decent administration. One preacher is sued for libel by an Excise commissioner; the attacking party no longer deal theoretically with principles, but openly from their pulpits denounce the supposedly guilty. This public condemnation of city officials has stirred some to strike back through the Courts.

Dr. Rainsford, the Broad Church rector of St. George's, has called down upon his head the severe animadversion of his confrères. His recent advocacy of respectable saloons under Church patronage for the lessening of evil is not received with any kind of favour. The rector's plea is on behalf of moderate drinking in decent places, managed by Churchmen who, while receiving good returns for their investments, would philanthropically supervise the use of pure liquors. Some churches are already experimenting with bowling alleys and billiards: but it is a bold proposal to advocate linking together church and saloon.

The multiplication of church societies is becoming a very serious question. A prominent pastor has publicly stated that there are within his congregation already seventeen societies, many of them associations of young people, who hold their own meetings, and do not feel themselves further responsible to attend the services of the church. Some of these new Orders and Leagues are governed by outside and independent committees, whose management does not always prove harmonious with pastors and their churches.

THE BOOK OF LEVITICUS.—Leviticus is a treasury of divinely chosen illustrations as to the way of a sinner's salvation through the priestly work of the Son of God, and as to his present and future position and dignity as a redeemed man.—Dr. S. H. Kellogg.

REV. THOMAS SPURGEON.

THIS week we give a portrait of one who has for many months had a large share in the sympathy and prayers of the people of God throughout the world. As Mr. Thomas Spurgeon will for some time to come occupy the Metropolitan Tabernacle pulpit, we give our readers a brief outline of his past life and work.

Thomas, the younger of the twin sons of the late beloved C. H. Spurgeon, was born in the New Kent-road, on September 20, 1856. The specially close relationship of Charles and Thomas makes it impossible to give a sketch of the one brotner without frequent reference to the other. After a period of home instruction, the two boys were placed at Camden House School, Brighton, where Thomas won golden opinions from his tutors for his assiduity and progress, as well as for his general excellence of character and disposition.

Inquiries as to the time when Thomas gave evidence of conversion, and the instrumentality employed, elicited the somewhat paradoxical reply, "He must have been always converted; it seems as if he was born converted." Every believer will intuitively recognise in this case one of the countless instances of God's faithfulness to his promise to bless the children of the righteous. In The Sword and Trowel for April, "Son Tom" thus writes:—"The man who was so good to other people's children was, you may be sure, a good father to his own. So busy a life prevented him from taking a very active part in the upbringing of his boys; besides, my precious mother was the best possible trainer. We learned from father's example rather than by his precept....I fear we have not profited by it as we should; but it was bound to tell." Although it is somewhat anticipating, we insert in this connection a few sentences from a record in the Church Book of the Metropolitan Tabernacle on the occasion of the Pastor's sons "coming before the Church": "We would praise our gracious God that it should have pleased Him to use so greatly the pious teachings and holy life of our dear sister, Mrs. Spurgeon, to the quickening and fostering of the Divine principle in the hearts of her twin sons, and we earnestly pray that amidst her severe sufferings she may ever be consoled with all spiritual comfort, and by the growing devoutness of those who are thus twice given to her in the Lord."

At Brighton the two lads gave unmistakable evidence of Christian discipleship. They started and regularly conducted a prayer-meeting for their schoolfellows, and were ever ready to avow their loyalty to Christ. Upon leaving school in 1874 they applied for membership at the Tabernacle, and were baptized on Monday evening, September 21, and received into fellowship by their beloved father on Lord's Day, November 1.

The brothers lost no time in entering upon business life. Thomas, who had shown considerable artistic taste, and also skill in drawing, chose the profession of a wood-engraver, and made exceptionally rapid progress in the study and practice of the art.

In the summer of 1875 the two young men engaged in systematic aggressive Christian work. Not far from their home at Clapham, an earnest working-man named Rides had for several years been carrying on a mission work among his neighbours, giving up two rooms in his house for the purpose. He laboured under great disadvantages, until Mr. Charles made his acquaintance, and went to his help. Thomas also joined the little band, and the two brothers gave all their available time to evangelistic work in connection with the Chatham-road Mission. Nearly two years were thus spent in happy and successful work for Christ, not the least arduous of which was the collection of money for the erection of a much-needed chapel. By the help of generous friends this was accomplished, and Chatham-road Chapel was opened free of debt in August, 1877.

(From a photograph by Messrs. Marian and Manow, 416, Strand, W.C.)

We have now come to the time when the paths of the brothers diverge.

Mr. Thomas Spurgeon's health began to give his parents some cause for anxiety, and he was advised to take a voyage to Australia: he accordingly left England for Melbourne in June, 1877. By request of the Captain of the good ship Lady Jocelyn, he conducted religious services every Lord's Day, often amidst difficulties and hindrances; "an admirable preparation," wrote his father, "for addressing crowds on shore." "His reception at Melbourne was most enthusiastic. On the pier a crowd of friends awaited him, vying with each other as to who should claim the young stranger as their guest." After a few days' stay in Melbourne, he went to Geelong, where he preached his first sermon in Australia. This was on September 2; and from that day until he started on his homeward voyage his life was one of unceasing activity in his Master's service; preaching in the largest chapels and public halls in the larger towns of Victoria, invariably to crowded houses; or taking long and toilsome journeys into the interior to assist struggling causes.

South Australia was next visited, and in Adelaide and the region round about, he preached or spoke at twenty-four meetings during his eight weeks' stay. In no spirit of self-glorification, but in humble thankfulness to God, he wrote home: "There is scarce a sermon I have preached but what some are blessing me for it. Oh, this is glorious! not the praise of men, but the smile of God!"

After an evangelistic tour in Tasmania he went to Queensland. "My sojourn," he wrote, "was full of work and pleasure. Everywhere I rejoiced to note the willingness to come, and the eagerness to hear the Gospel, it being no difficulty to muster an audience of one thousand people even on a week evening. On all hands I had abundant testimony that God was blessing his own Word by quickening his people and awakening outsiders."

While on a preaching tour in this colony, he was unexpectedly recalled by the following telegram from London: "Mother worse, return," and with a heavy heart he turned his face homewards. After forty-three anxious days at sea, he was gladdened by news at Plymouth that his beloved mother had been spared. His "heart was full of songs and gratitude." When he reached home, however, he was sorrowful rather than songful; for though 'mother was better," she was very ill and weak, and "father was sick," and 'Son Tom" found himself called upon, with but a few hours' warning, to take the place of the sick pastor at the Tabernacle on the Lord's Day (Nov. 10) when the Tabernacle was "open to all comers." Wearisome weeks of pain and weakness were the lot of the beloved pastor, and again and again his son Thomas occupied the pulpit. As soon as the invalid could undertake the journey, father and son went to Mentone. On their return Thomas entered the Pastors' College; but so much of his time was taken up with preaching that he could secure but little time for study and needful rest; and the state of his health made it necessary for him to return to Australia. He reached Melbourne in the December of 1879, and proceeded to Tasmania, where for several months he went about preaching the Word and "confirming the churches."

Passing over his evangelistic journeys in Victoria and Queensland in 1880, we come to the most interesting and fruitful period of his ministry, namely, his pastoral and evangelistic work in New Zealand. In 1881 he accepted the call of the Baptist Church, Wellesley-street, Auckland, to become their pastor. So largely did God bless the ministry of his servant, that the old wooden chapel soon proved too small for the largely increased membership (about 600), and early in 1882 the Choral Hall was rented for the Sunday-evening services; and here, too, "the people had to be requested to sit closer" to make room for those who flocked to hear the Word; and, best of all, there was a continuous ingathering of converts.

On Easter Monday, April 14, 1884, the foundation stones of the Auckland Tabernacle were laid, and arrangements were made that during its erection the pastor should visit his friends in the old country and solicit their help, £4000 being required for the completion and furnishing of the chapel and schools. He arrived in London in time to take part in the Orphanage Festival, and received an enthusiastic welcome. Mr. Thomas Spurgeon had been "home" but a few weeks when his much-afflicted father was laid low by sickness, and "son Tom" was again called upon to occupy the pulpit at the Tabernacle. How efficiently this service for the Master was rendered may be seen in the little book entitled, "The Gospel of the Grace of God; Sermons delivered at the Metropolitan Tabernacle, by Thomas Spurgeon"; and especially in the preface by the now glorified pastor.

When the Auckland Tabernacle was opened for worship on Lord's Day, May 17, 1885, the pastor had the joy of knowing that it was unencumbered by debt, although it had cost nearly £15,000. According to the Baptist Handbook, it is the largest chapel of the denomination, and has the largest membership of any Baptist Church in the Australasian Colonies.

With larger and more efficient material appliances, came larger spiritual results, until the pastor found that his strength was unequal to the legitimate demands of so large a church, with its three outlying branch churches, and multiplied agencies. He therefore resigned his charge, "to the very great regret, not only of the members of his own denomination, but of Christians of all sections of the Church." This was in November, 1889.

Here we must note the interesting fact of the marriage of Pastor Thomas Spurgeon to Miss Lila M. Rutherford, daughter of Mr. Gideon Rutherford, of Dunedin, on February 10, 1888.

Very shortly after Mr. Thomas Spurgeon resigned his pastorate, he was requested by the Baptist Union of New Zealand to give himself to the work of a mission preacher or evangelist to the churches of the Union, to which request he acceded, after a period of needful rest. The annual report of the Union testifies that "this work has borne the seal of the Master's approval from the first, and proved that the Union was guided by the Holy Spirit, when it set Mr. Thomas Spurgeon apart for this itinerant ministry. During the past year he has conducted nineteen missions, in as many of our churches, holding 236 services, most of them being distinctly evangelistic, and has delivered eighteen lectures in the interest of our Home and Foreign Missions. He has conversed personally and privately with 600 inquirers, besides a large number of young children. . . . He has been graciously used of God to point many burdened pilgrims to the Wicket Gate, to lead many waverers to decide for Christ, and many converts to the open avowal of their faith by baptism and church fellowship. No single mission has been quite fruitless, and some have been Pentecostal in the plenteous success which has crowned them. To God be all the praise."

And now this beloved servant of God is with us once more; but how sad a home-coming is his, we could not, even if we would, attempt to tell. It is generally known that he has come in response to the invitation of Pastor J. A. Spurgeon and the office-bearers of the Tabernacle Church, enthusiastically endorsed by the entire membership. We confidently bespeak for him the special and earnest prayers of the people of God, that he may be Divinely comforted, strengthened, and helped, especially when he stands up to preach in the place of such hallowed and tender memories.

For the Young.

FLOWERS.

BY REV. JOHN MITCHELL.

Flowers are general favourites. We all love them. Some people are seldom to be seen without the adornment of a flower. They are cheaper than jewellery, and, decorated with them, you may outrival Solomon in all his glory.

Flowers speak to us of God. If we are forgetful of the Creator, how much there is in the world to remind us of Him! All nature speaks of God in some way or another. Flowers speak silently and faithfully to us.

Let us examine that lovely flower by the wayside. It is very light, and it would not be of much value if you judge worth by weight. It is skilfully painted, and a greater than Raphael has been the artist, One who neither requires easel, brush nor pencil. He turns the sun upon it, and in due time it is finished, and by its beauty sends joy into many hearts. Then what care has been taken in forming the leaves, and petals, and stamen!

But do not men make nice flowers? They try to make imitations of the real flower, but the nearer you look and the more you examine them the coarser they appear. Only the works of God can stand the test and defy rivalry.

Flowers tell us of the inexhaustible resources of God. Think of the great variety of shapes, colours, and sizes of them. Consider the wisdom necessary in forming and sustaining them! They require food to suit their peculiar appetites. Then they must have the proper climate and seasons. And by them God provides us with honey, with perfumes, and with medicines. If God has bestowed such wealth and wisdom on such insignificant things as flowers, how great must be his riches in glory. No wonder that on one occasion the Apostle Paul exclaimed, "O, the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out." God is beautiful Himself. He loves beauty, and therefore all that He possesses reflects his own loveliness. He wants to make our souls beautiful also. A great man used to pray, "Make me beautiful within." That is the proper place for beauty, as it shines out in a beautiful life. All outward beauty is fading, but inner beauty is lasting and shall go on unto perfection.

God desires that we should be as lovely as Himself, and has promised that all who look to Christ as their Saviour, and continue looking to Him all their lives, shall at last be transformed into his image. "And it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that when He shall appear we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is." Then He makes us partakers of his unsearchable riches, and we shall explore the wonders of his grace through all eternity. Flowers have many other lessons for us, but we shall only consider one or two more at present. Look how quiet and inoffensive they are. They are in the place where God appointed them, and they serve the end they were intended to fulfil. Have we done so? We are verily guilty in this, for we have spent too much of our lives in sin. May the flowers teach us to glorify God in our bodies and spirits which are his!

Could the innocent flower reflect upon its past life it could do so without a blush. Not so with us. Our thoughts, words, and actions have not been good and pure and holy. The past testifies against us. A coming judgment will testify against us also unless there is a great change. Yet the flower is frequently soiled. The pollutions of earth soil them, and they would soon get black enough were it not for God's thoughtfulness in sending rain to cleanse them, and sunshine to restore them to their wonted beauty.

We, too, get soiled by the pollutions of the world. Sin makes us black and filthy, but God has provided a cleansing fountain where we may wash and be clean. The virtue of "the precious blood of Christ" is beyond all comprehension. Have we availed ourselves of its wonderful properties? If not, it is high time we did, for soon it may be too late.

Flowers may be transplanted. Sometimes the gardener sees the plant not thriving well where he first placed it. The cold winds are too strong for it, and the frosts of winter too easily reach it. He knows a better place for it, so he removes it from its friends and puts it in a delightful part of the garden, where it may enjoy the sunshine, feed on the best soil, and be an ornament to the place.

So God deals with mankind. Every day He removes people from his earthly to his heavenly garden. He takes them to a blessed spot where no rude blasts can blow upon them, where no hard frosts can wither them, and where no blight can ever come upon them. There they dwell in eternal sunshine, they have fulness of joy and are at perfect rest. We have an ugly name for that glorious change, we call it "death."

> Jesus, Thou Prince of Life!
> Thy chosen cannot die;
> Like Thee, they conquer in the strife,
> To reign with Thee on high.

And now, in closing, I would call the attention of my readers to a flower which, if we possess, we need not fear life or death. And it is the fairest of all flowers. Never did such a lovely flower bloom on earth as "the Rose of Sharon." If you have Jesus, you have all that can be desired.

> If I've Jesus, "Jesus only,"
> I possess a cluster rare;
> He's the "Lily of the Valley,"
> And the "Rose of Sharon" fair.

LITTLE THINGS.

A good-bye kiss is a little thing,
With your hand on the door to go,
But it takes the venom out of the sting
Of a thoughtless word or a cruel fling
That you made an hour ago.

A kiss of greeting is sweet and rare,
After the toil of the day,
But it smooths the furrows out of the care,
And lines on the forehead you once called fair
In the years that have flown away.

'Tis a little thing to say, "You are kind,"
"I love you, my dear," each night,
But it sends a thrill through the heart, I find.
For love is tender, as love is blind,
As we climb life's rugged height.

We starve each other for love's caress,
We take, but do not give;
It seems so easy some soul to bless,
But we dole love grudgingly, less and less,
Till 'tis bitter and hard to live.

—Union Signal.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. Josiah Spiers, Shod Friars' Hall, Boston, Lincolnshire, July 8 to 22; Mr. Jas. S. Tyler, Southend-on-Sea, July 13 to 27; Mr. T. Lewes Sayer, St. Andrew's Hall, Upper Norwood, to July 1; Kilburn Hall, July 3; Mr. A. G. Dodderidge, Guildford Convention, July 2 and 3.

SEASIDE SERVICES, 1892.

The following are the arrangements for the Children's Services on the seashore during the month of August, so far as made:—Mr. E. Arrowsmith at Eastbourne; Mr. J. R. Naylor at Llandudno; Messrs. H. Hutchinson and W. H. Wilson at Bridlington; Mr. R. Callender, B.A., at Whitby; Mr. W. H. Roberts at Scarborough and Filey; Messrs. Josiah Spiers and R. Westall at Blackpool; Mr. H. C. Lees at Colwyn Bay; Messrs. H. Staines and S. R. Webb at Penmaenmawr and Llanfairfechan; Mr. T. Lewes Sayer at Rhyl; Mr. W. R. Moore at Ilfracombe; Rev. Martin J. Hall at Bournemouth; Rev. W. T. Storrs at Sandown; Mr. L. Carrott at Lowestoft; Mr. L. Tarkinson at Deal; Mr. A. G. Dodderidge at St. Leonard's; Messrs. J. S. Tyler and E. Hughes at Worthing; Messrs. S. J. Hewlett and G. Goodman at Herne Bay; Dr. F. Churchill at Southwold; Mr. H. Steward at Port Erin, I.M.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sun., July 3, Luke vii. 18-35; Mon., July 4, vii. 36-50; Tues., July 5, viii. 1-15; Wed., July 6, viii. 16-25; Thurs., July 7, viii. 26-40; Fri., July 8, viii., 41-56; Sat., July 9, ix. 1-11.

THE MILDMAY CONFERENCE.

(Continued from page 15.)

as "a man after his own heart," whom He called to service and work, who set us a bright example in many ways. You remember the life of King David, how solemnly judgment came down against him. Thus you find that even when judgment must come. We see him going the way the Lord has not commanded, doing what God has bidden him not do, and doing that which brings disgrace on the name of God; and because of this you see in his life a dark, dark cloud, while he suffers the saddest and sorest bereavement, and his kingdom is rent by civil war. Why? Were not many others doing wrong? Yes, many, and apparently prospering by it. Why so? What made the difference? Simply that David was a child of God, a servant of God, and it is a serious and solemn thing to be a child and servant of God. You see him again doing what God had told him not to do. You see him numbering the people without taking the atonement money before doing it. What is the result? That judgment comes on thousands of people for the sin of the king. So again Israel, through the sin of ungodly Ahab, suffered sorely. If it be true that judgment came on the nation for the sin of the King and Queen, surely it is awfully true that judgment comes now because of the sin of the Church. We have been lamenting the spirit of lawlessness spreading over the world, we may have seen in the recent visitation the judgment of God for this and that. But let us ask ourselves if the judgment was not for our sins as the people of God? May not his hand have been laid on this land and people, not so much for the sin of the world around us as for our sins as the Church of God, as God's people, who ought to be the salt of the earth? If God judges men for the world's sin as He judged Sodom and Gomorrah, and the men of Noah's day, and Jerusalem, so He judges his people in this day, who sin against Him and dishonour his name.

A BELIEVER SINS AGAINST GOD

Now another thought in connection with judgment is given in 1 Cor. iii. 13. We have looked at two historical thoughts in the past, and now let us look at one for the future. Remember there is coming a time when before all the world our lives, our works, our service, are going to be TESTED BY THE FIRE OF GOD.

We may be doing bright spirited work, manifold work; and we may be very much in earnest, throwing a great deal of interest and energy into it. We may get credit as earnest workers for God. Yet all the time it may be work that shall be burned up at that day. We may be clever and attractive, and gather around us large numbers to hear the Word, and do a great deal of work approved of and praised by men, and yet we may fail to be approved of God. Oh, brethren, the fire of God is going to try every man's work in that day.

Then, not only so, but our motives will be tried and tested. Whether we merely did it because we must, or because we loved our Master and loved to do his will. Whether we served in the spirit of a slave, because he will be beaten if he does not; or in that of a child, because he loves his father. Whether we did it simply because we could not help it, or because we ought to do it. Whether the spirit in which we did the work was that of self-sacrifice or not; whether the cross of Christ was the end or the blessed beginning of self-sacrifice in order to the salvation of the world. Then it will be seen whether we stopped work when it meant suffering and cross-bearing, or worked on in the spirit of self-sacrifice. It will be seen whether we did it in the power of human wisdom or human intellect, in the power of a fluent tongue, a good education, or an agreeable manner or ability from an earthly point of view, or did it in the power of the Holy Ghost Work that has been done in any other power will not stand the fire of God then. It will be seen then, and seen clearly, what was the aim in our work, whether it was to pass as good workers, or to ease our consciences by doing good to a certain amount, relieving and benefitting those suffering and sorrowing around us, or whether our one thought and aim was the will of God and the glory of God—whether we sought the praise of men or the glory of God in our work.

Let us take these simple thoughts from God's Word home to our souls, and alone in prayer, alone in our rooms, alone with God, turning to his Word and Spirit for teaching, let us search our hearts and see what wicked way is in us, unseen, unknown by men, even as Judas was unsuspected by the other disciples, while known all the time to God. Let us see to this in time, lest the judgment of God fall on our souls in some trouble, some blight on our work, lest we are made to feel we are hindrances instead of helps. Let us judge ourselves, and take it to Him. Take it to God, confess it, see that it is judged, destroyed, and see that our souls are washed clean and white from it, that we may go forth again gladly to serve the living God in the power of the Spirit.

DR. PIERSON.

The second address on Tuesday evening was by Dr. A. T. Pierson. It was phenomenal in length, and encyclopædic in its collation of Bible teaching on the topic of Divine judgment in relation to man. There is a great lack in these days, he said, of the presentation of this subject. It is unpopular and unfashionable, and many professed teachers of the Word of God yield to the clamour for other themes. In this there is the danger of downright unfaithfulness; for no man can understand God's grace who does not also understand his wrath. On the other hand, it is more dangerous to preach on the judgments of God with an unanointed tongue than it is to let the subject alone altogether. In dealing with it we need to observe careful definition and discrimination.

In speaking of the whole topic in outline I shall call attention (1) to the Judge, (2) to the Court, (3) to the Judgment, (4) to the Executive, and (5) to the Judged.

THE JUDGE.

The one great term in the Word of God in this connection is "the righteous Judge." What is a judge? He is one who performs two offices: those of discernment and decision. He is magisterial; but only as he is judicial. There are three departments of government—legislative, judicial, and executive; and these are absolutely independent of one another in the ordinary process of government. Jehovah is at once the God of Creation, of Providence, and of Redemption, and He combines in Himself the legislative, the judicial, and the executive functions.

There is one passage of Scripture which shows this, and only one, Isa. xxxiii. 22: "The Lord is our Judge; the Lord is our Law-giver; the Lord is our King." As Law-giver He needs and possesses three great requisites: first, the authority or the right to command; second, the wisdom or the power to make and give proper laws; third, the holiness which assures us of the moral and spiritual element, as wisdom does of what we may call the intellectual element. As King God as omnipotence, omnipresence, and eternity, and therefore He is fitted to execute his own laws As Judge, God has also three great necessary requisites: first, omniscience, that He may be able to discern even the motives of the evil-doer; second, integrity, or exact judgment; and third, vengeance. I pause here to utter a word of discrimination. Vengeance is not revenge. We must distinguish between the noun vengeance and the noun revenge, and between the verb to revenge and the verb to avenge. One refers to the judicial character of a magistrate, and the other to malignant and malicious retaliation, inflicting injury for the sake of inflicting it, and in return for injury received. We must be careful never to attribute, in that sense, revenge to God. His wrath is not at all vindictive, but only vindicative. Let us understand that wrath in God is not a blemish, but a perfection—just as much as his love. And there is no perfection of the Divine nature less perfect than another; that would be an anomaly and a contradiction.

Hence it is to be lamented that so many ministers of Christ and so many members of the Church have wrong conceptions of the wrath of God. Watts was wrong when he made the Psalm to read:—

> Whose anger is so slow to rise,
> So ready to abate.

Why, God's anger never rises and never abates; it is always at flood-mark. And that is a mark of infinite perfection. It does not go up and down like the passions of men; it is everlasting, and free from any passion at all. It is the eternal love of righteousness and the eternal detestation of unrighteousness.

THE COURT.

God has more than one great court in which he presides as Judge. There is, first, the Court of Nature. We are accustomed to speak of "natural laws," but I question the correctness of the terminology. There is no such thing as natural law, except as we understand by it the process of the Divine working. The attempt to erect a system of natural law without a lawgiver, as the atheist and the materialist do, is an absurdity. How could any law make or execute itself?

We observe that in the physical department of nature there are certain consequences that follow upon certain causes. Gluttony and intemperance have a debauching effect upon the animal system. Lust, that most terrible of all forms of sensuality, brings rottenness into both the moral and the physical nature.

In the moral department we notice, too, that greed electroplates a man. It changes him into a coin, so that he drops into his coffin with a kind of chink, and there is a metallic sound about his whole character. In this very Great Britain of ours there was a man who for twenty-five years went to his office early in the morning and stayed till noon. He returned in the afternoon and stayed till night, and all the time was spent in counting over and glutting his eyes with the sight of the golden sovereigns that he had accumulated. He not only worshipped the golden calf, but he was one himself. Prov. v. 22 tells us that "his own iniquities shall take the wicked himself, and he shall be holden with the cords of his sins." Let all the brethren in the ministry preach to their congregations on that text.

Secondly, there is the Court of History: the collective experience of mankind. Gen. ix. 6: "Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed." I question whether that is an injunction; it may be nothing more than a prophecy. But the fact remains in human history that any one who sheds man's blood, by man his blood is ordinarily shed. And I challenge you to find in the records of the human race a single instance of a nation that has not been overtaken at some period of its history with precisely the wrongs it has inflicted on other peoples. Time forbids me to expand; I can only throw out lines of thought for you to follow up.

There is also the Court of Conscience. There is something awful about it. We have in conscience a full assize—judge, jury, witness, and sheriff—within the solemn temple of the human soul. In some respects the most remarkable text in the Bible is Gen. xlii. 21: "They said one to another: We were verily guilty concerning our brother, in that we saw the anguish of his soul, when he besought us, and we would not hear; therefore is this distress come upon us." See how all the elements of hell are in that sentence. There is memory—"We saw the anguish of his soul"—the event had happened twenty years before; conscience—"We are verily guilty concerning our brother"; reason—"Therefore is this distress come upon us." While men fight the Bible doctrine of hell, they do not read the tablets written by nature itself within. (John viii. 9, Matt. xxvii. 3-5, and 1 John iii. 20, 21, were also read to show how the tribunal of conscience sits in judgment on a man's actions, and how he is preparing retribution for himself within the courts of his own being. Several illustrative incidents were related.)

Another Court is that of Public Opinion—a kind of resultant of the individual decisions of the human soul. We speak of common-sense, by which we mean that sentiment and judgment to which men come in common when they are calm and candid and withdrawn from the circumstances that warp a decision. If we are in doubt with regard to any Christian duty upon which the Word of God gives no clear revelation, nothing will better help us to decide than the common judgment of the most devoted, godly, and spiritual people—those who live most in the fellowship of God.

The ultimate Court is the Bar of God, from which there is no appeal. The passages cited in illustration were 1 Cor. iii. 4; Deut. i. 17; xxxii. 35-43; Psalms ix. 7, 8, 16.

Passing from this Dr. Pierson next spoke on the third division of his address,

THE JUDGMENT,

or judicial sentence. Judgment is a very prominent word; the Hebrew equivalent occurs over three hundred times in the Old Testament. In God's case the judgment is never tentative; it is a final fiat—Let it be so; and it is so. There are two sorts of judgments—the temporal and the eternal; and we should make a careful discrimination between them. "When thy judgments are abroad in the earth, the inhabitants of the world will learn righteousness" (Isa. xxvi. 9). Thi cannot refer to eternal judgment, because the object is that the inhabitants of the world should learn righteousness; it is distinctively in this present sphere.

These temporal judgments are not so much punitive; they are punitive, but they are more corrective than punitive, if men will only receive them as corrections. Note the absolute perfection of the judgment of God: "Judgment will I lay to the line, and righteousness to the plummet" (Isa. xxviii. 17). Think how awful that figure is. When you lay a corner-stone, can it be laid too absolutely level and plumb? All the building depends upon the angles of that corner-stone. When God lays the corner-stone of judgment, it is true to the line and the plummet. God is perfect in equity; his rewards and retributions are absolutely without a blot. We should never lose sight of the fact that the judgment of God is an occasion of unspeakable joy; it is a righting of the wrongs of the ages. There is an evident want of balance in this life; evil does not get its recompense, and righteousness does not get its reward. If we got no glimpse of the future, we should be in despair, like the author of the 73rd Psalm. But the deep wrongs of the ages are going to be righted. What saints do not get here they shall get there, and what the wicked do not get of retribution here they shall get there. That is the only way to show God as a perfect God.

Notice again that there is mercy in justice. We read of the goodness and severity of God; there is goodness in his severity, and severity in his goodness. When a Chief Justice was spoken to of showing mercy to a prisoner before him, he said, "Let me remember that there is mercy due to my country." I believe there is nothing doing more harm in the world, and even in the Church of Christ to-day, than unregenerate notions of benevolence, such as picture a God who is all mercy and no wrath. We sometimes hear of parents who say they love their children too well to punish them; no wonder the children grow up mischief-makers. There is a magnificent and awful grandeur in a holy jealousy and fury. Have you travelled in the Alps? You will come to a magnificent and beautiful valley with flowing streams and exuberant foliage. A few miles—it may be a few steps—further, and you have a great mountain with its awful shadows, and threatening to hurl its mass over you. You cannot have the sunny valley without the frowning mountain. So there are changes in the scenery when you study the Divine working. There is the lowly valley where the flowers of redemption grow, and the waters of grace curl their eddies; and there is also the great white throne, glorious indeed, but great and terrible in its shadows, because of the intense light that shines upon it. The same engine that beneficently draws the train along will be an instrument of wrath and destruction to anything that crosses its path. God moves on the track of perfect holiness, not only bestowing blessing but avenging wrong for the benefit of his universe. If the sinner throws himself across that track, the same law that moves Him to love will cause Him to punish the unrepenting sinner.

Did you ever think there was inconsistency between wrath and love? Remember that marvellous expression, "the wrath of the Lamb." The lamb is the gentlest of all four-footed beasts, the type of gentleness, amiability, and unresisting submission, and yet it is the wrath of the Lamb which is the most fearful of all.

Notice again the delay in execution. "Because sentence against an evil work is not executed speedily, the hearts of the sons of men are fully set in them to do evil." But note also the ultimate certainty of Divine judgment God's government is a splendid arch that spans eternity, and underneath it are the two great pillars of reward and righteousness. Thus we come to think of the inevitableness of the judgment. "How shall we escape the just judgment of God?" Thank God, we cannot escape. He would cease to be a perfect God to us if we could escape.

A few words must be said about

THE EXECUTIVE.

Here again we must discriminate between instruments and agents. We cannot use these words interchangeably. Agent implies a personal element which an instrument does not imply. It may be some blind force, and a blind force can never be a person. It is a wonderful thing that this great Judge of ours uses as his executive even the blind forces of nature. All nature is grandly represented in the Word of God as yielding absolute obedience to Almighty God. The winds are his messengers; the flames of fire are his ministers. The plagues of Egypt are an early illustration and declaration of the fact that behind all human calamity is the hand of God. Do not let us shrink from it. In Isa. liv. 16, we have the express declaration: "I have created the waster to destroy."

(Other passages were quoted, and illustrations given, to prove that God makes use of animate and inanimate nature as the instruments of his righteous judgments. Reference was made in this connection to the recent influenza scourge, and Dr. Pierson remarked that about thrice in a century there comes over even civilised nations some form of evil unknown to science, and in the presence of which even medical men are utterly at a loss. These things are God's sign that He has not surrendered the providential control of the world.)

God also uses men as his agents in judgment, individual and collective. Babylon was thus used. It does not imply that God approves of a nation because he uses it as a scourge. Angels, too, are used as God's executive; I believe they are the active agents of God to-day. Notice how frequently "the Angel of the Lord" is mentioned in the Word of God; and how the angelic hosts move in obedience to his word. If one angel in one night could slay 185,000 Assyrians, what do you think twelve legions of angels could have done if Christ had chosen to summon them to his side as he approached his crucifixion.

A word or two in conclusion about

THE JUDGED.

First we have fallen angels. I want you to notice one awful fact seldom brought to our attention. The angels fell without the offer of redemption. We have had put before us the promise of salvation in Christ on the simple ground of faith, and if we refuse Christ we sink into the same condemnation as demons and devils.

There is such a thing as the judgment of disciples. One thing I have never heard referred to except by myself, but it seems to me it is worthy of consideration. In 1 Corinthians ii. 31, 32 we read that, "If we would judge ourselves, we should not be judged. But when we are judged, we are chastened of the Lord, that we should not be condemned with the world." There is a thought here of great value to me—that it is a possible thing for you and me, as disciples, to escape certain judgments if we will sit in judgment on ourselves and take the occasion of them away. May there not be many sufferings that it is necessary God should send upon us because of our selfwill and of our hesitancy in laying ourselves and all we have at the feet of our dear Master? In many things, if we would judge ourselves, it would not be necessary for God to judge us.

But mark this distinction. The judgment of the Great Day is a judgment into which I, as a disciple, shall never come. It is one of the fundamental articles of my creed, that if one has believed unto salvation he shall never come into that judgment of the Great Day. There is a difference between the great white throne and the judgment seat of Christ. Before the latter we come to receive the rewards of labour done for Christ. Eternal life is never once represented as a reward; it is the gift of God. But if we enter in the harvest field we earn our wages from our Master. And when we go before the judgment seat of Christ, it is determined what we have done with our talents, our pounds, our faculties, our opportunities, and how far they have honoured Christ. Hence the ground of the security of a disciple lies here—that judgment has been pronounced on his sin in the person of Jesus Christ. "If one died for all, then all died." It would not be fair to judge us when we have already been judged in Christ. So that he who believes in Christ becomes identified with Christ; his judgment has been exacted, and there can be no such thing as his coming before the great white throne for judgment.

We began by saying, in the words of the Psalmist, "The Lord is our Judge; the Lord is our Lawgiver; the Lord is our King." I want you to notice that that verse which presents God in the threefold aspect of legislative, judicial, and executive action, ends with this marvellous expression: "He will save us." This infinite King combines within Himself all these functions. What hope has a sinner when omnipotence, omnipresence, omniscience, eternity, exact justice, perfect holiness, and infinite spirituality are all arrayed against him? He hides himself in Christ; takes refuge in the Rock of Ages. God takes the perfect obedience of his Son, and does not demand perfect obedience from the penitent believing sinner. The Judge no longer judges him when He sees that judgment has been pronounced and executed. So Judge, Lawgiver, King, unite to assure the salvation of the believing soul.

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

The Ways of God in Providence.

SIR S. A. BLACKWOOD.

In some preliminary remarks the Chairman alluded to the season of blessing which was enjoyed on the previous day. God gave fine weather, and a remarkable quietness of demeanour prevailed. Indeed, never, in all the nineteen conferences over which he had presided, was the silence of the great gathering so noteworthy. It is when God's people are reverent before Him that they are in an attitude of soul fitted to hear his words.

A matter relating to the Lord's business was also mentioned. Though Mildmay does not beg or advertise, it spends a great deal in connection with its many institutions; and the last balancing of accounts showed a need of about £1500. This affords an opportunity for such as may wish to make thankofferings for blessing received.

Sir Arthur called attention to many passages in the prophecy of Ezekiel by way of introducing the subject set down for meditation. The chapters about the living creatures moving on high, and the wheels within wheels, were written for our learning, and we need not be afraid to seek an understanding of them. He looked upon the symbols as illustrating or exhibiting the ways of God in providence.

The Lord's glory was manifested to the prophet in various places, and we frequently read that when he saw it he "fell upon his face." "Not in Jerusalem nor on this mountain;" not at Mildmay or in any other special place, does God manifest Himself. He may appear in the plain (Ezek. iii. 22) of service, or while we are sitting in retirement in our house (viii. 1). The book describes awful visions of Israel's idolatry, the apostasy compelling the departure of the glory of God.

The successive statements on this point show how gradually, how slowly, how reluctantly God removed his presence from his people. At last, as Jesus left Jerusalem, saying, "Your house is left unto you desolate," "the glory of the Lord went up from the midst of the city, and stood upon the mountain which is on the east side of the city" (xi. 23). The prophet then saw pass before him empires on their way to ruin, and scenes of judgment upon Israel. These are, however, all preparatory to the dealings of God with his people in grace. So in chapter xliii. 2 we read of the return of the glory of the God of Israel, the whole earth being illumined thereby. He fills the temple, and then the prophet says, "The man stood by me" (v. 6). That Man is with us to-day. The concluding lesson of the entire book is given in its final words, "The name of the city from that day shall be, The Lord is there."

REV. GEORGE WILSON, EDINBURGH.

We have come to meet the Lord, and meditate upon Him as the God of providence. What aspect does He present Himself to us under? Do we not come to find out his will and his working as displayed in the preserving, controlling, and guiding of all that He has created, and in overruling all his creation that has been perverted by sin? We know that He is the sleepless Keeper of his people, and we believe He is the unslumbering Ruler of the world.

We have not come to vindicate God's ways in providence. We have learned, in joy and sorrow, in poverty and competence, in health and sickness, in national calamity and national prosperity, to say, "The Lord doeth all things well!" Rather we have come to observe God's ways, and to try and adjust our lives to them.

The will and working of God are revealed to us in the Word. In providence we see the same will and the same energy at work in the world. We stand by the oneness of God. It is not one God in the Word, and another God in the world; it is not one God in judgment, and another God in providence; it is not one God in grace, and another God in judgment. There is but one God, and our Saviour represented the three-fold fulness of the Godhead when it was said of Him, "He is the same yesterday, to-day, and for ever." Through all time, over all space, and in all spheres, He is the same.

We can only know God as revealed in the Word by the Spirit that wrote that Word; and only those who are enlightened out of the Word by the Holy Spirit can see and understand the working of God in providence. We have not come to speculate, but to pray: "Show me thy ways, O Lord; teach me thy paths" (Psalm xxv. 4). Hope of light and leading springs from the answer to this prayer: "The secret of the Lord is with them that fear Him; and He will show them his covenant" (v. 14).

We must stand where Ezekiel stood when He had those visions of judgment, providence, and grace; we must stand before God under the open heaven. The Spirit of the Lord must enter into us and set us on our feet; we have to stand that we may see the Lord and the wonders of his working. What the prophet saw and recorded was by the Spirit; if we would rightly discern what he saw, and justly interpret the visions, then we must have the same Spirit.

I desire to offer one or two simple statements in the unfolding of this subject. Our starting-point is this: The ways of God in providence are all and always in righteousness. "The Lord is righteous in all his ways, and holy in all his works" (Ps. cxlv. 17). "He shall judge the world in righteousness" (ix. 8). At his very best, David, looking up into the face of God, said, "I will behold thy face in righteousness" (xvii. 15). And our Lord said, as stated in John xvii. 25, "O righteous Father, the world hath not known Thee." As we look out on the working of God in our own lives, in our parish, or in our country, we must recognise this, that

HIS WAYS ARE RIGHTEOUSNESS.

Now righteousness is never a fragment; mercy is, peace is, and so is love. But righteousness is the key of the Divine character and the completion of the human life. The righteousness of God is just the thing which the ingenuity of man and the subtlety of Satan cannot question. They have twisted the love of God and the mercy of God. As we heard last night, we need to be delivered from unregenerate conceptions of the Divine benevolence. If a church grasps the righteousness of God, and if the preacher grasps it, there will be no trifling with the love of God; love, wrath, mercy, everything is in righteousness. His throne is a habitation of righteousness; it is also a throne of grace. His throne is over England with her sin and shame, but that sin and shame are not sullying the righteousness of God. It is over the world, with its abodes of cruelty, its injustice, and its inhumanity of man to man; but these are not breaking the balances of the Divine nature. God's righteousness stands.

Recalling God's dealings with us, first as sinners and then as his children, we declare them all righteous. The world is ruined because it does not know God. The ways of God in providence are the outcome of the righteousness of Christ. Turn to Col. i. 14: "In whom (God's dear Son) we have redemption through his blood ...who is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of every creature...All things were created by Him, and for Him; and He is before all things, and by Him all things consist," or are held together; not through his ineffable Godhead, but by his Godhead as having redeemed man. The promised Seed of the woman alone has preserved the world from utter destruction since the day of the Fall. The forbearance of God and the probation of man rest on the redemption of the Lord Jesus Christ. God never could have been God, and have borne and forborne with man, and man never could have had the space of an hour's probation, if Jesus Christ had not laid a basis for the operation of eternal righteousness on behalf of God in all his ways, and so let us have time to turn unto Himself. The shedding of the blood of the Redeemer is the central point in God's universe in time and eternity. It has held everything together.

There stands a man laughing at the Atonement—sneering at it, and telling us that in the light of philosophy and benevolence it is a horrible thing. That at which he sneers is, however, the thing by which he has breath to speak; he would be swept away from the presence of God but that Christ has died. A man using the name of Christ will sometimes ask God's people from the pulpit to sneer at the Gospel of the blood of Christ. But if that blood had not been shed, he would not have been there; God could not have maintained the world in life without it. God's forbearance with sinners rests on the Cross of Christ. All the righteous rule of God in providence is the outcome of the righteousness of Christ

Again, the ways of God in providence, are in blessing to the faith of his people, and the response of God in judgment to the unbelief of the world. Read Romans i. 18: "The wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men,...because that when they knew God they glorified Him not as God, neither were thankful...Wherefore, God gave them up to uncleanness through the lusts of their own hearts," &c. There you have the history of the world through all the ages until Christ comes again. God chastens England. She is given over to her drunkenness, gambling, revelry—sins she is calling sweet. Through those sins God is chastening England, and so He will deal with us individually. With the rod in his hand, he tells his own that their place is not among the stars, but among the dust in penitence. This means blessing; for his children will not lose their standing, and He will never withdraw his presence.

THE RESPONSE OF GOD

Further, the ways of God in providence are a display of the power of the Holy Spirit. Go back in thought to the living creatures and the revolving wheels of Ezekiel. What are they? They are the organs and instruments of God the Holy Ghost. The wheels are full of eyes, showing the intelligence of the Divine Spirit. The creatures move like flashes of lightning; they are the swift angels of God's providence, and so the organs of God's mighty power. In Psalm civ. you will find all the changes, the ups and downs, the revolutions that are wrought in the world—though man may not see it—in mercy or judgment, are by the blessed Spirit of God. In nature and human nature alike God works by the power of his Spirit. If the Church only saw this more, I think the world would also. I can speak for my own country, and I know that in Scotland God's people have come to see that we are living in

THE DISPENSATION OF THE SPIRIT.

We are coming to realise, as, I believe, we have never realised since the Reformation, that there is a Holy Ghost—that in the power of the Holy Ghost we are cleansed and kept and endued for service.

Suffer one word of counsel in conclusion. What are we to do now that we have this glimpse of the ways of God in providence? We must adjust our lives to those ways. How that goes into my own heart as a message from God! How have we laboured so much and produced so little fruit? How are we children of God, banded together by the holiest and closest of bonds, tearing one another and backbiting one another, and living in conflict? Because we have not adjusted our life to the ways of God. May the blessed Spirit come to us with the message: Is there anything in my life, speech, deportment, in my life as mother or as father, in my life as a minister, or a tradesman, or as controlling great interests, that God cannot approve and use? Let our cry be, "Blessed Saviour, do thou take that thing away. I am willing to hand myself over, with all I have, to be cleansed and endued for thy using, and to take thee just as Thou art offered to me, with all thy mysterious ways and abounding graces, and live altogether for Thee."

When you have adjusted your life to God, stand by Him. The world is coming in the name of literature to claim God's Holy Book. Say with me: "I cannot spare a page of it. There is life and truth, and beauty in every part." Remember that the Lord will take care of his own. Do not be anxious about the result of controversy, but read the Book, and let it grow into your life. That is the "higher criticism" I like. Again, as to the Sabbath which some threaten to take away. I cannot spare an hour of it. The day is for the worship of God, and may prove a great blessing in the life of the believer. Let us stand by God in Christ. "Be not afraid: only believe." He is coming to put all things right.

Colonel Morton presented the requests for prayer and praise. Under the latter head thanks were rendered to God that Russia still remains open for the distribution of the New Testament among her large Jewish population, and for the great blessing which has attended this work in the past, resulting in known cases of conversion. Prayer was asked for an opening among the Jews in Arabia who have never heard the Gospel, and that suitable men may be selected to circulate the New Testament among them. Another request was that the ensuing elections in Ireland may be overruled so as to bring glory to God, and that the men returned to Parliament may be such as shall so legislate and administer the affairs of the country that the liberty now enjoyed for the circulation of the Word of God may not be invaded, but that, with peace and quiet established, the people may be emancipated from priestly domination.

Providence and Prophecy.

Rev. DR. H. GRATTAN GUINNESS.

Providence is to a large extent mysterious In studying the course of history, it is to be noted that in short periods of time the same events are repeated. The same methods of the Divine dealing are repeated: the same actions on the part of man, the same on the part of God. We are born, we grow, we fade, and we die; others are continually doing the same. There is a constant revolution of similar events in short periods.

In longer periods, it has been well remarked, the flow of the currents in opposite directions may be traced—diametrically opposite. In one age there is a revival, in another a decline. The thoughts of one age are abandoned; empires rise and fall. When, however, we take into account still larger periods, then we see the movement of a mighty river rolling onward and still onward in one definite and glorious direction.

Prophecy is the great key of the course of providence. In his dealings with individuals and communities, God puts his providence in a concrete form, and the story of this is to be found in history on the one hand and in prophecy on the other. History gives us the story of what God has done in the past, and prophecy gives us the story of what He is doing at present, and will do in the future.

We have been considering the subject: What do the living creatures of Ezekiel represent? No doubt they are the organs of the Spirit, as it has been stated. But cannot we get at something more definite? I suggest to you an old interpretation which commends itself to my own mind. We have in that vision, as well as in the vision in the Apocalypse, temple imagery. Within the temple there were living creatures, of a piece with the gold of the mercy-seat; there the cherubim seemed to gaze into the mysteries of redemption. In the four Gospels we have four aspects of the perfections of Christ. So the four-fold camp of Israel surrounding the Tabernacle was a type of the four living creatures, the standards of the camp being the lion, the ox, the man, and the eagle. This view is remarkably confirmed by the fact that the location of the tribes in the wilderness was the same as in the land. Moreover, in Psalm lxviii. representing the march of Israel in the wilderness, the sentence (v. 10), "Thy congregation hath dwelt therein," is in the Septuagint and other early versions given, "Thy living creatures." So it seems that we have in these wonderful creatures an embodiment in vision of what the Church is meant to be when it comes with the Lord in glory—when all the four-fold perfections of Jesus Christ in the four Gospels are realised in that complex united Church which is the fulness of Him who filleth all in all.

The mystery of providence is set forth in Scripture as a twofold one: there is an external and an internal portion. If I were asked for the two words which bear centrally on prophecy, I should day—

THRONE AND TEMPLE.

Prophecies may be thrown into two great groups—those relating to the Throne and those relating to the Temple. Two other words are: Zion and Moriah. On the former was the throne of David, on the latter the Temple. Two other central words are: King and Priest-Prophet. The "Throne" prophecies deal with the external course of history—of empire, from the overthrow of the throne of David twenty-five centuries ago. They tell of the setting up of the throne of Babylon, and the succeeding empires, and predict the establishment of the everlasting Kingdom of the Son of Man. The first vision in Daniel, that of the four empires, is of the "Throne" type, and is appropriately in the Gentile Chaldee language, not the Hebrew.

Looking more attentively you find even in Daniel another distinct class of prophecies, and these are written in Hebrew. They come later, and are concerned with the Temple, referring to its destruction and the advent and the cutting off of the Messiah. These are wholly different in character from the other prophecies, and describe the redeeming work of God. In the Apocalypse you will find the same order; in chapter x. there is a break for the first time. The course of nations has been dealt with, but now the Son of Man is seen in exaltation; while in chapters xi. and xii. there is further retrogression to the very dawn and beginning of Christian history. The story afterwards told is the story of the Church and its struggles—internal affairs—just as in the book of Daniel.

I find that there are "Throne" times and "Temple" times. The great period of seven times relates to the Throne—it is the period of Israel's subjection to Gentile rule. Turn then to the prophecy in the latter part of Daniel ix., for which the prophet is prepared by prayer; it is very different. The man of God is visited by the angel Gabriel, who afterwards announced the birth of John the Baptist and the advent of the Lord Jesus Christ. He tells the prophet that the Temple shall be rebuilt, and that from the rebuilding of the city and Temple seventy weeks shall extend to Messiah. Nebuchadnezzar got no information of this kind, but was told of the course of empire. The prophet was also told of the redeeming work the Messiah would accomplish in making reconciliation for iniquity. The times relating to the Temple and Messiah are altogether different from the others, and lie buried in the heart and core of that external course of time which relates to the succession of empires.

HAS HISTORY FALSIFIED PROPHECY?

No; it has verified it. Twenty-five centuries ago it was revealed to Nebuchadnezzar that there would be four great empires. Four there have been, and there will never be a fifth universal monarchy, until He come whose right it is to take the Kingdom. Ages ago, it was revealed to Daniel that the Messiah should come immediately before the destruction of Jerusalem and the Temple. If Jesus Christ was not the Messiah, then there never can be one, for the Temple was destroyed, and the city, eighteen hundred years ago. The prophecy foretells that Christ would be cut off to make an end of sin, and bring in everlasting righteousness. As sure as Christ came at the predicted time, and was cut off at the predicted time, so He accomplished the predicted work—that grand and glorious work which none but Himself could accomplish.

As regards the wonderful connection of this double series of providential events, there is a peculiar relation between the prophecies of the Throne and the Temple, the relation of environment to organism. There is also a relation of righteousness and suffering to reward, the relation of the cross to the crown. In the one series of prophecies we have the sufferings of Christ foretold, and dealt with, and realised historically, and in another the glories which follow, the crown and the kingdom.

"God moves in a mysterious way" having been sung, Rev. F. B. Meyer embodied in prayer the special petitions that had been sent in.

[We reserve our report of the remaining addresses and the afternoon gatherings for succeeding issues.]

Earthquake in Sumatra.

Rev. Dr. Schreiber, of the Missionshaus, Barmen, the Director of the Rhenish Missionary Society, has informed me that a missionary has just arrived direct from Sumatra, and reports that 3000 converts have been baptized during the last year.

Yesterday afternoon (Saturday, June 25) a telegram arrived at the Missionshaus, to the effect that an earthquake had destroyed six villages, and caused great destruction over a large tract of country in Sumatra. An old (so-called extinct) volcano is again in full activity. No more particulars are given, but the missionary, who has just arrived, judges from the telegram that the principal seat of the destruction is in the midst of their mission stations.

Dr. Schreiber hopes God has preserved the missionaries, but he says they may all have perished. Further information is anxiously awaited.—Yours, &c., R. B. Blanch.

Louisen-strasse 66, Elberfeld.

THE GOSPEL CARAVAN.—During the last fortnight this caravan has made a good record. St. Alban's, Harpenden, Luton, Clophill, Ampthill, and a number of the Bedfordshire villages have been visited, tracts distributed, and meetings held. On Bank Holiday an open-air meeting was held in the village of Elstow, and a series of similar meetings have been conducted at Bromham, Stevington, Turvey, Harrold, Bozeat, Oakley, Thurley, &c. At the latter place Mr. Chandler, the Baptist minister, showed great interest in the work that is being attempted. A temporary arrangement is being entered into to secure the regular services of an evangelist, and Mr. Newton will be glad to receive contributions for this purpose. His address is 85, Shaftesbury-road, Crouch-Hill, N. It is most desirable that means should be forthcoming to keep the wheels in motion, especially during the fine open weather of the summer months

The Stockwell Orphanage.

FOUNDER'S DAY.

The annual festival of the Stockwell Orphanage, held on Wednesday last week, was a memorable event. It celebrated the birthday of the founder, the late C. H. Spurgeon, who would then have been fifty-eight years of age. It marked also the 25th anniversary of the institution itself. Naturally, near the hearts of the thousands of visitors there was sorrow for the recent loss of him whom they had learned to know and to love, but it was a sorrow transfused by Christian faith and hope. All who entered the spacious quadrangle and looked around on the noble buildings where so many fatherless little ones had found a home could not but feel grateful that the Pastor of the Tabernacle had lived in this great city and left, among other precious heritages, so practical an illustration of Christian charity.

The weather was all that could be desired. The trees, shrubs, and grass within the grounds were delightfully fresh and flourishing. Flags, flowers, and lamps were tastefully arranged along the promenades. But nothing seemed to afford so much satisfaction as the fine, healthy appearance of the orphan children as they marched on the central platform. The Orphanage was open for inspection, and men and women of varied ranks in life passed through it for a considerable time in a continuous stream. No object attracted more attention than the Colchester pulpit (on view in the Girls' School), from which was preached the sermon that led to the conversion of Mr. Spurgeon.

At half-past three in the afternoon an open-air public meeting was held. It began by the children singing, with touching effect, the hymn beginning, "Oh, God, our help in ages past." Prayer was then offered by Rev. W. Stott, who fervently thanked the Giver of every good for the gift of him who founded the Orphanage, and earnestly implored Divine support and guidance for the bereaved family and for all those on whom would devolve the care of the several institutions he had been privileged to inaugurate.

Mr. W. Burdett Coutts, M.P., who presided, expressed his satisfaction in noticing the fact that Christian denominations were ready to sink minor differences, and present a common front to the enemy. At the present day, philanthropic enterprises had attained such dimensions as to constitute grandest jewels in the moral crown of England. He deprecated the tendency to make the State assume the functions which had been so well performed by individual voluntary effort. Such a transference of administration would weaken the character of benevolent institutions and dry up the streams of real charity at their source. When a great man died it was fitting that an institution established to preserve his memory should be conducted on the lines he would have probably laid down. Much more was it incumbent when a man died who had founded an institution to carry it on in the lines he did lay down. Such an institution they had in the Orphanage they were called upon to support that day. No more would the inspiring personality of its founder be visibly seen within its walls. But men like Charles Spurgeon never really die. He would continue to live in the enormous moral and spiritual force of his life and actions.

Rev. James A. Spurgeon spoke with emotion of the death of his beloved brother, and of the important responsibilities which it had entailed. In humble, prayerful trust, it had been resolved to maintain the work which had been so well begun. They had at that hour in the Orphanage five hundred children, and for the sake of the Master they would try to train them up for Him. In the annual report it would be seen that God dealt bountifully and graciously with them during the past twelve months. The health of the children had been very good. Including legacies, the total income was £14,662—a sum exceeding the revenue of any preceding year.

Rev. Dr. D. McEwan believed that he whose removal they all felt so acutely would be the last to wish that the day should be one of mourning. As the words of their new President showed, the dark cloud had a silver lining. They spoke of erecting a monument to Mr. Spurgeon. No poet, statesman, or warrior better deserved one, and he hoped it would be a worthy one. That Orphanage would, however, speak of his triumph over the grave. The hope of sustaining that institution was in the Christ which the founder preached—not a mere name, but a living reality.

Rev. E. A. Stuart considered that the Orphanage commended itself by its breadth, by its mode of selection, and by the very faces and voices of the children who were carefully trained to be good soldiers of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Mr. F. F. Belsey heartily acknowledged the services of the Orphanage to the county of Kent, to which he belonged, and to the Sunday-School Union, with which he was connected. As representing a family that had been guided into peace and built up in the Christian life by the printed sermons of Mr. Spurgeon, he might say that the good thus done to thousands of families that had never heard the living voice was incalculable. He suggested that the Sunday-School Union should have an Orphans' Day, when loving hearts might be appealed to on behalf of the fatherless children.

Mr. Thomas Spurgeon said so many of his father's friends were present that he had a difficulty in realising that this was a public meeting, and not a family gathering. After genially alluding to his absence for eight years in New Zealand, and the changes that had taken place in the interim, he conveyed to the trustees the message he had received for them that morning from his mother, "What can I say but God bless them, and I bid them God-speed?"

The Baroness Burdett-Coutts, by special request, delivered the brief address before the whole assembly which she had purposed making at the memorial tree-planting. "I shall plant the tree," she said, "as a tribute to the many virtues of Mr. Spurgeon, and in the assured hope that it will take root downward and extend leafy branches upwards to afford a grateful shade to many hapless orphans who will receive loving shelter in this Orphanage."

Immediately afterwards the memorial trees were planted in the lawn fronting the Wigner House, with the usual ceremonies by the Baroness, and by Rev. John Spurgeon, Mrs. J. A. Spurgeon, Mrs. Thomas Spurgeon, Mrs. George Williams, and Mrs. A. T. Pierson. Meanwhile, musical side-meetings were held in three of the large halls of the Orphanage by the choir of the Royal College for the Blind, by the Choir of Orphan Boys and Girls, and by the Orphan Choir and Bellringers.

THE EVENING MEETING

opened at half-past six o'clock. Mr. George Williams presided. He trusted that the mantle of Charles Haddon Spurgeon would fall on his Elisha, and upon all who should carry on such work as he did—the mantle of faith in God, of boldness to reprove sin, of courage to stand by inspired truth.

Rev. James A. Spurgeon having spoken briefly, Rev. John Wilson said that he now thought more of the departed pastor than ever he did in his lifetime. Rev. Charles Spurgeon would, he said, speak for the Orphanage as no one else could, for his sympathies for the orphans were enlarged since he had lost his own father. When affliction had reached its highest, relief was ever nighest. The Orphanage must go on as it had done. Mr. W. Willis, Q.C., made a stirring appeal, clustering his forcible words around a message from Mr. Spurgeon as he lay ill at Mentone on Nov. 28, 1891:—"Relieve my anxieties as to the institutions." Rev. W. R. Mowll, with his accustomed eloquence, applied to the circumstances the force of the expression, "Jehovah-Jireh, the Lord will provide." He was followed by Dr. A. Pierson, who was on the eve of taking ship for America. He said some people might imagine that it was an unmitigated calamity that one should die while yet old age was far distant. That was not so. The hero who died in his prime would be so preserved in human history. Inexpressibly sad it was to see a man compelled by advanced age and bodily incapacity to abandon the work he himself had originated. They were spared the spectacle of beholding Charles Haddon Spurgeon sinking into decrepitude. They would think of him as in the full possession of manhood's powers, and in the highest grandeur of mental achievement.

The Benediction closed the meeting. The lights in the variegated fairy lamps began to be apparent in the twilight as the visitors left the grounds, or tarried a little longer to witness the musical drill of the orphan children. "Founder's Day" at the Orphanage appeared in itself to sum up in one form or another nearly the entire proceedings of the whole of the Spurgeon Memorial week.

WORK AMONG DISCHARGED PRISONERS.

Mr. George Hatton has received many expressions of sympathy on his retirement from the superintendency of the St. Giles's Christian Mission; but probably the most striking testimony ever given to the extreme value of his work among discharged prisoners was given at a meeting held at the Mansion House on Thursday last. The speakers represented the magisterial bench, the governors and chaplains of prisons, and the police authorities. The testimony given showed that the efforts which have been made during the last fifteen years to reclaim criminals have been a national benefit, as well as a Christian gain, while grander opportunities could be taken advantage of if more ample funds were forthcoming. All seemed to feel that Mr. William Wheatley was the right man to succeed Mr. Hatton as chief of the work, although, if it could have been so, Mr. Wheatley himself would have preferred to go on working under his old superintendent.

In taking the chair, the Lord Mayor said that, as a City magistrate, he became familiar with the good work, and he did not know of a better. The object was to help the helpless, and none were more so than discharged prisoners. In the cases of youths charged with offences it had become quite a familiar saying in court, "This is a case for Mr. Wheatley." Inquiries were then made, and instead of a youth being sent to prison he had another chance, and turned out a useful member of society. The work paid well in the benefit which redounded to the nation at large. Increased aid and sympathy should be forthcoming, so that in the future the work might be carried on as in the past.

Mr. F. A. Bevan read a statement, from which it appeared that 6834 cases had been dealt with during 1891, while the number of convicts or "long term" men discharged to the care of the Mission was on the increase. It was to prevent boys who had committed a first offence from lapsing into crime that their efforts were more especially directed. Such boys needed to be saved from drunken and careless parents, from filthy and immoral homes, and from evil associates, who would, if possible, turn such subjects into confirmed criminals. The mission saved such at a most critical juncture. There had also been 1760 women and girls admitted into the Refuges and Homes during the year 1891. Mr. Bevan added, however, that though the work was very large, the funds in hand were very small, so that contributions were urgently needed. A touching letter from Mr. Hatton was read, expressing regret at resigning his post after thirty-two years of service.

Sir W. Charley (the Common Serjeant), Mr. Richard Loveland, J.P. (Deputy Chairman Quarter Sessions), Mr. H. J. Bushby, and Mr. Haden Corser all bore emphatic testimony to the value of the work in progress.

Mr. Wheatley made some appropriate references to his seventeen years' service, and then Dr. R. Anderson, Director of the Criminal Investigation Department, said that each year added to his appreciation of the work which the Mission carried on. He thought that the national importance of such a work ought to be understood. If crime was to be successfully dealt with, it was necessary to go to the root of the matter. Crime needed to be made both unremunerative and unpleasant; and professional criminals should be kept in prison. As regarded the decrease of crime, it had been reduced in London to a lower level than ever before; and no work so helped on the reformation as that of Mr. Wheatley. Criminals were capable of being reclaimed, and more might be done than had been done. They were greatly indebted to such a work, which was also helped by those employers of labour who took the men and boys into their employment.

An address was also given by Mr. Plaford, the Chaplain of Holloway Gaol, who said he did not know what he should do without Mr. Wheatley. He spoke of having held religious meetings at the Home in Leyton-road, which, to his great regret, was being severed from the Mission for want of funds.

All communications should be sent to Mr. W. Wheatley, St. Giles's Mission, Brook-street, Holborn, E.C.

Letters to the Editor.

FEMALE SLAVERY IN THE HIGHLANDS.

Sir,—As a servant of the Lord Jesus distributing Gaelic books through the thickly-populated islands of Lewis and Harris, I appeal to you to raise an interest among Christians towards the women of these islands. Their condition in the social scale is degraded through the long-established custom of being really the beasts of burden to their families. The peat, which alone is used for culinary and warming purposes, excavated at long distances from their dwellings and dried by what sun and air they obtain, is brought in baskets on the backs of the mothers and daughters of each family. Loads above one hundred pounds in weight are borne day by day by the mothers and daughters of the family, which their fathers and brothers would think it beneath them to touch with one of their fingers.

There are no roads to these bogs, and the country is rough in the extreme. To see starved old women of even seventy years of age, wives soon to be mothers, and young tender girls, loaded down and labouring under these heavy burdens, is a heart-breaking sight, and yet their husbands and fathers scout the very idea of helping them. Here, from the peatbog, it occupies four hours to bring one load, and the strain of this constant labour on the bodies and minds of the poor women is most hurtful to themselves and to their babies.

While railways and public roads are being arranged for and subsidised here just now, it is to my mind a far greater need that influence from outside these islands should be brought to bear upon this inhuman custom, and men made to see what a terrible slavery we have at our doors. I think roads from each township to the peat-bogs, on which ponies and donkeys could be used, would be a greater help to the people generally, than the great Carloway road across Lewis now being contracted for, there being a very good road already.

Besides the hideous sight, the moral degradation of such slavery is the great obstacle to my work here, and I appeal to the Christians of Britain to stir up a protest against it.—Yours by grace,

An Evangelist.

THE ACCUSER CAST OUT.

Dear Sir,—The same word translated "Advocate" in 1 John ii. 1 is translated "Comforter" in John xv. 26, and means also, as given in the margin (R.V.) "Helper."

"Who shall lay anything to the charge of God's elect? It is God that justifieth." This triumphant language of the Apostle certainly means that no charge whatever can be brought against God's elect; and as Scripture does not contradict itself we may be sure that no prophetic word (rightly understood) asserts the contrary.

As in his prayer in John xvii., so now, Christ ever lives to make intercession for us. He bears us on his heart, is our great High Priest in the presence of God for us, our living and glorious Head. We who believe do enter into rest, are accepted in the Beloved, complete in Him—life hid with Christ in God. The adversary has no admittance here; nor can he do anything against that risen and hidden life. "He that was begotten of God keepeth him, and that wicked one toucheth him not."

In Ephesians vi. 12 we are told that we have for adversaries "the principalities, the powers, the world rulers of this darkness, the spiritual hosts of wickedness in the heavenly places." We know, then, that Satan has access to the heavenlies; we know also that he can be transformed into an angel of light. But though he is the god of this world, and the prince of the power of the air, the spirit that now worketh in the children of disobedience, he has no dominion over those who are in Christ Jesus. Of him and his hosts the believer can say with Wesley:—

> I have a shield shall quell their rage,
> And drive the alien armies back;
> Portrayed it bears a bleeding Lamb,
> I dare believe in Jesu's name.

Satan, being in the heavenlies, worries and tries the child of God, who, though delivered from the power of darkness, is exposed to the subtle temptations and fiery darts of the evil one. In prayer and communion with his Father he finds this, and in his work for the Lord he is sometimes hindered, as Paul was. It is only by taking the whole armour of God that he can withstand and become victorious over him; only in the power of the Spirit of Christ can he be known when he comes to us as an angel of light. Our Lord, after his resurrection, said to his disciples, "All authority hath been given unto me in heaven and on earth," Matt. xxviii. 18 (R.V.) In Rev. xii. 10 (R.V.) we read, "And I heard a great voice in heaven, saying, Now is come the salvation, and the power, and the kingdom of our God, and the authority of his Christ: for the accuser of our brethren is cast down which accuseth them before our God day and night." In the margin "The authority is become his Christ's." Assuredly, this must have been at the ascension of the victorious Christ.

In our Father's house to which Christ ascended Satan can never come, and we know not how soon he will be cast down from the heavenlies, where he now harasses and hinders, to some extent, the saints on earth. There are heavenly places and heavenly places. The third heaven, to which Paul was taken, and the heaven where Christ sits at God's right hand, is far above all rule, and authority, and power, and dominion, and every name that is named; and He is the head of his body, the Church, every member of which is for ever free from condemnation, accusation, or judgment, accepted in the Beloved, her risen and glorified Head.

R. B. B.

PASTOR HUGH D. BROWN AND THE BAPTIST UNION.

My Dear Sir,—So many kind and influential friends have written urging me to remain in the Baptist Union, that I feel a few words are necessary to explain more fully my exact position re the Aked Controversy. The gracious, touching letter in last week's Freeman from that highly-honoured veteran, Rev. John Aldis, has deeply moved me, and were it possible I would gladly accede to his request, to that of Dr. Booth, the Editor of The Freeman, and others, and withdraw my resignation; and I will do so if Rev. C. F. Aked and the Pembroke Church be no longer recognised as connected with the Union.

Most gladly do I acknowledge that the vast majority of both pastors and churches connected with the Union are loyal to the old theology which our Puritan ancestors handed down to us through seas of blood. Why the Council should therefore allow the Union to be shattered on account of the vagaries of a few men I cannot conceive. Surely it is a pity to sacrifice H. E. Stone, Richard Cory and others for a quasi-Unitarian. I know this utterance may awaken a hornets' nest, but it is better, at all hazards, to name the Achan who is troubling Israel, than indulge in vague generalities which may hurt and grieve orthodox and godly men. Dear Sir, I know that there are many pastors of large churches nearly driven to the point of resignation, and sooner or later the cleavage must come. When the Rev. James Owen manfully said, "We interchange no pulpits with Unitarians," some laughed; but the end will be a dire and awful tragedy. I cannot bid Mr. Aked God-speed; his remarks concerning the Incarnation (alluded to by Dr. Glover); his criticism of the God of the old Theology, as one "whom I would not own for my slave," to say nothing of his ungentlemanly exposé of Mr. Charles Williams, his fierce attack on Mr. Meyer—these things forbid our working together.

In this liberty-loving land there is freedom, and rightly so, for Unitarians and Socinians, but such can never be recognised as Baptists by those who stand loyal to the great commission of our exalted Saviour. Mr. Cuff has written nobly, but more than "writing grace" is needful; what action does he purpose taking? I know many will misconstrue this protest, and view it as supreme bigotry and egotism to suggest the exclusion of Mr. Aked; yet, on no other terms can some of us return. Is there no sympathy, no feeling, for the grieved and honest consciences of the men and churches to whom Mr. Stone referred in his recent letter of resignation, and must all the pity be lavished on the heterodox and self-sufficient?

By God's grace, I will still love, honour and serve in every manner possible the many noble and Christ-like men who remain as leaders of the Baptist Union, but pardon me, esteemed brethren, if I cannot, except on these grounds, withdraw my resignation. He that doubteth is "condemned," "for whatsoever is not of faith is sin." I cannot, as an act of faith, do otherwise than heed God's beacon light which warns me of the sunken reefs of Unitarianism and apostasy.

"And this is love, that we walk after his commandments. This is the commandment, that as ye have heard from the beginning ye should walk in it. For many deceivers are entered into the world who confess not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh. This is a deceiver and an Anti-Christ. Look to yourselves, that we lose not those things which we have wrought, but that we receive a full reward. Whosoever transgresseth and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son. If there come any unto you and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house, neither bid him God-speed. For he that biddeth him God-speed is partaker of his evil deeds."

A few more hollow compromises and the Union goes to pieces; will no hand, for its sake—nay, for Christ's sake—hard down the helm?—Most affectionately and sincerely yours in the Gospel,

Hugh D. Brown.

Oakland, Rathgar, Dublin, June 24.

LOTTERIES IN MALTA.—The authorities on this island have recently brought in an "ordinance to repress the sale of foreign lottery tickets," one of the curses of so many continental countries. Local lotteries have already been prohibited as demoralising. With its Romish superstition, its images at the street corners, its priests and its charms, there is but little real religion in Malta, either among natives or foreigners, and never was a place more in need of the light of the Gospel

NOTES ON DAILY READINGS.

SUNDAY, JULY 3.—EXODUS XXV.

If the hearts of the Israelites were willing, how much more so should ours be, not to give of our substance only, but to yield ourselves, living and freewill gifts! May the Spirit of God make us willing. It should be remembered that God is ever eager to come to dwell with man. He is ever saying to us, Make Me a sanctuary, that I may dwell with and within you. And where there is an open door and a welcome, He will come in and abide, and He makes such an abiding-place a sanctuary. Twice in this chapter we meet with mention of the plan or pattern on which all the structure of the Tabernacle had to be made. We must build our life carefully on God's principles if we would have Him residing within us. We dare not expect the holy Tenant so long as the house is not ordered to His will. How full are these types of our blessed Lord, and of His mediatorial work! The ark of the covenant, with its lid, called the mercy-seat or propitiatory, on which the blood was annually sprinkled, is the evident embodiment of his Person and work. And the fact that the cherubim were made of one piece with the mercy-seat has seemed to many to teach that they represent and prefigure the Church, one with her Redeemer and Lord. At that table we must be ever standing to feed our strength. The Presence-bread is more needful to our spirits than ordinary food to our bodies. And as we partake of it God draws near to share our meal.

MONDAY, JULY 4.—EXODUS XXVI.

These curtains and boards and veils are full of interest, because they set forth in emblem the nature of our Blessed Lord, and we cannot but worship as we discern the lovely beauty and symmetry of the picture. In the fine-twined linen we see his spotless holiness, in the blue his heavenly origin, in the purple his imperial sway, in the scarlet his sufferings. The ten curtains were coupled together in two sets, five in each, and this has been thought by some to represent the two great aspects of his character, the one toward man, the other toward God; whilst the loops of blue and the taches of gold have been interpreted as setting forth the heavenly grace and Divine glory of the Saviour. The fact of these beautiful curtains being hidden by heavy coverings made of the skins of goats, rams, and badgers, indicates the hiddenness of our Lord's loveliness. He had no beauty outward to the gaze of men that they should desire Him. He was misunderstood and rejected by those who were born in the same home. The boards were made of the same kind of wood as the ark, and they were set in sockets made of silver, which had been taken as atonement money from the people (xxx. 13 and xxxviii. 25). The veils which hung over the entrances to the various portions of the Holy Place were of the same material and hue as those which composed the inner covering, and we gather that it is through Jesus alone that we can have liberty to enter into fellowship with God.

TUESDAY, JULY 5.—EXODUS XXVII.

Our attention is here turned to the brazen altar, long before any particular mention is made of the golden altar of incense, because the question of our relationship with God, through the blood of Jesus shed on Calvary, must precede our communion with Him. In each of these altars the wood was the same, but in the case of the altar which we are now considering, and which stood at the door of the tabernacle, the wood was encased in brass; that metal, signifying the severity of the fire that burnt on the altar, together with its position, is sufficient to indicate that the brazen altar stands for that cross on which our Lord met for ever the claims of Divine justice, and put away sin by the sacrifice of Himself. Brass is always significant of Divine righteousness. We need to be very clear in distinguishing between the two altars. With the first we have nothing to do; we look back on the finished atonement of Jesus with awe and love; it needs no addition or repetition by us; we have passed beyond it to minister before the veil, at the golden altar of incense, which is the emblem of prayerful intercession. "Beaten oil for the light" was a favourite expression with McCheyne, as he exhorted to care in preparation for all work for God. Only those who have lain under the heavy blows of the flail of suffering can yield the purest, softest light.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 6.—EXODUS XXVIII.

This chapter and the following are full of the priesthood of our Lord. Here we have the robes, in the next the sacrifices. The Ephod was connected with the shoulder-pieces and the breast-plate, and speaks of Christ's strength and love. The names of the tribes of Israel were engraven on the two precious stones that linked the various articles on the High Priest's shoulder, and remind us of the perpetual representation of our names and characters and circumstances through the mediation of our Lord in the inner sanctuary. And the breast-plate, full of precious stones, each of which bore a name, repeats the blessed message. Our individuality stands out clear and distinct before our God, known, loved, precious, glistening in heaven's own lustre. In the breastplate was the stone which dimmed with God's No, and grew bright with his Yes. Those who live in fellowship with Christ are not left in doubt as to his will for them. He gives to them the white stone of justification. The bluene s of the robe is emblematic of Christ's heavenly origin and character. When He comes to bless us there is always music from the golden bells, and the fragrance of the pomegranates of fruit-bearing, whilst the golden plate upon his forehead is evidently the emblem of a holiness which is without stain or flaw.

THURSDAY, JULY 7.—EXODUS XXIX.

Aaron and his sons typify Christ and his Church. But there were rites, such as the washing, which, however true they are in type to our needs, do not appertain to Him, because He was intrinsically and actually all that they were intended to typify and represent. How significant were these rites of experiences through which we must pass if we would rightly minister. We must be clean and holy, cleansed by blood and water and fire. For us there must be the sin-offering, typified in the bullock; for us, also, the burnt-offering, typified by the first ram; for us, also, the act of consecration, typified by the second. Do we realise that consecration involves the using of the senses, such as ear and eye, and of the activities of life, such as hand and foot for God? But even this is not all. It was not enough to put the blood on ear and hand and foot. The anointing oil must be applied also, as representing the Holy Ghost. Consecration is good, but it will fail of completeness and permanence unless it leads on to the sealing and indwelling of the Spirit of God. There is a waving which is possible to us all. We may present to God, bearing up before Him, the inwards of our intentions, the breast of our affection, the thigh of our strength, as well as all we have.

FRIDAY, JULY 8.—EXODUS XXX.

First the brazen altar, then the golden. We must not be content to linger with the first of these, as too many Christians are apt to do; we must press in to minister in the priest's office before the vail. There we may put our praises, and prayers, our gifts and ourselves; the sweet perfumes of Jesus Christ's merit will make them acceptable with God. The light of the candlestick illumined in the darkness was to be accompanied by the fragrance of the spice, from which we learn the necessity of combining sweetness with our light. But let us never forget that even the altar of incense with all its fragrance needs the touch of the precious blood. All our approaches to God must be through the Mediator. There was no difference made in the salvation of old and young, of the leaders and the led: from which the precious lesson may be deduced, that our redemption is achieved by the redemption of the Cross, irrespective of anything in ourselves. The laver was for the priests, who were required to wash before they ministered; it reminds us of Christ washing his disciples' feet; and bids us go to each new work of service with clean hands and a pure heart.

SATURDAY, JULY 9.—EXODUS XXXI.

When God gives the plan, and we seek to live on it, He makes Himself responsible for all that is needed in its execution. Moses might have wondered how the ideal plan which he had seen in the mount could be executed, but all misgivings fled when God said, I have called, I have filled, I have given, &c. So in the building of that greater fabric—the Church. God calls out his chosen servants, and gives them special qualifications. It is significant to find so close to the appointment for service that reiteration of the necessity of rest. Though the work was for God, yet nothing must be allowed to interfere with the rest of the soul in obedience to his law. We must rest in work, and work while we rest. There must be a perpetual equipoise and equilibrium of soul. The art of handing over our burdens to the great Burden-bearer, and of receiving from his fulness, must be always practised by us, that we may serve Him with acceptable worship.

International S. S. Lessons.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON, JULY 10.

THE DESCENT OF THE SPIRIT. Acts ii. 1-12.

GOLDEN TEXT: John xvi. 13.

THIS subject is at once the most important and the most neglected of all which the New Testament teaches. It inaugurated this present dispensation, and struck the keynote of all that was to follow. There were remarkable signs accompanying the event, the repetition of which need not be expected. But the spiritual power, and the numerous conversions resulting from it, ought to be witnessed still. Our view of its importance is determined by our view of the Holy Spirit. Where He is regarded as a mere unintelligent, impersonal influence, his coming will be lightly esteemed. But Christ spoke of Him as a living, intelligent, teaching, loving, and Divine Person (John xiv.—xvi.). His coming is therefore an act of condescension, hardly less than the incarnation at Bethlehem. Men, though imperfect, and even sinful, were from that time to be indwelt and possessed, and filled and used by God Himself. The event was predicted in the Old Testament—(see Ezek. xxxvi. 27, and Joel ii. 28)—and was regarded by Jesus as the great reward of his atoning death, and as necessary for carrying on his work. Learn to value it equally. He is as necessary to us for witness-bearing as the atonement is for our salvation.

The lesson teaches the time, the manner, the subjects, and the results of the descent of the Spirit.

The time (1).—Pentecost was one of the three important Jewish feasts. The word means fiftieth, and was given by the Greek-speaking Jews because it was celebrated on the fiftieth day after the wave sheaf was offered (Lev. xxiii. 16). It was called "the feast of weeks" (Deut. xvi. 9), and celebrated the ingathering of the harvest. The three great New Testament events were typified not only in their order, but in their exact date in Old Testament type:—the Crucifixion in the Passover; the Resurrection of Christ in the Wave-sheaf, called the first-fruits (Lev. xxiii. 10, 1 Cor. xv. 20); and the descent of the Spirit for the ingathering of the Church in the feast of Pentecost. The details connected with this feast (Lev. xxiii. 17-21) make the agreement with this event more wonderful. This was an appropriate time not only because of the type, but because of the vast numbers of people gathered together in Jerusalem (5). From all parts of the world Jews had come to keep the feast (9-11). These would all be witnesses of the power of the Spirit, and as many as received the testimony of Jesus and the resurrection would be witnesses for Him when they returned to their own country. God times his movements with infinite wisdom. The disciples were ready for the Spirit. They were in one place (see chap. i. 13); they had continued there waiting upon God for ten days, and were of one accord. In many particulars they were diverse; but they were united in their devotion to Jesus, their surrender to do his will, their conscious dependence upon Him, and their faith in the promise He had given. Upon the same condition the fulness of the Spirit is still received.

The Manner (2, 3).—Suddenly. This is one fulfilment of the prophecy (Mal. iii. 1), when God came to indwell his temples by the Holy Spirit (1 Cor. iii. 16). The sound of the rushing wind and the sight of the tongues of fire were the sensible signs which marked the commencement of this dispensation. These signs are variously explained. Wind is a frequent emblem of the Spirit. The action of the Spirit, as wind, is twofold—withering, as in Isa. xl. 6-8; or life-giving, as in Ezek. xxxvii. 9; John iii. 8. The more abundant life displayed by the disciples after Pentecost was accompanied by the destruction of all confidence in the flesh. Fire was also the emblem of the Divine presence. It has a work of purification (Mal. iii. 2); while it imparted new power for speaking the word (Isa. 6, 7; Jer. xxiii. 29). The external signs are not for us, but the realities may be ours.

The Subjects (4).—All—see chap. i. 13, 14. Not only the Apostles, for it is the privilege and the duty of all to be filled with the Spirit (Eph. v. 18). The company included Peter, the recently-restored backslider, Thomas, so slow to believe, the brethren of Jesus so lately converted, and the women who had ministered to Jesus during his earthly life—all equally needed and equally received the filling of the Spirit. None are too eminent, or too gifted, or too favoured to work without Him; and none are too weak or insignificant to receive Him.

The Results (4-12).—The disciples spake with other tongues (4, 6, 11). This has sometimes been regarded as a permanent gift to the early Church of preaching the Gospel in foreign languages. There is no proof that they possessed such a power. The effect produced upon the multitude of perfect bewilderment (see how many words are used to describe it, 6, 7, 12, 13) seems rather to indicate that the disciples were in a state of ecstasy, in which they declared in hymns of praise the works of God, and in languages understood by the people though not by themselves. It was a miraculous sign intended to arrest the multitude, and dispose them the more readily to hear the message of Peter. The incident justifies us in expecting that God will prepare men for hearing, as well as fit his servants for speaking his word.

Temperance Notes.

OVER 130 Church of England ministers have signed a strong declaration in favour of the direct popular veto.

A series of open-air temperance meetings have been held during the past two weeks in Manchester and Salford.

Nine South London branches of the B.W.T.A. united in the great demonstration held the other day in the Rink Hall, Blackheath.

Rev. J. S. Whitewright, a missionary from China, says.—"I have seen more drunken men in ten minutes in my fatherland than I saw in ten years in China."

The Vergmont Sanatorium, a Home for Inebriates, under the auspices of the Liverpool Ladies' Temperance Association, continues to be the centre of a very successful work.

The Stoke Newington branch of the B.W.T.A. continues to carry on a good work by means of the coffee-cart, which is stationed at Manor Gates, Finsbury-park, and which is well patronised by the public.

The Vassar College Y.W.C.T.U. holds fortnightly meetings, at which some phase of the work is studied. A recent visit from Mrs. Barnes was a great stimulus, adding seventeen members to their ranks.

At the Cardiff Police-court, on one day last week, eight persons were convicted of keeping shebeens, and fines varying from £10 to £25 were imposed. Nearly 300 similar convictions have been made since last September.

Sir Wilfrid Lawson, M.P., has issued a forceful address to the "Friends of Prohibition in the Constituencies" on the importance of using the vote in order to rid the land of what is the source of nine-tenths of its misery, squalor, and crime.

A correspondent writes:—"As we are now on the eve of a general election, should not the electors ask the different candidates to pledge themselves to vote for a measure to be brought into Parliament for abolishing the monopoly which the brewers now hold in having so many licences?"

The Rheims Chamber of Commerce has published a return of the quantities of champagne made and sold during the last forty-eight years, showing that while the sale in France itself has not quite doubled, the quantity exported abroad is not far from being five times what it was in 1844.

The Hawaiian Queen has lately testified her interest in the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Honolulu by paying the licence on their coffee-house, something over fifty dollars. Her total abstinence principles are proved by the banishment of all sorts of liquors from her table and her receptions.

The American Medical Temperance Association was founded last year, when sixty-one members were enrolled. The objects of the Association are to advance the practice of total abstinence in the medical profession, and through it among the general public, and to promote investigation as to the action of alcohol in health and disease.

In response to the appeal issued by Lady Henry Somerset, for a national movement in Temperance legislation, in view of the General Election, a great demonstration was held on the Brighton Level on Saturday, June 18, when resolutions were passed calling on all candidates for seats in Parliament to range themselves on the side of religion, morality, and true progress, by declaring in favour of the closing of public-houses during the whole of Sunday, and by the direct popular veto over all liquor licences. It is estimated that a thousand people were present. The resolutions were carried with an enormous majority.

Mr. Blaiklock arrived at Cape Town on Easter Monday, and commenced his campaign at Willowmore, a town seventy-two miles across country, which was reached after a journey of seven hours by rail and nineteen hours in an open post cart, nearly all the way in a drenching rain. The attendance at the mission was good and the results excellent. Mr. Blaiklock next visited Graff Reinet, where the mission resulted in sixty pledges. On May 9 he left for Murraysburg, and during his tour in Eastern and South Africa he expects to visit Durban, Maritzburg, Johannesburg, and Kimberley, taking Cape Town on his way home.

Rev. A. Parker, of Benares (L.M.S.), lately conceived the idea of bringing caste to bear on the side of temperance, and the idea has borne fruit. He managed to interest in his scheme a Mahunt, the official superior of a good many castes. The Mahunt has influenced the headmen of some of the castes with which he has to do. Caste meetings have been held, democratic in theory, but the decisive word is always spoken by the headman, and his vote carries his caste. Mr. Parker has attended more than one of these meetings, and been delighted by a total abstinence decision, a pledge on the part of the caste to drink no bhang or other intoxicant at any of their innumerable feasts. No member of the pledged castes durst disobey the decision. He would at once be "cast out." The pledge covers the whole of the members of the caste in and around Mirzapur, and is perpetually binding on men, women, and children. The idea seems capable of wide extension, and is a remarkable example of good coming out of evil

Personalia.

Dr. Harford Battersby has, we learn, safely reached Lokoja.

Rev. Wm. Haslam has removed from Highbury to 24, Calverley-park, Tunbridge Wells.

Rev. Thomas Little, of Redhill, is going to Madras for Tamil work in connection with the Wesleyan Missionary Society.

Rev. W. J. Dawson, of Southport, has, it is stated, accepted the call to Highbury Quadrant Congregational Church, London.

Rev. Eustace R. Conder, D.D., who has been staying at Bournemouth for his health, has had, we regret to hear, a serious relapse.

Dr. Pentecost visited Brighton last week and preached at the reopening of the Countess of Huntingdon's Church (Rev. J. B. Figgis).

Dr. Parker, who has now entered on the twenty-third year of his ministry in London, holds this day his thousandth Thursday noon service in the City Temple.

Dr. Morehouse, secretary of the American Baptist Home Mission Society for the past thirteen years, has just been obliged, by ill-health, to retire from his office.

Rev. W. Talbot Hindley, well known in Holloway as an earnest and devoted evangelical clergyman, has, we hear, been offered the important charge of St. John's Mead, Eastbourne.

Mrs. Kirton wishes to thank her many friends for their kind letters of sympathy and condolence on the occasion of her deep trouble through the death of her husband. Owing to the great number of letters received it is impossible to reply personally.

Mr. John Currie, a well-known evangelist in the States, has arrived at Glasgow (with his wife and child) to engage in evangelistic work. Glasgow is Mr. Currie's native place, and he is coming back for the first time since his conversion. He expects to spend a few months there and wherever else the Lord may open the way for him to work. He is a man full of the spirit and letter of the Word, and has a most quaint and attractive way of preaching the truth.

Canon Jackson, of Leeds, celebrated last week his eightieth birthday and his 46th anniversary in St. James's. The congregation was representative of various denominations, as this aged minister is widely beloved. In the course of a touching sermon the Canon related how he became connected with the church to which he has ministered for 46 years, told of the gradual deepening of his spiritual life, of his work amongst the dens and slums of Leeds during the cholera and fever outbreaks, and concluded by reminding his hearers that it was reliance upon, and faith in, the pure, unsullied Word of God which had made his ministry of St. James's a power for good.

Abbey-road Chapel, St. John's Wood.

SINCE the acceptance of the pastorate Rev. H. E. Stone has inaugurated the special sermons to young men monthly and to young women quarterly. Last Sunday was in every respect a busy day at Abbey-road, St. John's-wood. The midsummer morning broke fair and full of sunshine, and at 7 a.m. a large congregation wended their way to the church. The address given by the pastor was from "Jacob's early morning vow succeeding the night of vision." As the sunshine swept through the open window over the faces of so many young men and women, the preacher's words seemed to enter the breast, and many an eye was wet with tears as the memories of God's words of love given in visions of Himself to the fearing and trembling, came with freshened force, the murmured responses testifying to the power of the Word.

As every one of the three hundred tickets (to which number the breakfast is limited) had been sold long before, every seat was filled at 8.5 in the schoolroom. At 9.5 the Conference was held in the chapel, and the company, now largely augmented, listened to the able and helpful papers read by Mr. F. Redding and Mr. Walden upon the Christian use of wealth.

No alteration was made in the 11 a.m. service, the pastor continuing his expositions of Ezekiel, the chapter being the xxiv. In vigorous terms the danger of breaking down the Christian Sabbath was set forth.

At 3 p.m. the men's Bible-class, now forced by numbers to hold its meeting in the chapel, and the young women's class (whose meeting-place is also about to be enlarged) met, and at 6.30 came the "quarterly sermon to young women." The spacious chapel was again filled. The story of the decision of "Orpah and Ruth" was unfolded. The separation of these friends—the one returning to Moab, the other going on to Judea—formed the basis of the closing appeal for decision for Christ. The prayer-meeting which followed was no mere handful of people, for two-thirds of the entire congregation stayed. At the close the pastor asked those who desired to be prayed for and with to express their desire, and the felt presence of the Lord was manifested in the many who did so. Thus closed a day of happy toil, and yet not so, for a large open-air service was held in Maida-vale.

Evangelistic Notes.

Carlisle.—A cyclist evangelist band has been formed at Carlisle for village mission work, and much interest is being evinced in the services.

Braunton.—An evangelistic mission has been conducted at Braunton by Mr. Herbert Veasey. The services have been much appreciated, and it is believed that much blessing has been derived.

Mr. William Forbes began a Mission on Sunday last at Bridge of Allan in the Museum Hall. On Sunday next and foll owing days he will be preaching in Edinburgh at Merchiston United Presbyterian Church.

Mr. J. C. Rainey, of Paignton, has been visiting Cowley, Oxon, where he has had the joy of confirming the souls of last year's converts, as well as of leading others to the feet of Jesus. The tent is now removed to Dorchester, near Wallingford, and prayer is asked for a continuance of God's blessing in the work while there.

Rev. D. M. Cameron has for three weeks been evangelizing in Scotland. After eight days' interesting meetings in Helensburgh he went to Garscube Hall, Glasgow, for a few days' mission, then to the Orphan Bridge of Weir, and finally to Shettleston. Many tokens of God's power were manifested in the awakening of the careless and the conversion of sinners.

Mr. Charles Minor.—A correspondent writes respecting this evangelist, who was formerly a comedian:—"During the past four years he has been engaged in holding missions in Cornwall and Devon, where his preaching and solo singing have been blessed to hundreds of souls, as testified to by many ministers and workers." Mr. Minor is now open for short engagements at home or abroad. His address is 9, Alfred-place, The Hoe, Plymouth.

Mr. John Blackham, on his recent revisit to Ebenezer Chapel, Birmingham, found the people in a prayerful spirit, and the result appeared to be much blessing. We hear that this old-established church is full of life and vigour, having 250 church members, 1500 scholars, with an army of devoted teachers. The whole seems inspired with earnest devotion and full of spiritual life. Amongst such Mr. Blackham's labours seem to have been signally owned of God.

Mr. Charles Inglis has held a fortnight's special services at the Working Men's Mission, Collingwood-street, New Cut, with great acceptance and blessing. Backsliders have been restored, and many sinners have turned to God. We greatly rejoice at the work done, and many, we feel sure, will rejoice through eternity for his visit to the New Cut. We wish Mr. Inglis God-speed in his labour of love in winning souls into the kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ.—T. and J. YOUNG.

Mr. Richard Weaver closed on Friday a series of evangelistic meetings in Perth. The services held on the Sabbaths in the City Hall, and during the week in Knox's Free Church, were well attended. Many had happy recollections of the previous visit of Mr. Weaver, and were looking forward to his return, and their hearts were cheered to hear him once again preach the glorious Gospel. The Lord manifested his presence and power right through all the meetings, and many have been led to Jesus.

Obituary.

MR. STANHOPE, OF BOROUGH-ROAD MISSION.

We hear with regret of the death, a few days ago, of this devoted and faithful Ragged-School superintendent. He has been ill since December last, but up to the last his interest in the work was unabated. When his life was nearing its close, he became unconscious, but ever and anon the friends standing around his bed heard him in the midst of his delirium speaking of the school he loved so well; and just before he died he murmured, "Take me home! Take me home!"

Welcome Home to Rev. J. B. Figgis.

IN connection with the re-opening of the Countess of Huntingdon's Church, Brighton, there was a large gathering at a social meeting held last Friday evening, to welcome home Rev. J. B. Figgis. After tea Mr. G. D. Sawyer (hon. treasurer) gave an account of his expenditure of the renovation fund, and further details being supplied by Mr. Hilton, (hon. sec.) it was shown, that of the sum of £800 required, £733 10s. 9d. has been already subscribed. In a few suitable words Mr. Figgis thanked those present for the welcome accorded him, and testified to the very efficient manner in which the church renovation had been carried out during his absence. Passing on he gave an account of his recent travels in Italy, Greece, and Turkey. He referred also to the Christian efforts being made in these lands for the advancement of Christ's kingdom.

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

The C.M.S. has received a letter from Bishop Tucker, dated Frere Town, May 16, but it casts no light on recent events.

A special sermon to the persons employed at the Royal Agricultural Show, Warwick, has been preached by the Bishop of Worcester.

A building to be used as a mission church and day-school is to be erected shortly at Whitby, a district in the parish of Ellesmere Port.

Rev. G. B. Durrant, writing from Allahabad under date June 1, reports the death of Ram Chundra Bhose, who recently joined the C.M.S. from the American Methodist Mission.

"The efficient working of poor parishes" was discussed seriously by a conference of clergy, held at Knightsbridge the other day, the special point being how to find the needful funds.

Interesting open-air services are being held on Friday afternoons in the churchyard of St. Botolph, Aldersgate. The last two speakers have been Archdeacon Sinclair and the Bishop of Wakefield.

The Bishop of Manchester, distributing the other day the prizes gained by pupil teachers for religious knowledge, stated that the inspectors report a decline of religious knowledge amongst the boys and girls in the schools.

At the last monthly meeting of the C.M.S. Younger Clergy Union for London, Canon Edmonds, of Exeter, read a valuable paper on the Telugu Version of the Bible, displaying an intimate knowledge of its history and difficulties.

It is interesting to note that Rev. J. W. Willink, vicar of St. Helens, and the other Church clergy of the town, have been publicly entertaining Rev. B. J. Ward, Congregational minister, who is about to proceed to India as a missionary.

The Bishop of Colchester, in a letter to The Times, urges very strongly the overwhelming spiritual needs of "London over the border," or the Barking district, growing in population with remarkable speed, and wanting churches, mission-rooms, schools, &c.

The Record states that the preparations for the holding of the thirty-second Church Congress at Folkestone, under the presidency of the Archbishop of Canterbury, are being actively carried out. Several well-known speakers have already promised to address the Congress, and a special hall will be erected in the grounds of the Exhibition building capable of seating three thousand persons.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Greville-place Church, N.W., has just celebrated its thirty-third anniversary.

Mr. John Thomson, of New College, has entered on the pastorate of the Howard Chapel, Bedford.

Rev. J. Guinness Rogers has been re-elected Chairman of the Committee of the Congregational Union of England and Wales.

Special services of an interesting character have been held in Longham on the occasion of the jubilee of the church.

During Dr. Dale's absence, the pulpit at Carr's-lane is being supplied by Professor Massie, Drs. Goodrich, Simon, and Young.

A largely-attended meeting was lately held at Queen-street Chapel, Sheffield, to welcome Mr. W. Greaves Hall and family on their return from the West Indies.

At the last meeting of the Young Men's Missionary Band, held at the Mission House, Blomfield-street, farewell was said to Mr. Bartram, one of the warmest supporters of the movement.

A P.S.A. class has been formed in connection with Pudsey Church. At the opening service on Sunday, the pastor conducted, and an address was given by Professor Armitage.

Rev. Charles Wright has returned from Hastings much improved in health, and has resumed his work at Epping, where, on Sunday week, Mr. Hira Singh Puri, of India, preached the Sunday-school sermons.

The temporary iron church which is to serve for the congregation formerly worshipping at Whitefield Tabernacle was opened on Tuesday. On Sunday Professor Adeney and Rev. Alfred Rowland will occupy the pulpit.

Mr. Joseph Needham lately entertained 450 scholars and friends at a tea-meeting in Belper Sunday-school and the public hall in celebration of the time when he, a youth of fourteen, left Belper, fifty years ago, to reside in London.

At the annual meetings of the association of the Welsh churches of Cardigan, Pembroke, and Carmarthen, lately held at Lampeter, Rev. W. Hopkin Rees, of China, addressed a congregation of four thousand persons from a stage erected in a field, and his speech on behalf of the Forward Movement of the London Missionary Society created a profound impression. "Nothing so powerful and eloquent," writes a hearer, "has been heard since the days when Dr. Griffith John thrilled his fellow-countrymen years ago."

BAPTIST.

Rev. F. C. Spurr has just held special meetings at Gipsy-road, Norwood.

Rev. J. L. Bennett has resigned the charge he has held five years at New Southgate.

New Baptist chapels are about to be erected at Yalding and Hawkhurst.

Baptist Home Mission work in Kent and Sussex is reported to be very encouraging.

The foundation-stones of a new Baptist church in Turrett-green, Ipswich, were laid last week by the Mayor.

In eresting meetings were held at Harefield on Sunday week in celebration of the fifty-seventh anniversary of the chapel.

Mr. William Murray (of the Pastors' College) has accepted an invitation to the pastorate of Boundary-road Church, Walthamstow.

In connection with the Carlisle Chapel a goodly band of young people conduct open-air services every Sunday night in some of the poorest districts, and the Sunday-school has formed a class of lads and of young girls entirely from these districts, and is now about to open a mission-room.

Rev. A. Macdonald, of Chard, President of the Western Baptist Association, closed his Presidential address last week in the following terms:—The present time was a stirring one, and the ferment in men's minds was phenomenal. It was a matter for congratulation that there were so many who, like himself, were old-fashioned believers in the Bible, in spite of higher criticism, advanced thought, and new theology on the one hand, and the ready credence given by some to the charges made against them of heresy and Down-Gradism on the other.

An encouraging report was presented at the anniversary, just celebrated, of the Cann Hall-road Church, Leytonstone. Every month since the formation of the church, five years ago, new members have been received. The net increase last year was sixty-seven, the membership at the present time being 371. Upwards of 920 children and young people attend the Sunday-schools connected with the church and the associated mission in Chandos-road, Stratford. All the agencies are in harmonious operation, willing workers supporting the hands of the pastor, Rev. G. T. Ennals.

The Lancashire and Cheshire Association of Baptist Churches has carried by a large majority a resolution:—"That this Association, while steadfastly maintaining the independent right of every Church to order its own worship, hereby declares its conviction that it would be inconsistent in Baptists to invite Unitarians to conduct religious services among them, such a course being not only contrary to custom, but also calculated to produce the impression that, in their judgment, belief in the Deity of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ is of secondary, and not, as Baptists have always held, of primary importance in our ministry of the Gospel of our salvation."

A good plan has been adopted for the last year or two at Ferme-park Baptist Chapel, of which Rev. C. Brown is pastor—viz., the holding of a special Midsummer morning service. This was held last Sabbath in conjunction with Mount View Congregational Church in the same neighbourhood. A goodly number of both congregations met at Mr. Brown's chapel at 7.30 a.m., when Rev. Griffith Jones (the Mount View pastor) gave a useful address, which was followed by breakfast in the schoolroom, and another meeting. Such opportunities for the interchange of cordial relations between churches of different denominations are always to be welcomed, and the meetings of Sunday last will do much to further this end.

METHODIST.

The centenary of the Portland-road Chapel, Bristol, was observed last week.

Rev. Thomas Waugh has held most encouraging services in Faversham.

The annual gathering of mission bands, held at Brixton Hall last week, proved most interesting and stimulative.

Rev Peter Mackenzie has been preaching and lecturing with much interest in Boston, Alford, and Skegness.

The memorial-stones of a new Methodist New Connexion chapel were laid on Saturday at Ainsworth, near Bury.

The anniversary meeting of the Red Bank branch of the Central Hall Mission, Manchester, was held last week. The speakers were Rev. E. Davidson, 'Gipsy' Smith, Miss Elmeades, and Mr. W. Jones, the missioner in charge.

Alderman and Mrs. W. H. Stephenson, of Newcastle, have promised to meet the entire expense of building a chapel at New Benwell, estimated at £2,500, on a site situated in the very midst of a dense population.

Dr. Duff, Principal of Airedale College, Bradford, preached the chapel anniversary sermons at the United Methodist Free Church, Market-street, Wakefield, on Sunday week, and had good congregations at both services.

Rev. W. G. Heritage, formerly pastor of the United Methodist Free Church at Wigan, sailed a short time since on a voyage to the Philippine Islands for the benefit of his health. News has reached this country that the ship in which he sailed has been wrecked, but the crew and Mr. Heritage have been saved and taken to Batavia.

The Wesleyan College at Didsbury last week celebrated its jubilee. The event is one of far-reaching interest, because during the past half-century more than a thousand students have passed through the institution, and a large proportion of them are now engaged in ministerial work in different parts of the United Kingdom and a few in foreign lands.

PRESBYTERIAN.

The Synod of the Presbyterian Church in England has enjoined a "self-denial week" on behalf of the China Mission.

At the anniversary services at Bristol it appeared that the work of the Church is making most encouraging progress.

United open-air services have been held on the past Sundays in Hyde-park, Regent's-park, and on Sunday last in Victoria-park.

Rev. J. More, of Cheltenham, preached last week, at Aberdare, in connection with the anniversary. A deep interest seemed to be awakened.

Professor Dougherty, of Magee College, has been visiting his old congregation in Nottingham, where his expositions have again been greatly enjoyed.

Services of a most interesting and encouraging character have been held at Bootle in connection with the semi-jubilee of the pastor, Rev. T. H. Collie.

There are at present five vacant Presbyterian charges in London in connection with the North Presbytery—Regent-square, Marylebone, Willesden, Haverstock-hill, and Millwall.

The Assembly of the American Presbyterian Church proposes to establish an order of deaconesses—"godly women for Christian service in congregations, hospitals, and the homes of the sick and poor."

A committee appointed by the Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of Victoria with the twofold object (1) of taking cognisance of any steps which might be made in various sections of the Presbyterian Church throughout the world towards revision of the Church's creed; and (2) of corresponding with other churches in regard to it, and in regard to a concensus creed for the common work of the churches, especially on the mission field—has reported against any revision of the creed.

SALVATION ARMY.

General Booth's tour in Sweden seems to have awakened great interest. He reached Newcastle on Monday.

The Salvation Army at Mexborough has decided to erect a new barracks to accommodate six hundred persons at a cost of £1100.

It will be observed that the Bill promoted by the Salvation Army for the repeal of the procession clause in the Eastbourne Act, has now passed both Houses of Parliament.

A new Salvation Army "citadel," which has been erected at Bolton, was opened on Monday week by Mr. W. Bramwell Booth. The large hall of the new building provides accommodation for 1500, and the estimated cost is £4500, of which the local corps has undertaken to raise £1000.

Enthusiastic special services in connection with the Salvation Army were held on Sunday and Monday week in the Royal Theatre, Wakefield, when large audiences attended to hear addresses on the progress of the "Darkest England" scheme during the past year by leading officers of the Army.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

William W. Davidson, of Brookfield, Ireland, has got the authority of his Monthly Meeting to visit Leinster and Munster.

Fifteen Friends are candidates for seats in the new Parliament. Several of them have had seats before. There may be others we have not heard of.

This week a tent mission is being held at Almeley, Herefordshire, where the work of Friends seems hopefully spreading, and doing good. William Hobson, London, is rendering help in conjunction with other Friends.

Isaac Sharp—who enters his eighty-seventh year next week—is laid up with overwork at his daughter's house in California, but hopes soon to resume his arduous labours, and expects to be enabled to finish the great tour that lay upon his heart.

An enthusiastic Jubilee of Salford School, Oxfordshire, has just been celebrated, Alderman William White, J.P., of Birmingham, and Richard Littleboy, of Buckinghamshire, being present on the occasion. A new gymnasium and laboratory are in prospect, and a tree was planted to commemorate the event. Notwithstanding a favoured past, more blessing is hoped for in the future.

Last week's Friend, under the heading 'Among our Schools,' gives cheering intelligence of gatherings and outings indicative of the growing place the adult school movement has acquired among working men and women, and the same number gives information of the opening of a weekly mission meeting in Cheltenham.

FALLEN ASLEEP.

At Farningham, on 19th inst., Mr. J. H. Gregory, superintendent of the Homes for Little Boys.—At Southport, Mr. E. Greenhalgh, aged eighty-three, for many years an ardent Christian worker in Bolton.—At Penrith, on 12th inst., suddenly, Mr. T. Thornborrow, beloved as a devoted helper.—At Crewe, on 20th inst., aged forty-six, Rev. R. P. Cook, pastor of the Baptist Church.—At Saffron Walden, aged seventy-six, Rev. F. Pollard, for many years an earnest pastor.—At Brentwood, Mr. D. Rust, an active worker.—At Ash Croft, Eccleshill, on 22nd inst., Mr. W. Smith, aged sixty-nine, a generous giver to the Lord's work.—At Cotham, Bristol, on 19th inst., Mrs. Thomas, widow of the late Rev. D. Thomas, and herself a helper of many.—At Boundary-road, St. John's-wood, on 17th inst., Mr. A. S. Draper, aged sixty-three, for many years a faithful worker.—At the Poplars, Lincoln, on 19th inst., Mrs. Moss, a godly Christian worker.—At Barnsley, Alderman E. Wood, a liberal giver to Christian work.—At Dublin, Rev. Jno. M'Keown, Presbyterian minister, of Kilmore, co. Waterford.—Rev. Alex. M'Pherson, at the age of eighty-five, one of the oldest ministers of the Free Church of Scotland.

Notices.

Rev. C. F. Jones, Baildon, Shipley, Yorks, would most gratefully receive any old postage-stamps to be sold for C.M.S. Not 1d. English.

Communications Received with Thanks.—G.M.K. M.J.A. R.C. M.A.P. F.H.N. J.W.C. A.T. C.C. J.M.L. F.J.T. A.P. L.B. W.R. J.T.T. E.H.T. M.E.H. J.N.K. R.C. J.S. A.F. J.B. W.F.E. J.M.G. W.T.H. E.P.M. W.W.D. G.H. R.E. J.B.F. H.E.G. A.S. W.H. W.T. S.L.T. Mrs.S.M. J.P. D.H. C.M.F. M.H.S. H.G H.M. W.H.S. L.D.W. J.H.D. J.E.L. N.A.P. R.C.M. C.K. C.A.P. J.B. J.H.B. E E.H. R.S.H. M.E.S. J.G.M. M.H. A.E. J.M. W.D. J.K. J.T. A.H.M. J.R.F. M.A.H. G.S.A. P.E. M.S.B. E.J.G. J.B. W.T.S. C.F.J. J.F.T.H. J.D. S.E.H.

Applicants for Tracts.—E. Burrows (for soldiers), Acting Wesleyan Chaplain, Umballa, India; H. Bridger, Whittington-heath Barracks, Lichfield; E. Smith, 5, Union-street, Tipton; J. Laming, 12, New-place, Hermondsey, S.E.; Miss Vincent, 40, Edde-road, Deptford, S.E.; H. O to, 13, Willow Bridge-street, Leicester; C. Norcliffe, 2, Villa de Belbos, Lincoln-road, Millfield, near Peterborough; G. Biddick, Sackville-street, Knaresthorpe, near Minfield, Yorks; Mr. J. Bell, Winterbourne, Sutton-grove, Surrey; Chas. T. Grimshaw, Lilac Villa, 19, Gipsy-road, West Norwood; A. M. Scantlebury, 39, Harvey-street, Cadoxton, near Cardiff; Miss Norah A. Pigott, 27, Forbes-road, Maradana, Colombo, Ceylon; J. T. Stevenson, 484, Edgware-road, Maida-vale, W.; G. Brown, Hope Cottage, Hale End-lane, Walthamstow; A. F. Jones, 10, Albert-road, King's-heath, Birmingham; Mrs. Hardy, 12, Broughton-street, Queen's-road, Battersea; R. Phillips, 89, Conway-street, Liverpool; James Jardine, 48, Lowther-street, Birkenhead; E. T. Taylor, Park Dairy, The Park, Ealing; T. Richards, Cotsall House, Congreaves-road, near Brierly-hill; Robert Campbell (illustrated tracts), Miss Papillon's, Soldiers' Institute, Sandgate; Mrs. J. Kindau, 220, Lichfield-road, Aston; S. H. Goodchild, 191, Wandsworth-road, S.W.; J. Jones, 16 Portland-cottages, Heman's-street, Wandsworth-road, S.W.; 3081 Private W Jeffcott, D Squadron, 7th Hussars, Mhow, India; C. Dennison, 4, Billington road, New-cross-gate, S.E.

[As it is found that infidels and others send tracts to the persons whose names are inserted here, it is most desirable that all books and papers should be carefully read before being given way.]

Seamen in Plymouth.—To erect a bright, attractive institute containing reading, writing, and recreation rooms with seamen's church on top for the large number of seamen who belong to and visit the port, £4000 will be required. Donations will be thankfully received by the chaplain, Rev. H. M. Petty, B.A., 10, Saltram-place, Plymouth.

"THE WORLD'S PROVED REMEDY FOR ALL CHEST DISEASES."

COUGH, ASTHMA,

CHRONIC BRONCHITIS,

INFLUENZA.

Rev. F. E. HEAPE, of DERBY, in a recent letter, says:—"Your Medicine always puts my lungs right, and drove out the terrible INFLUENZA last May."

This Medicine has been prepared for 65 years.

CONGREVE'S

BALSAMIC ELIXIR,

In Bottles 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., 11s., and 22s. may be had of all Chemists and Medicine Vendors.

CONDY'S FLUID

SED IN THE ROYAL PALACES AND IN ALL HOSPITALS.

CONDY'S REMEDIAL FLUID.

SORE THROATS, BURNS, WOUNDS — Slight cases cured in a few hours; severe cases speedily checked.

TENDER FEET, PERSPIRING FEET — Instantly relieved by using a little "Condy" in the foot bath.

CAUTION.—INSIST ON HAVING 'CONDY'S.'

Three Large Books, containing Remedial Disinfecting and Veterinary Directions, sent Post Free on application to

CONDY'S FLUID WORKS,
41, TURNMILL STREET, E.C.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER.

Awarded Grand Diploma of Honour, Edinburgh, 1890; Two Prize Medals, Paris, 1889.

IRISH CAMBRIC

Children's		1 3 per doz.
Ladies'		2 2 "
Gentlemen's		3 3 "
HEMSTITCHED:—
Ladies'		2 11½ "
Gentlemen's		3 11 "

EMBROIDERED HANDKERCHIEFS in all the latest styles, 1/- to 20/-

Samples and Illustrated Price Lists Post Free.

POCKET HANDKERCHIEFS.

"The Irish Cambrics of Messrs. Robinson & Cleaver have a world wide fame."—Queen

By Appointments to the Queen and Empress Frederick of Germany.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER, BELFAST.

EUCALYPTUS AND PINE JUJUBES
C. R. LAWRENCE ORIGINATOR.

LAWRENCE'S EUCALYPTUS AND PINE JUJUBES are the best for all Throat and Lung affections—Bronchial Asthma, Bronchitis, Incipient Consumption, Catarrh, Loss of Voice, &c., quickly yield to their Antiseptic and Curative influence.

The MEDICAL PROFESSION have recognised their value in allaying troublesome Cough, and in advanced stages of Consumption prescribe them as a useful adjunct to other treatment. Letters and recommendations from all parts prove their worth.

Insist on having the ORIGINAL, as inferior Jujubes and Lozenges are being constantly offered.

Price 1s. 1½d. and 2s. per box (post free 1s. 3d. or 2s. 3d.). Of all Chemists, or from LAWRENCE & CO., 20, High-street, Rhyl.
London Agents—Barclay, Edwards, Newbery, Sanger.

PEPSONYMIN TONIC

THE GREAT CURE FOR

INDIGESTION

There is no known remedy to equal it in cases of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, &c.

Sufferers from Indigestion should read our Pamphlet, containing valuable advice by Dr. Andrew Wilson. Post Free on application. Pepsonymin Tonic will be forwarded Post Free by the Proprietors on receipt of 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., or 4s. 6d., or may be ordered through the local chemist.

FRANCIS SPITE & CO., LIMITED, GLASGOW.
The Trade supplied either direct or through the Wholesale Houses. C27

Do I Need Them?

If you have impurity of the Blood Ulcers, Scrofulous Swellings, Scurvy or Sores, Yes! Frazer's Sulphur Tablets enter the blood as a purifying antiseptic and disinfectant air, and therefore neutralise the blood poisons causing these diseases, and expel the germs out of the system.

If you have Eczema, Erysipelas, or other eruption or Skin Disease, Yes! Frazer's Sulphur Tablets have a specific curative effect upon the skin, as they disinfect and free the inner pores and the tiny waste channels leading from the blood. They also control the irritating chemical principle discharged from disordered blood that causes Eczema and other painful eruptive complaints.

If you desire a good Complexion, Yes! Frazer's Sulphur Tablets use tends to the feeding, nourishment and good condition of the skin, which may be said to be the secret of a good complexion.

Children Like Them.

For the ailments of children Frazer's Sulphur Tablets are especially noteworthy, for they are pleasant alike to the eye and taste, and correct costiveness, allay feverishness, disperse inflammatory and eruptive matters, and purify the blood. For Fevers, Eczema, Erysipelas, Chicken Pox, Nettle-rash, Sores, Ulcers and Eruptions, and Constipation, they will be found of the greatest service.

Frazer's Sulphur Tablets are put up in packets, price 1s. 1½d. (post free, 1s. 3d.), and are for sale everywhere. Sole Proprietors, Frazer's Tablets, Limited, 11, Ludgate-square, London, E.C.

Test Them Free of Charge.

Samples of Frazer's Sulphur Tablets will be sent gratis and post free on application. Name The Christian.

SCRIPTURE TEXTS

For Walls of Mission Rooms, Hospitals, &c

A List of these Large Type Texts, printed in blue ink, size 31 inches by 20 (70 different Texts, 3d. each), will be sent on application to the Publishers.
London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

LARGEST SALE IN THE WORLD.

A WONDERFUL MEDICINE for all Bilious and Nervous Disorders, such as Sick Headache, Constipation, Weak Stomach, Impaired Digestion, Disordered Liver, and Irregularities.

PREPARED ONLY BY THE PROPRIETOR, THOMAS BEECHAM, ST. HELENS, LANCASHIRE.

Sold by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Dealers everywhere, in Boxes 9½d., 1s. 1½d., and 2s. 9d. each. Full directions with each box.

BEECHAM'S TOOTH PASTE.

Will recommend itself; it is efficacious, economical, cleanses the teeth, perfumes the breath, removes tartar, and prevents decay. It is composed of the best-known ingredients for neutralising the acids of the mouth and preventing all deleterious deposits upon the teeth.

BEECHAM'S TOOTH PASTE is put up in collapsible tubes, perfectly air-tight, and so adjustable that no waste need occur; the packages are pretty for the toilet table, and most convenient for the travelling bag. They are sold everywhere for ONE SHILLING each.

THE DEAF HEAR

BY USING WALES' PATENT SOUND DISCS

Which are the same to the ears as glasses are to the eyes. Positively Invisible. Worn months without removal. Book of particulars, 2stamps.—THE H. A. WALES CO., 62 & 63, New Bond St., London, W.

BUMSTED'S TABLE SALT.

SELLING JEWELLERY, SILVER PLATE, COINS, &c.

For CHARITABLE PURPOSES.

SPINK & SON, Goldsmiths and Silversmiths, 17 & 18, PICCADILLY, W., and at 2, GRACECHURCH-STREET, CORNHILL, E.C., respectfully announce that they VALUE or PURCHASE for CASH valuable Diamond and other Jewellery, Silver Plate, Coins, Medals, &c. [ESTB. 1772.

MAZAWATTEE

Recalls the Delicious TEA of Thirty Years ago.

FROM PASTOR CHINIQUY.

Pastor Chiniquy, writing to Pastor Frank White, in acknowledgment of a remittance, sent through him, of subscriptions from readers of The Christian, says:—

"Please accept for yourself, and give to my brothers and sisters who read The Christian, the renewed assurance of my gratitude for the generous and timely help of £38 12s. 1d. sent for myself and my missions among my Roman Catholic countrymen. I ask you and all my Gospel friends in Great Britain to help me to thank the 'good Master' for the new fiery trial through which He has made me pass. For He has more than ever shown me his mercy by coming to my help in the hour of need, through you and the angels of his mercy who are extending to me their friendly hand in these days of trial....

"Thanks be to the infinite mercy of our Heavenly Father, I have been restored to health in a marvellous way, and, in spite of my eighty-three years of age, I have been enabled, these last six weeks, to continue my evangelistic labours with more success than ever. With the Psalmist I can say, 'Bless the Lord, O my soul, and all that is within me, bless his holy name.' My youth is renewed like the eagle's."

C. Chiniquy.

Ste. Anne, Kankaka County, Illinois.

STILLNESS.

A correspondent has set this poem to music, and will be much obliged for information as to its authorship. In taking the liberty of publishing it, we hope we are not contravening the wishes of the author.

Thy lesson art thou learning, O tried and weary soul?
His way art thou discerning, who works to make thee whole?
In the haven of submission art thou satisfied and still?
Art thou clinging to the Father 'neath the shadow of his will?
Now while his arms enfold thee, think well he loveth best;
Be still, and He will mould thee for his heritage of rest.

The vessel must be shapen for the joys of Paradise,
The soul must have her training for the service of the skies.
And if the great Refiner, in furnaces of pain,
Would do his work more truly, count all his dealings gain.
For He himself hath told thee of tribulation here:
Be still, and let Him mould thee for the changeless glory there.

From vintages of sorrow are deepest joys distilled,
And the cup outstretched for healing is oft at Marah filled,
God leads to joy through weeping, to quietness through strife,
Through yielding into conquest, through death to endless life.
Be still, He hath enrolled thee for the kingdom and the crown.
Be silent, let Him mould thee who calleth thee his own.

Such silence is communion, such stillness is a shrine;
The fellowship of suffering an ordinance divine,
And the secrets of abiding most fully are declared
To those who, with the Master, Gethsemane have shared.
Then trust Him to uphold thee, 'mid the shadows and the gloom,
Be still, and He shall mould thee for his presence and for home.

For resurrection stillness there is resurrection power,
The prayer and praise of trusting may glorify each hour;
And common days are holy, and years an Eastertide,
For those who with the risen One in risen life abide.
Then let his true love fold thee, keep silence at his word;
Be still, and He will mould thee: O rest thee in the Lord!

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—For special services at Pontymoile on Sunday and Monday next.—For special meetings this week at Convoy, co. Donegal.—For blessing on work in Ireland and on efforts to bring the Gospel before Roman Catholics.—For a special meeting of workers on Saturday.—For ten meetings at Bishops Nympton, North Devon, now being conducted by Mr. John Elliott.—For Gospel tent work in Anderston district of Glasgow during July and August.

(578)

DONATIONS

RECEIVED BY MESSRS. MORGAN & SCOTT TO MONDAY, JUNE 27, 1892.

 Donations should be sent by Cheque or P.O.Orders, not by stamps.

 Will donors oblige us by giving explicitly and fully the titles of the missions to which they wish their donations to be applied? Mistakes which sometimes arise will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind that our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Monday morning? Any amounts received afterwards will be acknowledged in the subsequent week's number.

 Cheques, Money Orders, or Postal Orders should be made payable to Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings, London, E.C., and crossed "City Bank;" this will effectually prevent loss.

"Derby."—Please say which Poor Children's Sick Fund.

	£	s.	d.
British and Foreign Bible Society — S.A., £2; W.M.W., £2 10s.; V., £2 10s.	7	0	0
Society for the Relief of Persecuted Jews—Bennett, 10s.; Old Indian Navy Officer, £1	1	10	0
Rabbi Lichtenstein (Personal)—J.R.D., 10s.; For Jesus' Sake, £2; F.M. and T.P., £1 1s.; E.E H., £1; H.A.Y., £50; (Distribution Literature) J.S.G., 1s.; E.H., 5s....	55	6	0
Church of England Zenana Missionary Society—W.M.W.	0	10	0
Persecuted Jews in Russia—A.T.N.	0	10	0
Congo Balolo Mission—A.T.N.	0	10	0
John G. Paton Mission Fund—Mrs. B.S., £4; A Friend, £5; M.H.S., £10	19	0	0
Mauritius Disaster Fund—A Friend...	1	0	0
Zenana Bible and Medical Mission—Old Indian Navy Officer	0	10	0
Free Church Scotland Foreign Missions—V.	2	10	0
Church Missionary Society—V.	2	0	0
Spezia Mission (Extinction of Debt)—J.R.	5	0	0
Moravian Mission—Unit, £5; A Friend, £2	7	0	0
Moslem Girls' School Beyrout—H.D.B.	2	0	0
The Christian to Sailors' Rest, Smyrna—H.D.B.	1	1	0
Englishwomen's Russian Famine Fund—S.A.H. ...	1	0	0
London Missionary Society—S.S....	0	5	0
Sailors' Rest, Naples—M.S....	2	0	0
Mr. Fegan's Homes (Camping Out)—M.	5	0	0
Miss Weston's Work (Royal Navy)—Bennett	0	10	0
Miss Robinson's Work (Soldiers)—Bennett	0	10	0
Moldmay Mission to Jews—Bennett, 10s.; C.G.R., 10s.	1	0	0
Royal Blind Pension Society—Dora	0	5	0
Deptford Boys' Outing—Dora	0	10	0
North-East London Gospel Mission (Seaside Homes) Dora, 10s.; A.M.W., 10s.	1	0	0
Gratuitous Circulation of The Christian—A Friend, £2; (Foreign Missionaries)—J.R.D., 5s.	2	5	0
London Congregational Union (Children's Country Holiday)—J.S.G., 10s.; M.S., 10s.	1	0	0
Shelter Homeless Jews (Mr. Colin Young)—M. ...	5	0	0
Day in Country Fund—Tats, 10s.; S.L.A.T., £10; F. and R.V., £1; C.G.R., 5s.; A.P.H. and Sister 5s.; Ada, 1s.; T.J., £1; M.E.G., 2s. 6d.	13	3	6
Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen—E., £1 1s.; (Widow and Orphan Fund)—Old Indian Navy Officer, £1	2	1	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—W.R., Eccs. xi. 6, 2s. 6d.; S.B.P., 2s.; A Reader, Brighton, £1	1	4	6
St. Giles' Christian Mission—Ada, 4s.; Miss A., 10s.; H.D.B., £2 2s.; G.S., £2; (Prison)—C.G.R., 5s.; A Friend, £5...	10	1	0
St. Mary's Holiday Home, Southend-on-Sea—E.J.P.	0	5	0
Home of Rest for Women Southend-on-Sea—E.J.P.	0	5	0
Stockwell Orphanage—Old Indian Navy Officer ...	1	0	0
Penge Tabernacle—Old Indian Navy Officer... ...	1	0	0
Friendless and Fallen—Old Indian Navy Officer, 10s.; L.J., 5s.; Miss A. E., 2s. 3d.	0	17	3
Costers' Mission (Mr. Orsman)—G.S., £2; (Donkey Show)—V., £1 10s.; (Convalescent Home)—V., £2	5	10	0
Tottenham Deaconesses Institute—V.	2	0	0
National Vigilance Association—V.	2	0	0
Home for Lying (Miss Davidson)—V...	2	10	0
Aged Pilgrims' Friend Society—V.	1	10	0
Hospital for Incurables (Putney)—V.	1	10	0
Bristol Orphan Homes—E.E.H.	1	0	0
Christian Colportage Association—Unit	5	0	0
Mildmay Medical Mission—Unit	5	0	0
Mr. Toye's Orphanage—In Memoriam—S.	10	0	0
Cow Cross Mission (Sick Mothers)—G.S.	2	0	0
George-yard Mission—G.S.	2	0	0
Richard Weaver (Personal)—G.S.	2	0	0
Mr. Shipley's Village Mission—H.A.Y.	10	0	0
	£217	11	3

[Advertisement.]

London Samaritan Society, 98, High-street, Homerton, E., gratefully acknowledge the following donations for Convalescent Homes:—Miss B., 5s.; Mrs. R., £1 1s.

Faith is the discovery and conquest of a new country.—J. Müller.

The word disappointment, when translated into plain English, means little less than the grumblings of self-will against the will of God.—John Newton.

Christ's cross is the sweetest burden that ever I bore; it is such a burden as wings are to a bird, or sails to a ship, to carry me forward to my harbour.—Rutherford.

The right hand is the place of affection, as well as of honour and dignity. Christ is on the right hand of the Father, being his beloved Son, in whom He manifests his glory. The right hand is also the symbol of sovereign power and rule. Christ is Lord over all.—Adolph Saphir, D.D.

(For Forthcoming Meetings see Page 30.)

SUN LIFE OFFICE

FOR ASSURANCES UNDER COST PRICE.

Apply for the New Prospectus at the Chief Office,

63, THREADNEEDLE STREET, E.C.,

HARRIS C. L. SAUNDERS, General Manager.

BYWATER, TANQUERAY & PHAYRE,

LIMITED.

BANKERS AND AGENTS.

Directors.

ARTHUR BYWATER.
JAMES TRUMAN TANQUERAY.
GENERAL SIR ROBERT PHAYRE, K.C.B.

Secretary: CAPEL SEWELL.

79, QUEEN VICTORIA ST., LONDON,

And at LIVERPOOL and NEW YORK.

Banking in all its Departments. No charge for Current Accounts.

Cash received on Deposit at the following present rates of Interest:—

2½ per cent. per annum for 3 months' notice.
5 " " for 6 "
6 " " for 12 " or longer.

Interest paid Quarterly.

For many years the appointed Agents to 15 of the leading Missionary Societies, English and American. Drafts issued on Foreign Countries free of charge.

PENTECOSTAL LEAGUE.

EXETER HALL, STRAND

(Lower Hall).

MR. and MRS. READER HARRIS,

and Members of the Pentecostal Mission, will (D.V.) conduct SPECIAL

HOLINESS MEETINGS,

on TUESDAY EVENINGS, JULY 5th, 12th, and 19th, at 8 o'clock.

Please pray for these Meetings, come to them and bring your friends. Admission Free. Doors open at 7.

EAST LONDON

HOSPITAL FOR CHILDREN,

GLAMIS ROAD, SHADWELL, E.

The ONLY HOSPITAL with a SPECIAL WARD FOR INFANTS ONLY.

Relies Entirely for its Support upon Christian and Public Benevolence.

OVER 281,400 PATIENTS HAVE BEEN TREATED.

The Board of Management feel confident that this APPEAL TO THE READERS OF "THE CHRISTIAN" will not be made in vain.

SAMUEL WHITFORD, Secretary.

THE RAILWAY MISSION

Carries on Gospel and Temperance work among railway men throughout the world. Its Missionaries and Evangelists organise and conduct meetings at times and places that suit the convenience of the men. 350 branches have been opened in the United Kingdom. Missionaries have been sent to South Africa and Egypt.

A Convalescent Home specially for maimed and wounded railway men is about to be opened at Hastings.

Funds are urgently needed. Subscriptions and donations may be sent to the Treasurer, S. Gurney Sheppard, Esq., 57, Old Broad-street, E.C.; or to R. Nixon, Secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, London, E.C.

St. Giles' Christian Mission

CHILDREN'S HOLIDAY FUND.

The Holiday Season is close upon us, and the Children attending the Sunday Schools of the St. Giles' Christian Mission are anxiously looking forward to their Annual Treat. Last year, in addition to giving a Day's Outing to 1500

Little Ones, drawn chiefly from the Courts and Alleys of St. Giles', we were enabled to send considerably over 200 for a fortnight in the country. We are anxious to do at least as much this year.

WILL YOU HELP?

Donations will be most thankfully acknowledged if sent to our Treasurer, F. A. Bevan, Esq., 54, Lombard St., E.C., or to Mr. W. Wheatley, Superintendent St. Giles' Christian Mission, 4, Ampton St., Regent Sq., W.C.

Protestant Alliance.

SPECIAL ELECTORAL ORGANISATION FUND

At the Great Meetings of the Protestant Alliance, held in Exeter Hall on the 25th and 26th of May, 1892, the Mayor of St. Ives offered to Contribute a Sum of £50 if Nineteen others would each contribute an equal amount towards the expenses to be incurred by the Alliance in promoting the return of Protestant Candidates at the next Election. Four other Contributors at once responded to this appeal; and one of these gentlemen also proposed that a similar fund should be set on foot to enable those who could not afford to contribute £50 apiece to the first named Fund, to give contributions of a less amount for the same object.

The following contributions have been received and promised:—

The Mayor of St. Ives	£50	0	0	Countess of Tankerville... ...	(paid)	£5	5	0
W. H. Peters, Esq.	50	0	0	Lady A.	,,	5	0	0
Robert Scott, Esq.	50	0	0	Captain W.	,,	3	3	0
Deputy-Surgeon-General Partridge	(paid) 50	0	0	A. E. C.	,,	2	2	0
A Lady present	50	0	0	Major Porcelli	,,	2	0	0
B. P. A.	(paid) 15	0	0	Contributions of less amount ...	,,	4	7	0
G. R. V.	,, 10	0	0

In view of the expense already incurred in supplying lectures, circulation of papers, and the other demands made on the Protestant Alliance for making its Protestant work tell in the Elections, it is hoped that Contributors will come forward at once to aid in raising the Funds so much required.

Papers relating to Protestant Questions, Address to Electors, Questions for Candidates, may be obtained, Free of Cost, on application to

A. H. GUINNESS, Secretary Protestant Alliance.

LONDON CITY MISSION.

500 MISSIONARIES now employed in beseeching the masses in the Metropolis to be reconciled to God through Jesus Christ our Lord. House-to-house visitation Personal dealing. Work purely undenominational.

THE NEED IS URGENT.

Secretaries: T. S. HUTCHINSON, M.A., ROBERT DAWSON, B.A.
Treasurer: F. A. BEVAN. Office: 3, Bridewell-place, E.C.
Bankers: BARCLAY, BEVAN, RANSOM & Co., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.

SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND.

Funds greatly needed to extend the work.

Irish-speaking readers are sent where required, and the work is carried on in a spirit of love.

Reports sent on application to Captain J. KEARNEY WHITE, Offices, 27, Lower Pembroke-street, Dublin, and 9, Paternoster-row, London, where Donations may be sent; or to the Office of THE CHRISTIAN. JOHN xiii. 35.

Please notice exact title of Society.

BURGH HEATH CONVENTION,

JULY 6, 7, & 8.

Speakers:—

Rev. J. B. FIGGIS,
Rev. C. A. FOX, Rev. W. HASLAM,
Rev. F. B. MEYER,
Rev. MARK GUY PEARSE,
H. W. MAYNARD, Esq.,
Gen. Sir ROBT. PHAYRE, K.C.B., Chairman.

Burgh Heath is about 1½ miles from Banstead Station; about 3 from Epsom, and 4 from Sutton. Conveyances will leave Sutton and Epsom one hour before each Meeting (fare from or to Sutton, 1s. 6d.; Epsom, 1s.), returning to Sutton and Epsom after each meeting. Conveyances will meet the 10.27 a.m. and other trains at Banstead, fare 1s.

W. HODSON,
North Tadworth, Epsom, Convener.

FRIENDLESS AND FALLEN.

TO THE READER.

I do not know whether it is in consequence of the great excitement caused by the APPROACHING GENERAL ELECTION, which doubtless will, for a time, ABSORB PUBLIC ATTENTION, but certain it is that within the last month contributions for the DAILY MAINTENANCE OF THE HOMES has seriously fallen off—exceptionally so. But the work continues, and during this period of trial not one suitable applicant will be turned from our doors unaided.

However, THE READER is asked very earnestly to send prompt help in aid of this Preventive and Rescue work

IN THE FOLLOWING HOMES:—

Preventive Homes,

Especially for Friendless Girls in their teens.

	No. of Inmates.
The Jubilee Home, 7, Parson's Green, S.W....	50
459, Holloway Road, N.	26
461, Holloway Road, N.	26
Total	102

Rescue Homes.

	No. of Inmates.
200, Euston Road, N.W.	24
35, Eden Grove, Holloway	33
Milton House, Brompton	30
The Holt-Yates Memorial Home, 5, Parson's Green	30
Total	117

Open all Night Refuge.

37, Manchester Street, W.C., Visited Every Morning to arrange permanent help to New Comers... 21

Total number of Inmates to Maintain 240

CONTRIBUTIONS MAY BE SENT as usual to Messrs. MORGAN and SCOTT, of "The Christian," 12, Paternoster Buildings, City, E.C.

Edward W. Thomas.

200, EUSTON ROAD, N.W.

Forthcoming Meetings.

[Communications respecting forthcoming meetings cannot be inserted unless received by Tuesday morning at the latest.]

The Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, or Wales, on due notice. Apply Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.; or, The Sec., Evangelisation Society, Scottish Branch, The Grove-street Institute, Glasgow.

The Irish Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

The Church Army will send evangelists (working-men) to any clergymen on due notice, for short or long missions. Hon. Sec., 128 and 130, Edgware-road, W.

The Metropolitan Tabernacle Evangelists' Association will send evangelists to any evangelical denomination within the London postal area. Hon. Sec., 5, Crown-villas, Kennington Oval, S.E.

The Country Towns Mission supplies qualified missionaries for work in the country. Apply to Secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C.

Mr. Henry Thorne's Evangelistic Missions.—Friends wishing to make arrangements for mission services may apply for particulars to the Secretary, Mr. James Pearce, Exeter Hall, Strand, London.

City Y.M.C.A., 59 and 60, Cornhill, London, E.C.—Bible readings by Mr. Maxwell Wright at daily prayer meeting. July 4 to 8, 1.15 to 2.15 p.m., as follows:—Subjects, Mon., 4th, "Sons of God"; Tues., 5th, "Servants of God"; Wed., 6th, "Soldiers of Christ"; Thurs., 7th, "Friends of Christ"; Fri., 8th, "Temples of the Holy Ghost." Gospel meetings for young men, Suns., 3.30, Tues., 6.45.

Conference Hall, Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E. — Sun., July 3, 3 and 7 p.m., Mr. G. Aspland. Meetings for prayer: Sun. 7.45 a.m., Fri. 7.45 p.m., Sat. 7.30 p.m.

Central Y.M.C.A., Exeter Hall, Strand.—Sun., 3.45 (men only), and 7, public, Mr. W. R. Lane. Meetings for men nightly at 8. Cheerful service, public, Sat., at 8. French Bible-class, Tues., at 8. Prayer-meeting, Mon. to Fri., from 1 till 2 p.m., public.

West London Central Mission.—St. James's Hall, Sun., Rev. Mark Guy Pearse, 11 a.m.; Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, 7 p.m.

House of Rest, 10, Finchley-road.—Friday, July 1, at 3 p.m., Rev. E. E. Gill on "Dr. Barnardo's Homes." Tea at 5. From 6 to 9, Prayer Meeting for the "Aged Workers' Home." Sundays at 3.30 Bible Reading by Miss Mason.

Strangers' Rest, 163, St. George's-street, E.—Monthly Workers' Meeting, Friday, July 8. Tea at 6. Meeting at 7. Mr. W. H. Seagram will preside. An address will be given by Rev. Jas. Stephens on "God's Discipline of the Worker's Own Heart." Mr. H. Maxwell Wright will speak of Work in South America.

Billingsgate Mission Hall.—Noonday Service, Monday, July 4. Address by Rev. W. Pettman.

Abbey Road Chapel, St. John's Wood.—Pastor H. E. Stone, Suns., "Mornings in Ezekiel," 11 a.m., 6.30 p.m. Thurs. evenings at 8 p.m., "Some Difficult Subjects Studied."

Great Assembly Hall, Mile-end-road, E.—Sun., Mr. C. Inglis, 11 a.m. and 6.30 p.m.

Edinburgh Castle, Rhodeswell-road, Limehouse.—Sun., 11, and 7, Dr. Barnardo; 3 p.m., Rev. H. Bright.

Evangelistic Mission.—Kilburn Hall, Kilburn-gate, N.W., Sun., 7 p.m., Mr. H. C. Crawley. Malden Hall, Queen's-crescent, Haverstock-hill, N.W., Sun., 7 p.m., Dr. Neatby.

Marylebone Presbyterian Church, Upper George-street.—Rev. Dr. Pentecost, Sun., 11 and 7. Thurs., at 8 p.m.

St. George's Hall, Langham-place.—Dr. M'Killam, Sun. at 11 and 7, Burlington Hall, Wed., at 8 p.m.

Talbot Tabernacle.—Sun., morning, Mr. W. R. Lane; evening, Mr. Finlay Gibson.

Conference Hall, Eccleston-street, S.W.—Sun., at 3.30 and 7 p.m., Mr. P. Garrioch.

Sailors' Welcome Home, 173, St. George-street, London, E.—"Christian Lifeboat Crew," Tues., July 5, at 7 p.m.

Pentecostal League.—Special holiness meetings, Exeter Hall, Strand, Tuesdays, July 5, 12, and 19, at 8 p.m., conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Reader Harris.

Open-Air Mission.—Special meeting in Exeter (Lower) Hall, on Thurs., June 30, at 7 p.m., in memoriam of the late Secretary, Mr. Kirkham. Sir Arthur Blackwood, K.C.B., in the chair, addresses by General Sir Robert Phayre, Rev. H. Pelham Stokes, Mr. James E. Mathieson, and others.

[Coming Conventions.]

Guilford.—June 27 to July 2. Sec.: Col. Brown, Albury, Guildford.

Old Leake, Boston.—July 4 to 7. Sec.: Rev. Joseph Dixie, Vicar, Old Leake.

Blackheath (Prophetic).—July 7 and 8, Alexandra Hall, 11 a.m., 3 and 7 p.m.

Burgh Heath, Epsom.—July 6, 7 and 8. Sec.: W. Hodson, North Tadworth, Epsom.

Llandrindod (Radnorshire).—July 11 to 15. Sec.: Mr. H. S. Newman, Leominster.

Keswick.—July 25 to 30. Sec.: Mr. Postlethwaite, Eskin-place, Ke-wick.

Blankenburg, Thuringia, Germany.—Aug. 29 to Sept. 2. Address, Fraulein von Weling, as above.

Carlisle.—Sept. 6-9. Sec.: Mr. C. J. Clapperton, 6, Chiswick-street, Carlisle.

Perth.—Sept. 13 to 15. Sec.: Rev. Dr. Binnerman, Perth.

Dublin.—Sept. 19-22. Sec.: Mr. Robert Cotter, Christian Union Buildings, Dublin.

Salisbury.—Sept. 19-23. Sec.: Rev. E. Thwaites, Fisherton, Salisbury.

Glasgow.—Sept. 20-24.

Leicester.—Sept. 26-28. Sec.: Mrs. R. Walker, Enderby Hall, Leicester.

Dundee (Evan. Alliance).—Sept. 26-29. Sec.: Mr. Arnold, 7, Adam-street, London, W.C.

Ancoats, Manchester.—Oct. 9-16. Sec.: Mr. F. W. Crossley, Star Hall, Ancoats, Manchester.

Blackheath.—Oct. 11 to 14. Hon. Sec.: E. P. Le Feuvre, 10, Aberdeen-terrace, Blackheath.

Joseph Hatton on Open-Air Work.

We observe that Mr. Joseph Hatton, in The People, gives a sympathetic account of an open-air service conducted in Maida-vale by workers from Abbey-road Chapel. He says: It was a choir of the old-fashion, such as one sometimes finds even now in remote village churches. There was no shouting, no wild exclamations. The hymn was sung, the prayer said with a sweet simplicity of earnest quiet. Many passers-by remained as I did to join the sacred service. It was a lovely summer night. Over the group fell the light of a tall portable lamp, upon which was written Abbey-road Chapel. Along the main road close by thundered the heavy traffic of Maida-vale and Edgware-road. Omnibuses, vans of men and women who had been somewhere to spend what is called a "happy day," cabs, and waggonettes. Here and there the ribald song of the festal "outers" fell upon the air like a blight, but when it failed there still rose up towards the stars the words of the hymn "I am coming home," the silver cornets leading the sacred melody. A lonely-looking young fellow who stood near me tried to hide his tears. There was something very real and earnest about the scene; the full, rich harmonies of the hymn, the short, humble, hopeful prayer, the stars of the summer night above the lights of the thronged highway.

BY REV. DR. CULROSS.

JOHN, WHOM JESUS LOVED.

A Sketch of the Character, Writings, Theology, and Influence of the Beloved Disciple. By Rev. James Culross, M.A., D.D. With Eight Chromo-Lithographic Views. Tinted Covers, 2s.; cloth boards, 2s. 6d; Presentation Edition: Cloth, bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

Rev. C. H. Spurgeon wrote in The Sword and Trowel:—"Preachers abound; but divines are few. The printing press pours forth a mass of matter; but a real book is a phenomenon. We count ourselves happy, for we have met with a divine in Dr. James Culross; and in his work entitled 'John, whom Jesus Loved,' we have found a book. . . . One of the excellences of Dr. Culross is the freshness of his thought. The dew is on his branch; he is no withered bough of the autumn forest. His mind allows young flowers to break through its soil after their own fashion, and to blossom in their own sweet way.

"It is altogether without reserve that we commend the work before us. It is not a bottle of milk for babes, but a portion of meat for men. A half-dozen readings will only make it more interesting to those who meditate upon what they read."

"BEHOLD I STAND AT THE DOOR AND KNOCK."

Christ's Message to the Church at Laodicea. By Rev. James Culross, M.A., D.D. With Chromo-Lithographic Frontispiece. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth Boards, 1s. 6d.; Presentation Edition: Cloth, Bevelled Boards, 2s. 6d.

"Another 'gem of purest ray serene' from the deep waters of our brother's teeming mind. He possesses a ripeness of thought and a beauty of expression which, in our judgment, are scarcely equalled, and in not one instance surpassed, by those of any other living teacher known to us."—The Sword and Trowel

"THY FIRST LOVE:"

Christ's Message to the Church of Ephesus. By Rev. James Culross, M.A., D.D. With Chromo-Lithographic Frontispiece. Tinted Covers, 1s. 6d. Presentation Edition: Cloth, Bevelled Boards, 2s. 6d.

"We do not know higher-toned or healthier devotional literature, of the evangelical type, than is represented by this and Dr. Culross' previous works. This work is instructive, suggestive, full of spiritual force, and at the same time strong and manly. We heartily commend this book for the refreshment of our busy teachers."
The Sunday-School Chronicle.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

New and Cheaper Edition, greatly improved.

CHRIST AND THE SCRIPTURES:

The Living Word and the Written Word. By the late Rev. Adolph Saphir, B.A., D.D. Crown 8vo, tinted covers, 1s.; cloth boards, 1s. 6d. Presentation Edition. Cloth extra, 3s.; cloth bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"This book is full of thought and palpitates with life. It is the work of a Christian, a scholar, and a man of genius; while none have ever brought to the theme a larger measure of love and reverence. We know of no volume that we more earnestly desire to see in the hands of persons of every age who are pondering the religious questions of momentous importance, so much agitating men's minds at the present time. It is not only admirably adapted for the mature and thoughtful, but it is also peculiarly fitted to give a right direction to the thoughts and lives of young, earnest, and inquiring persons."
Newcastle Daily Chronicle.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C.
And may be Ordered of any Bookseller.

"ELECTRICITY IS LIFE."
(Trade Mark.)

PULVERMACHER'S

GENUINE ELECTRIC BELTS and BATTERIES for

NERVOUS EXHAUSTION and MUSCULAR WEAKNESS

HAVE SAVED the LIVES of THOUSANDS and

MADE EXISTENCE A PLEASURE to MEN and WOMEN WHO THROUGH MUCH SUFFERING

HAD FOUND LIFE A BURDEN.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.—June, 1892.

GALVANISM v. EXTREME NERVOUS WEAKNESS.

Hawick, N.B., June 13, 1892.

Dear Sir,—I am very thankful to report to you how much I have benefited under your treatment. Before I used your appliances I was suffering from violent palpitation of the heart and extreme nervous weakness, but since wearing your Belts these symptoms have almost entirely disappeared, and I now enjoy better health than I have done for years. Before coming to you I had tried many remedies without success, and if I can be of any benefit to any sufferer by giving fuller information I will gladly do so. Please publish initials only, but you can give my full name and address to any private inquirer.—Yours gratefully, A. L.

Mr. J. L. Pulvermacher, 194, Regent-street, W.

RHEUMATIC GOUT.

3, Stanhope-place, Bath, June 8, 1892.

Dear Sir,—I have much pleasure in stating that the Galvanic Belt you supplied for the cabman Davis has done him so much good that he is now able to put aside his stick and commence work again. The Electric action has been truly wonderful, and I trust that the improvement may be permanent.—Yours truly, (Mrs.) T. Wood.

Mr. J. L. Pulvermacher, 194, Regent-street, W.

STRICTURE IN THE THROAT.

5, Knowle-road, Brixton, S.W., 7th June, 1892.

Dear Sir,—I have much pleasure in sending you a testimonial as to the efficacy, through God's blessing, of your Galvanic Chain Bands in the case of my dear mother, who was suffering from organic stricture in the throat. At the time she applied your Galvanic Band the disease had progressed so far that she was quite unable to swallow even liquids, and must have either starved or choked, and some eminent medical men informed her that there was no possible cure. The effect of the Galvanic Band in a few hours was wonderful, and quite astonished her medical attendant.—Yours truly,
Mrs. A. Andrews.

Mr. J. L. Pulvermacher, 194, Regent-street, W.

SLUGGISH CIRCULATION of the BLOOD.

69, Upper St. James-street, Newport, Isle of Wight. 26th May, 1892.

Dear Sir,—In December last I purchased one of your Galvanic Belt, and have found it very comfortable to wear, and of great service in promoting healthy circulation of the blood. I feel altogether better in every way, and would strongly recommend patients to persevere, as I was tempted at first to give up the treatment as useless.—Yours truly,
J. G. Garnham.

J. L. Pulvermacher, Esq., 194, Regent-street, W.

NERVOUS WEAKNESS.

48, Oxberry-avenue, Fulham-road, S.W., 25th May, 1892.

Gentlemen,—I am pleased to inform you that the Electric Belt has done me an immense amount of good. I should have written before, but I wanted to give it a fair trial to see if the improvement was like y to be permanent, which I have every reason to believe it is.—Yours sincerely, (Miss) Kate Osey.

Messrs. J. L. Pulvermacher and Co., 194, Regent-st., W.

WEAK VOICE and SORE THROAT.

The Priory, Everingham, York, May 23, 1892.

Dear Sir,—I am very glad to inform you that I have derived much benefit from wearing your combined Galvanic Band. I used to suffer from weak throat every winter before using your appliance, but now my voice has been so strengthened that I have been able during the past winter to preach twice every Sunday without fatigue. I strongly advise any one suffering from clergyman's sore throat to try your appliances, which not only restores the voice, but also improves the health in every way.—Yours very faithfully, (Rev.) W. J. McNaughten.

J. L. Pulvermacher, Esq., 194, Regent-street, W.

THE PUBLIC are CAUTIONED against the many sham appliances now being advertised, and to avoid disappointment intending purchasers should send for PULVERMACHER'S Prospectus.

ADVICE PERSONALLY, or by LETTER, free of charge.

FOR FURTHER TESTIMONIALS, both Medical and Private, see new Pamphlet, "GALVANISM: NATURE'S CHIEF RESTORER of IMPAIRED VITAL ENERGY," post free on application to

J. L. PULVERMACHER and CO., GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT,

194, REGENT-STREET, London, W.
Established over Forty Years.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS.—All communications respecting Advertising in "The Christian" should be sent to Messrs. JOHN HADDON and CO., Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C.

Strongly bound in Cloth, 757 Pages.

MORGAN & SCOTT'S UNABRIDGED

CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE 3/6

TO THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS.

PORTABLE EDITION.

The special feature of this Edition, in addition to its extreme cheapness, is the New Translation of Proper Names in the Old and New Testaments by a competent scholar. The new renderings of the proper names are NOT CONTAINED IN ANY OTHER EDITION OF CRUDEN. This portion of the book is therefore STRICTLY COPYRIGHT.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

OLD SHIRTS REFITTED, Fine Irish Linen, 2s.; or very best Irish Linen, returned free, ready to wear, 2s. 6d. Sample Shirt, for Dress or ordinary wear, any size, post free, 2s. 9d., 3s. 9d., 4s. 9d., 5s. 9d., or 6s. 9d. Twilled Night Shirts, from 2s. 11d. French Print and Oxford Shirts, newest designs, very cheap.

LINEN COLLARS AND CUFFS.—Best 4-fold Collars, 4s. 6d. and 5s. 6d. dozen; Collars made exact to pattern, 2s. 9d. half-dozen, post free.

IRISH CAMBRIC HANDKERCHIEFS

Children's, 1s. 2d.; Ladies' 2s. 3d.; Gent's, 3s. 6d. per dozen. Hemstitched—Ladies', 2s. 11d.; Gent's, 4s. 11d. per dozen. Better qualities equally cheap. Price Lists and Patterns of all kinds of Irish Linen Goods from the cheapest to the finest qualities made for Household or Family use sent to any part of the world, post free.

B. & E. M'HUGH & Co., Limited, BELFAST.

LACE CURTAINS.

FROM 1s 6d. PER PAIR. Carriage Free.
SAVE 3d. TO 6d. IN THE 1s.

BEDROOM CURTAINS 2½ to 3 yards long, 33 to 44 inches wide, from 1s. 6d. to 4s. per pair.

DINING AND DRAWING ROOM CURTAINS, 3½ and 4 yards long, 1½ to 2 yards wide, from 3s. 6d. to 25s. per pair.

WHITE OR ECRU.

Send for my ILLUSTRATED PRICE LIST of new goods, free on application.

GEO. A. HARRISON, LACE MANUFACTURER, STAPLEFORD, NOTTINGHAM.

FAST DYE SERGES 8/11

JAQUES & JAQUES beg to call attention to a VERY SPECIAL PURCHASE of ALL-WOOL SERGES, in Black, Navy, and Cardinal, which they warrant perfectly fast dye. They offer these good Serges at 8s. 11d. the Full Dress Length of 8 yards, carriage paid to any address. Patterns of these, and of the Special Series of 500 varieties of choice productions at 4½d. to 2s. per yard, are now ready, and will be sent on approval, post free. When writing, kindly name this paper to

JAQUES & JAQUES, [c531
French Dress Specialists, DARLINGTON.

EPILEPTIC FITS.

Most remarkable cures continue to be effected by Mr. Osborne's Remedy for Epilepsy, which has won for itself golden opinions in all parts of the world. Full particulars (with testimonials) sent free on application to JAMES OSBORNE, Medical Pharmacy, Ashborne, Derbyshire. Reference permitted to Rev. J. Baker, M.A., Stockport.

Not a Novel—

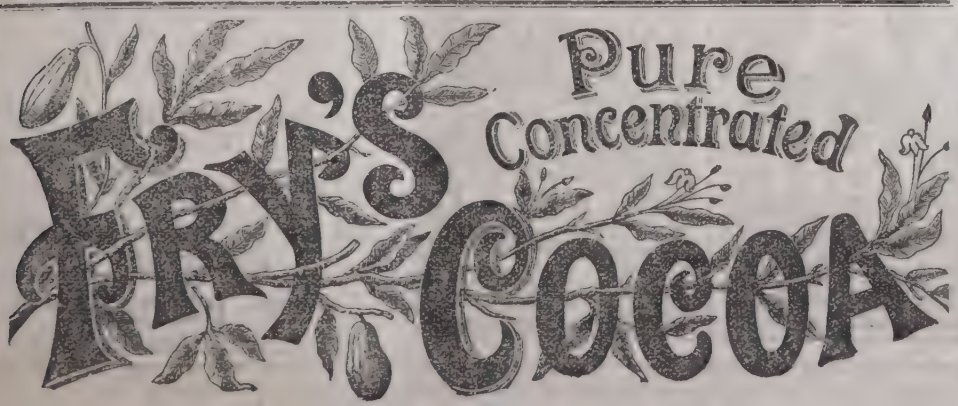
But a Novel Book.

We mean it; you shall have it sent you, post free, if you will but send us your name and address.

It is a book, but not an ordinary one.

No novel, no book of travels, no book of adventures on land or sea could be more interesting and full of wonderment.

This book opens up to you in a simple yet graphic manner the mysterious workings of nature in your own stomach.



You would not believe what delicate mechanism, what clocklike precision, what faultless processes are secretly and quietly in constant operation; how all these are set in motion by a bit of food entering the stomach.

Studying these things teaches us what to eat, what to avoid, and how to promote health.

Those who suffer from weak stomachs or any form of dyspepsia should certainly read it.

Please send your address, mentioning this Journal, to Guy's Tonic Co., 4, Ludgate Circus, London.

"YOUR SPLENDID REMEDY SAVED MY LIFE."
(So writes a Patient recently.)

FOR THE TREATMENT OF CONSUMPTION

AND

ALL CHEST DISEASES,

RESULTS OF INFLUENZA, &c.,

See the NEW EDITION, with APPENDIX, of

MR. GEORGE THOS. CONGREVE'S

Book "ON CONSUMPTION, &c.," which may be had, post free for ONE SHILLING, from the Author, Coombe Lodge, Peckham, London, S.E.

FORTIETH SERIES OF CASES.

CASE FOR THE WEEK.

CHRONIC BRONCHITIS and INFLUENZA—CASE COMMUNICATED by REV. R. T. RHYS.

This minister has kindly sent to me on behalf of several patients, and particularly for Mrs. HARRIES, of RHANDIRMWYN, LLANDOVERY. Writing me Nov. 26 last, by her anxious wish, he says:—"She has suffered for four years from bronchitis, and of late from influenza; cough troubles her; extremely delicate; pains in the right side and breast, &c., &c. She has been taking your medicine with marked benefit."

Writing me Feb. 26, he says:—"Mrs. Harries has recovered all right."

RECENT LETTER from a "SISTER" NURSING a PATIENT at DERBY.

"Will you kindly send me one of your books, as I am nursing a patient recovering from bronchitis. Her husband has chronic bronchitis and throat affection, and I am recommending him your medicine, and use of your liniment, and want him to read your book."

"I cannot speak too highly of your treatment. My sister was brought back from death's door by it; and for years past it has been a household medicine with our own family and those of friends.—Faithfully yours, NURSE—"

(I do not print her name for obvious reasons.)

NOTE.—CONSULTATIONS FREE at Coombe Lodge, Peckham, on TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings only. No charge except the usual charge for three or six weeks' supply of medicine. All Patients should read the Book first.

CHIVERS'

GOLD MEDAL.

FLAVOURED WITH RIPE FRUIT JUICES.

DR. GORDON STABLES says:—"Messrs. CHIVERS have come to the front with jellies that really add to our health and luxury."

A child can in a few minutes make jellies of which any cook might be proud. Of all grocers and stores. The address of the nearest grocer to you will be sent on receipt of post card.

S. CHIVERS & SONS,
HISTON, CAMBRIDGE.
First Prize, Whole Fruit Jams, Royal Windsor Show, 1890.

JELLIES

PAIN KILLER

The Great Family Medicine. Get a Bottle to-day of PERRY DAVIS'S PAIN KILLER. Acts directly on the seat of Pain. Externally it cures Scalds, Burns, Boils, Sprains, Bruises, Toothache, Headache, Stings and Bites of Insects, &c. Internally it cures Colds, Liver Complaints, Headache, Heartburn, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Sea Sickness, Cramp and Pain in Stomach, Colic, Diarrhœa, Cholera, &c. Sold by all Chemists at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. British Depot: 46, Holborn Viaduct, E.C. Avoid Imitations under misleading names.

PAIN KILLER

c101

TUKE'S BONED HAMS

Delicious Mild-cured Boned Hams, 9½d. per lb.

Smoked Boned Hams, Perfection, 10d. per lb.

NO BONE. NO WASTE.

See that all are branded "TUKE'S BONED HAMS."

The very thing for the Summer weather.

EDWARD TUKE & CO.,
BRADFORD, YORKS.

The "QUEEN" says: "Exceedingly well made; worthy the patronage of the most fastidious, and unsurpassed by any we have tried."

The finest and Purest obtainable. Unquestionably the most delicious and nourishing of all Beverages.

SUCHARD'S CREAMS ARE A SPECIALTY.

"MERINOLAN" SUMMER UNDER-WEAR—for LADIES, GENTLEMEN or CHILDREN.

Samples and Illustrated Catalogues containing all particulars sent on receipt of inquiry, post free.

Opinions of the Press.

THE QUEEN says: "The latest samples in Under-wear (Forsyth's 'Merinolan,' Glasgow) that have come under our notice, are little short of perfection, and may be obtained in a delicate, silky texture for the present season, or in heavier qualities for Autumn, both for Ladies and Gentlemen. In all the qualities they are admirably soft and exquisite to the touch, whilst in the shaping of the garments, they are beyond praise."

THE LADY says: "Messrs. Forsyth, of Renfield-street, Glasgow, have brought out a most beautiful make of Under-wear called 'Merinolan,' which is extremely soft, very elastic, and combines every possible improvement in fabrics, fastenings, and finish. Every hygienic condition is fulfilled by 'Merinolan,' and it is very moderate in price, considering the very high-class quality of the garments."

THE PERFECTION OF SCOTCH-MADE UNDER-WEAR.

Practically Unshrinkable.

Exquisitely Soft.
Improvements in Finish.
Perfect in Shapes.
All Selvedge Seams.

Opinions of the Press.

THE COURT JOURNAL says: "Mr. Forsyth, of Glasgow, has attained much-desired fame for his makes of Under-wear, producing garments which combine quality, comfort, and all possible improvements. His 'Merinolan,' whether as an Undervest or Combination for Ladies, or Shirts and Pants for Gentlemen, are alike beautifully soft, elastic, and delicate in texture, so that the most sensitive skin may not be subjected to the slightest irritation, thus rendering the various articles of the highest utility, and to be specially appreciated by the invalid."

HEALTH says: "In the garments made by Messrs. Forsyth, the purchaser has a guarantee of their sound wearing qualities; while the great attention to the matter of finish will afford to wearers a great degree of comfort."

LANCET says: "The samples from Messrs. Forsyth are eminently satisfactory, and are gratifying examples of home manufacture."

FORSYTH, RENFIELD STREET. GLASGOW.

Please Name this Paper.

FIFTH NEEDLEWORK COMPETITION.

1st Prize—
£20

In order to encourage the demand for the "LION EMBROIDERY TRIMMINGS," the Manufacturers have decided to offer

15 PRIZES

For the most tastefully made, and prettily trimmed garments.

1st Prize, £20. 4 Prizes £5 each.
10 Prizes £1 each.

Competitors may submit any number of garments, made either by hand or sewing machine; but no other Trimming will be permitted than the "LION EMBROIDERY TRIMMING," and all garments must be sent in before 1st OCTOBER, 1892, with name and address of Competitor carefully attached. All garments made by unsuccessful Competitors will be returned to them if application and payment of carriage be made during November. Successful articles will be retained. The Manufacturers reserve to themselves the sole right to adjudicate as to the relative merit of all productions, and will themselves award the prizes in the order they judge best. The names and addresses of winners will be published in November, 1892, and will also be sent to Each Competitor by post.

Ask your Draper for the LION EMBROIDERY TRIMMIMG, specially suitable for LADIES' WHITE SKIRTS, made in a large variety of patterns, or write for name of nearest Agent.

Garments sent in for Competition should be addressed to the

"LION" TRIMMING MANUFACTURERS, 1, SHORT HILL, NOTTINGHAM

BARKER & MOODY'S HYGIENIC CHOICE DESIGNS

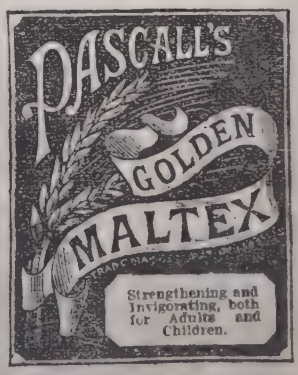
OF ALL DRAPERS.

For all Purposes

CAUTION! The Flannels are Stamped Every Five Yards with the Trade Mark.

SOFT and FINE

UNSHRINKABLE FLANNELS.



Ladies and Children should Wear no Others.

WRITE TO PROPRIETORS,
PERSEVERANCE MILLS, LEEDS,
FOR NAME OF NEAREST AGENT.

ZEBRA Grate Polish.

No Hard Work.

A DELICIOUS SWEETMEAT.

Contains 25 per cent. Allen and Hanbury's Extract of Malt, the valuable properties of which are well known.—Vide Dr. Tanner's Report.

In various sized Packages and Boxes.

Of all Chemists, Confectioners, &c.

THE 1lb. BOTTLE, 2s., IS THE CHEAPEST.

JAS. PASCALL,
Confectioner, London, S.E.

Printed by W. Speaight and Sons, Fetter Lane, E.C.; and Published by the Proprietors, Morgan and Scott, at 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.
Sole Advertisement Agents: John Haddon & Co.'s Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C.

The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

eekly Record of Christian Life and Testimony; Evangelistic Effort, and Missionary Enterprise.

Mrs. A. J. Macalpine.

PRINCIPAL

ERDOTALISM 8
emorial to Gawin Kirkham 8
MILDMAY CONFERENCE:
Addresses by Revs. E. A. Stuart, Dr. H. Sinclair Paterson, F. B. Meyer, and E. H. Hopkins 9
Afternoon Meetings 11
e of Peace 13
ook in Ireland 14
h Evangelisation Society 14
Moody's Schools 15
Moody at Newport 15
Guildford Convention 16
ingsgate Christian Mission 16

Portrait and Sketch of

CONTENTS.

Persecution in Persia 16
Y.M.C.A. Visit to Switzerland 18
Among the Poor of Chicago 18
The Gospel in Bulgaria 18
BRITISH Y.M.C.A. CONFERENCE 19
Serious Opposition in China 19
OUR CIVIC GUARDIANS 20
Christian Endeavour as a Missionary Force 20
Mission to Lepers 21
Conversion of a Romish Priest 21
The "Arethusa" Training Ship 21
The Grindelwald Conference 21
Notes on Daily Readings 22
The Moral Crusade in Liverpool 24

o. 1171.] THURSDAY, JULY 7, 1892.

REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C. [ONE PENNY. POST FREE, 1½d.

Street Arabs' Seaside Holiday.

AN EARNEST APPEAL

IS MADE FOR HELP TOWARDS THE

FORTNIGHT'S CAMPING OUT

For the WAIFS and STRAYS in our London Homes.

THE LAST SUMMER MOST OF THEM WILL SPEND IN OLD ENGLAND—a Glimpse of the Sea, Bathing, Boating, shing, Cricket—a life-long treasured memory of boyhood days in the Old Country! Evangelistic Services for the Boys d Villagers in Gospel Tent.*

THE SMALLEST GIFTS THANKFULLY RECEIVED.

J. W. C. Fegan

HE BOYS' HOME, 95, Southwark Street, London, S.E.

Cheques and Postal Orders may be crossed London and County Bank (Southwark Branch).

* £732 CHEERFULLY CONTRIBUTED BY GRATEFUL OLD BOYS IN CANADA DURING LAST FOUR YEARS.

Princess Mary Village Homes

ADDLESTONE, SURREY.

Patroness: H.R.H. THE DUCHESS OF TECK.

THE TWENTY-FIRST ANNIVERSARY

OF THIS INSTITUTION WILL BE COMMEMORATED ON

TUESDAY, the 12th inst.

It was founded in the year 1871 to receive and bring up 200 LITTLE GIRLS, Children of Female Prisoners. The Village Homes are within easy access of London.

MRS. MEREDITH cordially invites all friends interested in the Rescue of Children to be present on that day.

THANKSGIVING SERVICE in the Chapel at 3.30 p.m.
SONG AND MUSICAL DRILL BY THE CHILDREN at 4.0 p.m.
THE ADDRESS (D.V.) by the REV. CANON GIRDLESTONE.
PRIZES will be Presented by

THE LADY HARRIET LINDSEY.

Trains leave Waterloo at 12.20, 2.25, and 3.0 p.m., returning at 5.15, 6.21, 7.29, and 8.40 p.m.
The P.M.V. Homes are within five minutes' walk of the station.

FRESH AIR for Poor Wee CHILDREN. The Countess of Darnley and Sir Samuel Wilson, M.P., are heartily thanked for their most acceptable CONTRIBUTIONS. For each 10s. subscribed, a pent-up London child can be boarded out for 14 days—3197 during seven seasons. Funds pressingly needed.—Bankers: L & County, Islington.—A. STYLEMAN HERRING (for Local Committee), Vicar St. Paul's, Clerkenwell, 45, Colebrooke Row, N.

LONDON CITY MISSION.

500 MISSIONARIES now employed in beseeching the masses in the Metropolis to be reconciled to God through Jesus Christ our Lord. House-to-house visitation Personal dealing. Work purely undenominational.

THE NEED IS URGENT.

Secretaries: T. S. HUTCHINSON, M.A., ROBERT DAWSON, B.A.
Treasurer: F. A. BEVAN. Office: 3, Bridewell-place, E.C.
Bankers: BARCLAY, BEVAN, RANSOM & Co., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.

PENTECOSTAL LEAGUE.

EXETER HALL, STRAND

(Lower Hall).

MR. and MRS. READER HARRIS,

and Members of the Pentecostal Mission, will (D.V.) conduct SPECIAL

HOLINESS MEETINGS,

on TUESDAY EVENINGS, JULY 12th and 19th, at 8 o'clock.

Please pray for these Meetings, come to them and bring your friends. Admission Free. Doors open at 7.

Institutions.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.

ANXIETY OF SOUL.—Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear, are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C. c348

GEORGE-YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c.,
HIGH-STREET, WHITECHAPEL, E.
Received with thanks from an Unknown Friend a parcel of cast-off clothing and boots.
Men, women, and children sent for rest and fresh air into the country.
Rations of Food to Hungry Children. Infant Day Nursery. Week-day, Sunday, and Evening Schools. Classes for Rough Boys and Girls. Band of Hope. Children's Services. Industrial Classes Shelter for Children. Important Missionary Operations amongst Young Women and Elder Girls. Mission Work amongst Lads and Young Men. Mothers' Meetings. Evangelistic Services. Mission to Inebriate Women. Lodging House Meetings. Bible Classes. Temperance Meetings. Room-to-room Visitation. Training Home for Motherless Girls. Various Thrift Works, &c.
Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.
Post-office Orders should be made payable at 63, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George Yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E. c1890

"DAY IN THE COUNTRY."
GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, HIGH-STREET, WHITECHAPEL, E.
GEORGE HOLLAND has received, with many thanks, from E. C. S., 2s. 6d.; E. J. W., 2s. 6d.; L., 2s.; P., 5s.
George Holland intends (D.V.) to take 500 children from the close courts and crowded rooms into the country for one day's fresh air, and to supply them with necessary food when sufficient funds are in hand.
GEORGE HOLLAND, George Yard Ragged Schools, &c., High-street, Whitechapel, E. c1890

POOR AND SUFFERING.—Adults and children. St. Luke's and Clerkenwell. For a day at the seaside, others a fortnight in the country. Help sent for last 30 years.—PHILIP GAST, Minister, Spencer-place Chapel, 12, Noel-street, Islington. c559

DAY IN COUNTRY.—Rev. J. W. Atkinson, Claremont, Cawley-road, London, E., urgently pleads for help to give a day in Epping Forest with substantial meal to poor, and in many cases orphan East London children. Cost under one shilling per head inclusive. Every gift great or small promptly acknowledged. Balance sheet by chartered accountants. c573

COSTERS' HALL, HOXTON, LONDON.—Mr. W. J. Orsman, L.C.C., Honorary Superintendent, greatly needs £100 for the following mission operations:—Costers' Donkey Show, Children's and Adults' Country Holiday Homes, Sick and Benevolent Fund, and Convalescent Cottage for Invalid Christian Women.—Address Milton House, Shacklewell-green, Hackney. c1477

CLAPHAM MATERNITY HOSPITAL and School of Midwifery for Gentlewomen, 41, Jeffrey's-road, S.W. Under fully qualified medical women. 20 beds. Small payments from patients. Monthly nurses trained. Subscriptions needed.
Apply SECRETARY.

ZENANA MEDICAL COLLEGE, 58, St. George's-road, S.W. The Committee are prepared to receive applications for admission next term. Prospectus on application. Funds needed. Bankers, London and County Bank, Balham.

THE ANTI-INFIDEL TRACT ENTERPRISE. Established 1880, for the gratuitous Distribution of Anti-infidel literature at Home and Abroad. Funds most urgently needed. All subscribers of Five shillings and upwards receive assorted parcels of literature of the value of twice the amount of their subscriptions. Parcels forwarded to any missionary or address given. Catalogue post free.—W. E. BRADLAUGH, 70, King's Cross-road, London, W.C. c222

INTERLAKEN,
IN SWITZERLAND.
A CONVENTION
For the Promotion of Practical Holiness as a Preparation for Service for the Master will be held (God willing) at INTERLAKEN, from
SEPTEMBER 3 to 11.
President: Rev. F. PAYNTER, M.A., Rector of Stoke-next-Guildford, and President of Guildford Convention.
Speakers: Rev. W. HASLAM, Rev. EVAN HOPKINS, Rev. W. HOUGHTON, Pastor THEO. MONOD, Rev. BARLOW SERJEANT, and others.
TWO MEETINGS A DAY, Morning and Evening.
Ticket TWELVE GUINEAS, to include Railway Fare (return ticket, second-class, for one month) and Hotel Accommodation for one fortnight.
Replies, with remittance, to be sent as soon as possible before August 10 to Hon. Secretary for Interlaken Convention, Hotel Windsor, Victoria-street, London, S.W.

ASHLEY MISSION, Bethnal-green, E.—Help is earnestly asked, to enable a large mothers' meeting, a factory girls' class, and Sunday-school, to have a day in the country.—Miss BONTEIN, 22A, Devonshire-street, Portland-place, W. c1491

DAY IN THE COUNTRY.—Who will help to send the poor children and old folks for a day's outing?—Address SECRETARY, Salmon's-lane Mission, Limehouse, E. c1968

Educational.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space.

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors.
DELTA, Ward's Library, 112, Kensington-pk.-rd., W.

EDUCATION.—Llanberis, Ealing, W. Superior Home School for the daughters of gentlemen. Resident, foreign and visiting Masters. Pupils prepared for Oxford and Cambridge exams. and London Matric. Children whose parents are in India or abroad receive the particular care of the Principal. Special terms made for the daughters of officers' widows and ministers. Reference kindly allowed to Rev. Thain Davidson, D.D., Ealing. c171

PRIVATE PATIENTS can be received at the Deaconesses' Institute and Hospital, Tottenham. Fees from two to five guineas per week. Applications to be made to the Director of the Institution.

THE
Unsuccessful Candidates.
The sum of £10 is still required to complete the collection for the fifteen unsuccessful candidates at the late election of pensioners on the incurable funds of the National Hospital for the paralysed and epileptic. Will not kind friends help?
ROSA PEARMAN, Vice-President.
LADIES' SAMARITAN SOCIETY
National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, W.C.
Contributions of cast-off clothing are urgently needed. c569

THE BOYS' HOME,
Branches: Greenwich, Ramsgate, Toronto.
SOUTHWARK.
OPEN DAY AND NIGHT
To receive really destitute boys from 6 to 18 years of age without payment or recommendation beyond absolute need.
Urgent cases are considered at any time, but Mr. Fegan may be personally consulted about Orphan, Homeless, or Erring Boys at The Boys' Home, 95, Southwark-street, S.E., on Mondays from 10 till 2.
All communications should be addressed—
J. W. C. FEGAN,
The Boys' Home,
95, Southwark-street, London, S.E.

TERMS FOR
ADVERTISEMENTS.
"The Christian."
Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates: (PREPAID.)

Not exceeding—	s.	d.
30 Words	3	0
39 Words	3	9
48 Words	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.
Advertisements should arrive not later than Monday, addressed to JOHN HADDON & CO., Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C., and stating that they are for insertion in THE CHRISTIAN.
Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order (not by Stamps) or by Cheque, crossed "City Bank, Limited."
Replies to Advertisements will be received and forwarded for an additional charge of sixpence, to cover postage, by Messrs. JOHN HADDON & Co.

TERMS FOR SUBSCRIPTION
TO
"The Christian"
"THE CHRISTIAN" is published every Thursday (PRICE ONE PENNY), and may be ordered through any Bookseller or Newsvendor, or will be supplied direct by the Publishers, MORGAN and SCOTT, London, on the following Terms, post free, and including double numbers.

ENGLISH SUBSCRIPTIONS. for the year 1892.	£	s.	d.
One Copy & Postage ½d.	0	6	7
Two Copies and Postage 1d.	0	13	2
Three Copies and Postage 1½d. ...	0	19	9
Four Copies and Postage 2d.	1	6	4

The Subscription for one copy to Foreign Countries, (except United States and Canada), is 8s. 9d. per annum. To the United States and Canada, 2¼ dollars.

HIGH-CLASS CHRISTIAN HOME SCHOOL. Languages and music specialities. The very young and delicate lovingly cared for. Entire charge taken of Indian and other pupils.—References, KÖNIGSHEIM, Gorringe-rd., Eastbourne. c106

SEASIDE KINDERGARTEN and Home School for Girls. Froebel House, Liverpool-terrace, Worthing. Thorough education and careful training. Principal, Miss Yerbury. c272

SCHOOL FOR GENTLEMEN'S DAUGHTERS, 6, Orchard-gardens, Teignmouth, Devon. Principal: Miss Rees, certificated, higher Cambridge. Efficient staff of masters and resident certificated English and foreign mistresses. Successful preparation for examinations. c465

HAPPY SEASIDE HOME, with education. Girls and little boys. Terms 6s. weekly. Convalescent and invalid children 10s. weekly. Young ladies requiring rest from 12s. 6d. weekly.—SECRETARY, Albion-terrace, Ramsgate. c238

BOURNEMOUTH HIGH SCHOOL.—Principal: Miss Broad, assisted by Miss Chaplin, B.A., and trained teachers. The new building will give additional accommodation for boarders in September. Swedish gymnasium. Resident gymnastic mistress. c564

BOURNEMOUTH.—A lady wishes to recommend a good school at which her daughter has been pupil for nine years. Special educational advantages. Every care given to delicate girls.—Mrs. C., at May's, 109, London-wall, London, E.C. 1009

ABBOTSFORD, CLEVEDON, SOMERSET.—High-class School for Girls, combining the advantages of a thorough modern education with a pleasant seaside home. Preparation for all exams. —Prospectus, with references, on application to the Principal, Miss TUCKLEY, B.A. (Lond.). c530

ETONHURST, WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—Preparatory School for the Sons of Gentlemen. Competent masters attend daily.—Prospectus on application to LADY PRINCIPALS. c375

MALVERN HOUSE, Blockley, Worcestershire.—Principals, the Misses Judson, who will be pleased to send prospectus and references on application. As only a limited number of pupils are received, the care and comforts of a refined Christian home are combined with the discipline and stimulus of a school. Thorough education. Resident foreign governess. Pupils escorted to and from Paddington and Birmingham.

THE PRINCIPALS of a high-class school, well-established, and singularly successful, holding testimonials of the highest order from parents, evangelical clergy, ministers, and others, have been solicited to place the advantages of earnest Christian training, combined with all the advantages of high-school methods, within reach of parents of good social position, but limited resources, who are unable to meet the usual fees, which in such will be reduced to 30 and 40 guineas, and made inclusive.
Preparations for all examinations. The staff is composed of experienced, certificated (London University), Christian governesses, English and foreign, with visiting professors. Liberal diet. Spacious residence replete with every modern appliance to ensure health and comfort. Delicate girls and orphaned families receive exceptional care.—CREDO, care of Messrs. Haddon and Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C.

SOUTH-WEST LONDON COLLEGE.
High-class School for Young Ladies.
CARLTON MANSIONS, CLAPHAM-RISE, LONDON, S.W.
Principal—Mrs. HALE. A.C.P., F.S.Sc., Lond.
Modern system of teaching. Visiting masters in regular attendance. Resident certificated governesses, with careful personal supervision and home comforts. Special advantages for music and languages. Good garden and tennis. Highly recommended for nineteen years by the late Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.
Excellent testimonials also from parents of pupils, Rev. D. McEwan, D.D., Rev. W. Williams, and others. c168

A FRENCH LADY seeks a holiday engagement from the end of July for six or seven weeks.—BETA, 28, Doncaster-road, Dover. c1953

HAPPY HOME SCHOOL.—A Clergyman's Daughter offers the above. Loving care. Good education. Every attention. Terms £2 monthly, or 20 guineas yearly. Healthy, open neighbourhood. —52, Fenwick-road, East Dulwich.

COLLEGIATE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, combining technical training, practical instruction in household management and cooking, with the highest educational advantages. Inclusive fee, twelve guineas a term, payable in advance.—PRINCIPAL, Strickland's Girls' College, Stowmarket, Suffolk. c448

CRESWELL HOUSE Young Ladies' School, Westgate-on-Sea, offers thorough education and earnest Christian training. Home comforts. Watchful care. Highest references. Terms moderate.—Principals: Mrs. JAMES FIKE and Miss BRITTEN, M.C.P. c435

BRUSSELS. — Christian Education Home for Young Ladies, Rue Belliard 185. Beautiful villa. Large garden. Tennis court. Superior instruction. Comfortable family life. Small number. Twelve drawing-room pupils received. Prospectuses with highest references.—In Brussels refer to Rev. W. R. Stephens, Vleurgat 185. Principals, Mademoiselle T. Kropff, Fräulein P. Stursberg.

ST. HILDA'S COLLEGE,
ABBEY-ROAD, N.W.
Superior home school for the daughters of gentlemen. Resident foreign and visiting teachers, holding University degrees. Pupils prepared for B.A., London Matriculation, Oxford and Cambridge Local Art, and Musical Exams. Children whose parents are in India or abroad receive the particular care of the principal. Special terms made for the daughters of officers, clergyman, and widows. Careful training. Well appointed house. Healthy neighbourhood. c555

BURLTON HOUSE, READING.—High-class Ladies' School. Principal Miss RATCLIFFE. Old-established. Thorough teaching. Modern educational advantages, examinations. Finishing masters. Careful Christian training. Well-appointed home. Highest references. Inclusive terms. c540

SWITZERLAND.—Family Pension and Educational Home for Young Ladies. Beautiful situation. Families and young ladies can be escorted there.—Full particulars by A. B., 100, Haverstock-hill, London, N.W. c1882

OXFORD COLLEGE (Young Ladies), Clacton-on-Sea. Principals—The Misses Beard. Thirty roomed house, facing sea, south. Thorough education. Professors. Governess-Pupil wanted. Light duties, for exams. preferred. Premium required. c592

BOURNEMOUTH.—A lady wishes to recommend a good school at which her daughter has been educated (nine years). Special educational advantages. Every care given to delicate girls.—Mrs. C., at May's, 109, London-wall, London, E.C. 1009

IVY HOUSE, RUGBY. — A superior school for girls, highly recommended by parents of pupils. Excellent teaching and good Christian training, with the comforts of home.—Prospectus on application to Miss BRYAN. c2011

CHERTSEY HOUSE, Redhill, Surrey.—Parents may find here a happy, healthy home for their daughters. Beautiful walks. Resident governesses. Visiting professors. Preparations for University exams. Inclusive charges. Clerical, Medical, Army references, with prospectus on application to Miss M. B. GERDS. c331

IN THE MIDLANDS, in a healthy suburb. A good home is offered by a minister and his wife, for a little girl, from 5 to 10 years of age, to be educated with their own two children. Most satisfactory references given and required. Terms about £50 a year.—CLERICUS, Messrs. Lea and Martin, Lincoln's inn, Birmingham. c2020

LITTLE BOYS ONLY.—Principal of gentleman's school at SEASIDE, seeks several little boys for his resident certificated governess under his supervision. Private house entirely detached from the main school buildings. Advantages of sea air, excellent situation, Christian family and influence, home life and comforts. Apply Mrs. BROWNE, 48, Upper Park-road, Haverstock-hill, London. c504

BYFLETE HALL, SURREY.—A new class for junior pupils will be opened (D.V.) next term. Girls from 8 to 12 will be received at reduced fees. —Application to HEAD MISTRESS, as above. Autumn term begins 13th September. c480

ST. CLARE, UPPER WALMER, KENT.
LATE MANOR HOUSE SCHOOL, HASTINGS.
Principal: Mr. A. E. MURRAY.
For gentlemen's sons under 14 years of age.
St. Clare stands in its own grounds of about 12 acres, 100 feet above the sea, but protected from winds by high trees.
Tennis Courts, Gymnasium, Workshop, Chapel, Sanatorium, &c.
Referees, Parents of Pupils, Lord Radstock, the Lady Anne Trench, Rev. Claud Bosanquet, Colonel Bruce Brine, R.E., James E. Mathieson, Esq., &c.

COLLEGE GALLIARD, LAUSANNE.—First-class Boys' School. The head master, Monsieur le Pasteur Bieler, and Madame Bieler, née Merle d'Aubigné, receive a few boarders (little boys preferred). Prospectus on application. c601

PUBLIC SCHOOLS. Entrance scholarships, navy, &c. Delicate boys medically supervised. Experienced. First-class classic. Entire charge if desired. References: clergy, headmasters, eminent physicians.—M A., M. B., Sunnyside, London-road, St. Leonards. c510

OXFORD COUNTY SCHOOL, Thame.—Established 1840. Efficient, home-like. Excellent table. Perfect sanitation. Fine premises and grounds (11 acres.) Tepid swimming bath, gymnasium. Exams. University, Locals, Chamber of Commerce, &c. Many distinctions. References: The Vicarage, Thame; The Manse, Thame; The Rectory, Aston; Sandford, Thame, &c. "Friends much pleased with care and attention received." Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

UNIVERSITY SCHOOL, HERNE BAY.—"Healthiest watering-place in kingdom."—Registrar-General. Resident minister, Rev. W. Freear. Principal, Mr. W. Freear (London University). Highest references. Special preparation for all exams.

MR. J. W. C. FEGAN desires to recommend to Christian parents a high-class School for Sons of Gentlemen, in the best part of Folkestone. A thoroughly good education, with real Christian influence, home comforts, and close individual attention to each boy. Highest references.
Mr. J. W. C. FEGAN, The Boys' Home, 95, Southwark-street, S.E.

YOUR BOYS have Christian home and sound education with Mr. and Mrs. Dixon, Gordon Middle-class School, Kingston-on-Thames. Near Richmond and Bushey Parks. Entire charge taken for parents abroad. 18 to 25 guineas yearly. c298

SOUTH EASTERN COLLEGE,
RAMSGATE.
President, The Dean of Canterbury. Headmaster, Rev. F. W. Tracy, M.A. (St. John's, Cambridge). Terms, £60. Healthy climate. Founded by the South-Eastern Clerical and Lay Alliance, to afford a thorough public school education, based on the Protestant and Evangelical principles of the Church of England.—For prospectuses apply to the HEADMASTER or to the Rev. J. B. Whiting, Hon. Sec., St. Luke's Vicarage, Ramsgate. c284

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL,
Wellington, Shropshire.
Established 1845.
A HIGH-CLASS SCHOOL, possessing excellent premises. Preparation for the Universities and Public Examinations.
Principal: G. E. W. CRANAGE, M.A., Oxford.

CHRISTIAN PARENTS seeking young gentlemen's boarding school at the seaside (South Coast), a short journey from London, where, in addition to a thorough and first-class education domestic care and sound Gospel training are reckoned of paramount importance, are invited to write to Dr. THORN, Paddington, London (who is in no way connected with the school he recommends). 471

A LADY, living on high ground near the Crystal Palace, wishes to receive a lady of neglected education (or children) to attend a high-class school conducted by her daughters.—C1929, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square. c1929

UNIVERSITY MAN wishes to hear of mastership (with a view to partnership or purchase preferred) in a good school. Evangelical, abstainer, non-smoker, athletic. Usual subjects. First-class French, elementary German. Highest references, Rev. Handley C. J. Moule, M.A.—LEX, Union Society, Cambridge. c1959

ARCACHON, France.—Pastor Paul Monod receives young gentlemen into his family. French lessons if desired. Beautiful climate, pine woods, sea bathing, boating, &c.—Address, Villa Europe. c538

HOLIDAY ENGAGEMENT from August 1st. Required Christian young man, about 20, very gentlemanly, patient, lively disposition, good health. A few hours' teaching daily to youth aged 14, Latin, Greek, Arithmetic. Companionship for walks, fishing, boating, with careful attention. — Terms and references to Madame Vulliamy, Nonancourt, Eure, France. c1852

FRENCH CHRISTIAN FAMILY prepared to receive two boarders desirous of perfecting themselves in the French language. Option to spend season at seaside. Highest references exchanged.—Madame AENETT, 68, Rue des Prairies, Calais. c1990

ASSISTANT MASTERS AND GOVERNESSES desiring appointments after the summer vacation should apply immediately to the Scholastic Mutual Association, Limited, Burlington Chambers, New-street, Birmingham.—T. W. BOWMAN, Managing Director. c1956

THOROUGHLY EXPERIENCED GOVERNESS in a boys' preparatory school desires a re-engagement in September. Usual English subjects. Latin and French. Good disciplinarian. Highest references.—Miss TURNER, 76, The Mall, Newport, I.W. c2004

AN EXPERIENCED TEACHER requires a re-engagement as Morning Governess, in London or the suburbs. Thorough English subjects, French, German, and music, acquired abroad. Also harmony.—A. G. M., care of Messrs. Dreer and Sons, 371, Kentish Town-road, N.W. c2019

A YOUNG FRENCH PROTESTANT TUTOR (Bachelor's degree), Master at Montauban College, is anxious for Holiday Engagement in England, August and September. Very reasonable terms. Is highly recommended by present and past employers.—Address Mrs. ROSE, Château Salies-de-Bearn, France. c2018

The Christian.

☞ It is particularly requested that all letters relating business matters should be addressed to the firm, essrs. Morgan & Scott, and not to individual members. ommunications for The Christian should be addressed the Editor. Letters of a personal nature should in ery case be so marked.

All Advertisements for The Christian should be sent Messrs. John Haddon and Co., Central Advertising ffices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, London, E.C., companied by remittance. (For Terms, see Page 2.)

Notes and Comments.

NEXT week we purpose giving portrait and sketch of Rev. A. W. Potts, of rewe, Pioneer of the Christian Endeavour ovement.

We have received a number of communica-ons on political events. These raise ques-ons into which we cannot enter, as our aders for the most part well understand.

The recent troubles in Uganda are the sub-ct of a very interesting historical sketch in he Fortnightly Review by Mr. G. S. Mac-enzie. He traces the origin and develop-ent of Romish interference and intrigue, id leaves no doubt in the mind of the reader at the late unhappy strife between opposing ctions is directly due to the instigation of e priests, in whose hands the nominally hristian king is a mere tool. A telegram om Africa states that letters from Captains ugard and Williams are on the way, and that e former declares the quarrel to have origin-ed with the murder of a Protestant chief the Roman Catholic party.

In two of the leading reviews of the month e Social Scheme of the Salvation Army forms e subject of impartial comment. The results annot be otherwise than gratifying to the iends of that organisation. To The Contem-orary Review Mr. Francis Peek contributes a ngthy official report by Mr. G. P. Gaskell, a ember of the Charity Organisation Society, fter an investigation of the shelters, elevators, nd other branches of the Social Scheme. Mr. askell's report is candid and critical, but on e whole it gives a very hopeful estimate of the cope and probable outcome of the work. hen it was started there were many sur-ises and vaticinations as to the likelihood f success; and it is pleasing to know that an arnest and genuine effort is being maintained o uplift a section, at any rate, of London's submerged tenth," or whatever the propor-ion may be.

The article in The Fortnightly Review, by Ir. Arnold White, is also written as the out-ome of a searching personal inquiry, and its onclusions are even more favourable to the rmy operations than those of Mr. Gaskell. Ir. White appears to have directed his in-estigations as much to a discovery of nancial methods of the Army as to the work-ngs of the Social Scheme. His verdict ought, t any rate, to close the mouths of all who ave taken upon themselves to assert that eneral Booth and his family, as the leading fficials of the Army, are not disinterested so ar as pecuniary advantages are concerned. He records his general conclusions to be:—

(1) That General Booth and his family are honest o the core.

(2) That they barely take enough food to keep ody and soul together.

(3) That one and all, for the good of others, are orking themselves almost to death.

(4) That, so far from making a good thing out of he Army, they either work for nothing or for a poor ittance.

(5) That General Booth himself is of independent eans, and has given thousands of pounds to the rmy, and that two of his sons-in-law have aban-oned good positions to work in the Army.

(6) That the funds laid out by General Booth on he Hadleigh Colony have, on the whole, been well nd wisely spent.

(7) That the capital laid out on the Colony is intact, if it has not increased in value.

(8) That money is urgently needed to fulfil the original programme, and if supplied by the public it will be well spent.

Our Army friends, while they cannot as mortals command success, appear from these testimonies to have done all they could to deserve it, in the working of the Social Scheme, so far as it has gone. It is greatly to be desired, in the interests of the class on whose behalf it was started, that Mr. Booth should be enabled to prolong the experiment till it has had sufficient time to justify itself fully as being worthy or otherwise of permanent support. At the same time, we hope other agencies, doing a work in no wise inferior, may not find that their funds are simply transferred to the larger scheme.

A good man of the last generation said that to exchange testimony to truth for testimony against evil is a fall from heaven to earth. The fall of the first of the seven churches—the first fall of the sevenfold Church—was of this character. Ephesus could not bear them which were evil; she had tried them which said they were apostles and were not, and had found them liars. These things are mentioned to her praise. But she had left her first love. That was her fall. No other church, not even Thyatira nor Laodicea, is said to have fallen; but the first step to Laodicean lukewarmness and self-complacency is the fall from first love at Ephesus.

Works and labour and endurance, hatred of them that are evil, and denunciation of false apostles are not enough to satisfy the heart which loves with an everlasting love. No service to man makes up for lack of love to God. "This is life eternal, that they might know Thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom Thou hast sent." "That I may know HIM, and the power of his resurrection," must precede "the fellowship of his sufferings," and only in that power and that fellowship can man so be served that God is glorified.

Nowadays, when the sceptics and infidels are nominally within the Church, there is special need to try the spirits, whether they be of God, to try them which say they are apostles and are not. But love alone infallibly distinguishes between the false and true. And while the so-called social gospel is being diligently preached, it is very needful to hold fast the Gospel of the glory of the blessed God, and to hold forth the word of life. But love is the life of testimony. Nothing less than personal love to Jesus Himself will discern false apostles, or preach Jesus and the resurrection with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven.

"A Call to Humiliation and Prayer in connection with the Evangelisation of the World" has been issued by the Church Missionary Society. The meetings will be held on Thursday, July 14, in the afternoon and evening, at the Church Missionary Society House and Sion College, Thames Embankment. Copies of the memorandum, giving details, may be had from the Publication Department of the Society, Salisbury-square, E.C. It is hoped that simultaneous meetings, with the same object in view, will be held in many other centres.

The memorandum already mentioned says:

The Lord appears to be rousing the consciences of many of his people, specially in England and in America, to a sense of personal responsibility with respect to the evangelisation of the world. The committee have publicly announced their readiness to send forth into the mission field ALL who offer (provided they possess the spiritual, intellectual, and physical qualifications which the committee regard as essential for the work), assured that if God supplies the men and women He will also furnish the means.

And yet, in spite of the urgency of the demand, the growing interest, and the avowed purpose of the committee, offers of service—though, thank God, on the increase—are not being made in anything like the number which, humanly speaking, the exigencies of the case imperatively demand. Perhaps the warning "Ye have not because ye ask not," may indicate the reason of the lack of supply. Hence this very earnest and affectionate invitation is issued, not merely to the friends of the C.M.S., but to all who yearn for the time to be hastened when the Gospel shall be proclaimed as a witness among all nations, to unite in fervent, persevering, believing and very definite prayer for a mighty working of the Holy Ghost among us, and that He may stir many whom He has qualified to respond promptly to this appeal for personal service.

Our friends across the water have a way of turning even their holidays to an immediate practical account. We note that in connection with the Bible Institute in Chicago, of which Mr. Moody is president, special classes have this summer been formed, to meet the needs of ministers, teachers, and others who may wish to study music-reading and singing, with the idea of improving the service of song in their congregations. Such students will have the advantage of attending daily lectures on the Bible and instruction in methods of Christian work by experienced teachers. Many of us can look back upon holidays as periods of real mental conquest and spiritual profit, in which thought on new lines accompanied the enjoyment of fresh scenes, the entire man being stimulated and rested the while.

We commend to general imitation this example of our American neighbours. If city pastors would be the more humane and gentle for a brief stay among quiet country folk, assuredly many a provincial minister whose small affairs tend to cramp his sympathies and contract his vision, would be the better for a brief term in the school of city life and work. Our theological institutions and training colleges might do something to facilitate the turning of holidays to profitable account by ministers. Such as cannot see foreign countries might by a little arrangement be helped in the acquisition of new stores of knowledge and the development of additional powers and faculties in their work for God.

Last week's Friend contained a very thoughtful criticism of the Archbishop of Canterbury's recent address at St. James's Hall on the theory of foreign missions. The main point raised by that address was:—Are the religions of the heathen world good or bad? Do Buddhism, Hinduism, and Mohammedanism prepare men for Christ? "Christians," said the Archbishop, "must go to these people acknowledging that God has brought them a long way on the road to Him." By way of reply our contemporary inquires:—

Does Brahmanism make righteous? Does Buddhism convert a sinner? Does Mohammedanism conduct to a heaven of purity? No. It is by turning the back to the false prophets of these false faiths that there is the gift of "new life" to the Oriental. Instead of seeking to persuade the convert that Christianity is something like other religions, only somewhat better, and thus induce him to accept a new creed, it is by exactly the opposite process the wise man wins—by showing the vital issues that are at stake, the antagonisms of the true to the false, the greatness of the difference between being "born again," and the Gnosticism that never saves.

These are the arguments that Christ teaches. The Brahman needs to see that the difference is very great, that it is worth his while to break caste, to tread under foot this world's regard, to forsake all that he hath to win Christ, and be made righteous. It is not the question as to which is the easiest path, but it is, as Christ puts it, "counting the cost" between the world and the value of a soul.

We recently called attention to the serious adverse balance in the accounts of the British and Foreign Bible Society. The July issue of the Society's Reporter sets forth a two-fold scheme and effort which have been arranged by the Committee. First, they ask for the sum of £50,000 to enable them to meet present needs and secure against possible deficit in the immediate future. Secondly, they wish to raise the general annual income by £25,000 a year. Towards the first effort there have been some noble promises, but it is still open to those who have wealth to come to the help of the Society. The endeavour to raise the annual income offers special opportunities for such as can only give on a small scale. Contributions have not of late years kept pace with the demands which have been created at home and abroad by the spread of education and missions.

As the world was never so open as to-day to receive the light of the Gospel, the obligation of the Christian Church to forward Bible work is more pressing than ever before. In a recent circular the Committee of the Society says:

Translations of at least a part of the Bible have been made available in three hundred languages. Through the expansion of the Society's own field and the growth of missions, not less than seventy translations and revisions at a time now claim attention and outlay. About four million Bibles, Testaments, and Books of Scripture are required for each year's circulation. That is, thirteen thousand fresh copies in scores of different bindings, types, and languages must be provided and sent forth on every working day.

For several years past more than the whole new income of the Society has been spent in fresh copies of Scripture. In proper cases, large grants of these books have been made free. For other copies a price has been asked, but one well within the purchasing power of those for whom the volume was intended. In mission fields these prices are necessarily very low, and the aggregate proceeds of all sales have not sufficed to meet the cost of carrying on an almost world-wide work. But the committee could not find it in their hearts to cut short supplies of the Book which men everywhere need, and for which they ask more widely than ever.

For the Society to curtail its supply to Christian institutions at home or in the colonies would be as regrettable as for its circulation to be reduced on the continent of Europe or in the mission fields of Asia and Africa. We sincerely trust that the funds will speedily be so replenished as to allow of much needed expansion in the work of sending God's Word throughout the world.

An esteemed correspondent, who resided in India for a period of forty years, writes to us:

If a real census of opinion could be generally and honestly taken, the opium advocates would be in a grand and unenviable minority. Opium is not admitted into gaols in India. Do the criminal classes suffer in consequence? By no means. Neither is it used by the Sikhs or Rājpoots (as alleged) more than by the other classes. It was long ere we saw the evil and cruelty of "Suttee" in India. Yet it was easily abolished. The same of the human "Meriah" sacrifices, and of the evils of child marriages and enforced widowhood. Yet they at last were remedied, as the opium habit will be.

They were matters of humanity. In the case of opium, the Indian Government is only fighting for its revenue. The opium question needs no "experts;" it is a matter of simple observation and common sense, though the opium advocates seek to misrepresent it as a case of "misdirected sentiment," and not of grievous evil and wrong.

The Echo, quoting from a Berlin journal, states that Buddhism is steadily losing its hold upon the population year by year in Japan. The foreign correspondent calls attention to the remarkable fact that while the population has continued to increase largely, there has been in the province of Kyeto, the headquarters of the system, a falling-off in the number of temples from 3737 to 3256 within the last fourteen years. It is added that, in addition to the successful work of the Protestant and Romanist missionaries, even the Greek Church is making converts rapidly.

THE LORD'S DAY IN FRANCE.—During recent years a great revival of interest in the Lord's Day has taken place in France. In the press and at public meetings the subject has been warmly discussed, and among the results are a considerable reduction in railway traffic and postal work, and the voluntary closing of many shops and warehouses. These are largely due to the action of a Popular League founded about three years ago, the members of which have claimed the weekly rest on hygienic and moral grounds. At the meeting recently in Paris of the French Society for Sunday Observance, it was pointed out that in proportion as the Sunday is made free efforts must be put forth to employ it well by sanctifying it. Already a great step has been registered by the plea for weekly rest being replaced by Sunday rest. The particular day is recognised, and its opportunities of worship must now be pressed upon the people. An oration of great power on God's Day, God's Book, and God's Son was delivered at the meeting referred to by Père Hyacinthe Loyson.

Sacerdotalism.

He is the truest friend of any institution who calmly but fearlessly points out its defects and its aberrations from the way of truth. The ostrich policy of shutting one's eyes to patent facts may answer for a time, but in the end it is disastrous. "Open rebuke is better than secret love," when rebuke is needed. The only essential qualification is that the rebuke or protest be uttered in a brotherly and Christian spirit.

The adherents of most of our great Church systems are impatient of criticism from the outside; they do not regard it as disinterested. We have now and then been rewarded by strenuous protests from some of our readers attached to the Church of England, when we have felt impelled to remark unfavourably on some display of what we regarded as un-Christian and unseemly behaviour on the part of some of its ministers, in their relations with other bodies of Christian believers, or as departures from the faith of the Gospel. We trust that the utterance to which we would now briefly refer, coming as it does from a staunch member of that Church, will be heeded by all those whom it chiefly concerns. We have not infrequently had to differ strongly from Archdeacon Farrar's public teaching on certain aspects of Bible doctrine, believing as we do that the views he holds and has expressed are fraught with danger to souls. But we have nothing except hearty commendation for the words of strong protest and warning he utters in the current Contemporary Review in a short article on "Sacerdotalism." It was high time that some voice of authority from within the pale of the Established Church should be heard on this question.

The Archdeacon does not mince matters; he recognises that the time for speaking out has fully come. He says:—

Views are now commonly maintained in the Church of England which were decidedly rejected, not only by the entire Evangelical party at all times, but even by the acknowledged leaders of the High Church party twenty or thirty years ago. Rites and ceremonies are now frequently practised in English churches which are in defiance of the spirit of the Prayer-book, and bishops are either powerless or unwilling to restrain a license in the modes of conducting public worship which not long since would have been universally condemned as extravagant and intolerable.

I do not know whether the present condition of things, with its clerical license and autonomy, accounts for the profound indifference to religious questions now displayed by the mass of the laity. It has been said, and in many parishes it is certainly true, that far less than ten per cent. of the working classes go regularly to church; and there are evidences that Sunday rest and Sunday worship are losing hold on increasing multitudes in the upper and middle classes. But if Disestablishment comes upon us—and it may come with all the suddenness of other great changes—the laity should claim a considerable voice in the settlement of many disputed questions. If they hold aloof from the Church altogether, and if important matters of doctrine and practice are left exclusively to the dominant majority of the clergy, I do not see how it will be possible to avert, on the one hand, the danger of a serious disruption, or, on the other, of an entire dissociation of the intellect of England from the faith which many will not take the trouble to clear from the false and alien accretions to it.

These outspoken words are not the utterance of an alarmist, but of one who has been generally credited with the excessive charity which is characteristic of the Broad Churchman. Dr. Farrar is a student of ecclesiastical history, and he sees clearly enough that the sacerdotal spirit is not only in deadly opposition to the teaching of the New Testament but that it inevitably breeds religious indifference both among the toiling and moiling masses of the people, and among those in whom intellect dominates the emotional faculty. Priestism, whether in its Anglican or Romish guise, has nothing to offer that will satisfy the heart aspirations or the spiritual necessities of thinking men and women.

If the Church of England allows itself to become the tool of a priestly party that cares for nothing but to keep the people in spiritual subservience and servitude, it must be prepared to have its candlestick removed from its place and its glory given to another. Archdeacon Farrar is prophet enough to see that that must be the ultimate outcome of the Ritualistic system that is spreading so rapidly within its borders. Every true-hearted member of the Church of England, and all who wish to see it retain its power of usefulness as a spiritual factor, ought to strain every nerve to purge it of the Popish leaven that is working such untold harm within its borders.

If "the bishops are either powerless or unwilling" to exercise the practical oversight that is so obviously called for in such a crisis of their Church's history, they are undermining the very foundations of their existence. All human systems carry within themselves the elements of decay and death. The voices of history and of nature alike tell that these can only be averted by the continual infusion of new life. What are our churches need is less dependence on machinery, however venerable, and a more earnest desire for a constant renewing by the power of the Holy Ghost.

A MEMORIAL TO GAWIN KIRKHAM.

A meeting was held last Thursday evening in Exeter Hall (Lower) of members and friends of the Open-Air Mission, in commemoration of the life and labours of the late devoted and beloved secretary, Mr. Gawin Kirkham.

Sir S. A. Blackwood, who presided, referred in touching terms to the fact that but a few weeks before his death Mr. Kirkham had stood on the same platform, and presented the annual report of the Mission. Then he was full of life and vigour, and no one thought that so soon in the same hall his friends would be assembled to mourn his loss. It only remained for them as Christians and open-air preachers to seek to carry on the great work of spreading the Gospel in the same true, earnest spirit which at all times characterised their late brother. His own recollections of Mr. Kirkham extended over a long period of years, as he had been associated with his earliest years of life and Christian service. He was not only an earnest and devoted preacher, but had proved himself a splendid leader of men. His picture of the "Broad and Narrow Way" had been the means, through his excellent interpretation of it, of the conversion of many souls. It was gratifying to note that Archdeacon Sinclair had issued an appeal on behalf of the fund of the Open-Air Mission, and had referred to their dear brother as having possessed undaunted courage and self-devotion to the cause of Christ.

General Sir Robert Phayre followed with a warm and loving review of Mr. Kirkham's career. He urged the importance of forming a fund for the benefit of the widow, and moved:—"That this meeting of members and friends of the Open-Air Mission, desiring to record its deep gratitude to Almighty God for the Christ-like life and apostolic labours of the late secretary, Mr. Gawin Kirkham, hereby resolves to institute a fund in his memory, to be called 'The Gawin Kirkham Memorial Fund,' the proceeds of which shall be applied for the benefit of Mrs. Kirkham." This the speaker maintained, would be but a just and generous recognition of the unwearying labour and constant self-sacrifice of him who had been called to his rest.

Mr. James E. Mathieson, in seconding this resolution, gave some reminiscences of the past and referred to the untiring zeal and earnest devotion which characterised Mr. Kirkham's service. Lord Kinnaird supported the resolution, expressing his high sense of the debt which Christian workers generally owed to Mr. Kirkham, who had led the way in the revival of open-air preaching, whereby many who would not have entered a place of worship were reached by the Gospel message.

The resolution was unanimously adopted; and after brief tributes by Messrs. R. C. Morgan, W. H. Seagram, and other personal friends the proceedings terminated.

Colonel Morton, Conference Hall, Mildmay, N., has consented to become hon. sec. and treasurer to the Fund, to which Lord Kinnaird and Mr. James E. Mathieson have each contributed £20, and other smaller sums have been received.

THE MILDMAY CONFERENCE,

JUNE 21–23, 1892.

Subject: THE WAYS OF GOD, IN JUDGMENT, PROVIDENCE, GRACE.

(CONTINUED.)

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

After a few moments of silent prayer, a hymn s sung, and Sir S. A. Blackwood read a rtion from Exodus xxxiii., briefly commenting the revelation God was pleased to make to oses of his ways and of his glory. Prayer lowed by Rev. E. N. Thwaites. The first lress of the evening was then given.

God in Providence.

Rev. E. A. STUART, M.A.

It was a wonderful vision that appeared to the n of Buzi by Chebar's banks. He was by birth riest, and oftentimes as a boy he must have ard his father's description of those strange, sterious beings embroidered on the costly ngings and carved on the rich cedar wood of door of the sanctuary. He had dreamt, it y be, of the day when he would be permitted cross that threshold and minister before God the sanctuary. But now these old dreams had nished. He was thirty years of age, the nonical age, the age at which, had he been at me, he would have entered on the priestly ties. But now he is a captive, and sitting by river Chebar, in a strange land, he meditates these things—on the glory at Jerusalem he uld never see. But how little did he know of purpose of Divine Providence. Though he uld never minister in the earthly temple, God chosen him to be the great missionary phet. He saw not the glory in the holy place, t he was to see it carried to divers lands and ples.

Now, in this wondrous first chapter of Ezekiel's phecy there are two principles brought out on which I would lay stress by way of preface what I have to say on the ways of God in pro-dence. The prophet saw a great fire come m the north, burning all in its pathway; and it came down he saw it was not roaming haz-ard, but that the strange wheels were being ved by something like those mysterious ures of which he had heard from his father. d as it rolled onward, he lifted up his eyes, and , above the flame and the smoke, a Throne, One sat on it in form like unto the Son of n. There you have the two fundamental nciples I would have you grasp in speaking the providence of God. I believe these cherubic ms symbolise

THE JUST AND HOLY POWER OF GOD.

We find them mentioned seven times in the ord of God, and on each occasion the same ng is symbolized. You see the cherubim the gates of Paradise, after man's ex-sion—the just, holy power of God keeping sinful man. You see in Psalm lxxx. that m between the cherubim the law is given Israel by the same just, holy power of d. Then in Exodus xxv. you see these cheru-n above the ark, gazing on the blood-sprinkled rcy seat, and covering the law kept perfectly act. No sword is there, for the just, holy ver of God is satisfied. Then in Exodus xxvi. u see the same cherubim embroidered on the l and inner hangings of the holy place, where priest alone might enter, by blood, and under e shadow of these wings. The same just, holy wer which keeps the sinner out now takes him, his representative priest, under its wing. Then in 1 Kings vi. we see these cherubim of piece of beaten gold again overshadowing most holy place. You see again in Ezekiel's on the same cherubim, the same just, holy ver of God, rolling forward these wheels of vidence. And finally, in Rev. iv. you see the rubim again, and hear them cry, "Holy, holy, y, Lord God Almighty." And when in the owing chapter the church sings the song of mption, the cherubim say, "Amen." Our se would be lost were it not for the Amen of just, holy power of God.

The first fundamental truth, therefore, is just this, that these great wheels of providence are rolled onward by the just, holy power of God. The second truth is this, that above all the smoke and flame there is a Throne not untenanted. One sits there in appearance as a man. Get hold of these two truths. However dark and mysterious providence may be, it is brought about by the just, holy power of God; it is directed by a Man on the Throne with a brother's heart of love. Having in view these two principles, you are able to study calmly the ways of God in providence.

AS TO MAN IN GENERAL.

First, the ways of God in providence with regard to man in general. Even St. Paul was puzzled by the ways of providence. In Romans viii. he has been laying down so clearly the full, finished salvation through Jesus Christ, that you might fancy nothing remains save to step into glory. But in verse 17, when he has reached the highest climax of his argument, he is obliged to throw in, by way of parenthesis, "If so be that we suffer with Him, that we may also be glorified." There is a mystery here. Salvation is finished, perfect, complete, yet, nevertheless, there is suffering. This leads on to those groanings seen in the following verses—that of creation in verse 22, of the believer (we ourselves) in verse 23, and of the Spirit itself in verse 26. Our comfort in view of all this is, "We know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose." What is that purpose? That we should be "conformed to the image of his Son." What is that image? Simply this—self-sacrifice. Man was designed by God to be the redeemer of creation, but he failed, and God came down, and by suffering and sacrifice achieved his purpose. Hence all the ways of God in providence lead up to this, that we should be "conformed to the image of his Son," that we should be as a lamb for sacrifice, should take up our cross and follow Him. Oh, that we could realise God's purpose for us—to subject self, to deny self, to crucify self! The easy way so many speak of the cross shows that they know nothing about it. They talk of their temper as a cross. That is a sin, not a cross. I was asked by a young lady, "What is the difference between a care and a cross? because we are told to cast our care on Him, but to take up our cross." Well, some things may be both, but a care is that which worries and troubles you, while a cross is that which crucifies you.

PROVIDENCE AND THE NATION.

Now, as to the ways of God in providence with regard to a nation. There has been one nation peculiarly dealt with by God, and that is Israel. His purpose was thus declared, "Ye are my witnesses." This purpose He had in view from the beginning, and in order to it He had chosen and trained them. Looking back, we see the Hamite races fierce and warlike, falling into idolatry, despising the good gods and worshipping the bad from fear of them; that is demon worship. Then we see the sons of Japheth also falling into idolatry, but worshipping the good gods rather than the bad. The Shemite races keep the knowledge of the true God. Out of these God called Abraham to maintain a testimony to monotheism; and through him God reared a nation with wonderful characteristics, and placed it, geographically, in the centre of the ancient civilisations. God showed that nation his redemption and revelation, and so formed and fitted them as his witnesses.

But now, coming down to later times, we see another nation slowly formed in wondrous ways; so formed that its enemies have said, "These men never know when they are beaten." A marvellous combination of Anglo-Saxons, Celts, Danes, Normans. A nation to which are granted wondrous dominion, great wealth, world-wide commerce. Now, if God said of the Jewish nation, "Ye are my witnesses," do you not think He may say the same of our own great nation? Has He not fitted us to be the great evangelising nation of this day? I thoroughly believe if Paul were here to-day, he would pray again that prayer of Colossians i.: "That ye might be filled with the knowledge of his will, in all wisdom and spiritual understanding;" that ye might know the universality of the Gospel and our part in spreading it to all nations. Alas! the Jewish nation, left to itself, lost its high privilege by neglecting self-sacrifice; and so the English nation needs to learn the same lesson of self-sacrifice, and rise to the wondrous purpose of God, else it, too, may lose its high privilege as God's witness in the earth.

PROVIDENCE AND THE BELIEVER.

Now, one other point with regard to ourselves individually. We want to know the ways of God in providence for ourselves. How can we learn? The first thing necessary is obedience; we never learn until we are ready to do. "In the Mount of the Lord it shall be seen;" but Abraham did not see until he obeyed and arose and went into the land of Moriah at the bidding of God. The first step, then, is obedience, and the second is perseverance. Abraham had not only to obey, but he had to keep on obeying to the last extremity; then was Jehovah-Jireh revealed. Further, you must know resurrection power. It was after three days' journey that Abraham knew Jehovah-Jireh. You must know something of that. I believe in the Holy Ghost. I believe He guides his children as much as He guided them in the wilderness. He guided in four ways. He led them forth (Ps. cvii. 9); He led them through (Ps. cvi. 9); He led them about (Deut. xxxii. 10); and He led them on (Ps. lxxviii. 53). Thus He led the children of Israel; and how did He lead them? By the pillar of cloud and fire—the outward symbols of the Divine presence. Have you noticed how implicitly they obeyed? Read Num. ix. 22, 23, and see how they obeyed the guiding of the cloud. Have we any guidance answering to that? We have. Our cloud is the Holy Ghost; and full oft as of old He is light to us while darkness to the Egyptians, who do not understand the leading of the Spirit. But the great difficulty is that we confuse our will with His leading. How are we to distinguish? I remember how the godly Bishop of Norwich took me aside the evening before my ordination, and said: "You will be asked to-morrow, Do you believe you are called by the Holy Spirit to the ministry? Unless you are, I can make you a minister of the Church, but He alone can make you a minister of Christ. Now," he said, "I give you three points to ponder: first, is your will entirely resigned to God's will in this matter? Second, what is your purpose in seeking ordination? Is it the glory of God and the benefit of men? Third, look round about at your circumstances—the education, gifts, and training you possess for this ministry." These words have ever since been a great help to me. So I would have you, my friends, consider at all times if your will is resigned to his, if your purpose is his glory, and if you have been fitted by Him for something to which you believe He is leading.

Then, further, God gave his people of old a second help in the silver trumpets. There might be those busy in the tents or elsewhere who were not at the moment watching the cloud, but the sound of the trumpet would arouse and recall them. So God has given us two silver trumpets, "the law and the testimony"; if any speak not in accord with these, there is no light in them. Pay heed to no one who speaks contrary to the Spirit and the Word.

Again, in Num. x. 33 we find the Ark of the Covenant, type of the Lord Jesus Christ, was to be a guide. When it moved forward, the people followed. So we have a further help in the question at all times, What would Jesus do? Where would He guide us? That, surely, ought to be a wonderful help in understanding the leading of the Holy Spirit.

But we have not yet exhausted the means of guiding. God is pleased to give one more. Read Num. x. 29-31, and see how Moses told Hobab to come with them and be to them

"instead of eyes." God, that is, gives us our common-sense. The pillar of cloud and fire, the silver trumpets, the Ark going before, will not lead contrary to common-sense. Hobab could tell them where to pitch their tents in the desert, and where to avoid. So I believe God would have his people act. Thus we have a fourfold help in following the ways of providence: the guidance of the Holy Spirit, the word and testimony, the blessed Lord Jesus, and sanctified common-sense. So, learning to deny ourselves, we may live for others and be conformed to the image of his Son.

Purpose in Providence.

DR. H. SINCLAIR PATERSON.

The providence of God is his "most holy, wise, and powerful preserving and governing of all his creatures and all their actions." It is, first of all, most holy, for God is righteous in all his ways. He tempteth no man, nor can He be tempted of any man. For them that do not understand all his works we may lay it down as a first principle that God cannot, under any circumstances, be the author of sin. He may, for his own wise purposes, permit it; He does deal with it and punish it. Moreover, He who seeth the end from the beginning carries on his purposes from of old. His providence is most persevering. His designs, his purposes, his decrees are irresistible; and all point in one direction, the manifestation of the glory of Him whose name is Love.

About the beginning of this century there was an interesting, though cruel, experiment carried out. A child born in the North was trained by his father without any knowledge of God. So far as possible every avenue was closed whereby the young mind could arrive at any knowledge of the existence of God. He became very eminent in certain directions, but at his death he left behind a series of essays, one of which proved to be an argument on the existence of a God. He had reached the conclusion from observation that there must be some infinite intelligence above the world, causing, controlling, and ruling. But, on the other hand, he saw signs in the misery and wretchedness all around, indicating that this intelligence was hindered somehow in action. If there was a God,

HE MUST BE OMNIPOTENT,

and He ought to be benevolent. The two seemed to him to go together, yet the indications were otherwise. So he concluded that omnipotence was restrained by the presence of something around him in the universe. Poor John Stuart Mill! he was in the condition which an old countrywoman of mine expressed thus, speaking of another: "That man is very far back in his information; he does not know that Adam fell." He did not know that sin had entered the world. There lies the explanation of a seeming contradiction. The explanation of many things in providence we do not understand is to be found in sin brought here by the enemy of mankind. I have nothing to do here and now with the origin of sin. I give that the go-by. Sin did not originate here, it was introduced from without. But if we do not know its origin, we know sin itself. God's first dealings with sin on the earth we find, not in the first promise, as some have termed it, but in the first curse of God. "I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel." There is the first judgment, a judgment taken on behalf of man when sin came in. We have to thank God for it. If God had allowed friendship between the devil and the woman, what would the condition of things have been? "I will put enmity!" God ranged Himself on man's side. Thus the Gospel comes in the first curse—the curse pronounced on our great enemy. In that curse God undertakes to be our friend, and to crush the foe by sending his own Son.

There is a resemblance, as you have noticed, no doubt, between the closing chapter of the Apocalypse and the opening chapter of Genesis. Once more man is in Paradise, and has right to the tree of life. But there is one thing absent; there is no flaming sword, for judgment is past; and one thing is present, there is "the Lamb as it had been slain," whose death for sin has brought about man's restoration to God. I have said before, and I say it again, God only knows two men—the first Adam, and the second, the Lord from heaven; and our relation with the one or the other

DETERMINES OUR FUTURE.

United to the first, we are under the curse; united to the second, we are under blessing. Now, the whole mystery of providence, in all its seeming contradictions, has had to do with this; and leaving out of sight the irruption of sin, and the consequent ruin, you cannot possibly understand God's ways in providence. All through, God has been dealing with sin, and in fulness of time He sent his Son to make an end of sin. That Son said, "Now is the prince of this world judged.' But we must remember this world is not as it came from the hand of God. People speak of it as a good, fair, perfect world. It was; it is not: "Cursed be the ground for thy sake." Of what it was at first, and how it came into existence, I know as much, or as little, as the most eminent geologist. I see things as they exist. I know there is coal for fuel and lime for building. I see things prepared for man's use. There is the providence of God in preparing this world for his creatures to exist upon it. What that preparation implies may be seen in the minutest things. Take a grain of cotton seed. Put it under the microscope and see the curl on it. It is put there for use; without it not a thread could be woven. I do not believe in the conclusions of Darwin (far from it), but no one gives fuller evidence of a God than this eminent and painstaking observer. His books are full of such things, and in ages to come, when his theory is forgotten, his books will still be storehouses of facts for the student of God's works in nature, proving as they do that the mineral, vegetable, and animal kingdom have all been PREPARED WITH ALL-WISE DESIGN.

I am not an Agnostic, but I admit we cannot find God by any chemical or microscopical process. We cannot by searching find out God; but God has come to us and revealed Himself to us.

Moreover, God's ways are all loving; although our perception of this depends on the position we take. Look at a stained glass window from the outside, and it is nothing but confusion; look at it from the inside, and it is a thing of beauty and design. So, stand inside the Cross, and we see God's work is perfect. His purposes are what? To make us happy? I do not believe it. Certainly we are to go about doing good, relieving suffering and distress; but to make this the great end is to go right against the purpose and plan of God. God's purpose is to glorify Himself in the redemption of sinners, to redeem a people to Himself; and towards this end his providence ever works. Already the verse has been quoted: "All things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose." That is full of deep meaning, though we oftentimes find it hard to accept. Yet in searching we find it is true. For if we love Him who has first loved us, we will desire nothing better than that He will which is to glorify Himself, and we will earnestly seek Him to give us a purpose like his own; and anything that conduces to that end we will bear.

ACHIEVE HIS GRAND DESIGN,

Jesus said: "I am the true vine and my Father is the husbandman; every branch in Me that beareth not fruit He taketh away, and every branch that beareth fruit, He purgeth it, that it may bring forth more fruit." If it be fruitful, let it bear the knife that it may become more so. "Hast thou considered my servant Job, that there is none like him in the earth?" So the Lord asked Satan when he appeared among the sons of God. "Cut him down in his possessions, his family, and in his own flesh, and see the result," was the reply. What is the meaning of this? Satan had considered Job, knew that he was the best of men, and longed to destroy him. He is permitted to afflict him sorely. What is the end of it? "I abhor myself, and repent in dust and ashes"; thus the purging had done him good after all. So it was with Paul and the thorn in his flesh. So we, too, learn to say, "He doeth all things wisely and well," and if there remain things hard to understand in his providence, "What we know not now we shall know hereafter." Said the old countrywoman, "It's a grand doctrine, the doctrine of total depravity, if we only live up to it." She was right. We want to have no confidence in the flesh, to remember that "in us, that is in our flesh, dwelleth no good thing."

Jesus said, "Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing? and one of them shall not fall on the ground without your Father." And again He said, "Are not five sparrows sold for two farthings?" (that is one thrown in as of no value) "and not one of them" (even the one thrown into the bargain) "is forgotten before God." What a lesson on the care of God, who overrules all things.

THERE IS NO SUCH THING AS CHANCE.

I know the word occurs in the New Testament. "By chance a priest came down that way." That chance was the grandest opportunity of his life, had he only risen to it. Do we not often find the untoward or accidental circumstances may be turned to the best account? An eminent American naturalist once said, "A weed is a plant out of place"; but in riper years he said, "A weed is a plant not understood." So it is with many little things in our lives. In the providence of God all things are ordered and sure. It is ours to seek to understand his purpose, and lay ourselves alongside his plan. So it is in nature. What is science? It is thinking God's thoughts after Him. And power is found in laying ourselves along the line of Nature's working, and availing ourselves of the forces in existence. Which things are an allegory; for just so is spiritual power to be obtained. Science, true science, is the best evidence of God in nature. But when you raise a question you find little is really known. What is gravitation? Nobody can tell; we see its power, but cannot explain it. So it is in many things. Similarly

PROVIDENCE IS OFTEN MYSTERIOUS;

it cannot be explained. What then? It is ours to trust. Trust in God: that is the lesson of providence. Accept his Book, and you have the only possible explanation. Critics tell us it is wrong, but other men dig up evidences from the earth that it is right. They have been telling us that writing was unknown in the early ages when Moses wrote, but the bricks from Tel el-Amarna have replied that writing was known at an earlier date still. The critics and professors among them go on spinning theories, but when proof is demanded none is forthcoming. We get assertion plenty of it. "It must be so," according to the latest theory, and so it must be, but proof there is none. Yet day by day God is bringing up evidence from the buried past. We do not need that proof to strengthen our faith. We believe in God. But we rejoice that it is forthcoming to refute the deniers. Our trust is in God alone, who will bring us safe through our journey home at last.

THURSDAY MORNING.

The Ways of God in Grace.

After prayer, led by Rev. D. B. HANKIN, Psalm xcvi. was read by the entire congregation, those in the body of the building taking alternate verses with those in the gallery. Then Sir ARTHUR BLACKWOOD read a series of Scripture passages on the subject down for meditation.

REV. F. B. MEYER.

In the thought of the Eternal God, the whole race is summed up in two men—for in the Inspired Word the Lord from heaven is styled the Second Man. For the first man we must travers the glades of Eden to find him there unfallen or we must pass out of the garden with him, and beyond the barrier guarded by a flaming sword see him as he is cursed with travail, sorrow pain, and death. By our union with him in our natural birth we are all under the same conditions. We hasten to contemplate the Second Man under three different aspects.

We are in Jerusalem upon a day in which the whole city is stirred. In the abode of the Roman governor we concentrate our gaze upon two figures—the governor and a prisoner. One might have thought that the crowd, rent with fanaticism, desired to save some favourite from the hand of justice, but as a fact we find the governor himself pleading for the man before him as against the frenzy of the people. Pointing to him, Pilate said, Ecce Homo. Behold a man! Behold the Man! He had seen many a criminal, but never such a man as that. His attention was arrested by the evidence of suffering nobly borne; he had passed under the thong of the scourge which generally took all sense of manhood out of men. Again, though it was evident that he was innocent, yet he bore himself with strength and dignity. We who to-day look upon the dear face with other eyes, say: "O, lovely Man! Thou Man of men, who hast made men an redeemed men, our Lord, our Saviour, our Redeemer."

A second picture. It is early morning in Jerusalem, and a little group of men are gathered on the dew-bespangled grass. Was not a messenger sent to Bethany to call Mary, Martha, and Lazarus? After blessing the little company

CHRIST IS PARTED FROM THEM.

The attraction of his home is stronger than that of the earth which He loved, though it was the care of earth that was taking Him back to his home. Follow Him. Principalities and powers are ranged there, rank on rank, and tier on tier, angels and archangels. The Son of Man, now risen from the dead, passes through the hosts, and beyond their atmosphere, to the throne of God. No wonder that the Son of God should go back to God; the wonder is that He should take our nature with Him. He laid not hold upon angels, but He laid hold upon the seed of Abraham. So we see the Man in glory.

Looking into the open door, behold a third picture. We see the throne, and hear the chant of the angels and the elders. In a moment all is hushed, and a strong angel with a loud voice, as a herald, cries for one who is able to open the scroll of the Divine decree that lies in the right hand of the Supreme. No voice answers the challenge. At last the word goes forth that one has prevailed to open the book; and as we gaze there appears in the midst of the throne, not a lion, but a lamb; not a conqueror, but one who bore the marks of having been vanquished. A man—the Man—bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh, our Brother, is there, and He opens the book.

The fact that Jesus Christ is in the heart of the throne as a man, indicates, of course, his Divine nature—his Deity. When He walked our earth in the guise of human flesh He was very God of very God. His Father, in the resurrection crowned his assertions of oneness with Himself, and now He is CROWNED IN THE THRONE OF GOD.

We feel that God's own witness is incontestable to the essential Deity of the Man whom we love.

The Throne speaks of holiness—the throne of the holy God. As we stand before it to-day, we might well have dread, were it not for the rainbow that encircles it. We only see half rainbows in this world; the perfect circle is reserved for heaven. I am told that there is never a rainbow except when the storm-cloud is retreating; we, as we look up and see the bow, think of the dark tempest which spent its force upon Calvary, and that we are forever to the windward of the storm.

Once more, the Throne speaks of rule. If Christ is crowned with power, we too shall be; He has made us kings and priests. We are not simply to look to Jesus as an ideal, but to believe that He is willing to repeat Himself in us, and that by the grace of God we shall sit with Him in the heavenly places and share his reign. When the judgment shall sit, and the books are opened, and the rest of mankind are marshalled before the great white throne, it will add to the horror of the lost that the Father hath committed all judgment to the Son; that He judges the world in righteousness by a Man; that the judgment of eternity is transacted by One who combines in Himself the omniscience and other attributes of Deity, along with the tenderness, love, sympathy, and gentleness of man.

Colonel Morton mentioned the marriage question in Malta as a proper subject for prayer. He praised God that it had been determined that no ordinance on the subject should be assented to by the Government of Malta pending a reference to the judicial committee of the Privy Council. He asked that God would confound the Popish politics and "frustrate their knavish tricks." There were also requests for prayer that God would pour out his Spirit upon Germany, and interpose for the deliverance of the Jews and Stundists of Russia.

REV. EVAN H. HOPKINS.

I call your attention to Matt. xxviii. 18, not to speak of the two-fold command, "Go ye into all the world, and make disciples of all nations," but to the two-fold fact, "All power is given unto me in heaven and on earth," and "Lo, I am with you all the days."

An open heaven reveals an enthroned Christ—an enthroned Redeemer. He is not only enthroned, but invested with all the blessings of the covenant for his people. "We see Jesus crowned with glory and honour." His three names, "Jesus, Christ, Lord," like the offices "Prophet, Priest, and King," were not unfolded all at once. Jesus tells of the humanity—perfect man. All along He is Christ, and yet there was a definite movement of time when that name was unfolded. "Whom say ye that I am?" inquired our Lord of his disciples. Peter answered: "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." The Lord's rejoinder was, "Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-Jona; for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven."

Jesus having received of the Father the promise of the Holy Ghost (Acts ii. 33), the testimony of his disciples was, "Let all the house of Israel know assuredly that God hath made Him both Lord and Christ" (v. 36.) In Phil. ii. we learn that God highly exalted Him, and gave unto Him the name which is above every name, "that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father" (v. 11). When our Lord said, "All power is given unto Me," He was speaking of a prerogative that had recently been bestowed upon Him, proclaiming something the disciples did not know, but which it was important they should know.

For the eternal Son of God to become Son of man involved a tremendous descent. He was made in the likeness of men, and became obedient unto the death on the cross. Lower He could not go. At death He passed out of the conditions of trial that belong to humanity, and the resurrection was

THE BEGINNING OF HIS ASCENSION.

He continued to be a man, and as the Son of man he received the gift of supreme authority and universal dominion. All power was given unto Him, not as He was before coming down from heaven, but as He was in the completeness of his atoning sacrifice, and the perfection of his glorified humanity, as the Second Man, the last Adam.

The first man failed and lost the gift of dominion which had been bestowed on Him in Paradise. The Second Adam regained the dominion, and the fact we have to grasp is that He holds all power for the entire Church, to exercise it through us and in union with us. The whole administration of the Kingdom of God has been committed into the hands of Jesus Christ. That is the first thing we have to grasp in entering upon missionary work. We are not equipped for our service until we have grasped this fact firmly and intelligently.

The other fact is the perpetual presence of Christ—"Lo, I am with you alway." First of all this is a real presence—not a mere idea, not a figure of speech, not a memory of the past. It is a reality and a present fact. Many of us have regarded it as a promise to be pleaded in prayer; it is not such, but a revealed fact to step out upon.

Also it is a uniting presence. The secret of real unity is found here. As we are we appoach nearer to our brethren. This must be the Lord's doing, for unity cannot be manufactured.

DRAWN CLOSE TO CHRIST,

Then the presence of Christ is sanctifying. There is only one centre of holiness, and that is God. "Sanctify yourself;" that is, set yourself apart unto God. How does God sanctify us? By appropriating us unto Himself. Then comes the work of transformation of the character, of the life.

Lastly, the presence of Christ is energising. Not only all power and authority, but all enduement for service has been put into the hands of Christ for us. Have we taken our position in the body of the mystical presence of Christ? Then it is our privilege to live under the Divine anointing. "Ye have an unction from the Holy One." From Him the holy oil descends. God the Father has blessed us with all spiritual blessings in Christ Jesus. There may be tremendous exertions and painful effort, but without power from on high what follows? Failure, defeat, disappointment, exhaustion; but when God is working, and the Divine power is active in our souls, our strength will not fail, but the supply will be continuous, and there will be certain victory.

Rev. J. S. Hill prayed for God's providential care of the missionaries in Uganda.

AFTERNOON GATHERINGS.

Jewish Missions

engaged the minds and stirred the sympathies of those who filled the large hall on Tuesday afternoon. Prayer was made by Rev. J. Lewis and Mr. J. E. Mathieson, that awakened interest in Israel's spiritual welfare may be largely extended.

The striking words in Rom. xi., about God's purposes of grace towards Israel, were read by the Chairman, Mr. T. A. Denny, as a preface to his brief but hearty appeal for increased, persevering, hopeful gospelling among the scattered people. In dealing with the subject of

ISRAEL'S EVANGELISATION,

Rev. David Baron expressed his earnest belief that God has ordered the course of the people's wanderings during the centuries of their dispersion, with a two-fold purpose in leading them to dwell among the so-called Christian nations of Europe, namely, in order to a mutual witness for God between Jew and Gentile. On the part of the latter, however, God's words to their representative city (Babylon) are painfully applicable: "I was wroth with my people... Thou didst show them no mercy" (Isa. xlvii. 6). Finding much excuse for the Jews' present lamentable condition in the indifference of the Christian Church towards them, the earnest speaker pleaded that the subject of their future be raised to the level of God's thought. So far from the general impression being true that these people know all about Jesus Christ, and that they reject the facts, Mr. Baron's experience of the past six years, during which he has been privileged to put the New Testament into the hands of thousands of Jews, shows that while there are millions of that people who have never heard of Christ, the present time is a day of opportunity for Israel's evangelisation such as the Church of God has never had since apostolic times. He is further strongly of opinion that the soul needs of a scattered, wandering people can be better supplied through itinerating evangelists than in the localisation of missions. Reviewing his travels through scores of cities in Germany, Austria, North Africa, Palestine, and Asia Minor, this busy worker recollects but two places where the Jews as a community put obstacles in the way of New Testament distribution. It was delightful to hear Mr. Baron mention an instance where the Testament was preferred by a patriarchal Jew of Pergamos to money offered for services which he had rendered to the workers; while the precious book was also retained and hidden by others, at the risk of persecution and loss. Moreover, in one place, a beginning has been made in public meetings for the preaching of the Gospel, with attendances far beyond expectation and with some fruit unto God.

CHEERING WORDS ABOUT PALESTINE.

fell from Mr. Paul Dressler, who waxed very eloquent about the happy days which he and his wife had spent there for the Master. This brief address was crammed with incident, and may be characterised as a gladdening testimony concerning opened Jewish ears and hearts from the first day of labour, after a voyage to Jaffa and a season of sickness from fever in that city. Here over fifty houses were visited, and in every one of them a welcome was found for these bearers of good tidings in print. Some forty Jewesses, too, were gathered into a sewing-class and so great was their interest that they came together hours before the time fixed for meeting. The singing, and the reading of God's Word here, gained most attentive listeners. The power of real Christian intercourse and sympathy so won these women's hearts, that rabbinical opposition to their attendance at the class and the appointment of spies upon them, led only to attendance in increased numbers and to outspoken testimony regarding heart-satisfying benefits received. The Testament distribution carried on in Jaffa, Jerusalem, and Hebron was found uniformly acceptable in the Jewish colonies of those places. There is undoubtedly a spirit of expectancy among the people concerning help out of their abounding troubles, through a Messiah, which hope is highly favourable to the efforts of Christian workers moving among them; and many of the people are finding satisfaction in God's way for these heart-longings. Much curiosity has also been expressed among the recipients of the Testaments, concerning the motive of the promotion by English Christians of a movement involving a long and expensive journey on the part of agents, who come to give what these Jews happily regard as a valuable present; and the blessings called forth by the explanation that the senders are moved by their Lord to do good to his lost ones, are very impressive to those who hear them. Mr. Dressler believes that the Russian Jews now in Jerusalem are more dependent upon their rabbis, on account of the temporal relief which comes through the latter, than are Jews in any other part of the world; and he is therefore not favourably impressed with regard to the prospects of work among them. Remembering, however, the difficulties thrown in his own way, in the past, by repulsive exhibitions of nominal Christianity, he is prepared for some measure of discouragement, amid the abounding encouragements of his loved work, while esteeming highly the privilege of being sent out to labour among his people in Jerusalem, the city of his own spiritual birth.

MILDMAY MISSION TO JEWS.

Rev. John Wilkinson told of the extensive development which has taken place within the last few years in the work (Mildmay Mission to the Jews) which he has had at heart for more than forty years, and in the superintendence of the Mildmay Mission during the last sixteen years he has been so much honoured and used of God. He earnestly combated the assertion that Jews value only what they pay for, and found authority for his practice in the gratuitous distribution of Testaments from our Lord's saying, "I have given them thy word." "Freely ye have received," shall we add "cheaply sell"? Nay, God's words are "freely give." A sale at the lowest price would be considered, by a Jew, to carry a profit. "I believe," said Mr. Wilkinson, "that this New Testament distribution is the grandest movement of the Spirit of God in these closing days of our dispensation; for God seems, by this means, to be rapidly gathering his remnant from among Israel." Then came the touching story of eight weeks' travel by two young Jews—David and Raphael—now in hospital in a Russian province, through the prostrating effects of their long journey from Tiflis, half the time on foot, in order to obtain the Word of God. A New Testament had been brought to Tiflis by a young Jew who, within locked doors, answered the inquiries of fifteen other young Jews as to his possession, by designating it, "the latest discovery of the nineteenth century," for never before in his life had he seen one. After the company had been studying the book together, David and Raphael asked the loan of it, but the owner would not part with it until twenty roubles had been deposited as security for its safe return. David and Raphael sat up all night copying it; and just as they had written out the first four verses of John xvi., the persecutors entered and seized the manuscript. Despite boycotts by their community, the two pledged each other that, whether separated or not, they would confess Christ everywhere, at whatever cost; and they took the long journey referred to in order to obtain this "latest discovery of the nineteenth century." "Shall we," said the speaker, "withhold the New Testament from such as these?"

Mr. Wilkinson proceeded to tell how, in 1886, prayer was made for £5000, wherewith to purchase and distribute one hundred thousand Hebrew Testaments. Within a few months God sent the answer, and the hundred thousand were paid for in one cheque. By similar gifts from time to time, which Mr. Wilkinson was urged to spend as quickly and as wisely as possible, the field of operations has been extended far beyond the original expectation; and applications now come in from missionaries and private Christians in all parts of the world asking for grants of Testaments for distribution among the Jews. After statistics of quantities and cost, the former being now just over the half-million, Mr. Wilkinson mentioned, as one among many interesting facts, that Russian Jews are meeting together in clubs and cellars for the purpose of quietly studying together the Old Testament in the light of the New; and he closed with an earnest appeal that, in the interest of the whole world, evangelisation should begin with the Jew, in order that expectation of blessing may be grounded on the line of the Divine plan as revealed in God's Word.

At the close of the addresses, half-an-hour was devoted to brief prayers for Israel; many of those present in the body of the hall taking part in the supplications.

Soul-Winning.

The South Tent was crowded by evangelists and others on the Tuesday afternoon, to confer regarding the important subject of "How to win Souls for Christ." General Sir Robert Phayre opened the meeting with prayer. Mr. C. Russell Hurditch, who presided, read a number of passages in the Acts to illustrate how, in the early days of the Church, those to whom the truth was committed acted under various circumstances in bringing souls to God. He said the more one engaged in doing the work of an evangelist, the more there seemed to be to learn. Looking at the negative side of the question, he spoke of prayerlessness, careless living, and aimless preaching as serious hindrances to the work of winning souls. There is no limitation to God's power, but in this matter there is a manward as well as a Godward side.

Canon Christopher related some striking instances of conversions, simply through the hearing or reading of a verse or verses of Scripture. Among those he mentioned were the present Bishop of Liverpool, Toplady, and Cowper the poet. It is the simple Gospel that takes effect.

Mr. Charles Inglis said the evangelist should endeavour to find out what is the matter. Some are in a state of absolute indifference, and some in a condition of acute anxiety. The same dealing will not answer in both instances. Mr. W. Nobbs (Gloucester) bore testimony to the efficacy of the Gospel and personal dealing.

Rev. T. Richardson said the first great need of the preacher is to be used of the Spirit in convicting men of sin. Mr. R. C. Morgan, while emphasising the importance of the after-meeting, urged that our aim should be conversion by the Word preached.

Mr. Minor earnestly besought Christian people not to be too reluctant to extend a helping hand to the tried and tempted young convert when he is striving to set himself free from old associations, often at the risk of absolute starvation. Mr. J.E. Taylor found that there was a startling amount of ignorance among persons who had attended faithful preaching, and he suggested the presentation of the truth to them from points of view to which they had not been accustomed. Mr. F. Brewster urged the importance of being much in prayer before presenting the Gospel to others. Mr. Hind-Smith agreed with the opinion that there are diversities of operation, but the same Spirit, and advanced personal illustrations in its support. Mr. Charles Cook advised the use of a full Gospel in offering salvation—the thunders of the Law in the language of Jesus. Rev. R. Balgarnie, after some useful hints and stirring incidents, closed with prayer.

The Missionary Meeting, held on Wednesday afternoon, drew many earnest souls within the walls of the main hall, which was well filled by the time Mr. J. E. Mathieson rose with the announcement that Dr. Henry Soltau goes to India this autumn as a medical missionary; and some warm prayers for the latter and for other outgoing labourers found utterance by Rev. Frederick Wigram, of the Church Missionary Society, and Rev. Alexander Grant.

Referring to the missionary field of our enormous empire in Asia, Mr. Mathieson said he could not stand in any meeting such as this without strong words of condemnation concerning the odious opium traffic with which England is cursing India and China. From cruel wars and thirst for gold, it might be thought that Moloch and Mammon were the gods who had given us our Asiatic dependencies rather than that the God of grace had brought these lands under our sway, for the forwarding of his purposes of mercy. But the voice of history gives warning that infamous treatment of subject peoples always brings certain present judgment from "God in Providence" upon the oppressing nations. The chairman closed with the recital of some Scriptures bearing upon our Lord's Gospel commission, and upon the promise of his speedy coming again.

REVELATION AND MISSIONS.

Putting aside for this occasion the topic of growing evangelistic work in India, upon which he has frequently spoken of late, Dr. Pentecost, in a valuable address, dealt with the subject of divine revelation in its bearing upon foreign missions generally. The scheme of foreign missions, he said, is not an evolution from other thoughts in Scripture, but is a root idea in connection with God's revelation. That scheme must be consummated before the day of final glory can dawn upon our world. In the very beginning of the Old Testament Scriptures, the seed is planted for a world-wide Gospel; and the Day of Pentecost is the historical antithesis to the confusion of tongues at Babel. To-day the scheme must be carried out to the utmost extent of its possibilities; that is, to the full measure of God's provision by grace. The Gospel was preached to the whole race in Adam; while in Abraham also we have the promise of foreign missions. Even in early times God's choice and grace fell not upon the Jew alone; so that the Gospel was already among the nations before the Jews were called. All through Israel's history God constantly introduces Gentiles, indicating that grace was not to be confined to his chosen nation. The first foreign missionary whom God ever sent out from among his people was a very reluctant one, namely, Jonah, who was by choice so determined a home missionary that he was angry with the Lord for having thoughts of mercy towards the Ninevites. But God held to his purpose; and after conversion Jonah went out bravely, preaching the Gospel of the kingdom to that great foreign country. Linking a few Old Testament passages with some in the New Testament, Dr. Pentecost showed how the former are declared to be fulfilled in the calling of the Gentiles. Any apprehension of Divine revelation which does not lay the heathen world upon Christian hearts indicates very careless reading of the Word of God; and a consecration which does not send or carry the Gospel to all parts of the earth is out of harmony with the root idea of that Gospel. Dealing with the New Testament, it was shown that the incarnation of Jesus Christ included a prophecy and a promise of foreign missions. Christ's most prominent name was not King of the Jews, but Son of Man. Scriptures teaching the wide scope of the Atonement were quoted, as were others giving varied aspects of the blessed truth enforced by this comprehensive address, which was closed by exhortation concerning the obligations in regard to missions which are imposed by the believer's relationship to his Lord. Christians, as Christ's residuary legatees, are put in trust with the Gospel for the heathen, so that, if faithful trustees, they must either go forth with it themselves, or be in spiritual fellowship with workers who do so. It is a deadly heresy of the day that God has some other way than his Gospel of saving the heathen; if not in this world, in some other. Shall Christ's possession of his inheritance be delayed for lack of our co-operation? If so, the loss will be ours, seeing that the well of life for the Church of God is found on the mission field.

CHINA.

Very thankful and hopeful was Rev. David Hill's review of the great mission field of China, with which his labours are associated. Riots and opium are dark shadows in that land, but the grounds of rejoicing and hope are abundant. There are now fourteen hundred missionaries as compared with six hundred of them ten years ago; and the additions are not only from Great Britain, but from the United States, Canada, Australia, Sweden, Norway, the brethren going, for the most part, to work in the interior. This forward movement is largely due to the efforts and example of Mr. Hudson Taylor. Scripture teaches that the set time to favour Zion is come when her servants take pleasure in her stones. Much success has attended the work of itinerant evangelists, and mainly from this there has been in the last ten years a native membership increase of twenty-five thousand, making forty thousand in the aggregate. The great mission centres, of which there are about twelve throughout the eighteen provinces of China, have been moved by the force of example to much itinerant effort, so that mission chapels are open five days in the week, and in them may be found from fifteen hundred to two thousand heathen men listening to the Gospel, these being mostly non-resident, but travellers for many miles over the waterways or narrow roadways of Central China to the chief cities, whither they come for purposes of government or trade; leaving these centres, after attendances at the services, with their faith in the old religion shaken, if not destroyed. The famines of China and India having taught the Church and her agents the necessity of linking with Gospel preaching relief of physical distress, large numbers of native patients are now treated by medical missionaries of all denominations in China. But orphanages are few, and there is but little attention to the bodily sorrows of deaf, dumb, and blind. While the Gospeller gives the light of truth, he is bound to give also the warmth of love, thus picturing to the heathen a full Christ, and joining together word and work.

AFRICA.

Dr. Harry Guinness was listened to with absorbing attention, as he sketched the needs and advocated the claims of one section of Africa's huge continent, the Congo Free State, a million and a-half square miles in area, with a population of about forty-five millions. He had travelled up the Congo and its tributaries for 3600 miles during last year, and was an eye-witness of many deeply-interesting things. Harrowing details were given by him of the awful cruelties in connection with the debased social condition of the people. Inter-tribal feuds are prevalent, cannibalism pertains to this warfare, and polygamy abounds. Across the whole of that continent there is scarcely to be found a single little girl of six years who lives a pure life. The spiritual condition of the people is normally fetish worship; but at nearly all the mission stations on the Upper Congo, where a year ago there was not a single Christian, there is now a glorious prospect of future spiritual harvests. No lady, with ordinary health and strength, would now find difficulty in getting to the centre of Africa. The country is freely open to evangelistic work. There are no hoary religions of antiquity to contend with; no political difficulty, as in Russia; the State protects missionary settlements from Roman Catholic or other interference, the natives are friendly, and, through the Brussels Conference, there is immunity from the evils of drink and gunpowder. The only serious hindrance is in relation to health; "but," said Dr. Guinness, "Jesus Christ wants for this work men who are not afraid of sickness. He did not say, 'Go ye into all places except where there is fever.'" Then followed an impassioned appeal on behalf of Africa's spiritual need, enforced by the recital of instances of self-denying devotion in the mission field, in official life, and in connection with the levy in mass ordered by the Committee of Public Salvation during the French Revolution. The claims of this great country upon Christian compassion were also fervently urged from considerations of the large number of its inhabitants daily passing into eternity, the comparative nearness of the dark continent to Europe rather than to any other great portion of the globe, the possibilities of the country, and the Divine prophecies concerning it. "There is," said Dr. Guinness, "a great deal of talk about missions, but what is needed is much more prayer about them."

Time is earnest, passing by;
Death is earnest, drawing nigh;
Christian, wilt thou trifling be?
Time and death appeal to thee.

At the invitation of Mr. Mathieson, many remained for a few minutes' special prayer, in the course of which mention was made of Lord Radstock, who was that day receiving at Simla news of the serious illness of his wife.

A TESTING TIME.—A missionary writes: "During recent visits to Johore we have baptized three men, who have been, for over a year, applicants for baptism. There are a considerable number of other applicants, but it is necessary to keep them waiting not only for the purpose of instructing them in the essentials of Christianity, but to test their characters. It seems to be a common experience among missionaries, that the longer applicants are kept waiting for baptism, the more satisfactory do they afterwards prove themselves.

SINGAPORE.—For several years the Presbyterian missionaries have carried on visitation in the various hospitals open to Chinese patients, numbering about eight hundred on an average. Many of the cases are chronic, but a great many are always coming and going, so that considerable numbers hear the Gospel more or less systematically taught by the Catechists. Some of the brightest converts have been the direct result of the hospital work, and several have become true missionaries to other patients, earnestly endeavouring to lead them to Christ, the Great Healer.

THE "HOME OF PEACE."

Some little time ago we made mention of the removal of Friedenheim from Mildmay to Sunnyside, a large and convenient house just opposite the Swiss Cottage Railway-station. While, however, this new Home has been secured, it is as yet to a large extent unfurnished, and needs considerable adaptation and fitting-up. To awaken interest in the matter a largely-attended drawing-room meeting was held last Thursday, at the kind invitation of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Campbell, at their residence, 22, Queen's gate-gardens.

Sir S. A. Blackwood, K.C.B., who presided, told how his interest was awakened some years ago in the home for the dying, and how on visiting it he was touched greatly by what he saw there. Thinking it over, he had often wondered why no one had ever thought of the need for such a home before. It was quite true that a small home of the kind had previously been opened by nuns in Dublin, and that a similar home was in existence in America; but so far as was known this was the first in this land; and the idea came to Miss Davidson, wholly independently of these just mentioned, of which she had not then heard. The chairman went on to urge strongly the need for such a home, and his desire to see empty Sunnyside furnished and filled with those who so sadly need such a place to die in.

Dr. Maclagan, who followed, said that one of the saddest duties in his long hospital experience had been (and other hospital practitioners felt the same) to tell dying patients they must go, to make room for others likely to be benefited. This was a painful yet necessary duty. But in many cases the question arose, Where were such to go to? He rejoiced in the extension of convalescent homes, which met another difficulty; but homes for the dying were quite as imperative. To many respectable people the idea of dying in the union was very painful; but for servants, single men in lodgings, poor working men, and so on, the union had been the only place. He trusted this first home would be speedily furnished—and it would be, if the wealthy only realised the pitiful condition of many doomed to death, yet without a home to die in.

Dr. Schofield, who has so warmly interested himself in Friedenheim, reiterated and emphasized the strong feeling of many medical men as to the need for such homes. The strange thing was that no one (with the exceptions just noted) seemed to have thought of such a thing, yet when Miss Davidson was led to open it, every one knowing anything of the facts felt it was the very thing wanted. Nor does it in any way rival incurable asylums, which are for patients who, while incurable, may linger many years. This is for the dying, and for the dying who have no home to die in. He would be thankful to see such homes multiplied, as they were greatly needed; but then the right lady to superintend must be found, and it needed peculiar gifts to conduct a peaceful home for dying people, oft in pain, and to win them in their last days to the Saviour. Many have in this way found in Friedenheim, a hope for the life beyond to which they were hurrying.

Passing on, Dr. Schofield showed how a larger home had become necessary; how Sunnyside had been secured, accommodating forty to fifty, and quite large enough, for each case needed personal, loving care, if the true end of such a home was to be served. The house, which originally cost £20,000, was secured for £5000, and it seemed typically adapted for its new purpose. The sum required now to complete, fit up, alter where necessary, and furnish, is £2000, and for this amount the speaker made a strong appeal.

Miss Davidson followed with a touching plea for the hundreds of dying people needing home comfort and care in their last brief days here below, and who, besides, need the Gospel some have never heard or understood. Great blessing had been granted in the old home. In giving the outlines of a few sad cases, their loving helper told of one country servant-girl, who, being discharged from hospital to die, too weak to go home, was admitted and died trusting in Jesus; of a Welsh woman also too ill to go home; of a Freeman of the City of London, homeless in his dying days, till he found admission to Friedenheim; of a little girl ten years of age, admitted to die; of men without wives, or whose wives were too busy earning the children's bread to nurse their dying husbands. These cases, and, said Miss Davidson, there are hundreds such, were so pathetic as to bring tears to the eyes of many listeners. Many such are even now begging for admission, but cannot be taken in to the empty house at Sunnyside. Surely, if facts like these were only known, the £2000 wanted to complete would be instantly forthcoming.

A few earnest and sympathetic words followed by Colonel J. F. Morton, Dr. Wright, and the host, Mr. Campbell. We may add a hope that the sum still wanted may be speedily made up. Communications should be sent to Miss Davidson, Friedenheim, Sunnyside, Upper Avenue road South Hampstead, N.W.

THE PRAISE MEETING AT MILDMAY.

As customary at Mildmay, the Conference concluded with a Praise Meeting, held on Friday morning and well attended. During the proceedings it transpired that one reason for fixing the Conference a day earlier in the week than usual was to enable more to attend the Praise Meeting; Saturday having in previous years proved rather inconvenient, most of the friends having to get home to duties before the Lord's Day. So far as the attendance at this meeting for praise was concerned, the change of day seemed beneficial. After singing and prayer by Rev. John Wilkinson,

Colonel Morton, who presided, quoted, in the course of an opening address, a paragraph from Dr. Candlish's "Christian Sacrifice and Service of Praise," and proceeded to mention many reasons for thanksgiving in connection with the Conference, such as the choice of the subject, the selection of the speakers—just the right men—the weather, the spirit animating the whole gathering, and the devoted workers. After reading and commenting on 2 Kings ii. and Psa. cxiii., the Chairman left the meeting open for all who wished to utter praise for blessings received The first to rise (after a season of prayer) was

Sir S. A. Blackwood, who wished to add his testimony to the goodness of God, first of all in health and strength to preside throughout the Conference—of which he had little hope in the beginning of the week. A brief word followed on the visions of Ezek. i., which, after all, were only the preface to a life of testimony, service, and suffering. Ezekiel was shown these wonderful visions to prepare for service among a stiff-necked people. So, if we have been blessed, it is that we should go forth to serve Him as never before; that we may show forth his praise, not only with our lips, but in our lives; by giving up ourselves to his service, and by walking before Him in holiness and righteousness all the days of our life.

Brief one-minute testimonies followed to definite blessing received by various friends, including many ladies, as also Rev. John Wilkinson, Mr. Miller, Colonel Morton, Mr. C. Russell Hurditch, Rev. F. W. Rigby, and Mr. Henry Edwards.

Dr. Baedeker said that while thanking God for the unity of the saints and for wonderful blessing, he had been thinking all the time, Oh, that God's dear ones in Siberia and Russia could enjoy such blessings! He would earnestly ask prayer for these tried and faithful saints of God.

Rev. E. N. Thwaites said: This has been a time of real definite blessing, and it has come direct from the Lord Himself; and now what is wanted is some practical result. Let us spend a minute in silent waiting on God. (After a pause he proceeded.) "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?" Is not that the cry rising from every burdened heart? I want to put a question to each one of you: Is there any one now bowing before God that is ready to go into the foreign field if the Lord should please to open the door? If so, let them stand up. (In response, twenty-two rose from their seats.) Now, is there any one who has never been definitely engaged in home service who is ready to give himself or herself now for definite home Christian work? If so, let such stand up. (In response four or five stood up, the majority present being, of course, already engaged in such work.) Now once again, is there any one here to whom the Lord has been pleased to commit good means, who has too much at the bank? Would you like the Lord to come and find it lying there idle? Is there any one ready to give it to the Lord's work, or to give jewellery, or to deny themselves for the sake of giving? If so, let them stand up. A few rose in response to this last appeal, and were commended to God in prayer.

Some requests were then read and laid before God, and the proceedings were brought to a close.

The Outlook in Ireland.

(By a Special Correspondent.)

We are in the throes of an electoral struggle which, most unfortunately, synchronises with the "dog days." A stranger glancing over the Dublin dailies might well fancy that he had unwittingly dropped into a land in which war is raging. Such headings as "Terrible Riot in Cork," "Whig Rowdyism in Kilkenny," "Mr. Jordan Mobbed in Limerick," "Rout of the Federationists in Tuam," &c., catch the eye on every page. In former times "Donnybrook Fair" got a world-wide reputation. Unhappily, "Donnybrook" seems to have converted all Ireland to the evil of its ways, and turned the country into a pandemonium. The priests are mainly responsible for this terrible condition of things. They seem to have put their religious duties aside for a season, and to have descended into the political arena. A considerable proportion of their flocks resent this, but the priests evidently fancy that a determined struggle must win back their lost influence. Consequently they march at the head of mobs, deliver inflammatory political harangues from the altar, and denounce in strong and not very polite language all opposed to them.

But it has been said in high quarters that, although the priests compel their flocks to take a certain side in politics, they are very tolerant in the matter of religion. In fact we are told that there is absolute religious freedom in Ireland. A few facts in connection with this matter will be worth any number of interested statements. A lady at present in Dublin for a holiday, has her servant with her. They come from a country place about the centre of Ireland. The servant, an intelligent young girl, had been a Roman Catholic, but, by God's grace, has been brought to a saving knowledge of the truth. In a letter which lies before me her mistress says of her:—"She was an earnest conscientious Roman Catholic. Her first realisation of her religion being wrong was at confession. The priest gave her a penance for reading the Bible and strictly forbade her to do so again."

This young girl is a sincere Protestant now, and has thoroughly enjoyed Protestant services and meetings while in Dublin. Perhaps the English people fancy she will be able to attend Protestant services when she returns to the country. Not at all. She would be mobbed by the priests, boycotted, probably stoned, while her master and mistress would be treated as the Jews treated the leper. Her mistress writes:—"When we return to the country she will have to go to mass again, and dare not go to church. The priests of our parish would interfere greatly if it were known, and upset our influence with others." This is an example of religious toleration, and it is taken from life.

The relentless persecution endured by Mr. Connellan's family and friends in the west of Ireland reads like a chapter from the annals of the Inquisition. It will be remembered that Mr. Connellan was a well-known priest of the Church of Rome. He left it from conscientious motives, and for three years has been living as an evangelist among Roman Catholics. Because his father refused to turn him out of his house, the parish priest waited on his workmen and ordered them to boycott him. One of them, who had worked for Mr. Connellan for eighteen years, has, with his wife and family, been refused the sacraments because he refused to boycott his old master. The blacksmith was obliged to refuse to shoe Mr. Connellan's horses, as he had two sisters teaching in National schools, over which the parish priest was manager. The hotel proprietor in the town of Boyle, from which Mr. Connellan used to hire post cars, was compelled by the priests to write declining to serve him any more.

A sister of Mr. Connellan's is proprietor of the Commercial Hotel, Sligo. A strict watch is kept upon the place, and every Roman Catholic who enters the house is reprimanded by the priests, and warned that he will be refused the sacraments of his Church if he offends again.

Mr. Connellan was recently in Sligo, and several Roman Catholics called to see him and converse with him on religious matters. The priests afterwards waited upon each individual, used most threatening language unless they promised to go back to Rome, and announced that their names would be read from the altar. One of the visitors is a young lady who resides with her aunt. A priest called and requested the aunt to turn her out into the street.

The Roman Catholic administrator at Sligo ordered the people from the pulpit to hit in the face any person who offered them tracts, pamphlets, or any works not approved of by the Church of Rome. At a meeting of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, on a recent Sunday, the same gentleman asked his hearers to have no dealings with a local bank, because the wife of one of the officials was guilty of the high crime of speaking about Christ to her Roman Catholic servant. In order to afford his hearers a good example, he assured them that unless the obnoxious official was removed, the Bishop and the nuns would withdraw their accounts from the bank alluded to.

The above facts, and many equally significant, are all public property here, yet certain good people in England inform us that we enjoy religious equality. Lord Archibald Douglas leaves the Church of his fathers to join the creed of Rome. He goes about with a missionary van in the south of Scotland, where nine-tenths of the people are Presbyterian, yet no one molests or insults him. Father Connellan elects to cast off the vestments of a sacrificing priest, and become an evangelist in the cause of Bible Christianity. For this crime his late Bishop, Dr. Gillooly, of Sligo, excommunicates him, forbids the people to speak to him, to stretch out a helping hand if he were drowning, or offer him a crumb of bread if he were starving. Nay, the ban embraces all the members of his family. Even though they are Roman Catholics they must be made an example of, lest any other priest should dare to follow suit.

It is encouraging to know that, in the teeth of such bitter persecution, the Master's work is prospering here. The tyranny of the priests is opening the eyes of many to the real character of the Roman system. Douay Bibles are being purchased in large numbers. "Hear the other side," The Catholic, and others of Mr. Connellan's writings, are being eagerly read, not alone by thousands of Roman Catholics, but by large numbers of the priests. Now is the time to offer violence to heaven that Christ may come and be Himself Ireland's Leader and Ireland's King. Let all who love the ancient shrine of Western Europe unite in asking God to restore the lost glories of Erin. Let us not trust too much in human weapons: "Thus saith the Lord; cursed be the man that trusteth in man...for he shall be like the heath in the desert." Let us trust in the strong right arm of Jehovah: "Blessed is the man that trusteth in the Lord, for he shall be like a tree planted by the waters, and that spreadeth out her roots by the river, and shall not see when heat cometh, but her leaf shall be green...A glorious high throne from the beginning is the place of our sanctuary."

FRENCH IN LONDON.

The Mission to French in London, under the superintendence of Pastor J. M. H. du Pontet-de la Harpe, is a vigorous but undemonstrative work for Christ. The agencies used are Gospel preaching, Sunday and day schools, Bible reading, medical mission, home for governesses, tutors' agency, reading-rooms, circulation of good and pure literature, registry for servant girls, youths' and young men's club, &c.

On Tuesday of last week the annual meeting was celebrated in the grounds of Grove House, Regent's-park, by the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Greer. Hon. Henry Noel presided, and in his address set forth the manifold benefits which this country had derived from France, and particularly from the Huguenot refugees. The Pastor-Superintendent related in detail what had been accomplished by the Mission during the past year. The power of God had been manifested in conversion. The social means continue to be blessed. Madame Waddington, wife of the French Ambassador, opened a bazaar to raise funds, and thus gave a semi-official indication by France of the importance of the Mission. A debt of £700 weighs heavily on the Pastor. Rev. G. R. Thornton urged the expediency, in these days of infidelity and unrest, of activity on the Lord's side. Professor J. H. Gladstone warmly commended the Mission.

SAILORS IN ARABIA.—The American missionaries, finding many British sailors serving in the Persian Gulf and without any Gospel privileges, have begun services on shipboard and on shore at Busrah, thus affording opportunities for which many officers and men have expressed themselves most thankful.

IRISH EVANGELISATION SOCIETY.

The Irish Evangelisation Society carries God's remedy for sin and sorrow to perishing multitudes in Ireland. It proclaims the Gospel in tents, halls, schoolrooms, barns, &c., as well as in the open air, and finds that Gospel to be used continually by the Holy Spirit.

The report for last year tells of increased effort and very cheering results. The way has been opened for more work in the South and West. A mission held at Shanroe, in county Monaghan, was specially owned of God. The Evangelist, Mr. D. M. Francey, writes:—"I asked at the close, Who is willing to decide for Jesus—who is willing now? One after another rose spontaneously to their feet, and openly acknowledged their decision for the Saviour. Such a scene I never witnessed—some rejoicing, some crying, some praying. To see young men rising up and saying, 'I am willing to-night to consecrate my service to the Lord,' was really delightful."

During the year five missions were held in different districts of Belfast with very encouraging results. In order, if possible, to reach Roman Catholics, workers accustomed to open-air meetings attended the markets and fairs. Two evangelists, who were started upon this in the midland counties, were almost immediately obliged to desist, being hooted and violently attacked. Some of those working in the northern parts of Leinster in Roman Catholic towns were more successful. In Dundalk the people did not remain to hear in any large numbers, and interrupted, but did not show violence; but in Castleblayney, Keady, and other towns, a good hearing was obtained, and from one hundred to two hundred listened to the Gospel, of whom more than half were, it is believed, Roman Catholics.

In all directions Christian ministers showed their interest in the missions. Moreover, the Evangelical sympathy was broad and deep. Mr. T. H. Thompson, of Sion Mills, in Tyrone, writes:—"One feature in the work of the Society I cannot refrain from commending, that is, the exclusion of all theological polemics. Here the Episcopalian, the Presbyterian, and the Methodist may join to worship God, conscious of the universality of the Great Atonement. The Society is the friend of all churches, the enemy of none."

There was a signal awakening towards the end of the year at Corvalley, co. Cavan. Rev. S. Duncan, Presbyterian minister, declared that there was hardly a family in the district belonging to his congregation in which one or more were not led to Christ through the Gospel as preached by Mr. J. H. Crawford.

The last page of the report says:—

"Specially interesting cases have occurred amongst those deciding for Christ, in which, for obvious reasons, we do not give name or place. A retired officer of the army, of advanced age, went into an inquiry room, and there, whilst an Evangelist strove to help him, his tears ran down freely. A bank manager was not ashamed, before all who knew him, in a country place, to take his place amongst inquirers, and his strong emotion showed how much the truth had moved him. Weeping like a child, he poured out his heart before God, using the Publican's prayer, and came out into the liberty and light of the Gospel.

"A young lady writes thus of her own case:—'Thirteen years ago I was converted to God, but three years after I became engaged to be married to a Roman Catholic, and for the past ten years I have been fighting against God. After attending the first few meetings I became so miserable that I made up my mind never to go back. However, I was led to change my mind, and on Wednesday evening I was again at the meeting, and after a fearful struggle I yielded myself afresh to God, and have broken off the engagement, and God has restored unto me the joy of his salvation.'"

The Hon. Secretary of this very interesting work is Mr. James Barton, Dundalk, who will supply information and arrange for meetings with those who desire to facilitate them.

THE CORN EXCHANGE CHRISTIAN UNION held its monthly meeting at the Y.M.C.A. rooms, Cornhill, on Friday, 24th ult., when an address was given by Rev. E. W. Moore, on John vi. 35. The speaker pointed out that bread was a necessity, was given to supply a want, and never cloyed. If this were true of the type, how much more of the great antitype, Christ, the gift of God to man, the only means of satisfying the soul's want, the ever-fresh and undying bread of life?

For the Young.

BY THE SEASIDE.

Suggested by the Children's Seaside Services.

Long years ago in an eastern land,
Where the blue waves rippled o'er silver sand
And sunbeams danced o'er the opal tide,
The Saviour taught by the fair sea side.

Fishermen mending their nets drew near,
Fond mothers hushing their babies dear,
Whilst children left their merry play
And smiled to hear what He had to say.

And as to-day on the seaside sands
You gather around in eager bands,
We fain would tell you the truths He told,
As the laughing waves o'er the shingle rolled.

Dear boys and maidens, He comes once more
To this sandy beach by the bright sea shore,
Who loved you so that Himself He gave,
To make you loving and good and brave.

O! will you not list to his call so sweet,
Whilst the glad waves echo it at your feet,
And answer, "Dear Jesus, I come to Thee,
This happy day by the shining sea"?

Harriet Julia Evans.

UPPER NORWOOD.

Mr. L. Sayer conducted services for young people in St. Andrew's Church from June 12 to 28. The mission had the hearty sympathy of nearly all the clergy and ministers of the district. There were nightly meetings for Christian workers at 6.15, and general meetings for all at seven. Several special gatherings were held in addition. Young ladies were thrice addressed. There were boys' meetings, Bible objects services, penny, diagram, young abstainers', and Scripture union services. Portfolio Bible searching, Scripture terms and essay competitions were held. The mission closed, amidst many expressions of regret, on June 28, when the church was well filled to hear the farewell address. The mission is to be followed up by a new children's service in the district and by the augmentation of the services already in operation.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. Josiah Spiers, Shod Friars' Hall, Boston, Lincolnshire, July 8 to 22; Mr. Jas. S. Tyler, Southend-on-Sea, July 13 to 27; Mr. H. Hutchinson, Dorking, July 7; Upton-on-Severn, July 10 to 13; Mr. T. Lewes Sayer, Epsom, July 10; Beckenham, July 13. Mr. Livesey Carrott will not go to Lowestoft as announced, but will go to Felixstowe instead.

SEASIDE SERVICES, 1892.

The following are the arrangements for the Children's Services on the seashore during the month of August, so far as made:—Mr. E. Arrowsmith at Eastbourne (and part of September); Mr. J. R. Naylor at Llandudno; Messrs. H. Hutchinson and W. H. Wilson at Bridlington; Mr. R. Callender, B.A., at Whitby; Mr. W. H. Roberts, B.A., at Scarborough and Filey; Messrs. Josiah Spiers and R. Westall at Blackpool; Mr. H. C. Lees at Colwyn Bay; Mr. H. Staines, B.A., at Llanfairfechan, and Mr. S. R. Webb, M.D., at Penmaenmawr; Mr. T. Lewes Sayer at Rhyl; Mr. W. R. Moore, B.A., at Ilfracombe; Rev. Martin J. Hall, B.A., at Bournemouth; Rev. W. T. Storrs, M.A., at Sandown; Mr. L. Carrott at Felixstowe; Mr. L. Parkinson, B.A., at Deal; Mr. A. G. Doddridge at St. Leonards; Messrs. J. S. Tyler and E. Hughes at Worthing; Messrs. S. J. Hewlett and G. Goodman at Herne Bay; Dr. F. Churchill at Southwold; Mr. H. Steward at Port Erin, I.M.; Messrs. F. and C. H. Collier at Littlehampton; Mr. Gilbert B. Kirlew at Lytham.

Young Abstainers' Union.

In taking the chair at a recent drawing-room meeting in the residence of Lord Kinnaird, St. James's-square, Sir Arthur Blackwood remarked that the welcome signs were multiplying of the awakening of the national conscience to the evils of indulgence in intoxicating liquors. Rev. E. A. Stuart gave point to the observations of the President, by a lucid and specialised application of Genesis xlii. 22. Whether it was the nation, the Church, or the family that may "sin against the child," by over-indulgence, by neglect of training in industry and self-restraint, or by withholding warning of the dangers and snares besetting adult life, an accusing Reuben in the day of disaster and distress would eventually present an unanswerable indictment.

Sir Philip Cunliffe-Owen, with eloquence and pathos, pleaded earnestly for the co-operation of public school and other teachers, by precept and example, to strengthen the hands of the Union in fortifying the youth of our land against the allurements of strong drink. Serjeant-Major Pringle, Mr. Algernon C. P. Coote, and Lord Kinnaird, spoke likewise with warm appreciation of the work which had been undertaken in a direction both important and necessary. Rev. E. Cox also took part.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sun., July 10, Luke ix. 12-22; Mon., July 11, ix. 23-36; Tues., July 12, ix. 37-48; Wed., July 13, ix. 49-62; Thurs., July 14, x. 1-16; Fri., July 15, x. 17-28; Sat., July 16, x. 29-42

MR. MOODY'S SCHOOLS.

The two splendid educational institutions at Mount Hermon and Northfield, so closely associated with the name and lifework of Mr. Moody, have been celebrating what is known in America as "Commencement"; in other words, the close of the working year and the advent of the summer holidays.

The gatherings at Mount Hermon, which is the healthy and beautiful location of the Young Men's Seminary, were all that could be desired, says the reporter, except that Mr. Moody was not there to greet everybody "with his fatherly smile and kindly benediction." Dr. Cuyler, of Brooklyn, gave an impressive address, full of valuable suggestions and lit up with bright and inspiriting incidents. Prizes were given for excellence in various subjects of study. The local scribe continues:—

"While Mr. Moody has been away the trustees have not been idle. Indeed, they seem to have caught new inspiration with the added responsibilities. A new science building, to cost about 20,000 dollars, the gift of H. B. Silliman, of New York, is now nearly finished and will be ready for use next term. A finely equipped laundry is also nearly built. Both buildings are of stone and brick, and models of their class. Efforts have been made to increase the endowment fund, and with success. Hiram Camp, of New Haven, president of the board of trustees, who gave the first 25,000 dollars to start the school, has this year given 70,000 dollars for the endowment fund, and Mr. Silliman has added 15,000 dollars more.

"Over 350 students have attended the school the past year, hailing from twenty-seven states and eighteen foreign countries. Massachusetts heads the list with seventy-four young men, and New York is next with fifty-nine, Connecticut third with twenty-eight, and so on through the list. There are thirteen from England, six from Scotland, four from Russia, while Turkey, Germany, Japan, Ireland, Canada, Labrador, Denmark, Norway, Siam, Switzerland, New Brunswick, Cape Breton Island and Nova Scotia are well represented. The outlook for next year is simply a repetition of what it has been since Mr. Moody organised the great twin schools of Mount Hermon and Northfield—there is always a cry for more room."

NORTHFIELD.

The festivities at the Girls' Seminary were held the following day, and were marked by the same pleasant circumstances and surroundings. President M. E. Gates, of Amherst College, spoke powerfully to the young ladies, and diplomas were presented to the graduating class. Here again there is progress to record:—

"The school continues to grow and prosper in every way. Notwithstanding that Mr. Moody has not been at the helm, the past year has been a most successful one, and the outlook for the future is very bright. During the year the trustees have done something to increase the endowment fund, which is now upward of 200,000 dollars. H. B. Silliman, of New York, who has taken a lively interest in the seminary the past year, has given 15,000 dollars for this fund, and others have added about 10,000 dollars more. Mrs. Frederick Billings, of Woodstock, Vt., has contributed liberally in meeting deficits and in contributions to the Students' Aid Society. No new buildings have been erected, but a generous friend of the institution has offered to build a fine gymnasium for the school, which will be of brick or stone, or both, and will be about a hundred by sixty feet. It will contain a swimming tank and a running track, with modern gymnastic apparatus. The building will cost about 25,000 dollars, and the donor makes it a condition that his name shall not be made public at present."

TANGANYIKA EXHIBITION, EASTBOURNE.—Captain Hore has arranged a deeply interesting exhibition in the Lecture Hall, Devonshire Park, Eastbourne. It is a practical demonstration of the ground covered by his book, setting forth the character, condition, and industries of the African natives, and the journeys, voyages, and adventures of an English traveller amongst them. Leaving out entirely the nations of North or "Mohammedan" Africa, and the vast tracts of South or "Colonial" Africa—the exhibition deals exclusively with Central or "African" Africa, concentrating attention upon a region in the heart of the Continent, which, on many grounds, may be described as "Brightest Africa." During the exhibition, which will remain open three months, Captain Hore will deliver a series of illustrated lectures.

MR. MOODY AT NEWPORT.

In the midst of his Cardiff work, Mr. Moody paid a visit to Newport (Mon.) on the morning of Wednesday, June 22, and gave in the Temperance Hall an earnest and forceful address to Christians on their responsibilities in connection with the extension of the Redeemer's kingdom, and to parents on the godly upbringing of their families. An audience of over thirteen hundred listened to the exhortation, and we cannot doubt that lasting good will result.

Coming again for Saturday and Sunday, June 25 and 26, he held in all five meetings—one on Saturday evening in the Baptist Chapel, Maindee, for Christians, and four on Sunday in the Temperance Hall. Crowded audiences came together on each occasion, and two large overflow meetings had to be held. A feeling of deep solemnity pervaded all the services. The preacher spoke "in demonstration of the Spirit and with power," and bowed heads and tearful eyes, all over the hall, attested that hearts were being reached and work begun fraught with eternal issues. With an unsparing hand, he laid bare sin in all its hideousness and hatefulness in God's sight, and showed that there was no darkness or shadow of death where the workers of iniquity could hide themselves. While thus shutting up men under sin, condemnation, and wrath, he opened wide the door of mercy, and with all tenderness urged them to flee to the open arms of the Crucified One.

The closing service, to men only, was on the "Excuses to the Great Supper" of Luke xiv. 16. The Great Day alone can reveal the work done. When the address ended Mr. Moody, amid a great hush, called upon the undecided to stand up in their places and declare, by a solemn "I will," their acceptance of the Lord's invitation. It is estimated that over fifty persons responded to the appeal. Mr. Moody then closed the services with praise and prayer.

The names and addresses of all who professed to experience blessing throughout the meetings have been taken, and a proper visitation has been set on foot. We anticipate a blessed forward movement in soul-winning effort as a result of the meetings. H.

MISSIONARY BUREAU.

A meeting was recently held in the Lecture Hall of the Y.M.C.A., Aldersgate-street, to bid farewell to seven missionaries departing for foreign fields in connection with the bureau. Rev. W. Fuller Gooch presided, and short statements were made by each of those leaving, detailing how the Lord had led them. Rev. F. H. Baring then addressed the missionaries, who were earnestly commended to God in prayer by several members of committee and others.

The Secretary stated that since the beginning of the year the committee had been enabled to send out twenty-four missionaries, being an average of four per month. He also said that four others had been accepted for work among the hill tribes of Eastern Bengal, who hope to sail in October; that two are offering for the Central Soudan, three for Bombay, two for East Africa, four for Jamaica, one for Rio de Janeiro, and one for Singapore. For the passages and outfits of these the committee will require at least £800.

FRIENDLESS AND FALLEN.—The Summer Meeting of these Homes was held on Saturday week at Parson's-green, under the presidency of Sir Chas. E. Bernard, K.C.S.I. Mr. E. W. Thomas made a brief statement as to the Homes, which provide for a total of 240 inmates, and the Preventive Branch, showing that the friendless and fallen of every creed, class, or country are welcomed. Addresses followed by Rev. Stewart Sinclair, Commander Key, R.N., and Messrs. J. J. Drysdale and F. W. Smith.

PORTSMOUTH.—The "Speedwell" Hall has now been closed. The work of the Welcome Mission is now carried on in the Iron-room. Describing the first meeting in the new building, Mr. T. Hogben, director of the Mission, says: "The meeting commenced at six o'clock, and closed shortly after midnight. During the evening, for a part or the whole time, about two hundred persons joined us. We were conscious of the presence of our blessed Master; and many went away praising and glorifying God that He had given to them his grace, not only to hand over the land and building, but also themselves to be filled with his Holy Spirit for his service and glory. We are looking for results in holier lives and the ingathering of the unconverted."

The Guildford Convention.

The Convention for the Promotion of Practical Holiness, convened last week in a tent at Guildford, was the third held in this beautiful Surrey country town. If it has not been attended by the same overflowing numbers as were present two years, it has been to those who have had the privilege of attending a very happy time, "a season of refreshing from the presence of the Lord."

The teaching at such gatherings is now pretty well known, for Conventions have lately greatly multiplied, and there seems to be a general feeling that that teaching is finding for itself a deeper channel, and is assuming more and more a practical tone. The speakers in nearly every case took high ground, dwelling much upon the soul's relation to the Saviour, upon the work of the Spirit, upon the necessity, not only of receiving Jesus Christ, but of giving out to others what we receive, and of going forth to live as his witnesses and servants in the world. There was, perhaps, nothing that was new in the teaching, nothing but what was already well known by most of the listeners; but as it was set before them in differing form and phrase by the various speakers—sometimes in graphic and telling speech, always with the fervour and the earnestness which come from the power of conviction, and a sense of the reality of the things spoken of—it came to many with almost the power of a new revelation.

It has sometimes been said that people are getting tired of sermons; but the interest shown in the addresses at this Convention—addresses that were practically sermons, and numbered seven or eight a day; the eagerness with which each point was followed and noted; the unflagging attention paid throughout, show that, at all events, there is a large class of persons who have not lost their taste for preaching, if only it is earnest and real, and goes from the heart to the heart.

What, however, is more to the point is that the growth of these Conventions, and the numbers attending them, bear witness to a widespread desire for a deeper spiritual life. The numbers that flocked to the Convention Tent day after day, and many times each day, bore striking testimony to the hunger of the soul after "a closer walk with God." It is true, mingling with the crowd of seekers after God may have been some who were led to the tent by a love of novelty or by mere curiosity; but to a degree perhaps greater than at any former Convention in Guildford, the objects sought to be attained have been better understood, and those attending the meetings have been moved by a real desire for a deepened spiritual life. There can be little doubt that many went away from the Convention as from the very presence-chamber of God, to take up old burdens and trials with a new sense of peace and strength, and to go forth again to their service with a new conviction of the fulness of grace which, in Christ, is available for their need.

At most of the meetings the chair has been taken by Rev. F. Paynter, rector of Stoke-next-Guildford; and when he has not been present Rev. W. Houghton, pastor of the Congregational Church, has presided. The speakers included Revs. A. E. Barnes-Lawrence, J. B. Figgis, W. Haslam, Evan Hopkins, F. B. Meyer, C. G. Moore, and Lindsay Young, and Mr. Dudley Kidd. Even Convention-goers have their favourite speakers, but one feature of such meetings is that no announcement is made beforehand of those who are going to speak, so that people gather at the tent not knowing to whose voice they are going to listen. The congregations gave to all the speakers the same willing hearing and attention.

The Bible readings in the morning, taken by Mr. Barnes Lawrence, Mr. Lindsay Young, and Mr. C. G. Moore, struck everybody who listened to them as being singularly instructive and helpful and good. Some of the meetings were, of course, more impressive than others; and few of those present will forget the meeting at which Mr. Hopkins, in his own clear, logical, and forceful way opened up such passages as 2 Cor. xii. 1-10, Luke xxiv. 49, Acts i. 4, and Acts ii. 33; and Mr. Meyer, in his pathetic, pleading, and tender way, dealt with the truths set forth in such passages as Hebrews iv. 13 and 14 and Romans x. 9 and 10. The atmosphere seemed charged with great spiritual power, and many felt that the Lord, indeed, was present.

The Convention proper came to a close on Saturday, when a missionary meeting was held in the tent on the lawn at Stoke Hill, the charming residence of Mr. Paynter. At that gathering a considerable number of offers of service for the mission-fields were made; and afterwards the large company walked awhile in the grounds, exchanging greetings, and talking over the events of the past few days.

MR. MOODY'S MEETINGS.

Though the Convention meetings closed in the morning, it seemed as if the best came last, in the extraordinary meetings held by Mr. D. L. Moody. They, too, were held in the tent, and proved very attractive. Mr. Moody had never spoken in Guildford before, and his visit awakened a very deep and widespread interest. Multitudes of people poured in, not only from the various parts of the town, but from the villages around; far more, indeed, than could by any possibility find accommodation in the tent.

Especially was this the case on Sunday evening, when, probably, in the tent, and standing in deep lines all round it, in the hope of hearing the evangelist's voice and seeing his face, there must have been nearly three thousand people. Mr. Moody's humorous sallies, his directness of appeal, his straightforward manliness, his wealth of anecdote and illustration, his colloquialisms, his downwright earnestness—all lent a wonderful charm to his preaching, and produced upon his hearers—many of whom were listening to him for the first time—a very deep impression.

At the Saturday night meeting, he dwelt upon the grace which saves, the grace which we have to live by, and the grace which we have to work out. At the early Sunday morning meeting Mr. Moody gave a powerful address upon the work of the Holy Spirit in fitting and qualifying Christian men for service. The afternoon address was very searching, and the evening address was a deeply impressive one, upon the new birth. Mr. Moody's testimony at Guildford has had a very rousing effect upon Christian men and women, and has been the means of leading souls to the Saviour. He was unsparing in his denunciation of some of the so-called respectable sins of Society, as well as of grosser sins, and one felt that in him the world has got, not only a mighty preacher of the evangelical faith, but an apostle of righteousness and purity.

He did not seem at all afraid to give his adhesion to the Convention Movement, for he said that he thought it not at all unlikely that the Spirit of God might come in richer fulness to the world through the Conventions which were being held; and further, that he believed the blessing which a great many found at Keswick was that "there they got hitched on to power." He showed that the effect of the Spirit's presence in the heart is not only to fill it with joy, but with hope. If Mr. Moody should be induced to visit the town again, as there is some hope he may be, he will find a very hearty welcome on every side.

FINANCIAL.

Passing to a less pleasing topic, it may be noted that the Chairman stated the amount placed in the boxes had never met expenses; that this year the deficiency was greater than ever, and that next year it might be necessary to give up the tent, and to hold the meetings in a hall. It would take away much that is characteristic of the Guildford Convention if it had to be held anywhere save in a tent, and, perhaps, before another year comes round, those who have the means, and who were blessed at last week's meetings, will meet this deficency in the funds, and so render it possible to continue the holding of this Convention in the tent. Apart from that, every one seems to think that the Convention just closed has been the most happy and the most memorable of the three.

NAPLES.—Not for several years have we seen such a cheering work of grace as took place here last week. On Sunday, June 19, a young sailor, son of a Christian worker in Jersey, spoke a few words, and seemed greatly quickened at our evening meeting. A Norwegian sailor professed to be converted that evening. Next day I heard of a continuation of the movement on board the ship. Every evening these men came to the Rest after a hard day's work and in very hot weather. They had musical instruments, and sang the songs of Zion. The captain informed me of "several of the crew being troublesome through drinking in other ports, but at Naples all were steady," and he ascribed this change to the religious interest on board and ashore. I had the pleasure to supply the young sailor already referred to with Testaments, hymn-books, and tracts.

Stephen Burrowes.

7, Vico 2 del Piliero, Naples.

BILLINGSGATE CHRISTIAN MISSION.

The Billingsgate Christian Mission is a model agency in many respects. Its hall is at the very gates of the world-famed market, and its missionary carries on a difficult work in a highly commendable spirit and with unwearying zeal. A fact of special interest is that two or three devoted friends engaged in the market commend the Mission to salesmen and workmen alike by consistent Christian life and sympathy.

The fourteenth annual meeting of the Mission was held on Wednesday last week. Mr. A. Walters, hon. secretary, read a report which, though it recorded no startling visible results, told of steady toil and earnest purpose on true Gospel lines. Mr. W. H. Williamson, treasurer, followed with a financial statement, which was not without encouraging elements. There is still a debt of over £4000 upon the Mission Hall. The general income, in the form of rent for the ground floor and other parts of the building, sufficed to meet the current expenditure. Referring to the headway the work is making, Mr. Williamson said that a member of the Corporation recently remarked to him that a few years ago he could not visit the market without being insulted or pained by what he witnessed. A great change has come over the place, and this he attributed to the Mission. Betting, however, is still a prevailing vice.

Mr. F. A. Bevan, who presided, spoke of the peculiar difficulties of the work. The lack of great and immediate results is no reason for discouragement. Indeed, a Christian should never be discouraged, for he is not straitened in God, although he may be in himself. In addition to more or less active opposition, there is a terrible indifference, which is very trying to encounter. Mr. Bevan cordially commended the Mission to the sympathy of Christian people. The public at large owes a debt to Billingsgate, and this cannot be better discharged than by pressing the Gospel upon the attention of those employed in the market. The efforts of the missionary have been greatly blessed; men have been converted to God; and, with increased faith, still greater things will be accomplished.

Addresses were also delivered by Messrs. C. Russell Hurditch and G. W. Ovenden.

PERSECUTION IN PERSIA.

Dear Sir,—I have just received a letter from Rev. Dr. Shedd, of Oroomiah, Persia, in which he says:—

"The most stirring event we have had lately is the arrest of Mirza Abraham, a convert from Islam. He was arrested for preaching and confessing Christ. Brought before the authorities, he was terribly beaten, and every indignity heaped upon him. He confessed his Saviour in the midst of all, repeated verses from the Scripture as they tormented him, told them that they could kill him and shoot him from the cannon's mouth, but they could not take from him his hope in Christ. For three weeks he was in prison here, rejoicing in the Lord and testifying to his fellow prisoners of the salvation of Christ. He is now in prison at Tabriz, and we know not whether he will be sent to the Shah, or put to death, or released. It is feared that the Mollahs, who are supported by Russia, have so much greater influence that toleration has little chance. The Shah himself cannot stand before the demands of the Mollahs, and British prestige has greatly suffered in the last few months. Let there be fervent prayer for Persia, that God may overrule this persecution and prepare the way for the Kingdom of Christ.

Let me ask your readers to pray for our persecuted brother, that he may be kept faithful in the midst of trial and suffering, and also to plead that this new outburst of fanaticism may be allayed, and liberty to preach the Gospel may be proclaimed.—Yours faithfully,

T. W. Brown.

32, The Avenue, Bedford-park.

BRAZIL.—Rev. Solomon L. Ginsburg (Caixa 24, Bahia) writes:—"Our work makes steady progress. During the past six months four new stations have been opened, and about forty members added to the churches of the Mission. The press which is connected with the church in Bahia is of great service in printing hymns, Sunday-school lesson papers, journals, &c., but to further and increase the work, we are badly needing a larger press."

MRS. ANNIE IRELAND MACALPINE.

THIS estimable Christian worker, lately deceased, was born in Manchester. In one of its suburbs the greater part of her life was passed. Her education was finished at the well-known establishment of Culcheth Hall. The lady at the head of this institution early recognised the unusual ability of her pupil, and prophesied for her a future which was more than realised. Her conversion to God took place early, and she began to work at once in Sunday and ragged schools and in the usual forms of Christian activity. When Mr. Moody paid his first visit to Manchester she entered her name at once as a worker in the Enquiry Room, and attended the meetings night after night in that capacity.

All this was but a training-ground; her real life-work was to come. She had a large class of young women—"her girls," as she called them—whose awakening and subsequent Christian life were due, under God, to her, and to whom her Sunday afternoon teachings were the food, in the strength of which they went many days.

In the meantime the feeling was growing within her that she had a message to deliver beyond the bounds of the Christian community to which she was then attached. The conviction was unwelcome, for public speaking by women was then far less common than it is to-day. Young and delicate girl as she was, she shrank from a publicity which could not fail to be trying. However, she "had no rest in her spirit." After much prayer and waiting before the Lord, she determined to do his will at all costs, and deliver his messages in any place and to any number of people He might assign. Peace followed at once, and that very day the call came to address a large number of young women at Blackburn. Crowded meetings ensued; the people were broken down, and numbers of enquirers remained behind. The Lord had set his seal to her ministry, and after this wherever she went "signs followed."

About this time (1876) Dr. Mahan and Rev. W. E. Boardman held their first meetings in Manchester. In one of his subsequent visits Mr. Boardman became acquainted with Miss Ireland, and stated strongly his conviction that if she were allowed full scope there would be inevitable blessing. Very shortly after she began to hold in the Meeting House, Higher Cambridge-street, that wonderful series of Bible-readings and evangelistic addresses which will ever be enshrined in the memories of those privileged to hear them. For three years the Tuesday afternoon Bible-readings for Christians, the Tuesday evening addresses, mainly to working people, and the Sunday evening services were held with a regularity only broken by necessary periods of rest. The meetings were crowded; the building could not contain the Sunday night congregation; men came as eagerly as women. Enquirers were always to be found in the after-meetings.

(From a photograph by Mr. M. Guttenberg, Oxford-road, Manchester.)

Her work at Cambridge-street was suspended by her marriage with Rev. C. S. Macalpine, pastor of one of the Baptist churches in Dundee. Her influence was soon felt there. The Thursday afternoon Bible-readings in the Y.M.C.A. Hall were as eagerly attended as the Manchester ones had been. The work was widening round her when the ill-health of Mr. Macalpine compelled him to resign his charge; and, after two years' absence, they returned to Manchester. Mrs. Macalpine took up her work again (less continuously, because her own health, always delicate, was becoming more frail), and continued to instruct, to edify, to cheer, still more abundantly than before. The requests for prayer every week were very numerous. One lady has said repeatedly that, when perplexed, she would pray that the light might come to her in Mrs. Macalpine's address, and it did come again and again, as she found to her intense relief. Only the great day will unfold the answered prayers, the guidance given, the darkness lightened, by the messages of the Lord through his servant in those meetings.

Her voice was so good that one always felt she ought to speak in as large a place as possible, so that the greatest number might be brought under the influence of her words. If those who had not heard her could but once be persuaded to attend a meeting of hers, they needed no second invitation; they always came of their own accord next time, and brought others with them.

In the Autumn of 1889 Mr. Leonard Shaw convened a Conference at the Refuge, Strangeways, which was addressed by several speakers from the Keswick Convention. Mr. Shaw asked Mrs. Macalpine to take some of the meetings, and these she held in the Assize Courts, as being the nearest place available to the Conference Hall. She took for her subject, "A clear conception of what the life of faith is," speaking on the first day of "The necessity for confession and humiliation," on the second "Of the hindrances to living the life of faith," and on the third "Of the way to enter in." The interest, deep throughout, intensified steadily, till on the third day the enquiry room was crowded to its utmost limit with those seeking to become themselves possessed of the blessings they had had set before them.

One dwells with loving memory on her winning ways and sweet face; her unfailing geniality to all, whatever their state of life; her strong sense of humour (which was so great a charm, and which lightened many a time the weakness and weariness from which she suffered so much); her downright commonsense, which stood her in such good stead, and made her advice so valuable; her unflinching uprightness and upholding of every humane and righteous cause. She was pre-eminently a woman's friend; everything that tended to elevate, strengthen, and help women touched her inexpressibly, and her large, warm heart suffered painfully whenever and wherever a woman suffered.

As far back as 1880 she had opened a Rescue Home for women released from prison, where those who desired to amend their lives could have the opportunity of instruction and spiritual help, and also of gaining a livelihood by washing and sewing. The Home has always been full and overfull. In April, 1890, a second Home was opened in another locality—a Preventive Home for young girls—it being found advisable to separate these last from the older women. Her final work, at the close of the last meetings she ever held at Cambridge-street, in December, 1890, was to open a third Home for first maternity cases. She had further plans in contemplation, but her constant illness all last year prevented her carrying them out. The three Homes remain. She always carried them on in faith that the Lord who bid her open them would supply the means, and she asked of none but Him. They are being continued by those who share her faith and who look to the same Lord to provide in the future as He has done hitherto.

As soon as she knew that the summons home had come, she quietly and calmly set her face heavenward. There was absolutely no struggle; though, of course, for the sake of her beloved ones and her work, she would have been glad to remain. As she herself said: "When we leave ourselves in God's hands for Him to do as He wills with us, life is so beautiful." The predominant feature of her sick room was brightness, and those who came to see her found it impossible to be sad in her presence. Her smile was always one of the sweetest, but it was during these last days touched with a radiance which spoke of a brighter sphere. She expressed herself as so thankful that the platform teaching and the death-bed experience agreed. "There is no change," she said; "it is 'carried of God' all along with me." Speaking of heaven, she said: "The glory and the beauty are nothing; I want to see his face."

A day or two before she passed away, as friends were gathered round, thinking the end had come, she turned with the sweetest smile and said: "I'm going home, I'm going home to be with Jesus—it is beautiful." After this she rallied for a day or two, and her weak frame was distressed by a racking cough. When a friend besought the Lord for her that she might be spared this additional suffering, she said, "I don't see why I should be exempt from suffering!" But the Lord soon came. With her it was literally true, "she fell asleep in Jesus," so quietly and gently did the spirit go home to be for ever with Him she had loved so long and served so faithfully.

Annie Ireland Macalpine ranks with Catherine of Siena, Catherine Booth, Josephine Butler, and those noble women who are hungering to know God and his will; spending their lives in sacrifice of health and strength if so be they might win souls for God; shining lights granted to us for a brief space, and whose removal makes us feel cold and poor indeed. She "rests from her labours, and her works do follow" her.

Y.M.C.A. VISIT TO SWITZERLAND.

A most successful trip to Switzerland has recently taken place under the auspices of the Aldersgate-street Y.M.C.A. The party, which consisted of fifty-one young men, under the leadership of Mr. J. H. Putterill, left London on Friday, June 10, and travelled via Ostend to Lucerne. Two days were spent in this beautiful town, one of which was devoted to the ascent of the Rigi. The tourists proceeded to Andermatt, and the next day crossed the Furka pass to the Rhone glacier. The following day the journey was made across the Grimsel pass to Meiringen.

Grindelwald was the next stopping-place, from which the party proceeded over the Wengern Alp to Lauterbrunnen and Interlaken, where Sunday was spent. At their meeting for evening worship on Sunday evening the young men were glad to welcome Rev. Townsend Storrs, of Sandown, who was acting as chaplain of the English Church in Interlaken. In response to an earnest request Mr. Storrs gave an address, taking for his subject the text "Rejoice, young men, in thy strength," &c., which was greatly enjoyed.

On Monday the route was vid Lake of Thun to Berne. Here the party received a most hearty reception from the members of the Berne Y.M.C.A.'s. In the evening they were invited to one of the summer hotels in the suburbs of the town. Assembled to meet them were not only the members of the local Associations, but many of the pastors and a number of ladies. Refreshments having been served, a most enthusiastic meeting was held, under the presidency of Pastor Bovet, who, in an eloquent speech, welcomed the representatives of the British Associations. Addresses were given by Messrs. J. H. Putterill, Hy. Armstrong, and Thos. Leigh, on behalf of the English visitors. Two of the pastors and the presidents of the French and German Associations in Berne also spoke. It was a meeting full of interest, and will be long remembered by all who were privileged to be present.

The next morning the journey home commenced, Basle, Strasburg, and Brussels being visited on the way. London was reached on Thursday evening, June 23. Though the weather was at times unfavourable, the trip was thoroughly enjoyed by all, and before separating a hearty vote of thanks was passed to the Association for arranging the excursion, and a fervent wish was expressed that it might be repeated next year.

AMONG THE POOR OF CHICAGO.

An interesting series of illustrated articles on the poor of great cities is appearing in Scribner's Magazine. The paper in the current issue deals with the poor of Chicago. The following extracts will be of interest to all workers among the sons and daughters of poverty in our large centres of population:—

"At 406, Clark-street, in the very midst of all that is alien to our better nature, rises the Clark-street Mission. Here are daily gathered, in a free Kindergarten, some scores of the little unfortunates whom a cruel fate has planted in this cesspool. It is a touching sight; they are so innocent as yet—mere buds springing up in the track of a lava-stream. There is a Crèche here as well as Kindergarten, and tiny creatures, well fed and cared for, swing in hammocks, or sit, stand, walk, or creep all about in charge of kind, devoted young women. Curiously enough, many of the little ones are born of Arabian mothers. There are some hundreds of Arabs housed near by. The attendant thinks they are Christian converts in charge of church folk who were formerly missionaries in Arabia. The women are occupied in peddling small wares and trinkets, which they carry about in packs and baskets. In the same hall are evening and Sunday religious meetings, and not long ago there was a series of midnight prayer-meetings held here.

"The whole enterprise is in charge (and at the charge) of the great Woman's Christian Temperance Union. This is an institution of wonderful strenth and beauty; a giantess, throned in intelligence and honour; gstretchin her strong hands toward the weak, sinking thousands of the 'submerged tenth,' and all who are on the edge of the submergence. The Woman's Christian Temperance Union numbers 200,000 members in all, of whom 16,000 are in Illinois, and their activity is tireless, their ability wonderful. It is one of the phenomena marking the elevation of the sex under the sunshine of Western freedom and prosperity. The building—planned, erected, and paid for by this body, is just completed, and is the most perfect and (as it should be) the most sightly of all Chicago's new 'sky-scrapers.' It is named 'Temperance Temple;' its cost is 1,100,000 dollars. Most of its spare room is already engaged, and it will earn rentals amounting to 200,000 dollars a-year.

THE PACIFIC GARDEN MISSION

has a large hall, opening directly on Van Buren-street, within five hundred feet of the Grand Pacific Hotel, yet within a scarcely greater distance of some of the worst of the "bad districts" of the city. "The Dive" is only half-a-mile south of it, and "The Levee," "The Bad Lands" of "Chinatown," &c., are still nearer. The single big room is vast and dingy, the walls are covered with Scripture texts in large letters, "Blessed are ye poor, for yours is the kingdom of God," &c. "Welcome," "God is love," and other cheering mottoes are embossed in Christmas greens over the platform. A little collection of hymns is upon each seat, and notices of the hours of services are suspended in various places, among the rest some announcing the Salvation Army meetings.

Colonel Clarke is the moving and controlling spirit of the mission, as well as its chief money supporter. The meetings on Sunday are often full to the doors; a few front seats being filled by the "workers" and particular friends, and the rest by the chance comers, gathered from adjacent slums to hear the music and look on at the devotional exercises. It is one of the simple religious efforts to elevate the debased and reform the bad, by offering to them "Christ and Him crucified;" by the direct interposition of heaven it must succeed, but without such miracle it cannot.

DEATH OF COL. CLARKE.

Since the above was in print, we have received news of the death of Col. G. R. Clarke, the Superintendent of the Pacific Garden Mission. In an obituary notice, a Chicago daily paper describes him as "one of Chicago's most honoured old citizens," and says:—

"Col. Clarke was known as a dealer in Real Estate of long experience, and was regarded as one of the builders of the town of Morgan Park. But he was better known as a generous dispenser of charity than as a business man. Fourteen years ago he began to take an interest in city mission work. It was shortly after Mr. D. L. Moody held a notable series of revival meetings in what was known as 'The Tabernacle.' Colonel Clarke was converted at that time, and his subsequent work showed that the conversion was everlasting. He saw how little attention was given to the spiritual needs of the lower classes who lived along wicked Clark-street and on the 'levee,' and resolved to help them. Unassisted, he bought the Pacific Garden saloon, located at Van Buren and Clark streets, and in place of the beer and whisky he dispensed Bibles and hymn-books. Meetings were held there every night, and the crowds were treated to a short talk and more music. Colonel Clarke and his wife were untiring workers at the mission. The expenses were not small, but the founder of the institution stood by it. He spent from 3000 dols. to 5000 dols. every year on the mission, and always cheerfully said that a better investment couldn't be found."

THE GOSPEL IN BULGARIA.

Mrs. Shopoff, wife of a professor in the High School at Philippopolis, writes with regard to a Mission Church there:—Having chosen a committee, we set to work in earnest to collect funds. We managed to get about £120 from the church here, but we hope to induce them to double their subscriptions before the work is completed. The Protestants here are all very poor, and the small sums that each family promises will involve great self-denial. Our Orthodox friends so dislike anything of the nature of schism that they will not render us help. We reckon that from £1000 to £1200 will be required to erect a building of which we shall not feel ashamed, and which will accommodate the increasing congregation, the Sunday-schools, &c. This is a large sum for Bulgaria, but we trust that, God helping us, we may raise some money in England. Rev. G. D. Marsh, the American missionary here, is treasurer, and will be glad to acknowledge contributions.

There seems to be a decided groping after the light among the people. There is a hunger which is not satisfied by the Church in her present state of deadness. My husband recently learned that in some villages around Chirpan the peasants gather to read the Bible and sing hymns. Some of the priests, too, are awakening. One of them reads the Bible, and preaches from it to his flock, so that the Orthodox look askance at him. He has declared that should his gown be taken away, he will still gather his people around him and teach them from the Holy Word. Other villages, that were formerly so given up to political partisanship that they were named after the leader whom they supported, are now intent upon theological discussion, and by the roadside they talk of what they have read. This rejoices us very much, and we hope it may be the beginning of better things for Bulgaria—a nation which has so much promise for the future.

EMIGRANTS' INFORMATION OFFICE, 31, Broadway, Westminster, S.W.—The July Circulars of the Emigrants' Information Office, and the Annual Editions of the Penny and other Handbooks, with maps, show the present prospects of emigration. Branch offices are now organised at Bradford, Bury St. Edmunds, Cardiff, Devizes, Glasgow, Hereford, Leamington, Leeds, Liverpool, and Reading—mostly in connection with free public libraries, where all information may also be obtained. In Canada there is likely to be a good demand during this quarter for farm labourers, general labourers, navvies, and for mechanics in the building trades. The Canadian Government is offering bonuses of five to ten dollars a head to those who take up land in the North-West or British Columbia.

RITISH Y.M.C.A. CONFERENCE:

EDINBURGH, JUNE 28 TO JULY 1.

THIS conference of delegates from all parts of e United Kingdom, amounting to about six ndred, will long be remembered. The high iritual tone which characterised the addresses d the discussion, the very attractive arrange- nts made for the comfort and pleasure of the mbers—which were all fulfulled with perfect oothness—will combine to make the meetings red-letter event in the memories of all who rticipated in the Conference.

The Lord Provost, the magistrates, and the uncil united in inviting the delegates to a cial reception on Tuesday evening in the useum of Science and Art. There was a large ister of Association men and their friends. mongst others present were Right Rev. the shop of Edinburgh (Dr. Dowden), Rev. Dr. acgregor, St. Cuthbert's; Rev. Professor aikie, Moderator of the Free Church; Mr. orge Williams, President of the English tional Council; Dr. Carment, President the Edinburgh Y.M.C.A., &c. Amongst e many hearty speeches of welcome, none was re thorough in its warm appreciation of the rk of the Association than that of Dr. acgregor.

The Conference proper commenced on Wednes- y morning. Rev. HENRY MONTGOMERY (Belfast) sided over the opening devotional meeting. e gave a brief and inspiring address.

Mr. JAMES YOUNG, of Alloa, took the chair at n o'clock. Mr. HENRY ARMSTRONG, Secretary- ct of the Newcastle Y.M.C.A., read the first per on the topic, "Remedies for Indifference in sociation Work." The indifference of the ristian public arises from their failure realise the urgent need for the work. is again arises from the lack of readable Asso- tion literature. The work in many places has sumed a benevolent and philanthropic charac- r, instead of maintaining the hearty co-opera- on of the young men. In many quarters there s been indifference to athletic sports and other atters in which young men are interested; also lack of organisation and the absence of trust in e members. Good rooms are essential to suc- ss. Many other points were raised, leading up the greatest need of all in overcoming indiffer- ce, a fresh baptism of the Holy Ghost.

A brisk discussion followed, the most import- t suggestion that was made being a resolution oved by Dr. CARMENT, requesting the British ommittee to take steps for the publication of Association newspaper, and other much-needed erature.

The noon prayer meeting was held at twelve clock, Mr. M. H. Hodder presiding. After lf-an-hour spent in prayer and praise, a never- be forgotten address was delivered by Rev. LEXANDER WHYTE, D.D. (Free St. George's, dinburgh), on "The Devotional Uses of the agination." Imagination is one of the greatest fts of God—one for the right use of which we all have to give an account. There are Divine d splendid uses of the imagination. In read- g Scripture we must learn more and more to se the imagination, making the scenes to live efore us. Why is it that we can read Psalm li. ith interest for the thousandth time when a ere glance at the daily newspaper suffices us? e read the newspaper for information, but the ible for impression. The Scriptures are dull read without using the imagination. We ad the words, but do not see the things. ake the thought, "He that spared not his own n." What scope for the sanctified imagination eneath the word "spared." We see Geth- mane, the agony; we hear the prayer, "My ather, spare Me; if it be possible spare Me." very word in the Scripture is a challenge to us, y means of the imagination, to see the scene.

Imagination enters largely into prayer. Why it that men are so brief in private and so long public? Because they do neither realise the resence into which they have come, nor the ressing needs of the world, the Church, and the iends around them. Let loose your imagina- on at the Mercy-seat, and make the matters bout which you pray live before you; then they ill have to knock at your chamber-door to break ort your earnest supplications, and, when you me down from your communion, men will see y your face that you have been in other orlds.

So in Praise. How little men realise what they re engaged in when they sing the praises of God. When witnessing a congregation singing "When I survey the wondrous cross," one almost feels compelled to stop them, for they sing with wooden hearts and see with wooden eyes. Dr. Whyte went on to speak of the uses of the imagination in relation to the Lord's Supper. "Christ's death is represented in the Supper." This is, according to Jeremy Taylor, the principle that underlies the Lord's Supper. We meet God with the eyes of the mind. Mark Antony put "a tongue in every wound of Cæsar" by stirring up the imagination of his hearers till Rome rose as one man to avenge his death. This is the sacramental principle: that by the devotional use of the sanctified imagination we shall see afresh the facts of Calvary.

The Conference was resumed in sectional meetings in the afternoon, the Scotch delegates meeting by themselves for a business session. The English and Irish delegates considered the subjects of "Work Amongst Boys" and "How to Engage the Help of Members in the Detail of Association Work so as to Relieve Honorary Secretaries," an excellent paper introducing the topic having been contributed by Mr. R. H. HENSON, of Finsbury-park, who was unfortunately unable to be present.

Between these two subjects was sandwiched an impromptu discussion on the "Foreign and Colonial Work" of the Association. In the course of the discussion brief addresses were delivered by Mr. ROBERT MCCANN, travelling secretary for the Bombay Presidency, and by Rev. HENRY MONTGOMERY (Belfast). As the result of an appeal for funds towards the Indian expenses £164 was raised in the room.

At five o'clock the General Secretaries held an important sectional meeting for the consideration and adoption of a scheme for an annuity and endowment fund for retiring secretaries. This is a matter of great importance, which has been brought to maturity by the careful efforts of Mr. W. M. Oatts (General Secretary, Glasgow), who at a subsequent stage brought the matter under the favourable notice of the General Conference.

The evening meeting was to have been presided over by Lord Kinnaird. His lordship was prevented from attending by domestic bereavement. Mr. W. M. OATTS (Glasgow) took the chair, and the first business was a paper on "The Functions of a Y.M.C.A. President," written by Dr. HINGSTON, President of the Plymouth Y.M.C.A. The paper was characterised by outspokenness and definiteness of criticism, which makes papers on these occasions really practical and helpful.

The paper of the evening was a long and exhaustive tractate by Mr. W. M'COACH, of Londonderry, on "The Need for the Predominance of the Spiritual Element in Association Work." On this question there was no difference of opinion. All the speeches accentuated this first principle in association work. In the course of the evening a report was brought up from the British committee, to whom the resolution of Dr. Carment had been referred in the forenoon. The report recommended: "That it is advisable that a Young Men's Christian Association Publishing Company, Limited, should be formed, and capital subscribed for general publishing purposes, but especially for the establishing of a British Young Men's Christian Association journal in the interests of the work as a whole throughout the country; further, that the whole subject be remitted meanwhile to the National Executives of the respective countries."

(To be concluded next week.)

French Children.

MDLLE. MAUBERT, who is known to many of our readers in connection with the work which she carried on among the children at Deauville, is now putting forth similar efforts among the young people at Parthenay, where she is at present residing. By means of the illustrated leaflets such as are issued in French by the Children's Special Service Mission, the little ones are attracted, and the pictures help to rivet attention to the Scripture truth accompanying them. Thus the good seed is planted in these young hearts, and only eternity will reveal the full fruition.

SAILORS' HOME, MEMEL.—The first report of this Home shows a good start and useful work, carried on largely by the Y.M.C.A. of Memel, and earnest young Christian Endeavourers who render personal service, which God has blessed. The Secretary, Rev. Otto Koenig, Baptist minister, Memel, would be glad to hear from any willing to help.

SERIOUS OPPOSITION IN CHINA.

MY DEAR SIR,—Here is the latest news just to hand from the city we opened successfully in January last, as far as renting and getting half possession of the house is concerned. Hsuen Ching Fu is the name of the city. In February, towards the end, opposition began, and continued right on till I left the city on April 6, growing fiercer day by day, the leading spirits being urged on by the residing magistrate from the first to turn us out at all costs, but do no harm to our persons. The ringleaders were literary scholars, degreed men, and they succeeded in stirring up a bitter hostility against us; so much so, that by last post I hear, much to my own grief and sorrow, from one of our workers in Paoning, whither Mr. Beauchamp had gone at once after the event:—

"On Saturday morning, April 16th, about ten, Mr. Beauchamp and Mr. Parsons were alarmed by a crowd in the yard, who seized them by their hair and dragged them out into the street, and along out of the West gate. Our house was on the West street, situated some three or four hundred yards from the gate. Then the contents of horrible manure buckets were thrown over them. Some dozen young military students did the work. Our brethren were prevented from entering the city or sitting down anywhere. If they sat down recourse was made to the buckets, which had been prepared beforehand.

"When the two dear brethren tried to get some food, a gong was beaten, and the people were told to turn the foreigners out. All day they were kept from sitting down or taking any food. Their luggage was all brought down to the river, and they were told to clear away their things and go. This they refused to do; whereupon the mob seized their servant, and forced him to pay for the carriage of the things, and take charge of them. A boat was got, and the things put on to it, the brethren having to follow, as evening was upon them. The mob then threw stones and mud, &c., at them, and the skipper had to put off amid stream."

Thus ends the letter I quote from. You will gather from this that we need the prayers of all God's people very sorely. Pray for these poor magistrates and people, too. Also that grace and wisdom may be given us from above to carry on our extension work and obtain new centres, so absolutely necessary to his cause in this land. But in all things fiat voluntas tua.

The Lord who is so graciously answering your and our prayers for reinforcements is also able to work in these Satan-bound hearts, and give his children favour in their eyes. I beg you fervently to pray for us and them continually.—Yours, in our risen and coming King,

W. HOPE GILL.

City of Wan Hsien, S.E. Szch'uan, W. China, May 4.

AT WORK IN KWEICHOW.

MR. THOS. WINDSOR, of the C.I.M., writes from Kwu-Yang-fu:—The Lord has graciously kept us in undisturbed quiet in this province during the trying disturbances in the Yangtzu Valley. I have just lately returned from Ngan Hsuen Fu, where I have been living with Mr. Adam during the 'Fu' Examination. Notwithstanding that our house in that city is situate in the same street, and close to the Examination Hall, and the students were constantly passing and repassing our door, we were, nevertheless, able to open the preaching shop daily and preach to hundreds of them, who entered and listened quietly to the Gospel. Many bought books, and some asked interesting questions.

We are rejoiced and encouraged by the addition of three new workers within the past few months, and further news of three others on their way hither. We trust this increase of workers will also mean an increase of centres and converts.

THE HOPE MISSION.—This Mission has been working for more than seventy years among the costermongers and labourers in St. Luke's. On Friday last the memorial-stone of a new building, being erected in Banner-street, was laid by Earl Compton, President of the Mission. The new building is to be opened in about three months' time free of debt, the money having been contributed by the workers themselves, their friends, and those among whom they work. It is hoped that many will show willingness to help a mission which is doing its best to aid itself. Communications may be made to the treasurer, Mr. R. J. Moser, 23, Maresfield-gardens, Hampstead, N.W.

Our Civic Guardians.

A SEASIDE HOME FOR SICK AND INJURED POLICEMEN.

BY PEARL FISHER.

How much in the way of peace and safety do we owe to our well-organised and vigilant police force, yet it is only the other day that any distinct and definite effort was undertaken by Christian workers for the well being, temporal and eternal, of our civic guards, and this long forgetfulness seems all the more surprising when it is borne in mind that a policeman has peculiar opportunities of speaking timely words to the wrong-doer, the tempted, and the despairing. Many recent instances occur to my mind in which a word fitly spoken by a Christian constable has been used by God to the saving of a soul from death, the snatching of one as a brand plucked from the burning. The Christian Police Association had origin in the longing laid on a lady's heart for the salvation of policemen. The work thus begun has spread widely, and has been the means of bringing many to the Saviour.

At present, however, I am concerned not with the Christian Police Association itself, but with which has grown out of the discoveries made by the Christian Police Association workers. Gaining, as these did, a close acquaintance with the actual conditions of life amongst members of the force, they found need for some provision in time of sickness and injury. Ordinary Convalescent Homes did not meet the exigencies of the case. A man on sick leave requires some place he can go to at once—if he has to wait his turn his leave may expire, or be drawing to a close, before he can gain admission. Hence the promoters of this very useful association became strongly impressed with the necessity for a Home specially for the police; and some two years ago they were enabled to open such a resort at 51, Clarendon-villas, West Brighton. This Home has proved most valuable, but will soon be no longer available, while, in addition, it is too small and not fully adapted for its purpose. It is intended for policemen from all parts of the country, of every rank and of every persuasion. During the past two years over five hundred men have been admitted, and the need has been conclusively demonstrated, while the value and usefulness of the Home has been abundantly exemplified.

THE POLICE SEASIDE HOME,

INJURED IN DISCHARGE OF DUTY.

Not long ago, for instance, a member of the Metropolitan police came down to the Home with his head badly hurt, having been assaulted while interfering in a street row. The injuries had induced violent neuralgia; he suffered excruciating pain, almost continually. His stay at the Home, the kind attention shown him, and the care taken by the physician, resulted in his return to duty greatly relieved. During a second visit, the distressing symptoms entirely disappeared; and the constable, who a few weeks previously had entered the Home in a shattered condition, left it in perfect health.

Another officer had been injured in stopping a runaway horse. It was the sixth he had thus stopped, but this last shock brought on paralysis. He had saved, doubtless, many lives, but at a sad cost to himself. Unhappily, he will never be fit for active duty again, but he was profoundly thankful for the kindness shown him in the Home, and for the benefit thereby received.

These two facts illustrate dangers to which policemen are peculiarly exposed. Many, as a recent pitiful case has reminded the public, face death, permanent injury, or severe wounds, in arresting violent and drunken offenders. One man, lately in the Home, had been fearfully beaten with his own truncheon, by three burglars he had detected breaking into a railway-station. Moreover, the men on fixed points and crossings, while rendering important service to the public at large, do so at great risk to themselves. Sad, however, as these cases are, they are not the most numerous. Chest complaint and consumption, the consequence of

EXPOSURE AND NIGHT DUTY

are in the majority; and full oft, taken in time, the rest, good nourishment, loving care, and sea breezes have been the means of cure or of considerable relief. Many have arrived after acute illnesses, and have entirely regained health and strength; while cases of those who have come after operations, fractures, and injuries sustained in the performance of duty have been very numerous.

Many friends, while thankful for the physical benefits bestowed, will be inclined to ask, What about higher things? The first aim and wish of the founders of the Home is that Christ should be glorified, and that all who come under its roof should feel his power throughout the daily life.

There is no compulsion to attend religious services, but Bible readings are held for all who like to attend, and the Word at these meetings, and at the daily family prayers, has been blessed to winning souls. One interesting incident of this kind I may give briefly.

"I AM TOO BAD."

One young constable, who has lately passed away into the heavenly land, in full assurance of hope, came to the Home opposed to anything in the shape of religion. In a short interview with the Lady Superintendent, which he himself sought, to express gratitude for kindness received, but in which he was evidently anxious to avoid any conversation in spiritual matters, God the Holy Ghost led him to cry in true penitence to Christ, and brought him to his Saviour by the words: "And when he was yet a great way off, his father saw him," and his cry of "I can't come back, I'm too bad, I've gone too far," was changed to the prayer, "Christ, take me back."

He lived for six months to testify, with much joy in the Lord, to the keeping power of Christ. Almost at the last, when his wife was sympathising about his terrible cough, he said with a smile, "Ah, but there is not a cloud within!"

One writes, in a letter I have just seen: "Tomorrow is my spiritual birthday. What a blessed year since I found Christ in the Seaside Home." Another remarks: "It is Jesus and I on duty now!" Another, in the course of an interesting letter, says, "Now I possess instead of profess Christ."

Many such instances might be given, and letters quoted indicating results which might be anticipated from residence in a home opened in the spirit of Christian love and carried on for the glory of God. Yet after all, it is a Seaside Home for sick and injured, weak and weary policemen, and as such it is utterly too small. It should be noted that these pay 8s. per week for board; and that, when there is room, police officers on leave are received as visitors at the charge of 12s. per week. It need scarcely be added that it is strictly and wholly a Temperance Home.

As I have shown, a larger home has now become

ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY.

After much prayer and consideration it has been resolved to "arise and build." A most suitable site has been purchased and given by a lady, plans have been prepared for a plain, well-built home to accommodate comfortably thirty-three men, with bedrooms, dining and sitting rooms, a verandah for invalids on the sunny side, and every necessary provision for convalescents. The total cost of building, fitting, and furnishing, ready for use, is estimated at £6000, towards which £1500 have been already promised or given. The whole will be in the hands of six well-known and responsible trustees. The facts and incidents I have just given show the great importance and real value of such a home, meeting, as it does, the need of a body of men who render us the highest service, and who in so doing run terrible risks, and in many cases suffer sorely. The help thus afforded them is but a fair return for kindness and protection received from them; but above all, while doing good in the time of sickness and pain, it is a truly Christ-like effort of Christian love and sympathy on lines which God has been pleased to bless. Friends willing to aid this good work may address, Miss C. Gurney, the Police Institute, 1A, Adelphi-terrace, London, W.C., or Miss May Griffin, 51, Clarendon-villas, West Brighton.

BROMHAM, DEVIZES.—Many Christians in this neighbourhood had a blessed time on Tuesday, June 29. About two hundred invitations had been sent out by Miss H. J. Edgell, and these were responded to by believers from Devizes, Bromham, and neighbouring places. The meetings were held in a tent on the lawn at the Rectory, tea being kindly provided. The subject of conference was "The Holy Spirit: His Person and Work." Rev. E. N. Thwaites, of Salisbury, presided, and gave two soul-stirring addresses. It was truly a time of refreshing, the happiest unanimity prevailing.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOUR AS A MISSIONARY FORCE.

It has been prophesied that within a few years the Christian Endeavour Society will become the chief channel for all young people's missionary work. The arguments in support of the position are strong. The tendency of the times is toward the unification, the centralisation of effort, and especially of the "machinery" of work.

Another large factor is the esprit de corps of Christian Endeavour which inspires each society to attempt whatever another society has accomplished, and which enables the movement to lay firm hold upon thousands of young people whom a distinctively missionary society could not attract. Especially significant is it that in this organisation only, outside of the Students' Volunteer Movement, are missionary opportunities and appeals brought directly to young men.

The conditions under which alone missionary work can be successfully carried on, furnish another argument. It must be planned and provided for months in advance. Once entered, a field must be cultivated at any cost until the harvest is reaped. The churches which help our Boards most are not those which give a large sum under pressure of eloquent appeal, but those which can be depended upon for a regular amount year after year. Consecrated will is the backbone of missions. Consecrated will, not evanescent impulse, is the heart of Christian Endeavour.

Another bond of sympathy between Christian Endeavour and Missions is the heroism which both require. From the moment a timid young disciple pledges himself to witness for Christ in each meeting, up through every step of the work to its very crown, it is a constant appeal for self-sacrificing consecration.

Its educational advantages are unequalled. Every faithful missionary committee is leading its society to study missions systematically and thoroughly. Does it require a strong prophetic vision to see within a few years a million Christian Endeavourers, every one of whom is a watchman on the walls?

Two years ago Rev. S. L. Mershon proposed a plan by which each society should study the missions of its own denomination, and write essays thereon. Within one month the literature supplies of three secretaries were exhausted

Proportionate giving is beginning to receive marked attention in societies and conventions. This augurs well for missionary treasuries. Rev. A. A. Fulton's plan of "two cents a week for missions" has spread through hundreds of societies in a single year.

The next generation of missionaries will of necessity be almost entirely drawn from Christian Endeavour ranks, but even now many members are turning longing eyes toward the foreign field. One society in Washington, D.C., reports three who prefer Africa, with others undecided.

A Philadephia society supports a student in Anatolia College. Another, elsewhere, supports a Bible reader in Aintab. A Scranton society sold shares in a missionary, raising thereby fifteen hundred dollars to send him to the foreign field. In St. Paul, Minn., one gives half of every dollar in its treasury to missions.

The Congregational Christian Endeavour Societies throughout the West are considering a plan by which they shall support a group of young missionaries (of three years' service, or less) scattered over the domain of the American Board. A Zulu society has sent a missionary to its benighted brethren, further inland. "Blessed are ye when ye sow beside all waters."—N. Y. Independent.

CORSICA VILLAGE MISSION. — Miss Grant Brown is anxious to state that the Dowager Lady Hatherton pays the whole salary of the Evangelist de Matru in Corsica. This same kind friend has bought the field for the cemetery at Muro.

DUELS IN FRANCE, between Semites and Anti-Semites, have culminated in a lamentable incident—the death of a Jew, Captain Mayer. In an able and patriotic address at the cemetery, on the occasion of the funeral, Rabbi Zadoc Kahn spoke of such encounters as "fratricidal fights, unfortunately sanctioned by custom, but disallowed both by law and religion." Le Christianisme, while recognising the force of the Rabbi's speech, points out that, beyond an invocation of God at the end, not a word on religion appeared in the discourse. This, doubtless, arises from the Pharisaic delusion embodied in the well-known formula, "All Israel hath a portion in the world to come."

MISSION TO LEPERS.

The increased interest in the poor lepers of the st indicates a quickened sense of Christian mpassion. The Lord Jesus did not deny mercy men stricken with the deadly malady, and his sciples do well to emulate his gracicusexample. e seventeenth annual report of the Mission to pers in India tells of operations over a field ich has, of late, been extended so as to include er lands in the East. The undertakings of the ciety are numerous, and something like £5000 ear is required if all demands are to be met. Details are given in the report of efforts in ny centres to brighten sad lives, and instruct em in the faith and hope of the Gospel. A aching story is told of Mussuwa, the second per admitted to the asylum at Almora, on its tablishment in 1850. Writing of him Mr. lloch says:—In 1864, Mussuwa, probably e first leper convert in India, was bap- ed by Rev. J. Hewlett, who, on hear- g of the old man's death, gave the follow- g particulars of his baptism: "The news takes e back to that January afternoon in 1864, when, the spot where the Leper Chapel now stands, gathered the inmates of the Asylum, and spoke them lovingly of the great Physician. I was lighted beyond measure when Mussuwa stood and said, with face and hands upturned, ince Jesus has done so much for me, how can elp doing whatever He requires of me?' His claring himself, on this occasion, on the viour's side, led to his baptism, together with at of two others, whom he had persuaded to n him in following Christ."

In 1869 Mussuwa became a communicant, and s all along maintained a consistent life, and ercised such a power for good upon his com- nions that most of those who have become ristians in the Asylum have done so princi- lly through his exertions. He has been blind the last twenty-four years, yet this did not em to detract from his power to influence others. ver once did I hear him complain; on the con- ry, he seemed to be continually praising God his goodness and love, and thanking the ends of lepers for all they did to alleviate the series of those afflicted like himself. Two days fore his death I saw him for the last time. He s evidently waiting for the Master's call. Sahib," he said to me, "I am very tired. I ink the blessed Jesus will soon give me rest." e kept on repeating how glad he was that he ew that Jesus loved him, though a leper, and at he would be permitted to enter glory whole d clean, purified from sin, and freed from cor- ption. Simpler and stronger faith, and ier love for the Redeemer, it would be difficult find in the Christian Church. He died sur- unded by a number of his more particular ends among the lepers, and his last words them were, "I am going to Jesus. Do you ntinue to walk in his ways."

Mr. Bulloch, writing from Almora, on May 30, joices that, through the generosity of friends Great Britain, he has been enabled to admit to the Asylum five poor lepers who had been ting at the gate for several weeks. He says: The joy with which they hobbled along to the rrack when they were admitted would have joiced the hearts of those who are making such orts to help them. I have also admitted three ers, the last being a man who came in from hchor yesterday, wearied and broken with the rney and the disease. Just as I was beginning e afternoon service at the Asylum he hobbled the steps into the church, crying out, 'Oh, hib! have pity on me, and take me into the per Asylum. I am dying with hunger and akness. Look at my sores, and have pity on .' I told him to sit down with the others for ittle, and listen with them to what Jesus had say to the leper, and we would then put him a barrack, and give him some food. After vice was over, his expressions of gratitude re endless as he was shown the room he was occupy, and was told that he need have no re anxiety as to food, &c., if he only obeyed the les and regulations. One of our oldest inmates d the other day of leprous sores at the age seventy-seven. Her name appears on the gister in 1864. She has been a Christian for out twenty-five years, and passed away very acefully, expecting complete redemption in the esence of the Saviour."

For further information regarding the work, recommend our readers to procure a copy of e report from the secretary, Mr. Wellesley C. iley, who has himself worked for many years among the lepers of India. Application should be made to him at 17, Glengyle-terrace, Edinburgh.

CONVERSION OF A ROMISH PRIEST.

In the current issue of Rev. Thomas Connellan's paper, The Catholic (Mecredy and Kyle, 49, Middle Abbey-street, Dublin), Rev. R. H. Moreton, Wesleyan minister, 174, Rua da Piedade, Oporto, gives interesting details of a young Portuguese priest who has just broken with Rome. He writes: "The home of Joaquim dos Santos Figueiredo, is the university town of Coimbra, where he was educated both at school and in the Seminary. His first charge was a curacy at the important Church of Santa Cruz in that city, which he gave up of his own accord when he found that he could not conscientiously serve the Church of Rome any longer.

"His first doubts began, when young, through the reading of a Bible, which he was warned against as a 'false' book. He was also told (although this was really the Roman Catholic translation) that this book, like all those sold by Protestants, was lacking in many portions, as Protestants were believed to eliminate from their Bibles all the portions that did not suit their doctrines. On examination he found that so far from there being any wanting, the very proof-texts of the Roman Theological Manuals were there intact. By-and-by a copy of Adolphe Monod's "Lucille," in Portuguese, fell into his hands, and deepened his convictions. He came to me a year and a-half ago for information, and on subsequent occasions got more light on the subjects in debate, so that finally he broke off his connection with Rome, and came to live in this city in the middle of March of this year. On the first of May he preached his first sermon, which has been prepared for publication as a manifesto to the country.

"You will be interested to learn that, notwithstanding this bold step, an old Canon of Coimbra wrote him a very affectionate note, which I saw this morning, telling him that he is still his friend, and he will always be pleased to see him at his house, which shows that there is a strong liberal under-current amid the priesthood of this country. I ought to add that Padre Figueiredo has given every evidence of sincerity and child-like faith, and we all hope that he will prove an efficient and earnest worker in behalf of the Gospel in this country."

The "Arethusa" Training Ship.

On Saturday afternoon a goodly number of friends of the National Refuges for Homeless and Destitute Children went down from London to witness the annual prize distribution to the boys on board the Society's training ship Arethusa, lying in the Thames at Greenhithe. The ship had been done up with an abundance of fresh paint, and, prettily decorated as it was with flags and bunting, presented quite a brilliant spectacle in the summer sunshine, while the boys in their white sailor tunics smartened up the appearance of the whole. A considerable programme of interesting items was gone through by the boys, including the manning of the yards, musical and physical drill, accompanied by the music of the ship's brass band, and fire drill.

The prize distribution was undertaken by Mrs. Durrant, wife of Rear-Admiral Durrant, and included rewards for general diligence and exemplary conduct while on board ship, efficiency in practical seamanship, for knotting and splicing, sculling, heaving the lead, swimming, &c. A popular prize was that given to "the best-liked boy in the ship," chosen by the boys themselves. There were also book prizes given by the Chaplain for the "best account of a sermon," and by the committee for proficiency in religious knowledge.

From a statement made by the Secretary of the National Refuges, Mr. H. Bristow Wallen, it appeared that the present number of boys on board the ship is about two hundred, their average stay being thirteen months. Since 1874 no less than 4598 have been drafted from the ship either into the Royal Navy or the Merchant Service. The work of the institutions is, of course, entirely dependent on voluntary contributions.

THE LIGHT IN ITALY.—Miss Jane Cox writes from Intra, Lago Maggiore: "The Lord's work here is, we trust, making steady progress. Every Sunday the hall is crammed, but it is sad to reflect that the church cannot be finished for want of funds. The exterior is complete, but not fully paid for; therefore the interior cannot be begun. About £500 is needed; a friend has promised £50 if nine others will do the same within three months. Our new converts are true missionaries, seeking to draw others to Christ, and generally bringing a friend with them to the meetings. Moreover, some open their houses for cottage gatherings."

THE GRINDELWALD CONFERENCE.

In The Daily Chronicle of Tuesday there is a long account of the proceedings of the first party, which reached Grindelwald on Tuesday evening, June 28. A reception was held by Dr. Lunn, at the Grindelwald Parish Church, next evening. The entire party, augmented by local friends and travellers by independent routes, to about two hundred persons, pretty nearly filled the venerable but quaint church. Dr. Lunn said no observant person could fail to have been struck by the extreme readiness with which the Christian public the world over had taken up the idea of the Reunion as a means to the all-pervading desire for greater unity. A real and substantial organic unity he did not anticipate speedily, yet he could not fail to recognise that there were many, and growing, indications in that direction.

Rev. W. Hay Aitken emphasised Dr. Lunn's remarks on the extreme seriousness and practical importance of the gathering. The constantly recurring thought to every mind should be as to what practical and permanent good, and means of strengthening, would come from the Reunion. Certainly Christ desired the broadest possible unity both spiritual and outward, and the presence of God in human hearts must form the true bond of union. Believers in Pentecostal power must perforce believe that God could lead them out of all the difficulties and perplexities of the situation, out of the entanglement of thought and all the convolutions of ecclesiastical institutions, and on to the higher level on which all might grasp hands, and begin to exhibit to the world that there is beneath all divergencies an underlying union, which may be brought to the front, and which should and would be so brought forward, and be made patent to the eyes of all. Mr. Aitken recounted an experience he had while working with Mr. Moody in London in 1870, and said he had worked shoulder to shoulder with him for many months before he knew to what sect Mr. Moody belonged to, so intense was his earnestness to sink all sectarianism for earnest work; that was an object lesson which indelibly fixed itself on his mind, and since then the thought had never left him that the true rallying-point for all spiritually-minded persons was the Cross.

Rev. Canon Galway, speaking as a member of the Irish Church, pledged not only his own sympathy, but that of his Church, with the reunion. Rev. R. Lovett, book-editor to the Religious Tract Society (London), said his society had solved successfully one of the great Christian union problems by electing a working committee, on which the denominational views of the members were perfectly equipoised. That committee had done very successful work, without any rupture in its original perfect harmony. Christian union would be an aggressive force for the spread of Christianity. Rev. Mr. Bradfield (Methodist), of Leicester, remarked that the strength of the position of that gathering was that they represented a widespread, Christian sentiment. It fell to the lot of Rev. J. Harford Battersby, rector of Pembury, Tunbridge Wells, to open the real discussion on July 1, which he did by delivering a paper on the fundamentals of Christian unity, under the title of "Our Common Ground." Mr. Battersby said the unity desired must be not only a spiritual unity, but there must be a unity that should be outward and manifest to the world. He trusted the outcome of the conference would help forward this by means of discussion and mutual tolerance. There must certainly be awakened in the entire Christian community a sense of shame at the broken-up state of Christendom. The only way possible to arrive at a consolidation in essentials was for each denomination to apply itself to the problem, and then set forth clearly and simply what essentials they considered might be preserved in any consolidated Church. In other words, let them hear from each denomination what, in its temperate and deliberate judgment, was the most generous platform it could conscientiously offer to the rest.

Rev. William Gibson, who opened the discussion, expressed his opposition to the doctrine of the Historic Episcopate. Rev. William Middleton urged deliberate thought and well-digested conclusions. Mr. Stanley Smith (China Mission) said in thinking of Christian unity two thoughts pressed increasingly on his mind—viz., that the two powers necessary to bring about union were holiness of heart, and the putting aside all writings save the Bible, and the Bible only

NOTES ON DAILY READINGS.

SUNDAY, JULY 10.—EXODUS XXXII.

The heart of man longs for some visible manifestation of God. There was no thought of renouncing Jehovah, but of worshipping Him under visible form. The people were willing to make great sacrifices if only they might be gratified in this. How marvellously this craving has been satisfied by the revelation of God in Jesus Christ our Lord! The face of a Man looks down on us, reflecting the glory of God, and the hand of a Man is stretched out towards us. There are few episodes which more clearly bring out the difference between the two brothers than this. Aaron so cowardly, bowing before the will of the people, swept away from his moorings by the storm of their passion, excusing himself with Moses as well as he might, by laying the blame of the calf on the furnace out of which it came. In him we may find a type of the office of the Lord Jesus, but how little of the spirit! For that we must turn to his great brother, who in his pleadings for the people, reminds us of Him who ever liveth to make intercession for us. How unselfish he was! He cared not to be made a great nation so long as God's glory was dimmed. He broke out in irresistible indignation when he saw the idolatrous orgies from afar; he cast down the tables of stone as though Israel was not worthy to receive them; he raised the sword of judgment for the death of three thousand men, but when all was over he returned to the Lord, and, as if catching sight of the principle of the atonement, proposed that, if needs were, he should die rather than that the whole nation should perish. In all this how much there is of Christ!

MONDAY, JULY 11.—EXODUS XXXIII.

Sinai is the place where it becomes us to strip off the ornaments of our pride. What right have we to pride ourselves in anything? All is lent to us by God. It becomes us to empty ourselves and abase ourselves in the dust. At Sinai we come to know ourselves, and are, perhaps, too conscious of our own unworthiness to be able to realise face-to-face fellowship with God. The tent of meeting is pitched afar from the camp. But when the law has done its work, we pass through the realisation of the mediation of Jesus into face-to-face communion with God. The Lord speaks to us as a man with his friend. How insatiable the holy soul becomes! The Lord had proposed to send his angel with the host, but Moses protested that this would not be enough, and entreated for the Divine presence itself until the Lord promised to do that thing also that He had spoken. And when the petitioner had gained his point he followed up his request by another, that he might behold God's glory. But God loves such requests. He gave the promise of his presence; He promised rest; He assured Moses that he had found grace in his sight; He promised to put him in the cleft of the rock, and hide him there. Ah, soul, is this thy place? Art thou sheltered in the rock and covered by the hand? Dost thou know that presence which is separation and rest? Hast thou learnt that God's glory consists not in the pomp of Deity, but in his grace, his unmerited love?

TUESDAY, JULY 12.—EXODUS XXXIV.

Be ready in the morning! There is no time for mountain climbing and far visions like the morning. Let us present ourselves to God with the tablets of the heart prepared for the writing of his hand and the impression of his will. What a glimpse we have into the heart of God in these wonderful words! Such a combination of mercy and truth, of forgiveness to the penitent, and punishment to the guilty. But in that supreme moment of revelation Moses seems to have been more anxious to plead the cause of his people, than to press any suit of his own. "Take us for thine inheritance." The answer to that prayer came in the demand for consecration, for the breaking down of all altars to false gods, and the eradication of the symbols of idolatry. And not only these, but also the dedication of the firstborn, the best and brightest to God's service. So when we ask for greater displays of God's love and power, the answer comes in some demand that reaches deeper down than any before in its appeal. And when this is granted the promise follows of the casting out of the nations and the enlarged borders. That shining face is full of blessed meaning. It reminds us of the Transfiguration, when, during prayer, our Master's face shone as the light. But the glow in the first case was caught from without, in the other passed out from within. If we lived more in communion with God, our faces also would begin to glow with a light never beheld on earth or sea.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 13.—EXODUS XXXV.

He who gave the plan in all its variety, gave the people the ability to give and the willing mind for giving. It is a great blessing when there is a stirring-up of heart among the people of God. It is from above and within that all true movements of men proceed. There was no blame on those who only possessed wood that they did not bring gold. Every one brought according to his ability, and it was accepted according to what he had, not according to what he had not. But there would have been serious blame on those who had hoarded jewels or gold, which they refused to give to the service of the Lord. The wise-hearted women, who had little else to give, put their skill and labour into materials that were within reach, and greatly added to their value, and thus supplied an example to those who may not possess wealth, but can give wisely-directed toil. And let us notice that along with the materials for the execution of the Divine plan there were men specially endowed with directing skill and other gifts of craftmanship, they were filled with wisdom of heart to work themselves, and to teach others to work. In the fabric of the spiritual building, which God is rearing through the ages, every one of us has a niche and a sphere of appointed service. Let it be our aim first to find out what we can do best, and then do it with all the power of our nature. Faithful, perhaps in a very little, but still faithful.

THURSDAY, JULY 14.—EXODUS XXXVI.

The minuteness with which each part of the tabernacle is mentioned, not only first in the directions given to Moses, but here in their execution, reminds us of the necessity of great exactness in obeying the voice of God. We must not only have his commands, but must keep them. The will must be sought and done. Compare the plan as first given to the faithful servant, and the execution as delineated here, and there is a perfect reflection as of the foliage on a bank in the still deep waters of the lake beneath it. So must it be in our lives. Speaking in this strain, our Saviour said, "The Son can do nothing of Himself, but what He seeth the Father do;" and, He added, significantly, "Whatsoever things He doeth, these also doeth the Son likewise, as if there were never the smallest divergence between the will as perceived and the service rendered. And if we would act thus, not only in regard to the fine turned work of the cherubim, but to the boards of their bars, we should find that there would be nothing secular or common in our life, all would be wrought on God's plan, and for his glory. There is a way of doing all for God, trying to do each thing as He would wish it done, which may embrace sweeping a room or writing a letter. And whenever we act thus, we live in the midst of abundance. The people brought much more than enough. God makes all grace abound to those who do his will; they have all sufficiency and abound.

FRIDAY, JULY 15.—EXODUS XXXVII.

Blessed Jesus! in this chapter how evident Thou art! In the acacia wood we see thy humanity, in the pure gold thy Deity, and in the rings and staves reminiscences of the pilgrimage of thine earthly life. The mercy-seat recalls thy mediation, thou blessed Daysman. The cherubim tell of that homage which is thy right. The table is the communion of thy body, whereof holy souls must partake, if they would be efficient in thy service. The candlestick, with its seven lamps, is thy light-giving power, by which thy Church, and the world for which thou didst die, are illumined. Almond-blossoms bespeak thy fruitfulness, and flowers thy beauty. And as we behold the gold beaten out into shape, we remember the heavy blows that fell thick and fast upon Thee. The incense table is thyself under another guise, for it is on thee alone that offerings are laid which are acceptable to God. Oh, sanctify ourselves and our gifts! Mingle the much incense of thy merit with our prayers!

SATURDAY, JULY 16.—EXODUS XXXVIII.

The great altar was of wood overlaid with brass, so as to bear the intensity of the fire. Calvary, of which it speaks, was the scene of no common suffering borne for no ordinary sin. My soul, hast thou laid hold on the horns of that altar, finding sanctuary from the assault of condemnation, righteously merited? Oh! stand there for a moment, and see the intensity of God's indignation against sin, and rejoice that thou hast not to bear it, since it consumed thy substitute who was made sin for thee. Be after all, the great sacrifice of the cross mu be conjoined with the daily washing away of s as the mention of the altar is followed that of the laver. He who girded himself t wash the feet of his disciples has never aba doned the lowly office which He then began, an never will till the dusty pilgrim-path is trodde and we walk over the streets of gold, where du never accumulates. All the work of the artifice was weighed, so that there was an exact tal between the material given out and the wroug fabric handed back. Thus will the results life be tested and compared with our opportun ties, and we shall have to stand before th Assayer to render an account. Let us gather u the fragments of gold-dust that nothing be lost

International S. S. Lessons.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON, JULY 17.

The First Christian Church. Acts ii. 37-47.

Golden Text: Verse 47.

Mere amazement was not the only result of th descent of the Spirit. Peter began at once to preac to the people. It is the same Peter of whom w have read in the Gospels, but he is a new man. Hi timidity has given place to great boldness (22, 23) his mind has received fresh light for the understan ing of the Scripture, as evidenced by his reference t Joel's prophecy and to David (16, 25); his carnal ex pectations concerning the kingdom of God hav gone; and his testimony, though free from any o the arts of the orator, is full of power upon th people. Such a change does the Spirit of God mak in those who fully receive Him.

The effect upon the multitude was remarkable. I at first some were disposed to scoff (13), and if, whe charged with the murder of the Messiah, they grew angry, they were obliged at last to admit th power with which Peter spake. They could resis it, but they could not ignore it. Like a field of corn swayed with the wind, so were the people sway beneath the power of this Pentecostal sermon.

The lesson gives an interesting picture of the firs Christian Church. We see the Church dealing wit her first inquirers, receiving her first additions, an living together in unity.

The First Inquirers (37-40).—The first sermo preached in this dispensation was followed by a inquiry meeting. (1) Conviction (37). This was th effect of what they had heard. The Holy Ghos convinces of sin through the Word (John xvi. 8 They were pricked, not only to the heart, as in chap vii. 54, but in the heart. They recognised an acknowledged their sin, and saw their desperate con dition, and were eager to know the remedy. Ho we should delight to find the preacher and th teacher frequently interrupted by a similar inquiry (2) Instruction (38). Distinguish between mere con viction and true repentance. However deeply the feel their sin and cry out concerning it, they have not repented until they have turned fro it to God. Repentance is not emotion but action Baptized — not that baptism secured the remis sion of sins, but as the first act of obedience to Christ, and as the expression of our union wit Him, it symbolised our possession of this blessing i Him—see Eph. i. 7, and Acts xxii. 16. Our pardo is not in the outward ordinance, but in Him who death and resurrection the ordinance represents Without union to Him by living faith the outward ceremony is unavailing. The Holy Ghost—it wa no half Gospel that Peter preached. "The secon blessing" was a part of the first. For us, as fo Jesus, the gift of the Spirit is connected wit obedience to this command (Matt. iii. 16; Acts v 32). The promise (39) with which this offer is sup ported is large enough to include not only Jews, bu Gentiles who were "afar off." This was no specia favour for apostolic days, nor for the Jewish nation We, in these days, are included in the reach of th promise.

The First Additions (41, 42).—Not all wh heard, perhaps not all who were convicted (37), bu "they that gladly received the Word." Mere feel ing is not conversion. We must intelligently appre hend, and by faith receive the truth. The Word i the instrument of our being born again (1 Pet. i 23-25). Three thousand—it was a remarkable num ber, yet was it more than the promise warrants us in expecting? See Ezek. xxxvi. 37, 38, and John xiv. 1? The increase did not cease with the Day of Pentecost (47; iv. 4). They were real additions (42). Continu ance was not easy in those days. Discipleship in volved much that was painful and trying. Doctrine —teaching. Conversion was not everything. There is much to be learned after then. The docile, teach able spirit is needed to the end. Fellowship—not only companionship, but participation, involving a real sharing of one another's burdens. Breaking of bread—the New Testament description of the simple feast in commemoration of our Lord's death. The mysticism and superstition that have gathered about that ordinance were unknown then. Prayers, both secret and public. In these particulars these first additions to the Church are an example to young converts now.

Letters to the Editor.

ARMY SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY.

SIR,—I note in The Times of June 28 that the S.P.C.K. has granted £250 worth of books and tracts to the above Society. Let all its evangelical friends now urge upon the Committee to exclude in future such publications as "Simple Instructions in Christian Doctrine for the Use of Soldiers" (published by the S.P.C.K.), which, owing to its unscriptural teaching, is not calculated to promote "the sole object" of the Society, "which is to spread the saving knowledge of Christ among our soldiers."

OBSERVER.

PRAYER FOR THE NEW PARLIAMENT.

SIR,—No one can honour more than I do your desire to guard THE CHRISTIAN from the secularising of politics with its corollary of strife. But at this tremendous crisis will you give me the privilege of entreating your readers to cry to Almighty God, in whose hands are the hearts of all men, so to guide the hearts of electors that they may choose as their representatives in Parliament men who will rule in His faith and fear.

There is breathing time, still, for prayer, and for the faith which can remove mountains. Our Lord and Master has Himself said, "Whatsoever ye shall ask in my name that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son."

CREDO.

THE BAPTIST UNION.

DEAR SIR,—In reference to the Baptist Union controversy, originated by the action of Rev. F. B. Meyer, it is very remarkable that the constitution and basis of the Union is utterly ignored by many of those who gave it assent when they became members. The principle is that "In this Union it is fully recognised that every separate church has liberty to interpret and administer the laws of Christ," and the first of the objects of the Union is "To cultivate among its own members respect and love for one another, and for all who love the Lord Jesus Christ."

Now, Sir, how can the Union consistently interfere with an independent clergyman and his congregation without violating the terms of union?

It is a representative body, and, like the House of Commons, one member does not represent the views of the whole, and the whole is not responsible for the views of any individual member. Surely, the Union would indeed "go to pieces" if it attempted to tamper with the absolute independence of either churches or ministers.

For the sake of unity it is to be hoped the Council will consider the wisdom of adding to the constitution the words, "This Union shall not, in any case, become a court of appeal."—Yours faithfully,

ALFRED BULT.

25, New Quebec-street, Portman-square, W.

[It appears to us that a Union formed on such a basis as this may continue so long as those united are of one mind on essential matters; union will become impossible when this is not the case. Suppose, e.g., that some member went further than Mr. Aked, and exchanged pulpit or platform with an infidel. Then, as now, we think the right way for those who objected would be, not to ignore the constitution, but to withdraw from the Union.—ED.]

YOUNG WOMEN AT OLYMPIA.

SIR,—Your readers may be interested in what we are doing amongst the girls employed at Olympia, some five hundred in number. Two years ago, when Barnum's Show was in the same building, a lady started a series of teas for the members of the ballet. This year the same has been done at the cost of ten pounds a week, for which sum a room has been hired and teas given six times a week to about 110 each night. The time we give the teas is between the two shows, from five to seven; after tea ladies give short addresses, which we know have resulted in good. Our funds are now exhausted.

It is emphatically women's work for women. At the same time we do not wish to cast any reflection upon the management of "Venice." On the contrary, we believe they treat these girls fairly; but we are anxious to show some interest in, and strive to exert a healthy influence over, lives necessarily exposed to many and grave dangers.—Faithfully yours, (Captain) H. J. R. LOWE.

14, Chepstow Villas, W.

THE MINISTRY OF WOMEN.

DEAR SIR,—Your correspondent "P. L." complains of gatherings in which she has been forced to say, "They have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid Him." Perhaps others have had the like experience, and it is well to search and see whether the fault be in myself or in others. She seems to imply that, were the public ministry of women encouraged—presumably her own—it might be otherwise.

I would just remark that the promised presence of the Lord in the midst, though certainly a conditional promise, is not at all conditioned on ministry, whether of men or of women. Where saints are gathered by the Spirit to his Name, He is truly there in a real presence. But we may miss the sweetness of that presence, and I fear may even hinder others enjoying the sweetness of it. If we come expecting much from human ministry, we may of course be disappointed; for there is sometimes what is to little profit; of the flesh, and not of the Spirit. When He grants profitable ministry we enjoy it with thankfulness; but where there is none at all, the real presence may be quite as manifest.

But as to administration, real submission to the Word is needed; nor can I believe that the leadings of the Holy Spirit will ever be in any line away from the written Word.

I have often known how the silent ones, men or women, can, by a right spirit of communion, help in the general blessedness of the gathering.

Nor is 'ministry' by any means confined to making one's voice to be heard in the assembly. There is ministry for sisters which they only can effectively perform.

J. G. HALLIDAY.

INSTRUCTING THE YOUNG.

DEAR SIRS,—I attribute to your valuable journal much of my awakened interest in the educating of the young in the errors as taught by Rome, and in whose footsteps the Ritualistic or High Church party are carefully following.

To this end I have looked diligently amongst the publications of the day to see if any works suitable for children were published, showing up in simple language the errors of Rome.

Having failed in my search, I fell back on the literature issued by Catholic publishers expressly for children, and found any number, and on all sorts of subjects, one book alone containing thirty-six sections, with a note that any one or more might be read aloud each Sunday in Sunday school. I add one of these, number twenty-seven, on the Soul, "No tongue of man or of angels can tell the blessings of God for your soul, the Mother of God is your Mother, the angels who watch round the throne of God watch round your soul. Then there are those seven most wonderful sacraments to fill your soul with good things. There are lights and graces coming down from Heaven every moment into your soul. The very happiness which God has in Heaven will be yours when you die. Many other things God has made for your soul: there are crosses, that you might remember that Jesus was crucified for you; beads, that you might speak to your dear Mother Mary. Holy water to send away the devil from your soul; medals, that you might be blessed in the hour of your death; and scapulas, that, by the prayers of Mary, your soul might soon come out of Purgatory."

This is one of the thirty-six sections of subjects to be read on Sundays in the Sunday-schools.

Having purchased a good supply of Catholic literature, also a few of the saints with beads, medals, scapula and incense, I have, thus prepared, been able to give addresses to children on Rome's teaching from her own books, using against herself weapons of her own making.

I strongly commend this warfare to teachers in Sunday-schools, as one of the most effectual ways of exposing such errors.

I would add that, with the exception of my own Bible, in lecturing I have only with me those books that are published by Catholics, so that any extracts I may make cannot be refuted.

We cannot close our eyes to the fact that Romanism is spreading; the late Cardinal Manning was wise in his days, and knowing the influence on children that Rome had, would not suffer one of his schools to be closed, stating that "give him the children and he held the future."

HENRY GIBBS.

Bishopstone, Bristol.

INDUSTRIAL MISSIONS FOR AFRICA.

SIR,—The evangelisation of the world in the present generation being the one desire and prayer of many hearts, the writer would be glad if the following may add one grain in the scale of accomplishment.

A careful and prolonged study of the problem how to give one witness for Christ to every twenty thousand heathen must form the apology for troubling you, and urging on the Christian world the need of a society or societies on the lines of William Carey—viz., "that mission stations should become 'self-supporting and self-propagating.'" In other words, in answer to the recent query in a leading mission review, "What is the next step?" as regards Africa, the writer would like to suggest that one of the next steps be the formation of an African Industrial Missionary Society on an inter-denominational basis, as an auxiliary to existing agencies. The reasons he would urge are as follows:—

1. That Africa alone still needs eight to ten thousand witnesses; since fifteen thousand heathen are dying daily without the knowledge of God; fully one-half of whom are suffering cruel deaths.

2. That America and Europe has some thousands of volunteers for mission-fields, in advance of revenue power to sustain them.

3. That many of these could readily support themselves in certain parts of Africa, after an average of two years' help, with due care and organisation.

4. That we might and ought to take a lesson from such Moravian stations as Glenadendal and Mamre, and even from the Trappists (Benedictines), who in ten years have planted nine stations, supporting over three hundred workers; and train, clothe, and educate seven hundred natives.

5. That on Carey's lines his achievement of planting twenty-six stations, and earning (with his two confrères), the large sum of £61,500, besides comfortable support, may be repeated.

6. That the world to-day offers greater facilities than in his day; instance: fertile land with fairly healthy climate may be selected over an area ten times that of England, at less than one farthing per acre (£3 for three thousand acres), within the province of the South African Chartered Company. In British East Africa much the same, if not greater, advantages exist.

7. That the missionaries at each station would probably need to divide their work as the Moravians do, some taking the medical, spiritual and educational, and others the agricultural or secular portion.

8. That every £1000 judiciously expended now on some such basis, in planting out missionaries and acquiring stations of useful area, say from one thousand to twenty thousand acres, would, in the course of twenty years, probably result in property value over half a million sterling, which could either be realised or utilised as might best forward the interests of spreading the Gospel.

9. That after the first few years the probable earnings of each station would not average less than fifty pounds per missionary in excess of self-support, which latter should be a first charge of, say, £100 yearly.

10. That the Industrial Mission is best suited to the needs of Africa, which has been styled "a nation of unemployed," and whose people need to be taught that part of God's will is that man shall "replenish the earth and subdue it."

11. That the native convert, on these lines, under European leadership, could become a mighty factor in planting stations in the regions unevangelised.

The writer (who hails from the Baptists of Melbourne, Victoria) is founding a mission station on the lines indicated in the adjacent Shirè highlands. The secular portion of the work will be coffee-planting, which is a decided success in the vicinity. The natives are intelligent and tractable. Being alone and having very restricted means, the writer solicits help and helpers. He will especially be glad to co-operate with any persons desirous of forming an "African Industrial Missionary Society" on unsectarian lines, whose trustees shall have all property and increment vested in them.

Could not some of our wealthy mission societies be led to devote some percentage of their income—five, or even one per cent.—to work on these reproductive lines?—Yours faithfully,

JOSEPH BOOTH,
c/o African Lakes Company, Chinde,
Zambesi River, East Africa.

THE ACCUSER CAST DOWN.

DEAR SIR,—A letter in your issue of June 16 seems to demand a short rejoinder explanatory of my last. To disprove the principle that Christ and Satan cannot be at the same time in the same sphere in power together, your correspondent says: "In this 'sphere of the universe,' i.e., on the platform of this very earth where Christ reigns in the hearts of his people, Satan is the god of this age, and that the whole world lieth in the wicked one." What I referred to was not a material sphere, but a moral sphere. The sphere in which Satan is god is not the sphere in which Christ reigns. The one is the world, the other the Church. The point by which your correspondent intends to disprove the great and divine principle I have stated proves it more emphatically than any instance which I had adduced.

Again, he says Anti-Christ is to be indwelt by Satan, and alleges this as proof that Satanic possession did not cease at Christ's coming. For the former statement he gives no Scripture, 2 Thess. ii. 8-9 notwithstanding, and the latter is contrary to fact.—Yours faithfully,

GEORGE F. TRENCH.

DEAR SIR,—Although the subject originally put forward in THE CHRISTIAN of March 10 was limited to this—that a justified person could not be accused before God—yet it soon became intermixed with the prophetic vision related in Rev. xii., the interpretation of which was supposed to be affected by it; and before the investigation closes, may I express some thoughts upon that chapter both generally and particularly.

I do not understand the "Woman" to mean an actual person. A woman is referred to in ch. xvii., where it is evident that it is significant only. May it not be used in this 12th chapter in the same sense as in Gal. iv. 20, "Jerusalem that is above is free, which is our Mother"; and v. 31, "We are not children of the bondmaid, but of the freewoman"?

Nor do I understand "a son," "a man child," "who is to rule all the nations with a rod of iron," to mean any one man in particular. The same despotic, and, when rightly exercised, beneficial government requiring obedience to what is fair and just, with the certainty of instant peril on resistance, will be entrusted (Rev. ii. 27), "to him that overcometh." May not the man-child be a symbol of the whole body of those who overcome?

That the man-child should be regarded as the Lord Jesus Christ would to my mind be at variance with the book in which the expression occurs. It is the Book of the Revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave unto Him to show unto his servants things which must shortly come to pass—things future, therefore at the time when this revelation was given. We are reading of prospective events, not retrospective. If this is a true principle for our guidance, then the words cannot refer to the birth of Christ, for that had not, when John wrote the book, to come to pass, but had already happened. This remark will also bear upon this vision, or half the vision, related in this chapter, which has been regarded as fulfilled at the exaltation of Christ. But again, this had already taken place before this book concerning future things was written.

Then in regard to justification, would that foundation truth be touched if the martyrs referred to in v. 11, or any believers, could be accused by Satan? It is considered, if he can still accuse, that it would follow that a process of judgment as to life or death is being carried on—that condemnation and the death sentence of the accused might follow. Now, in the first place, to accuse does not only mean to indict a prisoner for trial. It means literally, to speak against—to rake up all discoverable faults and speak of them. Such a one is an accuser. This Satan does, not on some trial in particular, but, as it is said, day and night. And I suppose the holiest reader would be the first to admit that since his conversion by the grace of God he has from time to time acted unworthily of the vocation wherewith he is called; that he has not responded as he should have done to the multitude of mercies vouchsafed to him; that he is ashamed at the measure of distrust which sometimes re-appears; that he has not possessed and habitually shown forth the character of Him in whom nevertheless he trusts, and whom he truly wishes to resemble. Not now to indicate possible actual transgressions in detail, yet how much has every one to confess; and if Satan speaks against us as unworthy of the past blessings and of the grace designed for us, well, even so, apart from Christ we all have no standing ground. But the martyrs referred to in v. 10—for such the persons accused appear to be—overcome by the blood of the Lamb and the word of their testimony; and so may we in our circumstances.

In the second place, the justification of the believer is a completed act. God justifies; the meritorious basis is the Lord Jesus, and his obedience and sufferings, his righteousness and blood; and the believer is justified in the name of the Lord Jesus and by the Spirit of our God. Whatever the accuser of the brethren can do will make no difference in their justification. They will not come into judgment, that is, into the judgment of life or death; they have passed from death into life, though everyone shall appear to be what he really is before the judgment seat of Christ, and receive the things done in the body, according to that he hath done, whether good or bad.

One word of solemn and stimulating exhortation. It is possible that we shall be saved, yet so as by fire. Let us, on the other hand, be in earnest to be amongst those who overcome, that we may sit in the throne of Christ, even as He overcame and sat down with his Father in his throne.—Yours faithfully,

James Van Sommer.

Wimbledon-common.

THE MORAL CRUSADE IN LIVERPOOL.

Sir,—It has been urged that I should give an account of what really took place in the suppression of the immoral houses in Liverpool. I have kept back from this as long as some think I ought, and as Mr. Armstrong has not replied to my appeal that he should tell the story, it is urged all the more that I ought not to keep silence any longer.

It was in the year 1888 that the question of suppressing the immoral houses in Liverpool really took form. The question was first raised by Mr. Matheson in that year, and others were at work as well.

Throughout the following year, Rev. Dr. Lundie, Messrs. Matheson, Guthrie, and D. S. Collin did much in a public way, while others visited the hells of our city, and spent hour after hour on the streets at night, obtaining correct information regarding the brothels. This was passed on and used to stir up public opinion against the immoral traffic. Feeling grew strong that year—as witness the newspapers, one editor being fined for going too far in describing the doings inside of these houses.

1890 found the city ready to go forward with the work of reform, and much was done publicly and privately. Now I come to that which I have shrunk from, but it is the part I am most earnestly asked to give an account of. Mr. Aked is reported to have stated at the Baptist Union meeting that "Mr. Armstrong, at the peril of reputation and life and limb, went down into the dark places of Liverpool and afterwards issued a pamphlet describing the deadly shame of the city." That he issued such a pamphlet is quite correct, and any one who read it, not knowing the facts, would naturally believe that he had done what Mr. Aked is reported to have said he did. But what are the facts?

It was known to a few that I was doing something to expose the evil, and that after the labours of two years, it was understood that I knew something of the state of the city. On the 24th September, 1890, I agreed to take Mr. Armstrong round, and met him that night a little before ten o'clock. I was disappointed to find him in a clerical hat, for any one acquainted with the kind of work we were about to undertake knows it would be useless to try in this dress to enter any of the places without being discovered, and, as a matter of fact we were discovered, although we only looked into one public-house. It is only a few days ago that I was told that we were watched that night, and that the clerical hat did it.

In a leading thoroughfare, and before we really began our work, I asked him if he could not change his hat for another, and pointed out that it would prevent him seeing what he had come to witness. He declined to do this. He had a cap in his pocket, he said, but he added, "I am known, and my reputation might suffer if I were met by any one who knew me." After this I did not urge it, but it was with disappointed feelings that I went on with the gentleman who thought more of his reputation than the cause which had made some of us forget we had a reputation. I further found that Mr. Armstrong did not personally know any of the hotels or public-houses which were notorious for being frequented by fallen women and their followers, but had to be led to them one by one.

Now for "life" and "limb," Mr. Aked should know Church-street, Parker-street, Lime-street, and London-road; but for those who do not know Liverpool, I may say they are leading streets all well lighted. The greater part of the three hours we were together was spent in these streets. There was no risk to life or limb, or anything approaching to it, nor did he go down into the "dark places of Liverpool." We walked together for about an hour through two streets where there were brothels, and went home by 12.30. Mr. Armstrong, in company with another whom I provided, spent two hours that afternoon in this last-mentioned district, and on the strength of that the pamphlet was written. In this connection it needs to be told that although Mr. Armstrong was undoubtedly the author of the pamphlet, yet, after his afternoon and evening's search, so little confidence had he in his own knowledge of the "Deadly Shame of Liverpool" that he submitted his "copy" to me that I might check its statements or correct it as I saw fit; so the pamphlet is really a report of our evening's work.

I can quite understand how Mr. Aked fell into his mistake, for he only came to Pembroke Chapel in September, 1890, the same month that I was out with Mr. Armstrong, and could, as a stranger, know nothing of the facts. It was on this account that I privately and publicly appealed to Mr. Armstrong to explain matters. This would have allowed Mr. Aked to say he had been led into a mistake, and the question would have ended there, and saved others from knowing how the pamphlet was composed. That it did good there can be no question: but as to "abolishing eight hundred brothels," that is a mistake, and no one can be blamed but Mr. Aked for this statement, especially as he is reported to have said that he had the official report with him. That report states that "proceedings" had been taken against 818 brothels, but that does not mean that eight hundred were abolished.

Here is the part of the Head Constable's report for 1891 which refers to the brothels:—

"In accordance with the resolution of the Watch Committee of December 10, 1890, the police now at once institute proceedings against the keeper of any house which can be proved to be a brothel. At the date of the passing of this resolution there were 342 brothels in the city known to the police, and against the keepers of these informations were forthwith laid. Since December, 1890, the police have discovered 468 cases of new brothels being opened (including removals and reopenings), against all of which proceedings have been taken....

"Proceedings in 742 of these cases were taken by summons, and in seventy-six by warrant. The results were as follows:—Imprisoned, forty-six; fined, 559; recognisances, eighteen; absconded, 125; summons withdrawn, twenty-seven; summons dismissed, thirty-four; summons pending, nine; total, 818."

Thus, it will be seen, many of these keepers were fined, some absconded, and a few were imprisoned. It does not follow that when the rest of the houses were closed the traffic was abolished, for immediately a house was suppressed in one street the keeper often opened a fresh house in another and yet another. In this connection, and in defence of the policy of the Purity Crusaders, Mr. Watts, a leading member of the Watch Committee, writing to The Daily Post, October 31, 1891, says:—"Many have been prosecuted two and three times over; others, to avoid increased fine and imprisonment, have taken houses in names other than their own."

It would be easy to name persons who, during the last eighteen months, have been fined over and over again, and are still carrying on their evil traffic. Why, only a few weeks ago, a keeper was about to be arrested. She removed into another house across the street, and thus she was safe until that house could be proved to be a brothel. But it would not be easy to say by what name she is now known, for she has had many.

These, with the "removals and re-openings," are all included in the 818, "so that one person prosecuted six times represents six prosecutions, but only one person." This, it will be seen, is a very different thing from saying eight hundred brothels were abolished. Some, who have knowledge of these things, put the number of suppressed houses at 450. I put it at fifty less.

But it cannot be said that Mr. Armstrong abolished these houses, nor can it be said of any man, or of any twenty men in Liverpool. Many were in the field long before he appeared, and the newspapers of 1889 and 1890 are witnesses that the movement was gaining a firm hold upon the people, and if the question was not "red-hot" before the pamphlet was published in October, 1890, it was, in the words of a correspondent in The Daily Post of a fortnight ago at "white heat."—Yours faithfully,

J. Barnabas Bain.

Liverpool.

The Book World.

Scattered Leaves. By a Banker. (Simpkin, Marshall and Co.) A number of tracts, from the pen of an earnest evangelical Christian, are brought together in this volume. Beginning with the Lord's Day, the writer deals with Romish and other errors, and concludes with thoughts on Eternity.

Protestant Episcopal Layman's Handbook, containing an explanation of the innovations of the last half-century, together with a short account of the English Inquisition of the seventeenth century. Second edition, revised and enlarged. By an Ex-churchwarden. (3s. 6d. Edward Arnold, 37, Bedford-street, Strand.) The author has brought together a large amount of information. Candid in criticism and evangelical in teaching, the work will be specially prized by Low Churchmen.

Recent Explorations in Bible Lands. By Rev. Thomas Nicol, B.D., 1s. Edinburgh: George Adam Young and Co. This manual is a marvel of condensation. The entire field of archæological research is surveyed, such results as elucidate Holy Writ being admirably presented. Furnished with map and index, this little work is worthy of high commendation. Bible students who are compelled to be content with few books, should not neglect to add this to their collection of expository aids.

Wesleyanism and the Bible is the title of a forcible pamphlet, by Rev. P. Prescott, of Bristol, affirming "the true and full inspiration of the Holy Scriptures, with special reference to the ominous aspect of that question in Wesleyan Methodism at the present time." We trust these very serious pages will have many readers, and that Methodists of every shade will be induced to rally to the doctrine of Wesley, which on this point was scripturally sound—a statement which, by no means, applies to the "advanced" teaching of some of his professed followers. (6d. The Bible League, 48, Paternoster-row.)

Bunyan's Holy War and Heavenly Footman. 3s. 6d. Oxford Clarendon Press. Mabel Peacock writes a lucid introduction and valuable notes to this volume. The "War" is well known; the "Footman," which is "a description of the man that gets to heaven, together with the way he runs in, the marks he goes by: also some directions how to run, so as to obtain," is quaint and forceful, and should by no means be overlooked by students of Bunyan's works. Among the special features of the book are a chronological table giving at a glance the story of the Bedford tinker, and Charles Doe's "catalogue of all Mr. Bunyan's books," compiled in 1698.

The paper entitled Saturday Evening, by Mrs. Bayly, which appeared in The Christian of June 16, may be obtained of Messrs. J. F. Shaw and Co., price 4s. per 100.

Mr. William Luff's small tract, A Greater Election, is very striking, and specially suited for distribution at the present time. (2s. per 100. Drummond's Tract Depôt, Stirling.)

Be Filled with the Spirit. By James F. Govan. (1d. Paisley: The Faith Mission, 16, Moss-street.) Here are two addresses entitled, "He shall be in you," and "The Holy Ghost upon you." The operations of the Holy Spirit in the regeneration, sanctification, and enduement of men is the subject of every page, and the teaching is characterised by clearness and force. Booklets emphasizing the work of the Spirit are always welcome. Of necessity every writer has his own point of view. Mr. Govan is never speculative, but always practical.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

Does Home Rule Mean Rome Rule? By R. J. S. (Harrison and Sons, 59, Pall Mall. 3d.)

From Hodder and Stoughton. Our Daughters. By Mrs. G. S. Reaney. A new edition. 1s. 6d.

From Swan Sonnenschein and Co. A Diurnal. By Catherine Sturge.

House of Rest, St. John's Wood.

A special meeting was called for Friday, at the House of Rest, to lay definitely before God the needs of the Aged Workers' Home, the top-stone to Miss Mason's work, which is now in process of completion. Miss Mason is anxious that the money needed shall be subscribed or promised at the outset. The Aged Workers are looking forward with glad expectation; and, with the assistance of the friends of the toilers in our Lord's vineyard, it may be confidently hoped that ere the winter is again upon us they may be happily housed.

ZENANA MISSIONS.—We are thankful to learn that at the breakfast in Cannon-street Hotel, reported in our last issue, the sum of £1409 was raised for the purpose of strengthening and extending the work of the Zenana Bible and Medical Mission in India. The additional annual income urgently required is £3000, and not £300 as stated in error last week.

OBITUARY.

MR. J. G. THORNE.

We regret to hear that Mr. Thorne, conductor of the Young Men's Bible-class at Calthorpe-street, and a prominent member of John-street Chapel, Bedford-row, was, on the morning of the 22nd ult., drowned while bathing near Wallingford. He was intensely devoted to all Christian and Temperance work, and after a short but a glorious service he has gone to be with Him whom he served so well and faithfully.

M. GUSTAVE-ADOLPHE ROSSELET.

The Independent churches of Switzerland are mourning the death of Pasteur G. A. Rosselet, at the age of sixty-two. He laboured in several districts, and in 1875 took charge of the church of Colombier-Bôle, his native place, and the parish in which, as a young man, he experienced the birth from above. A disciple of Cæsar Malan, he was a powerful exponent of the doctrine of "Final Perseverance," and wrote books on that subject, and also on prophetic, eschatological, and other themes.

REV. J. V. DERMOTT.

We regret to hear that a telegram has been received at Salisbury-square announcing the death, on April 24, of Rev. J. V. Dermott, of the Eastern Equatorial Africa Mission. No particulars have been received, but it is believed that he succumbed to an attack of fever at Nassa, at the south end of the Lake. Mr. Dermott was one of the young men who went out to East Africa as an emergency party in May, 1890. Mr. Douglas Hooper telegraphed home on the day of the anniversary that four men might go out by that week's mail. His appeal was read at the morning meeting in Exeter Hall, and by Wednesday the party was made up. Mr. Dermott was one of these four, and his farewell speech was particularly striking. He was not, he said, distressed in the least at the thought of going forth; indeed, he felt supremely happy that the moment for which he had so much longed had at last arrived. His sorrow was for those who were left behind. Mr. Dermott gave promise of a devoted and useful career, and much sorrow will be felt that his life has been thus so early closed.

PASTOR BOLHUIS, BARMEN.

Pastor Bolhuis, of the Reformed Lutheran Church, Barmen, died of apoplexy in his study on June 22. He was, as are all the pastors of the Evangelical Church in Barmen and Elberfeld, true to the Gospel of the grace of God. His labours were almost incessant for more than twenty-six years. He worked quietly but thoroughly in his own church, visiting the sick and poor, and caring much for the young men, of whom he had many in his Bible-class. In quietness and confidence he worked on, in season and out of season, preaching and witnessing till he "ceased at once to work and live."

His funeral, on June 27, was from the large and beautiful new church in the centre of Barmen. After Pastor Muller had given an address to the mourning assemblage of ministers and friends in the parsonage, the coffin was taken into the church, where Pastor Hermann preached from 2 Corinthians iv. 13-15. He said that the day before the death Pastor Bolhuis visited and comforted many sick persons. The evening he spent with his Christian Union of young merchants. In the morning of the day on which he died he was preparing his sermon for the next Sunday, from the commencement of the epistle of James that speaks of the patience of the faith. He was great in faith, love, and hope. He was thoroughly grounded in the Scriptures, for him they were not only doctrine and truth, but living seed. Greater than his love to man was his love to his Saviour. He had loved Jesus, and been by Him beloved, and in this love he died. The town and military authorities, the directors of the high schools, the inspectors and teachers at the Mission house and the catechumens of the deceased, headed the funeral procession, together with the Moderator and pastors of the district Synod. At the cemetery the venerable Pastor Klett committed him to the dust, in joyful hope, to await the coming of the Lord.

In the old church, which was pulled down a few years ago, and on the site of which the present church is built, many godly men have ministered, including Krummacher, the author of "Elijah the Tishbite." It was built with money collected by the order of Queen Anne in the Churches of England and Wales, and preserved with the church records is a document stating these facts, the great seal attached to it.

MR. THOMAS PHINN, DUNDEE.

The death took place at Dundee last week of Mr. Thomas Phinn, Superintendent of the Curr Night Refuge. Mr. Phinn had been in failing health for several years, and in December last he was so much broken down in health that he obtained six months' leave of absence, and went to Forres Hydropathic for change of air and scene. He was there when Mr. Moody paid his visit to Forres, and greatly delighted the Evangelist by his graphic recital of his experiences among the poor and sinful. Unfortunately, the change had not the beneficial effect that his medical adviser and friends had anticipated, and he returned to Dundee about a month ago very much worse than when he left the city. An attack of pleurisy supervened, and he gradually sank and died at the Refuge in West Bell-street. Mr. Phinn was born at Denhead of Gray, and was the son of a mason. He served his time to his father's trade, and worked at it for several years. As he advanced in years he began to take a deep interest in mission work. Ultimately he was appointed missionary of Dudhope Free Church congregation, and for many years worked harmoniously with Rev. Andrew Inglis in the Western district of the city. He was thereafter appointed a missionary at Blairgowrie, and when the Curr Night Refuge was opened in Dundee he was unanimously chosen superintendent, a post he held till the time of his death.

Mr. Phinn knew more about the slums of Dundee and the dwellers therein than perhaps any other man in the city. He first made himself intimately acquainted with the habits of the people, and was, therefore, able to give counsel and advice to them in every strait. Mr. Phinn had a method of his own in speaking to the waifs and strays he had to deal with, and many have been rescued from lives of drunkenness and debauchery through his influence. He also took a keen interest in that class which is familiarly known as street arabs, and scores of these lads are now earning an honest livelihood, which would have been almost impossible had it not been for the aid of Mr. Phinn. The deceased was greatly respected by all in the city who carry on philanthropic work amongst the lower classes. He could at once detect the whining debauchee of either sex, who for a meal would tell a doleful story. Even in turning away such wretched creatures he was not repulsive; he rather tried to get the unfortunates to promise amendment, and if they showed the least signs of amendment Mr. Phinn was their friend, giving, sustaining, and persuading them to be better men and women.

Evangelistic Notes.

Langborough.—Evangelistic services, attended with much success, have been conducted in a tent here by Lady Keene's and Lady Pigot's party.

Waterhouses. — A mission band has been formed in connection with the local Y.M.C.A. for the purpose of conducting open-air evangelistic services in the outlying villages.

Lowestoft.—The evangelistic services organised by the Y.M.C.A. have been the means of blessing to many. A Sunday evening service for boys has been started and is doing much good.

Mr. Richard Weaver has paid a visit to Perth. This was the first place in which he spoke and sang the Gospel in 1858, and a goodly number who were then brought to Christ welcomed him on this occasion. The mission extended over a fortnight, and thence Mr. Weaver went to Kennoway, Fifeshire, where he conducted meetings for ten days.

Mission Bands — The recent mission band gatherings at Bromley appear to have been much blessed, the services in the camp especially having been largely attended. One man, who had been away from his home for thirty years, and had not once troubled to write the "old folks," wrote after the meetings to tell them he had found the Lord.

Lydd (Kent).—A special mission is being conducted opposite Holmstone Camp, Lydd, by Mr. Cooke, evangelist, for the Evangelisation Society, and it is believed that much spiritual good is being done. Mr. Cooke has been ably assisted by the local Y.M.C.A., who have for a long time been holding evangelistic services for the benefit of the masses.

Burslem Wakes.—Mr. J. J. Browne, London City missionary to public-houses, has made his twelfth annual visit to these wakes. He drew large crowds to listen as he preached from Mr. Wall's show stage on Sunday, and from a waggon on Saturday, Monday, and Tuesday. Much blessing has resulted. Mr. Browne distributed over fifteen hundred tracts and books, and visited the showmen in their booths and vans on Sunday.

City Open-air Services. — In St. Botolph Churchyard (now laid out as an open space), Aldersgate-street, a Gospel service is being held daily between one and two p.m., just when hundreds of working-men and work-girls are lounging about during the dinner-hour. Large numbers of these, it is encouraging to observe, are willing to listen quietly and attentively to the words spoken. It is a capital example of the way in which fresh opportunities for testimony may be found and utilised.

THE QUEENSLAND KANAKA MISSION aims at the evangelisation of the South Sea Islanders employed on the sugar plantations. An interesting work is carried on in the Bundaberg district, where there are about three thousand of the Islanders. The mission has been signally owned of God; since 1886 over five hundred men and women have been converted, and from eighteen hundred to two thousand are attending the various weekly classes held by Mr. and Mrs. Eustace and Mr. and Mrs. Johnson. The last report states that 110 men and fourteen women were baptized during the year 1890-1. The hon. sec. and treasurer is Mrs. H. B. Young, Fairymead, Bundaberg, Queensland.

Temperance Notes.

A GREAT open-air temperance demonstration was held on Tuesday week in Crook.

Crowded meetings were addressed by Lady Henry Somerset last week in Norwich and Ipswich.

The annual meeting of the United Kingdom Alliance will be held at Manchester on October 25.

Lady Henry Somerset will visit Belfast and other places in Ireland in the interests of temperance in the early part of October.

The annual Town Moor Temperance Festival has just been held at Sheffield. It lasted three days, attracted enormous crowds, and proved successful in many ways.

It is stated by Mr. Swash, of the West Ham Board of Guardians, that 12,000 quarts of beer, besides wine and spirits, are consumed annually in the West Ham Union.

A village temperance club has been carried on most successfully for some time at Bishop's Teignton, South Devon, by Mr. Carpenter, of Huntly Hydropathic establishment.

Mr. Wm. Bunting, of Colchester, who has been a teetotaler since 1839, has been presented by the local temperance association with a suitable testimonial on attaining his eightieth birthday.

With the purpose of diminishing the large amount of drunkenness prevalent in the county of Kent it is proposed to inflict heavier penalties for drunkenness, and to diminish the number of licensed houses.

Mr. R. Coad has just concluded under the auspices of the Irish Temperance League, a most successful ten days' Gospel Temperance Mission in Crumlin-road Presbyterian Church, Belfast, at which a considerable number of persons signed the total abstinence pledge.

An interesting temperance jubilee was celebrated a few days ago in connection with the Bethel Ship Mission, the jubilee being that of Mr. Simon Short, a well-known figure in temperance circles in Bristol. Congratulatory addresses were presented to the veteran abstainer.

Sir Sidney Shippard, in an interview published in the Pall Mall Gazette as to his seven years' experiences in Bechuanaland, states:—"There is a total absence of crime among the natives. No one is allowed to give or sell them drink, and to the total prohibition of the drink traffic we attribute the absence of crime."

The Halifax and District Auxiliary of the Total Abstinence Association reports twenty-one ministers as total abstainers out of the twenty-six resident in the district, and ninety-seven deacons out of 167; twenty-nine of the thirty-one churches use unfermented wine. The Bands of Hope connected with the churches have a total membership of 8151.

An influential deputation from the B.W.T.A. waited the other day on the Bishop of London to ask him to use his influence that leases under the control of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners shall not be renewed to publicans or for the drink traffic. The Bishop explained the limited powers of Commissioners, and showed the property has, in many cases, come from former owners with leases attached. Licensed property in the hands of the Commissioners is, said the Bishop, undesirable and diminishing.

The Londonderry Gospel Temperance Association have addressed a letter to the members of the Church of Christ, asking them to take united action with reference to the sale and use of intoxicating liquor. They say:—"We have ventured to issue this after much prayer, and with a conscious sense of our deep responsibility to God, and to the claims of our brothers and sisters who are tempted and overcome by the demon of strong drink. We are also conscious that until the Church of Christ has arisen to a sense of her duty and to the dreadful enormity of this evil, and until this barrier is swept away, we cannot expect to see the work of God prospering in our midst."

The Church of England Temperance Society have just issued a summary of their "rescue work" for the past twelve months in eleven dioceses by thirty-eight missioners, at a cost of under £5000. Among the principal items mentioned are—cases visited at their own homes, 18,721; prisoners met on discharge from prison, 19,682; cases assisted with money, shelter, food, clothing, tools or stock-in-trade, 10,357. With regard to the society's Racecourse and Van Mission, it is stated that during the past year 285 villages were visited by the mission vans, and upwards of six hundred missions held, with an average attendance of two hundred, making altogether over 100,000 persons brought under the influence of temperance principles.

TOBAGO.—Mr. Thomas Clemens writes, thanking our readers for gifts of literature: "This reached me the more opportunely seeing that the Romanists are making a most determined attempt to upset our work, and are besetting us in several localities. Our people are without those many influences and agencies for good which so help the Gospel preacher at home. Able to read, books are very scarce and libraries unknown. To provide the people of one of our out-stations with wholesome reading and sound Protestant teaching I am endeavouring to start a lending library."

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

Rev. D. Edwards has entered on his new and important charge as vicar of Rhyl.

Rev. A. H. Dunn, a High Churchman, has been elected Bishop of Quebec.

Two young clergymen have gone out to reinforce the Mission to Assyrian Christians.

The vicarage of South Ossett, Wakefield, has been accepted by Rev. J. H. Kirk, of Barnsley.

The London Clerical and Lay Union held largely-attended and interesting meetings last week at Poles, near Ware.

We notice that Rev. R. W. Atkinson, one of Mr. Webb-Peploe's curates, is to succeed Rev. J. E. Rogers at St. Peter's, Tunbridge Wells.

A special effort is being made to raise £5000 to complete St. Aidan's Church, Leeds, which is being erected as a memorial of the late Dr. Woodford, Bishop of Ely, and some time vicar of Leeds.

The Universities' Mission have issued a strong appeal for the £10,000 required by the Archbishop for a Nyassa Bishopric Endowment Fund. The sums either promised or subscribed amount at present to £950.

It is stated that amongst the societies profiting by the will of the late Mr. Henty five legacies are to be paid in priority to others. These are—the Church Missionary Society, £10,000; Irish Church Missions, £10,000; London City Mission, £10,000; Moravian Missions, £5000; and the British and Foreign Bible Society, £15,000.

The Bishop of Exeter, presiding at the annual meeting of the Exeter Diocesan Parochial Mission Society, said he had cherished the hope that party spirit would die out in that diocese, and he thought it had done so. He did not know a greater proof of it than was to be found in the united band of those who were engaged in the work of that society.

In view of the coming General Church Mission in Manchester, the Bishop of Wakefield conducted last week a special service in the cathedral. In his address he said that a mission was a very solemn time, in which hearts were moved and consciences proved. The mission worker's chief object must be to keep open the avenue between God and the soul. There must be no undue elation of spirit. The very tone of a mission must be one of calm solemnity. They must put away all thoughts of controversy.

The Sheffield Clerical Society has selected the following subjects for discussion at the Monthly Meetings during the second half of 1892:—(1) Is Biblical Criticism Unfavourable to Piety? (2) The Nature, Growth, and Extent of Religious Feeling which Children are Capable of Experiencing. (3) What Sequence of Instruction can we most Profitably Follow in Ministering to the Sick and to the Dying? (4) "Sinless Perfection" and "Scriptural Holiness." (5) How Best can we Create an Unwavering Attachment to the Church of England on the part of those to whom we minister? (6) Is the Second Coming of our Lord to be expected soon?

CONGREGATIONAL.

Rev. J. W. Holdsworth has now fully entered on the pastorate of Cavendish-street Chapel, Manchester.

The London Congregational Union has promised £1000 towards the scheme for the erection of a church to the memory of the late Rev. G. M. Murphy in Borough-road.

The closing meetings of the session at New College were marked by a telling address from Mr. R. F. Horton.

Cheshunt College anniversary proved most interesting. Principal Rainy's sermon and Dr. Reynolds's address awakened great interest.

A fund is being raised in Wales for the maintenance of the daughter of the late Rev. Dr. Rees, the amount to be eventually devoted to the founding of a Dr. Rees Scholarship at Brecon Memorial College.

The annual address to the students of the Congregational College, Whalley Range, was delivered on Friday at the College by the Bishop of Manchester, and the occasion was one of universal interest, being the first of its kind.

Rev. H. Arnold Thomas, of Highbury Chapel, Bristol, and his sister were driving in a dog-cart on Monday week, when, owing to the horse falling, they were thrown into the road; happily they escaped serious injury.

Rev. T. H. Darlow, M.A., who recently resigned the superintendence of the Cambridge "Settlement," Browning Hall, Walworth, has been invited to succeed Rev. Dr. Jefferis in the pastorate of New College Chapel, St. John's-wood.

The annual meeting of the Yorkshire United College, Bradford, took place on Wednesday week, Dr. Bruce presiding. The report noted that the number of students leaving the college for pastorates was about double the average.

Dr. Parker's thousandth Thursday noon sermon attracted considerable attention. At the close he reviewed the experiences of past years, and referred to many letters received from clergymen, ministers, and others of many denominations, as to the value of these services.

At the annual Midsummer Morning's Breakfast, in connection with Carr's-lane Young Men's Class, Birmingham, which took place on Thursday week, Rev. W. W. B. Emery of Harborne, said he believed large-hearted Christianity was admirably fostered in classes of that description.

A Theological Conference of Congregational ministers from the districts of Manchester, Liverpool, and the West Riding of Yorkshire was held last week in the Lancashire Independent College. Upwards of eighty assembled. The meetings were well sustained, and were felt to be most helpful and stimulating. The speakers during the two days included Revs. R. J. Ward, Dr. Goodrich, S. Pearson, and Professor Duff.

At the monthly church meeting of Park-hill Church, Nottingham, last week there were twenty-six candidates for church fellowship, most of whom were from the Sunday-school and from the week evening classes for children conducted by the pastor, Rev. W. Crosbie. At the present time there are signs of a gracious work among the young. The movement is due to no special mission effort, but has arisen in connection with the ordinary ministry and the ordinary teaching.

BAPTIST.

New churches are about to be erected at Shepton Mallet and Bridge-hill.

Rev. J. T. Wigner has been elected vice-president of the London Association.

Rev. F. C. Spurr has conducted a successful mission in the Baptist Tabernacle, Hull.

The Baptists are about to erect a new church at Hawkhurst for the congregation meeting in the Assembly Rooms.

The Centenary Thanksgiving Fund of the Baptist Missionary Society has now reached, in promises and receipts to date, £83,1.9 3s. 4d.

At the annual meeting of the North Wales Union of English Baptist Churches, indications were given of steady progress and encouragement.

The London Baptist Association held, last week, its quarterly meeting at North Finchley Chapel, addresses being delivered by Revs. J. W. Bond and George Hawker.

The Fraternal Union held its last meeting in George-lane Chapel, South Woodford. Papers on doctrinal subjects were read by Revs. C. Spurgeon, J. H. Barnard, and G. D. Hooper.

Rev. J. A. Spurgeon has been presented with the degree of LL.D. by Olivet University (Mich.), in recognition of his long and skilful services as an "Ecclesiastical Lawyer."

The members and friends of the South Croydon Mission held last week a meeting to bid a regretful farewell to Pastor W. S. Godfrey, who has laboured so faithfully and well amongst them.

The twenty-fifth anniversary services of the pastorate of Rev. D. Honour, at Deptford, were held on Sunday week. The pastor's report showed that during the twenty-five years 675 had been received into church fellowship, an average of twenty-seven per year.

Rev. Gelson Gregson has been obliged to resign the pastorate of Sion Chapel, Bradford, in consequence of his withdrawal from the Baptist Union, in connection with the Unitarian controversy, owing to a resolution passed by the Union, when Mr. Spurgeon withdrew, which effectually prevents any representative member from resigning so long as the church of which he is pastor is affiliated with it.

The eighty-eighth annual meeting of the Northern Baptist Society took place at Rawdon College, Leeds, last week, Rev. T. Vincent Tymms in the chair. Rev. C. W. Skemp, of Bradford, secretary, read the report, stating that a permanent increase in the funds of the College was of vital importance. If the churches did their duty the College would be an increasing blessing to the churches.

METHODIST.

The Wesleyans have commenced services at Llandrindod for the benefit of English visitors.

Mr. Garrett and his helpers have secured at length a suitable house for their Girls' Home.

Large and interesting missionary meetings have just been held in Hersay (Yorks).

Special services lately held by Rev. D. Kendall in Great Marlow proved interesting and profitable.

Rev. Charles Garrett and other well-known ministers have promised to aid in conducting summer services at Barmouth.

A new Wesleyan chapel, providing accommodation for 500, has been opened by the President of the Conference at New Ferry.

The special fund in connection with the "Children's Homes" to celebrate the presidency of the Wesleyan Conference by Dr. Stephenson now exceeds £8300.

A gratifying item in the annual report of Catford Wesleyan Sunday-school is that during the late mission numbers of the young people gave unmistakable signs of true conversion.

Three years ago the Manchester Wesleyan Mission Committee undertook the services in the Free Trade Hall. Each year has increased the success until now the large hall is crowded.

The Holiness Conference held last week in Southport, addressed by Revs. Dr. Jenkins, W. H. Tindall, C. G. Moore, W. D. Sarjeant, and H. Codling, proved fruitful and helpful.

Rev. James Goudie, of Weston-super-Mare, has consented to go to India to take charge of the English work in the city of Bangalore, in place of Rev. Amos Burnet, who is returning home.

An interesting episode has just occurred in the Ripon Cathedral in connection with the visit of a Wesleyan Band of Hope. By desire of the Dean a special service was held on their arrival in the nave of the church, Band of Hope melodies being sung, and a stirring address delivered by the Canon in residence from the words, "Ready Always" (1 Pet. iii. 15). The service throughout was as enjoyable as it was unique.

PRESBYTERIAN.

The Presbyterians have decided to erect a new church in Victoria-road, Swindon.

Mr. J. T. Morton has given £350 in aid of the work at Rabat, Morocco.

Rev. J. Smyth Wood has just been ordained to the pastorate of St. George's Church, Sunderland.

In Douglas, Isle of Man, interesting services have just been held by Rev. J. Reid Howatt.

A temporary church is about to be opened at Tulse-hill towards the foundation of a new cause.

On behalf of the Nash-grove Ragged School a helpful flower service was held on Sunday week in Queen's-road Church, Liverpool.

Rev. J. B. Hastings intimated on Sunday to his people at Jesmond that he had resolved to accept the call from Palmerston-place, Edinburgh.

The work in Islington, since the settlement of Mr. Norwell, seems making a fresh start, and giving promise of much encouragement.

The Women's Missionary Association of the English Presbyterian Church, which last year had an income of £3463, continues to grow. Seven new branches have lately been formed in connection with congregations in the Presbyteries of Newcastle and Darlington.

The Publication Committee of the Presbyterian Church of England have issued a commentary, in the shape of a little volume, on the 'Articles of the Faith,' which have been unanimously adopted by the Synod. The commentary was the latest work of Dr. Donald Fraser, and it is introduced in a preface by Dr. Oswald Dykes.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

At a cost of nearly £6,000 a new institute has taken the place of the old one in Manchester. The opening on the 20th and 21st ult. was a time of much interest, and not a little good is anticipated from the increased accommodation and facilities for usefulness now offered to Friends. F. Andrews hoped it would be the centre of a great adult school movement like that in Birmingham.

It is a very remarkable fact that in the "Theological Tripos" of Cambridge University for this year are included the history and teachings of the Society of Friends, under the heading, "Dogmatics and Liturgiology," and described as "George Fox and the Society of Friends, to the death of William Penn," thus covering the years 1624 to 1718, from Fox's birth till Penn's death.

Only recently John Horniman, of Croydon, made the munificent gift of a convalescent home to Worthing, Sussex, for the public benefit; and now the same generous donor has put £20,000 in the hands of trustees, who are arranging for the building and opening of a Friends' Missionary Training Home, more particularly for foreign missionary students and prospective workers abroad, who are members or attenders of the meetings of Friends. Home Missionary work will likely be a part of their training.

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

The Methodist Conference has appointed an evangelist (Rev. John Hadden) to work in co. Clare.

A largely-attended united prayer-meeting on behalf of Ireland was held in the Y.M.C.A. Hall, Belfast, on Friday last.

An interesting collection of Methodist antiquities has been presented to the Conference by Rev. John Hay, of Edinburgh, and has been deposited in Wesley College, Dublin.

The Aged and Infirm Ministers' Fund of the Presbyterian Church has now a capital of nearly £11,000. The committee aims at giving a retiring allowance of £100 a year.

The third series of great open-air meetings at Fenagby, near Ballymena, commenced yesterday and will be continued to-day. Mr. Moody and Rev. John McNeill are to be among the speakers.

A donation of £1000, half for home and half for foreign missions, has been given to the Methodist Church by Mr. James Hunter, of Donagh, co. Antrim, who has been an earnest local preacher for nearly sixty years.

The venerable Wm. Arthur, in distributing the prizes to the successful pupils in the Methodist College, Belfast, on Wednesday week, said they had a rich inheritance in their common English tongue, which opened up to them careers of usefulness in every part of the world, such as were afforded to no other people on earth, and urged them above all things to give themselves early in life to the Lord.

The total income of the Irish Presbyterian Church last year for Home, Jewish, Colonial, and Continental and Foreign Missions was £33,631 12s. 9d., being an increase of about £2,500, as compared with the previous year.

NOTES FROM SCOTLAND.

The quiet rural parish of Crailing, Jedburgh, has been visited with happy results by Sister-Pilgrims Lawther and Young, of the Faith Mission. While there is good ground for believing that several were won for Christ, the most marked result of the Mission has been the help and blessing received by Christians. This was abundantly shown on the closing night at a "testimony" meeting, which will long be memorable in the spiritual history of the parish.

Dr. Andrew Thomson has celebrated his jubilee as minister of Broughton-place U.P. Church, Edinburgh, his jubilee as a minister of the Gospel having been celebrated five years ago. Dr. Thomson has seen many changes in the large and important congregation of which he is chief pastor. Of the thousand members of the church when he began his ministry, only ten now remain on the roll. During all his prolonged ministry he had been blessed with almost unbroken health, and at this moment he retains not a little of the strength and vigour of middle life.

FALLEN ASLEEP.

At Bradford-on-Avon, aged eighty, Rev. B. Beddow, for fifty-one years a faithful pastor at Barnesley, Wanstead, Newbury, and Bradford-on-Avon; at Pinner, Mrs. Robinson, widow of a well-known minister, and herself an earnest worker; at Ash, aged sixty-seven, Rev. G. Moss, a zealous worker amongst soldiers in Aldershot Camp; at Southport, Mr. James Petrie, J.P., aged seventy-eight, for nearly fifty years a prominent leader in Free Methodism; at the Livlezi Valley, Nyassaland, on May 5, Mrs. Henry, the wife of the missionary, Rev. Dr. Henry, no particulars are yet to hand; at Bradford, on 23rd inst., Mr. W. Suddard, aged sixty-two, a prominent and highly-valued Sunday-school worker; at Leicester, on 26th inst., Mr. J. J. Hedges, of Stratford-on-Avon, a devoted servant of Christ; at Blenheim, Torquay, Rev. A. Mewton, aged seventy, for many years a faithful preacher of the Gospel; off the coast of Portugal, on June 1, Miss M. E. Dukes, who had laboured lovingly in connection with the Florence Medical Mission, and being very ill was returning home but died and was buried at sea.

Notices.

Communications Received with Thanks. — W.S.B. T.M. J.S. W.C. T.C. E.M. S.K. J.G.G. R.W. A.B. H.F. A.J.B. W.S. J.R.A. P.F. W.H.G. H.E. M.L.B. E.S.E. P.W.J. H.C.G.M. E.S.H. F.C.L. Miss W. W.W. T.L.C. L.F. W.G.W. C.J.N. E.W.G. W.S. J.M.L. W.L. H.B.W. G.B. R.B. W.B. J.C. H.J.K. A.L. D.J.S.H. R.B.B. W.M. C.M.H. J.I. H.M.B. W.M. W.C. A.B. R.B. M.M.H. A.T. A.K. G.M.B. W.G.B. J.E.R. E.C.H. J.C.N. W.T.G. J.B.B. N.W. W.B.H. E.R.H. H.J.R.L. F.H.G. A.M. S.B. C.F.B. O.M. C.M. G.F. M.L.P. F.O.S. S.L.G. S.K. J.K. R.B. M.E.B. M.M.D. E.F. C.F. R.J. J.E.B. W.E.C. T.J.B. R.A. G.A.R.W. W.M. T.S. M.F.

Applicants for Tracts.—A. E. Nichols Barnes, Knight Cottage, College-street, Bristol; H. M. Barnett, 17, Queen Elizabeth's-walk, Stoke Newington, N.; J. Bell, Winterbourne, Sutton-grove, Surrey; Miss S. Baker, 27, Sherwood-street, Golden-square, W.; H. E. Smith, care of W. S. Thompson, 12, Newgate-street, E.C.; Wm. Ayer, Oxford House, Forest-lane, Forest-gate, E.; S. E. Edmonds, 10, The Green, Stratford, E.; Miss Mary Jane Stephenson, 50, Great Russell-street, Birmingham; R. C. Taylor, Ebenezer Villa, 109, Oxford-avenue, Southampton; A. E. Tollemache, The Limes, Great Shelford, Cambridgeshire; E. Sharman, Great Shelford, Cambridgeshire; F. Smith (pictorial), 260, Oxford-street, W.; Miss M. Gray, 42, Summer-street, Clifton-park, Belfast; James Cail, 29, Blantyre-street, Runcorn; R. Gardiner, 107, Hamilton-square, Bermondsey, S.E.; Mr. Mosley, 22, King's-cross-road, W.C.

[As it is found that infidels and others send tracts to the persons whose names are inserted here, it is most desirable that all books and papers should be carefully read before being given way.]

(For Personalia, &c., see Page 28.)

"Ashamed of His Dirty Cuffs."

Frayed Linen soils in half-an-hour. HUDSON'S EXTRACT OF SOAP will not fray your cuffs or jag the edges of your collars.

Anything washed with HUDSON'S EXTRACT OF SOAP is thoroughly washed, therefore remains Much Longer Clean.

Gentlemen who appreciate the luxury of a perfect-fitting Shirt should try
TAAFFE & COLDWELL'S
Perfecta 6 for 33/- post free.
30 per cent. under usual retail prices. Send 5 6 for sample, stating size of collar, chest, and height. Money returned if not approved of. Made to special measure or pattern, no extra charge.
TAAFFE & COLDWELL,
81, Grafton Street, Dublin.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER'S
warded Grand Diploma of Honour, Edinburgh, 1890; Two Prize Medals, Paris, 1889.
LINEN Collars. Ladies' 3-fold from 3 6 doz.
" Gent's 4-fold 4 11 per doz.
Cuffs for Ladies or Gentlemen from 5 11 per dozen.
Samples Post Free.
COLLARS, CUFFS & SHIRTS,
atchless Shirts. Best quality Long Cloth, with 4-fold Linen Fronts, 35s. 6d. per ½ doz. (to measure 2s. extra).
By appointments to the Queen and Empress Frederick of Germany. [c73
ROBINSON & CLEAVER, BELFAST.

OLD SHIRTS REFITTED. Fine Irish Linen, 2s.; or very best Irish Linen, returned free, ready to wear, 2s. 6d. Sample Shirt, for Dress or dinary wear, any size, post free, 2s. 9d., 3s. 9d., 4s. 9d., 5s. 9d., or 6d. Twilled Night Shirts, from 2s. 11d. French Print and ford Shirts, newest designs, very cheap.
LINEN COLLARS AND CUFFS.—Best 4 fold Collars, 4s. 6d. 5s. 6d. dozen; Collars made exact to pattern, 2s. 9d. half-dozen, t free.
IRISH CAMBRIC HANDKERCHIEFS
ildren's, 1s. 2d.; Ladies' 2s. 3d.; Gent's, 3s. 6d. per dozen. Hemtched—Ladies', 2s. 11d.; Gent's, 4s. 11d. per dozen. Better qualis equally cheap. Price Lists and Patterns of all kinds of Irish en Goods from the cheapest to the finest qualities made for usehold or Family use sent to any part of the world, post free.
R. & E. M'HUGH & Co., Limited, BELFAST.

Goddard's Plate Powder
dmitted to be the BEST and SAFEST Article for Cleaning Silver and Electro Plate.
In Boxes, 1s., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d.
SIX GOLD MEDALS

BUMSTED'S TABLE SALT.

SELLING JEWELLERY, SILVER PLATE, COINS, &c.
For CHARITABLE PURPOSES.
SPINK & SON. Goldsmiths and Silversmiths, at 2, GRACECHURCH-STREET, CORNHILL, E.C., respectfully announce that they VALUE or PURCHASE for CASH valuable Diamond and other Jewellery, Silver Plate, Coins, Medals, &c. [Est. 1772.

TEA IN PERFECTION.
From the Tea Plant to the Tea Cup, in its native purity. Untampered with. Shipped direct by ELLIS DAVIES & CO.,
and sold direct to the public at strictly wholesale prices. From 1s. 4d. to 2s. 10d. per lb. All middle profits saved. Free delivery to all parts of Great Britain.
E. D. & CO.'S FAMOUS SELECTIONS
of the Pure Teas of India, China, and Ceylon, are known in every Town and Village of the United Kingdom, and are guaranteed to be of the highest quality; and all who appreciate a Cup of really Fine Tea, possessing pungency, briskness, and flavour, are invited to write for Samples (which are sent free), and Contrast with other Teas.
ELLIS DAVIES & CO., 44, Lord Street, Liverpool

FACTS ☞ NERVETONINE
Used and Recommended by many Eminent Clergymen, Members of Parliament, &c. Thousands of Testimonials.
is a positive, safe, and permanent cure for all Nervous Affections, Nervous Exhaustion, Nervous Debility, Mental Depression, Hysteria, Loss of Memory, Sleeplessness, &c. Nervetonine is a very powerful Brain, Nerve, and Muscle Strengthener, a Blood Nourisher, and a Stomach Reviver. Nervetonine is invaluable in all diseases of the Digestive System, Indigestion, Headache, Loss of Appetite, Constipation, &c. All forms of Nerve Pains, Neuralgia, Toothache, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Gout, and Sciatica, are Instantly Relieved and Permanently Cured with NERVETONINE. Bottles, 1s. 9d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s.; postage, 2d. extra. For further particulars see "Thompson's Concise Guide To Health," Gratis. From Sole Proprietor,
M. F. THOMPSON, Central Pharmacy,
17, GORDON STREET, GLASGOW;
and 97, PRINCES STREET, EDINBURGH.
None genuine without M. F. Thompson's Signature.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."
BEECHAM'S PILLS
FOR ALL
BILIOUS AND NERVOUS DISORDERS,
SUCH AS
Sick Headache, Constipation, Weak Stomach, Impaired Digestion, Disordered Liver, and Irregularities.
Sold Everywhere in Boxes, 9½d., 1s. 1½d., and 2s. 9d. each

"YOUR SPLENDID REMEDY SAVED MY LIFE."
(So writes a Patient recently.)
FOR THE TREATMENT OF CONSUMPTION
AND
ALL CHEST DISEASES,
RESULTS OF INFLUENZA, &c.,
See the NEW EDITION, with APPENDIX, of
MR. GEORGE THOS. CONGREVE'S
Book "ON CONSUMPTION, &c.," which may be had, post free for One Shilling, from the Author, Coombe Lodge, Peckham, London, S.E.

FORTIETH SERIES OF CASES.
CASE FOR THE WEEK.
CHRONIC SORE THROAT and DEBILITY.—THE RESULT OF FREQUENT BRONCHITIS.

Miss H——, a young lady aged 27, applied to me for advice about eighteen months ago.

Writing me recently she says:—"It is important that my name and address is not printed. My mother has a tenant who is a doctor and lives near."

Repeated attacks of bronchitis had brought her into an exceedingly low state. She had also lost flesh. Gradually she had been failing more and more for two years, and obtained no relief.

At this time the breathing was very short. Pains in the throat were very bad.

She recovered entirely shortly after commencing my treatment. Writing me last summer, she says:—I am glad to say I have neither had the least cold or sore throat since I finished the course of your medicine."

I wrote recently to inquire after her health, and she says:—"I am very glad to say I have not been troubled with any of my old symptoms since writing you last summer. I had an attack of the epidemic (Influenza) early in the year, but it quickly yielded to a few doses of your valuable medicine.

"Will you kindly send me (she adds) particulars of the Young Women's Christian Institute at West Brighton, of which you are president."

N.B.—A circular of the regulations and terms for temporary residence at this beautiful home may be had from Mrs. M. Congreve (Secretary), "Stretton, Third Avenue, Brighton."

NOTE.—CONSULTATIONS FREE at Coombe Lodge, Peckham, on TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings only. No charge except the usual charge for three or six weeks' supply of medicine. All Patients should read the Book first.

THE DEAF HEAR
BY USING WALES' PATENT
SOUND DISCS
Which are the same to the ears as glasses are to the eyes. Positively Invisible. Worn months without removal. Book of particulars, 2stamps.—THE H. A. WALES CO., 62 & 63, New Bond St., London, W.

EPILEPTIC FITS.
Most remarkable cures continue to be effected by Mr. Osborne's Remedy for Epilepsy, which has won for itself golden opinions in all parts of the world. Full particulars (with testimonials) sent free on application to James Osborne, Medical Pharmacy, Ashborne, Derbyshire. Reference permitted to Rev. J. Baker, M.A., Stockport.

PAIN KILLER
The Great Family Medicine. Get a Bottle to-day of PERRY DAVIS'S PAIN KILLER. Acts directly on the seat of Pain. Externally it cures Scalds, Burns, Boils, Sprains, Bruises, Toothache, Headache, Stings and Bites of Insects, &c. Internally it cures Colds, Liver Complaints, Headache, Heartburn, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Sea Sickness, Cramp and Pain in Stomach, Colic, Diarrhœa, Cholera, &c. Sold by all Chemists at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. British Depot: 46, Holborn Viaduct, E.C. Avoid Imitations under misleading names.
PAIN KILLER
0101

"Cadbury's"

"The Typical Cocoa of English"
"Manufacture, Absolutely Pure."
The Analyst.

NO CHEMICALS USED
(As in the so-called Pure Foreign Cocoa).

GOLD MEDAL Health Exhibition, London; HIGHEST AWARD, Adelaide, 1887.

Retail in Tins, 1s. 6d., 2s. 6d., 5s., and 10s.

BENGER'S FOOD

For Infants, Children, and Invalids.

Of Chemists, &c., Everywhere.

FOR TOILET AND NURSERY.

Specially prepared for the delicate skin of Ladies and Children, and others sensitive to the weather, winter or summer. Redness, roughness, and chapping prevented.

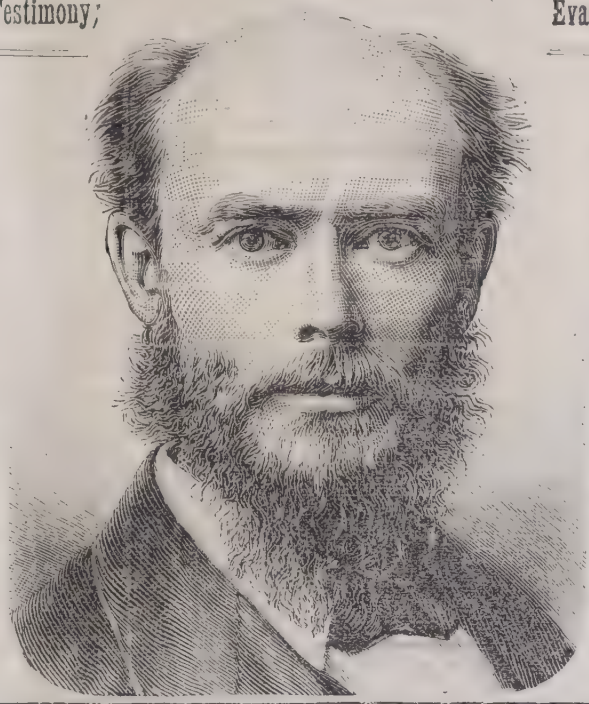
Pears' soap

Prof. Sir ERASMUS WILSON, F.R.S.,

Late President of the Royal College of Surgeons, England.

"PEARS' SOAP is an article of the nicest and most careful manufacture, and one of the most refreshing and agreeable balms for the skin."

BIRD'S CUSTARD POWDER



Supplies a Daily Luxury. Dainties in Endless Variety. The Choicest Dishes and the Richest Custard. NO EGGS REQUIRED.

Printed by W. Speaight and Sons, Fetter Lane, E.C.; and Published by the Proprietors, Morgan and Scott, at 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.
Sole Advertisement Agents; John Haddon & Co.'s Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C.

The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

Weekly Record of Christian Life and Testimony; Evangelistic Effort, and Missionary Enterprise.

Portrait and Sketch of

Rev. A. W. Potts.

PRINCIPAL

HE POWER OF THE PEOPLE 8
spiration. By Rev. J. Douglas 8
he Book of Esther 9
he Coming Day (poem) 9
OSPEL OPENINGS IN INDIA.
By Lord Radstock 9
HE MILDMAY CONFERENCE:
Addresses by Revs. Marcus Rainsford, J. Stephens, and J. S. Hill 10
Accounts of Christian Work 11
hrist for India's Millions 12
he People who Wait for us 12
ut of the Depths (poem) 12
ritish Y.M.C.A. Conference 13

CONTENTS.

St. Chrischona Pilgrim Mission.....13
Dr. Newman Hall's Farewell 14
REV. F. B. MEYER'S DECISION 14
For the Young: "After Many Days."....15
The Wayside Mission 15
THE GRINDELWALD CONFERENCE ...16
Rev. H. C. Grubb in New Zealand 16
Evangelistic Mission Anniversary 18
The Fenaghy Meetings.....19
St. John's Training Schools 20
The Power of Rome 21
The Opium Traffic (poem) 21
Our Brethren in Prison 21
The Accuser Cast Down 23

No. 1172.] THURSDAY, JULY 14, 1892.

REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C. [ONE PENNY, POST FREE, 1½d

St. Giles' Christian Mission.

RETIREMENT OF MR. GEORGE HATTON.

TO THE READERS OF "THE CHRISTIAN."

Dear Friends,

I much regret that owing to continued ill-health I have been compelled to resign the superintendence of the St. Giles' Christian Mission.

I am quite unable to express the deep grief it is to me thus to relinquish the active part I have taken in the work since its commencement 32 years ago.

I am pleased, however, to say that my old and valued friend and co-worker, Mr. William Wheatley, whose name has so long been well known in connection with the Discharged Prisoners' Branch of our labours, takes my place, and I earnestly bespeak for him the same sympathy and encouragement that has been shown to me these long years past.

It is a matter of great regret to me that I am leaving my friend to face a serious financial pressure. £2,000 are urgently needed to carry the work over the summer months. Towards this sum three friends have already contributed £146, and if the remainder could be sent to Mr. Wheatley at once it would not only relieve him from a heavy burden, but would be a great comfort to myself, and I should personally consider it one more expression of Christian love from the many readers of "The Christian," who have so largely enabled me to carry on this work for our Lord for so long a period.

Donations will be thankfully acknowledged if sent to our Treasurer, F. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard Street, E.C., or to the Superintendent, Mr. WILLIAM WHEATLEY, or myself at this address.

Most heartily thanking all friends for their sympathy during my long and trying illness,

I am, Yours sincerely,

GEORGE HATTON.

4, AMPTON STREET, REGENT SQUARE, W.C.

Institutions.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.

ANXIETY OF SOUL.—Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear, are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C. c348

GEORGE-YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c.,
HIGH-STREET, WHITECHAPEL, E.
Received with many thanks from J., a parcel of useful things.
"Country." A precious work is doing among hundreds of young women and girls. Come and see the whole of the Lord's work here.
Fresh air homes in the country.
Rations of Food to Hungry Children. Infant Day Nursery. Week-day, Sunday, and Evening Schools. Classes for Rough Boys and Girls. Band of Hope. Children's Services. Industrial Classes. Shelter for Children. Important Missionary Operations amongst Young Women and Elder Girls. Mission Work amongst Lads and Young Men. Mothers' Meetings. Evangelistic Services. Mission to Inebriate Women. Lodging House Meetings. Bible Classes. Temperance Meetings. Room-to-room Visitation. Training Home for Motherless Girls. Various Thrift Works, &c.
Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.
Post-office Orders should be made payable at 66, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George Yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E. 2035

"DAY IN THE COUNTRY."
GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, HIGH-STREET, WHITECHAPEL, E.
GEORGE HOLLAND has received, with much thankfulness from "An Invalid," 2s.; S., £1; "A True Sympathiser," 5s.; Anonymous, 2s. 6d.; M. E. W., 10s.; S. M. S., 5s.; G. D., 5s. (Yes).
GEORGE HOLLAND, George Yard Ragged Schools, High-street, Whitechapel, E. 2035

THE BIBLE LEAGUE.

All who feel the necessity of resisting the open and determined attack now made upon the full inspiration and infallibility of the Word of God are earnestly urged to join the Bible League and co-operate in the work. Membership forms can be had on application. Subscriptions and donations will be gladly received and duly acknowledged.
Hon. Sec.: Rev. JOHN URQUHART.
Assistant Secretary: Mr. A. A. CARTER.
Offices: 48, Paternoster-row, London, E.C.
c647

THE BOYS' HOME, SOUTHWARK.

Branches: Greenwich, Ramsgate, Toronto.

OPEN DAY AND NIGHT

To receive really destitute boys from 6 to 18 years of age without payment or recommendation beyond absolute need.
Urgent cases are considered at any time, but Mr. Fegan may be personally consulted about Orphan, Homeless, or Erring Boys at The Boys' Home, 95, Southwark-street, S.E., on Mondays from 10 till 2.
All communications should be addressed—
J. W. C. FEGAN,
The Boys' Home,
95, Southwark-street, London, S.E.

POOR AND SUFFERING.—Adults and children. St. Luke's and Clerkenwell. For a day at the seaside, others a fortnight in the country. Help sent for last 30 years.—PHILIP GAST, Minister, Spencer-place Chapel, 12, Noel-street, Islington. c559

DAY IN COUNTRY.—Rev. J. W. Atkinson, Claremont, Cawley-road, London, E., urgently pleads for help to give a day in Epping Forest with substantial meal to poor, and in many cases orphan East London children. Cost under one shilling per head inclusive. Every gift great or small promptly acknowledged. Balance sheet by chartered accountants. c573

KESWICK CONVENTION.—The Eighteenth Annual Convention for the Deepening of Spiritual Life, will be held, D.V., July 25 to 30.—For trustees of Keswick Convention, ROBERT WILSON, Broughton-grange, Carlisle. c634

CHILDREN'S FRESH AIR MISSION, sending poor ailing children for a fortnight's change of air from Holborn, Clerkenwell, and St. Luke's. Established 1882. Patrons: the Bishop of Bedford, Earl Compton, M.P., Gainsford Bruce, Esq., Q.C., M.P., Captain Penton. 3,300 children sent last year. Funds urgently needed. Treasurer, Walter Hazell, Esq., St. Peter's Schools, Onslow-street, Clerkenwell-road, E.C. President, Rev. E. Canney, St. Peter's, Saffron-hill. c2107

THE BENEVOLENT OR
Strangers' Friend Society.

Treasurer—Mr. Ald. J. C. DIMSDALE.
Chairman—J. H. ANDERSON, Esq.

Founded a hundred and six years ago. GREATLY STRAITENED FROM WANT OF FUNDS. There are 233 Christian men and women unpaid visitors engaged in the Society's work of BEFRIENDING THE SICK POOR of London. Kindly remember it in testamentary arrangements.
Office, 52, Finsbury-pavement E.C. c677

PRIVATE PATIENTS can be received at the Deaconesses' Institute and Hospital, Tottenham. Fees from two to five guineas per week. Applications to be made to the Director of the Institution.

Educational.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space.

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors.
DELTA, Ward's Library, 112, Kensington-pk.-rd., W.

HIGH-CLASS CHRISTIAN HOME SCHOOL. Languages and music specialities. The very young and delicate lovingly cared for. Entire charge taken of Indian and other pupils.—References, KÖNIGSHEIM, Gorringe-rd., Eastbourne. c106

INTERLAKEN,
IN SWITZERLAND.
A CONVENTION

For the Promotion of Practical Holiness as a Preparation for Service for the Master will be held (God willing) at INTERLAKEN, from
SEPTEMBER 3 to 11.
President: Rev. F. PAYNTER, M.A., Rector of Stoke-next-Guildford, and President of Guildford Convention.
Speakers: Rev. W. HASLAM, Rev. EVAN HOPKINS, Rev. W. HOUGHTON, Pastor THEO. MONOD, Rev. DARLOW SERJEANT, and others.
TWO MEETINGS A DAY, Morning and Evening.
Ticket TWELVE GUINEAS, to include Railway Fare (return ticket, second-class, for one month) and Hotel Accommodation for one fortnight.
Replies, with remittance, to be sent as soon as possible before August 10 to Hon. Secretary for Interlaken Convention, Hotel Windsor, Victoria-street, London, S.W.

MEDICAL AND SURGICAL HOME.

In-patients, 9, LUPUS-STREET, Out-patients, 32, LUPUS-STREET } BELGRAVIA.

PRIVATE ROOMS for Confinement Cases.

Probationers' classes (midwifery, dispensing, nursing, and lectures) in connection with OUT-patient department. Certificates recognised by licensing bodies.—Address HON. SEC. c570

THE
Unsuccessful Candidates.

The sum of £5 is still needed to complete the collection for the fifteen candidates who failed at the late election of pensioners on the incurable funds of the National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic. The smallest donations will be gratefully received,
ROSA PEARMAN, Vice-President.
LADIES' SAMARITAN SOCIETY
National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, W.C. c639

TERMS FOR
ADVERTISEMENTS,
"The Christian."

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates: (PREPAID.)

Not exceeding—	s.	d.
30 Words	3	0
39 Words	3	9
48 Words	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.
Advertisements should arrive not later than Monday, addressed to JOHN HADDON & CO., Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C., and stating that they are for insertion in THE CHRISTIAN.
Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order (not by Stamps) or by Cheque, crossed "City Bank, Limited."
Replies to Advertisements will be received and forwarded for an additional charge of sixpence, to cover postage, by Messrs. JOHN HADDON & Co.

TERMS FOR SUBSCRIPTION
TO
"The Christian"

"THE CHRISTIAN" is published every Thursday (PRICE ONE PENNY), and may be ordered through any Bookseller or Newsvendor, or will be supplied direct by the Publishers, MORGAN and SCOTT, London, on the following Terms, post free, and including double numbers.

ENGLISH SUBSCRIPTIONS.
for the year 1892.

	£	s.	d
One Copy & Postage ½d.	0	6	7
Two Copies and Postage 1d.	0	13	2
Three Copies and Postage 1½d. ...	0	19	9
Four Copies and Postage 2d.	1	6	4

The Subscription for one copy to Foreign Countries, (except United States and Canada), is 8s. 9d. per annum. To the United States and Canada, 2¼ dollars.

A LADY OFFERS a happy Christian home to one or two little girls. Entire charge can be taken. Good references given and asked. Inclusive terms, 100 guineas per annum.—B., Lunham House, Upper Norwood, S.E. c2036

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, East Tytherton, Chippenham.—Christian training. Preparation for examinations. Moderate terms.—Principal, Miss HOLLIS. c644

IVY HOUSE, RUGBY. — A superior school for girls, highly recommended by parents of pupils. Excellent teaching and good Christian training, with the comforts of home.—Prospectus on application to Miss BRYAN. c2166

SEASIDE KINDERGARTEN and Home School for Girls. Froebel House, Liverpool-terrace, Worthing. Thorough education and careful training. Principal, Miss Yerbury. c272

SCHOOL FOR GENTLEMEN'S DAUGHTERS, 6, Orchard-gardens, Teignmouth, Devon. Principal: Miss Rees, certificated, higher Cambridge. Efficient staff of masters and resident certificated English and foreign mistresses. Successful preparation for examinations. c405

HAPPY SEASIDE HOME, with education. Girls and little boys. Terms 6s. weekly. Convalescent and invalid children 10s. weekly. Young ladies requiring rest from 12s. 6d. weekly.—SECRETARY, Albion-terrace, Ramsgate. c238

BOURNEMOUTH HIGH SCHOOL.—Principal: Miss Broad, assisted by Miss Chaplin, B.A., and trained teachers. The new building will give additional accommodation for boarders in September. Swedish gymnasium. Resident gymnastic mistress. c564

BOURNEMOUTH.—A lady wishes to recommend a good school at which her daughter has been pupil for nine years. Special educational advantages. Every care given to delicate girls.—Mrs. C., at May's, 100, London-wall, London, E.C. 1609

ABBOTSFORD, CLEVEDON, SOMERSET.—High-class School for Girls, combining the advantages of a thorough modern education with a pleasant seaside home. Preparation for all exams.—Prospectus, with references, on application to the Principal, Miss TUCKLEY, B.A. (Lond.). c530

ETONHURST, WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—Preparatory School for the Sons of Gentlemen. Competent masters attend daily.—Prospectus on application to LADY PRINCIPALS. c375

THE PRINCIPALS of a high-class school, well-established, and singularly successful, holding testimonials of the highest order from parents, evangelical clergy, ministers, and others, have been solicited to place the advantages of earnest Christian training, combined with all the advantages of high-school methods, within reach of parents of good social position, but limited resources, who are unable to meet the usual fees, which to such will be reduced to 30 and 40 guineas, and made inclusive.
Preparations for all examinations. The staff is composed of experienced, certificated (London University), Christian governesses, English and foreign, with visiting professors. Liberal diet. Spacious residence replete with every modern appliance to ensure health and comfort. Delicate girls and orphaned families receive exceptional care.—CREDO, care of Messrs. Haddon and Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C.

SOUTH-WEST LONDON COLLEGE.
High-class School for Young Ladies.

CARLTON MANSIONS, CLAPHAM-RISE, LONDON, S.W.
Principal—Mrs. HALE, A.C.P., F.S.Sc., Lond.
Modern system of teaching. Visiting masters in regular attendance. Resident certificated governesses, with careful personal supervision and home comforts. Special advantages for music and languages. Good garden and tennis. Highly recommended for nineteen years by the late Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.
Excellent testimonials also from parents of pupils, Rev. D. McEwan, D.D., Rev. W. Williams, and others. c168

GENEVA (SWITZERLAND). — A lady wishes to recommend to parents seeking for their daughters the benefits of education abroad, the advantages offered by a French lady and her daughter who holds a high-class Government Certificate and has been for several years finishing governess in England, Germany, and France. Christian training. Terms moderate. Escort in September.—Further particulars will be supplied by Mademoiselle GOLAZ, The Rookery, Richmond, Yorkshire. c2047

SWITZERLAND.—Family Pension and Educational Home for Young Ladies. Beautiful situation. Families and young ladies can be escorted there.—Full particulars by A. B., 100, Haverstock-hill, London, N.W. c1882

HAPPY HOME SCHOOL.—A Clergyman's Daughter offers the above. Loving care. Good education. Every attention. Terms £2 monthly, or 20 guineas yearly. Healthy, open neighbourhood. —52, Fenwick-road, East Dulwich.

COLLEGIATE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, combining technical training, practical instruction in household management and cooking, with the highest educational advantages. Inclusive fee, twelve guineas a term, payable in advance.—PRINCIPAL, Strickland's Girls' College, Stowmarket, Suffolk. c448

CRESWELL HOUSE Young Ladies' School, Westgate-on-Sea, offers thorough education and earnest Christian training. Home comforts. Watchful care. Highest references. Terms moderate.—Principals: Mrs. JAMES PIKE and Miss BRITTEN, M.C.P. c495

BRUSSELS. — Christian Educational Home for Young Ladies, Rue Belliard 185. Beautiful villa. Large garden. Tennis court. Superior instruction. Comfortable family life. Small number. Twelve drawing-room pupils received. Prospectuses with highest references.—In Brussels refer to Rev. W. R. Stephens, Vieurgat 185. Principals, Mademoiselle T. Kropff, Fräulein P. Stursberg.

ST. HILDA'S COLLEGE,
ABBEY-ROAD, N.W.

Superior home school for the daughters of gentlemen. Resident foreign and visiting teachers, holding University degrees. Pupils prepared for B.A., London Matriculation, Oxford and Cambridge Local Art, and Musical Exams. Children whose parents are in India or abroad receive the particular care of the principal. Special terms made for the daughters of officers, clergyman, and widows. Careful training. Well appointed house. Healthy neighbourhood. c555

BURLTON HOUSE, READING.—High-class Ladies' School. Principal Miss RATCLIFFE. Old-established. Thorough teaching. Modern educational advantages, examinations. Finishing masters. Careful Christian training. Well-appointed home. Highest references. Inclusive terms. c540

CHERTSEY HOUSE, Redhill, Surrey.—Parents may find here a happy, healthy home for their daughters. Beautiful walks. Resident governesses. Visiting professors. Preparations for University exams. Inclusive charges. Clerical, Medical, Army references, with prospectus on application to Miss M. B. GERDS. c831

LITTLE BOYS ONLY.—Principal of gentleman's school at SEASIDE, seeks several little boys for his resident certificated governess under his supervision. Private house entirely detached from the main school buildings. Advantages of sea air, excellent situation, Christian family and influence, home life and comforts.—Apply Mrs. BROWNE, 48, Upper Park-road, Haverstock-hill, London. c504

Huntingdon House School,
TEDDINGTON, Middlesex.

Christian training. Thorough teaching. Moderate fees. Preparation for professional and business life, and for examinations (over 100 certificates gained). Recommended by Rev. Evan Hopkins, Richmond, and many Christian parents. Entire charge of pupils from abroad.
Principal—Mr. GEO. CUMES, F.R.G.S., F.R.A.S. c643

A LADY WISHES to highly recommend a school near London, where her own daughter was educated. French and German are constantly spoken with resident governesses. Music, drawing, painting in oils and water colours, English in all its branches, singing, and violin. Terms according to requirements.—C651, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C. c651

SUPERIOR EDUCATIONAL HOME for Girls. Terms, inclusive, 20 guineas per ann. Preparatory class for boys. House and garden large. Near Highgate and Hadley Woods.—Mrs. DUNBAR, Chepstow House, New Southgate, London, N. c15

TO GODLY PARENTS.—The undermentioned (who is in no way connected with the school) is desirous of recommending an old established
YOUNG GENTLEMEN'S BOARDING SCHOOL where the constant aim of the Principal is to train those committed to his care in the fear of the Lord; and by the power of Gospel teaching maintain a Christian tone among the boys, combining this with a thorough and first-class Education.
The Premises are advantageously situated upon HIGH GROUND, NEAR and WITH VIEWS OF THE SEA, on the South Coast, a short run from London, and afford especial facilities for outdoor recreation.
Prospectus and Papers of Examinations passed and honours gained will be forwarded on application. Several of the Vice Chancellors have appointed their Wards as Pupils to the School. Terms moderate
Dr. THORN, Paddington, London.

ST. CLARE, UPPER WALMER, KENT
LATE MANOR HOUSE SCHOOL, HASTINGS.
Principal: Mr. A. E. MURRAY.

For gentlemen's sons under 14 years of age.
St. Clare stands in its own grounds of about acres, 100 feet above the sea, but protected fro winds by high trees.
Tennis Courts, Gymnasium, Workshop, Chape Sanatorium, &c.
Referees, Parents of Pupils, Lord Radstock, t Lady Anne Trench, Rev. Claud Bosanquet, Colon Bruce Brine, R.E., James E. Mathieson, Esq., &

PUBLIC SCHOOLS, Entrance scholarships, navy, &c. Delicate boys medically supervised. Experienced. First-class classic. Entire charge if desired. References: clergy, headmasters, eminent physicians.—M. A., M. B., Sunnyside, London-road, St. Leonards. c510

NEW COLLEGE,
CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

Head Master: Rev. GEO. HUGH JONES.
First grade modern school. Small classes, individual attention. Form work arranged with due regard to health. Decided Christian training. Splendid premises, workshops, cricket field, tennis courts. Fees £45, no necessary extras. c143

OXFORD COUNTY SCHOOL, Thame. Established 1840. Efficient, home-like. Excellent table. Perfect sanitation. Fine premises and grounds (11 acres.) Tepid swimming bath, gymnasium. Exams. University, Locals, Chamber Commerce, &c. Many distinctions. References The Vicarage, Thame; The Manse, Thame; The Rectory, Aston; Sandford, Thame, &c. "Friend much pleased with care and attention received Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

OXFORD COLLEGE (Young Ladies) Clacton-on-Sea. Principals—The Misses Bean Thirty roomed house, facing sea, south. Thorough education. Professors. Governess-Pupil wanted Light duties. For exams. preferred. Premium required. c59

UNIVERSITY SCHOOL, HERNE BAY. "Healthiest watering-place in kingdom."—Registrar-General. Resident minister, Rev. W. Frecar. Principal, Mr. W. Frecar (London University). Highest references. Special preparation for all exams.

MR. J. W. C. FEGAN desires to recommend to Christian parents a high-class School for Sons of Gentlemen, in the best part of Folkestone. A thoroughly good education, with real Christian influence, home comforts, and close individual attention to each boy. Highest references.
Mr. J. W. C. FEGAN, The Boys' Home, 95, Southwark-street, S.E.

YOUR BOYS have Christian home and sound education with Mr. and Mrs. Dixon, Gordon Middle-class School, Kingston-on-Thames. Near Richmond and Bushey Parks. Entire charge taken for parents abroad. 18 to 25 guineas yearly. Fr July 15 to 23, address, 18, Commercial-r Lowestoft. c6

ARCACHON, France.—Pastor Paul Monod receives young gentlemen into his family. Fren lessons if desired. Beautiful climate, pine woo sea bathing, boating, &c.—Address, Villa Euro c5

ALRESFORD HOUSE SCHOOL,
QUEENS AVENUE, MARGATE.

High-class school for sons of gentlemen. Bo receive thorough education, and are prepared the various competitive examinations. Spec care of delicate boys. Christian home. Ide master, Mr. E. R. WHITFIELD, B.A. c63

CHRISTIAN HOME AND EDUCATIO offered one or two boys by Evangelical clergyma Teetotaller. Oxonian.—VICAR, Charlton Ho thorne, Sherborne. c207

STANLEY HOUSE,
CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

Thorough education, with decided Christi training. The premises include workshop, chem cal laboratory covered and open playground tennis-courts and cricket field. Delicate bo receive special care. Fees moderate and inclusi —Prospectus, apply PRINCIPAL.

HOLIDAYS ABROAD.—A French clergyman, intending to spend the summer holidays Switzerland with his sons, is willing to add to party two young English gentlemen desirous learning French. Highest references.—Fre Parsonage, Bayswater, W. c204

HOLIDAY ENGAGEMENT from Augu 1st. Required Christian young man, about very gentlemanly, patient, lively disposition, go health. A few hours' teaching daily to you aged 14, Latin, Greek, Arithmetic. Companionship for walks, fishing, boating, with careful attention.—Terms and references to Mada Vuillamy, Nonancourt, Eure, France. c185

FRENCH CHRISTIAN FAMILY prepared to receive two boarders desirous of perfecting themselves in the French language. Option of spending season at seaside. Highest references exchanged.—Madame ARNETT, 68, Rue des Prairies Calais. c19

A YOUNG FRENCH PROTESTANT LADY (Bachelor's degree), Master at Montargis College, is anxious for Holiday Engagement in England, August and September. Very reasonable terms. Is highly recommended by present and past employers.—Address Mrs. ROSE, Château Salies-de-Béarn, France. c2018

MUSIC.—Lady of experience, certificated, seeks, in September, a post in high-class Evangelical ladies' school. Piano, solo and class singing, harmony. Prepares for examinations.—Z., Duncan House, Clifton, Bristol. c2081

AN EXPERIENCED TEACHER requires re-engagement as Morning Governess, in London or the suburbs. Thorough English subjects, French, German, and music, acquired abroad. Also harmony.—A. G. M., care of Messrs. Drew and Sons, 371, Kentish Town-road, N.W. c2069

HANOVERIAN LADY wishes a pupil for her comfortable, paternal home. German family life. First-rate educational advantages. Best references. Interview if wished. Escort July.—Address Miss MARCARD, West-park, Dundee. c2127

EXPERIENCED CHRISTIAN LADY (C. E.'s daughter) seeks Re-engagement. Thorough English grounding. Conversational French and German, music, singing, drawing, painting, needlework.—C. D., Mrs. Edwin Hooper's Governess Institute and Home, Compton-terrace, Islington, London. c2140

GOVERNESS WANTED, September. Thoroughly experienced. English, French (grammatical and conversational), good music, drawing, calisthenics, plain and fancy needlework. Certificated essential. Age from 25 to 35. Church of England. Evangelical. Comfortable, quiet home. Moderate salary.—Mrs. CAREY, 1, Crescent, Bedford. c2144

HIGHLY RECOMMENDED.—A young gentleman (Protestant), teaching French and Italian, wishes engagement as Tutor for two months, with or without salary.—Monsieur D., Grafton House, Uxbridge-road, Acton. c2160

EARNEST CHRISTIAN GOVERNESS desires re-engagement in similar capacity, or as Housekeeper, Companion, &c. Thorough English, music, fluent French and German (acquired abroad), elementary Latin, calisthenics.—B., 10, Lewisham High-road, S.E. c2151

HOLIDAY AND PERMANENT ENGAGEMENTS.—Mrs. Tapling highly recommends her North German finishing governess. Fluent French (abroad), English, music, drawing, painting. No objection to travel.—FEL. ROEBEL, Ockenden, Cuckfield, Sussex. c2157

EXPERIENCED GOVERNESS (certificated) wanted, decided Christian, to take charge of and teach three young children. Usual subjects. Good music, needlework. Evangelical Churchwoman. Quiet country home.—MEADS, 65, Port street, Evesham, Worcestershire. c2070

GOVERNESS, certificated, experienced, desires Re-engagement with earnest Christians. Teaches English thoroughly, also German and French (acquired abroad), Latin, music, drawing, painting, calisthenics, and needlework. Highest references. Salary £40 to £50.—C.078, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C. c2078

GOVERNESS.—A Foreign Governess, teaching French and German, desires Re-engagement in family for September. Good reference. Comfortable home essential. Interview desirable. Miss HERRENSCHWAND, Milford House, Stowhill, Newport, Mon. c2057

GOVERNESS.—Re-engagement required by young Lady in family or school. English, music, elementary French, Latin, and shorthand. Excellent references. Meeting with Brethren preferred.—E. S., 136, Tufnell-park, Holloway, London, N. c2056

AS GOVERNESS.—Seven years' excellent personal reference; thorough English, music, French, needlework; experienced in illness, abstainer, Protestant. Age 26. Salary £25.—Apply Miss HOOPER, 9, Upper Baker-st., N.W. c2052

Appointments, Situations, &c., Wanted.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Advertisements should be received by Messrs. JOHN HADDON & Co. not later than MONDAY.

SECRETARY.—Christian gentleman, who has recently relinquished position as deputation secretary to a well-known mission, desires a similar appointment, or as secretary or superintendent of a mission, or philanthropic work. A good organiser and acceptable preacher.—A. B. C., care of Messrs. Haddon and Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C.

AS SHORTHAND CORRESPONDENT and Typist, or bookkeeper. Quick shorthand writer, with knowledge of French. Aged 29. Thoroughly experienced. Good references.—PHONO, care of Messrs. John Haddon and Co., Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, London, E.C.

BUTLER.—A lady wishes to recommend her butler, aged 30, desiring a situation where footman is kept. Wife, no children. Abstainer. Seven years' excellent character.—GEORGE SCOTT, Mrs. Backhouse, Sunderland. c2054

AS BUTLER, where footman is kept. Age 29, height 5ft. 7in. Single, abstainer.—WM. DUNN, The Elms, Hardwicke, Gloucester. c2061

CHRISTIAN YOUNG MAN desires to give himself entirely to Mission work. Town or country. Has been used much amongst the young.—H., care of Mr. Tindall, Belmont House, Hollington, St. Leonards. c2080

AS SECRETARY OR CORRESPONDENT CLERK.—Wanted, by a well-educated Young Lady, conversant with shorthand and typewriting, situation as Secretary or Correspondent Clerk. Unexceptional references given.—Apply, by letter, Miss H., Baptist Mission House, 19, Furnival-street, Holborn, London, E.C. c2084

AS PRIVATE SECRETARY, by Christian gentleman (34), with 14 years' experience in Christian work. Highest references and testimonials. Excellent correspondent. No objection to travel.—Alpha, 18, Commercial-road, Lowestoft. c2057

AS SCRIPTURE READER, formerly to navvies; also in evangelistic work with Captain Dawson, John Wooldridge and others; used to parochial work. Wife used to visiting. Good needlewoman.—B., Mrs. Hughes, Whittington-terrace, near Lonsdale, Staffordshire. c2137

CHRISTIAN YOUNG MAN, age 27, seeks situation in any capacity, having a good practical experience of boys' institutes. Good references.—E. S., Soldiers' Home, James-street, S.W. c2125

AS MESSENGER, Caretaker, Chapel Keeper, or any trustworthy place. Advertiser is butler, but leaving to be married. Wesleyan and abstainer. Highest reference.—E., 26, Pont-street, London, S.W. c2111

A CHRISTIAN YOUNG MAN seeks light situation, such as Librarian or Bookroom Assistant. Country preferred. Good references.—Apply, with full particulars, to W. OAKLEY, 181, Kennington-road, London, S.E. c2110

SECRETARY.—A lady (24) desirous of Christian work seeks an appointment as above. Good correspondent. Knowledge of French and German. Four years' experience in secretarial duties.—B. J., Vines Domini, Coblenzerstrasse, Bonn-on-the-Rhine. c2114

GARDENER, head, working. Thoroughly practical in all branches. Married. No family. Age 40. Christians. Abstainers. Disengaged through death. Good reference for ability and industry.—THOMAS WHEELER, 44, Westville-road, Shepherd's-bush, W. c2112

ODDMAN.—A lady recommends for above situation a Christian man. Thoroughly trustworthy, hard-working, and steady. Good character. Age 30.—A. P. C., The Grange, Mansfield, Woodhouse. c2116

YOUNG MAN, 24, decided Christian, requires re-engagement, owing to disposal of present business, as traveller or otherwise. Eight years at furnishing.—C2103, Messrs. Haddon and Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C. c2103.

WANTED, BY EVANGELIST, a similar Situation, or lay readership. Long or short missions conducted, or charge of missions hall, or place of trust. Excellent testimonials.—GEO. SUSANS, Maybury, Woking. c2104

AS COACHMAN.—Highly recommended by gentleman. Drive single or pair. Age 27. 2½ years' excellent character. Married when suited.—G. FEY, 15, Church-road, Bromley, Kent. c2113

LADY (aged 26) wants work in connection with some mission (sewing preferred, has machine, can cut out garments). Requires no remuneration. Will board and lodge herself near the mission. Country preferred.—C2083, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square. c2083

A LADY DESIRES ENGAGEMENT as Companion to elderly or delicate lady, or as governess to young children. Cheerful, active, and musical. Good reader and amanuensis. Highest references.—C. N., 113, Malvern-road-villas, Kilburn, N.W. c2086

CHRISTIAN LADY, evangelical, good musician and linguist, seeks home, with moderate remuneration, in a clergyman's family, as Helper in parish, experienced, or as Governess-Companion.—BETA, 187, Lereham-road, Norwich. c1867

WARDROBE KEEPER AND ASSISTANT MATRON.—Re-engagement as above required for next term by a lady accustomed to the duties of a large boarding school. Experienced, active, and thoroughly reliable. Excellent testimonials.—H. B. ROCCABRUNA, Eversley-road, Bexhill-on-Sea. c648

AS MATRON in a Crèche, orphanage, or any place of trust. Highly recommended.—E. A., Bolton Cottage, West Malling, Kent. c2076

ADVERTISER wants employment as Bible Woman, or Home Mission Work in any capacity. £15 to £20.—Mrs. DRIVER, 40, Annalsroad, Clapham, S.W.

AS MATRON.—Situation required in boys' school. Resided 6½ years as governess-housekeeper in minister's family.—F. G., 68, Kingston-road, Wimbledon. c2030

LADY HOUSEKEEPER.—A lady is desirous of obtaining the above in a Christian household. Thoroughly experienced. Fond of children. Highest references.—T. S., 46, Trinity-road, East Finchley. c2105

SUPERIOR WORKING HOUSEKEEPER, Bachelor or widower preferred. Good manageress and cook. Can be thoroughly recommended. Meeting with Open Brethren.—R., care of Miss Gilchrist, 1, Circus-road, St. John's-wood, N.W. c2087

A LADY wishes to recommend a well-principled, industrious lad of 13 as page or to train under a gardener. Christian influence valued.—Miss CHAPMAN, 16, Balcombe-street, Dorset-square, N.W. c2085

WILL SOME CHRISTIAN LADY (total abstainer) receive a lady, about 40, to assist in her home, where some other help is given. She is gentle and obliging, and could teach young children. Active work preferred. No salary for six months.—Full particulars given by Mrs. PATERSON, Westfield, Cazenove-road, London. c2099

EXPERIENCED LADY desires re-engagement as Useful Companion and Housekeeper to elderly lady or gentleman, or charge of small family. Tuition. Good references.—C. J., 24, Jeanstreet, Stockbridge, Edinburgh. c2093

AS MAID OR ATTENDANT on an elderly lady, or housekeeper to an elderly gentleman. No objection to apartments. Good needlewoman.—E. H., 25, Oakington-road, Maida-vale, London, W. c2139

MONTHLY NURSE, certificated Queen Charlotte's Hospital, desires engagements after October. Well recommended.—NURSE, 4, Weltje-road, Hammersmith, W. c2143

USEFUL COMPANION or Nursery Governess. Young Lady seeks Re-engagement. Age 20. Good needlewoman. Church of England. Country preferred.—Write, stating salary, to Miss S., care of Paine's Library, Worthing. c2159

AS USEFUL MAID, a competent, trustworthy person, with twenty-five years' excellent character. It is important that she should be in a temperance family.—Full particulars from Miss AYREST, Church House, Dean's-yard, Westminster; or the Secretary, 37, Chesham-place, S.W. c661

AS MAID-COMPANION to a Christian Lady. Could superintend household duties.—M.W., Y.M.C.A., 17, Crescent, Birmingham. c2164

A YOUNG LADY desires engagement as Assistant Matron or Wardrobe-keeper. Good dressmaker and needlewoman. Age 21. Good references.—L. ELWOOD, 13, Bunyan-road, Hitchin, Herts. c2136

AS ATTENDANT on elderly or invalid lady, or any position of trust. Total abstainer. Good references. Comfortable home valued.—W., Y.W.C.A., 215, Harrow-road, Paddington, W. c2115

AS COMPANION.—An officer's daughter desires engagement with Christian lady or young lady (not invalid) in England or Continent. Travelling expenses, no salary.—UNDINE, c2055, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square. c2055

WANTED, SITUATION in Y.W.C.A., or other mission work. Good visitor. Domesticated. Good references.—A., Y.W.C.A., Egham, Surrey. c2146

LADY HIGHLY RECOMMENDS experienced useful lady's maid to delicate lady. Thorough needlewoman, dressmaker, understands housekeeping. Testimonials, certificate for nursing. Wages £30. Age 45.—J. E. B., 4, Beauchamp-road, Lavender-hill, Clapham. c2118

Appointments, Situations, &c., Vacant.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.

A1 TEA AGENCY.—Any one wishing to increase their income can easily do so by selling our Fine Ceylon Teas among friends and customers. The exceptional terms we offer enable Agents to earn £2 weekly. Compare samples.—United Tea Supply, Union-court, London, E.C. Name paper.

WANTED, AT ONCE, good Cooks, House Parlourmaids, Housemaids, Nurses, and good General Servants. Quiet situations. Good wages This office can be well recommended as thoroughly reliable.—Miss MAULDEN (late missionary), 97, Harrow-rd., Paddington-gn. Stamp for reply. c2068

CAN ANY LADY or gentleman recommend a strong, hard-working, conscientious, plain Gardener? Good knowledge of kitchen and fruit garden required. Christian and abstainer. Single preferred. 17s.—COLONEL, The Hall, Harmondsworth, Slough. c2150

A MAN AND WIFE wanted as indoor servant and cook, abstainers, for a convalescent home for scarlet fever, where patients from the upper classes are received.—Apply, by letter, to Miss WARDELL, Convalescent Home, Stanmore. c655

MAN AND WIFE, without encumbrance, to take charge of one of the Strangeways Homes for Lads. Man can follow own employment, and only devote spare time. Christians and abstainers. Woman strong and sensible. Good salary.—Apply, by letter, with copies only of testimonials, to Hon. Secs., Boys' and Girls' Refuge, Strangeways, Manchester. c632

LADY SUPERINTENDENT wanted for a large Y.W.C.A. Boarding House. First qualification, a wise and earnest soul winner; second, experience in similar work; third, an economical and skilful manager. Age 30 to 40. Church of England preferred. State previous salary.—Apply Mrs. STEPHEN MENZIES, Liverpool. c2103

A CLERK wanted for ledger and other work.—Apply, stating age, experience, and wages required, to WALLIS and STEVENS, Engineers, Basingstoke. c2053

PAGE BOY wanted, about 14 years of age, for a private business, to board and sleep in the house. Small salary and livery allowed.—64, Wigmore-street, London, W. c2088

WANTED, for the Woodgrange Baptist Chapel, Forest-gate, a respectable couple as Chapel Keepers, wages 22s. per week, and nothing found. Applications by letter only, with references, to be sent, not later than July 25th, 1892, addressed to Mr. E. GRIFFITHS, 112, Osborne-road, Forest-gate, who will give particulars of the duties required. c2108

MATRON WANTED as "Home Mother," at one of the Strangeways Homes for Lads. Christian. Strong and sensible. Fond of children, with powers of control. Good salary.—Apply, by letter, with copies only of testimonials, to Hon. Secs., Boys' and Girls' Refuge, Strangeways, Manchester. c633

LADY'S MAID wanted, to live in the country (Midland county). Must be a good dressmaker. Christian preferred. Good character indispensable.—Write particulars to K. C. B., Willing's Advertising Offices, 162, Piccadilly, W. 2091

LADY REQUIRES HOUSEMAID, some experience, or willing to learn. Neat appearance, no fringe. Good plain needlework necessary.—Age, wages, full particulars.—C2071, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square. c2071

A CHRISTIAN LADY wanted. Church of England and total abstainer. Thoroughly experienced in cutting out and in the management of a workroom. Good salary given.—Miss WESTON, Sailors' Rest, Portsmouth. c650

HOUSE-PARLOURMAID for little boys' school, by 20th inst. Comfortable home for industrious girl. Wages £14 to £16. Good character indispensable. Country girl preferred.—Miss FITCH, Berryland House, Surbiton-hill. c2101

WANTED FOR A COUNTRY HOUSE, Devonshire, a housekeeper. Must be a very good cook and well-recommended. Age not under 30. Baking required. Kitchenmaid kept. Wages £35, all found except beer.—C2121, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square. c2121

TWO LAUNDRY MAIDS, upper and under, wanted immediately. Good references necessary.—Mrs. KNOX, Church Missionaries' Children's Home, Limpsfield, Surrey. c2119

USEFUL HELP wanted, no children. Light household duties, sewing, and assist in cooking. Servants kept. Salary. Comfortable home. References required.—Address Mrs. CLARK, H. Mull, Esq., 6, Bedford-street, Belfast. c2098.

NURSES WANTED.—The director of the medical department of the West London Mission wishes to engage several fully-trained nurses for district and hospital work. Apply, by letter, stating age, training, and requirements, to the MEDICAL DIRECTOR, Lincoln House, 60, Greek-street, Soho, W. c631

NURSE.—Can any lady recommend a strong, willing person as Nurse to three little boys, ages 5 and 3½ years, and 3 months? Must have been accustomed to children. One who has been under nurse preferred.—Mrs. WALDEGRAVE, Taunton. c2043

HEAD NURSE required for a nursery of twenty children, from eighteen months to four years of age. Must be experienced, a good needlewoman, and able to control a number together.—Write fully, stating previous experience, age and enclosing references, to MATRON, Babies' Castle, Hawkhurst. c2089

CHRISTIAN YOUNG LADY required as Governess in small, middle-class school. Certificated. Good pianist. Vacancies for two little boys as boarders. Terms moderate and inclusive Castle Dene School, Castle-rd., Newport, Wight. c205

CAN ANY LADY recommend two trustworthy, healthy servants for three ladies? Cook and house-parlourmaid. Quiet family. Early dinner.—L., Scotney's Library, Weston-super-Mare. c2090

LADY GENERAL HELP wanted. Understand cooking, housework, needlework. One servant. Small family. Country. Offered comfortable home and laundry.—Letters only, VICAR, 117, Elgin-avenue, Maida Vale, London. c2133

CAN ANY LADY recommend a house-parlourmaid for small family? One who is attentive in illness, cheerful, active, willing to be generally useful. Two servants.—Mrs. STUART, Woodleigh, Harrow. c2038

CAN ANY LADY recommend useful maid, active, healthy, conscientious? Good plain needlewoman and dressmaker. Good packer, and must have travelled on the Continent. Experienced in nursing in illness. Church of England.—Full particulars to Mrs. L., care of Mr. Slait, 323, Oxford-street, London. c2032

CAN ANY LADY recommend a good maid for an invalid lady? She must be a good hair dresser, milliner, and plain dressmaker, and of fair height. Age about 35. A Christian desired.—DOWAGER LADY A., Neale Lodge, Upper Norwood. c2165

HOUSE-PARLOURMAID wanted by August 1, for a quiet country place. Housemaid kept. One in fellowship with Open Brethren preferred. Wages £18 all found.—Mrs. SIMMONS, Etherton Lawn, Spedhurst, Tunbridge Wells. c2067

HOUSEMAID, also House-Parlourmaid wanted by about the middle of August, who thoroughly understand their duties. Good personal characters. Age about 25 to 30.—Apply Mrs. H., Sussex Lodge, Binfield-rd., Clapham, S.W. 2138

PLAIN COOK wanted, age from 20 to 25, an early riser, and abstainer. Comfortable Christian home. Housemaid kept. Good personal character required.—Mrs. F., 11, North Common road, Ealing. c2120

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted. Also housemaid, and respectable girl to assist generally. Middle of August. Seaside school. Must have good characters, and be obliging.—Apply Mrs. SAVAGE, College, Seaford, Sussex. c2062

COOK, GOOD PLAIN, wanted, for a country rectory. Assistance given. 4 servants kept. Wages £20 to £25.—Write age and length of character to Mrs. GROVE, Cliffe Rectory, near Rochester. c2124

GOOD COOK wanted, where scullery-maid is kept.—Write, stating wages and full particulars, to Mrs. W., 12, Palace-court, Bayswater, W. c659

WANTED, a good cook and a second kitchenmaid for a school at the seaside. None but those with first-class references need apply. To really good servants liberal wages are offered. Large staff kept.—Address letter, with full particulars, to BURSAR, care of J. W. Vickers, 5 Nicholas-lane, E.C. 660

WANTED, END OF SEPTEMBER, good Plain Cook, not under 30; also House-Parlourmaid, not under twenty-five, for small family. Total abstainers. Early risers. Personal characters.—Apply, by letter, to Mrs. MEEK, 2, Cintra-park, Upper Norwood, S.E. c2072

MOTHER'S HELP wanted. Earnest Christian. Must be thoroughly experienced. Able to take entire charge of several children, eldest 6, youngest 2. Quiet country home.—Mrs. STRICKLAND, Greenhithe, Kent. c2135

GENERAL SERVANT wanted (respectable), who thoroughly understands her duties. Good personal character. Age 25 to 30. For one lady. Liberal wages. Comfortable, quiet home.—Miss STRUTHERS, 21, Whitehead's-grove, Chelsea, S.W. c2092

GENERAL SERVANT wanted who understands plain cooking. Nurse kept. Must be an early riser, and have good character.—Apply, stating age and wages required, Mrs. GRAY, Stone Cottage, Bognor, Sussex. c2163

GENERAL SERVANT.—Wanted, at once, a superior, conscientious person between 20 and 30. Another kept. Must cook well. Good wages given. Three in family.—B., 5, Strawberry Hill-road, Twickenham. c2029

WILL A CLERGYMAN'S WIFE recommend a strong, honest, country girl as general servant in a clergyman's house in London? Two in family.—27, Fernhead-rd., St. Peter's-park, W. c2

SICK NURSES FOR PALESTINE.—Devoted Christian young women wanted for this work. Age not under 25. Spiritual experience and zeal for souls, with good health, indispensable. The course of training begins October 1st. Trained nurses accepted on special terms.—Apply, by letter only, to HON. SEC., Palestine Medical Mission, 143, Clapham-road, S.W. c625

HOSPITAL FOR CHILDREN with Hip Disease, The Vine, Sevenoaks.—The Lady Superintendent is in immediate need of a lady probationer. 10s. a week required for board, but laundry expenses defrayed. c2031

To Let, Apartments, &c.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space.

MIDLAND TEMPERANCE HOTEL, 76, Guilford-street, Russell-square, W.C.—A first-class Hotel for Visitors to London. Central and pleasantly situated. A thoroughly clean and quiet home, with every comfort and convenience. Highly patronised and recommended by the clergy and ladies and gentlemen. Bedrooms from 1s. 6d., breakfast or tea from 1s. 3d., service 9d. Full tariff with testimonials, free on application to J. W. TURNER, Proprietor.

BEDFORD HOTEL, LONDON, 93, SOUTHAMPTON ROW, RUSSELL SQUARE. Quiet family Hotel; central. Bedrooms from 1s. 6d.; plain breakfasts or tea, 1s. 6d. Other charges equally moderate. Printed tariff on application to THOMAS HENRY WALDUCK, Proprietor.

W. TAVERNER, TEMPERANCE HOTEL, 41 and 43, Judd-street, Euston-road, London, W.C. Five minutes from Great Northern, Midland, and North-Western Railways. Beds from 1s. 6d. Plain breakfast or tea, 1s. Silent roadway. Ten minutes from British Museum. Tariff on application.

BRIGHTON.—SUSSEX HOUSE BOARDING ESTABLISHMENT, 58, Old Steine, near to sea, Aquarium, piers, and Pavilion. Liberal table, with home comforts. First-class references.—Mr. and Mrs. Box.

BRIGHTON.—Select Boarding House. Pleasant and healthy situation. Near West Pier and lawns. Rooms lofty and airy. Home comforts. Terms moderate. Special for permanency. —Moreland House, 116, Lansdowne-place, Hove.

BRIGHTON.—Engedi House, Eastern-road. House of Rest for Christian workers and others. Terms 10s. 6d., 12s. 6d. and 15s. per week.—Stamped addressed envelope enclosed for reply, LADY SUPERINTENDENT. 497

BRIGHTON (West).—Comfortably-furnished sitting-room and bedroom, 17s. 6d. Extra bedrooms. Near sea. Highly recommended by a doctor's wife, and Mrs. Osborne Howe, of South Africa.—TRUTH, 27, Westbourne-terrace. c2073

BRIGHTON.—Board and residence for Christians. Restful, homelike. Ladies 21s., gentlemen, 25s., weekly; 3s. 6d., 4s. 6d. daily. Two friends 2s. 6d. each less. Omnibus from station 2d.—C. W. NUNN, 152, Marine-parade. c580

BRIGHTON. — Board and residence offered to Christians. Close to sea and near the West Pier. Terms from 25s.—Mrs. JOHNSTON, 11, Cannon-place. c2122

BOURNEMOUTH.—Boscobel Hall, Boarding Establishment. Apartments en suite, Central. Overlooks gardens and pier approach. Magnificent land and sea views. Liberal table. Inclusive terms, 35s. to 45s.—WHYTE. "Can cordially recommend this most admirably conducted home."—Dr. Pierson, Metropolitan Tabernacle. c380

EAST BOURNEMOUTH.—Castle Court, Boscombe Chine.—Select Boarding Establishment. Charming sea and land views. Well appointed. Five minutes from pier. Private apartments.—Mr. and Mrs. J. D. HAZARD. c513

BOURNEMOUTH.—Comfortable, large, airy apartments, in own grounds, on best part of East Cliff, among pines. Sea view, near pier and gardens. Terms moderate.—Mrs. MOON, The Neilgherries, Grove-road. c1726

WEST BOURNEMOUTH.—To let, furnished, for two months, a semi-detached villa, beautifully situated, overlooking sea and common. Three reception, 5 bed rooms, dressing and bath room. References.—M., "Cheswardine," Alum Chine, Bournemouth. c1880

BOSCOMBE.—To be let, furnished, during August, desirable house, four reception, six bed rooms, bathroom, garden, &c. Close to shops and pines, five minutes' from beach.—Apply Mrs. VENIS ROBINSON, Serampore, Boscombe. c1809

BOURNEMOUTH.—To let, suites of well furnished south rooms. Close to sea and Chine gardens. Good cooking and attendance. Moderate terms.—Meadowell House, 36, Christchurch road, Bournemouth, E. c642

BOURNEMOUTH.—Board and residence, 25s., with family of medical man. Cheerful, healthy position. Convenient for cliffs and pleasure grounds. Careful attention to invalid.—DOCTOR, Linden House, St. John's-wood-road. c2085

BOURNEMOUTH. — Lakeside, Poole-road, Comfortable apartments, due south. Tennis-lawn. Home comforts. Near West station.—Mrs. BAXTER. c2034

BUXTON.—Peveril House, private boarding establishment. Beautifully situated near gardens and baths. Every attention given to a limited number of visitors. Liberal table. Terms moderate.—Misses GRETTON and FRASER. c2077

BUXTON, DERBYSHIRE. — Brunswick Boarding House, Hardwick-square. A few minutes' walk from stations, baths, and gardens. Lovely mountain views. Established in 1883.—For prospectus apply to Miss PALMER. c443

BURNHAM, SOMERSET.—Holiday home for Christians desiring quiet rest. Close to sea. Bracing, healthy resort. Very comfortable. Liberal table. Inclusive terms from 25s. per week.—Miss BROOKS, Elmathan House, Burnham. c1870

BLACKHEATH (near).—Widow Lady (young) desires to meet with lady to share her very comfortable home. Terms moderate.—Address F., care of Messrs. Genn, 28, Eltham-road, Lee, S.E. c2154

BROMLEY, KENT.—To let, furnished, for five or six weeks from early in August, the whole or part of pretty house with garden. No tennis. Three sitting and six bed rooms, bathroom. Not suitable for children. Two servants left. Moderate terms.—Address D., 1, Elmfield-park, Bromley, Kent. c2145

BEDFORD.—£4 4s. a week during holidays. Large furnished house overlooking river. Three sitting, nine bed rooms (14 beds), dressing-room, bath-room (h. and c.). Tennis, family boat. —COLONEL, Englefield Embankment, Bedford. c2049

COLWYN BAY.—Private house to let, furnished, for August. Three entertaining-rooms, six bedrooms, bathroom, w.c., two kitchens, pantries. Facing fields near sea.—Rev. THOS. LLOYD, Highfield. c2042

EALING.—To let, furnished, for two or three months, a detached house, containing three reception, five bed rooms. Children objected to. Terms very moderate.—P., 14, Gordon-road. c2069

EASTBOURNE Y.M.C.A. Boarding House. Central. Three minutes of sea. Terms: full board, drawing, reading room, piano, week 24s. day 4s. Married couple 48s. Convenient for ladies. —M. WATERS, The Holidays, Langney-road. c156

FRANCE.—St. Servan, near St. Malo, Dinard. Charming seaside place. Board and residence. Excellent bathing, boating, fishing, tennis. English church. Liberal table. Boats direct from Southampton. 25s., 30s.—Mdme. POLLOT. c2126

FOLKESTONE.—Home from home for Christian abstainers. Best part, not far from the Leas. 35s. to 52s. 6d. inclusive weekly.—Miss WOODWARD (Member of British Nursing Association), Haverstock Villa, Claremont-road, Folkestone. c1711

FELIXSTOWE.—Good six-roomed house to let, nicely furnished. Easy terms for long let to quiet family.—Mrs. PUMPHREY, 7, Clarendon-road, Birmingham. c2153

HASTINGS, Y.W.C.A.—Holiday Home for Business Young Ladies. The home stands in a pleasant and airy situation. 10s.—LADY SUPT., The Nest, Milward-crescent, Hastings. c1961

HASTINGS.—Boarding residence in a Christian family. Pleasantly situated. Three minutes from station and sea, near places of worship. Home comforts. Late dinners. From 25s. per week.—Woodgrange, Cornwallis-gardens. c2044

HASTINGS.—"Auld Lang Syne," Boarding House, 25, Cornwallis-gardens. Terms from 28s. per week. Highly recommended. Home comforts. Under Christian management. c567

HARROGATE.—A lady receives three or four lady boarders. Very comfortable home. House pleasantly situated.—M. A., care of Mr. WILEY, Stationer, Harrogate. c2167

HIGHGATE.—Children's holidays. Happy home, permanent or otherwise. Just opened. Age, over two. Motherly supervision. 4s. 6d. weekly. —Apply early, by letter first, PRINCIPAL, 4, Wembury-road, Archway-road. c2074

ISLE OF WIGHT.—Furnished house, facing sea. Two sittings, one dressing, five bed rooms. Plate, linen.—Particulars, Campbell House, Sandown. c2168

ILFRACOMBE.—The Granville (Foster's Boarding House). Magnificent sea views, 120 feet above sea level. A delightful home on Christian and temperance principles. Faces full south. Forty bedrooms, baths, balcomies. Special sanitary certificate.—FOSTER'S Bijou Guide to Ilfracombe, gratis. 637

KESWICK CONVENTION. — First-class apartments, nearest house to the Convention tent. Two reception rooms, three bedrooms, bath-room, piano.—Terms and particulars, G. A. MCKANE, Reliance Printing Works, Keswick. c2155

LOWESTOFT (Pakefield-road). — Furnished House to let to September 27. Five bed, two sitting, kitchen, scullery. Sanitation good. Close sea, good beach, safe bathing, bracing air. Terms, 3 guineas per week for Hen weeks.—SECRETARY, 275, Mare-street, Hackney. c2029

LITTLEHAMPTON HOME OF REST FOR CHRISTIANS. — A magnificent building, fitted with all modern appliances. Facing sea. South aspect. In every respect arranged for the comfort of visitors. Terms 15s. per week.—For particulars, send stamped envelope, Rev. W. DARLOW SARJEANT, Oseney-crescent, Camden-road, N.W.

MALVERN. — Y.W.C.A., Strathview, 5, Promenade. Boarding house and holiday home for those in business, governesses, and Christian workers. Near the hills.—For terms, apply LADY SUPERINTENDENT. c1803

MOORLANDS, HALLIWELL, BOLTON. —A refined and comfortable home of rest, pleasantly situated on the moors, for Christian workers and members of the Y.W.C.A. needing rest and change. Terms 10s. and 12s. 6d. per week.—Miss BIRTILL, Beaver-park, Didsbury, Manchester.

MATLOCK, Derbyshire, — Apartments, situated in one of the loveliest dales in Derbyshire. Every home comfort. Terms on application to Mrs. J. H. CARDIN, Denstone House, Dale-crescent, Matlock Bath. c2158

PARIS.—Visitors to Paris can be accommodated with nice, comfortable home with an Anglo-French Christian family.—Apply to Madame DE LAUNAY, 69, Avenue de Segur. c437

PARIS.—Central, near Louvre. Comfortable rooms and apartments, by day, week, or month, with or without board. Ladies and families. Charges very moderate.—Apply LADY SECRETARY, 205, Rue St. Honoré. c1730

PARIS.—Pension de Famille, change of address, Miss Galloway, 3, Rue St. Didier, Avenue Kléber Quiet, comfortable, refined home. Situation healthy and convenient. Lift, bathrooms, sanitation perfect. Moderate terms. References exchanged. c627

RAMSGATE.—Furnished house to let for August. Two sitting, four bed rooms, with attendance. Three guineas per week.—Apply Rev. J. B. WHITING, St. Luke's Vicarage, Ramsgate. c2050

RAMSGATE.—House of rest for Christian workers. Pleasantly situated in garden. Five minutes' walk from sea.—For particulars, Miss NASH, Rose Cottage, Hereson. References, Rev. Whiting, St. Luke's Vicarage. c2048

ROTHESAY, SCOTLAND. — House of Rest and Hydropathic. A resort for Christians. Finely situated. Overlooking the sea. Terms, board, lodging, attendance (inclusive), 27s. 6d. to 35s. per week.—Prospectus from C. CAMPBELL, Proprietor. c250

REDHILL.—House to be let, furnished, situated on high ground. Good view. Three minutes' walk from common, ten minutes' from station. Four good bedrooms, three reception rooms. Excellent sanitary arrangements. Near St. Matthew's Church (Evangelical); use of owner's seats for two months or longer if necessary. 3½ guineas.—Miss DUTHOIT, Leicester-villa, Upper Bridge-road. c2147

SOUTHSEA.—To let, furnished, for month or six weeks, double-fronted six-roomed house. Easy distance from sea. Garden front and back.—JNO. DENNING, Myrtle House, St. James-road. c690

SOUTHAMPTON.—To let, for August, furnished house. Two reception-rooms, breakfast-room, six bedrooms, bath, hot and cold. Excellent situation, surrounded by parks. Rent moderate. K., 'Times' Office, Southampton. c2045

SALTBURN-BY-THE-SEA. — Yorkshire coast. Quiet home for a few Christians. Near brine baths. Bracing air. Woodland walks. Board and residence from 25s. per week.—Mrs. HOLDERNESS, Station-square. c2066.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Boarding Establishment, Meliora House, 20 and 21, Carisbrooke-road. Conducted by the Widow of the late Rev. P. WAGSTAFFE and Mrs. LOCKE. Good table. Home comforts. Terms moderate. Near sea, gardens, and rail. 134

SOUTHSEA.—Christian home for lady workers needing rest and change. Near the sea. Highly recommended. 20s. and 25s. Stamped envelope for reply.—Miss EDWARDS, 5, Grahamterrace, Waverley-road. c1903

SANDOWN.—Y.W.C.A., Isle of Wight. Home of rest for ladies. South aspect, with long verandah facing the sea and esplanade. 15s. to 25s. weekly.—Address LADY SUPERINTENDENT.

TORQUAY.—Cheerful, comfortable home for holidays or permanency. Gambleville, St. Mary Church-road (Y.W.C.A.). Terms for board and lodging, 10s., 12s. 6d., 15s. per week, 2s., 3s., 4s. per night, according to room.—Address, Miss JAMES, Lady Superintendent. Also, Y.W.C.A. Home, 10, Vaughan-parade. Close to the sea. Terms 7s., 8s. per week. Address, Lady Superintendent, Miss GREAVES. c590

COMFORTABLE APARTMENTS, good cooking, and attendance. Healthy situation. Terms moderate.—2, Lansdown-place East, Bath. c2141

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—Furnished house to be let for August. Three public rooms, four bedrooms. Three guineas per week. References exchanged.—Address R. A., 71, Upper Grosvenor-road, Tunbridge Wells. c2100

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—Home of Rest for Ladies, Fulbeck House, Lime-hill-road. Recommended by Miss Annie Macpherson. Terms from 25s.—Miss WOODFALL or Miss MARTIN BOGUE, 9, Mount Ephraim-road, Tunbridge Wells. c587

WORTHING.—Home of Rest for Ladies and Gentlemen, close to, but not facing sea. Every comfort. Liberal table. Terms £1 5s. to £2 2s.—LADY SUPERINTENDENT, Rutherford Lodge, Worthing. c1868

COMFORTABLE HOME, two minutes' walk from sea, under superintendence of a medical man's daughter. Terms from 25s. per week, inclusive. Stamped envelope for reply.—MEDICAL, 5, Earl's-avenue, West Lees, Folkestone. c653

WEST KIRBY, CHESHIRE.—A high-class home for invalids or others needing rest or change. Chronic cases taken. Invalids have the advantage of trained nursing.—Apply Miss WILSON, Eversley, Park-road. c2142

BOARD AND RESIDENCE for ladies in pretty village, near Oxford and Woodstock. Situation bracing. Terms £1 1s. weekly.—S., Roman-cottage, Northleigh, Witney, Oxon. c2134

KIND HOME in the country offered Lady requiring care or supervision. Terms moderate.—C2131, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square. c2131

FUR EIN ZWANZIGJAHRIGES MADchen wird ein Platz als Dienst madchen in einer christl. Familie Englands gesucht. Antritt sofort moglich. Auerbietungen erbittet, Pastor Mau, Anscharhohe bei Eppendorf, Hamburg. c2132

UNFURNISHED APARTMENTS wanted, August. Three or four rooms and kitchen for a lady and servant. Kensington or Notting-hill. Terms moderate.—Address W., 41, Pyrland-road, Mildmay-park. c2052

GENTLEMAN AND HIS WIFE offer share of their well-furnished home to refined married couple. Liberal table. Large bedroom. Accessible City and West. References, clergy and magistrates. Inclusive terms £10 monthly.—M., 2, St. Andrew's-pavement, Stamford-hill, N. c2063

A COMFORTABLE HOME offered to single lady in pretty country town on the River Dart. Separate sitting-room and bedroom. Board with family. Terms moderate.—C2054, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C. c2054

TWO CHRISTIAN GENTLEWOMEN wish to share their bright, happy home with one or two ladies for a permanency or otherwise. Terms from one guinea weekly. References.—KUNIGSHEIM, Gorringe-road, Eastbourne. c2050

PLEASANT SOCIAL & EDUCATIONAL HOME for ladies engaged during day. Large, airy house, garden, piano, bath. From 5s. 6d. to 7s. 6d. Easy boarding scale.—HOME, Library, 283, Romford-road, Stratford. c2171

COMFORTABLE HOUSE to let, furnished, for two months, at 3 guineas per week.—For particulars apply Mr. SCROGGIE, Westmead, near Malvern.

A LADY would let her pleasantly-situated house to a quiet family. Two servants left if wished for. Moderate terms. Many Christian privileges.—N., care of Mr. Fenner, Teville-road, Worthing. c2117

HAPPY HOME for the holidays, or permanently, in London's healthiest suburb, close to station, health, and park. Trains every twenty minutes. Good garden. Tennis.—"TID," Shrubland, Blackheath. c2105

WANTED, WITHIN 30 MILES of London, on gravel soil, detached house. Two sitting-rooms, five bedrooms, bath room, good offices, small garden. South aspect. Must be near an evangelical and spiritual ministry. Main water supply. Rent £40 to £45.—F. C., 16, Balcombe-street, Dorset-square, N.W. c2096

WANTED, BY TWO LADIES in Christian family without children, three furnished rooms, one as kitchen. No attendance. Dry, bracing air. Near a town within forty miles of London. Terms moderate.—M., Alexandra Bazaar, Southend. c2097

SHARON HOME OF REST FOR LADIES. Good air. Near the sea and station. Terms 15s. to 25s., according to apartment.—For particulars, apply to LADY CASTLESTUART, Ochiltrie, Chelston, Torquay. c612

QUIET, CHRISTIAN HOME, with board and lodging, offered to sincere Christian in return for help in work of small house. Two in family. Abstainer.—M., 3, Cumnor place, Sutton, Surrey.

COMFORTABLE HOME for two or three Christian gentlemen engaged during the day. Ten minutes from suburban station. Terms moderate. —Mrs. T., 3, Beulah-crescent, Thornton Heath. c2123

COUNTRY COTTAGE TO LET, during August, a mile and a half from Dorking. Detached, well furnished. Broadwood piano. Contains 2 sittings, 5 bed rooms, and kitchen. Fair sized and pretty garden. First-class references required. Terms 5 guineas a week, without service.—Apply to J. J. C., Ivy Cottage, Westcott, Dorking.

SUBURBAN FURNISHED APARTMENTS wanted with garden, or small house, about 15 or 20 miles from London, for a few weeks. Accommodation for parents, for little children, and servant.—State particulars, inclusive terms, per week, with attendance ("Private") T. SMITH, Albert Works, Glasshouse-street, Vauxhall, London, S.E. c2149

"A HOME FROM HOME" obtained with Christian people (if preferred), by applying to Superintendent, Apartment Agency, 17, Stafford-road, Wynne-road, Brixton, S.W. Names required of those who can offer this boon. Registration free to those seeking apartments. Householders' fee, 1s.; and in all cases when suited, 2s. Stamp for reply. c624

FARMHOUSE BOARD AND RESIDENCE. Freedom and ease of family life. Charming scenery from the Surrey Hills. Healthy locality. Liberal table. 30s. per week, inclusive, or 5s. 6d. per day. Surrounded by the lovely district of Coldharbour, Leith Hill, Ockley, Boxhill, &c.—Address Miss FAWCETT, Brogsells Farm, Holmwood, near Dorking. c2161

COLONEL ARCHDALL MEMORIAL, HOLIDAY HOME, Bundoran, Ireland, overlooking the sea, and commanding a fine view of Donegal Bay and mountains. Receives ladies and persons of the working-classes. Terms per week, including board, from 7s. 6d. to 35s., according to rooms. First and second class dining-rooms. Fine sea-bathing. Reference required. Return tickets in Ireland at single fare c538

FREEHOLD LAND, 35 miles from L don, in one acre plots at £20, and half-acre p at £10 each. No restrictions, free conveya Payable by instalments. Good land, well ada for fruit or poultry. Why emigrate?—Mr. BEA Farnborough, Hants. c

TO LET, large, old-fashioned, comfo ably furnished house, in healthy bracing villag Suffolk. Pleasantly situated. Near chu chapel, and rail. Small garden and paddock.— particulars, C. E. H., Old Woking, Surrey. c21

HOME FOR CHRISTIAN LADIES Temporary or permanent. Very comforta Conveniently situated for train and omnibus.— terms, address, enclosing stamp, Miss LANKEST St. Bernard, 41, Beresford-rd., Mildmay, Londo c1

EXCEPTIONAL ADVANTAGES Parlour Boarders in ladies' school. Pari French. Terms moderate. Healthful, com able hom e. Pleasant country.—Apply to M CLEMENCET, Rainoy, near Paris. Good referen c17

APARTMENTS WANTED (unfurnis preferred), with attendance 3 or 4 rooms, Ma da-hill. For lady and gentleman. M share house with earnest Christians.—DE Cambridge Villa, Clifton-road, Norbiton. c2

MORLEY HOUSE. For young m Piano, organ (h. and c. bath). Partial board per week.—G. COLLINS, 225, Ambhurst-road, N Dion, N.E. c19

COUNTRY FAMILY RESIDENCE TO L Furnished, for seven weeks, commencing Au 1st. Standing in beautiful grounds, with gar tennis court, and large trees. Ten minutes' w from Stowmarket Station, G.E.R. Stabling ample kitchen offices.—W., Stricklands, S market, Suffolk. c

SEASIDE.—Well-furnished house to for August, 5 minutes from the sea and do close to an evangelical church. To a small, q family £2 10s. per week, coals included.—Appl Hervey-terrace, Sussex-square, Brighton. c2

TO LET, a Sitting-room and Bedro furnished, in a quiet, comfortable house. Atte ance. Country, pleasant, healthy locality. Ter mo erate.—Mrs. BYATT, Creighton Cottage, St shall, Uttoxeter, Staffs. c2

CHEAP SEASIDE QUARTERS, HA LING ISLAND.—Holiday home, adjoining mon, facing sea. 21s. per week, inclusive. duced return fare, 5s. Either sex. Garden, bathing, boating, &c.—Particulars from Rev. G HARDING, 4, Upper Porchester-street, Edgw road, W. c2

MEDICAL MAN (abstainer), living healthy country village, offers comfortable h to gentleman or gentlewoman or patient requi care. House pleasantly situated. Good gar orchard, stabling.—C2065, Haddon's Adverti Office, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C. c2

Miscellaneous.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.

9d. for each Additional 9 Words.

Displayed Advertisements according to spac

ANXIOUS INQUIRERS.—A Christian gladly correspond with any earnest seeker Divine truth.—EVANGELIST, Clapham, S.W. John vi. 47.

A PRACTICAL ENGINEER.—Christ engaged in well-known mission work, woul glad to hear of another who might join hi bringing out a new motor (patented), or w gladly pay good interest for capital to place same in the market. Undeniable references. dress 7, Leswin-road, Stoke Newington, Londo c

SEASIDE.—A party being formed to s some weeks at Scarborough, can be enlarge two or three more ladies.—EXIT, 112, Keasdn park-road, W. c

AUGUST SEASIDE HOLIDAYS.—S suits, with regulation badges, for boys or Serge, Duck, or Galatea, made on short noti Miss Weston's Sailors' Wives' Workrooms. F of pretty and useful garments sent carriage anywhere, on receipt of £5, for sale at garde tennis parties, will realise more than money —Address Miss Weston, Sailors' Rest, Portsm c

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION gently needs small portable harmonium for u open-air meetings, &c. Will any Christian f give us one or sell cheap?—SECRETARY Josephine-avenue, Brixton. c

ADOPTION. — Will some kind pa entirely adopt, without premium, pretty, st baby boy, aged 4 months.—Full particulars Mrs. Day, West Hendred Manor, Steventon, B c

GENTLEMAN AND WIFE, living country, desire to adopt baby girl as own, be healthy. Under the age of six months, orphan preferred. References required.—C Haddon's Advertising Offices, Bouverie H Salisbury-square, E.C. c

WILL ANY LADY adopt little girl, 6.—AMPTHILL, E. M., Chart-road, Reigate. c

INVALID begs for orders in needlewo any description. Handkerchiefs marked fro per letter. Children's aprons, pinafores, ov &c. Antimacassars, tea, sideboard, and to let c Toilet sets.—H. EVEDON, Sleaford, Lincolnsh c

AN UNUSUALLY GOOD OPPORTUN offers for employment of £5,500 in an estabi and very profitable business. Almost a mono Principals only negotiated with.—R. C. J Messrs. Deacon's, Leadenhall street, E.C. c

PETAL DUST.—The great floral purifier for the wardrobe, pocket, or dra room. The sweetest and most lasting of perfu Petal dust will destroy moth, prevent mildew is a delightful, health-giving perfume. Price post free, 4 packets 1s. 2d., from J. HILL, Sa House, Cheltenham. c

TWO CHRISTIAN YOUNG MEN business in the City, require a loan, at intere £100. Good security and excellent referenc A. B., care of Rev. Thomas Jackson, 41, Po croft road, Clapton, N.E. c

SHEFFIELD CUTLERY and e plate, for hotel and domestic use, wedding presentations, &c. Buy direct from the greates of production. Large illustrated catalogue, free.—J. G. GREAVES, Surrey House, Sheffield.

DELICIOUS AMERICAN CAKES for afternoon tea, made in ten minutes. This and two other invaluable recipes, 1s. 1d. Infants' first shirts, finest Cambric, six 5s. 6d.—M. M., 10, Elm-place, South Kensington, London. "M. S.", Neville, please send address, as letters to post-office returned as inadmissible. c578

PORTABLE HARMONIUMS from 75s. Organs from 85s.—The late Mr. Gawin Kirkham, Secretary of the Open-Air Mission, wrote:—"I can speak from experience of the excellency of your instruments." THOS. YOUNG, 21, High-street, Kingsland, London.

AMERICAN ORGANS AND HARMONIUMS. 5-octave harmoniums, £3 17s. 6d. Organs from £5 5s. Karn and Smith organs at reduced prices. Warranted 5 years. CHARLES L. YOUNG, 21, High-street, Kingsland.

LAUNDRY GLAZING.—Cuffs, Collars, and fronts like white china. Nothing used in the starch. No polishing irons. Particulars free.—LAUNDRY, 124, Liscard, Birkenhead. c2075

IDEAL WOOL UNDERCLOTHING.—The CELEBRATED CASTLE DONINGTON QUALITY, highly recommended by the MEDICAL PROFESSION for Winter and Summer Wear, made of PUREST and SOFTEST NATURAL and WHITE Wools of ENGLISH MANUFACTURE, at REASONABLE PRICES. Every description of garment for Ladies, Gentlemen, and Children. A descriptive CATALOGUE and PATTERNS of WEBBINGS (free by post). Should be in the hands of every Lady and Gentleman who values HEALTH, freedom from CHILL, and PERFECT COMFORT.—HYGIENIC HOSIERY MILLS, CASTLE DONINGTON, VIA DERBY.

Umbrellas Re-covered from 2s. each,

IF YOUR UMBRELLA WANTS RECOVERING send it by Parcels Post (with Postal Order enclosed) to STRONG BROS., Umbrella Makers, Redhill, Surrey, who will re-cover it and return it as good as new by next post, carriage paid. Good strong twill, ladies' 2s., gents', 2s. 6d.; good alpaca, ladies', 3s., gents', 3s. 6d.; strong duratwill silk, ladies', 4s. 6d., gents, 5s. Patterns post free. By reference kindly permitted to Rev. F. Little, Redhill.

☞ A sample New Umbrella at wholesale price. List free.

NEAVE'S FOOD.

BEST AND CHEAPEST.

IN PATENT AIR-TIGHT TINS.

CHOTA HAZRI TEAS

1s. 4d. per lb. Unrivalled value. Strongest, most economical, and best flavoured teas in the world. SAMPLE POUND SENT POST FREE. 1/4 PURE INDIAN 1s. 6d. and 1s. 8d. per lb. Splendid quality. CHOTA HAZRI TEA COMPANY, 17, Lawrence-lane, Cheapside, London.

Numerous unsolicited Testimonials.

DR LAHMANN'S COTTON WOOL UNDERCLOTHING

NON-SHRINKABLE NON-IRRITATING

PATTERNS POST FREE FROM THE LAHMANN AGENCY 15 FORE ST E.C

A MARVELLOUS REMEDY.

SELLERS' EUPEPTIC LIVER PILLS.

A New Method of Curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Constipation, &c.

SELDOM FAILS IN THE WORST CASES.

In Boxes 1,1¼ & 2,9, post free, from the Maker,

J. SELLERS,

57, FARRINGDON ROAD, LONDON,

And of all Chemists.

NERVOUS AFFECTIONS.

Private Establishment at the Seaside for Lady Patients suffering from Hysteria and Nervous Affections (not insane). The house is pleasantly situated in its own grounds, in a well-known health resort. Christian influence and home comforts. Massage, Baths, and Electrical treatment carried out under a Medical Specialist of many years' experience. Highest reference. Letters and Telegrams—Proprietor, CLEVEDON, SOMERSET. c381

NOTICE. Lindsey and Son's Trusses, Elastic Stockings, and Belts. Best house for all kinds of surgical bandages. A female attendant. Price list post free.—32, Ludgate-hill, and 40, Grace-church-street, London; and 8, Broad-street, Oxford. Established 1830.

NERVOUS, FUNCTIONAL, MUSCULAR, Heart, Chest, Debility, Paralysis, Exhaustion, Overtaxed Energies or Brain, Defective Circulation, Cold Feet, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, &c., cured by BENNETT'S IMPROVED MAGNETO-ELECTRIC VESTS, BELTS, SPINE, LIMB VITALISERS, SOLES, &c., always impart energy. Not known to fail. Frequent letters from sufferers prove their surpassing efficacy, economy. Batteries all Currents. Count Mattei's very effective Electro-Homœopathic Treatment. Information gratis.—BENNETT, Medical Electrician, Penley's-grove, York. c381

COUNT MATTEI'S REMEDIES.

The Electro-Homœopathic Remedies discovered by Count Cæsar Mattei, of Bologna, Italy, extracted from non-poisonous plants, may be obtained of Miss MARRIOTT, 2, Hillside, Crouch-hill, London, N. By filling in replies to consultation form, which will be forwarded on application (with stamped envelope), a prescription can be sent, with the necessary Remedies, by post

MIDLAND FURNISHING COMPANY,

69, 71, 73, 75, & 77, Judd Street, King's Cross LONDON.

FURNISH BY EASY INSTALMENTS.

£10 worth	Deposit 15s.	Balance 15s.	per month.
£20	„ £1 0 0	„ £1 0 0	„
£30	„ £1 10 0	„ £1 10 0	„
£40	„ £2 0 0	„ £2 0 0	„
£50	„ £2 10 0	„ £2 10 0	„
£100	„ £5 0 0	„ £3 0 0	„
£200	„ £10 0 0	„ £6 0 0	„
£500	„ £25 0 0	Special arrangement for balance.

Any amount supplied with or without deposit, also by quarterly or other periodical payments, one, two, or three years' system. No registered documents, interest, or extra charges. Entirely free from the so-called "Hire System" emanating from money lenders. Delivery free by private vans. Country orders carriage paid to any railway station in the United Kingdom. £30,000 stock to select from on our own spacious premises.

Prospectus, catalogue, and detailed press opinions post free. GEO. MICHAEL, Manager.

TENTS of EVERY DESCRIPTION on sale or hire. Good secondhand marquees at low prices, to clear previous to removal to new premises.—J. H. BROWN, Railway Arches, Burdett-road, E. c441

DAINTREE & CO., DYERS, LONDON.

The LARGEST WORKS IN LONDON or Dyeing and Cleaning in every Branch. 95, Mount-street, Grosvenor-square, W.; 365, Southwark-park-road, S.E.; 44, Leicester-square, W.C. Carts Collect and Deliver to all parts.—PRICE LISTS BY POST.

BAGSTER'S BIBLES.

FROM 3s. 6d.

SAMUEL BAGSTER & SONS, LIMITED, 15, PATERNOSTER-ROW, LONDON.

TO TRACT DISTRIBUTORS, OPEN-AIR PREACHERS, and WORKERS,

And all who are interested in the spread of Healthy Religious Literature.

The Herald of Mercy.

AN ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE FOR THE PEOPLE.

CONTAINING

NARRATIVES, CHOICE EXTRACTS, ANECDOTES, PAGES FOR THE YOUNG, &c. Eight Pages.

For convenience in Distribution "THE HERALD OF MERCY" may be had Packeted in Numbers and Leaves as follows—

PACKET A. Containing 100 Assorted Numbers. All Illustrated. Price per Packet, 3/- (Postage 3d. extra).

PACKET B. Containing 30 Assorted Numbers. All Illustrated. Price per Packet, 1/- (Postage 3d. extra.)

PACKET C. Containing 60 Assorted 4-page Leaves. Partly Illustrated. Price per Packet. 1/- (Postage 3d. extra.)

PACKET D. Containing 120 Assorted 2-page Leaves. Partly Illustrated. Price per Packet, 1/- (Postage 3d. extra.)

PACKET E. Containing 1000 Assorted 2-page Leaves. Partly Illustrated. Price per Packet, 7/6 (Carriage extra.)

Publishers: MORGAN AND SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER-BUILDINGS, LONDON, E.C.

And may be obtained of all Booksellers in the Kingdom.

Publications.

GOSPEL TRACTS at very cheap rates, suitable for broadcast distribution, advertising mission and other services, &c. Supplied at inclusive rates. Carriage paid. Specimen packets sent post free to any Christian worker.

PENMAN and Co., 33, Furnival-st., London, E.C.

MRS. GRIMKE'S TEXT CARDS.—Send to Wellington House, Higher Broughton, Manchester for New List. Cheapest English, 1s. 6d. 100; foreign 1s. per 100; or to

E. KAUFMANN, 30, Paternoster-square.

OUR INHERITANCE. Thoughts on the Book of Revelation. 2s., from Mrs. Grimke, as above.

Now Ready.

CHAPTERS IN ANGLO-IRISH HISTORY RELATING TO ROMANISM AND PROTESTANTISM. By JOSEPH HALL. Small crown 8vo, cloth, 1s. 6d.—C. H. KELLY, 66, Paternoster-row. c2172

ONE HUNDRED ANSWERS TO INFIDEL OBJECTIONS. By W. R. BRADLAUGH. With complete indices of subjects and texts. Over five hundred difficult portions of Scripture referred to or harmonised, 1s.; or handsomely bound in cloth, gilt lettered, 2s.—JOHN SNOW and Co., 2, Ivy-lane, Paternoster-row, London, and all booksellers. c215

THE CHEAPEST SHILLING BIBLE.

SEND FOR SAMPLE TO

TRINITARIAN BIBLE SOCIETY,

7, ST. PAUL'S CHURCHYARD, LONDON.

Ruby type, round corners, red and gold edges, six coloured maps, bound in leather, 1s. net; post free, 1s. 3d. c520

LIFE MORE ABUNDANT, and Other Addresses.

By THEODORE MONOD. Tinted covers, 1s.; cloth boards, 1s. 6d.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-bldgs.

And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THE CURE OF CONSUMPTION

DR. ALABONE'S REMEDIES,

CONSUMPTION CONSUMPTION CONSUMPTION CONSUMPTION CONSUMPTION CONSUMPTION CONSUMPTION CONSUMPTION

which have in private practice proved successful in some thousands of cases ABANDONED AS HOPELESS, are now given up to the public, and can be obtained of all Chemists.

ASTHMA ASTHMA ASTHMA ASTHMA ASTHMA ASTHMA ASTHMA ASTHMA

Dr. FAIRBURN writes:—"The success of your treatment of Consumption is simply marvellous. I have had no less than 60 CASES OF CURE."

"Your remedy for Consumption has PROVED A SUCCESS in my own case, after having been GIVEN UP BY SEVERAL EMINENT PHYSICIANS."—T. YOUNG, L.R.C.P., L.R.C.S., &c.

BRONCHITIS BRONCHITIS BRONCHITIS BRONCHITIS BRONCHITIS BRONCHITIS BRONCHITIS BRONCHITIS

Physicians, Clergymen, and Ministers are testifying to the extraordinary results obtained from the use of these remedies. A Tabulated form for Self-treatment, post free.

CATARRH CATARRH CATARRH CATARRH CATARRH CATARRH CATARRH CATARRH

Everyone should read the "Cure of Consumption," 120th thousand, price 2s. 6d., giving full particulars of the remedies, post free, of author, EDWIN W. ALABONE, M.D., P.A. U.S.A., F.R.M.S., late M.R.C.S. Eng., late Consulting Surgeon to the Lower Clapton Orphan Asylum, &c.

Lynton House, Highbury Quadrant, London, N.

"The Illustrations in colour and gold are exceedingly beautiful."—CHRISTIAN AGE.

THE TABERNACLE, THE PRIESTHOOD, AND THE OFFERINGS.

WITH THE SPIRITUAL LESSONS DERIVED FROM THE RITUAL AND CEREMONIES OF THE OLD DISPENSATION. By Henry W. Soltau, Author of "The Holy Vessels of the Tabernacle," &c. With Four Beautiful Coloured Plates, and numerous smaller Engravings. Cloth Boards, 5s; Library Binding, Gilt Edges 6s.; Tinted Covers (without Coloured Plates), 3s.

"This is the best book on the subject we have seen. Concise, complete, and evangelical, it affords all readers of the Holy Bible the help which they need in appreciating the services and ritual of the wilderness worship."

Preachers' Analyst.

THE TABERNACLE AND THE TEMPLE:

THEIR SYMBOLIC TEACHING AND SPIRITUAL IMPORT. By Arabella E. Webb. Tinted Covers, 6d.; Cloth, 1s.

"Bible-class teachers and students will find this little catechism helpful and suggestive."—Word and Work.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C.

And may be Ordered of any Bookseller.

BE SURE TO CUT

10,000 RUGS GIVEN AWAY.

IT MAY THIS OUT,

THIS PHENOMENAL OFFER is made to the Readers of this Journal only. On receipt of this advertisement, accompanied by Postal Order for 5/6, or 68 stamps, we will forward DIRECT FROM OUR LOOMS to your address, one of our genuine SEAMLESS WOVEN REVERSIBLE CARPETS, suitable for Drawing-room, Dining-room, Bedroom, &c., handsomely bordered and woven in 30 different patterns and art colourings to suit all requirements, and LARGE ENOUGH TO COVER ANY ORDINARY SIZED ROOM. These carpets are manufactured from a material equal in wear to wool, and are undoubtedly the cheapest in the world.

With every Carpet we shall ABSOLUTELY GIVE AWAY a very handsome RUG to match, or we will send 2 CARPETS and 2 RUGS for 10/-

The Queen says: "Decidedly stouter and handsomer than any of the kind, the price being the astounding part of the matter." Schoolmistress: "For style, durability, and cheapness, they cannot be beaten." Penny Illustrated Paper: "Manufactured in every variety of colour, and is one of the most surprising bargains I have seen." Church Bells: "Truly wonderful value."

Thousands of Testimonials similar to the following, & Repeat Orders, have been received from our Customers:

GENT, 14, London-street, Folkestone.

The Carpet I bought of you last year wears well and gives every satisfaction. One which has been in use four years is as strong and keeps its colour as well as ever.—J. ASHTELL.

This offer is made to the Readers of this Paper only, and will not be repeated. All Orders despatched same day as received. Cheques and Postal Orders to be crossed "Union Bank." Address—

The British Carpet Weaving Co., 250, HIGH HOLBORN, LONDON, W.C., & 31, OLD STREET, LONDON, E.C.

NOTE.—Having bought up Messrs. OLIVER, MASON, & Co., we have now opened at the above address.

NOT APPEAR AGAIN.

SOCIETY FOR RELIEF OF PERSECUTED JEWS
(SYRIAN COLONIZATION FUND.)

MR. SCOTT MONCRIEFF telegraphs, Jerusalem, June 8:—"Refugees number much increased. Great distress, water dearth." Large supply is needed.
DONATIONS THANKFULLY RECEIVED by F. A. BEVAN, Esq., Hon. Treasurer, 54, Lombard-st., E.C.; E. A. FINN, Secretary, 41, Parliament-street, S.W.;
And by the Society's Bankers—
Messrs. Drummond & Co., 49, Charing-cross, S.W.; Messrs. Barclay & Co., 54, Lombard-st., E.C.; The Royal Bank of Scotland, Bishopsgate-street; and the Bank of England.

NEW PACKETS OF TRACTS.
19TH MILLION.

GOSPEL LEAVES. By CHEYNE BRADY.
Packet 6. 100 Illustrated 2pp. Tracts. 6d. per Packet.
"Mr. Brady is quite to our heart. He is direct as a dart, clear as a sunbeam, and brief as an angel's visit. Earnestness throbs in every line, and withal a power of keen thrusting too seldom possessed. He knows the sins and sorrows of the human heart, and the Saviour who can work their cure—and, in addition, can plainly point the burdened spirit to the peace-giving Christ."
—REV. C. H. SPURGEON.

ILLUSTRATED GOSPEL TRACTS. By Rev. P. B. POWER, M.A. Packet of 4pp., 6d. Packet of 8pp., 6d.

WHOLE AND SOLE. By Rev. P. B. POWER, M.A. 32pp. Booklet. 1s. per dozen.

DRUMMOND'S TRACT DEPOT, STIRLING.
LONDON: S. W. PARTRIDGE and CO.

BOOKS BY MR. HENRY VARLEY.
NOW READY.

I.—THE INFALLIBLE WORD. A reply to R. F. Horton's Book "On Inspiration." Crown 8vo, 148 pp., paper covers, 1s., cloth boards, 2s.

II.—MR. VARLEY'S REPLY TO DR. CLIFFORD "ON INSPIRATION." Paper covers, per post, 4d., four copies, per post, 1s.

III.—DEATH AND AFTERWARDS; or, The Veil Lifted. Paper covers, post free, 2d., six copies, post free, 1s. 2d.

* One each of the three books, post free, 1s. 6d.

London ALFRED HOLNESS, 14, Paternoster-row.

SUITABLE FOR WEDDING PRESENTS.

In neat white enamelled cover, beautifully illuminated, with gilt edges, and sewn with silk cord, 6d.

Be Lovers Still.
Friendly Hints to a Bride and Bridegroom.
By Rev. G. PETTIT.

Bound in Cloth, bevelled boards, with gilt edges, 1s.

"A dainty booklet, the contents of which are 'a choice blend' of goodwill and common sense. Miserable wedlock might have been happy, happy wedlock might have been happier, under the dominion of such 'Hints.' How marriage may be happier than courtship, might have been the alternative title. As a wedding gift it is likely to prove more precious than all costly presents. Pastors! verb. sap. sat!"—Cambridgeshire Congregational Magazine.

In handsome white cloth binding, gilt lettering on side, and gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

Marriage and Home.
Friendly Counsels to the Newly Married.

In elegant leather binding (white, scarlet, purple, or blue), with gilt lettering on side and gilt edges, 4s. 6d.

"A gem, both in print and binding; and full of wholesome counsel to those about to enter on the battle of life. An admirable wedding gift-book."—Gospel Magazine.

"One of the daintiest little volumes we have seen for a long time. . . . Most tastefully printed, and full of wise counsel and Christian teaching."—The Freeman.

London: MORGAN AND SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be Ordered of any Bookseller.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS

All communications respecting Advertising in "The Christian" should be sent to Messrs. JOHN HADDON and CO., Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C.

Paper Covers, 6d. Cloth Boards, Red Edges, 1s. Crown 8vo.

THE BATTLE of the STANDPOINTS:
THE OLD TESTAMENT AND THE HIGHER CRITICISM.
By the Rev. ALFRED CAVE, B.A., D.D.,
Principal and Professor of Systematic Theology of Hackney College.

THE BIBLE STUDENTS' LIBRARY.
Cloth boards, red edges, demy 8vo, 3s. 6d. each volume.

No. 1.
THE FOUNDATIONS OF THE BIBLE.
STUDIES IN OLD TESTAMENT CRITICISM.
By Canon GIRDLESTONE, M.A.
"A book of exceeding breadth of learning and quite exceptional value."—Literary Churchman.
"A mine of strength to the holders of the ancient faith."—Globe.

No. 2.
THE LAW IN THE PROPHETS.
By Professor LEATHES, D.D.,
Prebendary of St. Paul's.
"A careful work."—Church Quarterly Review.
"Most valuable."—Church Times.

EYRE & SPOTTISWOODE,
LONDON—GREAT NEW STREET, E.C.
EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, MELBOURNE, SYDNEY, AND COOPER UNION, NEW YORK.

TRAINING HOMES
FOR
Intending Missionaries and Missionary Nurses.

The Missionary Nurses' Training Home, 8, Wester Craigs, Dennistoun, Glasgow, in co-operation with the Glasgow Medical Missionary Society, is open to applicants from Mission Boards, and to those whose purpose it is to work in the foreign field, who are members of recognised evangelical churches.
Here there is given a sound theoretical and practical training (of 2½ years' duration) in the chief branches of Medical Science, viz.—Practice of Medicine, Surgery and Midwifery. The visitation of the sick, &c., in connection with the Medical Mission affords opportunities for gaining experience in Practical Christian Work.

The Lady Missionaries' Training Home, 15, Burnbank-gardens, Glasgow, is intended for Christian Young Women of any evangelical denomination desirous of becoming Missionaries at home and abroad (preferentially the latter), and who, in view of this, wish one or two years' Biblical instruction, with some experience in evangelistic work, &c.
Practical Christian Work will be carried on in connection with GROVE-STREET INSTITUTE, and will embrace Nursing and Visiting the sick, District visiting, Teaching the young, Industrial and Domestic classes, Dispensary work, &c.

As the next Medical Session begins in September, it is requested that all who desire admission make formal application AT EARLIEST CONVENIENCE.

For terms and full particulars of both Homes applicants are desired to communicate with the Hon. Sec., Miss FORRESTER-PATON, Mar's Hill House, Alloa.

Y.M.C.A.
Special Yachting Cruise to Norway,
AUGUST 13 to 23, 1892.

NEW EXPRESS PASSENGER STEAMSHIP,
3,500 Tons Register. "WARRIMOO," 4000 h.p.

This ship is fitted with every modern comfort and convenience, magnificent Dining Saloon, exceptionally large and well-ventilated State Rooms, all on the upper deck, Hot and Cold Sea-Water Baths, Electric Lights and Bells. The great speed of the ship—16 knots—ensures a quick passage across the North Sea (about 21 hours). The Cuisine will be in the style of a first-class Hotel. Meals will be maintained in port, and passengers, unless they choose, need not leave the ship at any of the ports of call.

FARE (including all Meals), £13 13s. Od. Prompt application is necessary to secure remaining berths. Apply to the SECRETARY, CITY OF LONDON Y.M.C.A., 186, Aldersgate-street, E.C.

FRIENDLESS AND FALLEN.

TO THE READERS OF "THE CHRISTIAN."

The dearth of Contributions within the last six weeks, since the excitement caused evidently by the General Election, is serious.

SYMPATHISERS with Preventive and Rescue work are asked to send prompt help for the Maintenance of the Homes.

DONATIONS MAY BE SENT to Messrs. MORGAN and SCOTT Office of "The Christian," 12. Paternoster Buildings, E.C., or

EDWARD W. THOMAS.

OFFICE, 200, EUSTON ROAD, N.W.

The Christian.

☞ It is particularly requested that all letters relating to business matters should be addressed to the firm, Messrs. Morgan & Scott, and not to individual members. Communications for The Christian should be addressed to the Editor. Letters of a personal nature should in every case be so marked.

All Advertisements for The Christian should be sent to Messrs. John Haddon and Co., Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, London, E.C., accompanied by remittance. (For Terms, see Page 2.)

Notes and Comments.

NEXT week we purpose giving portrait and sketch of the late Rev. John Hewlett, Principal of the London Missionary Society's College, Benares.

The correspondence on "The Accuser" has been carried through several weeks, and we think that the subject has been fully and fairly laid before our readers. Those interested in it can now judge for themselves. We do not think it necessary to exhaust everything that can possibly be said on either side. It is of more importance that readers should use their own powers of study and discernment, and they can now, if they desire, pursue the subject for themselves. The comprehensive letter in our present issue may fittingly bring the discussion to a close.

The twenty-seventh anniversary of the Evangelistic Mission was celebrated by a very noteworthy meeting at Eccleston Hall, of which a lengthy account is given (page 18),—and which this invaluable mission well deserves. It is a grand illustration of what God is able and willing to do by one man who yields himself unreservedly to his service. The extent of the work carried on in halls and tents in London and the provinces, in the large circulation of evangelistic literature, and in other ways, is far greater than is supposed by those not well acquainted with it. Its preparation and training of evangelists who may become missionaries to heathen lands, is by no means the least valuable feature of this excellent work, which deserves large and generous support.

Suffering and sorrow, like the poor, are ever with us; but we have had of late an unusual tale of great disasters bringing loss and misery in their train. The cholera epidemic is working much havoc in some parts of Russia, and even as near to our shores as France. The catastrophes by fire at St. John's, Newfoundland, in Norway, and in California, have been on a portentous scale, resulting in great loss of life and property, with consequent suffering. The explosion on Lake Geneva and the labour troubles at Pittsburg are serious additions to the list of painful calamities. All these events speak loudly as to the uncertainty of human life; and some of them call for active expression of sympathy. The Lord Mayor has opened a fund at the Mansion House for the sufferers from the fire at St. John's, and many will doubtless bear their part in the needed work of relief.

Mr. Meyer's decision, conveyed in a communication printed on page 14, is one which we hail with much satisfaction. The multiplication of individual churches, where the worshippers may rely upon hearing the Gospel preached in its fulness and simplicity, is a gratifying sign of the times. It has always seemed to us that Congregationalism, with its corollary of a union of churches, is virtually a departure from the principles of the original Independency. In such Unions, men of intellectual strength and personal rather than spiritual force, necessarily come to the front, and though nominally independent, the churches cease to be practically so. Men of God such as Pastors W. Fuller Gooch, F. B. Meyer, F. H. White, &c., delivered from the trammels of denominationalism, are needed in the present day.

That mighty man of God, Charles H. Spurgeon, though loyally connected with his denomination, was above all an individual witness of Jesus Christ; and in his later days he felt increasingly that the true bond lay not in denominational and external, but in inward and spiritual oneness. Some of the ablest and most useful men in the Church of England have maintained a similar position.

In his concluding speech to his constituents in Midlothian, Mr. Gladstone referred to the Opium Trade, and admitted the shame and disgrace that attached to the way in which the drug had, in past days, been forced on the Chinese. If, by the changing fortunes of politics, he should again be placed in power in this country, we hope he will be rigidly held to his promise that he will be glad to forward any measure within the bounds of reason for limiting, and, if possible, getting rid of Great Britain's connection with such a traffic.

A very interesting deliverance has lately been made by the Synod of the United Presbyterian Church in Scotland with respect to the pressing claims of Foreign Missions. The "address" directed to pastors, officers, and members of the Church, calls for a fuller treatment of the subject in the pulpit if "a holy enthusiasm" adequate to its importance is to be awakened. More generous giving and personal dedication are also urged. We trust these timely appeals will meet with a hearty and well-sustained response, and that this earnest-minded section of the Church will keep to the front in missionary devotion.

The communication from Lord Radstock, to be found on page 9, gives point to all special efforts to awaken missionary interest in the churches. The call to evangelise the world is altogether independent of any patent readiness on the part of the nations to receive the Gospel. But that call surely comes with redoubled force and sanction at a time when the walls of ignorance and prejudice are fast disappearing, and nothing is left for the soldiers of the Cross but to go in and possess the lands for Jesus Christ.

We recently called attention to the fact that the Sultan of Morocco had issued orders forbidding intercourse between Moorish women and ladies attached to Christian missions. Now the French Government demands that English missionaries shall be recalled from Algeria. These measures specially affect the operations of the North Africa Mission. In the first case, it was pleaded that the missionaries "corrupt the religion" of the country; in the second, the reason assigned is "the prevention of the troubles which too often arise in Mussulman countries in consequence of religious agitation." It has been said that the action of the Government of France is a mere set-off against recent occurrences in Uganda, whence "the white fathers" have written several letters in the hope of raising French feeling against Britain. But from the fact that "every kind of religious proselytism," even by persons of French nationality is interdicted, it is apparent that the reason of this action lies in the desire to make government easy in a Mohammedan country.

Mr. J. E. Budgett Meakin, writing to us with regard to Algeria, points out that should what seems to us to be "the worst" really take place, the call for independent Christian residents who cannot be classed as missionaries will be specially urgent.

Our French Protestant contemporaries express deep regret at the pass to which things have come, and, with us, trust that God will lead the way out of the present dark valley. They will watch that no advantage is allowed to Romanism. Should Cardinal Lavigerie's agents be permitted a free hand, then the Evangelical churches of France will see before them a great door of opportunity, which we pray they will be enabled to enter with promptness and vigour. In the meantime our friends of the North Africa Mission are assured of our prayerful sympathy.

The age of heroism in the Master's service is not past. In Africa, as all know, many a precious life has lately been yielded joyfully for his sake; but now from a little mission in an obscure part of Central America comes a touching story of two young lives laid gladly down in the service of the King. In our obituary it will be found briefly noted how Rev. H. W. Bunting went out to Honduras in March, 1891, his sister going to his help in September. After some months' earnest labour, an epidemic of yellow fever broke out in the place; the Romish priest succumbed, and these two evangelical missionaries gave themselves to ministering to the sick and dying until both were stricken, passing away within a few days of each other. These young Wesleyan missionaries have doubtless by life and death sown in the hearts of bigoted and blinded Roman Catholics seed which may yet be found to the glory of God.

One of the current ideas at variance with the doctrine according to godliness is that God is too merciful to be just, and that sinners impenitent in this world may yet be saved in the world to come. Any views or statements calculated to give support to this false and perilous notion should be carefully avoided by all evangelical men. Therefore, we question the frequent assertion that "judgment is God's strange work." How can this be true of the Judge of all the earth, of whose throne, righteousness and judgment are the foundations? The flood, the destruction of Sodom, the great white throne, all declare that "Jehovah is a God of judgment, and by Him actions are weighed."

There is one act which stands out from all God's other dealings as his strange act—it was that the Holy One in heaven should smite the Holy One on earth; that the sword which kept the way of the tree of life should awake against his Shepherd, and against the Man who was his Fellow; that He who knew no sin should be made sin for us, that we might be made the righteousness of God in Him.

The passage in Isaiah xxviii. which speaks of God's strange act declares that in laying in Zion the sure foundation, God would lay judgment to the line and righteousness to the plummet, and quite discredits the idea that judgment is God's strange work.

Judaism has witnessed many modifications in these later days. The burdens of Rabbinism have been dislodged, and time-honoured customs laid aside. At the West London Synagogue recently, the subject of juvenile education was very candidly discussed, and although with no immediate result, in all probability with some salutary effect. Thoughtful people in the Jewish community are scandalised by the idea of young and old offering prayers to God in a language which they do not understand. Large numbers of Jews have only a parrot acquaintance with Hebrew: they read the words, but cannot follow the sense. A strong appeal is therefore being made for religious observances to be more generally conducted in the vernacular. Rev. A. Löwy remarked that during the past forty years the knowledge of Hebrew has much declined among the Jews. Speaking of education, he expressed the very reasonable hope that the children would be taught the nineteenth chapter of Leviticus, for "religion is not religion if not ethical." If all Jewish children were grounded in the chapter mentioned, it would not be difficult to approach them concerning the Greater than Moses, who delivered the Sermon on the Mount.

The Power of the People.

The point of view from which we regard the evident uprising of the working-classes to take on themselves their own government is that of prophecy, of which we are witnessing a most remarkable fulfilment, and one which more than ever convinces us, if we needed convincing, of the genuineness of the book of Daniel, the inspired accuracy of the Bible, and the near termination of the present age.

The image of Nebuchadnezzar's dream, whose brightness was excellent and the form thereof terrible, represented, as we all know, the Gentile power, "the times of the Gentiles," from the time of the captivity of Judah to the final consummation of this dispensation in the reign of the lawless one and the Advent of the Lord. In a majestic procession the empires of the world pass before our view from the golden head gleaming in the light, to the silver breast, the brass of the loins and thighs, and the iron of the legs. Each metal represented a different kind of government; and as each was inferior to that before it, there can be no doubt that a gradual deterioration in the royal prerogative was signified in language which appeals to universal understanding.

In the words of one of the clearest thinkers and writers on this subject, "the Babylonish monarchy was a pure autocracy; the Medo-Persian empire was not an autocracy, but a monarchy dependent upon the support of an hereditary aristocracy; the Government of Alexander, which came next, was supported by a military aristocracy of a far coarser grain than the hereditary nobles of Persia. The iron rule of the Cæsars showed a still further depreciation, for they were nominally elected by the people, and for a long time wore no diadem, but only the laurel crown of a successful commander, and they were supposed to seek the counsel of their senate." Finally came the irruption of the Northern barbarians, out of which the kingdoms of modern Europe were formed, and then the day of popular government and control began to appear with the iron of despotic government and control.

This process has been asserting itself with increasing force as the centuries have passed on. The outbreak of the Reformation in Germany; the remarkable movement in our own land which is associated with the great names of Hampden, Milton, and Cromwell; the Revolutions which have rent the French nation as with the successive throes and shocks of earthquake—these were successive steps in the evolution of that new world-spirit, which strives to incorporate iron and clay, the strength of government by a few with the weakness of government by the many, and produces an amalgam which cannot afford a permanent basis on which the welfare of mankind can rest.

"It is impossible that governments so modelled," says Mr. Pember, "should live cohere. Men cannot be ruled, and at the same time be themselves the rulers. Such an arrangement may indeed be, in certain circumstances, the best palliative during the present age. But it can be nothing more than a palliative; there will be no settled rest for the fevered inhabitants of earth until they be placed under the sway of an Autocrat of never-failing wisdom, absolute righteousness, and perfect love."

The stone hewn out from the mountain without hands, strikes the image on its feet, from which we are evidently to infer that the kingdom of God will be set up on earth when the present system of dual government has become perfectly developed. Up till now there has been more iron than clay in the government of modern Europe; but of late years the clay has been rapidly gaining on the iron. In France and Germany, Italy and Austria, the people have come more and more into prominence. Education, the vast influence of the Press, the introduction of machinery, which places the results of our civilisation within reach of all, have done much to equalise the forces which are moulding modern society.

The recent elections are a remarkable evidence of the development of the same movement, and there may be others close at hand. What may be in the near future we cannot tell. But it is clear that events are focussing themselves with marvellous rapidity on the one Event for which the whole creation waits. We are passing rapidly the last stations which we have been taught to expect, before we enter the terminus to which we are travelling. The government of Man has passed through all the phases possible to it. There is no further expedient to be attempted. All have been laid in the balances and found to be wanting, and now there is nothing left for it but that the God of Heaven shall "set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever."

Inspiration.

In dealing with this theme, there are three points of inquiry that call for particular attention. First, what is Inspiration in its root significance? Second, what are the forms which Inspiration has taken? Third, what is the witness which the Sacred Canon bears to itself as a vehicle of divinely-inspired communication? We confine ourselves now to the first of these inquiries.

We have not to take into account any particular form which Inspiration may assume, whether inward impulse, or ecstasy, or dream, or face-to-face communication; but simply that feature in the case which is common to all, the pervading essence, or distinguishing characteristic, by which Inspiration in every case may be truly known and defined. What, in a word, it is needful to set forth is such a definition of Inspiration as will universally hold: not so much any given process of Inspiration, as that result in respect of it, which is inseparable from any particular instance.

To make our meaning quite clear, it might be shown, e.g., that the Hebrew word for prophecy comes from a root signifying "to boil," or "bubble up"; and it might also be shown that this was, to a large degree, the generic significance of inspiration. But no enforcement of that truth could suffice to make clear how inspiration is related to the whole canon of the sacred Scriptures. Howbeit, it is this point we wish cleared up in the first instance, that we may afterwards appreciate the varied and symmetrical superstructure which inspiration has reared on the one foundation.

Where are we then to get the clue to our inquiry, What is the root significance of inspiration? In answer we cite Rom. x. 17—"So then faith cometh by hearing," i.e., by the report, "and the report by the word of God." In inspiration, accordingly, it follows that, in some way or other, the voice of God is heard, and, being heard, is attested. Between inspiration and revelation there is this distinction to be drawn: that whereas inspiration has to do with the rheema of God, that is, his uttered or communicated word, revelation has to do with its subject-matter, the Logos, or personal Word, which the Only Begotten Son of God is. When we think of the way the sacred Scriptures have come to us, we think of the rheema of God; when we think of what the Scriptures contain, we think of his Logos. It is the rheema which proclaims the Logos. Hence the words of John the Apostle: "This is the testimony of God which He hath testified concerning his son," and hence our Lord's own conception of the sacred writings, "These are they which testify of Me."

Bringing the matter to as direct an issue as possible, the universal and fundamental feature in Inspiration is this, that the report which it bears, and in virtue of which our faith is commanded, is owing to the rheema, or word of God, in some way or other made known.

Inspiration, then, is such a communication as is certified to the consciousness of him receiving it as the very word of God. Whatever may be the channel of the communication, this is its root significance. To the man inspired there is a clear unmistakable discovery of the mind of the Lord: and—for not otherwise would a true revelation be ours—the ability to give the same its due and sufficient utterance in writing or speech. Hence the product is inspired like the medium through whom it came; the inspired messenger gives us an inspired message; and the Bible claims our confidence as an infallible Book.

It is deeply to be regretted that writers of ability have arisen whose notions of Inspiration are loose and indeterminate, and by whom the Bible is far from obtaining the place of honour which it claims for itself, and which, until lately, the Church of Christ of all sections has ungrudgingly assigned it. Mr. Henry Varley, in a work entitled "The Infallible Word," seeks to cope with Mr. Horton's destructive criticisms on the Inspired Writings; and, in the appendix, assails Dr. Clifford's teachings in his recent work on "The Inspiration and Authority of the Bible." Mr. Varley's critique shows considerable research and argumentative power. We deprecate, however, the heat of spirit and use of expletives, which weaken and do not strengthen the influence of his book. Apart from this, which we much regret, his answer to Mr. Horton is complete.

The more serious of the difficulties which Mr. Horton and Dr. Clifford find in the Bible, and which lead them so grievously to lower alike the Inspiration and Authority of Scripture, are due to their own rationalizing spirit. Because there are imprecatory Psalms, it is held, for example, that there is clear evidence that the Old Testament prophets spoke at times from the flesh, and that, therefore, any theory of Inspiration which covers the whole canon, must be admitted also to cover a multitude of sins. But we are not ashamed of the imprecatory Psalms. What we are ashamed of is that men bearing the name of Christians should be so blind as not to adore the Divine mind that indited them. Yet this difficulty, and difficulties cognate, are to Dr. Clifford and others so great that the only way to surmount them is to create a theory of evolution by which certain parts of Holy Scripture are degraded to the level of "a cowardly moan," or something equally unworthy, and other parts are exalted to the skies. But the necessity for this proceeding is entirely self-made. The heart that is not filled with rationalistic sentiment and assumption does not feel it in the least.

Numerous instances of a like nature, such as that with which Mr. Varley deals in chapter x. of his critique concerning the slaughter in Shushan and elsewhere might be given, but we forbear. What Mr. Horton needs for the removal of his mountain of difficulty in regard to Jewish vengeance on their Amalekite foes is not a theory of inspiration which eliminates God from portions of the sacred writings, but the power to see that "vengeance belongeth to the Lord," and that the Lord God exercises his sovereign right to inflict judgment even as He does to dispense mercy. It is from deep conviction, after careful study, that we are constrained to say that had the modern critics of the Word a cleansed vision themselves, their critical office would, for the most part, be suspended; and where they now stumble and are offended, and find that which contradicts their moral sense, they would esteem it of the very essence of piety to magnify and adore.

James Douglas.

REV. BURMAN CASSIN, Rector of St. George-the-Martyr, Southwark, died on Sunday at Margate at the age of fifty-eight. He had been very unwell for some time.

FAITH AND WORKS.—Duties can never have too much of our diligence or too little of our confidence. "For he that is entered into rest hath ceased from his own works as God did from his." A believer doth not perform good works to live, but he lives to perform good works.—William Secker.

The Book of Esther.

A LETTER TO MR. R. F. HORTON.

My dear Mr. Horton,—It has occurred to me that you may be interested in the following simple record of my own experience in regard to the Book of Esther.

Forty years ago I was so much interested in Esther that I specially and definitely prayed that this Scripture might be opened to me, and that my understanding might be opened to it. While I prayed the answer came, and I at once wrote in parallel columns the Dramatis Personæ of the book thus :—

Ahasuerus.	The Great King.
Mordecai, the Faithful Servant, the Man whom the King delighteth to honour.	Jesus.
Vashti, the wife put away.	Israel.
Esther, chosen in Vashti's stead.	The Church.
Haman, the adversary.	Satan, the adversary.
The tree (Est. vii. 9).	The tree (1 Pet. ii. 24).

I was living at Bath at that time, and spoke of this to the Hon. Wm. Wellesley, with whom I often talked of the things concerning the Kingdom of God, and to whom I was indebted for much spiritual instruction. He differed from me, thinking that Haman foreshadowed the last Antichrist, and that typically and prophetically the book related to "the Jewish remnant," when the Church shall have been removed from earth to heaven.

A few days afterwards, however, he gave me a pamphlet which he said he thought would interest me, "Mordecai and Esther," by Rev. J. W. Niblock, his wife's father, which set forth substantially the same view as I had received and told Mr. Wellesley of.

For many months I studied the Book of Esther as typical of the Kingdom of God, and I shall praise God for ever for the clue thus obtained to doctrinal and dispensational truth, and for the emphasis given to the fundamental truths of the Gospel.

The Book of Esther is generally expounded and its characters are estimated, not as presented by the inspired writer, but as conjectured from the light (or otherwise) of secular history. Thus Ahasuerus is represented as a tyrant, Vashti as a right-minded and courageous vindicatrix of insulted womanhood, and Mordecai and Esther as unexemplary characters, if all do not go so far as some in depicting them as monsters of revengeful and insatiable cruelty.

I am convinced that as no prophecy of the Scripture is of any private interpretation, nor came by the will of man, but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost, so it must be interpreted in accordance with the view given by the writer of the characters and circumstances of which it treats.

I am well aware that I cannot convey to another my own conviction of the character and purpose of the Book of Esther, but I do not think that the interpretation of Mr. Niblock, as well as of myself and others, can be disproved; and no one will be surprised that our conviction of the absolute inspiration of this Book is as deeply rooted in our hearts as that of any other, because we believe it to have been to us the subject of personal and experimental demonstration. Indeed, no book has been, to my own experience, so definitely proved to be inspired as this.

Other books, e.g., Deuteronomy, Job, John's Gospel, &c., have similarly been special means of instruction and blessing to others; and the unenlightened and depreciatory criticism of any such book must be as painful to them as the misrepresentation of the Book of Esther is to me.

The idea that the Bible is to be subjected to the same treatment as any other book is scarcely tenable if it be radically different from any other book. Classical or mathematical scholarship, knowledge of the original languages in which the Scriptures were written, the analytical or critical faculty, are all valuable; but they are not everything. An astronomer is not necessarily an authority on chemistry. No amount of human ability, or learning, or culture, qualifies a man even to form an opinion on the inspiration of the Scripture. It seems to me that the evidence of one unlearned and ignorant man to whom God, in answer to prayer, has unveiled, e.g., the Book of Job, has more weight than the opinion of a thousand men of light and leading who can see no more in it than a poetic fiction, or a novel written with a purpose.

With very kind Christian regard, and rejoicing in every good thing I hear about you, while grieved and pained to find your name associated with what seems to me an unfair and unspiritual criticism,—Believe me, yours very sincerely,

R. C. Morgan.

MR. HORTON'S REPLY.

My dear Mr. Morgan,—Thank you for your very interesting letter. Will you do me the favour of printing it in The Christian in extenso? I should like to see it copied into all the religious papers. It shows clearly the point of view from which the resistance is offered to the conclusions of criticism; and it is an intelligible and interesting point of view, essentially the same as that of the Alexandrine School in the third century. The ground taken by your writer in the issue of June 9, on the other hand, is not intelligible to me and to thousands more. For the question is not whether the slaughter be called a massacre or a self-defence, but whether we can morally approve, or refer to the Divine Being as the authority, a method of retaliation which results in such carnage. From the teaching of the New Testament we know that we cannot, and if you read my book you will see that my whole contention is that we have to correct the moral teaching of the earlier books by reference to the Spirit of Christ.

Personally, I do not complain of your way in dealing with me, but I know that the line taken in the Notes referred to above puts into the hands of infidelity precisely the weapon that it wants.—Yours very truly, R. F. Horton.

Chesils, Christchurch-road, Hampstead.

THE COMING DAY

"The redeemed of the Lord shall return, and come with singing unto Zion; and everlasting joy shall be upon their head; and sorrow and mourning shall flee away."—Isa. li. 11.

Oh, the day of joy that's coming,
When the reign of sin is o'er,
And this earth renewed and ransomed,
Paradise shall bloom once more.

Coming, coming, surely coming,
Christ shall reign as Prince of Peace;
And through all his vast dominion
Strife, and wrong, and sorrow cease.

It is coming, surely coming,
Sing, my soul, with rapture sing!
For that day will then declare Him
Over all this earth the King.

Righteousness and truth for ever
Fill the world with love and light,
And the reign of wrong and error
Vanish in an endless night.

Eyes that wept shall shine with rapture
Hearts once broken sing for joy,
And the peace that passeth telling
Fill each soul without alloy.

Ay, that day is coming, coming,
Sing, my soul, rejoice and sing;
Like a "bride prepared" to meet Him,
Who is coming as thy King.

Maria A. West.

Winter Park, Florida, U.S.A.

GOSPEL OPENINGS IN INDIA.

Sir,—It is a matter for thankfulness that the Church of Christ in England is beginning to awake to the call of God with regard to India. No words can give an idea of the wonderful opening now for the Gospel. It is not too much to say that tens of millions are waiting to hear. I have seen in different parts of India in the past few months more than 120 workers in the mission field, and their testimony is unanimous that there is a growing readiness to listen to the Gospel. In many places where a few years ago the Zenana workers could only enter as teachers, they are now welcomed only to read the Bible, and cannot enter half the houses to which they are invited.

It cannot be too often repeated that there are a hundred millions of women in India who can only be reached by women—for these there are at the outside three hundred Zenana ladies. Now, supposing that each lady can visit and teach two hundred women, it would be seen that ninety-nine millions of women are practically unreached.

The little band that are here are heroically working against tremendous odds; and in spite of the terrific heat spend five or six hours a day surrounded by the stench of the native houses and trying often to do the work of two or three. They are broken down and forced to come up for a little pure air to the hill stations, but only to get fresh strength to plunge down again into the furnace below. A traveller to-day told me the thermometer was 122 F. in the train in Scinde, while from Delhi I hear to-day that a devoted missionary has five hundred, mostly Mohammedans, in a hall which will seat three hundred, in discussion till eleven at night, and the thermometer at 105 F.

Are these splendid soldiers to be allowed to fight on almost single-handed till they drop, while Christians in England look on and enjoy, or rather try to enjoy, endless meetings and conferences on holiness, or listen to beautiful thoughts of their favourite preacher in a luxurious church? Even in my very limited sphere I meet with Mohammedans, Hindus, Sikhs, who are far more in earnest in seeking God than the great majority of (overfed?) Christians. Does not the cry of the lepers of Samaria come down through the ages: "We do not well; this day is a day of good tidings, and we hold our peace. If we tarry here till the morning light, some mischief will befall us."

There are tens of thousands in England who are saying, "No man hath hired us." Are they waiting till the Lord, who has left them, "his own goods," comes to take account, and says to them "thou slothful servant." Some may say they have no gift for languages; let them hear what a highly-placed Government officer, and one of the most distinguished linguists of the country, said to me yesterday. He said, "I look upon the way many missionaries speak as a gift of tongues. In a few years they speak far better than I can, who have been, perhaps, four times as long in the country."

The grand labours of a century are now beginning to show their great results, and many thousands of workers are urgently needed to gather in the great harvest of precious souls to be presented to the King, who left the throne of glory for the manger and the Cross. A Zenana worker in Delhi tells me there is scarcely a house in Delhi which is not open if there were labourers to go in. I believe many will realise this is a cry, "Come over and help us!"—Yours, for Christ's sake, Simla. Radstock.

THE INDIANS IN THE UNITED STATES number about 250,000. Rev. Dr. Dorchester, Government Superintendent of Indian schools, writes:—"After personally investigating the Indian character and condition on seventy reservations, and in a great variety of stages of debasement and improvement, I am glad to say that any confidence in the capacity of the red man for elevation has not been abated, but rather increased and strengthened. Pagan Indians have a peculiar religious philosophy which so powerfully shapes their lives in the wrong direction that only the inculcations of the true religion can set them right. The hope of the Indian's regeneration, therefore, lies not in education alone, nor in civilisation alone, but in Christianity united with these great forces." The Methodist Episcopal Church has, among the Cherokees and Choctaws, thirty-six missions, thirty-five missionaries, 1115 members, 227 probationers, and over 6500 adherents.

THE MILDMAY CONFERENCE.

THURSDAY EVENING, JUNE 23.

The last meeting of the Conference opened with the reading by the Chairman of Exod. xxiv. 8-18 and Heb. xii. 18-29. After the singing of a hymn, prayer was offered by Mr. Henry Edwards.

GRACE FOR GRACE.

REV. MARCUS RAINSFORD.

God is Love; and God's way of grace is, I fear, about the least apprehended and believed of all his wondrous ways. And yet all God's other ways in government, in judgment, and in providence, are but the handmaids of his ways in grace. "Grace reigns through righteousness unto eternal life, by Jesus Christ our Lord." It reigns among all the other attributes of God. God's justice, his holiness, his faithfulness and power, all cast their crowns before the throne of grace on which Jehovah sits to dispense salvation to the chief of sinners.

When Moses was astounded by the grace of God, who, in answer to his prayer, promised that his presence should go with Israel after the gross insult they had inflicted upon Him, he thought he would get a peep into God's heart, and he said: "I beseech thee show me thy glory." You remember God's answer: "I will cause all my goodness to pass before thee." If you look at Ex. xxxiii. you will see that God's way (v. 13), God's grace (v. 17), God's glory (v. 18), God's goodness, and God's name (v. 19), are all synonymous terms. Had Moses not seen God's glory at the burning bush, in the ransoming of Israel out of Egypt, and in carrying them through the Red Sea and the Wilderness? Yes, he had. But God again showed his servant his glory and his name, as we read in the following chapter, verse 6: "The Lord God, merciful and gracious, long-suffering and abundant in goodness and truth." Moses "made haste and worshipped." Do you wonder that his face shone?

Let us think for a few moments what this grace is that we are called to contemplate. In Col. i. 19, we read that "it pleased Jehovah that in Him (Christ) should all fulness dwell"; and again, so that there might be no mistake, "In Him dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily" (Col. ii. 9). In John i. 16 we see what this fulness is: "Of his fulness have all we received, and grace for grace." The fulness of grace in Christ is to be communicated throughout eternity to poor sinners—saved by the blood, inhabited by the Spirit, raised in his likeness, and enjoying fellowship with Him for ever. The grace is not apart from Him, it is

IN FELLOWSHIP WITH HIM.

God's grace seeks our need, not our merit; it seeks our ruin, to save us; it seeks our death, to quicken us; it seeks our emptiness, to fill us. The difficulty of grace is not our unworthiness, but our self-righteousness and unbelief. Grace is God's strength made perfect in human weakness; it is God's salvation bestowed upon the lost; it is God's life imparted to the dead; it is God's fulness supplying our emptiness; it is God's heaven instead of our hell; it is God's righteousness for our inheritance for ever and ever. His ways seem to have been hidden in the past till man—God's darling—fell and lost his God. Whatever may have been done before we cannot tell, but this was the climax—Christ died to save poor guilty, lost, unworthy, helpless sinners.

Let me say here that I believe with all my heart God is going to amaze the universe in the matter of his grace, and to show us, who are the chief objects of, it how much He can love. When God created our world, He gave the water to the fishes, the earth to the beasts, the air to the fowls, his heaven to the angels. When all was done, He said—there was a council about it—"Let us make man in Our image, in Our likeness." "Lord, what is man that Thou art mindful of him?" Man was created in the image of God—in the image of Him who is the brightness of the Father's glory, and the express image of his Person. Man was chosen in Christ and blessed in Christ with all spiritual blessings before the worlds were, to be Christ's love-gift from the Father; to be united to Himself; to be filled with his fulness. How little we can tell what it cost God to create man! One only wonders at the boundless grace that ever induced Him to do so.

Great was the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ when He sat in council, one of the Eternal Three, and undertook to be the Head of his Church and to carry that Church through all the chances and changes of its future up to the Throne upon which He sat. Great was his grace when in the fulness of time, when there was no other Saviour, He left his Throne to come down into this wilderness, into the womb of a human mother, to assume our nature, to be born into it, to live in it, to serve in it, to fulfil all righteousness in it, to be tempted in it, to suffer in it, to pray in it, to go to Gethsemane and sweat drops of blood in it, and to go to Calvary in it, where the Roman spear went into his heart, and a fountain was opened for sin and uncleanness. Great was his grace when He brought our humanity out of the tomb in resurrection life and light and glory, to the heavens whence He had descended and sat down in it at the right hand of God. When John saw Him there was a rainbow round about the throne. Such a rainbow was never seen on earth. All earth's rainbows are cut in two, but there is nothing to interfere with its beautiful proportions there. And He is coming again in the same humanity to take us to Himself, and to make us like unto his own body of glory, according to the mighty working whereby He is able to subdue all things to Himself. Some people think from us by reason of our sins. I believe, so far is that from being true, that when He saw us going down into ruin, his compassions enhanced his love—if that were possible. I believe, the Divine consciousness that He was able to help us and deliver us was at the root of his emptying Himself, and coming down here to be spat upon, despised, and neglected. Remember, it was when we were yet sinners that Christ died for us; when we were enemies to God—not in our innocency, but in our condemnation and rebellion. I verily believe never did God love this world more than when He was down here amongst us labouring, learning our sorrows, tested by our temptations, suffering our privations, and being made the propitiation for our sin.

THAT GOD WAS ESTRANGED

Who can speak worthily on this subject? You remember the opening of the Epistle to the Ephesians—Saved by grace which is in Him; blessed in Him; accepted in Him, to the praise of the glory of his grace; having redemption through his blood, even the forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of his grace; loved when we were dead in sins; quickened together with Him; raised up together with Him, and made to sit together at God's right hand in Him, to the praise of his grace. "Where sin abounded, grace did much more abound." Do you take that in—more grace than sin? "God is able to make all grace to abound toward us, that we, having all-sufficiency in all things, may abound unto every good work."

Grace, and God's ways in grace, do not begin with our repentance and return. They do not begin with our reconciliation; they accomplish it. It is bestowed freely on the chief of sinners, and without any other motive or reward than the delight God has in bestowing it—that is grace as I understand it. It is not only grace abounding for us, but grace abounding in us. Think of the gifts of the Spirit and the fruits of the Spirit; they are all of grace. You remember their enumeration in Galatians. Love is grace abounding. Joy is grace exulting. Peace is grace in repose. Long-suffering is grace enduring. Gentleness is grace in its outgoings. Goodness is grace in action. Faith is grace on the battle-field. Meekness is grace in its submissiveness. Temperance is grace in its self-control. Listen to

THE PLEADINGS OF GOD'S GRACE.

It seems a wonderful thing how any dare refuse it. "Come unto Me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." "Ho, every one that thirsteth." "Incline your ear and come unto Me; hear and your soul shall live." "I will have mercy upon you." "I will put my Spirit within you." We had it this afternoon (at the Communion service), and I thought of it as never before. "This cup is the new covenant in my blood." People make a mistake when they overlook that it is the cup, not the blood—a cup full of mercy, salvation, pardon, sealing, bestowed by virtue of the blood it contains. "Come," says grace, "with nothing, just as you are; and come for everything."

Listen to the Gospel of grace. It does not bid you see: it knows you are blind; it bids you look. It does not ask you to give anything; it asks you to receive everything. It does not insist upon your understanding it; it entreats you to trust. It does not bid you go up to heaven—that is, to bring Christ down from above; He came without your solicitation. It does not bid you go down—that is, to bring Christ from below; He did it without your power or asking.

This grace does not wait your call; God has always been calling. When God created Adam He gave him dominion, but how soon he lost it. He listened to Satan's lie instead of believing in his God and Creator. Then God comes out in the character of a Benefactor, and promises "the seed of the woman." How did we treat Him when He came? Then God said: "I will put you amongst the children." We call Him Father, but do we believe that He is our Father? "What child will ask his father for a fish, and he shall give him a serpent; or if he ask for bread, will he give him a stone?" Christ became our brother; the first-born among many brethren; the first-born from the dead. We talk about his resurrection, and about his triumph over death and hell. Are we rejoicing in the truth of it, and drinking into the river of the water of life He has bestowed upon us?

At last God comes in a new phase. He says, "I will betroth thee to Me for ever." This is a new relationship, and the most sweet of all that the Lord descends to. "For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother, and shall cleave unto his wife. I speak a great mystery, concerning Christ and his Church." He comes to us who are strangers unto Him and says, "I will espouse you to Myself." We become dead to the law by the body of Christ, that we may be married to another, to bring forth fruit unto God.

Mr. Rainsford closed by repeating an imaginative version of the story of the Prodigal Son, in which the returned absentee is represented as seeming to be burdened and cast down in the midst of the feasting and the joy. The father, asking the cause, finds that his son, notwithstanding present happiness, fears for the future. But the father assures him that the past is not only forgiven and forgotten, but that grace will be given for all future need. In this we have a faint picture of the way that God deals in his grace with the returning repentant sinner.

GRACE TO THE ILL-DESERVING.

PASTOR JAMES STEPHENS.

We have entered, I think, into something of the fulness of the word "Grace" through what has been said to us this evening already. Grace opens up to us the love and kindness of God, not only to those who do not deserve it, but towards those who are ill-deserving. God's way in grace means God's procedure or method of procedure in his love and in his kindness towards ill-deserving men. In this Conference there have already been brought forward God's ways in judgment, his administration of governmental righteousness; and God's ways in providence, his procedure in upholding all things, and in controlling and working in the midst of all the affairs of men. God brings about his own end by his perfect wisdom and power.

Now, we have to consider his procedure in grace, in kindness; the consummation, so to speak, of it all. God's procedure in his kindness towards man in his ill-desert began before the world was. It began by his forming

A PURPOSE OF REDEMPTION.

There was a pre-determination of benevolent will. God pre-determined that He would provide a Redeemer. It is in this sense that Christ was "the Lamb slain before the foundation of the world." God looked forward to his work of creating man, He foresaw the fall of man from a state of holiness, and He determined to provide a redemption and to give his own Son to be the Redeemer. He pre determined this in accordance with his own righteous judgment and government; for redemption meant not merely the recovery of man, but his recovery according to the principles of right. God pre-determined the adoption of children to Himself from out of ruined mankind. And having so pre-determined He chose that these children should also be holy that they should be holy and without blame before Him in love. God pre-determined to gather a company from a state of lostness and ill-deserving to a state of relation and holiness in his own self; and to do that by his own working in them.

In process of time God's procedure has been working out this purpose He formed before the world was. He has given Jesus to be the Redeemer. He has sent His own Son, that He the perfectly obedient and sinless One, might stand representatively for man, and vicariously receive the stroke due towards the sinning. He gave Jesus up to the death for us. He spared not his own Son when He drew near to Calvary. The sword of Jehovah awoke against the Shepherd, the Man who was his Fellow.

Then God, who had given his own Son, proceeded to call out of the world, to call prevailingly and effectively, a company to be his own. God has addressed that call to the human heart and has prevailed; for what is effectual calling? It is "the work of God's Spirit, whereby convincing us of our sin and misery, enlightening our minds in the knowledge of Christ, and renewing our wills, He doth persuade and enable us to embrace Jesus Christ freely offered to us in the Gospel." This effectual calling is by way of the Word of God. This is the Gospel of Salvation, and it has been by way of that Word being understood and acted upon that responsive faith has been produced in reliance on the Lord Jesus Christ.

Now the immediate effects of this calling have been, first the justification of the sinner before God, who pardons freely all his sins, and reckons him as righteous for the sake of the perfect obedience unto death of the Lord Jesus Christ. He makes us to stand under the cover of his righteousness accepted in the Beloved. But, again, there is not only justification, but also the quickening of the dead ones as the result of God's call. He develops a life which never could develop from within. He communicates new desires, new delight in his will. Further, God's way in this call is to take possession of his people by his Holy Spirit, and thus are they sealed by the Holy Spirit. God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son, the Spirit of adoption, the Sanctifier, the Comforter, the Strengthener, the Spirit of wisdom and revelation; and that Spirit works in the believer, for it is God that worketh in you to will and to do his good pleasure. The Spirit carries on his blessed work of renewing us in holiness, and conforming us to the image of God's Son. That same Spirit is also a foretaste of the experiences of the future, and not only a foretaste, but also a pledge. He is "the earnest of our inheritance."

A NEW APPREHENSION OF HIMSELF,

Thus God proceeds in the present in grace and kindness towards the ill-deserving, and He will in the future proceed toward such by taking those brought back to Himself and accomplishing in them the fulness of his own purpose. We read of the "day of redemption." In one sense we are redeemed already, in another sense we wait for the redemption of the purchased inheritance when God will gather his saved ones out of the ills and temptations of this life and give them the beauty of immortality and of his own glory. From the depths of alienation and guilt and ruin God brings his people to the and likeness to Christ. Not only so, but we shall be manifested before the judgment-seat of Christ, where our works shall be tested by fire. While some works will prove "wood, hay, stubble," thank God, others will prove "gold, silver, and marble," and if any man's work will abide the fire he shall receive a reward. Then "they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever." Then God will bring his purchased possession into closest relation with Himself, and there shall be full fellowship between God, the holy, infinite, eternal, and his creature man. Thus, in speaking of God's ways in grace, we are carried back to eternity before the world was, through all the ages of time that now is, and on throughout the endless ages of eternity yet to come.

COMPLETENESS OF REDEMPTION

It would be well, perhaps, in thinking of God's ways in grace to consider God's method of dealing with those who are his own, while they are yet on earth journeying towards the place of his presence. God, in dealing with such, deals with the sin that is still in them. Listen to the words, "The grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men, teaching us (or training and disciplining us) that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly in this present world." Here is shown the grace of God disciplining us, dealing with the sin in us, the ungodliness and worldly longings still in the believer's heart. This dealing may often take the form of chastening, which is not joyous but grievous, although afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruits of righteousness to them that are exercised thereby. God chastens us that we may be partakers of his holiness, not for his pleasure but for our profit. Paul's thorn in the flesh was, you remember, "lest he should be exalted above measure." So God's grace provided against possible sinning, which must involve the abridgment of the usefulness of his servant. God's grace seeks that we should walk worthily of Him. Read Matt. x. 37, 38; John xii. 26; xv. 15; Matt. xix. 29; and see God's ways of grace in dealing with his own for their profit and his glory.

The speaker concluded with two practical remarks: first, on the confidence and joy which the believer finds in realizing God's ways in grace; and, second, on the awful danger of those who despise his ways in grace, and, turning a deaf ear to the offer of mercy, refuse his Son and his offer of salvation.

A CLOSING APPEAL.

REV. J. S. HILL.

I want to appeal to you, ere we close, on behalf of the perishing world. "As every man hath received the gift, even so minister the same one to another, as good stewards of the manifold grace of God" (1 Peter iv. 10). Let me remind you of the disappointments of the heart of Jesus. He was a disappointed man all his life through: disappointed with the Jews, with his disciples, and has He not been with the Church of God? When He cried to the perishing world, "Come unto Me," He had to complain, "Ye will not come unto Me that ye might have life." At the close of his ministry He wept over Jerusalem, and does He not weep over poor bleeding Africa, poor blighted China, and India, where it is now a critical question whether it will accept Christ or atheism? After He had washed the disciples' feet He had to say, "One of you shall betray Me," and in the garden He had to say "Could ye not watch with Me one hour?" I wonder if He is similarly disappointed with any in this Conference? He has made us stewards of the manifold grace of God; He has committed to us his message of love to this perishing world. What is to be our response as we gaze into that face full of pity and compassion? Look into it. Look on Africa in its sin and under the power of a great awful darkness. You have in your possession the remedy. What are you doing with it? You must give an account before God for the use you have made of it. What shall your response be? What did Mary of Bethany do when she had learned something more than the rest of them concerning her Lord? She broke her box of precious ointment and poured it on Him. Shall we bring our best, our all, our everything, and pour it out at his feet? What was Ruth's response? "Whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge." If that be our response, then listen to his word, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the Gospel to every creature." May it be ours, beloved, when we have to give an account of our stewardship of the manifold grace of God committed to us, to be amongst the number of those whom He shall commend as good stewards of Jesus Christ.

AFTERNOON MEETINGS.

ACCOUNTS OF CHRISTIAN WORK.

While the friends in the South Tent were conferring on the subject "How to win souls," there was another large gathering under the familiar Mulberry Tree, when a number of workers told something of what is actually being done in many directions to win souls.

Rev. E. N. Thwaites, of Salisbury, who presided, started off with a few rousing words, and was followed by Rev. Mr. Sparsholt, representing the work in Palestine in connection with Mrs. Meredith's Medical Missions. Mr. H. D. Brown spoke up for the work of colportage. The "pedlars" connected with the Christian Colportage Association, he said, were now engaged in all parts of England from Cornwall to Northumberland. Everywhere they go they carry their packs with them, offering for sale copies of the Scriptures and other wholesome literature permeated with Gospel truth, and at the same time speaking a word in season for their Master as opportunities are afforded. One or two incidents which he related showed what a great amount of good is being accomplished by this agency.

Mr. Sydney Weatherley drew a pathetic picture of the hard lot of many of the residents in the squalid neighbourhood of St. Giles's, and showed how, in many ways, the London Medical Mission is seeking to alleviate the physical sufferings and bodily requirements of many of them, while at the same time ministering to their spiritual needs.

Miss C. Guaney, the devoted founder of the Christian Police Association, drew attention to the claims of our policemen, and what is being done to meet that need. She particularly urged that a Bible-class for policemen might be held close to every police-station in the land at least once a week. There is already a noble band of ladies who hold such classes, and she thought many more might take up the work. Speaking of the encouragement and blessing which is attending it, she said there was never a week but what she heard of some definite conversions as a direct result of their efforts.

Mr. J. A. Home represented Lady Beauchamp's Sailors' Rest at Havre, and gave some interesting illustrations of the good being done among sailors in that port within twelve hours of London.

Pastor D. Lortsch, in an animated address, advocated the claims of the poor French peasantry, and narrated some gratifying facts showing with what energy and zeal the members of the Free Reformed Church are seeking to spread the knowledge of the Gospel in many outlying districts of inland France.

Tea-time was drawing near, and Colonel Jacob begged a share in the prayers of the audience for the thousands of our own countrymen engaged on the tea and coffee plantations in India, and the work being carried on among them by the Anglo-Indian Evangelisation Society. Hundreds of these men, he said, are engaged on plantations on the hills far away from all spiritual privileges, and are only occasionally visited by the missioners of the society. The need for an extension of the operations of the society was made very evident.

Mr. C. E. Faithfull, of the Seamen's Rest, Marseilles, gave some account of the work among French sailors in that port, and was followed by Mr. William Forbes, who, in a racy talk, related some particulars of his work among theatrical employees. The McAll Mission in France was represented by Pastor S. H. Anderson, of Paris, and a searching missionary appeal by Rev. J. S. Hill brought the meeting to a close.

A similar meeting was held the next day in the South Tent, Mr. W. H. Seagram presiding, when another batch of workers reported concerning their respective spheres of service.

Rev. Horace Noel described the objects of the Foreign Evangelisation Society, which is to give grants in aid to various individual missions on the continent of Europe, such as that of Pastor Rohrbach in Berlin, Pastor Rodriguez in Madrid, Mrs. Hammond in Venice, Signor Capellini in Rome, &c., and many others.

Miss Brown was able to tell a very encouraging story respecting the Y.W.C.A. Factory Helpers' Union and its efforts in our large towns to better the condition of the young women who come within its reach both physically, morally, and spiritually.

The venerable Mr. George Holland followed with some additional particulars showing the methods adopted by the same class of girls in connection with the George-yard Mission, Whitechapel, and added some interesting information about the many other agencies centred there.

Mr. D. C. Joseph, of the Evangelical Mission to Israel, Jerusalem, made an earnest appeal for an increase of prayer and effort on behalf of his Jewish brethren who are flocking back to Palestine in such large numbers.

Mr. Prentice, of the London City Mission, told of his work and his ways of working among the men in the coal-yards of the metropolis. One or two incidents which he related showed with what lively interest these "coalies" listen to the Gospel story when it is attractively presented to them, and with what good results. Rev. Thomas Richardson insisted on the necessity of Christians keeping up a regular and systematic reading of the Scriptures, and testified to the great blessing which had followed the efforts of the Bible and Prayer Union to encourage such a careful and prayerful reading. A fervent missionary appeal followed by Mr. Dudley Kidd, of the Cape General Mission, who told of the stupendous spiritual needs of the millions of souls in our vast colonies in South Africa. The Cape General Mission with which he is connected, is doing something to meet those needs, but everywhere, he said, the cry is for more missionaries from the business centres, the diamond fields, from Pondoland and Basutoland, and everywhere the cry comes for more helpers in the battle of the Lord against the mighty foes of evil. An account of the work of the Railway Mission was given by Mr. R. Nixon, after which Mr. H. Maxwell Wright made another solemn missionary appeal, especially dwelling upon the claims of South America, and its thirty millions of neglected souls. Nothing could be so stimulating as to listen to the narratives of Gospel effort given at these two meetings, and one could not but be cheered and encouraged, though at the same time one could not but feel also—and very forcibly—how great is still the need for labourers and for a large extension of effort all round. It was, indeed, a common cry with all the speakers, "More workers are needed!" Over and over again was it reiterated, "The harvest truly is great, but the labourers are few." What opportunities for service await hundreds of souls whose only cause for rejoicing is, "We have seen Jesus," and who do not yet realise that there is still a company which no man can number whose cry is, "Sirs, we, too, would see Jesus!"

CHRIST FOR INDIA'S MILLIONS.

I have been spending some time at Coonoor, in the Neilgherries, where I have had the pleasure of meeting many Christian friends and brother missionaries. Everywhere I hear of progress in some places, and great progress in the number of those who have placed themselves under Christian instruction, and there are undoubtedly cases of genuine conversion. But there is too much reason to fear that in many cases it is rather a change of religion than a real change of heart. Christianity brings with it many blessings, and there is danger that it may be embraced for these things, rather than from love to Christ as our Saviour. To this danger none are more alive than the missionaries themselves.

May I ask for the prayers of the readers of The Christian, that I and my brother missionaries who have the oversight of large numbers (I have over fifteen thousand Christian adherents) may have wisdom and grace given rightly to direct wavering steps? May I ask for prayer that all those who profess and call themselves Christians may have the spirit of Christ, and being roundly, soundly, savingly converted, may act worthy of their high calling?

You will have observed that attention is being called in the House of Commons to the condition and treatment of the poor low caste, or outcast Pariah, Pulayar, and other classes. Even the attention of Hindus is arrested, and one Hindu actually proposed that these people, whose very shadow has hitherto been regarded as pollution, shall be admitted to the heathen temples! Thank God, a better worship than Hinduism, a purer, holier, faith than Hinduism, is open to the poorest, and "whosoever will may come." Yet, as you will see, the really hard work begins when numbers like this come and place themselves under Christian instruction. We need every effort, not only that they may be Christians, but that they, too, may have a fuller, deeper, truer knowledge of the saving power of Christ.

I have been using the magic-lantern, and the thought occurs to me that there must be hundreds of good Scripture slides at home hardly ever used. I have a camera, and I shall be glad to send Indian photos in exchange for some of these slides. They should be packed with a little cotton-wool, in a small wooden or tin box, and sent by Indian parcel post (10d. per lb.).

J. Knowles.

Parcychaley, Martandam, Travancore, S. India.

ALBION HILL HOME, BRIGHTON.—The report of this Home, so long conducted by the late Mrs. Vicars, shows that during the past year fifty-three penitent girls were admitted, while forty-nine were sent out to service, restored to friends, or otherwise dealt with. The whole work has suffered much from lack of funds, and, indeed, the two cottages, "Princess Alice Memorial" and "London," have had to be closed on this account. This will be regretted by all who know the good work going on in the Home, and the real blessing which has been granted on the work. The secretary is Rev. R. C. Macdonald, Home Villa, Queen's-park, Brighton.

MALVERN.—In connection with the well-managed and prosperous Y.W.C.A. of this town, a boarding house and holiday home has been recently opened, which will doubtless prove to be a blessing to many tired Christian workers, governesses, and young ladies engaged in business. The house stands in a central position on the slopes of the Malvern hills, and commands extensive views. The arrangements are bright and home-like, and there is accommodation for some twenty visitors. Further particulars can be obtained from the Lady Superintendent, Miss Southworth, Strathview, 5, Promenade, Malvern.

THE PEOPLE WHO WAIT FOR US.

While following the footprints of that One, "who, though He was rich, yet for our sakes became poor," into lonely hearts and homes, how sweet sometimes to find some one who, without preface or apology, unburdens all the heart to us as if he had only been waiting for us to come! And this is all the sweeter when we were bound on another errand and are led unconsciously to the by-path and surprised into the belief that, after all, the real errand was the unthought-of-one.

I go to call on a friend, rich in this world's goods, yet sadly in need of the riches of his grace, and find she is not at home. I sigh for the moments wasted in the coming; but a sad-faced little servant-maid has come to answer the bell and the Spirit whispers, "Draw near and join thyself unto her."

"Is it tiresome work in this great house, I wonder?"

"Oh, yes ma'am, I'm like to die with the weariness of it—and there! I wish I was dead!"

In a moment, touched by the first breath of sympathy, she forgets she speaks to a stranger; her over-full heart is outpoured, and God's message, carried for another, nestles into its true home, the emptiness of this other life.

Another day I start for the County Hospital with a poor woman who belongs to "my parish." (How dear those words become, when we get used to the thought that a few people in a little cluster of homes belong to us and we to them, and have learned to come to us in any trouble!) Her husband has been taken suddenly ill and carried there, and of course I will go with her on "visiting day" to see him. She is unused to cable cars, afraid of the very name "County Hospital," and shrinks under my protecting care in a confiding way pitiful to see.

Poor soul! I know all the time that she's crying there behind her shawl with the worry of it all, and it's good that she rouses up a little when she hears a woman opposite in the car say she's going out to the hospital to see her boy.

"I ain't the only one, be I?" she whispers to me.

How grateful she is to find there are certain ways whereby a well-dressed person can secure tickets quietly and slip in ahead of that dreadful waiting crowd in the hall!

We find her husband. "How are you, Pat?" She bends over and kisses his lips awkwardly as if unused to that endearment, and after a word with him I slip away to let them have their talk together. I walk to the far end of the ward and stand looking out of a glass door. Surely a little moment is needed to get a firmer grasp upon one's faith in the loving kindness of our God, after the sad journey down the long double row of sufferers in that prison-house of pain.

I glance back and see Pat's wife standing mute beside his bed; her power of expression has exhausted itself in the one question: "How are you, Pat?" She feels more, but poverty and ignorance stifle heart-expression. I might go back now and try to lead Pat's thoughts heavenward; but there at the end of the row on the left lies a young man reading a news paper, and again the Voice whispers, "Draw near."

He takes the Gospel paper I offer, after making sure that it is free, and says in a very kindly tone with a slightly foreign accent: "Don't think I ever go back on any of your kind." I hope by that he means one of God's children sent on an errand of love. Oh, so many things he has to tell me! He is a Russian. He has a relapse of typhoid fever. I can tell him of my own anxiety for a beloved brother just recovering from the same fever. I write a business letter for him, which eases his mind, and by that time we are friends, because, you see, he had been waiting for me.

Now he is ready for a word to his soul. "Do you have anything comforting to think of as you lie here?"

"Oh, no indeed, only terrible thoughts. I think all the time of how I may die soon, and I have been very, very mean to several people. No one knows I am here. I've got to die without getting a chance to ask their forgiveness."

"And how have you treated God? Have you asked his forgiveness?"

"No, I daren't ask Him to forgive me now. He knows I've had chance after chance to repent and never did. Of course, when people come to die a sort of softness comes over their hearts; but it's mean to ask God to forgive them then. I wouldn't do it if I was God, and I won't ask Him."

Poor heart, there he lay in anguish of soul far deeper than his body's pain. The Great Physician only could prescribe for him. I have no Bible with me but my own morocco bound, limp-covered darling of my heart; but he must have it; so, breathing a prayer over it, I slip it under his pillow. I know that he will find there, underlined in red ink, words from our Saviour's lips assuring him that he can be forgiven even now.

I can only say: "I shall pray that your life may be spared to be given to God."

"Well, I'm sure you're the first one that's ever done that for me."

I say good bye. God's Word will do the rest.

During the week I write to him to remind him that I am praying for him while he reads my Book, and the next visiting day, in company with a young friend who has lately become a Christian and needs to find the path of service, I go to see my Russian friend.

No need to ask; the face tells that the blessed Word has entered in and brought peace. He has a glad greeting for the owner of the Book; gives it up with a lingering touch upon it, as if he loved it for what it had done, and takes eagerly the one given for his own.

"It is all right now. I found the way in there. I've started on the Christian road. I shall get well now and serve God the rest of my life."

He shakes hands warmly with my friend, when he knows he has started on the same road and has prayed for him with me.

"It's the best, the only way, and I'm glad you don't put it off and put it off, as I did."

He asks us to come again. He speaks a world of unspeakable things with his happy eyes, and we say our "God be with you."

When now, with a new and peculiar love for it, I take in my hand my little Bible that saved a soul, I thank God for this illustration that his Word alone, laid by a loving human hand upon a waiting heart, can do the whole work.

When I went, as all we workers do, to the dear mother of us all, Mrs. Capron, Superintendent of the women's department, with the story of the day, how I started on another errand and found this unexpected service by the way, she only said: "Be ready, child, a sharpened tool, for God to pick up and use at any time." But I think of the thousands of times I may have missed some work by the way for lack of readiness.

Let us watch as we are passing by; let us be ready at an instant's notice to drop everything else. Perhaps God may choose us to hand the cup of cold water to some thirsty soul, that is waiting for someone.

We never learn until we go with

> A heart at leisure from itself
> To soothe and sympathize, how many are the souls that wait, each with its special history of soul-need. We fear to intrude; yet remember, for the one who repels us, there are scores who wait for us.

Edith E. Metcalf.

Bible Institute, 230, La Salle Avenue, Chicago.

OUT OF THE DEPTHS.

With muffled voice my soul doth cry
From out the depths to God Most High—
Oh, Thou who heedest even a sigh,
Come near to me.

Thy hand lies heavy on my soul;
Thy troubled waves above me roll;
The tumult baffles my control;
Come near to me.

Lest I should sin against my Lord,
By angry thought or hasty word;
Lest evil in my heart be stirred,
Come near to me.

To foil the doubts that rend my breast,
To teach me all thy will is best,
And how upon thy word to rest,
Come near to me.

I dare not pray, "Remove my cross;"
These woes and pains purge out the dross;
But, oh! to save my soul from loss,
Come near to me.

If Thou art near the depths are light;
The waves are peace, my weakness might;
No ill is wrong, all crosses right;
Come near to me.

W. A. Essery.

BRITISH Y.M.C.A. CONFERENCE.

(Concluded from last week.)

THURSDAY MORNING

saw the Free Assembly Hall crowded with delegates. There was also a good attendance of the general public in the unreserved galleries. Dr. John Carment conducted the devotional meeting. Mr. James Sinclair, Glasgow, then introduced the topic, "How to increase the usefulness of Associations to the Churches and to the community as agencies for promoting the highest well-being of young men." There was plenty of "sea-room" in the title, of which the opener took full advantage. After a general sketch of Association work he went on to deal with the relation of the Y.M.C.A. to social reforms, specifying, purity, temperance, anti-gambling, anti-opium, and the question of the introduction of drink into Africa.

Several excellent suggestions were made during the discussion, one by Mr. Ormerod (Plymouth) that success is promoted, and co-operation with the Churches, is secured, when the Association confines itself to its peculiar sphere and seeks the welfare of young men, avoiding the easier task of general evangelistic work. He backed up his opinion by several striking illustrations. Mr. Archibald Kennedy (Scottish National Executive) warmly advocated the extension of the Scotch method of affiliating the Young Men's Bible Classes associated with the several churches. The result of this incorporation in Scotland is that whereas in Ireland the Y M.C.A. has enrolled 1 in 662 of the Young Men, and in England 1 in 615, in Scotland the proportion is 1 in 169.

Mr. Robertson (Church of Scotland Guild) urged that with a view of fulfilling the proposition in the paper the Association should urge its members to regular study of the Bible, regular attendance at the Communion, and should pour into the Churches a band of trained workers. Many ministers whom he knew in all communions, had found their training and caught the fire of enthusiasm in the Y.M.C.A.

The Noon Prayer Meeting was presided over by Mr. M. H. Hodder (London), in the absence of Mr. John R. Fowler (Bray, Ireland). A brief address was given by Rev. John Smith (Broughton Place U.P. Church), his text being taken from the words of Joel, "I will pour my Spirit upon all flesh, and your sons . . . shall prophesy." This prophecy, partially fulfilled, is to be more largely fulfilled. In the forefront of the prophecy are the sons of the Church, a fair augury for the success of the Young Men's Christian Association, and these young men shall prophesy, shall stand forth as witnesses of God and his righteous requirements. Dinner followed in the Music Hall, by invitation of a very old Y.M.C.A. friend, Mr. John Tawse, W.S., Vice-President of the Edinburgh Association. The afternoon was devoted to a garden party in the grounds of Canaan House, Grange Loan, the residence of Mr. W. J. Menzies, W.S.

At night Lord Polwarth presided over a crowded meeting in the Free Assembly Hall, when a characteristic address was delivered by Rev. John McNeill. At the close a collection was taken in aid of the funds of the Scottish National Executive, which amounted to upwards of sixty pounds.

Lord Polwarth introduced a few remarks on the importance of Association work by recalling an incident in his own experience. One day on settling with a rat-catcher in his employ, he found that the man had laid out in rows the bodies of the dead rats. There were rats of all sizes, large rats and little rats. These were to be paid for at so much per head. His lordship inquired if he was to pay as much for the little ones as the big ones. 'Oh, yes," replied the rat-catcher, "the little ones have got life before them.' Lord Polwarth earnestly exhorted the members of the Association to be loyal to Christ and his Word. If they would follow the Lord Jesus Christ victory will be secure.

Rev. Dr. Mackichan, Professor in the Free Church College, Bombay, testified to the fact that Foreign Missions occupied a very different position in the esteem of the churches to-day than they did ten years ago; and rightly so, for our Christianity has no meaning unless it is aggressive. The speaker had not been informed, before rising that a Travelling Secretary was about to go forth to labour in the interests of the Association in the Presidency of Bombay. He had spoken of the Y.M.C.A, in India and had suggested the desirability of the English workers sending forth such a man. A dramatic incident resulted. Mr. Robert McCann, the outgoing Secretary, was called to the front and received quite an ovation.

Rev. John McNeill was brimful of humour, but beneath the fun a vein of deepest earnestness was always evident. He took for his motto, "That I may know Him." He told how, when he was seeking the Saviour, he felt persuaded that in the Scriptures, if he searched them, "somewhere, somehow, at some time, he would surely find Him." He believed that, notwithstanding all that was said by modern men about finding Christ apart from the Scriptures, that this was the way to find Him. But they said the road was "under repair." They had had it a long time under repair. They had not begun any work of construction yet. They had been all this time "howking oot." They had begun to feel amongst themselves that it was time to begin to re-construct, and were calling out to one another. But the notice is still up, "Beware of the steam-roller." He supposed this meant "modern criticism." In closing, Mr. McNeill gave some splendid testimony on the necessity of practical righteousness. He vehemently protested against intemperance and gambling, and supported his testimony by some stirring narratives.

FRIDAY,

the closing day, was devoted to a charming excursion to Alloa. More than 600 delegates and friends left Edinburgh by special train. On arrival at Alloa, they first proceeded to inspect the grounds of the Earl of Mar and Kellie. They then dined together in the Town Hall as the guests of Mr. J. Thompson Paton, the host of the day; thence proceeding to Norwood, the residence of Mr. Paton, where a garden-party was arranged. The return to Edinburgh was made by steamer down the Forth, passing under the magnificent bridge, which had been crossed by train in the morning.

A thanksgiving meeting in the Y.M.C.A. Hall, presided over by Mr. R. Henderson Smith—to whom much credit is due for his share in the Conference arrangements — appropriately brought the proceedings to a satisfactory conclusion.

GENERAL SECRETARIES' CONFERENCE.

A yearly "Secretaries' Conference" has now passed into a Y.M.C.A. fixture; and most profitable occasions they seem to prove. Senior and junior secretaries mingle together for a week, in some choice locality, in order that they may make one another's acquaintance and be better able, henceforth, to work together with increased cordiality. They also confer together on methods of work and kindred topics concerning the welfare of Association work in a spirit of healthy, out-spoken criticism.

On the recent occasion, the spot selected for the reunion was admirably chosen. It was on the banks of the Gareloch, opposite Greenock, easily accessible to the secretaries who had come north for the British Y.M.C.A. Conference in Edinburgh. A large house, ordinarily devoted to boarding-school purposes, was set apart for their reception. A large part of each day was spent in conference; the rest was devoted to recreation; but even the latter was pressed into useful service, such as meeting the Dumbarton Bible-class (three hundred to four hundred strong), conducted by Mr. J. Campbell White, who were spending a summer holiday on the shores of Loch Long, and visiting H.M.S. Empress, set apart as a training-ship for three hundred lads.

Twenty-eight secretaries gathered on the present occasion. The subjects for discussion comprised the following topics: "The Relation of the Y.M.C.A. to the Churches"; "Business and Committee Meetings: How to Guide Them"; "How Best to Assist the Travelling Secretary in His Work"; "The Work of the Y.M.C.A. in Small Towns"; "What Place Amusements and Athletics Should Occupy in the Association"; "Admission to Membership: How to Control and Maintain the Membership"; "Foreign Missions," &c.

During the Conference a census was taken of the churches to which the secretaries belonged (names being omitted from the ballot papers). The following proof of the catholicity of the Association resulted:—United Free Methodist, 1; Countess of Huntingdon, 1; Independent, 1; Wesleyan Methodist, 3; Society of Friends, 3; Baptist, 4; Presbyterian, 5; Church of England and Ireland, 10; total, 28.

Another fact of interest that transpired was that eight secretaries had retired from the work, and sixteen had joined it during the year. Of the eight who had fallen out all had entered upon some other branch of Christian work; none had resigned to go into profitable secular business on their own account.

Sunday was a memorable day. Four of the churches in the district were placed at the disposal of the secretaries at each of the diets of service, as well as the Sunday forenoon service on board the Empress. Many young men and others were hopefully led to decision in the district during the "Secretaries' Week."

ST. CHRISCHONA PILGRIM MISSION.

The various institutions of the Pilgrim Mission, St. Chrischona, are being conducted with the accustomed vigour. In the latest report we read:—

The year 1891 was one of quiet, happy labour. We might call it uneventful, were it not for the unnumbered events, seen and known but of a few, and notwithstanding full of eternal import. Our household at the Training College consists of 125 persons, which number includes the Director and his family, tutors and assistants, students, workmen and apprentices, gardener and farm-labourers.

On September 1, nineteen young men entered the Institution. Besides the regular students, sixty-eight in number, whose complete course of study comprises a term of four years, we received ten young men for the winter to our course of Bible study. Most of these belong to the peasant class. Their wish is, without relinquishing their ordinary occupation, to devote a part of their time to evangelistic work, and for this they seek a few months of preparation by the study of the Word of God. A young gentleman was with us in the same capacity during the summer months. He was the only son of a wealthy landed proprietor in Russia. His father's vast possessions are far from any place of worship, and the son, who had been sent to Germany to acquire some proficiency in the art of practical farming, felt that he needed more than this in order some day not only to govern his domains well, but above all to be a father and a minister to his servants and dependents. His stay in our midst has not been in vain.

As year by year passes by, we feel more and more deeply how necessary it is that those who are set apart for the work of evangelisation should be indeed evangelists. They must be well acquainted with their message; therefore in all our instruction we aim at thoroughness and simplicity. Truth well conceived will be well expressed. A few things understood perfectly are worth a great many shadowy conceptions. But above all it is of importance that those who proclaim redemption be themselves made free from the chains of sin and death, so that they be not only messengers but witnesses of Him who is of a truth mighty to save.

The Home of Rescue, 'Pilgerhuette,' unknown as it is to many even in our own land, is sought and found by those for whom it was opened, i.e., men of all classes, ranks, ages, and position, who, having either by drink or other sins brought themselves into trouble, are anxious and willing to begin a new life. During last year thirty-six men and lads were in the home for a longer or shorter period.

Most of our former students, labouring in different parts of the world, send us reports of their work. Beside the training of workers for their spheres, our committee has the direction of some thirty-five evangelists, who are not in connection with any other missionary society. This branch of the work is prospering. We have evangelistic stations in Switzerland, Germany, and Austria. In several places we have built mission halls capable of seating from 150 to six hundred persons according to the different requirements of the places. The building of a mission house in Frauenfeld and of one in Constance has somewhat reduced our funds.

Communications in Britain may be addressed to Mr. E. E. Scott, 64, Queen's-street, Edinburgh.

A TEMPERANCE BEVERAGE.—Until recently there has been a great dearth of good temperance drinks that could in any degree compete with popular beverages which have in them an element of intoxication. This lack is now being supplied in various directions. The Kentora Brewery Company, of Nottingham, send us specimens of their non-intoxicating hop bitter ale "Kentora." It is a pleasant, wholesome drink; we wish all beer-drinkers could be induced to try it.

"Those Fifty Years."

DR. NEWMAN HALL'S FAREWELL.

Last Sunday Dr. Newman Hall terminated a public ministry extending over half-a-century, and bade farewell, as pastor, to the church and congregation at Christ Church, Westminster-bridge-road. His discourse at the morning service took the form of a survey of his pastoral career. He chose three passages—Leviticus xxv. 11, Deuteronomy viii. 2, and 1 Samuel vii. 12, as fitly expressing the sentiments that ought to mark such an occasion. He said he would not enter on any studied narrative, but would give a simple familiar talk by way of reviewing his ministerial career. He desired it to be not only a humble remembrance, in view of many shortcomings, but a grateful remembrance in looking back at the way along which he had been led.

At the outset, in speaking of the causes that had led up to his entrance on the ministry of the Gospel, he paid a singularly pathetic and affectionate tribute to the memory of his mother, and the influence for good she had exercised on him in early life. When he was sixteen years of age, a sister who was at school wrote a letter saying she had resolved to become a pilgrim to the celestial city. That impressed him so much that he there and then resolved to follow her example. He united himself to the church and immediately began the distribution of tracts and Sunday-school work at Cox-heath, near Maidstone. To a little congregation of twenty-eight paupers in the village workhouse he delivered his first address from John iii. 16, "God so loved the world." His thoughts turned in the direction of the ministry; after duly consulting his pastor and the church of which he was a member, he entered upon his studies at a Congregational college at the age of twenty-one. During his four years of study he frequently preached; among other places at Oxford, from which he received a pressing call, but declined it as his studies were not then completed.

Shortly after his graduation Albion Church, Hull, was opened, and he was called upon to preach in place of the Rev. James Sherman, of Surrey Chapel, who was unable to fulfil his engagement. This led to his receiving an invitation to the pastorate of the new church. At Hull he laboured for twelve years, entering actively into temperance and outdoor evangelistic work. When he began, the church had a membership of forty-two, and when he left it had reached six hundred. It was while at Hull that he wrote his famous tract, "Come to Jesus," which has had a circulation of some four millions, and has been translated into almost as many languages as the Bible. The story of the genesis of this tract, as told by Dr. Hall, is interesting. He was present at a banquet held on the occasion of a missionary anniversary. Pipes and whisky were freely used by most of those present, though nobody went to excess. The fumes becoming very thick, he and a fellow abstainer, a Scotch clergyman, left the meeting. Having some time on their hands, they improvised an open-air missionary meeting. Mr. Hall led off the singing of the hymn "Come to Jesus," and that suggested to him a little address, with those words for a text. It proved so suitable, that he amplified his extempore talk into a sermon, which he afterwards condensed into a pamphlet. He had two thousand copies printed; a demand arose, and it soon became popular. The writing of this tract Dr. Hall described as the chief event of his first pastorate.

The invitation to succeed Mr. Sherman at Surrey Chapel, came before him, and after much prayerful deliberation, it was accepted. He made it a condition that he should be free to conduct a weekly temperance service, which at that time was a great novelty. It was also agreed that he should be at liberty to do evangelistic work during the week, and to have an assistant minister. After describing the unsectarian constitution of the church he referred with warmth to the hope and expectation which they cherished that Rev. F. B. Meyer, of Regent's park Chapel, would consent to be his successor at Christ Church.

In his ministry among them he had kept clear of party politics, though he had preached against war, slavery, and other evils. He described the active part he took in combating slavery at the time of the American civil war. He visited large towns in the provinces and also took a trip to the United States. As one outcome of that visit many American friends contributed towards the erection of Lincoln Tower in his new church. This led him to speak of the relinquishment of Surrey Chapel and the building of Christ Church, Westminster-bridge-road. That imposing structure cost about £63,000, of which he himself collected £30,000. The present membership of the church is seven hundred.

Drawing towards the close of his discourse, Dr. Hall said that the population of the neighbourhood had considerably changed, and there was need for new methods to cope with the altered circumstances. It was not true, as one paper had said, that he was resigning because of bodily infirmity, but it was true that at the age of seventy-six he could not reckon on a very extended period of health and strength. It was best for the congregation that he should give place to some younger man. He hoped still to retain an interest in the church as one of the trustees, by occasional preaching service, and in other ways.

As to the general character of his pulpit preaching, Dr. Hall said he had sought to make it at once varied, simple, and Scriptural. He had read and studied many books, and had given much thought to the preparation of his discourses so as to make them acceptable and intelligible to the common people. He had not shunned to declare the whole counsel of God. Three things he had kept specially in view—instruction, consolation, conversion. He had striven to preach Christ crucified, and probably in every discourse delivered these fifty years he had sufficiently set forth the Atonement to enable any hearer to know the way of salvation.

In closing, Dr. Hall referred to his published books, and to the many hymns he had written, some of which were to be found in different hymnal collections.

In the evening the church was crowded with a large and devout congregation. The prayers were read by Rev. H. Grainger, Dr. Hall's assistant, and the preacher took as his text John iii. 16, "For God so loved the world that He gave his only begotten Son," &c. It was, he said, the first text which he learned at his mother's knee, the text from which he first preached fifty years ago, and it would be the text of his last sermon to them. That, indeed, had ever been the substance of his preaching—God's love to men. He admired modern thought, and wished himself to think in the modern spirit, but modern thought was valueless unless it was joined to the ancient verities of the Gospel. He was now retiring, and he asked those who had been helped by his ministry to repay him by being steadfast and earnest in the truth, else his preaching would have been in vain. In conclusion, he formally resigned the incumbency of the church.

A farewell social meeting was held on Tuesday evening, when addresses were given by various well-known ministers.

FROM THE FAR WEST.

For twenty-one years your valuable paper has followed me in my wanderings on this great continent. Besides being an instructor, a stimulant, and encouragement, it has served as a connecting link between me and the dear old home-land. My family has become familiar with it, and how we could do without it now I can scarcely see. I recognise the familiar handwriting on the address every time, and hope the friend who sends it may long be spared to wield a pen in such good work.

There is much darkness and sin on this Pacific coast, where a large share of the dregs of society congregates; but there is also much vigorous effort for the salvation of the lost, and strong testimony against the evils that exist. Churches of all denominations have grown and multiplied largely within the last five years by the force of the incoming population. With a genial climate and rich resources, this coast only requires capital, brain, physical force, and spiritual ardour to make it as "the garden of the Lord."—Yours sincerely, Robert Lennie.

New Westminster. British Columbia.

REV. F. B. MEYER'S DECISION.

To the Members of the Church and Congregation Assembling at Regent's Park Chapel.

Dear Friends,—I am anxious to tell you with my own hand the decision which, after much careful thought and prayer, has been almost forced upon me. I dread to tell you what it is, because I know you well enough to be assured that it will cost you pain, and it is very painful to me to give pain to those who have been so true and kind to me as you have.

And yet there is no alternative than that I should inform you of my resolution to accept the pastorate of Christ Church, recently vacated by Rev. Newman Hall, D.D.; and which, in consequence of the promise of the trustees and elders to provide a baptistery, I am able to accept without violation of principle; whilst the difficulties of the situation, the meagre congregation, the lessened stipend, indicate that I am not animated by mercenary motives in contemplating the exchange.

There are various reasons which have led me to this decision, first of which is a conviction which has been very strongly borne in on me that our Lord and Master, the chief Shepherd of the flock, is calling me thither. I cannot get away from this. I can get no other response to my many cries for direction.

Then I was never an ardent denominationalist. Loyalty to your traditions as a Church has led me to throw myself into the affairs of the Baptist Union and of the London Baptist Association, but I have often felt that these were not the element in which I could do my best work, and recent events have more than ever tended to make me feel that I could not conscientiously remain in the position into which I had drifted, without taking an active part in a controversy for which I have neither inclination nor adaptation.

The question has presented itself to me thus: Shall I devote the remaining years of my manhood to the service of a section of the Church of Christ, or accept a position which is equally in touch with all sections of Evangelical Christians? And the whole drift of my past life and work has pointed to the inevitable conclusion, that I can only give one answer to that question, and accept the latter alternative.

There is one other thing to which I will make allusion. I have often questioned whether I was acting consistently with my deepest principles, to be officiating as the minister of an influential and successful church, drawing a large salary, and surrounded by every sign of success, and welcomed in all parts of the country as a popular preacher, whilst the great masses of the people were living in sin and need in the more densely-populated districts of London. An opportunity is now presented me of fulfilling a long-cherished purpose, and I want to engage in it with the feeling that you freely give me up to it, and yield me your sympathy and your prayers.

Many have said that my leaving Regent's-park Chapel would involve the dissolution of the work that I have been building up for these four-and-a-half years amongst you. But surely this need not be the case. It is my earnest wish that all who have benefited by my teaching should remain still at the chapel to carry forward the various enterprises in which we have been engaged together, so that I may have the pleasure and satisfaction of feeling that I have left a solid piece of masonry behind me. I see no reason why you should not soon secure a minister who shall be able to lead you into yet deeper knowledge of the things of God, and maintain the great traditions of the past. This will be the great test of the worth of my teaching and influence, and I earnestly appeal to you to put the Lord Jesus and his work before any disappointment of your own at my inability to continue the pastorate. Surely the demand of the moment is for noble and unselfish devotion on the behalf of a work which is dear to us all. If the captain is removed it becomes each of the crew to stand the more manfully to his post.

I want to thank you all for your loving co-operation, and to commend to your prayerful sympathy the Elders, with whom I have always had cordial relations, and on whom will now be thrown great responsibilities. For all the money you have contributed, the activities you have sustained, the self-sacrifice you have practised, I heartily thank you. Believe me, that it is with a very sad heart, and with great reluctance, that I am obliged to tear myself away from you, but I shall always remain, in the truest, sincerest affection, your faithful friend, F. B. Meyer.

Regent's-park Chapel, Park-square East, N.W.

For the Young.

"AFTER MANY DAYS."*

THE STORY OF AN ORPHAN BOY.

BY REV V. J. CHARLESWORTH..

(Abridged.)

In the year 1873 an aged widow residing in Walworth applied to Mr. Spurgeon for the admission of the younger boy into the Orphanage, the three elder children having been provided for, and as he himself told the story, we give it in his own words, and very earnestly commend the lessons he therein sought to enforce:—

"In connection with the cases of distress which appeal to us for admission to the Orphanage we sometimes meet with very beautiful incidents, in which the existence of the purest benevolence among poor and humble Christians is brought unexpectedly to light. Thirty-seven years ago a poor foundling was discovered in the most pitiable condition, as one ready to perish. Making no noise about it, and expecting no reward, a poor Christian woman, aged forty-four, took the infant under her care, and brought it up as her own. This was true charity; very few are there among the rich and respectable who could have done anything of the kind.

"The little girl grew to be a woman, and became a member of the Tabernacle Church, where also J. S., her foster parent, is in membership. The young woman in course of time married, and died, leaving five children; the father died also; and when we first took a deep interest in the story we found J. S., at the age of eighty-two, caring for these children as their grandmother, just as she had done for their mother before them.

"At her age she can earn very little, and therefore she has an allowance of three shillings and sixpence from the parish, with a few pence and two loaves for the two younger children; but though food has been scant, and the struggle severe, the old lady has stuck to her little charge as faithfully as if they were her own family. The elder ones are now earning a little, but the youngest were quite dependent upon her till she applied to the Orphanage. It did our eyes and heart good to see how clean the children were, and how diligently our aged sister had brought up the family in the fear of the Lord. The youngest, a boy aged seven, was afflicted with stammering, and was a poor feeble little creature, but since we have taken him into the Orphanage he has so greatly improved that we believe he will grow up without any imperfection in his faculties, and will become a healthy and intelligent lad, fitted to take his place in society.

"What a lesson our aged friend sets before us of that love, which is not in word only, but in deed and truth! We asked her to sit for her photograph, with Louisa and Samuel, for we feel the greatest respect for such a hard-working and generous old lady. She has done the right thing, and with all her troubles she has been the happier for doing it. If orphan children could be adopted into families it would be even better than orphanages. If poor people can do it, and have done it, richer persons should not disdain to try the same. Scarcely able to find bread for herself, this godly widow battled with the ills of life for helpless little ones as well as herself; she taught them cleanliness, industry, and a regard for true religion. She took them with her to the house of God, and above all things sought their salvation. High are rewards of self-denying love; many of the great ones of the earth will never attain them, for they have not sought after them; but they are within the reach of all Christians, and be it ours, dear reader, to labour after them. Let us do good unto all men, especially to them that are of the household of faith."

Sam was not only a confirmed stammerer but the sight of one eye was entirely gone! The Orphanage was a new world to him, and, having been dressed in a long pinafore, his adoption of a suit of boy's clothes seemed to him to involve a change of sex, for he said to his matron, Won't I a girl, Mrs. V., when I came to the Orphanage?"

Considering his disadvantages, the teachers had no easy task in imparting the rudiments of simple education, but his perseverance was commendable. He could manage to see what to read, but, alas! his powers of speech failed him, and the next boy in the class had to follow on because Sam was not able to complete the sentence with which he vainly struggled. Expedients failed to make him a talker, and, despite our hopes, his infirmity remains.

Having completed his term at school, we found him employment in the painter's shop, and he became a very useful servant. He took a pride in his personal appearance and made the best of himself and of his opportunities. With a very fair knowledge of his trade, it became an easy matter to procure him a situation, and he supported himself in comfort from the time he left the Orphanage. With the earnest purpose of succeeding in life he went to America, where he is doing well, and, what is more in our judgment, he has become an earnest Christian and seeks to win others to the Saviour. In the memorial number of The Sword and the Trowel, March, 1892, the following letter from Sam appeared:—

A NOTE FROM GEORGIA, U.S.A.

"As one of the Orphanage Old Boys, I cannot help expressing my great sorrow on hearing of the death of Mr. Spurgeon. Lord, help me to follow in his footsteps! I am glad to say the seed which I obtained in the Orphanage is springing up within me; and I am fully trusting in Jesus."

This was followed by another in answer to one I wrote to him, and I insert it with grateful feelings for the goodness and grace of God which are so abundantly illustrated by his life story:—

"March 7, 1892.

"DEAR MR. CHARLESWORTH,

"I cannot thank you too much for those cheering words you have sent me. I do not know how to love my dear Saviour enough. As to serving Him, my prayer is that of St. Paul, 'Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?' Oh! if I had a tongue to speak, it would never tire of telling of my Redeemer's love! Mr. Charlesworth, I could write volumes, and I guess tire you out, and yet not be able to tell what joy I have found at the Cross. I am pleased to tell you I joined the Second Baptist Church of —— on February 28, and was baptized before about two hundred persons. Thank God I was the means of bringing my landlady to the feet of Jesus! You cannot think how grateful I am for that; and that is not all. My employer, who was a backslider, has joined the Methodist Church again. Thank God for that!

"I think it a good thing by way of serving God to distribute tracts at the gaol and the saloon. I think that is my chief talent, and I must use it. Pray to God to help me! I will send you five dollars on the 19th of this month for tracts if you will be kind enough to send them to me.

. . . . . .

"I have found it hard to get along through my speech till now, but it is God's will. Do pray for me! My motto to the Orphanage boys is, 'Love Jesus and live for heaven! Christ for all!'"

That the early seed-sowing yielded a late harvest is one of the mysteries of the kingdom—that the harvest has certainly come is according to promise. God has sent his Word for the salvation and sanctification of the soul, and it cannot fail. "The thing whereto Thou hast sent it" may seem to us slow of realisation, but the assurance is amply verified, "It shall not return unto Me void."

The case of Sam is typical of many we could mention, where the "bread cast upon the waters" has been "found after many days." Whether conversion comes soon or late, our joy is that it comes and that "our labour is not in vain in the Lord."

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. Josiah Spiers, Shod Friars' Hall, Boston, Lincolnshire, July 8 to 22; Mr. Jas. S. Tyler, Southend-on-Sea, July 13 to 27; Mr. H. Hutchinson, Upton-on-Severn, July 10 to 13; Hereford, July 14.

SEASIDE SERVICES, 1892.

The following are the arrangements for the Children's Services on the seashore during the month of August, so far as made:—Mr. E. Arrowsmith at Eastbourne (and part of September); Mr. J. R. Naylor at Llandudno; Messrs. H. Hutchinson and W. H. Wilson at Bridlington; Mr. R. Callender, B.A., at Whitby; Mr. W. H. Roberts, B.A., at Scarborough and Filey; Messrs. Josiah Spiers and R. Westall at Blackpool; Mr. H. C. Lees at Colwyn Bay; Mr. H. Staines, B.A., at Llanfairfechan, and Mr. S. R. Webb, M.D., at Penmaenmawr; Mr. T. Lewes Sayer at Rhyl; Mr. W. R. Moore, B.A., at Ilfracombe; Rev. Martin J. Hall, B.A., at Tournemouth; Rev. W. T. Storrs, M.A., at Sandown; Mr. L. Carrott at Felixstowe; Mr. L. Parkinson, B.A., at Deal; Mr. A. G. Dodderidge at St. Leonards; Messrs. J. S. Tyler and E. Hughes at Worthing; Messrs. S. J. Hewlett and G. Goodman at Herne Bay; Dr. F. Churchill at Southwold; Mr. H. Steward at Port Erin, I.M.; Messrs. E. and C. H. Collier at Littlehampton; Mr. Gilbert B. Kirlew at Lytham.

* Paternoster and Alabaster, Paternoster-buildings. One penny, or 8s. per 100.

LITTLE THINGS.

TENDER words in sorrow's hour
Whispered low;
Just a single bud or flower
As you go;
Hands whose pressure as you part
Warms and clings
To the pulses of the heart—
Little things.

Just a smile that means a sneer
At some name;
Have the angels not a tear
For such shame?
Yet you say no blame you speak!
Sneers have stings!
Strong to goad, to wrong the weak—
Little things?

Ah, the little acts that make
Up each day—
Do they bless or will they wreck
Any? Say!
Will the record we shall view
Up above,
Be of blighting frost or dew,
Joy or love?

—All the World.

THE WAYSIDE MISSION.

MR. JOHN M. MCAULIFFE, with his young men, is at work in the villages of Warwickshire in connection with his Wayside Bible Carriage. The vehicle attracted considerable attention at the recent Royal Agricultural Show, Warwick, permission to stand in the grounds being given by the Mayor and Town Council. Much Gospel literature was circulated. The work in the villages is being remarkably owned of God; Mr. McAuliffe night after night being engaged in meeting inquirers after the open-air meetings. It has been as late as midnight before the days' work has ceased.

The village people have stopped the car on its way, and have asked for the preaching of the Gospel; and the cottage in the central village wherein the workers have been lodging at night, has been filled twice daily with people eager to hear the Word of Life. Some have been not only converted to Christ, but from Romanism, and so grateful have the people been and so genuine their thanks, that payment for lodgings and other matters has been declined by them. "We cannot express our thanks," said one group. At an open-air meeting on Sunday, July 3, conducted by Rev. F. M. Brodie, Rector of Hornby, at a place where five roads meet, at Pineley-green, a great company of people came together. Mr. McAuliffe gave an address on, "Where art thou?" One young man professed to accept Christ, several sought prayer, and others confessed the Saviour. One evening last week eighteen persons came forward to be shown the way to peace, and other such tokens of God's presence and blessing have of late been manifested upon the work and progress of this Wayside Bible Carriage.

Mr. McAuliffe's hall at Tunbridge Wells is now enlarged to hold five hundred people.

Y.M.C.A. Cruise to Norway.

THE date of sailing of the steamship Warrimoo to the Norwegian Fiords, with the members and friends of the Y.M.C.A., is drawing very near. While upwards of one hundred passengers are already booked, we understand there is comfortable accommodation still available. The company of Christian friends is earnestly desired by those who are promoting the cruise. The Warrimoo is the finest steamer sailing to the Fiords this season. She is to visit the choicest scenery in the beautiful district of Western Norway, going as far North as the thriving town of Trondheim, with its renowned cathedral. A quiet Sunday is to be spent in that city. The steamer sails on August 13th. The rate (including all meals, &c.) is thirteen guineas. Passage can be secured on application to the Secretary, 186, Aldersgate-street, E.C.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sun., July 17, Luke xi. 1-13; Mon., July 18, xi. 14-28; Tues., July 19, xi. 29-44; Wed., July 20, xi. 45-54; Thurs., July 21, xii. 1-15; Fri., July 22, xii. 16-34; Sat., July 23, xii. 35-48.

The Grindelwald Conference.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

We arrived here on Tuesday, July 5, and though considerably wearied with the long journey were able to be present at the evening meeting in connection with the Reunion Conference. The first address we were permitted to hear was the very opposite of encouraging. It was given by Rev. Lewis Hughes, M.A., Camberwell, who had not spoken long before he announced himself as a priest of the Church of England. His picture of union was one in which Dr. Lunn, Dr. Mackennal, and General Booth were all in the same fold with the present Bishop of Lincoln; and in which the priest and the minister, the Episcopalian and the Nonconformist, the Sister of Mercy and the Salvation Lass, should all be included.

The speaker referred to the liberal spirit manifested in the proposals made by the Lambeth Conference, which, he affirmed, reduced to a minimum the questions of doctrine and church government, with a view to inducing all Nonconformists to join the Church of England community. He would overcome the difficulty of the Historic Episcopate by the recognition of all present Nonconformist ministers as priests, but all future ministers should be required to receive Episcopal ordination. This he called giving and taking, agreeably to the spirit of this age, which is the age of compromise. When he announced that attempts at reunion were vain unless we were agreed as to the foundation we expected to hear something which would commend itself to our judgment. But imagine our surprise when he declared that the foundation must be the Church of England, and that by this means Disestablishment would be avoided.

We were at one with him in his opposition to sectarian terms, and would readily agree to see them all abolished, and the substitution of the term, "Christian Church," which he suggested as applicable to all. But he was again upon very debatable ground when he proposed to discourage dogmatic teaching and to encourage only that which is ethical. He would have us teach works rather than faith. Men wanted to know how to live, not how to die. We confess to a feeling of humiliation that a professed minister of the Gospel should so far misunderstand his mission as to divorce works from faith.

Upon the sacraments his teaching was very unsatisfactory. He recalled the institution of the Supper, and affirmed that the emblems—bread broken and wine outpoured—reminded us of our Lord's manner of life, and therefore of the life of self-sacrifice which every participant must pledge himself to live. This, he thought, was a view which would commend itself to all. Could ingenuity devise a better method of getting rid of the deep, full, true, devotional significance of the ordinance?

The speech was disappointing in the last degree, and served to show how impossible re-union is upon the lines suggested.

Dr. Lunn evidently felt this, and in a few words deprecated the introduction of any cut-and-dried scheme for securing organic reunion. Dr. Mackennal followed in the same strain. A few of his sentences will show how the subject is received by him:—"I don't like compromise." To those who differed from him he would say: "I don't want you to abandon anything that you value." "I look for reunion, not by giving up on either side of what we hold dear, but by an enlargement of our power to recognise and learn one from another." This is the true line, and, indeed, the only line upon which the present divisions are likely to be healed.

On the following evening Rev. W. Hay M. H. Aitken read his paper on "Points of Contact in Opposing Views on Eschatological Subjects." As might be expected, the paper was thoughtful and clever, and was in part, at least, a defence of the doctrine of "Life in Christ only," which he has accepted for many years. The three views of future punishment to which he referred were—(1) Eternal punishment in the orthodox sense; (2) that the punishment was one element in the process of final extinction; and (3) that penal sufferings will prove remedial. In these three views he thought he saw several points of contact. (1) All recognised that there will be righteous and adequate punishment for sin; (2) all express belief in the necessity of moral government; (3) all agree that punishment will be self-caused; (4) all agree in interpreting Scripture upon this subject by an appeal to our moral sense. Whether or not these four points of agreement could be fully proved is open to question; but there can be no doubt that Mr. Aitken holds to his own view with a full recognition of the authority of Scripture, and without in any degree diminishing from his earnestness and tenderness in preaching the warnings as well as the promises of the Gospel.

The discussion that followed was by no means so valuable as the paper. Rev. J. B. Heard, author of "The Tripartite Nature of Man," emphasized the modern, but we still believe, the unscriptural doctrine of the essential Fatherhood of God; and gave the impression, whether he intended it or not, that in this doctrine lay the hope of the salvation of all.

A warning word was spoken by Mr. Radleigh, of the Society of Friends, who repeated the result of a conversation on this subject which he had recently had with Rev. J. Gelson Gregson. Mr. Gregson affirmed that as the old orthodox view of this doctrine was abandoned men became more shallow and less earnest and useful.

Dr. Mackennal, after giving the views of Dr. Dale, and the late Rev. J. Baldwin Brown, made the somewhat startling, and certainly unwise statement, that upon this subject the teaching of the New Testament was not uniform and consistent. John certainly was not a Restitutionist; Jesus gave us no clear doctrine concerning it; but Paul, though he never taught restitution in so many words, yet in his highest and noblest utterances, seemed to believe it. "He does not say it," said Dr. Mackennal, "but he makes me think it." So the doctor seemed willing to accept a doctrine which was not taught by Jesus, which was opposed to the teaching of John, which was only an inference from the words of Paul, and which involved the theory that the New Testament was contradictory in its teaching. We think Dr. Mackennal is accepting a mere theory upon a very slender foundation, and that his statements were calculated to do serious injury to many young Christians present at that Conference.

It will be seen by this account that our first impressions of the Grindelwald Reunion Conference are not of a very favourable nature. Reunion we desire and would labour to secure, but it may be too dearly purchased.

On Thursday a paper was read by Rev. W. Spiers (in place of one by Rev. Dr. Dallinger, who was unable to attend) on "The Duty of the Church to Science, and the Influence of Science on the Church."

In a very able manner he showed first of all the necessity, for the welfare of mankind, of an elementary knowledge of science, pointing out that through the lack of it as in the laws of sanitation most misery was caused. Then he spoke of the study of Nature as having a moral and religious effect, and said that outside the Gospel there was nothing more helpful than the beautiful science of God. In these days of criticism, when science so-called is used to attack the truth, it is necessary that we should be able to combat errors by a knowledge of science.

He is the true student of Nature who can say as Kepler did, when studying the stars, "I have been thinking the thoughts of God." The proper aim of science is to establish truth on a proper basis. Theology aims at expounding the written word which Christ authorised or disclosed, while science aspires to interpret the divine laws and energies of which the great unwritten volume of Nature so sublimely testifies. Frigid and unspiritual men might view every wonder of Nature in a beam of dry intellectual light, and find nothing but inexorable law; but the best and wisest scholars in Nature's school were those who discerned in creation the vestiges of a Creator, and the irradiation of his wisdom and love. Only the most superficial minds supposed they had discovered antagonism between the facts of Nature and the principles of the Gospel. The religious man would feel it his duty to study God's works; and he who nobly studied Nature would be led to think more nobly of God.

The aim of science is to raise man by teaching him how to make most of the life God has given him; and this is also what religion does. The study of science cultivates humanity and aids man in the contemplation of God. Science also assists us in reading the Scriptures. The Bible is inspired, but not so all its readers. In many instances we have truer ideas of the Bible through a knowledge of science.

Mr. Spiers urged that in the present day some sort of instruction in scientific researches should be given to students preparing for the ministry to enable them to combat the prevailing errors.

After the paper a young minister ventured a note of warning, to young men in particular, to be careful lest some teachers of science should lead them astray. He said there are some who put the laws of God in place of God, and others the authority of the Church in place of the Christ of the Church.

Rev. Lewis Hughes, on the other hand, criticised the paper as too narrow, and thought that God would regard as good men Darwin, Huxley, and others, who had conferred a benefit on mankind.

In reply, Mr. Spiers said that he had taken special care that in his paper nothing should be said to cause alarm. No doubt in the teaching of many German professors of science there was much that was erroneous; but he believed that this was less the case with English professors.

As to the theory of evolution, he replied that the discussion of such a topic would be too long for the evening, but he would say that at present it was merely a theory which was being carefully stated by the scientists. If it were proved true, then we must accept it; if not, then the scientists themselves should be the first to throw it over.

REV. G. C. GRUBB IN NEW ZEALAND.

Mr. Grubb, who sailed for home on May 26, is expected in time for Keswick. A correspondent, writing from Wellington, sums up the whole of the missions in New Zealand in the words, "There has been a great blessing, and much fruit is appearing." As to the work in his own town, Mr. C. A. Baker says: "Never before in Wellington has there been such a heart-searching mission; God's hatred of sin was vividly brought before his people. Many have long yearned for deliverance from the power of sin, and many were enabled during the Mission to enter into the possession they had longed for. A very large number have had their faith quickened, while some have received the baptism of power for service. The children's services were largely attended, and many of the little ones have been brought to Jesus. At the missionary meeting a large number offered themselves for mission work. Since the mission Sunday services have been continued in the Opera House, and a united weekly prayer-meeting is held. Writing of the first gathering a friend says, 'I was much struck with the first meeting held to arrange for a continuance of the mission—clergy and laity, Brethren, Presbyterian, Methodist, &c.—a more mixed and non-homogeneous class of Christians never met together for prayer and praise in Wellington, and not a jarring note.'"

A Church missionary at Wanganui closes an account of a remarkable series of meetings held in one day by saying: "Numbers of men and women, young and old, stood up for prayer, and many remained behind to speak with the missioners. It has been a wonderful time. There has scarcely ever been so much blessing before in such a short mission." Mr. Grubb said afterwards, "I am perfectly sure the Lord has given a week's blessing in the one day." I think that one blessing has been the drawing together of the various denominations.

Blackdown Hills Mission.

In a letter from Mr. W. H. Brealey, of Clayhidon, Wellington, Somerset, he records an unfortunate accident. His father-in-law and two eldest daughters were driving to Wellington last week, when the horse stumbled and fell, throwing all the occupants with great force to the ground. Happily the girls were not injured beyond a severe shaking. Mr. Showell got a bad blow on the shoulder, but no bones were broken, and for these marvellous escapes all are heartily thankful to God.

The horse, a faithful old servant, has been so injured by the fall that he will be useless for further work. As the Mission centres are so far apart, the aid of a horse for conveyance is absolutely essential, and Mr. Brealey asks for the practical fellowship of our readers in supplying this lack. He reports steady progress in the work of the Mission.

"IN HIS NAME" is the official record of the work of the Ragged School Union (37, Norfolk-street, Strand). The volume for the past two years shows how quietly, but persistently, the teachers of our Ragged Schools pled on their way from week to week. Their task is difficult, their discouragements are numberless; still, in dependence upon God, they enter heartily into the work of rescuing the poor and neglected slum children of the metropolis. The accounts of service rendered for Christ should be speak for the indefatigable labourers our earnest prayers, and for the effort itself our heartiest support. We hope many sympathisers will be raised to fill the places of those who have "fallen asleep."

REV. ARTHUR WILKINSON POTTS,

PIONEER OF THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOUR MOVEMENT.

THE Christian Endeavour Society hails from the other side of the water. To Dr. F. E. Clark, of Boston, is due (under God) the honour of initiating this, one of the most remarkable movements of modern religious history. For its introduction into the Old Country, the subject of the present sketch is to be thanked. No one has done more to advance the interests of the organization in Britain than the late Rev. A. W. Potts, of Crewe. He was the first to give it welcome to these shores, and gallantly stood as its advocate and supporter when it was regarded with something of prejudice and suspicion. He gave it an important place in his own church enterprises, and succeeded in establishing branches in many parts of the land. He believed it to contain the seeds of a blessed revolution for our English church life; and literally, almost to his latest moments, it was a main outlet for his intense enthusiasm, and the field in which he largely exercised his devoted energies.

ARTHUR WILKINSON POTTS was born at Sunderland in 1848. At an early age he gave his heart to the Saviour and joined the Congregational Church in that town. Ere long he offered himself as a candidate for the Christian ministry; and, entering Spring Hill College, passed through a creditable course of more than five years. At the urgent call of the church at Hightown, Crewe, he was released shortly before the natural expiration of his College term, and settled in that hive of engineering industry in 1873. It was his first and only pastorate—"His sword clave unto his hand"—and only death released the tenacious grip. For nineteen years he laboured there, assiduously and successfully, in the service of his Lord and Master, and the church was, probably, never stronger or more prosperous than during the last year of his ministry. Many difficulties were encountered, incidental to the exercise of a strong and resolute will, only to be conquered by sheer force of character and sterling worth. His name is to-day fragrant to the whole community.

During the period 1885-1889 considerable depression was experienced in the town of Crewe. For long periods the men in the great works of the London and North-Western Railway were on what is known as "short time," and probably £1000 a-week less was paid in wages than under normal conditions. This induced much of the young life of the community to seek employment elsewhere, and many emigrated to distant parts of the world. The churches lost some of their most active supporters; but, in one respect at least, this "turned out for the furtherance of the Gospel." A young man, who had settled in the United States, wrote to his former pastor of the work being done by the "Young People's Society of Christian Endeavour." With quick insight, Mr. Potts (for he was the pastor referred to) recognised the adaptability of the movement to English life and customs. Correspondence resulted in a visit of Dr. Clark to England, and in the Jubilee year what we may hope will be a new jubilee in its blessings was proclaimed: the first English Christian Endeavour Society was planted in Mr. Potts' church.

In manner and cast of mind, Mr. Potts was a typical North-countryman. To some he would have appeared hardly the man to win the affections of young people and introduce such an enterprise as the "Christian Endeavour." A stranger might have felt inclined to say of him, "Thou art an austere man." Away from home he was seldom seen to best advantage; his real qualities came out when he "dwelt among his own people." Painstaking, conscientious to the core, of virile intellect, strong in purpose, he wore well, and one soon ceased to wonder at his power. For the pulpit he studied most laboriously. His powers of analysis were keen and subtle, and, without eloquence of the very highest order, one was sure to hear sober truth tellingly advanced. When he had taken up a position he maintained it with dogged pertinacity. Those who knew him best loved him most. Behind a reserved manner beat a warm and sympathetic heart, and dwelt a tender and sensitive soul. The hard head and the soft heart combined to make him a great power among those with whom he was intimately associated.

During the last two or three years Mr. Potts has been an apostle of Christian Endeavour work in England. In addition to his pastoral work he has "visited the churches," founding societies here and there, and strengthening those already in existence. It was appropriate that the first British Convention should be held at Crewe and in the Hightown Church, and the evident pride and joy of the Pastor will be long remembered by those present. That took place in May, 1891, and it gave an impetus to the movement that largely increased the demand on Mr. Potts' time. These "labours more abundant" were a heavy tax on a constitution never very robust, and it was no surprise to his friends to hear, in the spring of the present year, that he was hors de combat; but it was a painful shock to learn that the ailment was of such a nature that, humanly speaking, it could have but one termination. At the time he was smitten he was looking forward with intense interest to the second British Convention, to be held in Chester in May, 1892, and he had promised to take an important part in the proceedings. This and all other engagements had to be cancelled in submission to the inevitable. The strong yet chastened spirit was equal to even that strain, and with a resignation beautiful—it might be said heroic—he awaited the swiftly-approaching end. To those who watched him it almost seemed as if he could not go until the Chester Convention had taken place. He lived just long enough to hear of its striking success. The day before it commenced, and only four days before his death, he wrote the following letter to Rev. J. B. Morgan, of Grosvenor Park Baptist Church, Chester:—

(From a Photograph by Mr. J. R. Jones, High-street, Crewe.)

Crewe, May 23, 1892.

DEAR MR. MORGAN,—I write to you, as Chairman of Committee, to express my deep regret in not being able to be present at the Second Annual Convention of the Y.P.S.C.E. The coincidence that the poet Longfellow—the poet of the people—was born at Portland, Maine, led me to read some of his poems over again, and I could not help applying a line here and there to the whole Endeavour Movement. We are reminded of what activities can be set in motion by a single good thought, or a single workable idea:

"Ah! what a wondrous thing it is
To note how many wheels of toil
One thought, one word, can set in motion."

And what has the Christian Endeavour thought set in motion? And how our churches are being changed from a state of indifference into cheerful hives of Christian industry!

We hope great things from these societies because they speak to us of Loyalty! Service! Love! And in speaking of these three sterling qualities let me quote briefly once again:—

"Ah! how skilful grows the hand
That obeyeth Love's command!
It is the heart, and not the brain,
That to the highest doth attain;
And he who followeth Love's behest
Far exceedeth all the rest."

Give that its deepest meaning and put it on the highest plane, and no Endeavour will want inspiration or incentive to life's noblest work. With kindly greetings and with prayer for the success of the Convention and the whole of the far-reaching movement everywhere.—Yours very sincerely,

A. W. POTTS.

These were the last words he ever wrote.

That letter was his last public act. On the evening of May 27, 1892, he passed away. Of his medical attendant, who had been summoned just in time to see the end, he asked: "Doctor, Is it the last great call?" And when the reply was "Yes!" he quietly lifted his hand, whispered "All is peace," and was shortly asleep, to awake in the glory.

Unskilful he to fawn, or seek for power
By doctrine fashioned to the varying hour.
Far other aims his heart had learned to prize,
More bent to raise the wretched than to rise.

The Gospel Evidenced.

THE EVANGELISTIC MISSION ANNIVERSARY.

What God can do by one man devoted to his service, loyal to the truth, fired with intense zeal, yearning over lost men, willing to do and dare in his name, has in recent years found many illustrations; and not least so in the history of the Evangelistic Mission, which led the way in many fresh ventures for reaching the people with the Gospel, and which has undeniably been marvellously owned of God in winning sinners to Himself. Unhappily, through the death of many noble supporters who understood how truly God was blessing the work, the funds have latterly fallen off somewhat. Yet at this moment a very real, vigorous, and fruitful work is being done in the various halls, and God is still proving in the eyes of men what his Gospel has power to do when fully and fervently preached in the power of the Holy Spirit.

The twenty-seventh anniversary of this Mission was held on Friday evening in the Conference Hall, Eccleston-street, many sympathetic friends and representative workers assembling to mark their interest in the work and esteem for its honoured director.

Sir S. A. Blackwood, who presided, read Neh. iv. 19, and showed how fellow-labourers in this great city are often, while one in heart and spirit, far from one another by reason of the work. For example, he (the chairman) had for nearly thirty years known, loved, and valued Mr. Hurditch's work, yet this was the first occasion on which he had been able to attend one of its meetings. He rejoiced to find himself amongst those who were united in earnestly labouring for the glory of God and the salvation of men.

Mr. C. Russell Hurditch held in his hand a detailed report, shortly to be published, but instead of reading this or any part of it he made an interesting and fervid statement. He premised that in view of the fierceness with which the Gospel is now attacked by many, it is hopeful to see not a few of the Lord's servants relying simply on the Gospel of grace preached in dependence on the Holy Spirit.

As to the work of the Evangelistic Mission, we learned that God is blessing, amongst young and old, the branch at Kilburn Hall, where hundreds have been born again; that at Malden Hall, Kentish-town, a is carried on by some hundreds of voluntary helpers; that at Bignold Hall, Forest-gate, similar agencies are successfully carried on; and that the work at Swindon is being largely blessed amongst railway men and others. So both in Cambridgeshire and other counties a deeply interesting work is being witnessed. Tent services and special missions have been, and are being, much used of God; while open-air preaching, colportage, and Bible-carriage work have been greatly blessed. A new Bible-carriage has, however, now become necessary. As to Gospel literature, it was interesting to learn that twenty-three millions of Gospel booklets, tracts, and papers have been circulated by means of the Evangelistic Mission, and many telling incidents of how these have been blessed will be found in the report when issued.

LIVE, AGGRESSIVE, FRUITFUL WORK

After a passing reference to Wilton House of Rest at St. Leonards, Mr. Hurditch went on to deal with the question of means. Noble helpers, such as Mr. Samuel Morley, have been called home, and the funds have fallen in arrear. Is the work to cease? Surely not; surely the standard must not fall back, but the Lord's people must come up to the standard. Further advances must be made, especially in North-West London, if the growing needs of the population are to be met; but funds are essential. At the present moment there is need for £8,000 if the debt is to be cleared off, a new hall built on a site secured in a needy district, and the whole work go forward as it ought to do. The question had sometimes been raised as to his own support, hence Mr. Hurditch wished to say emphatically that not a penny had ever been taken from the Mission funds for his personal needs; these had always been met by those whose hearts the Lord had touched in this matter.

CHRIST THE CENTRE—NOT THE CHURCH.

Mr. Henry Varley described what he had seen of the work at Banbury and in the villages. We need, in these days, definite agencies to meet the practical heathenism of the upper classes. The work of this Mission is very definite in its antagonism to sin and unbelief, and its witness to the Gospel of the grace of God. Here we have the aggressive power of the Gospel. United with the risen Christ we have power; elsewhere we have weakness. The great error of these days is the making of the Church the centre instead of Christ. Virtue still comes out of Him, and no church or union of churches can take his place. "Apart from Him we can do nothing," and the whole history of Christendom, as well as the present aspect of affairs around, prove and emphasize that simple statement. He rejoiced in the work of this Mission because it set forth Christ and Him crucified as "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth."

A FORGOTTEN OFFICE.

Rev. G. F. Pentecost, D.D., said: With all my heart I am in deep, profound, and enthusiastic sympathy with Mr. Hurditch in his work for the Master. I have long felt it is one of the apostacies of the present day that the Church has forgotten a large part of the truth revealed in Ephesians iv. 11, how that the Lord gave gifts to his Church: "some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers." We have exalted men into priests; we have in some form apostles and prophets, pastors and teachers, but we have to a very large extent left out evangelists. Seven-tenths of the deadness in the Church may be owing to this ignoring of God's order. Suppose there are five thousand churches in London, I venture to say there are in them all not a hundred ministers who are evangelists: who say to the people, If you believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, confess Him here and now. That is evangelistic work. The Church is suffering sorely for her neglect of this great means for breaking down the walls of unbelief and worldliness. Nowadays the evangelist is largely dissociated from the Church, and that is because the Church has become jealous of the evangelist—that is, of one of her most necessary ministers. God will have his Gospel preached, and if not in the Church, then it will be outside the Church.

It may easily be asked, where are the hundreds and thousands of new converts brought to the Saviour through means of evangelists? If they are not in the Church it is because very often the clergymen and ministers stand aloof; they are not on the spot to gather them in. If these young converts do not see the regular ministry on the ground ready to help and lead them they naturally think they will not receive a warm welcome in the ordinary churches. While saying this I know, and we all know, there are bright exceptions; but they are exceptions rather than the rule.

I believe the Church is suffering from this overlooking of the office of evangelist in more directions than one. I recognise the presence in the Church of very able and consecrated teachers, devout and God-sent men, but not evangelists; these are necessary to the edification of the Church, but we cannot afford to dispense with the evangelist. In proportion as you neglect the work of the evangelist you see death and dry rot coming into the ministry which is yet out of touch with the Word of God and with the Spirit of God. Consequently we see

TWO GREAT SIMULTANEOUS MOVEMENTS.

In the Established Church we see men getting very high, but not very heavenly; and in the Dissenting Churches we see men getting very broad, but very badly backsliding. Thus half are at the top of the steeple above everybody, while the other half are getting so far out they also are out of touch with everybody. I verily believe no man can be a winner of souls who is not sound in head and heart on the great verities of the Christian faith. You may go into the churches and hear God's Word impeached and called in question by the haughty pride of intellect, or you may see these churches thronged with images, altars, and candles as substitutes for Christ; but you will not find one soul under conviction of sin or being converted to God.

What is the cure for this? One cure is the recognition of the work of the evangelist, quickened in the power of the Holy Ghost and of the truth; and the evangelist, not as a substitute for the ministry, but as a helper and co-worker therewith. The outside evangelists are God's protest against the rationalistic creed, the backslidden theology and the ritualistic practice that are in the professing church to-day. For God will have his Gospel preached, and if the Church won't do it, others will be raised to do it. The evangelist, I maintain, is fundamentally necessary to life, spirituality, and growth of the Church. Where there is no evangelisation corruption creeps in. The Holy Ghost is not bound but free; and if not permitted to work in the Church, He will work freely outside by means of men who have personal union with and loyalty to the great Head of the Church.

Mr. James E. Mathieson recalled his early association with Mr. Hurditch, at Stafford-rooms, and went on to remark that there is often much post mortem sympathy manifested, when God calls one of his servants home, whereas it would be much more to the point and be of more real service if that sympathy were shown while the labourer is alive and probably overburdened with the cares of some large and important work. It is possible to kill such men with coldness and neglect, and then build white sepulchres over their graves; the moral of which is that such a work as the Evangelistic Mission ought to be supported now and its director encouraged and enabled to prosecute his service boldly and with vigour.

Mr. T. A. Denny, in the course of an interesting and telling speech, expressed his warm sympathy with the Mission, and insisted on the necessity for its liberal support.

Dr. H. Sinclair Paterson said he had come to express the greatest sympathy with Mr. Hurditch in the work he is carrying on. As a positive evidence of the value of evangelisation it must be noticed that we do not find many evangelists on the "Downgrade," trifling with the Word of Truth, minimising the value of Atonement, or the importance of the work of the Holy Ghost. The churches that let these things go lose their power.

Rev. F. B. Meyer referred to his probable removal to a wider field, untrammelled by denominational ties, and expressed his attachment to Mr. Hurditch and his work of evangelisation. He rejoiced also in the Wilton House of Rest, which, to his personal knowledge, had been of very real service to tired workers from many churches and many lands.

General Sir Robert Phayre said that having preached in most of the halls of the Evangelistic Mission, he knew that the facts given were not exaggerated, and that a most important work is going on.

Mr. R. C. Morgan spoke of his thirty years' friendship with Mr. Hurditch, and his acquaintance with the work of the Mission, which he highly commended.

Colonel Morton happily concluded the proceedings by reading and briefly applying Exod. xxix. 45, 46.

LADY RADSTOCK, we greatly regret to state, is in so dangerous a condition of health that Lord Radstock has been telegraphed for from India, and is expected home about this time. The prayers of fellow Christians are desired that this precious life may be spared; and we are assured that the sympathy of our readers will flow freely forth at this time of anxiety and sorrow.

The Fenaghy Meetings.

To some of your readers it may be necessary to plain the above heading. Fenaghy is the ntry residence of a well-known Christian ntleman—Mr. William Young—who takes a ep interest in the extension of the Messiah's ngdom, and who has opened his beautiful ounds for the preaching of the everlasting spel. Within the Fenaghy demesne is a large ld twelve or fourteen acres in extent, and of an traordinary shape. On one side of it is an mense natural amphitheatre, where the voice n be heard with clearness by about ten thou-nd people. This number, it is said, were pre-nt on both days of the meetings. The other rtions of the field are admirably fitted for tent tching, and so, dotted over the grounds, might seen these canvas shelters to the number of most a dozen. Five were specially for sectional retings, held during the interval between the en-air services; others formed a refreshment race, erected for supplying the physical wants the visitors, and one was for the sale of Bibles, mn-books, good literature, &c.

Fenaghy is situated near Ballymena, in the rth of Ireland, and a few miles from the morable spot where the '59 revival began. e memory of that hallowed time is one of the st cherished recollections of the northern pro-nce, and the very mention of the year, by Mr. owie, of Glasgow, in the opening address, filled ny an eye with grateful tears, and many a art with a holy longing for a similar visitation. The first meeting was for prayer, and began as rly as ten o'clock. It was convened in the rgest tent, and was led by Mr. Oatts, of Glas-w. Close on one thousand people had gathered, me by the earlier special trains and some from e surrounding country districts. All sorts of were brought into requisition to convey r people to the gatherings, and besides rs, roups of people might have been seen on ot, coming from all parts of the country to this ntre of religious interest.

Increased interest was taken in the meetings s year owing to the fact that Mr. Moody had nsented to be present. Both he and Mr. eNeill had agreed to take part early in the esent year. We regret to say that Mr. Moody s prevented from crossing to Ireland through e illness of his son Paul. When this fact was entioned to the vast assemblage the one feeling rvading the multitude was that of deep and ayerful sympathy with God's honoured servant his hour of trial. No doubt many were disap-inted at not hearing the familiar voice of one dearly loved, but the prevailing sentiment s that of heartfelt sympathy and earnest ayer that God would restore the son of his rvant.

The first address was delivered by Mr. Howie, Glasgow. After a prayer of much tenderness fered up by Mr. Jas. Burton, Dundalk, Mr. owie spoke from Jer. xvii. 5, and began by uding to '59, and an earnest, solemn message once heard from his text delivered by the ntly "Rabbi" Duncan to the students in the w College, Edinburgh. Mr. Howie's address s a dividing one; it asked the audience to take les. When one has got stolen goods he does t place them in his window, and when one s got a false peace or false hope he does not nt any one to find it out. Faith is not afraid take a side.

REV. JOHN M'NEILL

s the next speaker. His subject was "The n with the withered hand," and was full of rilling, telling passages, which fairly held to e sward the vast assemblage that reached ay up to the distant crown of the meeting-ce; even the fringes of the crowd that were metimes in motion, merely because they could t hear so distinctly as those nearer, became solutely motionless as God's servant delivered, th mingled humour and pathos, the message mercy to soul-withered humanity. His refer-ce to his father as an Antrim man was eagerly ught up. He wanted to see the country side t could produce such a man. He said his her had a magnificent contempt for the inion of others, if God spoke to him. He knew e Antrim people as if he lived in them, and some them were afraid to call their souls their own. ey were afraid of what people would say if they re converted. The man with the withered hand ed forth. The watchers might laugh or scoff, t if he got his blighted hand made whole he l not care. Doubtless the man looked not at hand, but at his Healer. When Jesus gave e command he set his blessed face on the face of the man; he looked back, and as he looked and listened the hand came of its own accord to be whole like the other. It could not help it. People look to themselves. They might as well look into their pocket to see the sun rise. His closing picture of the man's reception at home, and of his resuming his work as a mason (which tradition says he was), was very fine. After a solemn appeal several hundreds followed Mr. McNeill and the other workers to the inquirers' tent, where personal conversation and prayer were engaged in until almost the time for the sectional meetings to commence.

The sectional meetings, preceded by an hour's interval for luncheon, began at 2 o'clock, and continued until 3.30.

In the meetings for the deepening of spiritual life, Dr. Elder Cumming took a leading part on both days. Mr. Barton (Dundalk) and Provost Colville (Motherwell) delivered helpful and stimulating addresses, as did also Mr. W. R. Lane. Dr. Cumming spoke from Rev. iii. 20. The words were addressed to Christians, but Christians in such a state that the Lord sickened at the very thought of them. These Ephesian Christians were not in the condition in which Paul prayed they might be—viz., that Christ might dwell in their hearts (Eph. iii. 17). Christ is here represented as making a visit to their hearts—a temporary sojourn—but He did not live there. He was outside. Many came to meetings like that, and they thought they had received a blessing and had had communion with Jesus, but they are no sooner home than they become angry over some trifle, and lose their temper, and all the good of the Convention had vanished. What he would point out was that Christ did not propose to come as a lodger, but as a permanent resident. Suppose you agree to take him in, somebody may have to be turned out. If you take Jesus in, when night comes on He will say, "Are there family prayers in this house?" He will say, "What is the spiritual condition of your household?" Ah, some of you would be ashamed to let Christ see what is going on in your homes. Christ will enter, but He must have the choosing of your friends and the control over your purse.

Much interest centred in the Foreign Mission Tent. Rev. Principal Mackichan (Bombay) and Rev. W. Park (Belfast) presided on the successive days. The other speakers were Dr. Dyer, from India, Dr. Greig, from Manchuria, China, and Mr. Marcus Wood, of the China Inland Mission. Crowds thronged to hear God's servants from the high places of the field.

Dr. Dyer's work lay among the Santali, who philologists said were descendants of the aboriginals of India, but are now the veriest slaves. He had personal experience of Isaiah xliv., where a man is pictured as using the wood of the same tree to make for himself both a god and a fire. Dr. Greig regarded himself as a witness, reporting, like Paul and Barnabas, what had been done to the glory of God. He referred to the difficulties of the work, but was most hopeful, as each convert was a living seed that by-and-by would bring forth fruit a thousand-fold.

Mr. Marcus Wood was specially interested in Western China. He, like the other missionaries, is a telling and taking speaker. Native agents, he said, are more and more recognised as essential for the carrying on of mission work in China, and in this regard he cited the English Presbyterian Church as setting a good example in organising native churches, with native pastors, supported by native contributions.

At the afternoon open-air meeting Mr. W. R. Lane delivered a solemn address on Herod, and closed his appeal by referring to Christ's silence on the memorable day when He met him and answered him never a word. The One who is the last in the world to give a man up had nothing to say to this guilty monarch just because he had had his opportunity and didn't avail himself of it.

Mr. McNeill closed the day's proceedings by a second Gospel address based upon Rev. xxii. 17, "The Spirit and the bride say, Come," &c. God lays no man's pipe a yard short of the fountain. He never knew a man wanting to come to Jesus who was kept long in the dark as to what coming to Jesus meant. Here is a roving commission for every believer, as well as a sweet invitation to every sinner. After a solemn appeal a large crowd followed Mr. McNeill to the inquiry tent, where a goodly company of workers were engaged in happy, solemn service for nearly an hour.

THE SECOND DAY'S PROCEEDINGS were begun under more favourable auspices so far as the weather was concerned, and again Mr. Oatts, of Glasgow, conducted the opening prayer-meeting at ten o'clock with much acceptance. A vast audience again gathered into the grassy amphitheatre and listened with the deepest attention to the different speakers. Rev. W. R. Mowll (London) gave the first address from "Come, for all things are now ready." His clear, strong voice rang up the slope and away to the most distant listener.

Provost Colville followed with a rousing message from the passage, "Except your righteousness should exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees ye shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven."

Mr. McNeill closed the forenoon meeting by an address based on the words, "Awake, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead," &c. His introduction was most pathetic. Mr. Mowll had alluded to the fact that that day was his birthday; it was that and more, for just a year ago that day his wife had passed into the presence of the Lord. She had been with him at the previous meetings, and sat beside him on that platform, but now in bodily presence she was with him no more. He asked for their special prayers on that sad and glad anniversary. His text was so plain that he who runs may read, and he may read and run. The Word of God looks man in the face and says, Thou sleepest. In regard to the affairs of this world, you may be sharp and keen enough, but his text looks the clear-headed Belfast men in the face, be they linen lords or linen workers, and it says to them, If you have not given up self and sin and the form of godliness without the power, you are but a busy idler, a serious trifler. This is no world for sleeping in. He had once found a man sleeping in a strange place, viz., across the metals of a railway track; of course he was drunk, and we dragged him into safety, although he growled and kicked us all he could. How was he to describe the condition of the man who, believing in death, judgment, and eternity, had not woke up or faced the facts of life? There is a big step between awaking and arising. Some of you knew the difference of the two this very morning. People are called from their sleep and they reply, "Yes, I'm coming," but they don't come. Some people get up in their sleep. God pity the church that has a sleep-walker for an elder, or in the pulpit. In saying this he didn't run down the ministry. He spoke for God, and declared his text, when he said to himself and every brother on the platform or in the meeting, "Awake, thou that sleepest."

The home mission and inquirers' tents were full of interest. Mr. R. L. Hamilton, Belfast, presided in the former, and referred to colportage work in Ireland as a means of home missions. This was followed up by Rev. T. Lyle Muckamore. Mr. Robertson, of the Carrubbers Close Mission, Edinburgh, and Rev. R. Howie gave addresses bearing upon evangelistic work in large cities. Rev. Dr. Rogers (Whiteabby) and Rev. W. R. Mowll (London) also gave addresses on this subject.

The inquirers' tent was crowded with seekers and backsliders and their friends. Here Mr. Oatts was one of the hardest workers. Rev. Wesley Guard, Mr. B. D. Wise, Mr. Jas. Barton, and others delivered brief addresses, while a large number of experienced Christians dealt prayerfully and kindly with those professing to seek the Saviour.

At the closing open-air gathering, Rev. R. Howie, Mr. S. G. Montgomery, and Rev. John McNeill were the speakers. Mr. McNeill's subject was the story of the woman at the well. He felt the responsibility of speaking to that vast meeting, where the momentous issues of eternity hung upon the next fifteen minutes of time. When he was a boy, he used to think that the word thus should be accompanied by a woodcut in the margin of the Bible, of a weary man sitting by a well. He had learned since that the picture is in the text and not in the margin. God has come very near to us when, in order to disarm our ignorance and unbelief, He knows what it is to be leg weary. My Lord, no wonder that thou wast weary! Not from the plains of Palestine, but from the far-away eternity didst thou come. Thou didst lay aside thy glory and majesty, and thou didst step from star to star until thou didst land upon this dark planet, the grave of sinful man. To bless the woman, Christ confronted her with her sin. He went direct for her conscience. Before the living water can be poured in, the dirty water must be emptied out. She did not try to justify herself. Neither need you. Hide not your sin; lay it open in its true colours before the pitying Saviour. He will pour purifying springs upon it, and the fountains of eternal life will be opened for evermore. After a closing appeal there was again a large assemblage in the inquirers' tent, when it is believed many were enabled to receive the Lord Jesus as their personal Saviour. After the benediction the thronging multitude melted, never to meet till the great day.

I may add that Mr. Burke punctuated the addresses by his sweet Gospel singing. Many will be glad to hear this tuneful brother's voice again. His heart is in his song. Mr. M'Bride, Ballymena, conducted the service of praise. He was assisted by a well-trained choir.

The railway company ran very cheap excursion trains from all parts. A special train of ten carriages left Derry at one. Five special trains left Belfast each morning of the meeting, and not a hitch or accident occurred. To gather ten thousand people to what was nothing more nor less than Gospel meetings is surely proof that the message of salvation has not lost its power.

Although Mr. Moody was not able to come, the Irish friends are confident that he will soon pay a visit to their shores, and once more preach among them the unsearchable riches of Christ. As yet, no definite arrangements have been made.

Any one desiring a fuller account of these meetings will find it in the Belfast Witness of July 8. Henry Montgomery.

KENTISH TOWN HOME FOR THE AGED.

On Friday last friends interested in this Home met at the Kingsdown Orphanage to hear an address from Miss Harrison, who has for twenty years laboured among and on behalf of the aged poor in connection with the well-known Homes at Shepherd's-bush, Norwood, and Paddington. This last was described as a model, having been built to suit the requirements of the inmates.

A Home has been quietly carried on for some years past at Langdon-road, Upper Holloway. From this house a hasty removal was necessitated last spring by the discovery of the unsafety of its foundations. The aged inmates were speedily removed to 85, Fortess-road, Kentish Town-road, and a committee meeting held at Mrs. Ginever's Home, at which it was decided, owing to the many institutions already established, that it would be better to raise a sum and build a Home on the plan of that specially adapted at Westbourne-park, rather than expect continuous contributions. At the same meeting it was decided to invite the services of Mr. R. T. Smith, of the Chiswick Mission, on behalf of the scheme.

The meeting above referred to, though not largely attended, was, by the hearty and sympathetic addresses delivered by the chairman, Rev. P. Husband Davies and Miss Harrison, moved to co-operate with the committee in advancing this movement, and all agreed that the north of London should not be behind other districts in thus providing for the needs of the aged. It is proposed to secure accommodation for thirty or more inmates, married couples and single women reduced in circumstances being eligible for a room conveniently fitted up with stove suited for cooking purposes, water supply, and convenience for keeping coals.

Towards the amount required £215 is banked, and further aid will be gratefully received by the Hon. Treasurer, Mr. T. B. Forwood, Hawkshead House, near Hatfield.

SURINAM, DUTCH GUIANA, SOUTH AMERICA.—The Free Evangelisation Society was founded in 1887 by Mr. M. S. Bromet, formerly a Congregational minister in England. A hall to accommodate five hundred persons was built and fitted up at a cost of £1350, contributed by friends in Holland, Scotland, England, and Surinam. Meetings are held four times a week, in Dutch and English. Some four hundred children who never heard the Gospel before are now being taught in the Sunday-school. Several Jews and Roman Catholics have been converted under the preaching of God's Word. Five years ago a Bible was a scarce article; since then about three hundred Bibles and three thousand New Testaments have been sold or distributed there. Souls won for Christ, through the preaching of God's Word, are now in Christian fellowship. Writing from 1, Florence-place, Glasgow, W., Mr. Bromet says:—"The work is growing, and the need is now felt to have a fellow-labourer. A student from Dr. Grattan Guinness's Mission Institute has offered himself. About five hundred pounds will be required to supply our need by taking out an evangelist, opening a Christian infant-school, appointing a Bible colporteur, a Biblewoman, &c., &c. Towards this the sum of £125 has already been gratefully received." Among those who recommend Mr. Bromet are Drs. Andrew Bonar and J. H. Wilson.

ST. JOHN'S TRAINING SCHOOLS.

Notwithstanding the heavy rain on the afternoon of Tuesday week, a goodly number of friends visited St. John's Training School for Girls, Westbourne-park, on the occasion of its jubilee. Fifty years ago, this institution, for the training of domestic servants, was founded by the late Lady Kinnaird, and during the intervening period more than eighteen hundred girls have passed through the school and gone forth to situations.

Tea was provided at four o'clock, and it was most interesting and pleasant to watch the children at drill under Miss Sutton's direction, and to listen to their cheerful singing. The girls range from babyhood up to fifteen or sixteen, and their bright and happy faces testified to the loving care and oversight of the Matron, Miss McEwen, and the others in charge; while the prize distribution in prospect was evidently not forgotten. Lord Kinnaird presided at the jubilee meeting, the attendance of old girls who had been in the school and of friends of the children being so great that this was held in the Westbourne Schools adjoining.

Rev. Dr. Forrest, Dean of Worcester, spoke of his long connection with the schools. Since first, more than twenty-five years ago, he had come amongst them, it had always been a pleasure to speak to these girls, and he had always received a most hearty welcome. He was convinced that not only was a valuable work being done for the temporal welfare of these girls, but he knew that many of them learned in St. John's School to love the Saviour; and would throughout eternity thank God for what they had been taught there.

The Countess of Aberdeen had hoped to give the prizes, but, being prevented coming, Lady Kinnaird undertook this function. One of the most interesting prizes was that given to one old girl, who has been for twenty-two years in service in one situation; a number of prizes were for long service; others, taken generally by old girls now married, were for needlework, baking, &c. Then followed prizes gained by present inmates of the school.

Lord Kinnaird pointed out that since the school was placed under Government inspection, six or seven years ago, it had always received the highest commendation, and 100 per cent. had passed at the examinations. They wished to raise a Jubilee Fund of £1000 to clear off the debt and give a start; £200 per annum annual subscriptions were required.

Mr. T. A. Denny, Mr. W. T. Paton, and Hon. Gertrude Kinnaird also spoke briefly.

The remainder of the evening was devoted to the girls and their friends, games and drill being interspersed with singing, while Rev. H. G. Thwaites addressed the children. So concluded a meeting memorable in the annals of St. John's Training School, and long in the e young hearts will ring the echoes of their jubilee.

THE INDIGENT BLIND VISITING SOCIETY (27 Red Lion-square, W.C.).—The work of this Society has grown so much, especially in the East-end, that the committee have had to find larger premises for the accommodation of the classes there. The new centre at Garden-street Schoolrooms, Stepney-green, was opened on Tuesday afternoon, July 5, General Sir Robert Phayre in the chair. Messrs. H. J. Armitage, S. Clayton, G. R. Boyle, and John Tennant, as well as the chairman, delivered addresses, to which the blind audiences listened with close attention.

CHINESE WOMEN.—The Malaysia Message states that two Singapore missions are conspicuous for educational work among Chinese women. First, the Female Education Society, with its well-known school in charge of Miss Cooke, in which hundreds of Chinese women have received a splendid education and Christian training, and from which they have gone out to work for Christ both in the Settlements and also in China. Secondly, for the last four or five years the woman's work of the Methodist Episcopal Mission has been very largely educational, and Miss Blackmore reports more than a hundred women and girls on the roll, the great majority of whom are Chinese.

CITY ORTHOPŒDIC HOSPITAL, HATTON-GARDEN.—Among the deformed poor at present under treatment at this hospital as out-patients, there are a number of poor little incurable cripples of tender age, suffering intense agony both night and day, principally from hip disease. The Board of Management are anxious to admit these little sufferers as in-patients as soon as possible, but have not the necessary income, the funds at their disposal being insufficient for the present inmates. There is a heavy mortgage debt of six thousand pounds on the hospital property, the yearly interest thereon curtailing the benefits the charity would otherwise be enabled to confer. The Secretary is Mr. Ernest Derenth.

A PLEA FOR CEYLON.

The following remarks by Miss C. F. Gordon Cumming, in the concluding pages of her very interesting work, "Two Happy Years in Ceylon" (Blackwood), may meet with a practical response from some of our readers:—

There lies the beautiful land with, in one single district, tens of thousands of neglected villagers, weary of their own dark ignorance, and ready to be taught by whoever will first enter the field. Europeans posseesed of sufficient private means to support themselves would be especially welcome. Surely there must be some—and many are needed—who will recognise in this glorious work for Eternity a better use for God-given talents than that of shaping the pleasantest career in England. Why should not two friends, who realise the true purpose of their lives, agree that whereas their companions are starting in couples in search of big game in far countries, they two will start together as fishers of men, to cast the Gospel net in waters teeming with life? Assuredly in no other career will they find so true a spring of joy and gladness for their own lives as in this ceaseless effort to draw all around them to the knowledge and love of their Saviour.

And of all mission-fields, few offer greater attractions than this beautiful isle. It has the charm of a simple language, a people gracious and kindly to Europeans, and with British protection. Here, then, are the inducements: a healthy, open-air life in a lovely country, ploughing and sowing fields which assuredly cannot prove barren, inasmuch as the Lord of the harvest is Himself with his servant to direct their work. And when the angel reapers have garnered their ripened grain, the patient sower will realise such everlasting gladness as all the fleeting honours of earth will fail to secure.

A KANSAS FIELD.

Ten years have passed since we left old England and came to Kansas. For the past five years I have been at work for the Master in North-West Kansas under many perplexing and trying seasons. Last year we were blessed with abundant crops, and now another year is giving promise of success to the farmers of this country. I would that the people would look up to God in grateful appreciation of his goodness. People here are usually well-informed and industrious, yet they are so indifferent to the calls of religion. There is much to discourage, yet we labour on.

I have a wide field to labour in, that covers two counties. Some good friends, whom I know not, in England, Ireland, and Scotland kindly send us religious literature for distribution, for which we feel very thankful. I ask such to note the change of my address. Remember at the throne of the heavenly grace those who, like me, are toiling in some far-off land.

(Rev.) Joseph Baker,
Protestant Episcopal Church.
Logan, Kansas, U.S.A.

"WHERE SATAN'S SEAT IS."—The Committee of the Midnight Meeting Movement held a meeting in Exeter Hall last week, through the kindness of Mr. George Williams, who presided. Eighty young women—some very young—were gathered together out of the Strand, Charing-cross station, and the surrounding locality. They were all sober, and listened most attentively to the brief addresses delivered to them by ladies and gentlemen present. Many promised to come to the office, 8a, Red Lion-square, W.C.

NORTH-WEST AMERICA.—The Bishop of Moosonee is in the forty-first year of his missionary life. He is completing the translation of the Old Testament into the language of his Indian flock, and revising the New Testament which was printed many years ago. This he regards as the crowning work of his life. On a visit last year to Rupert's House, one corner of his vast diocese, he was gratified to see many of the old Indians following the service, although reading involved the use of spectacles. He says, "A generation ago, and at their time of life, they would have been considered an encumbrance, and the bowstring would have terminated their existence. Now they are honoured and respected by the whole community." The Bishop adds: "The Mission greatly requires strengthening in several places; the Albany district is crying out for help, and the Matawakumme district demands the establishment of a first-class Mission close to the Canadian Pacific Railway." Communications for the Bishop may be addressed to Mr. H. G. Malaher, Secretary, Missionary Leaves Association, 20, Compton-terrace, Upper Islington, N.

THE POWER OF ROME.

is often asked why the Gospel does not e more progress among the Romanists. Per- the following incident may help to explain In Tulle, the "chef-lieu" of the depart- t of Corrèze, a man heard the Gospel in our ll room, believed, and gave a clear testimony. ad been saved from a life of drunkenness other vices, from ill-temper and wickedness. ntroduced the Bible into his home, and his and children began to read it, the children ing the Sunday-school.

e Romish clergy, of course, heard about it, the man soon discovered that instead of ing the Bible with pleasure, his wife began ppose him. His daughter was a day scholar convent, and one day he learned that she kept as a day boarder, and that she was even y to enter the service of the convent. Not ing his daughter to follow the teaching of e, he wrote to the priest forbidding him to her further instruction. He wrote also to bishop. His wife during this time was con- ally consulting the priest. Her father and her, with their wives, visited the house, and man had an all-day debate with them. He luded: "To-morrow I will go with you to priest, and if he can show me in the Bible my daughter must communicate in the rch of Rome, she shall do so."

e next day none of the party would go to priest, but his brother-in-law said, "I see things are; you owe me two pounds, pay me ice." The man replied: "I have no money; I pay you in September, if God permits." ; I want my money, or I will sue you." u know where my pig is; if you want it, go fetch it, and pay yourself." A few days rwards his wife met me with her husband g to the prefecture on this busines, and she wed us in the streets, shouting after us, up to the prefecture, where the police had ke her out. The man bore all this with per- patience.

few days later a summons to appear before the strate was served to him by his wife (al- s instigated by the priest). Her contention that he was mad, and she asked for a rce and the guardianship of her children. walked into court with his Bible in his hand, said to the juge de paix (magistrate): "Afore- I was blind, and now I see. This Book has ed my eyes, and I want my child to be in- cted in the truth of this Book." The istrate could do nothing with the case, and issed it.

as! he was not proof against the tears of daughter and the solemn promise she made that if he permitted her to communicate in Church of Rome she would always go to the éstant Sunday-school and learn the Scrip- s. This might save her, he thought, and his consent, and conducted her himself to church. The bishop and the priests were mphant. The daughter came once to the day-school, and after that the priest gave her nission to break her word.

rther on this victory excited the mother e and more, and her threats took a terrible . Since then, not only the ordinary priest, the director of the seminary and other siastics are constant visitors in the house. t none think lightly of the power of Rome. , indeed, a world-power, but it is completely e hands of the arch-enemy of God. Pray he poor priest-ridden millions of France.

C. W. CREMER, Pasteur.

ive, Corrèz .

HE EAST LONDON TABERNACLE will be re- ed next Sunday, after being closed for a month renovation. The pastor, Archibald G. Brown, preach morning and evening.

NIVERSITIES' CAMP FOR BOYS.—A number raduates and undergraduates of the Universities organised a camp for boys from public and ate schools, to be held at Rustington, near ehampton, August 3-10. The promoters hope nerely to place healthy enjoyment within the h of such as may accompany them, but to bring e Christian influence to bear; the latter is, in the end, and the sports and pleasure only the s, of the very interesting enterprise. The camp be under semi-military discipline. There will mes, expeditions, boating and picnic-ing, not an hour being allowed throughout the day. A fully- ified medical man will be in attendance. As ision can only be made for two hundred, no time ld be lost in securing particulars as to terms, other information that may be desired, from one e hon. secs., Mr. Cecil H. Clissold, B.A., Ridley . Cambridge.

BRETON EVANGELICAL MISSION.

THE neat, concise report for the past year, issued by the committee, is most encouraging. Notwithstanding the arduous character of the work, the results of the past year make it plain that the Word of God has wonderful power, and that the simplest ministries, with earnest prayer, can accomplish much. While there must be in the nature of things in such a priest-ridden country considerable results which never will be tabulated on earthly registers, yet in every station the Word of God has touched many souls who have given proof of its power by a complete change of life. Nineteen persons have had the courage to come out and be publicly baptized, and it is hoped that twelve others will follow their example. These converts need the prayers of Christian friends, exposed as they will be to the full tide of priestly rage and persecution.

The document further sets forth that the Bible has been specially welcomed by the dwellers among the mountains of Brittany, to whom until now it has been an unknown Book, and scarcely a tract conveying a message of peace has hitherto been circulated among them. These people are described as only half civilised, and in almost the same barbarous and heathen condition as their ancestors at the time of the Cæsars. Two Bible carriages are at work, the agents being converts from Romanism. The little church at Brest is the first which has met its working expenses. This most economically managed Mission comprises, besides the nine preaching stations, day and Sunday schools, orphanage, hospital and medical mission, and an extensive system of colportage. The fields are to-day more widely opened than the present state of the funds will justify occupation. The London office is 7, St. Paul's-churchyard, E.C.

Cheltenham. W. L. L.

THE OPIUM TRAFFIC.

By REV. W. BLAKE ATKINSON.

I READ with burning shame,
The tale of England's sin,
The stain upon that honoured name,
Which heroes died to win.
The home of brave and free,
Abode of truth and bliss,
Can our dear land united be,
With wickedness like this?

We boast our world-wide sway,
We boast a flag that waves
O'er realms of ever-circling day,
Yet peopled by no slaves.
And shall that flag conceal,
Beneath each glorious fold,
A trade that blight's our brother's weal,
And all for lust of gold?

We send our missions forth,
The way of truth to show,
East, west, and south, and north,
Our Gospel heralds go.
And shall we longer spread
The good seed with one hand,
And with the other broadcast shed,
The tares upon the land?

Thank God, our England's heart
Beats true to Him as yet!
Pray God that, faithful to its part,
It may be firmly set
To purge our guilt away,
Till, by our nation's aid,
The deadly drug no more shall slay
The souls that He hath made.

Great Assembly Hall.

THE weather during June was very trying for Evangelistic work within doors, but, despite this fact, Mr. Wm. Nobbs had some very successful meetings in Mr. Charrington's Great Assembly Hall. There was little variation in the Sunday services, and the Great Hall presented its usual appearance. Visitors from afar have expressed their surprise at seeing a full hall in the summer time.

The preaching of the Gospel by our brother has been blessed to the conversion of many precious souls, while the Lord's children have enjoyed the times of refreshing from the exposition of his truth. Our brother's work is being followed up this month by an old friend and worker of the Great Assembly Hall, Mr. Charles Inglis.

OUR BRETHREN IN PRISON.

SCATTERED o'er the vast empire of Russia are innumerable prisons, of which we have heard much from many writers, where thousands languish for protesting against the despotism of those who refuse a constitutional government to this much suffering people. With political prisoners and exiles we might have much sympathy if we knew more of their wrongs and their sufferings. Be that as it may, we are now called upon by the love we bear the fellow-members of the body of Christ to sympathise and pray for our brethren; for of recent date, many have been exiled, banished, and imprisoned for no other crime than loyalty to Christ, and unswerving fealty to the Word of God, and thus persecuted. Among those so dealt with the Stundists have been the sufferers. "Out of sight, out of mind." and the distance between our beloved brethren and ourselves may make their sorrows seem less real to us who live in perfect liberty and freedom.

Surely the people of God in England should daily remember these brethren constantly in prayer. I heard much of their trials and persecutions when last in Russia, and now I hear more. Many of them are saying "Remember my bonds"; and I hear that some of these suffering ones are cheered as they hear that they are being remembered by their English brethren. The Greek Church in Russia seems to be following the course adopted by Rome in the days of her power.

M. Pobedenostzeff, who was the tutor of the present Czar, and now is Imperial Commissioner of the Greek Church, has issued his report to the Emperor, and in it he urges the Government to adopt stronger measures to suppress the Stundists, as he finds that "confiscation of their property, imprisonment, banishment to the mountains of the Caucasus, and the wilds of Siberia" have hitherto failed to drive these poor people back into the bosom of the Greek Church. "There is no man living," said a friend to me the other day, "who is causing so much suffering and sorrow as M. Pobedenostzeff, and unfortunately he has chosen as his victims the most loyal subjects of the Czar and the most conscientious servants of Christ."

Brethren, let us bear them up before the Lord. Every week brings fresh instances of despotism, politically and ecclesiastically. Only yesterday I heard of two students just banished from their homes. General Gresser, who has lately died, and who was the head of the police in St. Petersburg, was a Protestant, and did what he could to protect those who were under the ban of the Greek Church; but it is almost certain that his successor will prove a man of a far different stamp.

CAROLUS.

Cripples' Home, Marylebone-road, W.

A DRAWING-ROOM meeting on behalf of the Cripples' Home for Girls was held, by kind permission of the Dowager Lady Congleton, at 53, Great Cumberland-place, on Tuesday, June 28. The chair was taken by Rev. Marmaduke Washington, and short accounts of this valuable Institution were given by Mr. J. M. Weylland, Dr. C. H. F. Routh, Mr. R. Holmes White, and Miss Hawkins Dempster. The Home was founded in 1851. At the present time it contains 113 inmates, seventy-seven of these being cripples, and twenty-eight in training for service. Plain needlework, straw-work of all kinds, household and laundry work are taught. Visitors are invited to inspect the work. Miss C. M. WELLESLEY is Honorary Secretary.

MARSEILLES. — For a long time Madame Lhermit has carried on work among the Roman Catholics at Belle de Mai, where she has founded and sustained for years religious services, work-classes, and children's meetings, in the face of much opposition. She was formerly a school teacher, and continues to be held in high esteem. Another worker here is Madame Frankland-West, a lady of high social connections, who exerts herself in the promotion of Christian unity and brotherly love. She has laboured for years without the recognition of any organised church or society.—G. A. B.

ODESSA. — Pastor Kornmann, who labours among the Jews here, has recently had the joy of baptizing several converts. The population of the city includes quite one hundred and twenty-five thousand Jews, and offers a wide door of opportunity for Christian testimony. Herr Kornmann presents Christ to those who have long been prejudiced against Him, without pressing the claims of any particular church or organisation. Many of the Jews of Odessa are suffering acutely from the stress and strain which has come upon their race in Russia. The pastor's address is Chersonerstrasse 58, Odessa.

NOTES ON DAILY READINGS.

SUNDAY, JULY 17.—EXODUS XXXIX.

The Lord's commands to Moses were the sole and supreme rule of those that wrought for the Tabernacle. This fact is again and again emphasised. It is as if God our Father would impress on us the prime necessity of living on his plan, and we are free to admit that some of the greatest mistakes and sorrows of our lives have arisen from our neglect of the pattern shown on the mount. The care with which the construction of the breastplate and ephod is narrated is significant of the value of the priestly work of which they were the emblems; and it is pleasant to be told that the breastplate was never to be loosed from the ephod, as though to teach us that our cause would always lie near the heart of our Saviour, never cut adrift, but incorporate with his heavenly ministry for evermore. The skirts of the high priest's robe are referred to by the Psalmist as those to which the anointing oil flowed down, and possibly represent us who are so far removed from Him in time and worth, but even the skirts were adorned with bells and pomegranates of pure gold. We may be but skirts, but let us seek the anointing oil, which will make us fruitful and sweet-toned.

MONDAY, JULY 18.—EXODUS XL.

The rearing up of the Tabernacle was a great event in the history of the chosen people, and abundantly justified all the work and generosity which had been expended on the separate items of the fabric. So will the result finally justify God, who is controlling the manufacture of each several part of the spiritual temple, so that the symmetry and beauty of the whole shall be one day complete, leaving nothing to be desired. And thus will it be with our lives and characters. We are now engaged in making disjointed bits, hardly knowing why, but soon, on our first entrance into the eternal light, we shall understand why we had to weave this sombre bit here, and that bright bit there, why we gave one shape to this piece of gold and another to that. God will show us his reasons, and we shall acknowledge that his plan was wisest and best. The anointing oil seems to be linked in with the literal obedience to the Divine commands, as if we were to infer that God always blesses and welcomes literal obedience to his will. The oil signifies the Holy Spirit, who ever consecrates and anoints the humblest toil wrought in obedience to his bidding. That glory-cloud which filled the tabernacle shall furnish my soul with a prayer that shall claim as much for me. Oh, cloud of the Divine Presence, fill our being, the spirit which is the Holy of Holies, the soul which is the Holy Place, the body which is the outer court. Let no part be excluded from Thine all-pervading Presence, and from this moment for evermore let our movements be dictated by thy promptings and direction.

TUESDAY, JULY 19.—LEV. I.

The burnt offering is full of the voluntariness and entireness with which we should give ourselves to God. It was thus that our Master acted, setting us an example that we should follow his steps. Such was his love to us that He yielded Himself without spot to God, holding nothing back, emptying Himself, and counting no sacrifice too great for dear love's sake. When He knew that the sacrifice and offering of victims could not avail, then He said, Lo, I come to do Thy will, O God. He gave his back to the smiters, and his cheeks to them that plucked off the hair; he hid not his face from shame and spitting, though with one wave of his hand He could have strown the ground with the lifeless bodies of his captors. And amid the flight of the ages He is ceaselessly engaged in the care of those whom He has died for. Such should be our life: without blemish, certainly; washed in its inward intention and aim, assuredly; according to its contents, whether commensurate to the herd, the flock, or the bird, without doubt—but all laid on the altar for God. The knife will stab, and the fire burn there, but it will be a sweet savour to the Lord, and out of that self-sacrifice, shown in many acts of self-denial for the sake of man, there will rise the sweetest, gladdest joy. When the sacrifice begins then the song of the Lord begins, never to die down, but ever to rise up into richer, gladder, nobler notes.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 20.—LEVITICUS II.

The meat-offering is significant of that pure and holy life on which we must feed, if we are really the Lord's priests—that Holy Thing, which was born of a woman, but which came down from heaven to give life unto the world. It was fine flour indeed, rare in its evenness. It was sweet, sweeter than frankincense, but not mawkish as honey. It was mingled with oil, for the Holy Ghost descended on Him, and abode. There was no leaven, the type of evil; but there was the salt of the covenant, rendering Him antiseptic of the evil around. The burning on the altar of a part, the parching in fire, the bruising of the corn in the ear—ah, soul, thou canst not consider these without tears. For that life passed through the fire, it was searched by pain in its innermost recesses, it was crushed between the upper and under millstones of justice against sin not his own and of human sorrow. But the larger part of the offering was eaten: Aaron fed on it with his sons. Thus God by his fire, and the priests as a part of their daily bread, fed on the same meal. And in the consideration of the spotless holiness, the obedience, the complete attributes of Christ's character, God meets his people and rejoices with them. The infinite God is satisfied and well pleased, whilst we adore and wonder. Thus it is "the communion of his body," we commune with those we love and with the one Church in heaven and on earth, but above all with God.

THURSDAY, JULY 21.—LEVITICUS III.

The thought of God feeding on the perfect sacrifice of his Son comes out very prominently in this chapter. The R.V. of 11th verse emphasizes that it was the food or bread of the offering made by fire unto Jehovah. The fat of the inwards, of the choicest parts, was consumed on the altar, as if to indicate how God loved to contemplate the inner motives that prompted and actuated his well-beloved Son. In a subsequent chapter (vii.) we learn that Aaron and his sons were permitted to feed on the wave breast and heave shoulder, as if the saints are to derive special nourishment from the love of Christ's heart and the strength of his right hand. But we should never forget that all such fellowship is only possible on the basis of the blood, the precious blood, the blood shed for the remission of sin. The offerer laid his hand, in significant reference to the transference of guilt, on the victim's head, and its blood was sprinkled around the altar. We must pass in by the cross of Calvary, standing at the doorway, or we can never sit at the feast, where the Father presides, within.

FRIDAY, JULY 22.—LEVITICUS IV.

The sweet savour offerings have been considered. They are all concerned with consecration and communion. We now approach the sacrifices for sin, and first for sins of ignorance. Here is provision for the anointed priest, for the whole assembly, and for the ruler, and for one of the common people. Do we sufficiently realise the sinfulness of sins of omission, of not doing because of not knowing, of coming short of God's perfect standard? And do we realise also the awful truth that the sin of a priest, though it be in ignorance, may bring guilt on the people? There must always be the imposition of hands—"My faith would lay her hand on that dear head of Thine"—the priestly sevenfold sprinkling of blood before the vail, and the putting of blood on the altar, which typified intercessory prayer; but here, unlike what happened with the burnt-offering, there was no eating of the flesh, it was all burned as an unclean thing without the camp. So Jesus suffered without the gate, that He might make atonement and sanctify his people with his own blood. Ah! precious word, Atonement, significant of reconcilement, of making rebel hearts one with God. Mercy has clasped hands with Justice, Righteousness and Peace have kissed, Heaven has espoused Earth. "The bridal of the Earth and Sky!"

SATURDAY, JULY 23.—LEVITICUS V.

It were well to go over this enumeration of sin often, and test ourselves as to whether we be not verily guilty in one of these respects. We too often touch uncleanness, or swear rashly, or defile ourselves without realising for the moment wherein we have sinned. But a dull, heavy feeling at the end of the day warns us that we have sinned, and should urge us to go back step by step till we come to the place where we dropped our thread of fellowship with God. Then we must confess and seek forgiveness. There is no need to bring a guilt or trespass offering of lamb or dove; but we must present again by faith the sacrifice of Jesus pleading his merit, and claiming pardon through his precious blood. And as the burnt-offering followed the sin-offering, so there must be a renewal of our vows of entire devotion to our Lord. Towards the end of the chapter we meet the word restitution, which occurs so often in the code, and reminds us of a Christian duty. It is not enough to confess to God—we must confess to man, and more, we must make restitution for all wrong done, even though the wrong was done rather from want of thought than want of heart.

International S. S. Lessons.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON, JULY 24.

The Lame Man Healed. Acts iii. 1-16.

Golden Text: Verse 16.

1. Peter—impulsive, energetic, rugged—was in many respects a strange contrast to John, "the Apostle of love"; yet Christ bound these two together in closest companionship. Diversity of temperament cannot divide those whom He unites. The Temple (see ii. 46). The disciples still held sacred the Old Testament place of prayer. The ninth hour. There were three hours of prayer—the third, our 9 a.m.; the sixth, our 12 o'clock; and the ninth, our 3 p.m. Prayer thrice a day was the custom of the Psalmist (iv. 17), and of Daniel (vi. 10).

2, 3. Regard the Temple as the Church of Christ, of which the outward building was the type, and the lame man as a picture of the world's sinful and helpless condition, then this verse becomes a true description of what prevails to-day. The need of the world lies at the door of the Church, awaiting the forth putting of saving, healing power. It is the most natural thing that those who seek most diligently to worship God should be most ready to sympathise with and help every case of need. Prayer without service on behalf of suffering men, is hypocrisy. (Isa. lviii. 5-7). This was a desperate case, and was, therefore, a fitting subject for the first display of the power of the Risen Saviour through his Church. The man was born lame, and had been a helpless cripple for over forty years (iv. 22). What a type of the spiritual helplessness which we all inherit! There are many conjectures about the Beautiful Gate. The most probable is that which refers it to Nicanor's Gate, described by Josephus as "composed of Corinthian brass, and exceeding all others in magnificence and value."

4. The description of the whole miracle is very graphic. Peter's intent look upon the man was an eloquent, if a silent, expression of deep sympathy. His word—Look on us—was intended to awaken the man's expectation. These are the two things the Church needs in presence of the world's misery—a heart to feel, and a conscious ability to relieve through the power of the exalted Saviour. 5. The man met the challenge of Peter. No doubt he expected only alms. He knew that he needed more, but did not think of looking for more. Why should these two men be able to do for him more than all other compassionate worshippers had done?

6. Silver and gold, &c. The words are calculated to discourage the sufferer. "Why excite my expectation if you have not power to relieve my distress?" The Church's wealth does not measure her power. Her influence has been mightiest when she has possessed least of this world's goods (2 Cor. vi. 10). In the name of Jesus, &c. The blessing Christ bestows is one silver and gold cannot purchase. "When God appears to refuse us the objects we desire, He gives us others that are better." The command to rise and walk would be useless mockery except associated with the power of Christ. 7. By putting forth his hand to lift up the lame man Peter proved that he had faith in the power of Jesus to heal. The cure was instantaneous and complete. "It was said of Kasper Hauser, who was confined in a German prison until he was seventeen years old, that he could not walk without stumbling, but this man could walk at once." The miracle not only gave strength to his limbs, but taught him how to use them.

The effect of this miracle was manifold. The man himself was filled with gratitude (8-9). His desire to give praise to God indicates that spiritual blessing accompanied his physical healing. Not unnaturally he clung to the two apostles through whom God had wrought the miracles (11). "Solomon's porch" was in the temple court, and was so named because it was a remnant of the temple built by Solomon. Upon the people this miracle produced greatest amazement (10), which prepared them for hearing Peter's powerful address.

12. The servants of God who are most used are also most careful not to take any glory to themselves. That the people should marvel at so great a miracle was but natural. Peter reproved them for ignorantly attributing the miracle to himself and John.

13. The God of Abraham, &c. Such a description of God should have removed all Jewish opposition to the work of Christ in his people. Ye denied, &c. Peter again displays great boldness. This charge intended to bring home to them a sense of their guilt while the miracle proved that the Saviour whom they had denied was not only living, but omnipotent. The manner in which his omnipotence was being exercised proved that He was able to punish his murderers, but that He was willing to save them. 14, 15. Every one who makes choice of the god of this world instead of Christ is repeating the guilt of this people. 16. See the power that is in the name of Jesus. Trust Him, and all his power is on your side.

Letters to the Editor.

WOMEN IN LEWIS.

Dear Sir,—My attention has been drawn to a letter in your issue of June 30 entitled "Female Slavery in the Highlands," and signed "An Evangelist." I know the writer, and I fear that in the warmth of his temperament he has drawn a picture of our island life true in some particulars but exaggerated to an extent fitted to convey a false impression altogether to outsiders. There is no denying but that there is still too much work left to the females, and that the travelling facilities are not what they should be; but that there is anything like slavery, or that these conditions are unfavourable either to the physical or moral condition of the female population is, to say the least of it, an exaggerated view of the case.

I do not defend either female labour or want of roads, but I most clearly hold that the condition of things in the Lewis as regards both physical and moral health are more favourable far than those in our large cities. We all of us feel that things are not what they should be, but such exaggerated statements as those of my friend can do no good and give rise to an altogether wrong impression.—Yours truly,

Donald J. Martin.

Crantown-on-Spey, July 11.

BRITISH MISSION SCHOOLS, CAIRO.

Sir,—As I find that many of those friends who have been kindly interested in the schools and mission work of my late sister, Miss M. L. Whately, at Cairo, are desirous to understand the present state of the work, I venture to give a few words of explanation.

After my sister's death the management of the Mission was taken up by Mrs. Shakoor, who had long been helping her to carry it on. A committee of the most influential gentlemen in Cairo (including H.B.M. Consul-General, now Lord Cromer, Sir F. Grenfell, and Sir Colin Scott Moncrieff) had kindly undertaken to examine the general state of the work and regulate the finances. They met first in the beginning of 1891, and in the first month of their sitting drew up a letter of sympathy and good wishes. This letter has been reproduced in a recent report brought out by Mrs. Shakoor; but it is now eighteen months old. In the year and half that has elapsed since it was written, the unfavourable report of the Government Inspector of Schools, and other unfortunate circumstances, made the committee feel it was impossible to continue their work, and they found themselves compelled to dissolve.

In consequence of this, Mr. Tritton, the treasurer, also withdrew, and I have likewise felt that I can no longer, under these circumstances, continue my connection with the work, nor can my brother, who is co-trustee. We still hope eventually to be able to effect a union with the Church Missionary Society; but until this can be brought about, we must consider our connection with the Mission closed.—Yours faithfully, E. J. Whately.

21, Belmont-park, Lee, S.E.

THE ILLUSTRATED PORTUGUESE BIBLE.

Dear Sir,—In the full persuasion that you are always ready to hear both sides of a question, it may not be esteemed by you an intrusion if I mention that the illustrated Portuguese Bible, now being brought out here, and more than once mentioned by you, is not by any means issued with the unanimous approval of Portuguese Christians.

When the specimen-sheet was first made public it was severely criticised by many servants of the Lord, who have since sorrowfully seen that their objections to this work were well grounded, because among the illustrations is found at least one representation of the Deity as an old man (!) (in re Jacob's vision of the angels)—a thoroughly Romish picture. Also, because many of the engravings are misleading in effect, and calculated to blunt the edge of evangelicalism, by affording the Romanists opportunity to throw in our teeth the taunt that whereas they are accused of making representations of things divine, against the Divine command, in the form of images to carry out their false worship, we, the evangelicals, are not guiltless in prosecuting our end by means of engravings.

Of course, we do not by any means intend anyone to worship the engravings. But such as disapprove of this species of human display to improve (?) the Word of God contend that if the command to abstain from every appearance (every kind) of evil is to be obeyed, we are doing wrong and an injury to a poor deluded fellow-creature, in placing before the slave of the immensely ignorant form of Romanism which prevails in this country anything, whatever it may be, which is liable to confuse the half-awakened inquirer or to keep him in the darkness from which he is panting to be delivered.

As a fact, the publication was attempted in Brazil at the same time it first appeared here, and the attempt has proved a comparative failure in consequence of the strenuous opposition offered by the evangelical missions stationed in the Republic, who were nearly unanimous against it. Many of the Portuguese converts see the evil and danger of such pictures, and will have nothing whatever to do with the work.—Faithfully yours,

Joseph Jones.

Villa Nova de Gaia, Portugal.

THE ACCUSER CAST DOWN.

Sir,—In commenting on the many interesting letters which have appeared in The Christian, I trust that my only object is not to sustain a theory, but to endeavour to add something to the knowledge of the Lord's people which may be a help and comfort to them in this present evil day. The great conflict between Good and Evil, Light and Darkness, God and Satan, still continues. There is no sign of flagging on the side of Satan and his hosts, while on the part of the Living God the saying of his Champion still holds good, "My Father worketh hitherto and I work." Nay, as the time of the end draws nigh, the awful struggle seems the rather to increase in its deadly intensity. The Bible as a whole is a history of this great war—i.e., of so much of it as immediately concerns man, over whom and because of whom the thickest of the fight occurs. "The devil sinneth from the beginning" (1 John iii. 8). "In the beginning was the Word" (John i. 1). Who shall say, then, at what period in the depths of eternity the strife began, when this mighty angel first dared to lift himself up against the Everlasting Father, and fell from his first estate? Who can know the first phases of that strife, or observe the development of that pride which refused submission and provoked condemnation?

The serpent of Genesis, the red dragon or fiery serpent of the Revelation, is first introduced to us as the enemy of God and the adversary and deceiver of man in the Garden of Eden. As to the cause of his special enmity against man it is not possible to enter, my object being merely to give a brief general outline of the teaching of the Scriptures on this subject—such teaching as may help a little perhaps to elucidate the ideas which have already been brought before us, and enable all to compare them with the Word of God. The Eden scene then is the first open act of hostility against God and his chosen creature man with which we are acquainted. Trace the progress of the fight all through the Scriptures, and we find that all hinges on that first breach of the peace. Satan is there found on earth, but it is plain that at that time he and his hosts were not cast out from heaven, or shut out from access to the presence of the Lord. Whatever form the conflict had so far assumed, —and there must have been a conflict—the Almighty God, who could have swept him and his angels away by a breath, proved to be a God long-suffering and plenteous in mercy, giving the rebels a space for repentance and submission. The book of Job shows Satan still in heaven able to present himself before God. In Zechariah he still maintains the same position and the same attitude of hostility towards the Lord's people. His accusations appear to be the result of his inability to understand the nature of repentance towards God. Unable to repent himself, he cannot conceive of that humility of spirit before an outraged Creator in man. Man's rebellion and sin he quite understands; nay, it is a portion of his own pride instilled into man's nature; but that he should be sorry towards God for his sin is beyond him. It is gall and wormwood to him to see a sinful man accepted by God for a reason beyond his comprehension—a man whom he can accuse—and rightly, too—of rebellion and sin, and himself be shut out and treated as an enemy!

Nor could he at that time (if now altogether?) understand how God could be just and yet the justifier of the repentant sinner, the true sacrifice for sins not then having been offered. His accusations take two forms: First, he practically accuses God of partiality, making Him out to be a respecter of persons; secondly, he accuses man of transgression and sin, putting down any improvement in his conduct as the result of mercenary motives: "Doth Job serve God for nought?" In Psalm viii. the mouth of the enemy and the avenger is still unstopped. Something has still to be done, and that by weak Enosh-man—a babe, a suckling, is to become the arm of Jehovah, and by his strength is to still the enemy. "Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings hast thou established strength because of thine adversaries, that thou mightest still the enemy and the avenger."

Roaming apparently at will over the universe, earth, the heavenly places, yea, even heaven itself is visited by him and by his angels in his desperate enmity against the Holy One and his saints. Tempting and yet defying the lightning vengeance of the Almighty, he dares to presume to enter his very presence, and there fulminate his charges against his righteousness and his saints. "The God of patience" waits, the hour is not yet come for the display of his righteousness in passing over the sins of his people Israel in times past (Rom. iii. 25), and in receiving into the abodes of the blessed "the spirits of just men made perfect." Does not Rev. xii. 10 refer to those days and to those just men? Indeed, must it not do so, as the Church was not in existence until after the triumphant ascension into heaven of the risen Saviour, whose presence before God causes the accuser to be thrust out?

Mr. G. F. Trench's premise, "that in no sphere of the universe can Christ, the Champion of the saints, and Satan, his and their adversary, remain in power together," appears from Scripture to be true; indeed, it is not conceivable that it should be otherwise. Mr. Robert Brown appears to have fallen into a strange error in supposing that Christ and Satan reign now in the world together. The Scripture and the Lord's words teach us that He is at present the rejected King, and that the few who own Him as King are "Adullamites," who are rejected with Him. The usurper Satan is the god of this age, and had the audacity to lay claim to all the kingdoms of this world and the glory of them, even to the rightful King himself. The Scriptures teach us that Satan and his hosts of wicked spirits range over the earth at will, "himself walking about seeking whom he may devour," inhabiting as their sphere the "heavenly places," the upper air which surrounds this earth.

It has been stated that Satan has now ceased to be the accuser of the brethren. But is this so? All that we can say with certainty is that he is not permitted any longer to accuse them before God in heaven.* For where Satan once stood day and night as the Accuser, there the Great High Priest, who put away sin by his perfect sacrifice, now sits, appearing before the face of God for us (Heb. ix. 24). So that we have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the Righteous One.

The moment He presented Himself there, the Man who alone among men had glorified God on earth, and finished the work He gave Him to do—the Man who refused to be seduced by the adversary, who trusted in God at all times, who, without spot or taint of sin Himself, yet took the sinner's place and paid the full penalty demanded by the law of a Holy and Just God, who as the Federal Head of the many sinners, suffered the One for the many, the Just for the unjust,—from that moment Satan's work as accuser had to cease. He had his answer in full. Christ had died, nay, rather He had risen again, yea, even to the right hand of God, the place of highest favour and power. Thus He who was manifested in the flesh, and justified in the spirit, was also "seen of angels." Not a mere statement of fact, but an announcement of deepest significance. The holy elect angels, who had viewed with intense interest and curiosity his marvellous career on earth as man, unable apparently to understand the meaning of the sufferings of the Christ (1 Peter i. 12), unable possibly also to understand how God could be just and yet the justifier of sinners, unable consequently to answer completely the taunts of the accuser, now behold the justified Man at God's right hand, and see something of the exceeding riches of his grace in his kindness towards a world of sinners, and marvel at the wisdom and prudence displayed in dealing with such a matter.

The rebellious angels, headed by Satan, on the other hand, see with dismay the Man whom the adversary had caused to be taken and slain as an evildoer now raised from the dead, triumphant, victorious, justified, installed in the seat of highest honour—his work finished and accepted by God, his presence there an answer in full to all the accuser's taunts and charges. There is no longer room for him there. The holy angels rise and cast him out. Now Satan falls like lightning from heaven, but still full of rage and enmity against man, occupies the "heavenly places," the upper regions of the air surrounding this earth, the habitation of man, thence to carry on his devilish work.

Has he ceased to accuse the saints? I doubt it. We know that he has ceased to do so before God in heaven, but experience forbids one to think that he has ceased to hiss and whisper his accusations in the ears of God's people. Nor is it improbable that the words of the accuser are still heard and marked by that God who hears from heaven, his dwelling-place, the feeblest cry of his creatures. But the presence of the Advocate is an answer in full to every charge made, whether it be of sins committed before conversion, or the failures, inconsistencies, and, even worse, of his poor, feeble, erring children. Every accusation falls dead, for the eyes of God rest on Christ. But why does Satan continue these accusations? Why, one reason is that he appears to be so often successful. He is unable to understand the nature of repentance or grace, and, moreover, appears to be unable to distinguish between the true and the false professor. After his success with Judas ("Satan entered into him"), one of the twelve chosen ones, why should he despair of any? Peter himself he thought to have captured—what accusations must have gone up to God as to his lying and swearing. But Peter escapes; he has an intercessor: "I have prayed for thee." So the real question is not whether Satan accuses now or not. To the child of God, who has been redeemed with the precious blood of Christ from all iniquity, and who has an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the Righteous One, Satan's accusations are nothing—powerless to disturb, powerless to cause a moment's uneasiness—provided that he keeps his eye on the Righteous Advocate. "If any man sin." Sin is an awful thing, never so awful as when exhibited by one of the children of the Holy Father. Though Satan's accusations should not cause us a moment's uneasiness, no amount of sorrow can be too deep before the gracious Father for those who transgress his commandments.

*This is precisely the teaching of the articles out of which this correspondence arose. It has not here been asserted that Satan does not accuse us to our own conscience, or to others; but that he can no longer accuse us before God, because God, the Righteous Judge, has already once for all justified from all things those who believe in Him who raised up Jesus our Lord from the dead; who was delivered up for our offences, and was raised again for our justification.

Satan at present is the prince of the power of the air, the god of this age, the spirit who worketh in the sons of disobedience. In fact, he occupies the position and usurps the power which rightfully belongs to King Jesus. To Him Jehovah has said, "Sit thou at my right hand until I make thine enemies thy footstool." The Lord cometh; first, He descends into the air and takes possession there. Cometh with Archangel's shout—the shout of the war captain and the trump of God. Is it conceivable that Satan and his hosts will still maintain possession of "the heavenlies"? Nay, there is no room for Christ and his own whom He calls up to meet their Lord in the air, and Satan and his hosts. Earth henceforth must be his habitation. Accordingly, we find a great increase of Satan's activity on earth just before the manifestation of Christ with all his saints. Rev. ix. foretells the fall of a star from heaven to earth in those days, followed by the opening of the abyss and the liberation of increased hosts of malignant spirits, the multiplication of woes and calamities of all kinds among men, so that in those days men shall seek death rather than life. And all these evil spirits have as King over them the angel of the abyss, Apollyon the Destroyer.

But Satan's time is short. Soon the heaven is opened, and the "Faithful and True" one, whose name is called "The Word of God," descends to the earth as "King of kings and lord of Lords" (Rev. xix.). Again the faithless one and the liar, the contemner of the Word of God, the false king, is thrust out, and down—no room for both in one sphere—down into the abyss for the thousand years of Christ's reign on earth.

After that he must be loosed for a little season. Can it be that the patient and long-suffering God desires to see whether the awful prison discipline of the abyss has caused any sign of repentance in his rebellious angel? If so, such an expectation is speedily dispelled. He goes at once to his old work of deception of the nations and war against the saints. His case is beyond remedy, and he is cast for ever into the lake of fire. Thus the long strife is closed. Truth has triumphed over falsehood, light over darkness, holiness over sin, life over death, God over Satan.—Amen.

R. W. Beachey.

Sunday-school Florists.

That London children can successfully engage in window-sill gardening received a gratifying confirmation in the display of flowers at the Vestry Hall, St. Pancras-road, last Saturday afternoon. The hall was one blaze of floral beauty, and the sixteenth annual flower show of the Aldenham-street Sunday-school was very creditable to all concerned. As was remarked by Principal J. Oswald Dykes at the public meeting, although the Sunday-school existed for infinitely higher and more enduring objects, the promotion of a taste for flowers was a commendable subsidiary addition to distinctively religious teaching, for the discipline involved in the cultivation of plants was of high moral value in the training of the young of the working classes.

A large number of prizes was distributed by the Baroness Burdett-Coutts, who evidently enjoyed the pleasing duty and sympathetically returned the happy smiles of the respectful recipients. She was delighted to have the privilege of looking upon glad, youthful faces, and of meeting so many who devoted themselves to teaching the little ones in the Sunday-school. Flower cultivation harmonised well with spiritual work. It fixed the mind on the wondrous power of God as manifested in Nature, and fostered habits of care, attention, punctuality and perseverance which could not fail to be of valuable service in the larger sphere and wider duties of after life.

Ratcliff Strangers' Rest.

On Friday evening last the monthly workers' meeting of the Strangers' Rest, St. George's-street, E., was held. Mr. W. H. Seagram presided, and spoke most warmly of the self-denying labours of the voluntary workers who daily come from many parts of London to engage in the important work of the "Rest."

After a season of prayer, Mr. J. T. Isaac, hon. sec., gave some account of the work during the past month. He stated that at this season of the year many of the regular workers are away from town; others were prevented through ill-health; and some had been called to leave for the foreign field. He pleaded earnestly for fresh workers—either ladies or gentlemen—who would be willing any afternoon or evening during the week to deal individually with souls, speak at the indoor or open-air services, or play the harmonium. Further mention was made of the safe arrival of Miss Grainger at Zanzibar to join Mrs. Hadland at the Strangers' Rest there. The Lord is greatly blessing the work, but funds are needed.

Rev. Jas. Stephens gave a helpful and stimulating address on the subject of God's discipline of the worker's own heart. Mr. Maxwell Wright gave a very interesting account of his work in South America.

[620]

Evangelistic Notes.

Mr. William Grove has been holding an interesting series of special services at Bignold Hall, Forest-gate.

Mr. Henry Varley has just concluded a visit to Banbury, where he has been preaching the Gospel with many tokens of fruit.

Fenny Stratford.—A three weeks' mission has been conducted here by Mr. J. Stanger. The meetings have been well attended, and God's blessing rested on the work. Several professed to have found Christ.

Tent Work.—Mr. John Elliott, who has been several weeks in North Devon, conducting tent services at South Molton, North Molton, and Bishop's Nympton, has now gone into South Devon for tent meetings at Ashburton. Prayer is requested for much blessing.

Banbury.—The meetings held here by Mr. Henry Varley from June 30 to July 6 will be long remembered. The afternoon Bible Readings were much enjoyed and very profitable. Mr. Varley gave excellent addresses on the "Atonement," "Death and Afterwards," &c.

Mr. E. J. Mitchell, the Scottish Secretary of the Evangelisation Society, had a short time ago a hand laid on his shoulder by a young man, who asked: "Do you know me?" Mr. Mitchell replied that he had no remembrance of him. The man then said: "When you were at Alexandria five years ago, I got a young man to attend your meetings. He was converted to God, and so was I."

Industrial School in Ceylon.

Mr. Sheldon Knapp writes:—For the last twenty-five years Wesleyan missionaries have been working in the agricultural villages around Kalunnai, Ceylon. God has given to them very considerable success in certain villages, and six small churches have been formed. In other villages they have had no apparent success whatever. Most of the converts are extremely poor.

For some time we have seen the absolute necessity of a boarding-school, where our Christian boys can be thoroughly instructed in the Christian faith, and taught some useful trade, and where heathen lads can be separated from the pernicious influences of their idolatrous homes.

Last February we were led to purchase five acres of land to be cultivated as a garden. God has prospered us, and we have now every prospect of finding self-supporting labour for twenty boys. We have decided to teach them gardening, fruit culture, and poultry rearing, all of which are much neglected in the Eastern Province of Ceylon. We have collected and expended fifty pounds. The bungalow for the boys is not completed, nor are the wells dug, and we need another fifty pounds.

I have taken eight heathen boys, and they are doing splendidly. Nine hours every day they are in the garden working with a will. Three hours they are under instruction. Already they have the best garden in the district. We have had them only two months, but already what a change. Formerly they were dirty, ignorant coolie boys, whom no invitations or persuasions could bring to Sunday-school or to church. To-day they are clean, respectable young gardeners, striving hard to improve their scanty education, and attending all our services. Two whole months and they have had no communication with heathenism, but Christian worship and teaching and example have been before them every day.

Who will sympathise with us here in the jungle? Let such kindly send their gifts to Mr. Macdonald, Wesleyan Mission House, Bishopsgate-street Within, E.C.

Potteries and District Colportage.

This agency was established in 1889, the objects being the circulation of the Scriptures, the dissemination of cheap and pure literature, and the preaching of the Gospel of the Grace of God. The cart has visited Scarborough, York, Alton, Uttoxeter, Crewe, Leek, Newcastle-under-Lyme, the various towns included in the Staffordshire Potteries district, as well as surrounding villages and hamlets. In all these places precious seed has been scattered. The Secretary, Mr. T. J. Bell, 17, St. Clare-street, Hanley, writes:—"During the past three years we have circulated, Scriptures, twenty-eight thousand; books, various sizes, over one hundred and twenty-six thousand; tracts and leaflets, eighty-four thousand; Scripture cards, 25,800; also a number of large Scripture cartoons.

"A considerable expense is incurred in carrying on this work, in the form of tolls, carriage of books, lights, and the purchasing of books for free distribution. We are greatly crippled at the present, and unless funds are forthcoming, we shall have to curtail our efforts instead of extending them. The work is unsectarian, and the prayerful co-operation of Christian men and women of all denominations is earnestly solicited."

THE NEW CROSS Y.M.C.A. has secured new premises in Lewisham High-road.

The Book World.

The Life of St. John, by Rev. Paton J. Gloag, D.D., has been added to the series of Bible-Class Primers. (6d. T. and T. Clark.) The book has a real value, its pages presenting a large body of information, digested and condensed in a manner worthy of the scholarship and literary ability of the author.

The Ten Virgins. Four sermons on St. Matthew xxv. 1—12, and Four Addresses on the Signs of Our Lord's Second Coming. By Rev. M. B. Moorhouse, M.A., vicar of South Lyncombe, Bath. (Elliot Stock.) The author of these thoughtful and sound discourses embellishes his pages with a number of original poems on his truly grand subject. The book presents much important teaching in language which all can understand.

The Shrines; or, Chief Places of Pilgrimage of Adherents of the Church of Rome. By Robert Needham Cust. (Elliot Stock.) This is an enlarged edition of a very interesting little book. The sketches, eleven in number, are illustrated by photographs. They were, so to speak, made on the spot, and verified by the authorised religious guide-books. At the outset Dr. Cust explains:—"I describe each shrine separately, not in the least as a scoffer, but as a sincere believer in Holy Writ and in the hope that is in Christ. It is indeed from a feeling of jealousy for Bible truth that I desire to free the minds of men from such vain delusions as sprang up in a credulous age, amidst a superstitious people. The shrine of Lourdes shocks the conscience most, because it is the most modern, and clearly the contrivance of evil men."

Bread for the Day is an attractive booklet, giving brief texts for every day in the year. (2s. Nisbet.)

Believers' Baptism, by Robert Brown, is a thoughtful booklet, giving the reasons why the author submitted to believers' baptism. (1d. The Book Society, 28, Paternoster-row.

Messrs. Nisbet are issuing a series of Brief Sketches of C.M.S. Workers, by Emily Headland. A recent issue tells the deeply-interesting story of Right Rev. Thomas Valpy French, D.D., Bishop of Lahore. (2d.)

Brief Lessons in Astronomy, by William Thynne Lynn, formerly of the Royal Observatory, Greenwich, is a manual of elementary instruction for the young. The author is eminently devout, and his work is lucid and good.

A pamphlet full of information for Temperance workers is Strong Drink and its Results, compiled from various sources and the most recent statistics, by D. S. Govett, M.A., Archdeacon of Gibraltar. (1d. National Temperance Publication Depôt.)

BOOKS RECEIVED.

From Marshall Brothers.—Life in the Joy of the Lord, by Mrs. Boardman. (6d.)

From James Clarke and Co.—The Church of To-morrow, by Rev. W. J. Dawson. (3s. 6d.)

From George Stoneman.—The Safest Place in the World, and Simple Stories. (6d. each.)

From Elliot Stock.—Sermons from Browning, by Rev. F. Ealand, M.A., curate of St. Anne's, Holloway.

From T. and T. Clark.—Divine Brotherhood. Jubilee Gleanings, 1842-1892, by Newman Hall, D.D. (4s.)

From the National Temperance Publication Depôt.—Alone and Not Alone. A story founded on facts, by Mrs. Zillah Dugdale. (1s. 6d.)

From J. F. Shaw and Co.—Doctor Doctorum: The Teacher and the Book, with some remarks on Old Testament Criticism, by R. B. Girdlestone, M.A.

From R. D. Dickinson.—A Book of Prayer. Prayers in the Congregation by Henry Ward Beecher. Compiled from unpublished reports by T. J. Ellinwood, for thirty years Mr. Beecher's special stenographer.

From T. Fisher Unwin.—In the Track of the Russian Famine. A Personal Narrative of a Journey through the Famine Districts of Russia, by E. A. Brayley Hodgetts. The Early History of Trinity College, Dublin, 1591-1660, as told in contemporary records on occasion of its tercentenary, by William Urwick, M.A. (1s.)

"BETHESDA MISSION."—At a meeting of this mission, held a few days ago, Mr. Stephen J. Alexander gave a report of the half-year's work, stating that during the half-year fifteen have professed conversion in Bethesda Hall, and twenty-six in other places where we have been called to labour. Blessing has been vouchsafed in connection with the open-air work, and several have come on the Lord's side through hearing the word in the open air. Short addresses were given by Mrs. Alexander, Messrs. Stallard, H. M. Barnett, Bolton, B. Burton, and George Nokes. Information concerning this mission can be obtained from Mr. Stephen J. Alexander, Bethesda, 45, Gayhurst-road, Dalston, N.E.

THE LEAGUE OF KINDNESS.—The third annual report shows that this work is steadily increasing. The League is based on the principle that prevention is better than cure, and, among other objects, aims at efficiently starting in life boys and girls who would otherwise have no chance of learning a respectable trade, or of obtaining a permanent employment. Originally started for the benefit of children in St. Luke's Parish, Peckham, the agency is extending, the gifts of the benevolent being appropriated to the clothing of the naked and the feeding of the hungry. It is intended to open a depôt in Peckham, where garments may be purchased at cost price during the winter months by persons producing tickets given them by Christian workers. Information as to how this undertaking can be helped may be had by addressing the hon. sec., Mrs. Guest, The Cottage, Roehampton, S.W.

OBITUARY.

REV. H. W. BUNTING, OF SPANISH HONDURAS.

We hear with sorrow of the death of this promis- g young Wesleyan missionary, who commenced rk at San Pedro Su'a, Honduras, in March, 1891, d who died on June 5, while in the course of the me week his sister, Miss Kate Bunting, also died, th falling victims to the yellow fever. An epidemic as raging in San Pedro, and they devoted them- lves to ministering to the sick and dying at the st of their own lives.

REV. E. L. FORSTER.

This honoured minister passed peacefully away at reford on Friday evening, aged eighty-two, after life spent in God's work. He laboured at Stony atford, where he remained for about thirty years, ny souls being saved through his ministrations. leaving Stony Stratford he took up the pastorate Commercial-road Church, Hereford, retiring after elve years' fruitful work. He was a scholar of tensive learning, and rendered much useful ser- e to young men preparing themselves for the nis'ry.

DR. GAVIN RUSSELL, OF FORMOSA.

Rev. W. S. Swanson writes :—"Our Presbyterian reign Mission has again been heavily stricken. A legram from Tai-wan-foo states that Dr. Gavin ssell died there on Sabbath morning, the 3rd inst., typhoid fever. Dr. Russell went to China about r years ago. He was a rarely gifted and singu- ly gracious man. But he was as modest as he s gifted; and few know the heavy loss the Church s sustained in his early departure. To us who ew his fervent piety, his entire devotion, and his tinguished ability, this is a sore and heavy trial. r. Russell was sent to China by the liberality of e late Rev. R. W. Parbour, of Bonskeid.

REV. PETER LEYS.

Many will hear with regret of the death of this voted minister of Christ who, in 1885 and in vener- le old age, suffered imprisonment for conscience ke. The particulars of the strange case were fully tailed and commented on at the time, for great was e bewilderment of many that such a thing, even at e instigation of the Jesuits, could have been pos- ble in Scotland. Mr. Leys' public ministry began 1851 and ended in 1880; hence the great trial of life, which endeared him to tens of thousands, ne after his retirement, and was endured, it will be nembered, in faithfulness to the truth and in fence of grandchildren he had loved and cared for. r. Leys, who had for some time been in weak alth, passed away in Edinburgh on Thursday week the house of Mrs. John Colville.

REV. DR. CONDER.

The decease, on Wednesday morning last, of Rev. ustace R. Conder, D.D., has caused widespread gret. In March last Dr. Conder fell ill with in- enza, and weakness followed to such an extent that May, on the completion of the thirty-second year his ministry at East Parade Church, Leeds, he dressed a letter to the members intimating early intention of retiring from pastoral work. quest of health he went a few weeks ago to urnemouth, where an attack of pleurisy followed affection of the heart, to which he succumbed. ough not a popular preacher, Dr. Conder was re- rded as in the forefront of English theologians. was born near St. Albans in April, 1820, his her being Mr. Josiah Conder, the well-known hymn- iter. He was one of the first students who entered e Theological College, Spring-hill, Birmingham, d graduated M.A. at London University with nours. His first charge was at Poole, Dorset, ere he was ordained in 1844, and remained for enteen years. In 1861 he removed to Yorkshire, county with which his family had had a long con- ction, succeeding Rev. Dr. Reynolds in the pastor- of the Leeds Church. In 1872 the Congregational ion of England and Wales elected him as chair- n of its assemblies, and in the following May he sided over its deliberations in London.

Dr. Conder was the author of a "Life of Christ," d editor of a "Form for Religious Services at rriages, Funerals," &c., in general use among nconformists. He was the author of several mns, and wrote an interesting biography of his her, which contained reminiscences of the Non- formists of the early part of this century. His ef work, however, was "The Basis of Faith," a tical survey of the grounds of Christian theism, ich has secured an important position in theologi- literature. In recognition of it the University of inburgh conferred upon him the degree of D.D. 1882. We hope shortly to give an extended sketch d portrait of Dr. Conder.

KIRTON MEMORIAL FUND.—A strenuous effort being made to raise a fund for the support of Dr. rton's widow. It is stated through the failure of e business house in which John W. Kirton invested, e only thousand pounds he ever possessed has been t. We believe that from many to whom the loved author of "Buy Your Own Cherries" was ll known and highly esteemed will come a ready sponse to our appeal. The secretary is Mr. H. J. orn, 112, Fleet-street, E.C.

Temperance Notes.

THE "Beacon," a new Temperance Sailors' Rest, has been opened by the W.C.T.U. in Rhode Island.

A lady representative of the W.C.T.U. was permitted to speak at the recent Democratic and Republican Conventions on temperance affairs.

Miss Willard presided last week at a Prohibition Convention in Cincinnati. A mass temperance meeting on July 3 was attended by ten thousand people.

"The Palace," a place of amusement in Douglas, Isle of Man, for which a drink licence was refused some time ago by the magistrates, has already earned the reputation of being the best conducted place in Douglas.

The San Francisco Daily Call has been prosecuting so vigorously the enforcement of the law against selling cigarettes to boys under sixteen years, that all tobacco dealers have pledged themselves to obey the law.

In Guinness's great brewery there are fourteen millions of capital invested, and three thousand men employed. In the linen industries of Uls er there is about the same capital invested; there are one hundred thousand men employed.

Mr. H. R. Thornton, one of the two Christian heroes who has just established a mission at Cape Prince of Wales, Alaska, has been giving in Chicago heart-rending accounts of the ruin being wrought among the Esquimaux by strong drink.

The Tasmanian Congregationalists, it is reported, at their recent annual meeting rejected a proposition to form a Congregational Total Abstinence Society, and defeated an effort to compel the churches to use unfermented wines.

The British Women's Temperance Journal, which for many years has been the official organ of the British Women's Temperance Association, will enter upon another stage in its useful career in October next. Great improvements are in contemplation.

Nine counties in California are successfully enforcing prohibitory and restrictive ordinances against the liquor traffic. Santa Clara county has closed saloons on Sunday. The law prohibiting the sale of liquor to minors has been enforced in many instances.

Manxmen have long had the reputation of being a sober, frugal, and industrious people. It is stated on good authority that one-sixth of the adult population of the Isle of Man are members of the Independent Order of Rechabites, and the Good Templars have also been a great power for good.

Dr. Norman Kerr, speaking last week before the Society for the Study of Inebriety, gave the results of a careful analysis of the "gold cure," and maintained alcohol taken in the usual way was likely to do people less harm than when imbibed as an ingredient of the "gold cure." Dr. J. E. Usher, of Melbourne, took much the same view.

Dr. F. R. Lees says: "We have no example of moderate drinkers without drunkards. No family of a hundred has existed for two generations that, using strong drink, stopped at moderation—no village, no priesthood, no church, city, country, or kingdom! Whenever society has sown the seed of a little drinking, it has also reaped the harvest of much drunkenness, with all its woes!"

A true stimulus like alcohol imparts no strength whatever to the body, but simply compels the muscles, the brain, and the nerves to use up what little reserve of energy still remains. There is absolutely no food and nourishment-force in alcohol. But some one may say, "What then ought one to take when one feels tired and exhausted?" To this a physician recently replied to his patient, "Why, go and lie down like any other animal."

The liquor sellers of flooded Sioux City presented a novel proposition to the Mayor. They had arranged to create a fund of 10,000 dols., to be used by the city in repairing flood damage to bridges, &c., provided they were allowed to re-open their business. They offered to pay one-third cash and the balance in instalments, besides a monthly fifty-dollar licence fee to the city treasury. The Mayor positively refused to consider or receive the proposition.

We are glad to hear that a reform in the licensing laws appears probable in the county of Kent. The Licensing Committee have been considering the questions affecting the licensing laws, and, as a result, have proposed that heavier penalties should be inflicted for drunkenness, while they recommend that licences should not be granted to women or very young men, unless under exceptional circumstances, and that the present number of licensed houses should be reduced.

The report of the United Committee for the Prevention of the Demoralisation of the Native Races by the Liquor Traffic is accompanied by a map of Africa, showing the immense territory protected against the liquor traffic by the Act of the Brussels Convention. The line indicating this is aptly in blue ink, and looks like a wall of defence round the Dark Continent. The territory embraced by the Act is equal to about one-fifth of the globe. The Committee consider that they have, by the results achieved, made out a definite claim for more general and liberal support.

The Twilight Club of New York has recently discussed Sunday and the saloon. Here are some of the points: "There is a growing prejudice in employing sober men even to attend bars. It is absurd that a man cannot draw up a legal contract on Sunday, while the saloon-keeper is permitted to open and pursue his business. The saloon is born of the devil, and is a menace to society. The alleged right to sell liquor and create drunkards who commit crimes is preposterous. The saloon is called the poor man's parlour, but the fact is that except for the demoralising influence of the saloon the poor man might have a parlour of his own."

Personalia.

Miss Tucker, "A.L.O.E.," is, it is intimated by Rev. T. R. Wade, of Amritsar, seriously ill with fever.

Rev. Dr. Talmage has been preaching in Nottingham, Manchester, and other towns to large audiences.

Rev. George Bowden, D.D., has resolved, we hear, to resign his office as governor of the Kingswood School for the sons of Wesleyan ministers.

Rev. Robert Taylor has announced his intention of resigning his charge at Upper Norwood next year. He hopes to devote himself to a new work at Tulse-hill.

Rev. John Thomas, D.D., has returned home after an absence of several weeks, but the change has not done him the good his friends had hoped for. During the present month he is staying at Colwyn.

Mrs. F. E. Wigram has decided to take her daughter, who was accepted some months ago by the C.M.S., to the mission-field, and to see Rev. E. F. E. Wigram and Miss E. Wigram settled in their work at Lahore.

The Khedive of Egypt, whose father helped the British and Foreign Sailors' Society, and whose grandfather gave a vessel to be used in the harbour of Alexandria, has sent £30 to the Society, associating it with the Albert Victor Memorial Fund.

The Bishop of Qu'Appelle (Rev. Dr. Anson), who, some years ago, surrendered his charge at Woolwich in response to the call from the far North-West, is resigning his Bishopric, believing that it needs "better, worthier, and stronger hands."

Rev. John Fleming M'Swaine, of the Scots Church, Brisbane, who is greatly esteemed in Queensland by all denominations, as an eminent theologian, and one of the ablest preachers in the Presbyterian Church, has been prostrated by very serious illness.

Mrs. Hewlett, now in England, wishes to thank her many friends in England and in India for their kind letters of sympathy with her in her great sorrow through the death of her husband, Rev. John Hewlett, of the London Missionary Society, Benares, North India. She regrets to be unable to reply personally to the great number of letters she has received.

Rev. J. D. Kilburn, pastor of the English Reformed Church, Hamburg, is the author of "The Preacher and his Work," which is so highly spoken of, and quoted by Dr. Stalker in his new book on "The Preacher and his Models." It was written whilst Mr. Kilburn was pastor of the British and American Church in St. Petersburg. It is published as a penny pamphlet by Messrs. Passmore and Alabaster.

THE BIBLE IN BRAZIL.—The Bible Society employed last year seven colporteurs in Brazil. They circulated nearly three thousand copies of Scriptures, and additional sales from depots brought up the total issues to more than twenty-one thousand copies. This is not a large number among the fourteen millions of the population, but there are other Christian agencies at work, and between eighty and ninety per cent. of the people are illiterate, not to mention the hostility of priests and atheists, who are specially active in Brazil. Writing about the state of society, the agent says:—"The full religious liberty established in 1890 by the Republic, did not change the mind of the nation, nor arouse inquiry about the Gospel. Men are always the same, and though the Gospel does its work among some, the majority seek the things below, not those that are above.'

HOME FRANCAIS, PARIS.—This Home was opened in 1885 for young servant girls of any nationality in need of the shelter of a temporary home, and for these years the principal financial burden has been borne by the founder, Miss E. P. Morgan. Now, however, a ladies' committee has been formed, and there is need for thirty to forty pounds annually. The new report says: "Under Miss Wellington's management the work took a fresh start, and has since then developed in every way; numerous are the testimonies of gratitude received from those who have benefited by it, and many a young servant has learned to look on it as her home. The morning prayers, and the short evening service, are gladly attended by the inmates, many of whom hear, for the first time, the Bible read and explained, and join with delight in our sweet Gospel hymns." Communications may be addressed to Miss Wellington, 17, rue de l'Arc de Triomphe, Paris.

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

The C.M.S. has had a legacy of £2000 left it by Miss Lloyd, of Stockton Hall.

The Church Parochial Mission Society has resolved to send a missioner to labour for three months in the Bush districts around Ballarat.

Letters have been received from Dr. H. Martyn Sutton, of Quettah, announcing the arrival there of Dr. Marcus Eustace. The need of more workers is deeply felt.

The new Missions to Seamen steam vessel for the River Tees was launched on Tuesday at Stockton, when Mrs. Fearnsides, of Harrogate, the donor, named the mission craft the Day Star.

The Midland Clerical and Lay Association has just held its annual meetings at Nottingham, the themes treated including higher criticism, systematic Bible teaching, and the Eastern churches.

A colportage and mission van has just been dispatched by the Church Army for work amongst the fruit pickers and haymakers of Kent. It is in charge of an experienced evangelist, assisted by several young men.

Opening a new church last week at Warrington, the Bishop of Liverpool said that when he came to the diocese twelve years ago he found a great spiritual famine, but during that period thirty-five new churches had been added.

A new vicarage is being built hard by St. James's, Holloway, the vicar, Rev. E. A. Stuart, being anxious to live right among the poor people that he might be at hand as a helper and counsellor, as, for example, Mr. Scott in Spitalfields is.

A very remarkable scene was witnessed in the Committee room of the C.M.S. at Salisbury-square on Tuesday afternoon. No fewer than twenty ladies who have been accepted for service were introduced to the Committee. Never before have so many recruits been welcomed in one body.

Writing with respect to a mission held some time ago in Leeds, a clergyman states that hundreds of young people were reached by this agency who, but for it, would have been abandoned to lives of utter godlessness. Numbers who never thought of entering a place of worship have become as a result of this organisation interested in spiritual things, and it is hoped that not a few have been led to know and love their Saviour.

The fourteenth anniversary of the Kensington (St. Mary) branch of the C.F.S. was held last week. The Society now had 137,350 members, being an increase of 5266, while there were 35,342 candidates, or an increase of 3123 during the past year. The membership of the branch at the end of 1891 was 950, the number of associates on the roll being 152. Employment had been found through the branch registry for 268 members during the year, while the industrial department had sent 3040 articles of clothing to poorer branches. The Duchess of Albany distributed the long-membership cards, prizes for Scripture, premiums for long and faithful service, certificates of merit, &c., to the successful members.

CONGREGATIONAL.

A mission branch of Ebenezer Church, Cardiff, has been established in Pearl-street, Splotlands.

The late Miss Pritchard, of Ossett, has left a legacy of £500 to the United Congregational College, Bradford.

Rev. W. M. Anstey feels compelled to resign the pastorate he has held for twenty-nine years at Tollesbury.

The Tabernacle, Sheffield, narrowly escaped destruction on Thursday week, through a fire, which completely destroyed the premises of a manufacturing confectioner close by.

At York-road, Lambeth, the work continues to prosper, twenty-one being added last year to the church, while a trained nurse has been appointed for the poor of the district.

Rev. William Roberts, of Notting-hill, has been elected Chairman of the Board of Directors of the London Missionary Society, with Mr. Alfred J. Shepheard as vice-chairman.

Mr. F. W. Borcham, who has for some five months been conducting the services at Park-crescent Congregational Church, Clapham, with tokens of blessing, gave his farewell address on Tuesday evening, June 28.

The annual meetings of the Welsh Congregational Union, held last week at Ferndale, showed many encouraging features. The Chairman, Rev. Josiah Jones, gave a thoughtful address on "Fidelity to the Gospel."

The Cleveland Independent, referring to the entrance of Rev. W. H. Skinner on his new work at Middlesborough, stated that at least two additional men, specially adapted for evangelistic work, are needed in this rapidly growing district.

An iron church, to seat 400 persons, erected at Southtown for the congregation of the Countess of Huntingdon's Connexion formerly worshipping in Fish-street, was opened on Thursday week with sermons by Rev. Dr. Reynolds.

Rev. W. Griffith, presiding at the annual meeting of the Carnarvonshire Association, said that after 36 years of ministerial work in the county, he was glad to find that, although they only had thirty-six churches in 1856, in 1892 they had 104.

It has been decided that the one hundred additional missionaries to be sent out on the London Missionary Society during the next four years shall be distributed as follows: China 35, India 35, Madagascar 10, Africa 15, Polynesia and New Guinea 5.

The Ipswich Congregational Union held its annual summer Conference at Debenham on Monday week. Rev. E. Keen, of Framlingham, read a paper on "The Grouping of Village Churches." At the public meeting, under the presidency of Mr. S. T. Harwood, addresses were given by Revs. Palmer Lewis, G. Ingate, A. A. Dowsett, T. A. Carritt, and T. Devine.

At the annual meeting of the London Missionary Society in Melbourne, the eminent missionary, Rev. W. G. Lawes, reported that "the missionaries from the different denominations worked most harmoniously together. When a new church was recently opened on the shores of the harbour the lessons were read by a clergyman of the Anglican Church, the dedicatory prayer was offered by a Congregational minister, a Wesleyan performed the Communion office, a Presbyterian preached the sermon."

BAPTIST.

The work at Rotherhithe (New-road) is full of encouragement.

Special services at Chipperfield have been followed with much interest.

A new chapel has just been opened by Professor Marchant at Bracknell.

At Ebenezer, Bradford, the P.S.A. has been the means of adding many to the church.

The anniversary services of Wycliffe Church, Birmingham, proved interesting and useful.

A Baptist Church in Kentucky has excluded a minister for "preaching the modern doctrine of sinless perfection."

A new chapel in Liscard-road, Egremont, Liverpool, has just been opened by the Rev. T. Vincent Tymms, Principal of Rawdon College.

A series of special services are being held throughout this month in Graham-street, Birmingham, by Revs. F. B. Meyer, C. G. Moore, and J. G. Gregson.

The anniversary services of the Baptist Chapel at Whitwell, a branch of the Walsworth-road Church at Hitchin, were held on Sunday and Monday last week.

Rev. William Tulloch has agreed to withdraw his resignation of the pastorate of Duncan-street Church, Edinburgh, in accordance with an urgent and unanimous request from the congregation.

The annual gatherings of ministers, students, and associates of the Manchester College was held last week. Rev. E. Parker, D.D., gave his presidential address on "The Holy Spirit in our Preparation for Preaching."

The anniversary of the work under the care of Pastor Hooper at Hendon proved deeply interesting. The secretary's report showed fifty-nine additions to the church during the past year. Addresses were delivered by Revs. J. R. Wood, J. R. Cox, G. Turner, James Stephens, and the pastor.

A generous friend, who desires that his name should not be disclosed, has contributed, through Mrs. C. H. Spurgeon, the greater part of the cost of sending Mr. Spurgeon's address on "The Greatest Fight in the World" to more than 35,000 ministers of all denominations in the United Kingdom. This has added to Mrs. Spurgeon's Book Fund efforts. Never strong, she is just now overtaxing herself; appeals for grants from her Book Fund have lately been pouring in upon her. The work is, however, to her one of love, more so now that he whose works she seeks to place on the library shelves of poor ministers has passed away.

PRESBYTERIAN.

A new church was opened on Sunday in Sunderland by Rev. Dr. McGaw.

Five new Presbyterian missionaries were sent out last year from Canada.

Capital open-air services are held by Rev. D. Matheson and his people at a central point in the High-street, Putney.

There seems every likelihood that the Welsh Calvinistic Methodists and the Presbyterians of England and Wales will soon form closer relations.

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada has just held its annual session in Montreal, Principal Caven being elected Moderator.

The church at Crouch-hill has formed itself into a Mission Society, to be called "The Crouch-hill Presbyterian Church of England Missionary Associaton."

St. Andrews Presbyterian Church, Nottingham, under the care of Rev. R. Cowan, continues to make progress; the membership is now three times what it was twelve years ago, a vigorous district mission has been established, and at present the question of enlarging the seating accommodation of the church, and erecting additional buildings, is under consideration.

The foreign work of the Canadian Church is conducted in five fields—the New Hebrides, Trinidad, the Indian fields of the North-West, Formosa and Honan in China, and Central India. A new mission has been recently entered upon among the Chinese of British Columbia, and the year is marked by the departure of Dr. Webster, to establish a new mission in Palestine.

METHODIST.

A Joyful News van has just started work in Wales.

The Wesleyans have opened a fine new chapel at St. Leonards-on-Sea.

The Wesley Institute, Manchester, is doing a singularly useful aggressive work.

On Sunday week over eighty new members were publicly received at the Central Mission, Leeds.

Remarkably interesting services have just been held at Porthleven by Revs. W. D. Walters and J. H. Hopkins.

The Langton-street Chapel in Bristol is to be made a mission centre, under the direction of a committee representing the whole city.

The anniversary services of the Central Mission Manchester proved unusually interesting; Dr. Talmage preaching in the evening to a vast congregation.

At the annual district meeting of Shebbear Bible Christians a resolution strongly deprecating the increase of juvenile smoking was unanimously passed.

Rev. Thomas Champness drew large congregations at Arkwright-street Chapel, Nottingham, on Thursday week. The themes were exactly in harmony with the preacher's taste, and well suited to impress the people with the importance of a true, brave, self-denying Christian life and character.

A Welsh Methodist paper refers to the remarkable success which attended Mr. Moody's services in Cardiff, and adds:—"The excellent plan was adopted of following up Mr. Moody's visit, by holding evangelistic services at all the Wesleyan chapels. There were large congregations, powerful meetings, and, best of all, conversions.

A Wesleyan minister preaching lately in a Nottinghamshire village, lectured on the Monday on "Spurgeon," the rector took the chair. This catholic-minded rector frequently calls upon the local preachers in the village to talk over their sermonising, and is always willing to lend his horse and carriage to convey them to their appointments.

A Liverpool Welsh Circuit has spontaneously undertaken to bear the entire cost of employing a young Welsh minister as a home missionary in the colliery district in the neighbourhood of Wigan. There are many Welshmen there, and a comparatively poor Welsh circuit in Liverpool has undertaken, in this truly apostolic spirit, to look after them.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

Reports published in The Friend of last week show that, notwithstanding difficulties in China, the work moves steadily on at Chung-King, and also in Madagascar, where great union in prayer and work is resulting in much blessing.

At the Friends' First-day School Association annual meeting, held in Ackworth on the 28th ult., there was growth reported in every department. Yet the feeling found expression that the movement should spread far more widely, and representatives are to confer with the Central Committee, Bristol, with that object in view.

Last week brought the sad intelligence from India of the sudden death of Elizabeth Jackson, who has been so earnestly and devotedly engaged for about three years there. The cablegram only announces the melancholy fact, and the deepest sorrow and sympathy will be widely felt for such a loss to the Church and to India.

The various "General Meetings" of the Friends' Boarding Schools have just been held, and several of them show remarkable prosperity and advancement. At Lisburn £1300 are being spent in alterations and improvements. Sidcup is enlarging its rooms for the increase of health and comfort. Saffron Waldon again looks up, and hope and growth are manifest; while Ackworth holds on its noble way. "Old Scholars' Associations" are producing an esprit de corps full of benefit to the various institutions. Thus the Friends keep their place in the great educational work of the country, as they have done in the past.

The Bombay Guardian, so ably conducted by Alfred S. Dyer and staff in the interest of morality, justice, purity, and spiritual truth, is one of the best weekly journals in India. Early last month about one hundred sympathisers, friends, and supporters assembled for the dedication of the new and enlarged premises, and after a social tea and the review of many historical reminiscences deeply interesting, concluded with solemn prayer for help and guidance in the arduous battle so persistently waged for righteousness, and against unequal laws, promoting the opium traffic and impurity. They have our best wishes for abundant success.

SALVATION ARMY.

Mrs. Carrie Judd Montgomery, of Buffalo, U.S.A., editor of "Triumphs of Faith," with her husband, has recently joined the Salvation Army.

The "Great Philanthropy" sketch, by Archdeacon Farrar in The Review of the Churches for the present month is the Army Social Scheme. The article is well written, warmly sympathetic, and fully illustrated.

Colonel Lucy Booth expects to sail for India in August. She is much stronger, and full of faith that God, who has so clearly called her to her far-off field, will, in his grace, enable her to meet its great needs.

On Saturday evening the Salvationists at Braintree were again subjected to brutal treatment whilst holding an open-air service in the market-place, several men and women being severely handled by the mob.

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

Several additional young men are just now about to be employed as Methodist evangelists in various parts of Ireland.

Eighty day schools under the supervision of the Belfast Presbytery have just been examined in the course of religious knowledge, prescribed by the Presbyterian Church, and of these 335 pupils in thirty-four schools gained first-class honour certificates.

The tercentenary of Trinity College, Dublin, was celebrated last week with great enthusiasm. A large number of delegates were present from various centres of learning all over the world, and honorary degrees were conferred on several persons, including Rev. Dr. Dallinger, Methodist minister well known as a distinguished scientist.

In Agnes-street Congregational Church, Belfast, which has just been taken over by the Presbyterian Church, an interim session has been appointed to take charge of the congregation, to confer with the members as to the name by which the church is to be designated, to appoint trustees so as to secure the property to the General Assembly, and to provide for the ministerial supply.

FALLEN ASLEEP.

At Grafton Underwood, Kettering, on the 2nd inst., Hon. and Rev. J. Courtenay J. Vernon, who had been rector of the parish since 1854.—At Silverdale (Lancs.), on the 4th inst., aged eighty-three, Mrs. Pain, widow of Rev. T. L. Pain, formerly of Liverpool.—At Gilmerton, Crieff, on the 4th inst., Rev. John Reed Omond, D.D., a Pre-Disruption minister, and one of the few remaining fathers of the Free Church.—At Loughborough, very suddenly, Mrs. Mason, loved and respected as a helper of many.—At Walworth, Mr. W. H. Vickbridge, a generous supporter of the Lord's work.—At Weston-super-Mare, on July 1, after five years of intense suffering, Mr. C. A. Seaton, formerly of Blackford, Somerset.—At Linden-gardens, W., on the 5th inst, Rev. W. C. Green, M.A., late headmaster of Clare Mount College, Wallasey.—At Lamarsh Rectory, on the 4th inst., Rev. C. B. Teesdale.—At Redcote, Bitterne, Rev. H. Usborne, aged eighty-one.—At Harwell, Miss E. E. Allen, who since her conversion some years ago, has given herself devotedly to Christian service for the young.—At Sutton, Surrey, on July 2, Mrs. Henman, aged thirty-two, wife of Rev. H. J. Henman.—At Gateshead, through a street accident, Mr. John Taylor, long a devoted Sunday-school superintendent.

Notices.

Communications Received with Thanks. — W.H.S. A.T.J. P.M. T.N. J.E. S.R. F.F.Y. M.G. W.A.H. E.K. A.E.M. T.A.W. H.T.S. F.S.A. J.McA. E.A. W.B.L. C.H.C. J.J.K. Miss G. C.E.O. W.L.L. C.L. J.J. G.A. E.E.H. H.B. G.W.P. M.H.C. G.J.H. R.W. J.G. A.P. W.W. R.J.H.S. J.G.D. A.D. S.A. C.N.B.M. P.G.L. J.D.K. J.G.D. S.A. G.M.P. R.K. J.D. L.B. A.J. W.S.W. E.S. M.B.G. C.M.W. C.G.C. C.P. D.J.M. W.D. F.F. D.N. W.D.C. W.H. J.S. R.T. A.M.

Miss E. Shaw, 451, Crookesmoor-road, Sheffield, desires to know whether a leaflet entitled "Himself," and commencing:—

"Once it was the blessing,
Now it is the Lord;
Once it was the feeling,
Now it is his word,"

can be had in print, and if so, who is the publisher?

Applicants for Tracts.—Joseph Aggis, 17, Settles-street, Commercial-road, E.; G. Brown, Hope Cottage, Hale End-lane, Walthamstow; Miss M. Trice, 5, Albert-street, Sheerness-on-Sea; Miss Fanny Morris, 3, Portland-terrace, Southsea, Hants; J. Bell, Winterbourne, Sutton-grove, Surrey; G. Burton, Easter Cottage, Hailsham; A. H. Hines, 3, St. Paul's-road, Newton Abbot, South Devon; W. R. Taylor, 162, Northumberland-road, Southampton; J. Wilham, 12, Ewing-street, Maidman-street, Canal-road, E.; E. Hawker, Scripture Reader to Wittington Heath Barracks Soldiers' Home.

[As it is found that infidels and others send tracts to the persons whose names are inserted here, it is most desirable that all books and papers should be carefully read before being given away.]

(For Donations, &c., see Page 28.)

PEARS

SOAP MAKERS

BY SPECIAL APPOINTMENT

TO

HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE

Prince of Wales.

MAZAWATTEE

"THE LOVING CUP."

PEACE. LOVE. WAR.

Recalls the Delicious Teas of Thirty Years Ago.

MRS. RICKETTS ON THE CONGO.

Allow me, through you, to thank all who have sent contributions to the box lately despatched to Lukunga for Mrs. Ricketts and her schools. Mr. Jameson, of the Liverpool Y.M.C.A., kindly undertook the packing and shipping. He reports as follows: "Large box from T. Crosbie, Esq., Glasgow, containing scores of prints, handkerchiefs, children's frocks, beads, &c. Parce's from Miss E. K. Brown, Blackheath; Miss E. E. Clark, West Ham; Ellen Clark, Dulwich; Anonymous, Sunderland; S. A. C., Pimlico; Miss A. Hay, Cashem; Mdme. Desgrande, Highbury; Three Readers of The Christian; and Anon., Hornsey."

Then I was able to forward with my own contributions, to Liverpool, parcels from Mrs. and Miss White, Southend (forty-six pincushions and twenty-two needlecases); Miss Creese, Tewkesbury; Anon., Bournemouth; Miss Pearl; and, from Eastbourne, were contributions from three anonymous friends, one a specially valuable parcel of calico, shirting, scissors, thimbles, &c., and from Mr. Plummer, W. W. Hind Smith, Lady de Wet's little girls, May and Violet, a lady at the "House of Rest," and Mr. King.

The kind friends of the "dear little coloured woman" labouring on the Congo with her husband, will be interested to hear that, in addition to her schools for girls in and near Lukunga, she has now a little daughter of her own to care for. The news came from her husband in time for me to add to the box just starting some special small gifts in the way of frocks and sun-bonnets for the "wee stranger." I have since heard from the mother as follows:—

"We are much cheered because you have us in mind. Please kindly accept much thanks for your kind letter, and all the help you are rendering us. We are now anxiously looking out for the box sent from Liverpool. The good Lord is blessing the work here very much; souls are being converted and baptized; the educational work is making rapid improvement, several schools all around, besides the one on the station here, and the people are learning to read and write nicely. My school at Nyoijo is doing well; some of the people are now able to read "The Peep of Day." I have thirty-two on the roll, and not less than twenty in average attendance. They have covered the roof of their schoolhouse. I have now six bright little girls under training for future usefulness. The mothers just beginning to give up their little daughters freely for this blessed work.... Baby is quite well; her name is Mary. Very kind regards.—Yours sincerely, Letitia Ricketts."

Will our friends pray for little Mary?—Yours, &c., Rebekah J. Hind Smith.

Pevensey Bay.

CHINA INLAND MISSION NOTES.

Mr. and Mrs. Hudson Taylor arrived at Vancouver on May 28, and, after spending a little time in the Rocky Mountains for rest and quiet, proposed leaving Montreal for Liverpool on July 3, and hope to attend the Keswick Convention.

Mr. Taylor quite broke down through overstrain before leaving China. We had hoped the sea voyage would have restored him, but last accounts from Western Canada tell of great feebleness and suffering from sub-acute gastritis, necessitating almost exclusive milk diet. We beg for him, and for Mrs. Taylor, in her time of anxious watching, the constant prayers of our friends. Much important work awaits their arrival in this country.

Mr. Montagu Beauchamp and Miss Florence Barclay were united in marriage at Pao-ning, Si-ch'uen, on April 20.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Eason, who have just reached England, have returned with a view to engaging in work in connection with the Salvation Army. We pray for them much blessing, and the realisation of their best wishes.—China's Millions.

KESWICK CONVENTION.—It has been arranged to hold a meeting of Y.W.C.A. secretaries and other workers amongst young women during the week of the Keswick Convention. Thursday, July 28, will be the date, and the place, the large reception-room belonging to the Keswick Hotel, close to the station. Friends are invited to tea at 3.30; and the meeting from 4 to 5.30 will partially take the form of a farewell to Miss Thompson, who recently resigned her position as Travelling Secretary, in order to go out to Agra this autumn, as a C.M.S. missionary.

THE CONGO TRAINING INSTITUTE at Colwyn Bay, North Wales, has for its object the Christian training of African converts, with the idea of their returning with a trade in their hands, as well as a religious education, in order to teach their fellow-countrymen. Recently the committee has resolved upon an extension of the original scheme, and to send out to South Africa two white missionaries, who will establish there a similar institution. Collecting cards in aid are being readily taken up. The founder and director of the institute is Rev. W. Hughes, F.R.G.S., who has elaborated his very attractive scheme for civilising and evangelising the Dark Continent in a small work, entitled "Dark Africa and the Way Out." (2s. Sampson Low and Co.)

[624]

DONATIONS
RECEIVED BY MESSRS. MORGAN & SCOTT TO MONDAY, JULY 11, 1892.

 Donations should be sent by Cheque or P.O.Orders, not by stamps.

 Cheques, Money Orders, or Postal Orders should be made payable to Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings, London, E.C., and crossed "City Bank;" this will effectually prevent loss.

	£	s.	d.
Rabbi Lichtenstein (Personal)—L.C., 5s.; Mr. and Mrs. G.O., £1	1	5	0
Persecution in Persia—Of Thine Own	0	5	0
Miss De Broen's Work (Paris)—R.T., £10; V.W., £1	11	0	0
New Church, Intra (Miss Cox)—Of Thine Own	0	5	0
Mrs. Lewis's Work (Paris)—R.T.	10	0	0
Queensland Kanaka Mission—Of Thine Own	0	5	0
North Africa Mission—R.T., £10; (Egypt)—E., £1	11	0	0
Zenana Mission (Mrs. Gilmore)—Mr. and Mrs. G.O.	10	0	0
Maloga Aboriginal Mission—R.T.	10	0	0
Father Chiniquy—R.T.	5	0	0
Miss Whately's Work (Cairo)—V.W.	1	0	0
McAll Mission, Paris—R., £10; V.W., £1	11	0	0
Congo Balolo Mission—T.H.	0	10	0
Paris City Mission—R.	10	0	0
Lepers of India—R., £10; M.G.G., £5	15	0	0
Persecuted Jews—T.H.	0	10	0
Mrs. Wall's Work, Rome—R.	10	0	0
Society for the Relief of Persecuted Jews—R., £20; Hilda, 2s. 6d.	20	2	6
Eurasian Children (Miss Anstey)—E., £1; T.L.S., £1; Of Thine Own, £1	3	0	0
Church Missionary Society (Uganda)—E.J.M.	5	0	0
China Inland Mission—1 Cor. vi.20, £5; Mr. S., £3; M.G.G., £5; S.M.P., 10s.; (Peter Rijnhart's Outfit)—The Lord's Work, per J.P., £2; J.P., £1	16	10	0
John G. Paton Mission Fund—L.Y.	1	0	0
British Syrian Schools—S.S.	0	5	0
Persecuted Jews in Russia—Prospera	1	0	0
British and Foreign Bible Society—Z.A.	2	0	0
Moravian Mission—B.	3	0	0
Spanish and Italian Mission, Buenos Ayres—Unit, £5; Miss W., 10s.	5	10	0
Cape General Mission—J.P.C.	0	11	0
Famine in Russia (Rev. A. Francis)—V.W.	3	0	0
Friendless and Fallen—G.F.W., £2; R.T., £10; F.K., 5s.	12	5	0
East London Training Institute (Students to Keswick)—Of Thine Own	0	10	0
London Congregational Union (Children's Holiday Fund)—Elsie, 10s.; T.C., 10s.; C.M., 10s.; Inasmuch, 10s.	2	0	0
Day in Country Fund—L.C., 3s.; R.T., £5; Hilda, 2s.; K.L.M., 5s.; T.L.S., £1; A.S., Torquay, 2s. 6d.; E.M.D., 5s.; J.M.H., 10s.; C.S., 10s., S.M.P., 10s.; M.G.G., 5s.; E.A., 10s.; Mr. and Mrs. G.O., £2; Ada, 2s. 6d.	11	5	0
Ragged School Union—R.T., £10; (Day in Country)—E.B.S., £1	11	0	0
Seamen's Christian Friend Society—R.T.	10	0	0
Scripture Readers' Society, Ireland—Miss W.	0	10	0
Keith Falconer Mission—R.T.	5	0	0
Mission to Deep-Sea Fishermen—R.T., £10; Belfast, £1	11	0	0
Miss Daniel's Work (Soldiers)—R.T.	10	0	0
Philo-Judæan Society—Of Thine Own	0	10	0
Open-Air Mission—R.T.	5	0	0
Gerrard-yard Mission, &c.—1 Cor. vi. 20, £2 10s.; (Day in Country)—Of Thine Own, 5s.	2	15	0
London Samaritan Society—R.T.	2	0	0
Miss Weston's Work (Royal Navy)—T.H.	0	10	0
Mr. W. Forbes' Work (Ballet Girls)—R.T.	2	0	0
Billingsgate Christian Mission R.T.	2	0	0
Miss Robinson's Work (Soldiers)—E.J.M., £1; T.H., 10s.	1	10	0
London City Mission—R.	20	0	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—R., £20; F.K., 5s.; A.S., Torquay, 2s. 6d; Croydon, 7s. 6d.; S.M.P., £1; E. and L.H., Swansea, 5s.; M.T., £1; 1 Cor. vi. 20, £2 10s.	25	10	0
Gawin Kirkham Memorial Fund—M.S.	5	5	0
Mr. Fegan's Homes—R., £5; S.M.P. 10s.; (Camping Out) Mr. and Mrs G. O., £1	21	10	0
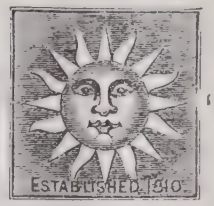
Tower Hamlets Mission—1 Cor. vi.20	2	10	0
Southend Home (Mrs. Self Leonard)—Misses C., £1; L.M.C., £2	3	0	0
Home of Industry—Misses C., £2; E.J.M., £1	3	0	0
Mildmay Institutions—1 Cor. vi. 20, £5; (The Haven, Southwark)—Misses C., £1; (Medical Mission)—E.J.M., 10s.	6	10	0
Dr. Stephenson's Girls' Parlour—Misses C.	0	10	0
Children's Special Service Mission—Misses C.	0	10	0
General Booth's Social Scheme—Misses C., £1; C.S., 10s.; E.A., 10s.	2	0	0
Salvation Army (France and Switzerland)—Misses C.	1	0	0
Homes for Blind Children, Clapton—Misses C.	0	10	0
North-East London Gospel Mission (Holiday Homes)—M.S.W.	0	10	0
Hospital Sunday Fund—M.G.G.	0	5	0
St. Giles' Christian Mission—A.G., 5s.; H.M.A., 5s.; Mr. and Mrs. G.O., £3; 1 Cor. vi. 20, £2 10s.; (Prison)—E.J.P., 5s.; (Holiday)—S.E.D., 5s.; G.M., 5s.; E. and L. H., Swansea, 5s.	7	0	0
Costcross Mission (Sick Mothers)—A.G.	0	5	0
Railway Men's Convalescent Home (Hastings)—L.M.C.	1	1	0
Anti-Opium Fund—S.E.D.	0	2	6
Bible and Colportage Society (Ireland)—Belfast	1	0	0
Joshua Poole—M.S.	10	0	0
Mrs. Huntley (Jamaica)—R.C.M.	5	0	0
Homes for Aged Blind (Crouch Hill)—Mrs. de M.	0	5	0
Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children—A.L.	2	0	0
Mission Hall (Hatcham)—M.S.	1	0	0
Christian Temperance Home—Heaton Chapel	0	5	0
Union Hall Mission (Tent Work)—Mr. and Mrs. G.O.	3	0	0
Mildmay Mission to Jews—Capt. D.L.B.	10	0	0
	£391	2	0



[Advertisement.]

The London Samaritan Society, 98, High-street, Homerton, E. (for Convalescent Homes)—Miss L., 5s.; Mrs. R., £1 7s. 6d.; W.D., Esq., 5s.

Ragged School Union Holiday Homes Fund—S.R., 5s.

(For Forthcoming Meetings, &c., see Page 30.)

SUN LIFE OFFICE

"All Loadings Returned."

Apply for the New Prospectus at the Chief Office,

63, THREADNEEDLE STREET, E.C.,

HARRIS C. L. SAUNDERS, General Manager.

SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY
FOR IRELAND.

Funds greatly needed to extend the work.

Irish-speaking readers are sent where required, and the work is carried on in a spirit of love.

Reports sent on application to Captain J. Kearney White, Offices, 27, Lower Pembroke-street, Dublin, and 9, Paternoster-row, London, where Donations may be sent; or to the Office of The Christian. John xiii. 35.

Please notice exact title of Society.

LONDON CITY MISSION.

500 MISSIONARIES now employed in beseeching the masses in the Metropolis to be reconciled to God through Jesus Christ our Lord. House-to-house visitation Personal dealing. Work purely undenominational.

THE NEED IS URGENT.

Secretaries: T. S. Hutchinson, M.A., Robert Dawson, B.A.
Treasurer: F. A. Bevan. Office: 3, Bridewell-place, E.C.
Bankers: Barclay, Bevan, Ransom & Co., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.

EAST LONDON
HOSPITAL FOR CHILDREN,
GLAMIS ROAD, SHADWELL, E.

The ONLY HOSPITAL with a SPECIAL WARD FOR INFANTS ONLY.

Relies Entirely for its Support upon Christian and Public Benevolence.

OVER 281,400 PATIENTS HAVE BEEN TREATED.

The Board of Management feel confident that this APPEAL TO THE READERS OF "THE CHRISTIAN" will not be made in vain.

Samuel Whitford, Secretary.

PENTECOSTAL LEAGUE.

EXETER HALL, STRAND
(Lower Hall).

MR. and MRS. READER HARRIS,

and Members of the Pentecostal Mission, will (D.V.) conduct the last of the SPECIAL

HOLINESS MEETINGS,

on TUESDAY EVENING, JULY 19th, at 8 o'clock.

Please pray for this Meeting, come to it, and bring your friends. Admission Free. Doors open at 7.

These Meetings will (D.V.) be resumed in the Autumn.

FRESH AIR for Poor Wee CHILDREN.—For each 10s. subscribed a pent-up little London Child can be boarded out for 14 days. During seven seasons 3,197 have enjoyed these delicious holidays. Funds most pressingly needed.—Bankers: L. and County, Islington.—A. Styleman Herring (for Local Committee), Vicar St. Paul's, Clerkenwell, 45, Colebrooke-row, N.

THE RAILWAY MISSION

Carries on Gospel and Temperance work among railway men throughout the world. Its Missionaries and Evangelists organise and conduct meetings at times and places that suit the convenience of the men. 350 branches have been opened in the United Kingdom. Missionaries have been sent to South Africa and Egypt.

A Convalescent Home specially for maimed and wounded railway men is about to be opened at Hastings.

Funds are urgently needed. Subscriptions and donations may be sent to the Treasurer, S. Gurney Sheppard, Esq., 57, Old Broad-street, E.C.; or to R. Nixon, Secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, London, E.C.

St. Giles' Christian Mission

CHILDREN'S HOLIDAY FUND.

The Holiday Season is close upon us, and the Children attending the Sunday Schools of the St. Giles' Christian Mission are anxiously looking forward to their Annual Treat. Last year, in addition to giving a Day's Outing to 1500

Little Ones, drawn chiefly from the Courts and Alleys of St. Giles', we were enabled to send considerably over 200 for a fortnight in the country. We are anxious to do at least as much this year.

WILL YOU HELP?

Donations will be most thankfully acknowledged if sent to our Treasurer, F. A. Bevan, Esq., 54, Lombard St., E.C., or to Mr. W. Wheatley, Superintendent St. Giles' Christian Mission, 4, Ampton St., Regent Sq., W.C.

"I have never tasted Cocoa that I like so well."
Sir C. A. Cameron, M.D., President Royal College of Surgeons, Ireland.

FRY'S PURE CONCENTRATED COCOA

60 PRIZE MEDALS AWARDED TO
J. S. FRY & SONS,
BRISTOL, LONDON, and SYDNEY.

BE CAREFUL TO ASK FOR FRY'S PURE CONCENTRATED COCOA.

WEDDING GIFTS. BIRTHDAY PRESENTS.
REWARD BOOKS AND PRIZES.

The VARIOUS MOROCCO-BOUND EDITIONS of SACRED SONGS & SOLOS 750 Pieces,

Compiled and Sung by IRA D. SANKEY,

Are very handsomely got up, with gilt lettering on the back and side and gilt edges. For Presentation under any circumstances, as well as for Rewards and Prizes, a copy of one of the editions of SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS, in the best binding, is always acceptable, as well as useful.

The following is a selection from the COMPLETE LIST OF EDITIONS, which will be sent post-free on application:—

WORDS ONLY.

Extra Large Type.

	s. d.
EE 5. Morocco, Gilt	6 6
EE 6. ,, with Flaps, Kid Lined	9 6
EE 4. Cloth, Bevelled Bds., Gilt Edges	3 6

Large Type.

DD 5. Morocco, Gilt	4 6
DD 4. Cloth, Gilt...	2 6

Pocket Edition.

CC 4. Morocco, Gilt	3 0
CC 5. ,, with Flaps, Kid Lined	4 6
CC 3. Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt ...	1 6

MUSIC AND WORDS.

Quarto Edition.

For use at the Piano, Organ, or Harmonium.

	s. d.
MM 3. Persian Morocco, Boards, Gilt	17 6
MM 4. Best Turkey Morocco, Gilt ...	25 0
MM 2. Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt...	9 6

Old Notation—Large Type.

FF 5. Morocco, Gilt	10 6
FF 3. ,, with Flaps, Kid Lined	14 6
FF 4. Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt...	6 6

Old Notation—Smaller Type.

HH 5. Morocco, Gilt	6 6
HH 6. ,, with Flaps, Kid Lined	9 6
HH 4. Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt...	4 0

Also in Tonic Sol-fa (RR 5, RR 6, and RR 4), in the same styles and at the same prices.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS, 750 Pieces; AND THE CHRISTIAN CHOIR, 79 Pieces: } IN ONE VOLUME.

WORDS ONLY.

Extra Large Type.

	s. d.
XE 5. Morocco, Gilt	7 6
XE 6. ,, with Flaps, Kid Lined	10 6
XE 4. Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt ...	4 0

MUSIC AND WORDS.

	s. d.
XM 3. Persian Morocco, Boards, Gilt	20 0
XM 4. Best Turkey Morocco, Gilt ...	27 6
XM 2. Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt...	10 6

Any of the above Editions will be sent post free by the Publishers on receipt of the Published Price; or they may be obtained from any Bookseller in the Kingdom.

Publishers: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, London, E.C.

Do I Need Them?

If you have impurity of the Blood Ulcers, Scrofulous Swellings, Scurvy or Sores, Yes! Frazer's Sulphur Tablets enter the blood as a purifying antiseptic and disinfectant air, and therefore neutralise the blood poisons causing these diseases, and expel the germs out of the system.

If you have Eczema, Erysipelas, or other eruption or Skin Disease, Yes! Frazer's Sulphur Tablets have a specific curative effect upon the skin, as they disinfect and free the inner pores and the tiny waste channels leading from the blood. They also control the irritating chemical principle discharged from disordered blood that causes Eczema and other painful eruptive complaints.

If you desire a good Complexion, Yes! Frazer's Sulphur Tablets use tends to the feeding, nourishment and good condition of the skin, which may be said to be the secret of a good complexion.

Children Like Them.

For the ailments of children Frazer's Sulphur Tablets are especially noteworthy, for they are pleasant alike to the eye and taste, and correct costiveness, allay feverishness, disperse inflammatory and eruptive matters, and purify the blood. For Fevers, Eczema, Erysipelas, Chicken Pox, Nettle-rash, Sores, Ulcers and Eruptions, and Constipation, they will be found of the greatest service.

Frazer's Sulphur Tablets are put up in packets, price 1s. 1½d. (post free, 1s. 3d.), and are for sale everywhere. Sole Proprietors, Frazer's Tablets, Limited, 11, Ludgate-square, London, E.C.

Test Them Free of Charge.

Samples of Frazer's Sulphur Tablets will be sent gratis and post free on application. Name The Christian.

BYWATER, TANQUERAY & PHAYRE,

LIMITED.
BANKERS AND AGENTS.
Directors.
ARTHUR BYWATER.
JAMES TRUMAN TANQUERAY.
GENERAL SIR ROBERT PHAYRE, K.C.B.
Secretary: CAPEL SEWELL.

79, QUEEN VICTORIA ST., LONDON,
And at LIVERPOOL and NEW YORK.

Banking in all its Departments. No charge for Current Accounts.

Cash received on Deposit at the following present rates of Interest:—

2½ per cent. per annum for 3 months' notice.
5 ,, ,, for 6 ,,
6 ,, ,, for 12 ,, or longer.
Interest paid Quarterly.

For many years the appointed Agents to 15 of the leading Missionary Societies, English and American. Drafts issued on Foreign Countries free of charge.

EUCALYPTUS AND PINE JUJUBES
C. D. LAWRENCE ORIGINATOR

LAWRENCE'S EUCALYPTUS AND PINE JUJUBES are the best for all Throat and Lung affections—Bronchial Asthma, Bronchitis, Incipient Consumption, Catarrh, Loss of Voice, &c., quickly yield to their Antiseptic and Curative influence.

The MEDICAL PROFESSION have recognised their value in allaying troublesome Cough, and in advanced stages of Consumption prescribe them as a useful adjunct to other treatment. Letters and recommendations from all parts prove their worth.

Insist on having the ORIGINAL, as inferior Jujubes and Lozenges are being constantly offered.

Price 1s. 1½d. and 2s. per box (post free 1s. 3d. or 2s. 3d.). Of all Chemists, or from LAWRENCE & CO., 20, High-street, Rhyl.
London Agents—Barclay, Edwards, Newbery, Sanger.

SELLING JEWELLERY, SILVER PLATE, COINS, &c.

For CHARITABLE PURPOSES.

SPINK & SON, Goldsmiths and Silversmiths, 17 & 18, PICCADILLY, W., and at 2, GRACECHURCH-STREET, CORNHILL, E.C., respectfully announce that they VALUE or PURCHASE for CASH valuable Diamond and other Jewellery, Silver Plate, Coins, Medals, &c. [EST. 1772.

BUMSTED'S TABLE SALT.

MAZAWATTEE

Recalls the Delicious
TEA of Thirty Years ago

Forthcoming Meetings.

[Communications respecting forthcoming meetings cannot be inserted unless received by Tuesday morning at the latest.]

The Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, or Wales, on due notice. Apply Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.; or, The Sec., Evangelisation Society, Scottish Branch, The Grove-street Institute, Glasgow.

The Irish Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

The Church Army will send evangelists (working-men) to any clergymen on due notice, for short or long missions. Hon. Sec., 128 and 130, Edgware-road, W.

The Metropolitan Tabernacle Evangelists' Association will send evangelists to any evangelical denomination within the London postal area. Hon. Sec., 5, Crown-villas, Kennington Oval, S.E.

The Country Towns Mission supplies qualified missionaries for work in the country. Apply to Secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C.

Mr. Henry Thorne's Evangelistic Missions.—Friends wishing to make arrangements for mission services may apply for particulars to the Secretary, Mr. James Pearce, Exeter Hall, Strand, London.

City Y.M.C.A., 59 and 60, Cornhill, London, E.C.—Bible Readings by Mr. Henry Thorne, 14th, 15th, 18th, and 19th July, 1.15 to 2.15 p.m. Gospel meetings, young men, Sundays, 3.30 p.m., Tuesdays, 6.45 p.m.

Conference Hall, Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E. — Sun., July 17, 3 and 7 p.m., Mr. Graham Aspland. Meetings for prayer: Sun. 7.45 a.m., Fri. 7.45 p.m., Sat. 7.30 p.m.

Central Y.M.C.A., Exeter Hall, Strand.—Sun., 3.45 (men only), and 7, public, Mr. W. R. Lane; music by African Native Choir. Meetings for men nightly at 8. Cheerful service, public, Sat., at 8. French Bible-class, Tues., at 8. Prayer-meeting, Mon. to Fri., from 1 till 2 p.m., public.

West London Central Mission.—St. James's Hall, Sun., Rev. Mark Guy Pearse, 11 a.m.; Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, 7 p.m.

Billingsgate Mission Hall.—Mon., July 18, at 12 noon Address by Rev. F. J. Robbins.

Abbey Road Chapel, St. John's Wood.—Pastor H. E. Stone, Suns., "Mornings in Ezekiel," 11 a.m., 6.30 p.m. Thurs., at 8 p.m., "Some Difficult Subjects Studied."

Great Assembly Hall, Mile-end-road, E.—Sun., Mr. C. Inglis, 11 a.m. and 6.30 p.m.

Edinburgh Castle, Rhodeswell-road, Limehouse.—Sun., 11 and 7, Dr. Harry Guinness; 3 p.m., Rev. H. Bright.

Evangelistic Mission.—Kilburn Hall, Kilburn-gate, N.W., Sun., 7 p.m., Mr. H. C. Crawley. Malden Hall, Queen's-crescent, Haverstock-hill, N.W., Sun., 7 p.m., Dr. T. Neatby.

Marylebone Presbyterian Church, Upper George-street.—Rev. Dr. Pentecost, Sun., 11 and 7. Thurs., at 8 p.m.

St. George's Hall, Langham-place.—Dr. M'Killiam, Sun. at 11 and 7, Burlington Hall, Wed., at 8 p.m.

Talbot Tabernacle.—Sun., morning Mr. Finlay Gibson, evening Mr. Leite Rozas.

Conference Hall, Eccleston-street, S.W.—Sun., at 3.30 and 7 p.m., Mr. P. Garrioch.

Pentecostal League.—Special holiness meeting, Exeter Hall, Strand, Tuesday, July 19, at 8. p.m., conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Roger Harris.

Home of Industry, 29, Bethnal-green-road.—Monthly meeting for Christian Workers. Wednesday, July 20. Tea at 6, meeting at 7. Mr. Robert Burn will give the address. Young Workers from the City Y.M.C.A. will also address the meeting.

Folkestone-road Hall, near Hoe-street, Walthamstow.—Mr. Henry Varley on the Atonement and Sacrifice of the Lord Jesus Christ, as revealed in Holy Scripture, Thursday, July 21, at 7.30 p.m.

House of Rest, 10, Finchley-road, N.W.—Friday, 15th, Mr. Reader Harris, at 4 p.m.; Praise Meeting at 7 p.m. Sundays, at 3.30, Bible-reading by Miss Mason.

Cape General Mission.—Messrs. Dudley Kidd and A. Mercer at Y.M.C.A., 172, Queen's-road, Bayswater, on Friday, July 15.

